even Israel, when I went to bring him to rest.] Heb. in going to rest him, or to bring him to rest Israel. So the words lie in the text: which most; both of the Jewish Writers, and others, understand of Gods going to procure rest to his people: and some of the Jewish expound of Gods conducting them, and going before them to seek out fit resting-places for them as they travelled along or to and fro. in the wilderneste, Exod 1 . 22. Num. 0. 33, Deut. 1. 33. Others, of the bringing of them unto a setled place of constant rest in the land of Canaan, Deut 12. 9. Psal. 95. 11. and the word may then well be rendred; to settle him. See Esay 55. 4. & 63 14. So the word Israel must by way of apposition, be referred to the people before-mentioned, as our Version conceiveth it: or if we put off Israel to the end of the verse, rendring the words, to settle him, even Israel; then there is a redundancy but elegant and vehement, like that: Prov. 5. 1. His iniquities shall take him, the wicked one; and the end of his mirth, is grief, Prov. 14 13. Howbeit, some referre all this to Israel, reading the words, some, in the future, Israel shall go to his rest. So the old Latine. Others, in the time prefent, Israel going unto his rest. So some of the Greeks. Others, in the time past, when Israel went or was going, to his rest: or, in Israels going to his rest. So a learned Writer; who to strengthen this exposition, further observeth, first, that the verb infinitive is used sometime for the preter tense, wherein the Jewish Doctor here concurred with him, pointing us to the like, chapter 14 5. Whereof see there: and as leaving, for left there; so going, for, went, here. And secondly, that the verb of resting, in the form here used doth as often signifie to rest, as to cause to rest: and so indeed it seemeth to be taken, Deut. 28. 64. Esay 34. 14. Chapter 47. 6. and lastly, that the infinitive is in Hebrew, as well as in other languages, used frequently as a noun: as Psal. 139. 2. my down sittings and mine up-rising: and, thy sitting, for, thine abode, chap 9. 6. The words may well bear either fense; but I encline rather to the first, understood of the promised land.

V. 3. The Lord hath appeared of old unto me;] Heb. from afarre: as Psalm 139. 2. Esay 5. 26. but it is used as well of time, as of place; place; and so here. Howbeit, some refer it to the time to come; as if the meaning were, it is far off that the Lord appeareth unto us. Ye tell us, that God will appear for our deliverance, Esay, 60. 2. and 66. 5. but his appearance to that purpose is long a coming. So it should be the speech of the people complayning of the delay of their deliverance. But this interpretation the words will not bear Others, and so the most reade them, in the time past, as the word is used, Esay 22. 11. and well rendred here, as there also, of old, in times long past and gone. That they are the words of the people in captivity is generaly agreed; but some would have them the words of the profane partie among them, as scoffing at Gods Prophets, when they tell them of Gods Acts done in former times for his people, as if they said, Yet tell us of things long ago done; but what is that to us, what was then done if any such things were then done, that was in the old time: shew us somewhat in our dayes. But the most rather of the main body of the people, acknowledging that God had indeed so appeared unto their forefathers as was before intimated vers: 2. but withall implying, that he had now withdrawn himself and his gracious presence from them, and did not manifest his affection to them, or might for him, as in times past he had done. See the like complaints Judg. 6. 13. Psalm 44. 1. ----3. and 74. 11. —— 14. Est. 4 9. 14. and 63 11. 16.

appeared] Heb. been seen in the manifestation of his providence for his peoples good and safety; as Gen. 18 22. 14 Psalm 102. 16. Zach. 9. 14.

saying, yea, I have loved thee with an everlasting love;] That these are the Lords words, is generally received: but according to our version, inserting the word saying, between this and the former branch of the context, it may be deemed that they should be the words of God uttered long agoe, at what time he so appeared to his people. Whereas indeed they are, as most Interpreters also take them, words framed from God, as an answer to the peoples complaint coverly inclosed in their fore-mentioned speech; assuring them of the continuance of that affection to them, that in former times he had born toward them, and manifested unto them: and instead of saying, therefore, say they, might be supplied, as Esay 58. 3. but referring to the speech foregoing and annexing it to the close of the former branch, as also the words here following, might better be rendred, yea, (Heb. and as Chapter 18. 23.) I love thee with a perpetual or, everlasting love, Heb. Love of perpetuity, or eternitie; as kindnesse of perpetuity, Esay 54. 8. and joy of perpetuity: Esay 61. 7. My love and affection continueth still the same to thee, and so shall do for ever: or, as some other, with reference to the time past, I love thee with an ancient, or a long, or antiquity: I love thee still with the same affection that in former ages I bare towards thee: and both the terms of the text, and the drift of the context will bear it; for the word here used hath ofe respect to the time past, as well as to the future, Esay 58 12, and 63. 9, 11. See Malachi 1. 3. and 3. 6. John 13. 1. Romans 11. 29.

therefore with loving kindnesse have I drawn thee.] Or I drew thee, as some I wooed thee to win thee and bind and ingage thee to me with many benefits, as with cords and bands of love, Hosea 10. 4. or as others, I will draw thee; to wit, after me, Canticles 1. 4. John 6. 44. or unto repentance, Romans 2. 4. But others rather, both of the Jewish Writers and ours conceive the term here used, to be taken in a notion, not of attraction, but of extension: and some of the Jewish Doctors render the words in the time past, therefore did I extend kindnesse to thee; to wit, say they, at Mount Sinai, when I took thee to be a people in covenant with me, Exodus 19. 5, 6. an effect of his love and affection to them, Deuteronomy 7. 7 8. But ours rather in the future, therefore will I extend kindnesse to thee. So Psalm 36. 10. extend thy kindness; and none to extend kindnesse, Psalm 109. 12. Heb. word for word, extend thee kindnesse, for extend it unto thee: the particle swallowed up between the Verb and the Pronoun affixed: as Esay 65. 5. See instances of the like there: Wherein he would extend kindnesse to her, see in the words next following.

V. 4. Again I will build thee, and thou shalt be built,] Thou shalt be restored and setled again; a metaphor taken from architecture; for, saith the Rabbine, as timber and stones and other materials are dissipated and disperled, when a building is dissolved and pulled down; so in re-edifying of it, they are gathered and brought together again, and the fabrick is raised by the conjunction of them in due manner one with another: and in like manner was it with this people; who when they were disperled by deportation had their State dissolved, which God by the collection and reduction of them unto their own land, and setling of them therein, promiseth as to re-edifie and build up again, Psalm 51. 18, & 102. 16. & 147. 2. 1 Chap 6.

O virgin of Israel] Or O Damsel. See Esay 47. 1. and Damsel of Israel 23, daughter of Sion, Esay 1. 8. and, the city of Jerusalem, it is put here for the whole State of Israel v. 1.

thou shalt again be adorned with thy Tabrets, and shalt go forth in the dances of them that make merry] Thou shalt return again to a comfortable and cheertull condition, such as in times of peace and plenty, people generally, the younger sort especially, are wont to enjoy, Zach. 3. 10. & 8 5. & 9. 17.

be adorned with thy tabrets] Or, adorn, or: furnish, thy self with thy tabrets, or timbrels. So the Verb is rendred, as in a reciprocal notion, Chapter 4. 30. Ezek. 16. 13. & 23. 40. thou shalt make use again of thy Tabrets or Timbrels, which they were wont to play upon in their solemn feastings; and at times of extraordinary rejoycing, Genesis 31. 27. Esay 30. 32. and these the rather he here mentioneth, because she had compared the State of Israel to a young damsel; and at these solemnities such used to play on them, Exodus 15. 20. Judges 11. 34. 1 Samuel 18 6. Psalm 68. 25. and the use of those, saith the Rabbine, should then be an ornament to them, because they should use them in seemly manner and seasonably; not as those that made use of them formerly, when occasion was of mourning and grief rather than of mirth, Esay 4. 12. Amos 5. 5, 6. but the meaning may be simply, thou shalt furnish thy self with them, and with other thine ornaments, put them on about thee: for some scarf or silk ribbon, it is not unlikely they hung them on, when they made use of them. Howbeit, a learned Writer would rather have the words rendred, thou shalt adorn thy tabrets: and the word is applied, as sometime to that wherewith one is adorned, Esay 61. 10. Hosea 2. 13. so other-while to the party or thing adorned: as Ezekiel 16. 11. and saith he, in times of publick jollity, the Timbrels were wont to be adorned and set out with garlands: and I suppose indeed; that the meaning may well be, (whether any such garlands were used about them, and be aimed at, or no) that they should furbish over and trim up their Tabrets again, which had been cast aside and neglected before.

goe forth in the dances of them that make merry] As the Damsels also used at such times to doe, Judges 11. 34. and 21. 21. 1 Samuel 18. 6. So verse 15. Of the latter word, see on Chapter 15. 17.

V. 5. Thou shalt yet plant Vines upon the mountains of Samaria;] Another note of time, of publick peace and security, when men apply themselves unto tilling and planting, which in times of war or dread and danger they are wont to neglect: as uncertain to enjoy, reap, or receive any fruit of their labours, Judges 6. 3, 4. 11.

upon the mountains] Deemed fittest for Vines, as affording the best grapes, and such as yield the strongest wines. So Ezek. 36. 8. 9. Joel 3. 18.

of Samaria] The Head-city and royal seat of the ten Tribes, 1 Kings 18. 24. put sometime, as Israel, for that whole State and the land possessed by them, Chapter 23. 13. Ezekiel 16. 46. Hosea 7. 1. & 8. 5. Amos 3. 9. hence those that are here called, the mountains of Samaria, are called the mountains of Israel, Ezekiel 36. 8 and 37. 22. This is deemed to have been in part fulfilled, after the return from the Babylonian captivity; and that partly in many of the ten tribes that returned back with their brethren the Jews, repossessing some part of their land again, and partly in the Jews, who regained at sometimes much of that Countrey; to which purpose are produced out of Josephs Antiquities, lib. 13. chap. 5. 8. the letters of two Demetrii, the Father and the Sonne, unto Jonathan the then Jewish Ruler, wherein upon their conquests made on those parts, they assign the land of Samaria with some other Regions thereabout unto the Jewes; but was to be more fully accomplished spiritually in the restauration of the Church under the Messias, See Ezekiel 37. 1, 22.

the planters, shall plant them, and shall eat them as common things] Heb. shall prophane them: a defect of the Pronoun; as Capter 24. 6. After the time both of the uncircumcision of them, which continued three years after the first planting of them compleated, and of the sanctification of them, which lasted unto the fourth years end: now expired, those that planted them, shall in the fifth year eat freely of the fruit of them. See the Law to this purpose, Leviticus 19 23, 25. and Deuteronomy 20. 6. Those that plant them, shall in due time enjoy them, not being deprived of the fruit of their labours, nor that which they had taken pains for being either destroyed or devoured by strangers, Esay 65. 21. 23. of the use of the word, see 1 Sam. 21. 5.

V. 6. For there shall be a day] Heb. there is a day. A time is set, and shall surely come; as Esay 11. 10. Zach. 14. 7.

that the watchmen upon the mount Ephraim] Heb. the watchers or keepers on mount Ephraim; for there is no Article in the Text; and, mount Ephraim, soundeth better with us: as also it is rendered, Judges, 19. 1. 1 Samuel 1. 1. Ephraim; as, Samaria, for that whole Land or State: the reason whereof, see on Esay 7. 2. there is a defect of the Particle that, as Chapter, 25. 12.

watchmen] Such, say most, as are described, Ezekiel 33. 2. persons set on purpose on work by the State, to watch as Sentinels on publicke places, to descry and give warning of any enemies approach, Esay 21. 6. and the word here used seemeth so to be taken, 2 Kings 17. 9. and 18. 8. that which therefore most apply unto the Ministers of the Gospel; as Esay 52. 8. and 62. 6. Howbeit, I conceive rather that the allusion is to the Keepers of the Vineyards, whereof mention was before made, verse 5. as such are designed and alluded to under this term, Chapter 4. 16, 17. (for of those in times of publick peace and security there is not so much use) that they should be enciting and calling one to another, to go to worship God in the set places of his publick and solemn service. Which albeit it was to be in its chief and highest degree, and accomplished under the Messias, when the Faith of him should be held by those of that Nation be embraced, John 4.40, 41. Acts 8 1. 25. Yet I suppose that conceit of a great man a little too curious, who would have the term of Nazarens in the term here found alluded to: Sometime given by some to the Christians, Acts 24 5. See Esay 11. 1.

shall cry Arise ye, and let us go up to Zion unto the Lord our God.] See the like invitations and compellations of people calling one unto another to go together to Gods House, Esay 2. 3. Mic. 4. 2. Zach 8 21.

shall cry] As Esay 21. 8. or call; in way of invitation; as Deut. 3 19.

go up] Or go repair; as Psalm 122. 1, 4.

to Zion] Where the Temple stood: a type of the Church, Psal. 84 7 from accesse whereunto by Jeroboam they had been debarred, 1 Kings 12. 27, 28.

unto the Lord our God] From whom they seemed to be excluded before, as having no part or portion in him among his people, Ezr. 4. 3 Matthew 10. 5. Luke 9. 52, 53. John 4. 9, 22. See the like prophecy of the conjunction and re-uniting of these two, Ezek 37. 16. &c.

V. 7. For thus saith the Lord, Sing for gladness with Jacob,] An exhortation followeth, wherein the people of Israel are called upon to acknowledge and publish with much joy Gods gracious goodness towards them in their deliverance. And this branch moth take as directed to the Churches friends, or foreign Nations, as called upon to rejoyce for her, or, with her, (for so is the particle also used in the former way, Gen. 21. 6. & 25. 42. in the latter, Genesis 46. 25 Chapter 19. 13.) so it should be like that, Deut. 32. 43. the Gentiles being invited to rejoyce with Gods people, and in the next clause mentioned, as some, because they were also to be brought unto Christ, c. 16. 19. Ro 15. 10. Rf. 66. 10. Howbeit, one of the Jewish Commenters, (whom the ancient Greek here in followeth) taking the particle in its most usual notion, and supposing a trajection to be in these words, rendreth it, Thus saith the Lord to Jacob, sing or Exult ye, for, or with joy: and so it is an encitement of Gods people themselves to rejoyce; like that. Zach 9. 9.

and shout among the chief of the Nations] Heb. cry aloud. or shrill, (as it is rendred, Esay 10 30. the word signifieth properly to neigh, c. 5. 8 & 50. 11. and it is used most in a notion of exaltation and alacrity. Esther 8 15. Esay 12. 6. & 24. 14. & 54. 1.) in the head of the nations; which our version rendreth chief: and so the word is sometime used; as Exodus 20. 13. Esay 9. 10. Now this some expound as insulting over the Nations; that being before as the head, had made them as the tail, Deut. 28. 24. and they urge the term of neighing, as to that purpose here used: and this way both the ancient Greek and Latine seem to go, rendring the words, neigh against the head of the Gentiles: and so is the particle used, Exod. 24 25 Numbers 12. 1 But the most rather understand it as the Chaldee renders it, openly, in, or unto the face of the nations; (the head, for th face: as Job 10. 15 Chapter 14. 2. 1 Cor. 11. 7, 10.) as implying onely a free and open profession and publication of what God had done for them: as Esay 12. 4. and this also the words following confirm. One of the Jewish Commenters renders it, on the towers: and Head, for Top is usual: as Exodus, 17. 9, 10. Esay 22 but then something is added; the top whereof is said to be the Head or Top: otherwise Head, for Tower simply, is no where found.

publish ye, praise ye,] Heb. make to hear (as Esay 48. 20.) praise ye; that is with praise relate and publish it: as, went and wept, for, went weeping, Psalm 126. 6. stand and feed, for, stand feeding, Esay 61. 5.

and say, O Lord, save thy people, the remnant of Israel.] This clause is in a manner generaly thus rendred. But how to fit it to the present discourse, Interpreters are somewhat troubled. For some would have them the words of the people remaining yet in captivity, entreating God to deliver them such of them; as yet survived, having escaped the sword of the Chaldeans, verse 2. but remained still in thraldome; unto which their sute an answer should by God be returned, that he would grant their request and fulfill their desire, verse 8. but others conceiving aright by the words foregoing, that this whole passage is directed unto, and concerneth the people as now delivered, and set free as that Esay 12. 4 & 48. 20. understand it, as a Petition preferred to God by the Jewish people delivered in behalf of the other tribes a great part whereof remained still in captivity. Which yet with others seeming not satisfactory, they would have it to be a form not of prayer, but of praise, as Hosanna is, say they, Psalm 118. 25 Matt. 21. 9 But this is riteth not well with the use of the word in the Psalm, from whence that in the Gospel hath it; howsoever it may there receive another Exposition, from a rite used by the Jewes at one of their Festivals, as some learned Criticks have observed. Howbeit, that should be rather matter of praise, than of prayer, the foregoing words imply. And the Chaldee therefore rendreth it in the time present, The Lord delivers, or is delivering his people, (not as some render him, thou hast delivered: for it is a participle of the present that he maketh use of) and the ancient Greek in the time past, The Lord hath saved his people; and for is suiteth well with the parallel places. Esay 44. 23. Sing ye Heavens,——and shout ye lower parts of the Earth——for the Lord hath redeemed Jacob: and Esay 48. 20. Declare ye, tell this, utter it,——say, The Lord hath redeemed his servant Jacob: (see also verse 11.) and it may well be rendred, Thou hast saved, or saving saved thy people: for the Verb seemeth here to be the infinitive, which is oft in this form and others the same with the imperative, and is used frequently for the indicative, whereof see on verse 2. and that as well past as there, and Eccl. 9. 10. as future, 2 Sam. 3. 18. where the indicative of this Verb there wanting, as in such defective phrases, is found supplied, c. 11. 12.

the remnant of Israel.] As Esay 10. 21, 22. Romans 11. 5.

V. 8. Behold, I will bring them from the North-country] Heb. Lo, I am bringing (as chap. 5. 1, 5. Zach. 3 8.) them (the remnant of my people, v. 7.) from the North; from Babylon, and the parts thereabout. c. 3. 18.

and gather them from the Coasts of the Earth] Heb. sides Chapter 6. 22. and 25. 32. from Assyria, Media, and other parts, whither those of the ten Tribes, had been transported, 2 Kings 17. 6.

and with the blind and the lame, the women with child, and the that travelleth with childe together,] Or the copulative cast out, among them (as Esay 65. 4. & 66. 19. Chapter 11. 9.) shall be the blind and lame, the that goeth great, (see Esay 7. 14.) and the that is near her time (Heb. bringing forth, as Chapter 6. 24.) together. Thereby intimacting, that none in regard of any defect or infirmity, which usually are wont to disable persons to travel, to take long journeyes especially, (Samuel 19 26. Matt. 24. 19.) should in that regard mis or be deprived of the benefit of return into their owne Countrey: God would in his providence so dispose things, that such as were in these regards most unfit, and unable to travel, should have such means of conveyance provided them, as should with safety bring them to their journeyes end: See the like in part, Esay 60. 4, 9. & 66. 20. So rather, I suppose, than as some other, implying, either the willingness and forwardness of the people to return home again, that no want or weakness would with-hold from setting forward on their way. the women great with child, and near their time, refusing to stay till they were light: or as others, to shew that none for any natural infirmity should be refused or excluded from having a part among Gods people. See Esay 35. 5, 6. and 42. 16. and 56. 3, 4 Luke 14. 21. There want not that understand all these passages spiritually, the blinde in minde, Acts 26. 18. and through feeblenesse disabled to walk cavenly, Hebrewes 12. 12, 13. and heavy laden with their sinnes, Matthew 11. 28. and ready to faine for want of inward comfort, Esay 42. 3. and 50. 10. But these particularities I conceive to be over-curious, and leave them to the judgement of others.

a great company shall return thither] Heb. hither; into this land again: See Ezr. 2 47. 65. & 8. 1, ——20. and of converts in the Apostles time, Acts 2. 41. & 4. 4. & 8. 6, 12.

V. 9. They shall come with weeping] There are tears of joy, as well as of grief: See Gen. 29. 11. & 43 30 & 45. 2, 14. these might well be mixt, as well of grief for their sins, whereby they had grieved God, Ezekiel 6. 9. Zach. 12. 10. as of joy for their deliverance out of those calamities, which they had brought upon themselves by their sins: So going, and weeping that is, weeping as they go along chapter 50. 4. Nor can I assent to that learned man, who would have it re-dred, They shall go out, or went out, with weeping; as Psalm 126 6. expounding it of their going out into captivity, the current of the text goeth like a strong torrent against it, and with supplications will I lead them] With supplications, for the remission of their sins: and the word is commonly used for supplications, Daniel 9. 3, 17, 18, 23. and weeping and it are joyned together, chapter 2. 11. Zachary 12. 10. But some other say, that the word is more general, comprehending as well praise and thanksgiving, as supplication and prayer; as another of the like notion is observed to do. 1 Samuel 2. 1. for Hannah's devotion there recorded is rather tehillah, than tephillah, consisting of matter of praise, rather than of prayer. And some other again, which our margene exhibiteth, render it favours: and this, though the word it self be not found directly so used, yet in the original, and the notation of it, it hath a notion of grace or favor; and another term rising from the same root, & being of very near affinity with it, though commonly, yea almost generally used for prayer, properly to procure grace, yet sometimes or twice at least found used for favor or grace it self, Jothius 11. 20 Ezra 9. 8 and so therefore I conceive, with one of the Jewish Commenters, that it is to be taken here; as being applied rather to God that led them, than to the people led by him: with graces, or favours, will I lead them: graces, or favours; as, tender mercies, and loving kindnesses, Esay 63. 7. for, great abundance, or much of either.

I will cause them to walk by the rivers of waters,] Or, I will lead them along (for this word and the former are in notion the same; and there is in the original an elegant confonancy between them) by the water-brookes. Heb. to the brookes of water: and so it may seem to be, as some would have it taken from the manner of leading our their sheep to the water, Psalm 23. but in a straight way, wherein they shall not stumble:] Or, rather, in an even way, (See Esay 26. 7.) that they may not stumble therein: as Esay 73. 14. See Esay 40. 3. 4. and 42. 16. and 62. 10.

but I suppose it well rendred, as in our version, by, or beside; (as the particle is used, Gen. 49. 29. bury me beside my fathers: and as it is aright rendred, Job 29. 19. my root was spread out by, or beside the waters,) because the speech is here of journeying or travelling: the meaning of it being, that they should no more want water, (a principal and most necessary means of relief unto pilgrims travelling in those Countries and thorow dry and waste places especially) then as if they went all the way by the side of some one or other river. See Esay 41. 18. and 43. 19, 20. and 49. 10.

for I am a father to Israel,] Heb. for a father; as Gen. 17. 4. 2 Sam. 7. 14. I retain still a fatherly affection toward him, as in former times I had, Deut. 8. 5. & 32. 6. Psalm 103. 13. Mal. 1. 10. & 3. 17. and we need not insert, as a learned Writer would have us, the note of similitude, reading the words, as a father; that is, as Jacob was to Josephs sons, whom he adopted, making him in regard of the double portion as his first-born, Gen. 48. 5, 16, 22. 1 Chr. 5. 1.

and Ephraim is my first-born] Heb. my first-born he: he, for, is: as thou he, for, thou art, Psalm 44. 4. Ephraim is as dear to me, as is any first-born to his father. So the Chaldee, with whom the Jewish Commenters doe herein concur. See the same spoken of Israel in general, Exod. 4. 22. of David in particular, Psalm 89. 27. of all the faithful, Heb. 12. 23. See after also, verse 20. So rather than, as some, because Joseph had the birth-right devolved to him from Reuben. 1 Chron. 5. 1. and Ephraim though his younger son preferred before Manasses in the blessing by their Grand-father Jacob, Genesis 48. 14, 19. or, with some others, as if the Jewish people (for Ephraim here comprehendeth the whole body of them) were so termed in regard of the Gentiles, that were afterward to be taken in to them, Acts 3. 26. Rom. 2. 10.

V. 10. Hear the word of the Lord, O ye Nations, and declare it in the Isles afar off, and say,] Isles, or Lands, or Countries; as Esay 41. 1. & and 42. 10. Go I will have his gracious promises concerning the deliverance of his people, to be before-hand published fast and near, that notice may be taken of it, and it may thereby be known whose work it is, when it is done. See Esay 44. 26. & 45. 21. & 46. 10. & 48. 3, 14. So as of the thing done and effected before v. 7.

he that scattered Israel, will gather him] God who formerly in his wrath, for their sins dispersed them, (for it was not so much the enemies might as his purpose and pleasure that enabled them to prevail against them: and unto him therefore is the dispersion of them principally ascribed. 9. 16. & 15. 7. & 16. 17. Zach 7. 14.) being now retonciled to them, will gather them together again, Psalm 147. 2. Esay 11. 12. & 56. 8.

and keep him] Not gather them together onely, and so leave them to themselves, but protect them also when he hath brought them together, and keep them in safety, Esay 38. 6. & 26. 8. & 27. 3. Zach. 2. 5. called therefore the keeper of Israel, Psalm 121. 4. So of all the faithful, 1 Peter 1. 5. not called onely but kept, Jude 1. See John 10. 27 28.

as a shepherd doth his flock,] Who not onely feeketh after his sheep, when they are scattered or have strayed, Ezek 34. 11.——16. Matt. 25. 32. Luke 15. 4. 5. but keepeth them also and feedeth them, and tendeth them, and defendeth them, when he hath them together, 1 Samuel 17. 35. Ezekiel 34. 23, 23. hence David, The Lord is my Shepherd, Psalm 23. 1. and God is styled the Shepherd of Israel, Psalm 80. 1. and Christ, the good Shepherd, John 10. 11——16. and the chief Shepherd, 1 Peter 5. 4. See also Esay, 40. 11.

V. 11. For the Lord hath redeemed Jacob, and ransomed him from the hand of him that is stronger than he.] Or the Lord hath delivered (as Psalm 55. 18.) Jacob, and rescued him out of the hand (as Psalm 107. 2.) of those (for the term is collective) that were stronger than he, or too strong for him. Heb strong from him; as Psal. 18. 17. See on chap. 20. 7 of the Chaldeans and other powerfull people, corporally, Esay 40. 10. Satan and his instruments spiritually, Matth. 12. 29. Luke 11. 21, 22. Col. 1. 13. Heb. 2. 14, 15. Some render it, in the future, will deliver, will rescue; because it ran so, verse 10. but of that there is no necessity: freedom was both effected and published before they either were, or could be gathered together, being fo dispersed as they were.

V. 12. Therefore they shall come and sing in the height of Zion,] Heb. And, as Chap. 29. 27. Howbeit, the copulative may here be retained. Those of the ten Tribes, as well as the other two, shall after their return from captivity, repair to mount Sion, with sacred hymns, to celebrate Gods prayses in his Sanctuary there feated, a type of his Church, Esay 2. 2. So ver. 6. The text may well be thus rendred: And they shall go singing unto the high place of Zion. So is the particle used of motion to a place, Gen. 1. 14 Lev. 16. 21. Ezr. 9. 7. Esay 9. 8. & 10. 22. go and sing, for go singing: as go and weep, for go weeping, Psalm 126 6. and the height of Sion, for the high places there; as, the height of Israel, for the high places thereof, Ezekiel 20. 40. & 44. 14. See chap. 17. 12.

and shall flow together] Flock thither by sholes, as waters come flowing in of themselves abundantly, where they finde open and free passage: for the word, as the Rabbine obferveth, seemeth to note as well the alacrity, as the numerosity of those that should repair thither. See Esay 2. 2. So Psalm 34. 5. Chapter 50. 4.

to the goodness of the Lord, for Wheat, and for Wine, and for Oyl, and for the young of the flocks, and of the Herd] to the goodnesse of the Lord: that is, as some to his beneficence; or unto him as the fountain and well-spring from which all these benefits and blessings do flow: or upon the goodnesse of God; having received these things out of his bounty bestowed on them, as Hosea 3. 5. or as others, goodnesse, for good things; as Genesis, 24. 10. and the goodnesse of the Land, for the good things of it, Genesis 45. 18. Nehemiah 9. 12. Esay 1. 19. called here the good thing of the Lord, because he is the giver of them, Hosea 3. 8. Acts 14. 17. and promiseth to bestow such on them, verse 14. which good things what they were, is afterward more particularly expressed: and it may according to this exposition well be rendred, for the good things of the Lord, for Corn, and for Wine, (Heb. new, or sweet Wine, as Esay 36. 17.) and for Oyle, and for the young, or issue (Heb. sons; as Genesis 18. 7. Numbers 7 15. Psalm 114. 4.) of herd and flocks, greater and lesser cattel; as Esay 7. 25. and howsoever the particle before the term of good in general; be not the same with that which ushereth in the particulars; yet it is observed by the Jewish Criticks here on verse 9. that three times, et and are used in promiscuously used: whereof see instances not a few in this Prophet, Chapter 21. 11, 18. & 26. 5. & 47. 19. & 44 1. & 46. 2. & 47. 1 7, & 49, 19, 20, 34 & 50. 1. & 51. 12. The meaning then is, that they shall repair for these things unto Sion, not to find these things there, as Esay 55. 1. but either to seek to God for them, as Ezekiel 36. 37 or to bleſſe and praiſe him for them, who hath before blessed them with the same. Deuteronomy 7. 13. & 8. 10. & 16. 13——15. and howsoever these temporal good things are in a generality types of better spiritual blessings, Ephes. 1. 3. Heb. 8. 5, 6. & 9. 23. Yet I suppose them somewhat over-curious, who by Corn, here understand the bread of Life, Christs Body, John 6. 33, 35, 51. by Wine, his Blood John 6. 53, 56. the Food of our Souls, Matt. 26. 26. 28. by Oyle, the Spirit of Grace, wherewith Christian men are anointed, 2 Corinthians 1. 21. 1 John 2. 20, 27. or of consolation, wherewith the soul is refreshed, Acts 9. 31. 2 Corinthians 1. 3, 6. by the young-lings of herd and flocks, Christ stain and sacrificed on the Crosse, 1 Cor. 5. 7. Heb. 9. 11, 14, 26, 28. and 10. 10, 12. But such particularities neither fort so well with the Types, to which they are applyed, nor agree so well among themselves.

and their soul shall be as a watered garden,] Or for (the copulative used in a causative notion, Chap. 23. 22. rendring a reason, why they should thus bleſſe God, Deut. 28. 11, 47.) their soul (that is, they themselves. as Psalm 22. 26. & 25. 13, 20. & 63. 5. So v. 14.) shall be as a well-watered garden, (for the word hath a notion of plenty in it: as Psalm 36 8 Prov. 5. 19. & 7. 18.) wherein every thing thriveth and flourisheth: a lively emblem of a plentiful and prosperous estate: See Esay 58 11.

and they shall not sorrow any more at all,] Heb. they shall not adde to sorrow further: as, thou shalt not adde to rejoyce further, Esay 23. 12. they shall have no longer cause or occasion of grief. See Esay 35. 10. the ground of their repairing with singing to Sion.

V. 13. Then shall the Virgin rejoyce in the dance, both young men and old together:] Or then shall the Damsels of the world, (see the Esay 7. 14. it is here collective) make merry with dancing, and the Esay 7. 14. it is here collective) make merry with dancing, and the youths and old together. There shall be abundance of joy with all sorts of people of all ages and either sex. See the like, Zach. 8. 4, 5 & 9. 17. So are all of each age, and either sex encited unto the praising of God for his goodnesls, Psalm 148. 12, 13. Nor need we yet to refrain the mirth here mentioned to sacred employments, though of dancing in such also we finde mention in Scripture, as 2 Sam. 6. 14, 16. 1 Chr. 15. 29. Psalm 149, 3. & 150. 4. and of the Damsels. in times of publick and solemn rejoycing, see Judges 11. 34 and 21. 21.

for I will turn their mourning into joy] Heb. and but so also, Chapter 23. 22. or when I shall have turned; as Chapter 14. 15. & 16. 6. So David, thou hast turned my mourning into dancing, Psalm 30. 11. and God promiseth to turn his peoples fasts into festivals, Zachar. 8. 19.

and make them rejoyce from their sorrow] Either, rejoyce. and cease from their sorrow; as, thou hast loved and saved my soul from the pit, Esay 38. 17. or, rejoyce after their grief; as the particle is used, Esay 38 15. Hof. 6. 3.

V. 14. And I will satiate the soul of the Priests with fatnesse;] I will make large and liberal provision for my Ministers. so as they shall have wherewith to maintain them and theirs in a plentifull manner to their fill. See 2 Chronicles 31. 10. Malachi 3. 10.

satiate] The word used also before. v 12. signifieth more properly to water largely, and plentifully, Psalm 65. 10. Esay 55. 10. or to soake, Esay 34. 7. than to drinke largely, or to ones fill, Psalm. 36. 8.

with fatnesse] Alluding to the offerings of fat beasts brought for sacrifice, whereof the Priests had their share. So also Psalm 36. 8. Esay 25. 6 and my people shall be satisfied with goodnes, saith the Lord.]They shall be abundantly stored with all manner of good things. See v. 12. 2 Chron. 31 10.

V. 15. Thus saith the Lord, a voice was heard in Ramah, lamentation and bitter weeping, Rachel weeping for her children refused to be comforted for her children, because they were not.] God had before promised to turn their mourning in to mirth : Vow this promised mirth is here amplified by the mourning foregoing it, which is very pathetically illustrated by a two-fold Rhetoricall introduction of persons, Rachel the mother here, and Ephraim her Grand-child by Joseph, verse 18. In this place Rachel Jacobs beloved wife, as the common mother in some sort of both people, Judah and Israel. (for Ephraim, the head of the ten Tribes, Esay 7. 2. verse 9. was her grandchilde by Joseph her elder son, Gen 48. 5. and the illue of Benjamin her younger son, Genesis, 35 16, 18. continued still in conjunction and consociation with the Tribe of Judah, 2 Chron. 11. 12.) is brought in, as risen out of her sepulchre, situate between Ramath and Bethlehem, in the confines of either Tribe, Genesis 35. 19. Josh 18. 25. Judges 4. 5. 1 Sam. 10. 2. lamenting the losse of her children led away into captivity. as making account never to see them, or to have them delivered again. And this some of the Jewish Doctors apply unto the Jewish and Benjamitish Matrones and Mothers, who with weeping and wailing accompanied their children, led away captive toward Babylon by Ramah, where Nebuzaradan seemeth to have mustered them, and from whence Jeremy having been so far carried away from Jerusalem, was dismissed and sent back, Chap. 40. 1. and the Talmudists tell us that Jacob buried her there foreseeing by the Spirit of Prophecy, that his posterity should there way be led captive, that she might, as they passed by her, intercede for them. But these are Jewish tables. The Evangelist applieth it to the mothers of the young ones at or about Bethlehem, that Herod had most barbarously caused to be slaughtered, Matth 2. 18. Both the Prophet and the Evangelist do hereby imply what Rachel in likelyhood would have done, had she been surviving at either of those calamities, which those of her issue sustained. The words may be read ; In Ramah hath been heard a voice of lamentation. (a voice of lamentation, as chap. 9. 18.) a voice (supplied. as chap. 3. 21 and 4. 31.) of most bitter weeping, (Heb. weeping of bitternesses, See Esay 22. 4. chap. 6. 26.) a voice (continued, as Esay 66 6. chap. 4 31.) of Rachel, (as Matth. 2. 18.) who weeping for her children, (Heb. her sons) refuseth to be comforted, (as Jacob, Genesis 37 35. Afaph, Psalm 77 2. so Esay 2 1. 4.) in regard of them, (Heb. her children ; the Noun for the Pronoun : as Exodus 40. 19, 21, 25, 29. 2 Timothy 1. 18. and a defect of the Relative ; as Chapter 30. 21.) because they were not : as, Jacob, Genesis 42. 36. Joseph is not, and Simeon is not.

in Ramah] Some take it for a common word, rendering it, in, or on an high place ; as Chapter, 3. 21. and this way goeth the Chaldee, the old Latine, some of the Jewish and ours. But the ancient Greeke and the Evangelist take it for the proper name of a place; as in the places above pointed to.

V. 16. Thus saith the Lord] After Rachels lamentation for her sons, as lost, followeth Gods consolation of her, putting her in hope of their return.

Refrain thy voyce from weeping] Leave, or give over weeping : but he saith, Refrain thy voice ; because he said before, a voice of weeping, implying not a silent weeping, but such as is accompanied with wailing and loud expressions by voice ; as it is said of Esau, he lift up his voice, and wept, Gen. 27. 38. and of Joseph, he gave out his voyce in weeping (of which form, see on chapter 2. 15.) so loud, that it was heard of the Egyptians and Pharaohs Courtiers, that were without the roome in his house, Genesis, 45. 2.

for thy worke shall be rewarded saith the Lord.] Heb. there is a reward for thy work ; as 2 Chron. 16. 7. This some apply unto Rachel, that God for her piety would cause her issue to fare the better at last : and the Talmudists ridiculously expound it of her patience in suffering her Sister Leah to be substituted in her room, and obedience in delivering her token to her, which they tell us also that she pleaded to God in behalf of her people. See Genesis 29. 23, 25. but this is an idle fiction, as frivolous as that of Jacob before, verse 15. Others, Popish especially, of the patience of the Bethlemitish women, Matth 2 17. The Jewish Commenters understand it of the people her illue, that should receive a reward for their constant keeping to God, during the time of their captivity, Psalm 44. 17. Our Writers most of them, of that comfortable condition that God would restore them unto, and confer upon them when the time of their captivity should be accomplished. See Esay 40. 10. and 61. 7. these terms of worke and reward being used, because it should succeed their former misery and thraldom, as wages doth work ; and should abundantly countervail whatsoever hardship they had endured in the former. Of such spiritual compensations, see Rom. 8. 18. 2 Cor. 4. 18. ascribed here unto Rachel the mother, because as the tribulations of the children are the mothers grief ; so their prosperous conditin is matter of comfort and joy to her, See Matt. 15. 22.

and they shall come again from the land of the enemy.] Thy children of whose return thou despairest, as they themselves also did, Ezek. 33. 11.

V. 17. And there is hope in the end,] There is hope (and thou shouldest not therefore mourn as one that hath no hope, 1 Thess. 4. 13. John 11. 18.) in thine end, (as Job 8. 7. Chap. 15. 11. when the time fer for their exilement shall be expired. C. 29. vers. 10.) or, for thy posterity ; as the word here used signifieth, Daniel 11. 4. and that seemeth the Genuine fence of it in this place.

that thy children shall come again to their own border] Thy children, Heb. sons ; as ver. 17 because the males most were captived) whom thou now deemest as lost : (a defect of the Pronoun posseslive ; as Esay 60. 4.) shall return to their own possessions : border for borders ; alluding to the limitation of the land of Canaan, and the setting out of it to the several Tribes by borders and boundaries, Josh. 15, 1, 2. or to the general manner of bounding mens lands and possessions, Deuteronomy, 27. 17. Acts 17. 26.

V. 18. I have surely heard Ephraim bemoaning himself] To Rachels lamenting for her sons is here subjoyned Ephraims bewailing of his sins ; Gods taking notice of it, and returning an answer full of fatherly affection to it, v. 20.

I have surely heard) Of Rachel was faid before, A voice was heard ; here, as speaking in the person of God, I have heard, Heb. hearing, heard ; as Exodus 22. 22. I hear attentively, so as to take notice and regard, Psal. 5 1, 2. & 77. 1.

Ephraim] The ten Tribes, as v. 6. 9.

bemoaning himself] The word hath sometime a notion of wandring ; as Gen 4. 12. Chap. 1. 1. and so the old Latine, and some others here take it ; as it it were said, being now in captivity and exilement, and thereby brought, as Manasses sometime, 2 Chron. 33 12. to a fight of himself and his sins : sometime, of mourning, either of condoling with others, as Job 2. 11. Chapter 15. 5. and 16. 5. or, bewailing ones self ; and so here the Chaldee, Greek, and most, both Jewish Interpreters, and others, take it : the Verb being in a reciprocal form, wherein it is in the former notion no where found; nor would here well fit. See Exek. 6 9.

thus] Or, and saying; as Psalm 105. 15. Esay, 22. 13. speaking on this wise unto God.

Thou hast chastised me, and I was chastised; as a bullock unaccustomed to the yoke.] Or, Thou hast chastised me and I have been chastised ; I was as a bullock unaccustomed, Heb. untaught. See chap. 13, 23.) to draw in the yoke. See Hos. 10. 11. I am at length amended by thy chastising hand upon me. See Chap. 7. 8. Hos. 10. 10. for before I was thus chastised, I was like an unruly bullock, that will not be brought to the yoke, nor endure to draw in it, Psalm 119 67, 71. Howbeit, the Chaldee Paraphrast, and some others (whom a late learned Writer followeth, and would have the ancient Greek copies to be thence corrected) render the Text in the negative, Thou hast chastised me, but I have not been corrected, or, I have not received instruction, as a bullock untaught, or untamed. But the negative is not in the Hebrew, nor ought from whence it may be supplied : that which that learned man perceiving, and therefore casting it out again, readeth the words, I have been chastised as a bullock untamed ; that is, I remain no more the better for all thy chastisements, than such an unruly and untamed beast : but this construction seems over much forced.

turn thou me, and I shall be turned.] A prayer either for grace and power to repent and return unto God ; which without his help they cannot do, Cant. 1. 4 John 6. 44 Acts 11. 18. 2 Tim. 2. 26. or that God would reduce them, and bring them back out of thraldome ; which if he undertake to do, is sure to be done, Psalm 80. 3, 7, 19. Lam. 5. 21.

thou art the Lord my God] Or, thou who art the Lord my God : a defect of the relative, as Chap. 30. 21.

V. 19. Surely, after that I was turned, I repented ;] After that thou hadst wrought a gracious change upon my soul by thine afflicting hand, and thy Spirit working together with it, Esay 48. 10. Acts 3. 26. or after I came to my self again, as Luke 15. 17. and considered seriously with my self, how it fared with me, I was touched with repentance with sorrow and shame, for my former miscarriages, Deuteronomy 30. 1, 2. So rather than as a learned late Writer. after that I return home again, then will I repent : though it be true that their repentance then also continued, Ezek. 36. 31.

and after that I was instructed] As well as corrected, Psalm 94. 12. unlike to those. Chap. 2. 30. & 5. 3. Heb. it was made known to me ; as 1 Sam. 6. 3. Neh. 4. 9. the preposition between the Verb and the Pronoun affixed to it being lost ; as Esay 28 15. Chap. 10. 20. so rather, than as that learned Scholiast, who would have the Passive here taken in a reciprocall notion, rendering it, after that I knew my self : or than as that other Annotator, After

After that thou hast shewed me some kindnesse, then shall I be thus affected.

I smote upon my thigh] In token of remorse for, detestation of, and astonishment at my former vile and lewd courses. See Ezek. 21. 12.

I was ashamed; yea, even confounded] Or, I was abashed, and ashamed also. So Ezr 9 6.

because I did bear the reproach of my youth.] That is, such miseries, as by mine excesses in former times committed, I had brought upon my self. See Job 13. 26. Psalm 25. 7. 2. an allusion to the state of one, that having in his youthfull dayes by riotous and exorbitant courses wasted both his means and himself, and in his elder yeares now seriously considering with himselfe, his owne folly, and the miserable condition that he hath thereby brought himselfe unto, is in contemplation thereof, both abashed and dejected in himselfe and ashamed, to be seen of any. See Job 20. 11. Proverbs, 5. 26. & 5. 11. Esay 47. 1. 5. So rather, than, as that learned man, I am so full of shame and confusion, that I cannot apply my self to any serious repentance, so long as I lie under such grievous sufferings for my former excesses.

V. 20. Is Ephraim a dear son ? is he a pleasant child ?] Gods gracious answer unto Ephraims lamentation and supplication. That the words are to be read by way of interrogation, the usuall notes thereof in Hebrew, one prefixed before the former member, another before the latter, do evidently shew. Now because the interrogative affirmative is more vehemently to deny the thing spoken of ; as Esay 50. 2. Is my hand at all cut short, that I cannot refuse ? and Is Israel a servant ? is he an home-bred slave ? Chapter, 2. 14. interpreters therefore are much puzzelled about the true notion of this passage ; and some understand it as a flat deniall of what is here demanded, concerning Ephraim ; as if it were said, No, he is nothing lesse than a precious or a pleasant childe ; for by his crosse and crooked courses he hath so carried himself, that he hath even enforced me to cast him of. And others again conceive it as spoken by way of reprehension : so a learned late Writer, who so carrieth on the whole tenour of Ephraims speech, not as a profession of his present repentance, but as excusing himself that he did not yet, nor could repent, during his captivity ; he was so full of shame and misery, that he had no list or leisure thereunto : but would do it, when God had fet him at liberty, and shewed mercy and goodnes unto him, by setling him in his own countrey again : and accordingly he bringeth in God returning answer here to this his presumed profession : Belike Ephraim deemeth himself such a darling child, as I cannot be without him, when he is so nice and delicate, that he cannot repent so long as he is in misery, and till all this be done for him. But those that goe either of these two wayes, have few (suppose, going along therein with them, and the main course of the context seemeth to run with full stream against them. And another learned man of great note seemeth to take to as solitary a walk, who instead of an interrogative, would make it enunciative, and turns the interrogation into a more vehement affeveration : For, saith he, the interrogative here used, is oft found to signifie, surely or verily, as Genesis, 17. 36. 2 Samuel 23. 19 1 Kings 18. 31. Proverbs 24. 28. Chapter 7. 9. and the latter is by a Jewish Critick observed to alsto signifie, as both joynd with the former, Numbers 17. 13. Job 6. 13. and alone by it self, Genesis 47. 18. Numbers 16. 30. Job 22. 20. Psalm 63. 7. Proverbs 3. 34. Esay 4. 4. and 29 16. But as for the former, there is not any one place produced, where the interrogative may not in his proper notion well stand : and for the latter it is true, that it hath divers other uses, nor is it an interrogative in his first and native notion, but most commonly a conditional, sometime a discretive, and one of these two in most if not all, of the places produced. Besides that for the former, the Author of this conceit, is not constant to himself : for in the close of his discourse where he hath this, he inclineth to conceive that in all those places ha may be put for he, and rendred behold ; and elsewhere he goeth another way for divers of them ; as hereafter shall be shewed. It is true, indeed, that divers Interpreters render some of the fore-mentioned places in the affirmative, and sometime with a note of affeveration prefixed : but therein they have regard not to the precise signification, and Grammaticall construction of the terms, but to the sense and meaning of the sentence in general, in the interrogative form involied. Another learned Interpreter, whom a Scholiast of note concurreth with, taketh the words as spoken in way of Admiration or doubting ; thus rendring the Text, Is Ephraim my deare Sonne ? Is he a child of much delight ? Yes ; or He is ; which they put into the context : but this seemeth somewhat overbold. I should rather, did I suppose the words to be so conceived, render them on this wise, Is this Ephraim my deare Sonne ? is it my darling childe ? as if it were said, Is it he that bemoaneth himself in this manner ? as Saul to David, Is this thy voyce, my Sonne David ? not as questioning whether David were his Sonne or no ; but as with a kinde of astonishment, making a doubt whether it were he that spake to him in that manner : And so here, God is brought in, as speaking after morrall mans usage, but not making doubt whether Ephraim were his dear darling or no : but whether it were that his darling, from whom this pitriful and passionate complaint came. And this, whether it fare not better with the course of the context than any other of those already related. I shall leave to the decision and sentence of others. Howbeit, I shall Tubjoyn, what I conceive to be the genuine syntax : For the surer grounding whereof, I shall suggest that, which I finde not any of our Grammarians, or Criticks, either Jewish, or others, to have observed, howsoever necessity putteth Interpreters, of force, now and then upon it, to wit, that in such interrogative forms the negative particle is oft suppressed, and necessarily to be supplyed. So 1 Samuel, 2. 27, 28. where our Geneva Version, and the next before it, as also the Tigurine and Italian, and some others, well render the Text; Did not I plainly appear to the house of thy Father ? and did not I choose him ? So Job 20. 4. where besides those former, divers Latine interpreters, and our late Version also rendereth it, Knowest thou not this of old ? as before, Chapter 2. 6. Hast thou not seen what hath befallen Israel hath done ? So Ezekiel 20. 30. Are ye not polluted after the manner of your Fathers ? and, do ye not commit whoredome, or goe on whoring, after their abominations ? and Amos 6. 2. Were they not better than these Kingdomes ? Was not their border larger than yours ? The very drift and current of the context doth in either necessarily exact it : And for this place, that I may not be deemed to walke alone in it : for I finde both the Tigurine Version, which Oecolampadius, and Bullinger also follow, here expresly it, and the Chaldee Paraphrast before them in the latter branch. As also that learned late Annotator that goeth here another new and strange way, yet doth elsewhere come home to us, contradicting what he here hath in affirming, that ha, is oft put for halo, especially where it is joyned with ki, which is, saith he, in that form no other than an expletive particle. So he expoundeth, Genesis 29. 15. Art thou not my brother, and shouldest thou therefore serve me freely ? though in that place himself acknowledgeth, that others generally expound the words himself acknowledgeth, that others generally expound the words therefore, (and that as I conceive, aright) otherwise. But so he also taketh it. Genesis 27. 36. Was he not justly called Jacob ? wherein the Tigurine, and our three last Versions exactly agree with him. Yea, so he saith that it is without doubt to be taken, 2 Samuel 23. 19. where our Version rendreth it, Was he not the most honourable of the three ? And so Tremellius, Junius and Piscator before : and these two last places are of those, which that learned Writer would above turn another way. Yea, on that place, 1 Samuel 2. 27. after a long discourse, much debate, many turnings and windings, he is at length in the close of all he concludeth, and is enforced to confesse, that to take ha for halo, supplying the ; negative, doth best agree with the sense and drift of the place : adding withall, that the like is in the Arabick very frequent, as he hath, he saith, in many places of th : Alcoran observed. This I have elie rather insisted upon, both because I suppose it bringeth some light to this place, and because I finde divers interpreters of great note driven to forced construictions in some places for want of this observation See the like again, Chapter 40. 14.

Others of them, I have a long time been talking with him ; I have not ceased from time to time from dealing with him, to bring him to repentance, but all to no purpose ; but yet I will thinke on him : I will for all that, remember him still in mercy. V. 15. Thus saith the Lord, a voice was heard in Ramah, lamentation and bitter weeping, Rachel weeping for her children refused to be comforted for her children, because they were not.] God had before promised to turn their mourning in to mirth: Vow this promised mirth is here amplified by the mourning foregoing it, which is very pathetically illustrated by a two-fold Rhetoricall introduction of persons, Rachel the mother here, and Ephraim her Grand-child by Joseph, verse 18. In this place Rachel Jacobs beloved wife, as the common mother in some sort of both people, Judah and Israel. (for Ephraim, the head of the ten Tribes, Esay 7. 2. verse 9. was her grandchilde by Joseph her elder son, Genes. 48. 5. and the issue of Benjamin her younger son, Genesis 35 16, 18. continued still in conjunction and consociation with the Tribe of Judah, 2 Chron. 11. 12.)is brought in, as raised up out of her sepulchre, situate between Ramath and Bethleem, in the confines of either Tribe, Genesis 35. 19 Josh 18. 25 Judges 4. 5. 1 Sam. 10. 2. lamenting the losse of her children led away into captivity, as making account never to see them, or to have them delivered again. And this some of the Jewish Doctors apply unto the Jewish and Benjamitish Matrones and Mothers, who with weeping and wailing accompanied their children, led away captive toward Babylon by Ramah, where Nebuzaradan seemeth to have musstered them, and from whence Jeremy having been so far carried away from Jerusalem, was dismissed and sent back, Chap. 40. 1. and the Talmudists tell us that Jacob buried her there foreseeing by the Spirit of Prophecy, that his posterity should there way be led captive, that she might, as they pafled by her, intercede for them. But these are Jewish tables. The Evangelist applieth it to the mothers of the young ones at or about Bethlehem, that Herod had most barbarously caused to be slaughtered, Matth 2. 18. Both the Prophet and the Evangelist do hereby imply what Rachel in likelyhood would have done, had the been surviving at either of those calamities, which those of her issue sustained. The words may be read; In Ramah hath been heard a voice of lamentation, (a voice of lamentation, as chap. 9. 18.) a voice (supplied, as chap. 3. 21. and 4. 31.) of most bitter weeping, (Heb. weeping of bitternesses, See Esay 22. 4. chap. 6. 26.) a voice (continued, as Esay 66 6. chap. 4 31.) of Rachel, (as Match. 2. 18.) who weeping for her children, (Heb. her sons) refuseth to be comforted, (as Jacob, Genesis 37 35. Asaph, Psalm 77 2. so Esay 22. 4.) in regard of them, (Heb. her children ; the Noun for the Pronoun: as Exodus 40. 19, 21, 25, 29. 2 Timothy 1. 18. and a defect of the Relative; as Chapter 30. 21.) because they were not: as, Jacob, Genesis 42. 36. Joseph is not, and Simeon is not.

in Ramah] Some take it for a common word, rendering it, in, or on an high place; as Chapter, 3. 21. and this way goeth the Chaldee, the old Latine, some of the Jewish and ours. But the ancient Greeke and the Evangelist take it for the proper name of a place; as in the places above pointed to.

V. 16. Thus saith the Lord] After Rachels lamentation for her sons, as lost, followeth Gods consolation of her, putting her in hope of their return.

Refrain thy voyce from weeping] Leave, or give over weeping: but he saith, Refrain thy voice; because he said before, a voice of weeping, implying not a silent weeping, but such as is accompanied with wailing and loud expressions by voice; as it is said of Esau, he lift up his voice, and wept, Gen. 27. 38. and of Joseph, he gave out his voyce in weeping (of which form, see on chapter 2. 15.) so loud, that it was heard of the Egyptians and Pharaohs Courtiers, that were without the roome in his house, Genesis, 45. 2.

for thy worke shall be rewarded saith the Lord.] Heb. there is a reward for thy work; as 2 Chron. 16. 7. This some apply unto Rachel, that God for her piety would cause her issue to fare the better at last: and the Talmudists ridiculously expound it of her patience in suffering her Sister Leah to be substituted in her room, and obedience in delivering her token to her, which they tell us also that she pleaded to God in behalf of her people. See Genesis 29. 23, 25. but this is an idle fiction, as frivolous as that of Jacob before, verse 15. Others, Popish especially, of the patience of the Bethlemitish women, Match 2. 17. The Jewish Commenters understand it of the people her issue, that should receive a reward for their constant keeping to God, during the time of their captivity, Psalm 44. 17. Our Writers most of them, of that comfortable condition that God would restore them unto, and confer upon them when the time of their captivity should be accomplished. See Esay 40. 10. and 61. 7. these terms of worke and reward being used, because it should succeed their former misery and thraldom, as wages doth work; and should abundantly countervail whatsoever hardship they had endured in the former. Of such spiritual compensations, see Rom. 8. 18. 2 Cor. 4. 18. ascribed here unto Rachel the mother, because as the tribulations of the children are the mothers grief; so their prosperous conditin is matter of comfort and joy to her, See Matt. 15. 12.

and they shall come again from the land of the enemy.] Thy children of whole return thou despairest, as they themselves also did, Ezek. 33. 11.

V. 17. And there is hope in the end,] there is hope (and thou shouldest not therefore mourn as one that hath no hope, 1 Theff. 4. 13. John 11. 18.) in thine end, (as Iob 8. 7. Chap. 15. 11. when the time fet for their exilement shall be expired. C. 29. verf. 10.) or, for thy posterity; as the word here used signifieth, Daniel 11. 4. and that seemeth the Genuine sence of it in this place.

that thy children shall come again to their own border] Thy children, Heb. sons; as verf. 17 because the males most were captived) whom thou now deemest as lost: (a defect of the Pronoun posfessive; as Esay 60. 4.) shall return to their own possessions: border for borders; alluding to the limitation of the land of Canaan, and the setting out of it to the several Tribes by borders and boundaries, Josh. 15, 1, 2. or to the general manner of bounding mens lands and possessions, Deuteronomy, 27. 17. Acts 17. 26.

V. 18. I have surely heard Ephraim bemoaning himself] To Rachels lamenting for her sons is here subjoyned Ephraims bewailing of his sins; Gods taking notice of it, and returning an answer full of fatherly affection to it, v. 10.

I have surely heard) Of Rachel was faid before, A voice was heard; here, as speaking in the person of God, I have heard, Heb. hearing, heard; as Exodus 22. 22. I hear attentively, so as to take notice and regard, Psal. 5. 1, 2. & 77. 1.

Ephraim] The ten Tribes, as v. 6. 9.

bemoaning himself] The word hath sometime a notion of wandring; as Gen 4. 12. Chap. 1. 1. and so the old Latine, and some others here take it; as it it were faid, being now in captivity and exilement, and thereby brought, as Manasses sometime, 2 Chron. 33 12. to a fight of himself and his sins: sometime, of mourning, either of condoling with others, as Iob 2. 11. Chapter 15. 5. and 16. 5. or, bewailing ones self; and so here the Chaldee, Greek, and most, both Iewish Interpreters, and others, take it: the Verb being in a reciprocal form, wherein it is in the former notion no where found, nor would here well fit. See Exek. 6 9.

thou] Or, and saying; as Psalm 105. 15. Esay. 22. 13. speaking on this wise unto God.

Thou hast chastised me, and I was chastised; as a bullock unaccustomed to the yoke.] Or, Thou hast chastised me and I have been chastised; I was as a bullock unaccustomed, Heb. untaught. See chap. 13. 23.) to draw in the yoke. See Hos. 10. 11. I am at length amended by thy chastising hand upon me. See Chap. 7. 8. Hos. 10. 10. for before I was thus chastised, I was like an unruly bullock, that will not be brought to the yoke, nor endure to draw in it, Psalm 119 67, 71. Howbeit, the Chaldee Paraphrast, and some others (whom a late learned Writer followeth, and would have the ancient Greek copies to be thence corrected) render the Text in the negative, thou hast chastised me, but I have not been corrected, or, I have not received instruction, as a bullock untaught, or untamed. But the negative is not in the Hebrew, nor ought from whence it may be supplied: that which that learned man perceiving, and therefore casting it out again, readeth the words, I have been chastised as a bullock untamed; that is, I remain no more the better for all thy chastisements, than such an unruly and untamed beast: but this construction seems over much forced.

turn thou me, and I shall be turned.] A prayer either for grace and power to repent and return unto God; which without his help they cannot do, Cant. 1. 4 John 6. 44 Acts 11. 18. 2 Tim. 2. 26. or that God would reduce them, and bring them back out of thraldome; which if he undertake to do, is sure to be done, Psalm 80. 3, 7, 19. Lam. 5. 21.

thou art the Lord my God] Or, thou who art the Lord my God: a defect of the relative, as Chap. 30. 21.

V. 19. Surely, after that I was turned, I repented;] After that thou hadst wrought a gracious change upon my soul by thine afflicting hand, and thy Spirit working together with it, Esay 48. 10. Acts 3. 26. or after I came to my self again, as Luke 15. 17. and considered seriously with my self, how it fared with me, I was touched with repentance with sorrow and shame, for my former miscarriages, Deuteronomy 30. 1, 2. So rather than as a learned late Writer. after that I return home again, then will I repent: though it be true that their repentance then also continued, Ezek. 36. 31.

and after that I was instructed] As well as corrected, Psalm 94. 12. unlike to those. Chap. 2. 30. & 5. 3. Heb. it was made known to me; as 1 Sam. 3. Neh. 4. 9. the preposition between the Verb and the Pronoun affixed to it being lost; as Esay 28 15. Chap. 10. 20. so rather, than as that learned Scholiast, who would have the Passive here taken in a reciprocall notion, rendering it, after that I knew my self: or than as that other Annotator,

After

After that thou hast shewed me some kindness, then shall I be thus affected.

I smote upon my thigh] In token of remorse for, detestation of, and astonishment at my former vile and lewd courses. See Ezek. 21. 12.

I was ashamed; yea, even confounded] Or, I was abashed, and ashamed also. So Ezr 9 6.

because I did bear the reproach of my youth.] That is, such miseries, as by mine excesses in former times committed, I had brought upon my self. See Iob 13. 26. Psalm 25. 7. an allusion to the state of one, that having in his youthfull dayes by riotous and exorbitant courses wasted both his means and himself, and in his elder yeares now seriously considering with himself, his owne folly, and the miserable condition that he hath thereby brought himselfe unto, is in contemplation thereof, both abashed and dejected in himselfe and ashamed, to be seen of any. See Iob 20. 11. Proverbs, 16. 26. & 5. 11. Esay 47. 1, 5. So rather, than, as that learned man, I am so full of shame and confusion, that I cannot apply my self to any serious repentance, so long as I lie under such grievous sufferings for my former excesses.

V. 20. Is Ephraim a dear son? is he a pleasant child?] Gods gracious answer unto Ephraims lamentation and supplication. That the words are to be read by way of interrogation the usuall notes thereof in Hebrew, one prefixed before the former member, another before the latter, sufficiently shew. Now because the interrogative affirmative is wont more vehemently to deny the thing spoken of; as Esay 50. 2. Is my hand at all cut short, that I cannot redeme? and Is Israel a servant? is he an home-bred slave? Chapter, 2. 14. interpreters therefore are much puzzelled about the true notion of this passage: and some understand it as a flat deniall of what is here demanded, concerning Ephraim; as if it were said, No, he is nothing lesse than a precious or a pleasant childe; for by his crosse and crooked courses he hath so carried himself, that he hath even enforced me to cast him of. And others again conceive it as spoken by way of reprehension: to a learned late Writer, who is carrieth on the whole tenour of Ephraims speech, not as a profession of his present repentance, but as excusing himself that he did not yet, nor could repent, during his captivity; he was so full of shame and misery, that he had no list or leisure thereunto: but would do it, when God had set him at liberty, and shewed mercy and goodness unto him, by setling him in his own countrey again: and accordingly he bringeth in God returning answer here to this his presumed profession: Belike Ephraim deemeth himself such a darling child, as I cannot be without him, when he is so nice and delicate, that he cannot repent so long as he is in misery, and till all this be done for him. But those that goe either of these two wayes, have few for them, going along therein with them; and the main course of the context seemeth to run with full stream against them. And another learned man of great note seemeth to take to as solitary a walk, who instead of an interrogative, would make it enunciative, and turns the interrogation into a more vehement affeveration: For, saith he, the former interrogative here used, is oft found to sig nifie, surely or verily, as Genesis, 27. 36. 2 Samuel 23. 19 1 Kings 18. 31, Proverbs 24. 28. Chapter 7. 9. and the latter is by a Jewish Critick observed so also to signifie, as both joyned with the former, Numbers 17. 13. Job 6. 13. and alone by it self, Genesis 47. 18. Numbers 16. 30. Job 22. 20. Psalm 63. 7. Proverbs 3. 34. Esay 4. 4. and 29 16. But as for the former, there is not any one place produced, where the Interrogative may not in his proper notion well stand: and for the latter it is true, that it hath divers other uses, nor is it an interrogative in his first and native notion, but most commonly a conditional, sometime a dissertive, and one of these two in most if not all, of the places produced. Besides that for the former, the Author of this conceit, is not constant to himself: for in the close of his discourse where he hath this, he inclineth to conceive that in all those places ha may be put for he, and rendred behold; and elsewhere he gooeth another way for divers of them; as hereafter shall be shewed. It is true, indeed, that divers Interpreters render some of the forementioned places in the affirmative, and sometime with a note of affeveration prefixed: but therein they have small warrant nor to the precise signification, and Grammaticall construction of the terms, but to the sense and meaning of the sentence in general, in the interrogative form implied. Another learned Interpreter, whom a Scholiast of note concurreth with, taketh the words as spoken in way of Admiration or doubting; thus rendring the Text, Is Ephraim my deare Sonne? Is he a child of much delight? Yes; or He is; which they put into the context: but this seemeth somewhat overbold. I should rather, did I suppose the words to be so conceived, render them on this wise, Is this Ephraim my deare Sonne? is it my darling childe? as if it were said, Is it he that bemoaneth himself in this manner? as Saul to David, Is this thy voyce, my Sonne David? not as questioning whether David were his Sonne or no; but as with a kinde of astonishment, making a doubt whether it were he that spake to him in that manner: And so here, God is brought in, as speaking after mortall mans usage, but not making doubt whether Ephraim were his dear darling or no: but whether it were that his darling, from whom this pittiful and passionate complaint came. And this, whether it sute not better with the course of the context than any other of those already related, I shall leave to the decision and sentence of others. Howbeit, I shall subjoyn, what I conceive to be the genuine syntax. For the former grounding whereof, I shall suggest that, which I finde not any of our Grammarians, or Criticks, either Jewish, or others, to have observed, how over necessity putteth Interpreters, of force, now and then upon it, to wit, that in such interrogative forms the negative particle is oft suppressed, and necessarily to be supplyed. So 1 Samuel, 2. 27, 28. where our Geneva Version, and the next before it, as also the Tigurine and Italian, and some others, well render the Text, Did not I plainly appear to the house of thy Father? and did not I choose him? So Iob 20. 4. where besides those former, divers Latine interpreters, and our latest Version also render it, Knowest thou not this of old? See before, Chapter 3. 6. Hast thou not seen what back-sliding Israel hath done? So Ezekiel 20. 30. Are ye not polluted after the manner of your Fathers? and, do ye not commit whoredome, or go on whoring, after their abominations? and Amos 6. 2. Were they not better than those Kingdomes? Was not their border larger than yours? The very drift and current of the context doth in either necessarily exact it: And for this place, that I may not be deemed to walke alone in it: so doth the Tigurine Version, which Oecolampadius, and Bullinger also follow, here expresseth it, and the Chaldee Paraphrast before them in the latter branch. As also that learned late Annotator that goeth here another new and strange way, yet doth elsewhere come home to us, contradicting what he here hath in affirming, that ha, is oft put for halo, especially where it is joyned with ci, which is, faith he, in that form no other than an expletive particle. So he expoundeth, Genesis 29. 15. Art thou not my brother, and shouldest thou therefore serve freely? though in that place himself acknowledgeth, that others generally expound the words thereto, (and that as I conceive, aright) otherwise. But to be also taketh it, Genesis 27. 36. Was he not justly called Jacob? wherein the Tigurine, and our three last Versions exactly agree with him. Yea, so he saith that it is without doubt to be taken, 2 Samuel 23. 19 where our Version rendreth it, Was he not the most honourable of the three? And so Tremellius, Junius and Piscator before: and these two last places are of those, which that learned Writer would above turn another way. Yea on that place, 1 Samuel 2. 27. after a long discourse, much debate, many turnings and windings, having driven and druggled hard to carry it some other way: at length in the close of all he concludeth, and is enforced to confesse, that to take ha for halo, supplying the, negative, doth best agree with the sense and drift of the place: adding withall, that the like is in the Arabick very frequent, as he hath, he saith, in many places of th: Alcoran observed. This I have title rather insisted upon, both because I suppose it bringeth some light to this place, and because I finde divers interpreters of great note driven to forced constructions in some places for want of this observation See the like again, Chapter 40. 14.

Those that render the former branch concerning Ephraim as delivered by way of denial; doe some of them thus render them, when I have spoken with him, (that is, further sufficiently admonished him) I shall have throughly minded him of this his pertinacious carriage: but this leaveth the Sentence abrupt and in suspence.

But this seemeth not to flow any thing freely from the Text. As for those that goe the other way: (to passe by the Chaldee, who swarveth too much from the Hebrew, paraphrasing the Text to this purpose: Since the time that he began to lay up the words of my Law in his heart to practise them, I am mindefull of him to doe him good,) Some of them render the words, Ever since I had speech, or, I communed with him, I am still mindefull of him; that is, Ever since at first I spake unto him, and entred into covenant with him. Deuteronomy 4. 12. and 5. 2.

I have not been unmindfull of him, albeit he hath not so carried himselt towards me, as he should, but have constantly retained my first affection to him, and so still do, verse 2. Others, Even since I spake against him (threatning to chastise him, Heb. 10. 10.) I do still constantly remember or, think upon him, in mercy, Habb. 3.2. mine heart and affection is still entire toward him, notwithstanding my sharp menaces of judgement against him. And others again lastly, So oft as I speak of him, I am mindfull still of him; that is, So oft as I have any occasion to speak or think of him, as at present I have by this lamentable complaint, I am in mercy very mindfull of him See Esay 49 14 16. And this last I concur with.

Hos. 11.8. for that learned Annotator seemeth to be very wide here, who rendreth it; for this cause am I vehemently incensed against him, or, am very wroth with him: the form is never found so used, but the contrary way rather.

I will surely have mercy upon him, saith the Lord.] Heb. I will having mey have mercy on him, or, I will abundantly have mercy on him or, shew mercy towards him: and there is a motion of tenderneſſe of affection in the bowels it self, whereof see on Esay 54. 7. & 63. 15 and here again that learned man seemeth to run counter to the text, rendring it; as in way of indignation, with an interrogative, shall I shew any mercy to him? as if it were parallel to that, chap 5 7. 9.

V. 21. Set thee up way-marks;] God by the Prophet now turneth his speech to his people in captivity, (as the term he here being now expired) enciting them to think on and prepare for their returne home to their own countrey; as was before promised, verse 17.

way-marks] Heb. signes, or, monuments, 2 Kings 23.17. Ezek. 39.15. Such are here meant as are wont to be erected upon the high-ways, plaines especially, where paths are not so apparent, or where many crosse-ways meet, to direct passengers the right way to some places of note, that they may not wander by mistake.

make thee high heaps] Or rather, pillars; as Hos. 12. 4. (for so the word may there also be rendred) and as one near to it, Cant. 3. 6. & Joel 2 30. and the word, as it is here used seemeth to be derived from a term that signifieth first and properly a palm-tree, then a pillar set bolt-up right and straight, like to the body of that tree. See Chap. 10. 5. So it is the same in effect, though in other terms, with the former; as the Jewish Commenter here observeth; who yet would have this latter word derived from a verb used, Dan. 8. 7. & 11.11. supposed by him to have in it a notion of lifting up; of which some doubt may justly be made. The same word, but rising from another root, was used for bitternesses, verse 15. whence the Chaldee here conceiveth the whole passage to be no other than as an exhortation to repentance, admonishing them to remember the practices of their religious ancestors, and to return to God pouring out prayers unto him with bitternesse for their sins: and this the old Latine seemeth to have followed, rendring the word bitternesses. Which howsoever the Popish Writers strain their wits to make somewhat of, yet can have no place here; there is an elegant redundancy in those forms, set thee, and, make thee: wherefore see on chap. 5. 5. and the like, Gen. 12. 1.

set thine heart toward the high-way even the way which thou wentest] There is in the original a two fold reading; For some read it, the way that I went; to wit, with thee, saith one of the Jewish Commenters. Set thine heart upon the right way, the way that I directed thee to, and led thee in, and return to that again, chap 2.17. But the more received reading is, the way that thou wentest. Think upon the road, Heb. the cell-way, or, causey, See Esay 49. 11. & 62. 10.) the way that thou wentest; that is, the way ye went, when ye were carried captive into Assyria, some of you, and others of you into Chaldea, and by which ye are now to go back home again; as Esay 37. 34. See chap. 50. 4, 5. a defect of the relative, as chap. 30. 21. and in the like manner with us, when we say, the way they went.

turn again, O virgin of Israel, turn again to these thy cities.] O virgin, or, damsel. See on ver: 4 and the invitation to return is doubled, to make it the more vigorous; as Ezek 33. 11. Cant. 6. 13. to these thy cities, that have lien so long waste and desolate, to repair, and to people them again Esay 58. 12.

V. 22. How long wilt thou go about, O thou back-sliding daughter?] So some of the Jewish Doctors render it, because of a word thence deduced, signifying a compasse, Cantic. 7. 1. the compasse of thy thighes; but some other both of them, and ours, How long wilt thou; or, dost thou withdraw thy self? as Cantic. 5. 6. my beloved had withdrawne himselfe; enough that he there in another form: and of this flock is no more found in Scripture. The Chaldee giveth it, How long wilt thou harden thy self from returning? the same termes that he hath, Jer. 8. 5. and the Greek to the same effect, How long wilt thou revert, or, turn away? which many expound of their not returning to God by repentance, Chap. 5. 3. & 8. 5, 6. But the first seemeth the best; that which some understand of their running after idols, Chap. 2. 23, 24. Others rather, of their thinking upon, and seeking after humane helps and other courses, out of a diffidence and distrust of Gods promises, and the performance of them, Esay 57. 10. Chap. 2. 17, 18, 36, 37. Howbeit, some conceive the words as spoken by way of excitement, to set themselves upon minding the way home-ward to their countrey, as ver. 21. without fear or forecast of the length or difficulty of the way, which raiseth oft doubtful thoughts and debates in the minds of weak and unskild ones, Deut. 1 26. 13, 14. which is also not improbable. Though some of those that go this way, take their rise from an unsound ground; as also the old Latine that rendreth it, How long continuest thou dissolved with delights? I should rather render it with reference to their long and tedious captivity, How long shall it thou go to and fro? as those are wont to do who are in captivity, at the will and pleasure of those under whose command they are. See chap. 4 1. & 14.18. as if God had said, Think on thy former home again, and do thy way thither, v. 21. for why should it thou be tossed to and fro any longer, as in thy present excilement thou art.

O back sliding daughter] Or, revolting. See Chap. 3. 12, who by thy refractary courses, hast procured to thy self those evils in this kind, which at present thou endurest. chap. 2. 19. & 30. 15.

for the Lord hath created a new thing in the earth;] Or, will create a new thing on earth; as Chap. 13. 5. the rather in the future; because the next clause is generally so rendred. God will do a strange thing; such as is not ordinarily to be hoped for in the work of creating is frequently used, Esay 4 5. & 65. 17 18. & now, for strange, Esay 42. 6. & 43. 19, Mar. 16. 17. Acts 17 18 19 For as for that great mans conceit, who readeth it in the time past, as spoken of the peoples uncouth carriages, I suppose few or none therein concur with him; and of it more anon.

A woman shall compasse a man] The new or strange thing that God would effect. The place is obscure; and various interpretations are therefore given of it, as well by the Jewes themselves, as by others. Some conceive it, as alluding to a woman, that should woo and seek after a man: whereas man ordinarily are wont to seek after the woman. So it should be like that, Esay 4. 1. Others, to a woman that having left her husband, and lived loosly with others, should at length seek to him for reconcilement. So it should be like that, Hos. 2. 7. 3. 1 Cor. 7. 11. and either of these the words would bear: but they seem no such strange matter simply considered. And yet more probable here to be meant, than that intended, which that learned Writer suggesteth, of this peoples seeking, like a shamelesse and insatiable strumpet, by wanton dalliances and embracements, to procure love to her from strangers, Esay 57. 8.---10. Chap. 2. 24, 25, 36. Ezek. 16. 33, 34 Hos. 8. 9. for certainly this was no work of Gods creating; and it seemeth to me a very forced construction, to interpret the foregoing words of Gods giving them up, and abandoning them thereunto; as Rom. 1 26, 27 Christian Writers the most, both ancient and latter, understand it of Christ and the Virgin his Mother. A woman (so is she termed, Gal. 4 4.) being a Virgin, and so abiding, (Esay 7. 14. Matth. 1. 18, 25.) shall encloſe in her womb, (Luke 2. 21.) a man; (that is, a male, a man-child, Job 16. 21.) as the nut (saith one of ours) encloseth the kernel; not receiving ought from without, but conceiving and breeding of her self, by the power of the Almighty from within, Mat. 1. 20. Luke 1. 34, 35. And this indeed may well be termed a new and strange thing: because never the like heard of. See Esay 7. 14. But because she one word seemeth not to be used of containing, but of compassing, and besetting, Josh. 7 3, 4, 7, 11, 14, 15, Psal. 118. 10.---12. Eccl. 9. 14. and the other, not a man simply, but a man of mights, or, a mighty man. See on Esay 2. 9. & 3. 2, 25. Divers Interpreters of prime note expound it, of the Jewish people some; of the Church of Christ, others; and a third sort of both, the one being subordinate to the other; as the thing typified to the type, or rather, as in part inchoated in the one, but more fully to be effected and accomplished in the other; to wit, that the Jewish people then, and the Christian Church afterwards, though in regard of their low and dejected condition, compared to a weak and feeble woman, Lam 1 1, 6. Rev. 12 1, 2, yet should befet and prevaile against her temporal enemies, the one, Esay 14. 2. their spiritual adversaries also the other, such as for their power might well be compared to men of much might, Rom. 16. 20. Eph. 6. 10, 1 Joh. 4. 4 & 5. 4 Rev 12. 11. which I take to be the genuine sense of the place.

V. 23. Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel] As Chap. 7. 2, 11.

As yet they shall use this speech in the land of Judah, and in the cities thereof, when I shall bring away their captivity, The Lord blesse thee, O habitation of justice, and mountain of holinesse] A further intimation of the reformation that shall be in the lives and courses of those, whom God shall preserve for a remnant, and bring home to their wonted places of abode again. See Esay 1. 25. ---27. & 4. 3, 4, & 60. 21. & 62. 12.

As yet] Or, Yet again; as verse 5. for the particle here implyeth not a continuation of some present act; but the restoring or renewing of somewhat formerly used, which for some space of time had been since intermitted. So also, verse 4.

they shall use this speech] Or, this speech shall be used. Heb they shall say this word: the verb used indefinitely, as Psal. 116. 2. Esay 8. 19. Mat. 24. 26. Luke 12. 10. So ver. 19.

in the cities thereof,] Heb. of him, or, his cities: as having reference not to the land, but to the people.

when I shall bring again their captivity] Or, when I shall have brought back their captives; as ver. 13. Psal. 14 7.

The Lord blesse thee,] The usuall form of salutation and well-wishing, Ruth 2 4. Psal. 129. 8. for the exposition is overnarrow that the Jewish Doctor gives it; Never mayest thou be destroyed again.

O habitation of justice] Or of men of justice; as Esay 1. 21. & 4 1. 2. as some, of righteous ones, Esay 60. 21. So 2 Pet. 3. 13. See Chap. 50. 7.

mountain of holinesse] Or, holy mountain; as Psal. 15. 1. Esay 11. 9. in reference to mount Sion, whereon the Temple was structure, the principal seat of Gods solemn service; wherein he should now be worshipped, by holy men, in holy manner, Esay 56. 7. Ezek. 20. 40. 1 Pet. 2 5.6.

V. 24. And there shall dwell in Judah it self, and in all the cities thereof together, husband-men, and those that go out with flocks.] Or, as some, in it (to wit, the land before spoken of, ver. 23.) shall the people of Judah dwell, (Judah, for the men of Judah, as chap 23 6.) or, rather, as I conceive, there shall dwell in it, even (supplyed, as Esay 5 9. & 35 4) in the land of Judah, and in (a defect of the preposition, but supplyed from the former branch) all his, or, their cities (as before, verse 13.) together, husband-men that shall go out with the flock, or, and such as go out with the flock; Either such as shall both till their ground, and tend their cattel, as two several employments of the same persons; or persons employed, some in tillage, others, in tendance of cattel: the copulative for the relative, according to the latter, as verse 21 Heb. word for word, and they shall go with flock; Whence a Jewish Commenter, therefore keeping close to the text, and retaining the proper use of the verb, (which signifieth, not a going out, but a going, simply, or, journeying, and hath reference not so much to the shepherds leading out his sheep, but his shifting with them, as his occasion for their better feeding requireth) expoundeth it, and they shall go, or, men shall go, (for the verb is used indefinitely, as that ver. 23.) with their flock; to wit, from place to place without fear. See Gen. 37. 17. Howsoever the words be taken, these employments constantly followed and exercised are here mentioned, as an argument of peaceable times, and a signe of a quiet and setled estate: so Esay 37. 30. Chap. 33. 12. So rather, then as some of note would have it, as a note of the most simple, harmlesse, and beneficial course of life, which men in those times shall generally apply themselves unto: see Gen. 25, 27.

V. 25. For I have satiated the weary soule, and I have replenished every sorrowfull soule.] Or, I will abundantly refresh (as verse 14.) the hungry, or, thirsty, as Job 22. 7. Psal 63. 1. or, faint, or, fainting, as 1 Sam. 14. 31. 2 Sam. 21. 15. Esay 29. 8. See Psal. 107. 5. 9.

and I have replenished every sorrowfull soul.] Or, I will replenish every mournfull soul. (see Deut. 28. 65.) I will supply them with all manner of good, and matter of comfort to their fill, to the utmost of their desire, Psal. 36 8. & 37. 4. & 81. 10, & 107. 9 Esay 41. 17, 18. & 43. 20. verse 12. Mat. 5. 4, 6. & 11. 28.

V. 26. Upon this I awaked, and beheld, and my sleep was sweet unto me.] The Prophets own speech relating the great comfort and refreshing that he had received upon this vision, and these gracious promises of God therein signified unto him concerning his peoples; being therewith so affected, as one, who after some tedious travel, or long and wearisome watching, had taken comfortable rest, had slept safely and sweetly, and was exceedingly therewith refreshed, Psal. 3. 5. Prov. 3 24. or, as some, after these things revealed unto me, as one awaked out of sleep (Zach. 4 1, 2.) I shooed up mine eyes, and looked about me, and considering seriously what I had seen and heard, I was so affected with the contemplation thereof, that from that time forward, I was able quietly to compose my self to rest, which before I could not do, Chap. 4. 20, 21. & 8. 18. But I concur rather with the former.

V. 27. Behold, the dayes come, saith the Lord, that] As chapter 30. 3.

I will sow the house of Israel, and the house of Judah, with the seed of man, and with the seed of beast] I will multiply and replenish the land of either family (see verse 1.) both with people and cattel, as if the whole land were sowed with the seed of either, and it did multiply, as grain cast into the ground is wont to do in some rich and fat soile, Gen. 26. 12. Mat. 13. 8. See Esay 60. 21. Hos. 2. 23. Zach. 2. 4. & 10. 8, 9. Nor need we depart here from the received version to render the text, with the Chaldee, which some of the Jewish Commenters follow, with the seed of man, as with the seed of beast; because the copulative is sometime so used; as Prov. 5, 15. Much lesse to expound it with that Jewish Doctor, who from those pestillers follow, of multiplying and blessing the wife and the simple together; abusing to that purpose the words of the Psalmist, Psal. 36. 6. or to understand with that learned Scholiast, by men the Jews, by beasts the Gentiles, expounding it of spiritual regeneration.

V. 28. And it shall come to passe, that] As chap. 25. 12.

Like as I have watched over them, to pluck up, and to break down, and to throw down, and to destroy, and to afflict.] Of the terms here used, see on chap. 1. 10, 11. & 10. 12. & 18. 7, 9 & 42. 27. Dan. 9. 24. there are in them some elegant consonancies, which our English cannot so well expresse.

So I will watch over them, to build and to plant, saith the Lord.] I will be sedulous and affiduous (as Psal. 127. 1. Prov. 8. 34) in promoting their good. See on Chap. 1. 10. & 18. 9 & 24. 6.

V. 29. In those dayes they shall say no more, The Fathers have eaten a sower grape; and the childrens teeth are set on edge.] Or, It shall no more be said, as verse 23. This seemeth to have been a common by-word in the mouth of profane wretches in those times, thereby implying that their parents or ancestors had committed faults, and they being faultlesse yet sustained the penalty of it, Ezek. 18. 2. This Proverb, or By-word, God saith in those times, shall no longer be used, an end being now put unto those grievous calamities, which had befalne them, God punishing thereby, as well their own sins, as their parents alſo in them joyntly together, Esay 65. 7. and they should not have occasion therefore to use that Proverb any longer, as it is said, Ezek. 18 3. And this I conceive, with some of the best Interpreters, to be both the genuine and full notion of the place: which they seem much to swarve from, who either with that learned Annotator, who taking an hint of that his conceit from one of the Jewish Commenters, would have the meaning to be, that howsoever God do justly punish children for their parents defaults, Exod. 28. 5. and with this people had so done, 2 Kings 24. 3, 4. yet would in regard of the excellent parts and vertues, both of their ancienter progenitors, and their own alſo, put an end now unto that severe carriage: that which is directly contrary unto that freeneſſe of his mere mercy, which he constantly alloweth, as the main ground of their restitution, Esay 43. 25. & 48. 9, 11. Ezek 36. 32. or, as another Jewish Doctor, because there should be no such grand sins among them, for which God with plagues should pursue them unto posterity: or, as that learned man alſo, fetching in hither what followeth, verse 30 that the Magistrates should be so diligent in execution of justice in those times, that God should not need now to punish in that manner, as formerly he had done. As alſo those both Popish and ours; who restraining this passage unto the times of the Gospel, say some of the former, that the penalty of Adam's sins reached unto all his posterity, and notwithstanding their circumcision, yet they went down all into Limbo for it, untill the comin of Christ, but that all penalty of that kind is in Christian baptisme taken away, originall sin being wathed away in it: that of their Limbo being a meer fancy, and the other of baptisme alſo, a groundlelle conceit: and some of the latter, who dream of Gods dealing more favourably now than in former times with sinners, when some one mans sin brought a penalty upon others, and the sins of the fathers were required at the childrens hands: for how they are able to make this good, that sins of particular persons have not an hand in procuring of general judgements, or that God doth not punish parents at this day, as well in their issue, as in their persons, I see not: and a point of that weight requireth clearer proof than from this place, that will well bear another sense: which those come near to, who would have the meaning to be, that both in the one time, and in the other, as well after their temporal restitution, as alſo in their conversion to the Messias; they should be hereafter convinced in conscience, that those their calamities had justly befaln them for their own sins, Ezek. 6. 9. & 7. 15. & 36. 31. and this may well be added to the former, as a consequent to the same. The by-word it selfe containeth indeed a truth in it; for God himselfe avoweth it, and threatneth it, Exod 20. 3. & 34. 7. and the Prophet himself, in the person of Gods people, doth in plainer terms complain of it, Lam. 5. 7. that they suffered for their fathers sins; nor was it without ground from Gods own words, who by him menaced to send them into captivity for the sins of Manasses, who had been long before deceased, Chap 15 4. But their meaning was, that being innocent and faultleſſe, they suffered onely for their ancestors exceſſes, which was most falſe, for they trode in the steps of their wicked fore-fathers, and were themselves as bad, if not worſe, than they, Chap. 7. 26. & 11. 10 & 16. 12.

V. 30. But every one shall dye for his own iniquity; every man that eateth the sower grape, his teeth shall be set on edge.] Heb. A man, for, every one; as Chap 22. 7. So Ezek. 18. 4. So that albeit, God would by putting an end to those their former calamities, take away the occasion of this misused by-word: yet he would not surcease to execute vengeance upon such wicked ones as should continue still in their wickednelle, or return to it in those times. See Esay 27. 4. & 65. 20. For as for those who would restrain this and the former to the times of the Gospel, that no man should be excluded from Gods grace in Christ, upon his return return unto God, either Jew for his fore-fathers obstinacy, or Gentile for his ancestors incredulity, is no other than what hath been Gods constant course in all ages; no iniquity of any progenitor ever debarring any from life eternal, that returned unto God by sincere conversin, 1 Chron. 28. 9. 2 Chron. 15. 4. Josh. 6. 37.

V. 31. Behold, the dayes come, saith the Lord, that.] That this passage hath speciall reference to the day of Messias, and the times of the Gospel, appeareth by the Apostles application of it, Heb. 8. & 10 36. See chap. 23. 5. and verse 27.

I will make a new covenant] Heb. I will cut out; as Psal. 50. 3. Esay 55. 3. of the reason of the phrase see there, and on Chapter 34. 8 18.

a new covenant] Not simply in regard of the substance of it: for the main matter and substance of the former was, as here verse 33. So Gen. 17. 7. Deut. 26. 17, 18. & 29 13. And this old covenant was ratified as well as the new, by the blood of the Messias (who was ever the same, Heb 13 8. 2 Cor. 1. 19, 20.) that bloud of his being in those times as well typified by the bloud of the sacrifice, as by another element it is in these dayes obsigned. See the same words in a manner to this effect of either, Exod 24. 8. compared with Matth. 26. 28. Luke 22. 20. 1 Cor. 11. 25. Heb. 9. 20. But is in divers respects called a new covenant, as the commandement of Love, is in some respects called a New Commandement, though in nature and substance the same still that it was ever, Lev. 19. 18. Matth. 22. 39. Luke 10. 27. John 13. 34. 1 John 2. 7, 8. And so it is with this Covenant, though in nature and effence it continue the same, to wit, of remission of sin, and eternal salvation by the Messias, upon condition of faith in him, repentance, and newnesse of life; yet is it in divers regards said to be New: First, in that it is ratified by the death of our Saviour exhibited, which was but in expectation before the faith of Gods people, being then fixed on the Messias to come; and to be sacrificed for their sins, Esay 53. 10, 12. Job 8. 36. Acts 15. 11. the faith of Christians now resting on Christ, already come in the flesh, having been sacrificed for them, and being ascended up into heaven, John 1. 14. Acts 13. 31.------34. In that the doctrine of the Gospel is now more fully, distinctly, and clearly revealed, than formerly it had been, when it was more darkly, confusedly, and in generalities onely, by that dimmer candle-light which then they enjoyed, with most that then lived, apprehended and discerned. Mal 4. 2. Joh. 3. 19 2 Cor. 3. 18. 2 Pet. 1. 19. 3 In that the former covenant comprehended together with those spiritual promises, which yet were the principal part of it, many temporal blessings, as the possession of the land of Canaan, and multiplicity of issue, and outward prosperity, Gen. 15, 5, 7, 18. & 17. 2, 7, 8. with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah.] As verse 27. Chap. 3. 18 with the main body of my Church consisting of Jewes and Gentiles Rom 11. 25 26.

V. 32. Not according to the covenant which I made with their fathers, in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt:] Of this covenant, see Exod. 24 7 8. Deut. 5. 2. the same that was from time to time renewed with that people as Gods peculiar, Deut. 29. 10 ——— 13. 2 Chron. 15. 12. & 23. 16. & 29. 10. & 34. 31. Mal. 4. 4. and was a gracious covenant, as well of mercy, as of justice, with promise of pardon upon repentance, Exod. 20. 5, 6. & 34. 6, 7. Deut. 4. 31. & 30. 1.--2, Psal. 103. 7---18. it consisted indeed of the Law as a perfect rule for direction for matter of obedience; but had adjoyned with it faith in the Messias, (who was resembled by the lid of the Ark, where in the Law was reserved, 2 Chr. 6. 11. called therefore the propitiatory, Ex. 16. 16 17 21. Ro. 3. 25, 26.) for pardon of sin upon sincere repentance by his bloud, typified in the bloud of the sin-sacrifices, Lev. 4 3.--4, 13.--15 22.--24, & 5. 1.--6. & 6. 2.--7. Heb. 9. 11.---28. By all which it appeareth, that this was not barely a covenant of nature, extending it self to all Adams posterity indefinitely, nor holding out any promise of pardon to any upon any the least disobedience, Gen. 2. 17. Rom. 2. 12, 14, 15. but the covenant of grace and mercy in and by the Mediator the Messias. Howbeit, the Lord here promiseth to renew it in another manner to his people, than as he made it then with them, and that as in divers respects that have already been specified, so in something further, which hereafter ensueth. For that learned man narroweth the text over-much, who would have this only to be the meaning of it, that the Covenant should not now run in those terms, as then it did, I am the Lord thy God that brought thee out of the land of Egypt; but in some other form mentioning some greater benefit, that should drown the memory of that, Esay 43. 18. chap 16. 14, 15.

in the day that I took them by the hand] In this manner of speech implying, as their imbecility and weaknesse, having need then as younglings, and weaklings, to be led by the hand, so his own tender affection to them, and fatherly care of them, that did not drive them before him, like beasts or cattel, nor leave them behinde him, and bid them come after him, as servants: but as an affectionate father taketh his young weakling and darling child by the hand, and so leadeth him gently along with him as he is able to go. See Exod 19. 4. Deut. 32. 10.--11. Hos. 11, 1, 3. Heb. in the day (or, at, or, about, the time; day, for, time; as Esay 29. 1.) of my taking them by the hand: for it is an infinitive, not a verb finite, as the authors of our version seem to have taken it, supposing therefore a defect of the relative, which in a divers character they therefore needlesly expresse.

which my covenant they brake;] By this adjection God implyeth, as their former dissoyalty, and unfaithfulnesse concerning the former Covenant; so withall a greater fedfastnesse that should be in this latter, as that which should be more firm and effectual in regard of persistance and continuance in it, than that former bad been, which in a generality almost the whole body of them had so oft relinquished and abandoned, making revolt from Gods service unto the worship of Idols. See chap. 32. 40. & 50. 5. Esay 59. 21.

although I was an husband unto them, saith the Lord.] Heb. and (but so is in the copulative oft used in a discretive or advertative notion, as Psal. 78. 23. Esay 49. 5. 1 Pet. 3. 6. for it would there also in the last clause be rendred) I have married them; for the verb is active: whereof see on chap. 3. 14. a place parallel to this. I had taken them, and joyned them unto me, as in a conjugal bond; and they had by solemn covenant obliged themselves to continue loyall to me; and yet did they notwithstanding break their faith, and deale perfidiously and disloyally with me, chap. 3. 20. Now though this interpretation be plain and familiar, suiting very fitly with the scope of the place, and course of the context, backed with that other place, and seconded by the Chaldee Paraphrast, and expressed by another word deduced from one that is used for an husband, so termed as a companion, joyned to the wife in a bond of mutual society chap. 3. 20. Hos. 3. 1. as that here used from one that importeth an husband, as he is owner or possessor of her, Deut. 21. 13. & 24. 1, 3. Hos. 2. 18. (see Esay 62. 5.) Yet because the ancient Greek (whose words also the Apostle retaineth, Heb, 8. 9.) rendreth it, and I neglected them, or regarded them not; and the old Latine. I ruled over them? hence divers Interpreters beat and busie their brains, to make some other meaning of the words here used. And here some of prime note conceive is spoken by way of interrogation, with a kind of indignation; And should I have continued an husband unto them? as if he should say, had no reason so to do, when they deale so with me; and therefore I neglected them as they neglected me; I cast off them, as they cast off me. See chap. 3. 8. 10. Others fastening on the Latine Translation, render the words, I dominered over them; I dealt harshly and roughly with them; as, say they, the term of ruling is oft-times used; as, Psal. 110. 2, 6. but the word here used is not there: they might better have alledged, Esay 26. 13. But the matter it seemeth not here to admit it. One of the Jewish Commenters telleth us, that his father, of blessed memory, conceived the word baalti, to be taken as the word bahalti; or, bathalti, Zach. 11. 8. and so rendreth it, I loathed them, or abhorred them; and so, saith he, the word baal, is ever taken, when it is joyned with beth: but of that his groundlesse Criticisme, fee before on chap. 3. 14. Howbeit, some taking hold of his fancy, would thence infer, that the texe was by the Authours of the Greek version so rendred; and others again, that it was anciently, neither the the one of those, nor the other, but, gaalti that cometh nearer to the now received reading, than that other of the Rabbi, and signifieth the same with that, ch. 14. 19.

Thus

Thus many wayes men shift to and fro, and needlesly vex a plain reading, and trouble a clear Text, to reconcile the Prophet and the Apostle, who retained the Greek version as he found it: having nothing in this clause contrary to that for which he alledged it, and speaking otherwise fully to that, for which he produced it. See the like, Esai 61. 1.

V. 33. But this shall be the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel; After those dayes, saith the Lord,] Or, But this is the covenant that I will make (Heb. cut: as ver. 31.) with the house of Israel (and the house of Judah also joyntly, with my whole Church of choice ones, verf. 31.) after those dayes, or, as some render it, those dayes: in the succeeding ages, in the times before spoken of, ver. 31. as having reference to the time, when this covenant should be made.

I will put my Law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts:] He doth not say, I will prescribe them another Law, as if the Law of the two Tables were now to be utterly abandoned and abolished, and some other precepts substituted in the room of them. For our Saviour himself enformeth us, that he came not to dissolve it, or the least title of it; and not onely openeth and cleareth much of it, but presseth still the observation of it, as necessary and perpetual, Matth. 5. 17.----20. 1 Cor. 7. 19. But he promiseth to write that Law in their hearts with the finger of his Spirit, which he had before time written in the Tables of stone, wherby they should become conformable unto it, both in heart and life, Ezek. 11. 19 and 36. 26, 27. Heb. 8. 9. So is Gods Law said to be in the heart of the godly, Psalm 37. 31. and 40. 8. See the like both allusion and expression, 2 Cor. 3. 3 It is that in effect, though in a far larger extent to be made good, which God had before-time promised by Moses, that upon their return, he would circumcise the heart of them and their seed, Deut. 30. 6. to wit, with that inward circumcision, that is not in the flesh, but in the spirit, Rom. 2. 28, 29. Col. 2. 11. See Chap. 4. 4. For it is but a very slender sense, that a learned man here giveth, to wit, that Gods benefits conferred on them should be forgotten, that they could not possibly choose but minde him and his Law.

And I will be their God, and they shall be my people.] Heb. I will be unto them for God, and they shall be unto me for people. See the like form Gen. 2. 24. Judg. 17. 10. 2 Sam. 7. 14. I will take them as their Soveraign Lord into my protection, and they shall yield me all willing subjection, loyalty and obedience, as my people. That which was the sum and substance of the ancient Covenant, both before Moses, Gen 17. 7. and under him, Deut. 26. 7, 18 and 29 13. chap. 7. 23. and after him, chap. 24. 7. & 30 2.. Ezek. 11. 20. and 36. 28. but that spiritual grace is withall here promised, whereby they should be enabled to become Gods people, not in title and profession alone, but in truth, John 1. 47. Rom. 2. 28, 29. Gal. 6. 15, 16

V. 34. And they shall teach no more every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord:] This passage is not to be conceived, as if the meaning were, that they should need no teaching at all in those times; or that the office of Teachers should then cease as superfluous: for while men live in his world, they know but in part, nor exactly indeed ought, 1 Cor 8. 2 and 13. 19. nor can any, while they live here, attain to such an height of perfection, either in knowledge, or in grace, but that they may still grow in either, Phil. 3. 12 ——— 15. 2 Pet. 3. 18. and the office of teaching therefore is to continue to the worlds end, Matth. 28. 20. Eph 4. 11. 13. Yea, it is expresly said, in the prophecies of the very same times here intended, that people should call one upon another to repair together unto Gods house there to be taught; by whom, but by his Ministers? Esai 2. 3. Mic. 4. 2. But the question is then, how these words are to be understood: For answer whereunto, some render the words. They shall not onely teach one another; as the like defect of the restrictive term is oft found omitted, Genes. 32. 28. 1 Sam. 8. 7. and so the meaning should be, that they should not be taught by their teachers alone, but God should co-operate together with their teaching, and instruct them inwardly by his Spirit, Esai 54. 13 and 59. 21. Joh. 6. 45. 1 John 2. 20, 27. Others conceive it to be underlood that none should ordinarily be so filly and ignorant, as not to have some competent measure of knowledge, of the main grounds, at least, and the first principles of saving truth, though having need further to be built up in the same, Heb. 6. 1, 2. Others, that they should not need to be urged, or prefled upon the fear and service of God; they should be prone and forward to it of themselves; by the knowledge of God, after the Chaldee Paraphrast, understanding such a knowledge of him, as worketh in the heart a reverent dread and regard of him, and care to serve and obey him, chap 22. 16. 1 John 2. 4. Others, that men shall not need to take so much pains and travel about teaching of the Lord, as they had been constrained to take with the people in former times, and all to no purpose, Esai 28. 9 ——— 13. the like manner of speech they suppose to be found, John 16. 16. I conceive in this form of speech to be intimated; first, the great measure of clear light that should in those times be revealed, 2 Cor. 4. 3, 6. Secondly the great measure of knowledge that should by reason thereof abound, Esai 11. 9. Hab. 2. 14. Thirdly, the clearnesse of understanding that many should so be possessed with, that they might seem rather to have been taught by some immediate itradition, than by any means of instruction; as Gal. 1. 12. Fourthly, the generality, or numerosity, at least of knowing persons, far above that, that had been in former times, and that even amongst the meaner sort. See Act. 18. 25, 26. So in the next clause.

every man his neighbour, and every man his brother] That is, simply, one another. See chap. 23. 34.

for they shall know me from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the Lord.] Abundance of knowledge of God shall be among all sorts of them, as well the meaner sort as the greater, who have better natural endowments ordinarily, becaus better means of education and institution and more opportunity of intending the means of instruction. See chap. 5. 4 5. See Mat. 11. 4, 5, 25 Rom. 1. 14. 1 Cor. 1. 26 ——— 28.

all know me] As, all taught of God, Esai 54. 13 Joh. 6. 45. and, all righteous, Esai 60. 21. which places and many other, imply a multitude of such in the Church, far above that which in former times had been: for to understand it simply, as some do, of the Elect; though the doctrine be true, (for none but such so know God, as is here intended, nor are sincerely & foundly righteous) yet it reacheth not the intent and scope of the places, which import a greater number than ordinary in other times of persons so qualified, whereas of the Elect it would be true, were they never so few, or in those times no more of them, than had in any other age formerly been. The meaning is, that the knowledge of God should be much more common and familiar than in former times it had been, and that even among the meanest sort of people that were.

from the least to the greatest] See of this proverbial form on Chap. 6. 13. as all sorts there covetous and lying; so all sorts here, religious and knowing. See chap. 24. 7.

for I will forgive their iniquity] Or, when I shall forgive their iniquity; as Chap. 11. 23. and 13. 21. as intimating that God forgiveth not sin to any, but such as know him in Christ, Esai 53. 11. Psalm 36. 10. See chap 33. 8. Mich. 7. 18. Act. 10. 43 Eph. 1. 7.

and I will remember their sin no more.] Or, and shall remember their sin no more. God where he forgives sin, forgets sin: no more regards it in some respects, than as if he had clean forgotten it. See on Esai 43 5. Ezek. 18. 21, 22.

V. 35. Thus saith the Lord] For the better assurance of the accomplishment of the foregoing gracious promises to his people, the Lord is pleased to give them further fecurity in the words following, for the continuance of a seed with them, even to the worlds end.

which giveth the sun for a light by day, and the ordinance of the moon and of the stars for a light by night,] Gen. 1. 16. Psal. 136. 8, 9 which divideth the sea, when the waves thereof roar,] Or as some, who when I trouble the sea, or, let it on working, the waves thereof roar; and one of the Jewish Doctors here much to the same purpose, that make the sea rough, or, rugged; drawing in hither, that of Job, Job 7. 5. my skin is rugged, or wrinkled; but neither is that word commonly deemed there to fo signifie: and the word, though being in the same form, is transitive here, intransitive there. Others therefore rather, that still, or, make quiet, the sea, when (Heb. and; as Chap. 16. 6.) the waves thereof roar; or, that settle the sea, (that is, keep it within compasse, & make it rest within its bounds) though the waves thereof roar. See Chap. 5. 22. and thus the rather I here take it, because he seems here to speak not of some extraordinary, or occasional act; as of dividing the red sea, Exod. 14. 21. or the laying of tempests as some times, as Jon. 1. 15. but of a constant course fixed concerning the creature, Gen. 9. 15 Psal. 104. 9. See on Esai 51. 15.

the Lord of hosts is his name: Or, whose name is the Lord of hosts; as I fai 47. 4. Chap. 10. 16.

V. 36. If those ordinances depart from before me, saith the Lord, then the seed of Israel shall cease from being a nation before me for ever.] As sure as the course, which I have established in nature, for the constant motion and intercourse of the celestial creatures, and the confining of that vast body of the sea to the place assigned it, shall without interruption, or intermission persist unto the worlds end, Psalm 72. 5, 17. and 74. 16, and 89. 29, 36, 37. and 104. 9, 19. Job 38. 8. 8, 9, 11. so undoubtedly shall my Church and seed of Jacob in some of them adhering thereunto continue untill the frame of the world it self be dissolved, Psalm 102. 18. Mat. 16. 18. and 24. 34, 35. Rom 11. 3 5, 26. As for that, which some add of Gods continuance of the light of his Word and Spirit shining forth in his Church, for the illightening of mens mindes, and directing of their lives, Psal. 19. 7, 8. and 119 105, 130. Prov. 6 23. 2 Pet. 1. 19. as those celestial bodies do in a constant course impart light unto the creatures here below; though it be true and solid, Esai 59. 21. Mal. 4. 2. 2 Cor. 4. 6. Rev. 1. 20. and 4. 5. yet its beside the drift and intendment of this place.

these ordinances] To wit, of the sun and the moon and the stars, saith the Rabbine; but not of the sea; for the sea departed from its ordinary course when it stood on heaps, Exod 14. 21. and was here produced onely to shew, that as God wrought a new work there, so he would do the like here in refining his people, verf 22 23. Ezek. 36. 26. But that ordinance of God concerning the bounding of the sea, at first setled, Gen. 1. 9. and by solemne oath and covenant again after the flood established to continue for ever, seems rather here to be respected. See before on verf. 35. and Eſai 54. 9. and we need not therefore reſtrain it to the former onely.

from before me] Heb. from to my face; either ceaſing to be, or being not looked after and regarded by me, and ſo left to an unſetled and confuſed courſe. See Eſai 48. 19. and 57. 16. So in the next branch. See the like expreſſions, Chap. 33. 20, 21. 25. 26.

ceaſe from being a nation] But that there ſhall be a multitude of them diſtinct from other people abiding in the world; to the worlds end, as ſome: or, as others, that a Chriſtian Church conſiſting of Jacobs ſeed, made up of Jews and Gentiles, ſhall continue ſo long, Matth. 16. 18. and 28. 20. or, as others again, that the Jewiſh people, when they ſhall be brought home unto Chriſt, they ſhall ſo perſiſt without revolt to the laſt, Chap. 32. 40.

V. 37. Thus ſaith the Lord, If heaven above can be meaſured, and the foundation of the earth ſearched out beneath, I will alſo caſt off all the ſeed of Iſrael for all that they have done, ſaith the Lord.] As moſt ſure it is, that the ſe things cannot by any skill, or might of man be done; ſo certain is it that God will never caſt off the whole race of Jacob.

If heaven above can be meaſured] To wit, by man; for God is ſaid to meaſure the heavens with his ſpan; but withall implying that none beſide him can do it, Eſai 40. 12. Heb. if heaven above (as Deut. 4. 39.) ſhall be meaſured: but the word is taken potentially; as the like, Prov. 30, 4. So alſo Eſai 40. 12. and 49. 15. Nor need we, with a learned late Writer, to have recourſe to the third heaven, that above the ſtars, which the Apoſtle was rapt up unto, 2 Cor. 12. 2. and whither Chriſt is now aſcended, Eph. 4. 10. for the Lord ſpeaketh, as before, of the celeſtial bodies, that are viſible to the eye, verſe 35. ſo he of that heaven, the vaſtneſſe whereof is conſpicuous to mans ſight, and of which, what is here averred, is moſt true, that no man can make an exact dimenſion of it.

and the foundations of the earth ſearched out beneath,] If men can, by ſearch, pierce ſo far, and ſo deep, into the innermoſt parts of the earth, as to reach unto the very center thereof it ſelf: for the verb is to be taken here potentially, as well as the former.

caſt off all the ſeed of Iſrael] This God never did, never will do; for ſome of them have ſtill been, and ſhall ever be reſerved, Rom. 11. 1.——5, 25.——31.

for all that they have done] Notwithſtanding all their manifold ſins and iniquities, whereby, and for which, they have juſtly deſerved to be utterly both caſt off, and cut off, Lam. 3. 22. Ezek. 30. 32. but God in mercy would remit, verſ. 34. Chap. 33. 8.

V. 38. Behold the dayes come, ſaith the Lord,] From hence to the end of this Chapter, is a prediction of the re-edification of Jeruſalem, together with an exact delineation of the whole compaſſe of the citie. Heb. Behold the dayes coming; as before, verſ. 31. But in this place, the Jewiſh Maſters, it ſeems, finding in ſome copies the word coming here wanting, were ſo ſcrupulous, that albeit they deemed it to have been by ſome eſcape omitted; yet would they not put it into the Text, but left a blank for it with the vowel points underneath, and placed the head-letters in the margent.

that the citie ſhall be built to the Lord] The citie Jeruſalem ſhall be built again round about from the one end to the other, Eſai 44. 28. Neh. 3. and 12. 28.——40. to the Lord, or for the Lord; that the Lord may again dwell therein, and be ſerved and worſhipped there as formerly he had been: ſo verſ. 40.

from the tower of Hananeel] Whereof we finde mention, as a place remarkable, Neh. 3. 1. and 12. 39. Zach. 14. 10. This albeit, ſome learned late Writers affirm to have been ſituate on the South-ſide of Jeruſalem; yet it is more generally deemed to have ſtood on the Eaſt-ſide of the Citie: that which ſeemeth to receive ſtrength from the courſe of the compaſſe both here, and in Nehemy expreſſed; this tower of Hananeel being ſituate between the tower of Meah, and the corner gate, Neh. 3. 1.

unto the gate of the corner] Or, the corner-gate: which ſtood on the North-Eaſt corner of the citie; as Writers generally, for ought I finde, agree: Of it, ſee 2 King. 14. 13. 2 Chr. 26. 9. Zach. 14. 10.

V. 39. And the meaſuring line ſhall yet go forth over againſt it.] Heb. the line of meaſure (as a cane of meaſure, Ezek. 40. 3. and, a cord of meaſure. Zach. 2. 1.) ſhall further go on, or, proceed forward of it, or, before it; as the ſame term is uſed, Joſh. 6. 5, 20. for ſtraight forward; or, as it is there rendred; becauſe ſpeaking of a perſon, ſtraight before him. For neither ſeemeth that here implied, that a learned man would gather from the term further, that the citie ſhould be built in a larger compaſſe than formerly, the ancient limits of it being enlarged: for after the return from capivity, they repaired the walls according to the ancient ſituation and dimenſions of them, by towers, and gates, deſigned and diſtinguiſhed, as here, ſo Neh. 3. and the word onely hath reference to the carriage on of the work: nor again is it intimated in the laſt term, as if having been begun on the one ſide, they ſhould paſſe thence to to the other over againſt it; as thoſe two companies went over againſt one another, Neh. 12. 38. but it noteth rather a proceeding right on round about, taking their work ſtill before them, as it came in their way.

upon the hill Gareb,] Or, unto (as the particle is uſed, chap 6. 9. and 23. 3.) the hill of Gareb, (for the word hill here governeth, as the hill of Jeruſalem, Eſai 10. 32.) the word ſignifieth a ſcab, Lev. 21. 20. and 22. 22. Deut. 28. 27. and it was ſo called, as ſome conjecture, as you would ſay, the ſcabby hill; becauſe the Lepers and Lazers uſed to lye much thereabout: It is ſuppoſed to have lien on the North ſide of the citie toward the Eaſt.

and ſhall compaſſe about to Goath;] Or, it ſhall paſſe about from thence to Goath: ſuppoſed to be ſo term'd from its troubleſome and difficult aſcent: It is by ſome deemed to be the ſame with mount Golgotha, Mat. 27. 33. lying on the Weſt-ſide of the citie towards the North.

V. 40. And the whole valley of the dead bodies,] A valley, as ſome think, not far from mount Golgotha, where were caſt the carcaſſes of the perſons there executed: As others, the valley of Rephaim; which, ſay they, ſignifies dead men, and lay on the Weſt-ſide of the citie Joſh. 15. 8. but of that valley, and its name, ſee on Eſai 17. 5. Others taking their riſe from the Chaldee underſtand it of Tophet, where, ſay they, the multitude of the Aſſyrians under Sennacherib were ſlain; but neither is there any certainty of that, (ſee on Eſai 30. 33.) and they ſeem far out of the way, when they affirm Tephet to have lien on the Weſt-ſide of the Citie.

and of the aſhes] The word here uſed, is ambiguous: for it ſignifieth either fat, or, aſh: for the term is ſingular; whence ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors, taking it the former way, expound it, of the fat and burly-bodied Aſſyrians (the abſtract for the concrete) whoſe corpſes lay in Topher: and the Chaldee Paraphraſt maketh of this and the former but one place: which the points, in the original, may ſeem to favour, carrying this on to that. But others of them affirm the latter to be the plain and ſimple notion of it here, and thereby to be meant that part of the valley, that was ſet apart and employed for the receit of aſhes, that came from the altar of burnt-offerings. Lev. 4. 12. and 6. 11. which is moſt probable: more at leaſt, than that of others, who would draw it to Topher, or Gehinnom, as ſo called from the aſhes of the bodies there burnt, Chap. 7. 31. and 19. 5. which lay on the South-ſide of the citie, but near to the Eaſt. See Chap. 19. 2. with Joſh. 15. 8.

and all the fields unto the brook of Kidron] There is here ſome variety of reading: for in the Text is written haſſhedemot, which the Greek retaining, rendreth it aſſaremoth: but becauſe no ſuch root as ſharam is found in the Hebrew, ſome would cut it in two, and with ſomewhat ado would make it ſignifie the region, or, regiment of death, not unlike unto that of Adrampttium, Act. 27. 2. and what the Chaldee here readeth is uncertain: for he renders it by a word that ſignifies pools, or water-courſes which ſome would draw to thoſe water-works made by Ezekiah, 2 Chron. 32. 30. But what ground for any ſuch matter from the Text, howſoever read? The Jewiſh Maſter-Criticks, conceive not amiſſe, that by ſome Scribes regardleſneſſe, taking one letter for another, being much alike in the Hebrew character, (the like whereunto, ſee on Chap. 2. 20. and 5. 4.) Jheremy came to be written for Jhedemor, which ſignifieth fields: many whereof lay on the South-ſide of the citie; as the Fullers field, Eſai 7. 3. and the Potters field, Matth. 27. 7. See on Chap. 18. 2. and 19. 2. For that the brook Kidron (2 Sam. 15. 23. Joh. 18. 1.) ran on the Eaſt-ſide of the citie, is generally agreed.

See verſ. 38. Eſai 52. 1.& 63. 18. Chap. 12. 10. Zach 14. 20, 21. For it is ſomewhat too ſlender that ſome give it, as if the meaning onely were, that the whole citie ſhould be full of, and ring again with the praiſes of God, Neh. 12. 27.——43.

CHAP. XXXII.

Verſ. 1. The word which came to Jeremiah from the Lord,] In this Chapter is a relation of a purchaſe of land made at Gods appointment, by the Prophet, during his impriſonment, and the ſiege of the citie ready to be given up, verſ. 1.——15. his prayer to God thereupon, verſ. 16.——25. and Gods anſwer thereunto, verſ. 26. conſiſting of two parts; a denunciation of a ſpeedy deſtruction of the citie and ſtate for their haynous and horrible ſins, verſ. 28.——35. and a promiſe of reſtitution again after ſome time over, though it might ſeem never ſo unlikely, verſ. 27. 36.——44. In this verſe, and the next, to make way thereunto, is the time of this propheſie, verſ. 2. together with the condition of the citie ſtrictly beſieged; and of the Prophet himſelf under reſtraint, verſ. 2. with the cauſe for which he was reſtrained verſ. 3.——5.

Of his name here, ſee before on chap. 21. 1.

V. 2. For then the King of Babylons army beſieged Jeruſalem;] Heb. And then the Army of the King of Babylon were beſieging of, or, againſt Jeruſalem. Now his forces lay then in ſiege againſt the citie: for the ſiege began in the ninth year of Zedekiah; but the citie was not taken before his eleventh, 2 King. 25. 1, 2. Chap. 39. 1, 2. Ezek. 24. 1.

and Jeremiah the Prophet was ſhut up in the Court of the priſon, which was in the King of Judahs houſe.] That is, ſay ſome, in the priſon that was in the Court of the Kings houſe; as if there were ſome inverſion in the words; but this ſeemeth needleſſe & groundleſſe; the Court and the Kings houſe are diſtingu ſhed in the Text: nor is it the Court of the Kings houſe, but the Court of the priſon-houſe, though within compaſſe of the Kings houſe, wherein the Prophet then remained; being now at ſomewhat more liberty, though a priſoner ſtill, than formerly he had enjoyed, while reſtrained to, and couped up in the cels, or wards, chap. 37. 16, 20, 21.

priſon] Heb. cuſtody, or, keeping; as Mat. 14. 3. See Neh. 3. 25. and 12. 39.

V. 3. For Zedekiah the King of Judah had ſhut him up, ſaying,] The occaſion of his impriſonment, the doing of his duty, the faithfull delivery of Gods meſſage. Howbeit, we read not where Zedekiah himſelf is at any time related to have himſelf committed the Prophet; onely he is ſaid to have given order for the removal of him, at his own requeſt, from a more loathſome priſon to another more convenient one, where at preſent he was, Chap. 37. 21. but what was done by his permiſſion, and continued with his connivence, is not unſtily, or undeſervedly ſaid to be done by him. See Chap. 37. 15, 18. and 38. 5.

Wherefore doeſt thou propheſie and ſay, Thus ſaith the Lord, Behold, I will give this city into the hand of the King of Babylon, and he ſhall take it.] The ſubſtance of that here related fee foretold and denounced by the Prophet while yet at full liberty, Chap. 34. 2.——5. which then, it ſeems, had at firſt ſome good work upon the King and State for the preſent, but afterward belike proved the occaſion of his commitment. See there. And fee the like expoſtulation with the Prophet in the perſon of Jehojakim, Chap. 36. 29.

V. 4. And Zedekiah King of Judah ſhall not eſcape out of the hand of the Chaldeans, but ſhall ſurely be delivered into the hand of the King of Babylon.] Though he do attempt and aſſay to make an eſcape, (as he did) yet ſhall he be taken by them, and delivered up to him, Chap. 39. 5. V. 5. And he ſhall lead Zedekiah to Babylon, and there ſhall he be untill I viſit him, ſaith the Lord.] Untill by natural and ordinary death I take him away: as Num. 16. 29. for by the ſword he was not to die, Chap. 34. 3.

though ye fight with the Chaldeans ye ſhall not proſper.] No weapons or courſes that ye uſe, or take againſt them ſhall prevail, or avail to do you any good. See chap. 21. 4. Eſai 54. 17.

V. 6. And Jeremiah ſaid, the word of the Lord came unto me, ſaying,] See ver. 1. The Prophet, having related the occaſion of his impriſonment, and the time of it, doth proceed to report a buſineſſe moved to him, and tranſacted by him, upon an apprehenſion of Gods pleaſure therein, about a bargain and ſale of ſome land, which at that time might ſeem very unſeaſonable, and to the Prophets great diſadvantage, as not likely ever to be enjoyed either by him, or any his heirs.

V. 7. Behold Hanameel the ſon of Shallum thine uncle ſhall come unto thee, ſaying,] God foretelleth him of his kinſmans purpoſe to repair to him, and move him to buy his land of him, that he might before-hand conſider ſeriouſly of it, and apprehend withall for what purpoſe he had acquainted him with it.

Buy thee my field that is in Anathoth:] Buy thee; as chap. 13. 1. my field: for the Levites had a certain quantity of ground aſſigned them about each of their cities, Num. 35. 3, 4. in Anathoth; that is, near unto it, (as Joſh. 24. 25, 26.) in the ſuburbs thereunto belonging; where Abiathar had fields ſometime, 1 King. 2. 26. and where Jeremy himſelf had lived, chap. 1. 1. But there is ſome queſtion here, how ſuch fields could be ſold: for the ſale of them ſeems expreſly prohibited. Lev. 25. 34. But to this, ſome anſwer, that the meaning of that Law is, that they might not be alienated, or ſold to any other; the copulative prefixed retaining his proper notion, and the ground of the Law rendred the ſame with the former there, verſ. 33. becauſe their perpetual poſſeſſion. Some others underſtand it, that they might not be altered from their conſtant uſe, as converted to buildings, and ſo adjoyned for enlargement to their cities. And others add, that the Levites might have other grounds and lands defcending to them from Mother, or Grand-mother, having no brethren: and that this might be ſome ſuch parcel. See of Barnabas that the Levite, Act. 4. 36, 37.

for the right of redemption is thine to buy it.] To have it before another; as being next of kin to him that deſired to part with it, Lev. 25. 25, 32.

V. 8. So Hanameel mine Uncles ſon came to me in the Court of the Priſon, according to the word of the Lord, and ſaid unto me, Buy my field, I pray thee, that is in Anathoth, which is in the country of Benjamin; for the right of inheritance is thine, and the redemption is thine: buy it for thy ſelf.] Of the priſon-court ſee on ver 2.

the right of inheritance is thine.] Heb. is, or belongeth to thee: thou art to have it before another, as next heir to it. See Ruth. 3. 12. and 4. 3, 4.

and the redemption is thine,] Heb. is to thee: and the poſſeſſions of the Levites might at any time be redeemed, Lev. 25 32.

Buy it for thy ſelf] That it may not paſſe to ſome other, upon thy refuſal; as Ruth 4. 6, 8 or, buy it thee, ſimply, as verſ. 7. Such a motion, as might juſtly ſeem unſeaſonable, and a requeſt ſomewhat unreaſonable; to importune a friend to lay out money for land, that was, in likelyhood, in the enemies hands, who were ſhortly after to be maſters of citie and countrey, as the Prophet well knew, and had with confidence publiſhed, which is kinſman alſo could not be ignorant of, as being the known cauſe of his reſtraint, verſ. 3. It is recorded indeed, that when Annibal was fet down before Rome, and made full account to carry it, the ground on which his pavilion ſtood being offered to ſale, was bought at a full value, Livy, lib. 26. and Florus, lib. 2. cap 6. but that under hope yet, that he would be fruſtrate of his expectation; which with our Prophet was far otherwiſe, and the ground therefore of his proceeding in this diſadvantagious purchaſe, is in the next words related.

then I knew that this was the word of the Lord.] Heb and I knew (as Chap. 29. 12.) that a word of God, or, a buſineſſe of God (as 1 King. 12. 24.) it was: the pronoun, for the verb ſubſtantive; as Chap. 10. 3. I perceived by Gods fore-acquainting me with his coming, that it was his minde and pleaſure that I ſhould deal and go thereon with him for it, though no expreſſe mention thereof had been made to me by God, verſe 7. See the like, Act. 16. 7, 9, 10.

V. 9. And I bought the field of Hanameel my uncles ſon, that was in Anathoth.] Or, So I bought the field that was in Anathoth, of, or, from, Hanameel mine uncles ſon. For there is a tranſition in the Text: ſee the like, Chap. 11. 16. and 18 7, 8. and 52. 20.

even ſeventeen ſhekels of ſilver] Heb. ſeven ſhekels and ten of ſilver; and ſo the ancient Greek preciſely giveth it: and there is the like trajection to that before in the Text: which not obſerved, hath produced ſome miſconſtruction: for the Chaldee (whom alſo the Jewiſh Doctors follow) rendreth it. ſeven pounds and ten ſhekels of ſilver; but that without any ground, or good probability: the old Latine ambiguouſly, ſeven ſtateres (a Greek coin of the ſame weight with the ſhekel, Mat. 17. 27.) and ten ſilverlings, or, ors pieces of silver ; as Mat.26.15. But seven shekels and ten, seemeth to be here no other, than seventeen shekels : (as, four leaves, or five, for, four or five leaves, Chap.36.33. & 2 Cor.13.1. two witnesses and three, for, two, or three witnesses.) the manner of the Heb ew being ordinarily to place the leſſe number before the greater. So, thirty and an hundred years, Gen.5.3. and five years and an hundred years, Gen.5.6. and ſilver oft put alone for shekels of ſilver ; as Judge 17.2. 2 Sam.18.11. The Hebrew shekel weighing about our half crown, the ſum amounteth to ſome fourty two ſhillings and ſix pence

V. 10. And I ſubſcribed the evidence,] Or, I engroſſed it. Heb. I wrote in the book ; to wit, ſaith the Jewiſh Commenter, the words, or matter of the ſale. I cauſed a book, or a bill. (as Mat. 19.7) of bargain and ſale to be made of it ; or the bargain and ſale to be ſolemnly entred and engroſſed in a book : for that which ſome Learned hence obſerve, that in thoſe times there were no Scriveners, or publick notaries uſed commonly for ſuch purpoſes, ſeemeth a groundleſſe as that which ſome other gather, that in the Romans Courts men accuſed of criminal matters were not allowed counſel to plead for them, from Pauls ſpeaking for himſelf, Act. 24.10.

and ſealed it] Heb. and ſealed. I writ,and ſealed : that is, I cauſed a writing to be drawn, ſubſcribed and ſealed : for the ſealing, albeit it might be interchangeable,as in Chatter-parties is uſual with us; yet the ſealing of the deeds was principally required from the party that ſold the land, and as the Rabbinos here ſay, from the witneſſes who were to teſtifie the ſale.

and took witneſſes,] Heb. I cauſed witneſſes to witneſſe ; as Eſai 8.2. and ſo ver.25 See Ruth 4.9.

and weighed him the money in the balances.] Or, weighed out the money (Heb. ſilver ; as verſe 9.) in a balance ; (of whi h term ſee on Eſai 40.12.) in the preſence of thoſe witneſſes, who might teſtifie, as well the payment of the money, as the agreement and bargain.

V. 11 So I took the evidence of the purchaſe] Or, then (Heb. And ; as Chap.:8.59.) took I the evidence (Heb. the book ; as ver. 10.) of the purchaſe. So ver.12. 14,16.

both that which was ſealed according to the law and cuſtome ; and that which was open] That there were two ſeveral deeds, or inſtruments concerning this bargain and ſale, and conſequently in conveyances of the like nature, is from hence apparent : though it be not ſo clear, of what nature and uſe they were, or wherein they differed the one from the other ; and learned men therefore do ſomewhat vary in their, either conjectures or aſſertions, about them. One of the Jewiſh Doctors (whom for the ſake of many of ſol low) ſeemeth to make them for ſubſtance the ſame, onely the one ſealed up and kept loſe ; the other being an exact copy thereof left open, that uſe might upon any emergent occaſion be made of it, without breaking up the other. Another ſaith, that the latter was to make known what had been done unto ſuch other of the kin, as had right or might deſire to redeem it again. A third, that the one to wit, that ſealed was made up in private at the time of the contract ; the other was to be rendered to the Judges in publick, called therefore the open one, becauſe it was openly publiſhed in the Court,and by the Judges ſubſcripion,and confignation, made authentical : and this way alſo ſome of ours ſeem to go. Others would have in the one writing contained an expreſſe narration of Gods injunction made out to the Prophet for the making of this purchaſe ; together with an exact deſcription of all paſſages concerning the purchaſe it ſelf ; the other, ſo much onely, as was neceſſarily required for the paſſing of it in the civil Court. Another learned man conceiveth, that in the one, which was ſhewed open to the witneſſes, that they might know between whom and whereabont the bargain was made, there was ſo much onely recorded in general : whereas in the other which was ſealed up, were contained divers further particularities, which they would not have to be ſo commonly known. And a latter learned Writer would have three ſeveral books here mentioned, to wit, 1. The book of the purchaſe, containing the condition of the land to be bought, and the ſum of money to be given for it. 2. The book ſealed wherein the bargain and ſale were obſigned, and the right declared that Jeremy had to purchaſe it. 3. A publick inſtrument of ratification of the whole But I ſuppoſe rather with the Jewiſh Commenters that the word book in the front of the verſe is collective, and taketh in to it both the ſealed one and the patent, as the very courſe of the context carrieth it : and I conceive thoſe words according to the precept and the ordinances, to have relation as well to the one counterpart as the other ; there being ſuch a tranſpoſition in the words as was before, verſe 9. So that it is, as if it had been ſaid ; the books of the purchaſe, that ſealed, and that patent, both made according to the precept and the ordinances ; that is, according to the preſcript of Gods Law concerning ſuch ſales, and the ordinances about the ſame. Nor can I accord with thoſe learned men that diſjoyn theſe two terms, by the one underſtanding the particular command that God had given in charge to the Prophet for the making of this purchaſe ; by the other, the ordinances that God had enacted concerning ſuch tranſactions in general, Lev. 25. See the like defect of the term of collation, Chap.2.28.

V. 12. And I gave the evidence of the purchaſe unto Baruch, the ſon of Neriah the ſon of Maaſeiah] Or, And I delivered (as verſ. 16. the deed (Heb. book, as verſ 11.) of the purchaſe unto Baruch, the Prophets Scribe and Attendant, 6 hap.36.4,14. deſcribed here by his parentage, the ſon of Neriah the ſon of Maaſeiah ; and in like manner runneth Seraiahs pedegree, Chap.51.59. the ſon of Neriah the ſon of Maaſeiah. Howbeit, the Hebrew here exhibiteth not Maaſeiah, but Maahſeiah, or Machſeiah, which is a divers name.

in the ſight of Hanameel mine uncles ſon,] Heb. to the ſyes (as Chap.:8.5.) of Hanameel mine uncle : but the word ſon is wanting ; for he was before called his uncles ſon, verſ. 7 8. which to ſample, the Jewiſh Doctor fetcheth hither that of Lot, where Lot is called Abrahams brothers ſon, Gen. 12.5. and 14.12. and again his brother, Gen 14.14. to which may be added the like of Zedekiah, called Jchojacins uncle, 2 King 24.17. and yet his brother, 2 Chron. 36.10. but the word brother is of larger extent : and neither therefore ſo well marcheth with this, That the word ſon is to be ſupplied, I ſuppoſe that no doubt is to be made for the Rabbines conjecture, that this Hanameel ſhould be another of that name, Uncle to the Prophet doth carry no ſhew of probability with it.

eth, that Mo'ec and Baal are us'd promiscuously, and in a kinde of generality, the one containing the notion of a King, whence the ambiguity, Zeph.1.5. the other of an Owner, Lord, Master. or Husband. See chap.2.23. to passe, as Lev.18.21. to wit, thorow the fire: a defective speech, supplied, 2 Kings. 16.3. to cause to passe thorow the fire, to, to burn; as it is Chap.19.5.

V. 36. And now therefore thus saith the Lord the God of Israel concerning this city, whereof ye say it shall be delivered into the hand of the King of Babylon by the sword, and by the famine, and by the pestilence.] This version rendring the particle here us'ed as an illative, maketh no very good coherence, as if it were said, Because this people have dealt thus wickedly with me, I will therefore deal graciously with them. But to make the connexion suitable to the subject matter, it would be rendred as a discretive; (whereof see on chap.30 16.) Yet now notwithstanding all this their extream impiety & pertinacy in evil, thus saith the Lord the God of Israel, he that yet oweth this people, having a poor remnant among them, concerning this city, which your selves have given for lost now, having no hope to hold it out, being in such condition as it is; See ver.24, 28, 29. CHAP. XXXIII.

Verf.1. MOreover the word of the Lord came unto Jeremiah the second time, while he was yet shut up in the Court of the Prison, saying,] This Prophesie, as it is very near of the same date with the next fore-going; so is it much of the same subject matter with it, and with that before it, contained in Chapter 30. and 31. all three penned principally for the comfort and support of the faithfull, against that long and tedious captivity ready now to surprise them, and amids those grievous pressures that during it they were to endure, with many gracious promises of preservation and restitution, together with a constant continuance of a settled estate under the Messias to abide unto the worlds end. Heb. And the word of God was unto Jeremiah; as chap.1.11.

the second time] As chap.1.13. this being either the second revelation that he had during his restraint; or the second, as some, of the same subject with the former.

while he was yet shut up] Heb. and he was yet shut up; as, and he reigned, for, while he reigned, 1 King.11.25.

in the Court of the Prison] See chap.32.2.

V. 2. Thus saith the Lord the maker thereof, the Lord that formed it to stablish it,] That is, as some of the Jewish Commenters, and some that follow them; he that made Jerusalem, (before-mentioned, chap.32.44.) and formed it, and made it not to be ruined, but to stand and continue; at least not to let it lye always ruined. See Esai 22.11. and 37.26. But others rather of either rank understand it of the promise of restitution, rending the words, the Lord that doth, the Lord that frameth, (or contriveth it, with a purpose) to establish it, to perform and make good that his gracious promise of restauration before propounded, chap.31 37,44. and now again here reiterated with further assurance given of it, verse 6.7. See Esai 46.11.

the Lord is his name] Or, who se name is Jehovah, Psal.83.18. Esai 42.8. one able to give being to whatsoever he doth promise, or purpose, Esai 14.24. and 44.26---28. and 46.10. the demonstrative for the relative; as verse 3.

V. 3. Call unto me, and I will answer thee;] This some conceive spoken, as to Gods people, to encourage them to seek unto God, with assurance of successe in their suites; fetching in hither those places, Esai 42.9. and 46. 10. and 48.3---7. But the most take the words rather as spoken to the Prophet, encouraging him to seek for further revelations from God, concerning those favours which in future times he purposed to confer upon his people. Howbeit, I conceive not, with the Jewish Doctor, that they contain any revocation of the former inhibition of prayer and intercession in the peoples behalf, chap. 7. 16. and 11. 14. and 14. 11. for that concerned onely their present deliverance; this their future re-establishment.

answer thee] According to thy desire.

and shew thee great and mighty things, which thou knowest not] Or, great and hidden, or, abstruse and reserved things: as, there is nothing reserved, or, restrained from thee, Job 42.2. See Esai 48.6.

which thou knowest not.] Heb. thou knowest them not: the demonstrative for the relative; as ver. 2. so also Esai 48. 6. or, as some, which thou acknowledgest not; which in regard of thy weaknesse thou are not able to conceive, as having some glance at his former debate with God, chap.32.25. But the plainer notion seems here the better.

V.4. For thus saith the Lord the God of Israel, concerning the houses of this city, and concerning the houses of the Kings of Judah, which are thrown down by the mounts, and by the sword.] Before God comech to impart unto the Prophet his gracious purposes concerning the deliverance of this people in future times, he first acquainteth him with those calamities that were suddenly to befall them, and which they should not by any meanes be able to avoyd or escape: as before the like, Chap.32. 28, 29.

of the Kings of Judah] Wherein their Kings have successively dwelt: or, Kings, for, Princes. See chap. 17. 19. and 19 13.

are thrown down] As some, by themselves, to raise fortifications, and make places of defence against the enemy: as Esay 22. 10. or, that are to be thrown down, as sure to be demolished, as if already they were, by the enemies assault, or upon their surprisal of them: as, destroyed, for, ready to be destroyed; Psal.137.8. perished, for, ready to perish, Esay 27.13. slain, for, out of hand to be slain, Chap.9.1. this rather; because that for which the cure and recovery was promised, verse 6.

by the mounts] Heb. to the mounts, or engines, which some in their sense render for; as Ezek. 6. 9, 11. & 21. 12. & 27. 31. understanding it of fortifications raised for defence: but others rather, as our Version yieldeth it, by the mounts, raised by the enemy against the city, or the engines, wherewith they batter the walls and shoot into it, Chap. 32. 24. so the particle seemeth also taken in the next member, by, or with the sword, or what is thereby specified.

by the sword] That is, by the hostile force and violence of the enemy; as the word, sword, is commonly us'ed, Josh. 10. 28. 30. Howbeit, the word may here be as well rendred, with hammers, or, with mattocks; or, with axes; (the word, though singular, being taken collectively) for with this variety of notion is the term sometime expressed, Exod.20.25. if thou lift up thy tool, or, hammer; (as the Latine rendreth it) upon it, thou hast polluted it: there it seemeth indeed to be us'ed for some polishing tool employ'ed about building, but elsewhere for such instruments as are us'ed about battering and beating down of buildings; as 2 Chron. 34. 6. where it is said of Josias, that he caused the monuments of idolatry to be beaten down, and broken with mattocks. So is the word there rendred, and Ezek. 26. 9. of Nebuchadnezzar, that he should set engines of battery against the walls of Tyre, and with (the same word with this here, but plural there) break down her towers; by the former were they battered in likelihood during the siege, with these latter after the surprisall of the city; Nor do I mislike that expofition of a learned man, who conceiveth a complexive form of speech in the word of throwing down, rendring it, to be demolished being expos'ed to slot and sword: though instead of the latter word, I should rather subsstitute some other instrument of demolition: Of such forms, see on Esay 14. 12. & 38. 17, 21. So the preposition might retain its ordinary use.

V. 5. They come to fight with the Chaldeans, but it is to fill them with the dead bodies of men,] How these words come in here, or how they cohere with the former, is not easie to determine. Some suppose them to be added, as rendring a reason, why the houses were thus to be demolished by the enemy; to wit, because the inhabitants stood it out against them, and refused to open to them, that which exasperated the Chaldeans against them. Others, as giving assurance of the surprisall and destruction of the city, notwithstanding all their power and industry that should or could be us'ed by them for the saving thereof: And the most read them as an entire sentence by themselves; which if we admit, I should include this whole verse in a parenthesis, as if it were said, (they come indeed to fight with the Chaldeans, but all to no purpose, for I fight my self against them, and have turned my face away from them for their sins) and so the file of the discourse may be carried on from ver.4. to ver.6. Yet some hang these words upon the former: and that divers diverfly. Some, by repeating of the foregoing particle, Thus saith the Lord, concerning the house of Jerusalem, and concerning them also that come to fight with the Chaldeans, But this seemeth to leave the sentence in an abrupt kind of suspence. Others therefore rather by knitting them to the last words of the verse, concerning the demolishing of the houses by those that come (to wit, from other places) to fight with the Chaldeans, (and to defend this city against them) but indeed to fill them with the carcasses of men: as God will dispose the iffue and event of it to, concerning the engines and instruments, wherewith they would be demolished, as others, on this wise, by the slot and sword (the destroying instruments) of those that come to fight with the Chaldeans, and to fill them with the carcasses of men: and these understand the place of those associates and confederates of the Chaldeans that assisted them at the siege of Jerusalem: and this I should readily incline unto (for there is no more than coming to fight in the text) if I could find the particle here us'ed in this notion of assistance any where joyned with the term of fighting, or warring; but so I never yet met with it, but in the contrary notion of opposing and fighting against, as elsewhere; so Chap. 21. 5. & 37. 10. Others again, by infertion of a copulative, and supply of the word houses render it, concerning the houses of the King of Judah, and of those (that is, and concerning the houses of those) that go out to fight with the Chaldeans, &c. that which yet seemeth not to go so smoothly away. Nor can I rest satisfied with that of another learned late Writer, who rendreth the words, The Chaldeans come to fight. The particle being (saith he) oft-times a note of a noun nominative preceding a verb, whether transitive, or intransitive; as Neh. 9. 32,34. 1 Sam. 17. 34. 2 Kings 6. 5. Chap. 38. 16. Ezek. 39. 14. & 43. 7. I shall leave it to the consideration of others. I encline rather to put the whole verse into a parenthesis, (Going they are to fight with the Chaldeans (very busie they are about it) but (Heb. and; as Chap. 12. 2.) to fill them with meer corpses &c.) that shall be the issue of it, though not their ayme: to fill them, that is, the houses, mentioned, verf 4. as the most; though a learned Scholiast underftands death it of filling y that is, satiating the blood-thirsty minds and desires of the Chaldeans, that were eagerly set upon flaughter: but the word that peculiarly importeth satiety is not here: with the carcasses of men. Heb. Adam, taken collectively; as Chap. 9.22.

whom I have slain in mine anger and in my fury] Or, whom I will slay, Heb. have smitten, or, will smite (as Josh. 11. 14.) to wit, by the sword of the Chaldeans: whom not so much the Chaldeans slay as they them. See Chapter 25. 33. & 32. 31, 37. 42.

and for all whose wickednesse I have hid my face from this city] In displeasure, Psal. 27.9. Esay 57. 17 the ground of all misery and calamity; as his favourable aspect the fource and fountain of all true felicity, Psal. 30 5,7.

V. 6. Behold I will bring it health and cure,] This is that which by the Prophet God is reported to have said concerning this city of Jerusalem, and the stately structures of it that are shortly to be demolished and laid level with the ground, ver. 4. I will cause them to be re-edified and raised up again. Heb. I am making cure, and healing to go up, or to come, unto her, or, unto it; to wit, the city. Of the terms here us'ed, and the application thereof unto buildings, see on chap. 30. 17.

and I will cure them,] I will restore the people unto their former state again, Esay 57 18. Chap. 3 22.

and I will reveal unto them abundance of peace and truth.] I will flow, that is, exhibit, and impart unto them, conferre and bestow upon them (as Psal. 85. 7. Rom. 8 18, fo Psal. 4. 6. abundance of firm and sure prosperity. See Esay 39,8. Chap. 14. 13. & 32. 41.

V. 7. And I will cause the captivity of Judah, and the captivity of Israel to returne:] As Chapter 24. 5. & 30. 3. & 32. 44.

and I will build them as at first.] Settle them again, and cause them to thrive and prosper, as formerly. See chap. 12. 16. & 18. 9 ver. 11. Esay 1. 26.

V. 8. And I will cleanse them from all their iniquity, whereby they have sinned against me;] Heb. I will purifie them: an allusion to the ritual purifications and lotions prescribed in the Law for the cleansing of polluted persons; before which performed, they might not be admitted into the camp or congregation, Lev. 13. 46. & 14. 3,7,8. Numb. 5, 2,4. & 12. 15. & 19, 11---20. See Ezek. 36. 25. & 37. 23.

and I will pardon all their iniquities whereby they have sinned, and whereby they have transgressed against me.] For till these be purged and pardoned, there can be no peace between God and man; nor can there be true joy or found comfort of ought to man, until his peace be made with God, Psal 32. 1---5. See chap. 31. 34. Mic. 7. 18.

V. 9 And it shall be to me a name of joy, a praise and an honour before all the nations of the earth, which shall hear all the good that I do unto them:] This restitution of Gods Church and people shall procure much honour and glory to God among other people abroad, chap. 13. 11, Esay 63, 14. and, a name of joy for such as men are wont to rejoyce in.

and they shall fear and tremble for all the goodnesse, and for all the prosperity that I procure unto it.] Heb. peace; as ver. 6. The apprehension of Gods favour to h's people manifested by his admirable workings for them, shall strike a reverent awe and dread of them into other people round about them. See Exod. 15. 14 --- 16. 1 Chron. 13. 17. 2 Chron. 20. 29. Esth. 8. 17.

V. 10. Thus saith the Lord; Again there shall be heard in this place (which ye say shall be desolate without man and without beast) even in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem, that are desolate without man, and without inhabitant, and without beast] See on chap. 42. 43. and the like descriptions of desolation, chap 4. 25. & 12. 4. & 50. 3. & 51. 62.

which ye say shall be desolate Heb. which ye are saying (that is, of which ye say, and whereof ye make no other account) waste, or, desolate it is: the pronoun demonstrative, for the verb substantive, as Hagg. 1. 9.

V. 11. The voyce of joy, and the voyce of gladnesse, the voyce of the bridegroom, and the voyce of the bride,] See chapter 7. 34. & 16. 9 the voyce of them that shall say, Praise the Lord of hosts, for he is good, for his mercy endureth for ever,] The solemn form of praising God, prescribed to the Levites, 1 Chr. 16.41. Psal. 106.1. & 107. & 118.

118. 1. & 136. 1 Esay 12. 4. See this fulfilled after their return from captivity, Ezr. 3. 11.

and of them that shall bring the sacrifice of praise into the house of the Lord, ‘ See chap. 17. 26.

for I will cause to return the captivity of the land, as at the first, saith the Lord.] Or, when (as chap 11, 23. & 13. 21.) I shall have brought back the captivity (that is, the captives) of the land, (as the captivity of Sion, Psal. 1 6. 1.) and shall have settled them (a complexive form, as ver. 4.) as at the first, ver. 7.7. Chapter 30.10. Lam. 5. 21.

V. 12. thus saith the Lord of hosts, Again in this place, which is desolate without man, and without beast, and in all the cities thereof shall be an habitation of shepherds causing their flocks to lie down.] In this place, the land of Judah which is to be laid waste, and is in part so already, the enemy having over-runne most of the Country (See Chap. 22. 43.) and in the cities thereof; the lands and pastures lying round about them (as Psal. 134. 13. See Chap 34. 1.) shall be sheep-coats, and theds or cotages for shepherds that shall tend them and feed them quietly without disturbance; so that they shall have their due times both of feeding, and for rest: an argument of-times of setled peace in those parts, So Chap. 31. 24.

V. 13. In the cities of the mountains, in the cities of the vale, and in the cities of the South, and in the land of Benjamin, and in the places about Jerusalem, and in the cities of Judah,] Or, in the up-land cities, both in the land of Benjamin, &c. See on chap. 32. 44.

shall the flocks passe again under the hands of him, that telleth them, saith the Lord.] Or, shall the lesser cattel (sheep and goates) for the word includeth both, Exod. 12. 5. and so verse 12.) passe under the rod to be tithed or told, as they go quietly in and out. See Lev. 26, 32. Ezek. 27 32. Joh. 10. 3. 10, 12.

V. 14 Behold the dayes come, saith the Lord, that I will perform that good thing that I have promised, unto the house of Israel, and to the house of Judah,] Heb. Behold the dayes coming (as Chap. 31. 27, 31.) and (as Chap. 27. 8.) I will establish (as 1 Kings 6. 12.) that good word (as 1 Kings 2. 3, 8. & 18.24.) that I have spoken (as Josh. 1. 3.) unto (or, concerning; as chap. 27. 19.) the house of Israel, and concerning (as Esay 1. 1.) the house of Judah, Chap. 30. 3, 4. & 31. 27.

V. 15. In those dayes, and at that time, will I cause the branch of righteousnesse to grow up unto David; and he shall execute judgement in the land:] See the same promise concerning the Messias, Chap. 23. 5. onely what was said, I will raise, or, settle, there; is said here, I will make to bud, or, sprout; as Psal. 132. 17. Ezek. 29. 21. the rather, because he speaketh as of a plant, word for word, I will make a sprout to sprout out: and, a sprout of righteousnesse, here; as, a righteous sprout, there.

V. 16. In those dayes shall Judah be saved,] So chap. 23. 6. In his dayes shall Judah be saved.

and Jerusalem shall dwell safely] Or, shall be inhabited (for the word is sometime used in a passive notion. See Esay 13. 20. chap. 17. 6.) in safety. See chap. 23. 6. See also chap. 30, 18. & 46. 27.

and this is the name wherewith she shall be called, The Lord is our Righteousnesse.] Heb. and this it is that he shall call her, or, call to her, (that is, saith the Rabbine, the name by which the Messias shall call her: but rather, wherewith she shall be called; as Esay 63. 4. for the verb is indefinite) Jehovah tsidkenu. That which was said to be the name of Christ the Messias, chap. 23. 6. is here said to be the name of Jerusalem, the city of the Messias, the Church of Christ; given to him as the party, who imparteth righteousnesse to her 1 Cor. 1. 30. 2 Cor. 5. 21. to her, that by bearing that name she may prosecute to have her whole righteousnesse, not from her self, but from him, Psal. 45. 14, 15. Phil. 3. 9. that which, saith the Rabbine here, the Inhabitants of Jerusalem should have continually in their mouthes, and shall no doubt when they come unto Christ, 2 Cor. 3. 16. Some Interpreters of prime note render the text, and he that shall call her, shall be Jehovah our Righteousnesse; but the words seem clearly to import the imposition of some name; which the learned Scholiast observing, and yet loath to have the name given unto any other beside Christ, thus exhibiteth the Prophets words, and this, is the name, wherewith every one shall call him, Jehovah our Righteousnesse: but this is a manifest corrupting of the text, which expressly holdeth out, not him, but her. See more hereof on chap. 23. 6.

The Lord is our Righteousnesse] Jehovah tsidkenu: as Jehovah Shammah, The Lord is there; the name of the same city, Ezek. 48. 35.

V. 17. For thus saith the Lord; David shall never want a man to sit upon the throne of the house of Israel:] A further confirmation, not of the restitution of the Church onely, but of the continuation of it in a setled condition of constant government under Christs royal regiment, and the ministery of his sacred ordinances, exercised and executed by persons specially designed thereunto. There Heb. shall not be cut off unto David a man (that is, some man of David: as, to David a Psalm, for, a Psalm of David, Psal. 14. 1. some one of his seed) sitting upon the throne of the house of Israel; as chap. 35. 19. See 2 Chron. 6. 16. Fulfilled principally in Christ, one of Davids seed, unto whom God promiseth to give the throne of his father David to reign over the house of Jacob for ever, Luke 1. 32, 33.

V. 18. Neither shall the Priests, the Levites, want a man before me, to offer burnt-offrings, and to kindle meat-offrings, and to do sacrifice conintually.] Heb. Neither to, or, of the Priests the Levites there shall not be a man cut off from before me; that is, from attendance upon me: as Deut. 10. 8. A promise of the continuance of an Evangelical Ministery in the Church of God to the worlds end, Mat. 28. 20. Eph. 4. 11---13. the Ministers and officers themselves described by thole that then were in place, as Esay 66. 21. and their employments and services by those that then were in use; as Esay 56. 7. Mal. 1. 11. Rom. 15. 16.

to offer burnt-offerings,] Heb. making an ascension, or, offering up, to ascend; to wit, upon the altar. See Esay 56. 7.

to kindle meat-offerings,] Heb. burning (as 2 Chron. 13. 11.) an oblation; for of such oblations was a memorial made solemnly fire upon the altar, Lev. 2. 2, & 6. 15. and of them, see on Esay 1. 13. & 56. 7. kindling doth not here so well; because the fire upon the altar was kindled and maintained principally for the burnt-sacrifices consisting of the bodies of beasts, but being so kindled and kept in for them, was used also for the meat and drink-offerings; nor doth the word it self so signifie.

to sacrifice continually.] Heb. doing; or, dressing, (as Gen. 18. 8. Exod. 10. 25.) sacrifice all dayes; as chap 32. 29. but here alluding to the daily sacrifice, Numb. 28. 3.

V. 19. And the word of the Lord came unto Jeremiah, saying,] Moreover, or, Furthermore, as verse 1. chap 1. 11.

V. 20. Thus saith the Lord, If ye can break my covenant of the day, and my covenant of the night, and that there shall not be day and night in their season:] Or, if ye can annull (Heb. shall make void, as Judg. 2. 1. but here in a potential notion, as Esay 14. 27.) my constitution, (for so the word covenant, here importeth, Gen 8. 22.) concerning the day; and concerning the night, so as that (as Chap. 29. 6.) there should not be day and night in their due, or, set time. If it be possible for any created power to break off the intercourse of night and day. See the like expreffions, Esay 54. 9. chap. 31. 35, 36. verse 25.

V. 21. Then may also my covenant be broken with David my servant; that he should not have a son to reign upon his Throne, and with the Levites the Priests my Ministers.] Heb. my covenant, my promise or engagement. (also shall be made void (but potentially taken, as verse 20.) with David (2 Sam. 7. 16. Psal. 132. 11.) my servant (the style commonly in way of eminency given him, Psal. 78. 70, & 89. 20. & 132. 10.) from being to him (as 1 Sam. 15. 2. Hos. 4. 6) a son reigning upon his Throne, &c. as the like, ver. 18. As soon shall the one faile, as either of the other, the Princely, or Priestly succession, the same with that before, verse 17. 18.

V. 22. As the host of heaven cannot be numbred: neither the sand of the sea measured: so will I multiply the seed of David my servant, and the Levites that minister unto me.] A promise not of the continuation onely of a State and Church, but of a large increase of illue in the Kingdom of Christ (the honour of a King consisting in the multitude of his people, Prov. 14. 28.) and a correspondent number of Ministers and Officers for the ordering and managing of them. See the like promises to Abrahasm, Gen 13. 16. & 15. 5. & 22. 17. Heb. Which (for, Like as; as Exod. 32. 13. Lev. 7. 26. 2 Sam. 14. 19. chap. 48. 8. But found here also above those places, that the Jewish Criticks restrain it to) the host of heaven, (the stars, Gen. 22. 17.) shall not be numbred, (for cannot; as Gen. 16. 10. & 32. 12.) and the sand of the sea shall not be measured; (for cannot; as Hos. 1. 10.) See the like potentiall notions, verse 20. 21. See of the like promise, Esay 53. 8, 10. and performance: Rev. 7. 9.

V. 23. Moreover, the word of the Lord came unto Jeremiah, saying,] Or, Again. Heb. And, as chap 24. 4.

V. 24. Consider est thou not what this people have spoken?] Heb. Seest thou not (as Psal. 119. 159 chap. 2. 31.) what this people (either the unfaithfull party among Gods own people, wholly despairing of any possibility of being ever raised up and restored again, Esay 40. 27. & 49. 14. Ezek. 33 10. & 37. 11. or, the Chaldeans and other enemies of Gods people, chap. 50. 7.) have spoken, or, do speak; what they have commonly in their mouthes.

the two families] Or, as some render it, As for the two families; put absolutely: as Psal. 104. 7. the two families; to wit, of David and Aaron, as some, the princely, and the Priestly, verse 17, 18, 22. or, of Judah and Benjamin, as others, chap. 32. 44. or, of Judah, and Israel, as the most, verse 14.

which the Lord hath chosen,] Or, did choose, or, had chosen, as Psal. 105. 26.

he hath even cast them off,] Heb. and; as chap. 23. 33, 34. where the copulative hath an emphasis in it; he hath utterly cast them off: and doth not at all now regard them, or mind them any more. So rather, than, as some, he doth now reject them. See chap. 30. 17.

Thus have they despised my people, that they should be no more a nation before them] Or, Thus despise they my people. See Esay 52. 6. Heb. and; as chap. 25. 14. they set light by them, as never like to come to be a nation again, in their account. Heb, from being any more a nation before them; as chap. 48. 2.

V. 25. Thus saith the Lord,] Gods firm resolution opposed to this their vain imagination.

If my covenant be not with day and night, and if I have not appointed the ordinances of heaven and earth: Or, as some, If my covenant abide not day and night, (that is, constantly and perpetually; as 1 Chr. 9. 33. Psalm 19. 2. chap. 9. 1.) or, (as others) concerning day and night, (the constant intercourse of either, verse 20.) and the Ordinances concerning heaven and earth (for the course of the one to do service to the other, chap. 31. 35, 36. (which I have settled be not; that is, do not, continue or abide, Psalm 119. 91. See c. 17. 8. But this syntax the last clause will hardly admit: or, as others rather therefore, If I have not settled, or If I shall not dissolve (so that it cannot, or shall not be altered, verse 20. (my constitution of day and night, Genesis 8. 22.) and if I have not settled, or shall not dissolve, the Ordinances of heaven and earth in a certain and constant course, for the Office of the one, Genesis 1. 14. 16. and the safety and benefit of the other, Genesis 1. 9. chapter 5. 22, 24. & 31, 35. or more particularly, those courses that I have set for such distinction of times to be continued by the motion of the celestial bodies for the use and benefit of the creatures below upon earth, Psalm 74. 16, 17. and 104. 19, 23. the supply onely is in the former Branch, from the latter; the like whereunto: See Esay 30. 17.

V. 26. Then will I cast away the seed of Jacob, and David my Servant; so that I will not take any of his seed to be Rulers over the seed of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob:] Heb. I will also reffuse the seed of Jacob (to own them at all for my people; or to keep them in being, as a Nation, chapter 31. 35, 36. verse 24.) and David my servant (verse 22. 22.) from taking off his seed (as 1 Kings 22. 3. 2 Kings 5. 20.) rulers (verse 22.) over the seed of Abraham; Isaac and Jacob; unto whom the promises were especially made for continuance of their seed, Psalm 105. 9, 10. this for rulers, fulfilled partly in Zerubbabel, and his Successors, Ezra 2. 1. Zach. 2. 4. but principally in Christ, Luke 1. 33. verse 15 and the seed of these here mentioned are the body of the faithful, whom he ruleth by his Word, and Spirit, Psalm 105. 1, 6. Romans 9. 6.----8. Gal. 3. 16, 17. & 6. 16.

for I will cause their captivity to return; and will have mercy on them] Or, as some, when I shall bring back their captivity; as Chapter 31. 34. but that though not annils their, doth not so well here: rather, but (here, as Chapter 14. 22.) I will bring backe their captivity: and thereby make it to appear that I have not utterly rejected them, as their enemies imagine. See Esay 14. 1. Chapter 32. 44. Verse 11.

CHAP. XXXIV.

Verse 1. THe word that came to Jeremiah from the Lord,] This Chapter containeth two severall Prophecies at two severall times delivered. The former is related from verse 1.----7. together with the time when it was delivered both prefixed and subjoyned. The inscription here the same with Chapter 18. 1.

(when Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon, and all his Army, and all the Kingdomes of the earth of his Dominion, and all the people fought against Jerusalem, and against all the Cities thereof) saying,] In the time of the siege, whereof 2 Kings 25. 1. Chapter 52. 1.

when] Heb. and c. 14. 15. & 16. 6.

Nebuchadnezzar] Elsewhere in this prophecy called Nebuchadrettsar, 21. 2. & 25. 1. 9.

of his Dominion] Heb. of the Dominion of his hand: See Psalm 89. 25.

all the Cities thereof] Either of Judah, verse 7. or of Jerusalem, Chapter 19. 15. that being the mother-City, Chapter 15. 8. and the reft as daughters to her, Lamentations 3. 51. for as inferiour Towns and Cities commonly stiled, Joshua 15. 32, 36, 41, 43. &c.

V. 2. Thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel] As Chapter 30. 2.

Go, and speake unto Zedekiah King of Judah, and tell him; Thus saith the Lord,] This prophecy seemeth to have been delivered to Jeremy while he was yet at liberty; and the message sent from God to Zedekiah by him to have occasioned his restraint. See Chap. 32. 2, 3. The message consisteth partly of an heavy denunciation of the surprisal of the City, and the King together with it, and the deportation of him to Babylon, verse, 2, 3. partly, of some mitigation of this sad sentence, affuring him from God, that he yet should die a natural death, and have an honourable Sepulture, verse 4, 5.

Go] Heb. Going; as chap. 2. 2. & 3. 12.

Behold, I will give this City into the hand of the King of Babylon; and he shall burn it with fire] See Chapter 32. 3. and 21. 10. Verse 32.

V. 3. And thou shalt not escape out of his hand, but shalt surely be taken,] Heb. shalt taking be taken; as Chapter 26. 15. and 32. 4.

and thine eyes shall behold the eyes of the king of Babylon, and he shall speake with thee mouth to mouth.] So c. 32. 4.

and thou shalt go to Babylon,] c. 32. 5.

V. 4. Yet hear the word of the Lord, O Zedekiah king of Judah; Thus saith the Lord concerning thee, Thou shalt not die by the sword:] Thou shalt not die a violent, but a natural death, by Gods ordinary visitation, chap. 32. 5.

V. 5. But thou shalt die in peace;] Not in war or fight.

and with the burnings of thy fathers the former kings, which were before thee, so shall they burn there for thee:] The king of Babylon shall afford him that, which he had denied unto Jehojakim, chap. 22. 19. & 36. 30. he shall give his people leave to bury him in an honourable manner, and with such solemnities the burning of sweet odors amongst the reft, at his exequies, as they were wont to use at the funerals of their kings in their own Countrie, such of them at least, as had lived beloved, and died desired. See 2 Chr. 16. 14. & 21. 19.

and they will lament thee, saying, Ah Lord,] Or, they shall lament thee; that it may run in the same tenour with the former. There shall solemn lamentation be made for thee, as for thy father Josias 2 Chronicles, 35. 24, 25. denied to Jehojakim his brother, Chapter 22. 18.

for I have pronounced the Word, saith the Lord] Heb. I have spoken the word; or spoken it, (word, for thing; as c. 32. 27.) both the one and the other, as v. 3, 4.

V. 6. Then Jeremiah spake all these words unto Zedekiah king of Judah in Jerusalem:] Then, or So, as chap. 13. 2, 5. The Prophet forbare not to go to the king and deliver Gods meffage to him in his royal Cities, though the doing of it was like to coft him dear. See chap. 32. 3.

V. 7. When the king of Babylons army fought against Jerusalem, and against all the cities of Judah that were left] Heb. And; and as verse 1. See there.

against Lachish, and against Azekah] Of these Cities, see Joshua 10. 10, 31, and of the former also, Esay 36. 2. & 37. 8.

for these defenced Cities remained in the Cities of Judah:] Heb. Cities of defence, or fortification: as c. 4. 5. & 8. 14. those two onely (besides Jerusalem) yet hold out against the Chaldean forces, of the Cities of Judah, that were of any considerable ftrength: as mountain in Gilboa, for mountains of Gilboa, 2 Samuel 1. 21. or among the Cities of Judah: as in the thousands, for among the thousands, Mic. 5. 2.

V. 8. This is the word that came to Jeremiah from the Lord] Heb. The word that was to Jeremiah from the Lord; as verse 1. and as that there, so this here, seemeth to be the inscription or title of a new prophecy, somewhat later than the former, delivered, as appeareth, upon a more special occasion, related from verse 8.---11. for from thence the word or meffage here mentioned, it self beginneth, continued unto the end of the Chapter: the former was delivered when the Chaldean forces were fet down before the city, and eager in the the siege of it, and the city by reason thereof in distress, v. 1, 7. this later when there were some relaxation of their former ftraits; the Chaldeans being for some space of time risen from before the city, upon the approach of some Egyptian aids. verse 21. chap. 37. 5.

after that the king Zedekiah had made a Covenant with all the people to proclaim liberty unto them] Heb. had cut a Covenant: of which form of speech, see on Esay 28. 15. and hereafter, verse 18. for when the enemy preffed hard upon them, and they seemed to be in some distress, they made some shew of remorse and repentance for their sinfull courses, and renewed their covenants with God, and made some kind of reformation: as the like, Judges 10. 15, 16. Psalm 78. 34, 35. Hosea, 6. 1. and among other enormities, which Gods Prophets it seems had admonished them of, verse 10. they had agreed to break off that injurious course, whereby many of them had reduced to get their brethren still in servitude, after the expiration of that term of years which was for their service by Gods appointment prefixed; (see verse 14.) and liberty was thereupon proclaimed unto them, that is, in behalf of all those that were so wrongfully detained.

V. 9. That every man should let his man-servant, and every man his maid-servant, being an Hebrew, or an Hebrewesse, go free,] Having served them the time limited by the Law, Exodus 21. 2. Heb. to dismiss free (as Deut. 15. 18. & ver. 11.) a man, for every one; as chap. 32, 19.

that none should serve himself ye of them, to wit, of a Jew his Brother.] Keep them in service. See the phrase, chapter 27. 7. and 30. 8.

V. 10. Now when all the Princes, and all the people, which had entred into the Covenant, had heard that every one should let his man servant, and every one his maid-servant, go free, that none should serve themselves of them any more, then they obeyed, and let them go.] Being by Gods Prophets enformed of their duty herein, they condescended thereunto; as verse 9. Heb. And they heard &c.--- and they heard (for, when they heard---as c. 26. 10. then they obeyed, as c 35. 8.) and dismissed; a defect of the pronoun, as chap. 31. 5.

V. 11. But afterwards they turned, and caused the servants, and the hand-maids, whom they had let goe free, to return, and brought them into subjection for servants, and for hand-maids.] Heb. And (as Chapter 12. 2.) after so (as Chapter 16. 6.) After they had thus done in the time of their ftraits; when the ftraitnesse of the siege was for sometime intermitted, the Chaldeans, rising in likelyhood to meet the Egyptian Army, that came to raise the Siege, and so relieve the City, supposing themselves now to be safe enough, and imagining that the Chaldeans would not return to the siege again, they repented them of what they had formerly well done; as Pharaoh did of dismissing the Israelites, Exod. 14. 5. and brought them back into bondage again, v. 16. see the term here used, Neh. 5. 5. 2 Chronicles 8. 10.

V. 12. Therefore the Word of the Lord came to Jeremiah from the Lord, saying,] Or, Then; as chap. 43. 8. that word whereof before verse 8, which now here followeth: and it containeth. 1 A relation of a Law enacted by God, concerning the dismission of their servants after a certain term of years, verse 13, 14. 2 A narration of the violation of this Law, together with a reformation of the offence therein committed, verse 14, 15. 3 A revolt from this their temporary reformation, verse 16, and 4 A denunciation of dreadfull judgements to be inflicted upon them for this their relapse and breach of covenant with God, verse 17. ——22.

V. 13. Thus saith the Lord the God of Israel,] As v. 2.

I made a covenant with your fathers in the day that I brought them out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondmen, saying; Heb. I cut a covenant (as verse 8.) with your fathers (and you in them, Deuteronomy 5. 2, 3. & 29. 10 ——15.) in the day (about the time; as Chap. 7. 22.) of my bringing them forth out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of servants: as Exod. 13. 3. where ye were no better than as bondmen and servants, Exodus 1. 13 ——14. and he seems the rather to mention this their service and bondage here, thereby to imply the equity of the Law here subjoyned, that since God hath freed them from the condition of bondmen, it was not meet for them to make bondmen of their brethren, Deuteronomy 15. 15. nor to make slaves of those, whom God hath set free, Lev. 25. 39 42.

V. 14. At the end of seven years let ye go every man his brother an Hebrew, which hath been sold unto thee] Or that hath sold himself unto thee, Lev. 25. 39. Deut. 15. 12. for these passives have oft-times a reciprocal notion; as chap. 23. 24.

At the end of seven years] That is, six years being fully compleat, (as it is in the next words) at the beginning of the seventh. Exod. 21. 2. Deut. 15. 12. and the Jewish Doctors well observe, that the word here used, includeth either term, or utmost limit of ought, whether that whence it beginneth, as that wherewith it is closed up, and concluded, 2 Kings 19. 23. 2 Chron. 26.

let ye go] Heb. ye shall dismisse. See on v. 14. and a man for every one; as there.

and when he hath served thee six years thou shalt let him go free from thee: Heb. and he hath served thee, —— and thou shalt dismiss him, for when he hath served thee, thou shalt then dismiss him: as before, v. 10.

but your fathers hearkned not unto me, neither enclined their ear.] So 7. 24.

V. 15. And you were now turned,] Heb. Ye had turned to day: as Ye have rebelled to day Josh 22. 18.

and hath done right in my sight] Or that which is right in my sight; which I approve of as Deut. 13. 18. & 21. 9.

in proclaiming liberty every one to his neighbour,] Or one to another; as Gen. 11. 3. Seve v. 8.

and ye had made a Covenant before me] Heb. cut a covenant to my face. Ye had by a solemn Covenant in my presence (Psal. 42. 2.) engaged your selves to persist in the observation of what ye had done. See v. 8.

in the house which is called by my Name] Heb. whereupon my Name is called: in the Temple that beareth my Name, chap. 7. 10. and 32. 34.

V. 16. But ye turned] Or But ye have turned backe; or are revolted; as c. 8 5. Heb. And as v. 11.

and polluted my name] Or have polluted my name; have grievously wronged and abused me, by breach of your covenant so solemnly plighted in my presence. So Lev. 19. 12. Exod. 20. 39. and 22 26. Mal. 1. 7, 12.

and caused every man his servant, and every man his hand-maid, whom he had set at liberty at their pleasure to return; and brought them into subjection, to be unto you, for servants, and for hand-maids.] Or and have caused each one his servant, and his hand-maid, whom ye had let go free (as v. 10.) according to their desire, (Deut. 23. 16.) to return (unto service) and have brought them into subjection to become your servants and hand-maids again. See v. 11.

V. 17. Therefore thus saith the Lord, ye have not hearkned unto me in proclaiming liberty every one to his brother, and every man to his neighbour: That is, one to another; as ch. 23. 35. Ye have not done it, because ye have not persisted in it, but have wickedly undone again, what ye had done: whereby it appeareth, that ye did it not in sincerity. So Psal. 78. 8, 34. —— 37. Hos. 6. 1, 4. So reconcile, 1 Samuel 28. 6. with 1 Chron. 10. 14. and 2 Kings 17. verse 33. with verse 34.

behold, I proclaim a liberty for you to the sword, and to the pestilence, and to the famine,] I will give the sword, famine and pestilence, (Chapter 15. 2.) free liberty to seize upon you, to subdue you, to over-master you; thus is God wont to execute judgement by a kinde of retaliation. See Esay, 66. 5. Chapter, 14. 16.

and I will make you to be removed into all the Kingdomes of the Earth.] Heb. I will give you for a removall unto all the Kingdomes of the Earth, Deuteronomy 28. 64. Ch. 15. 1. and 24. 9. and 29. 18.

V. 18. And I will give the men that have transgressed my Covenant, which have not performed the words of my Covenant, which they had made before me, when they cut the Calf in twain, and passed between the parts thereof,] Heb. the Covenant which they cut before me; as verse 8. 15. So that by these and the like religious rites of divine institution, God and man doe interchangeably seal either to other; and man covenanteth with God, as well as God with man, Exodus 24. 8. Psalm 50. 5. John 3. 33. Rom. 4. 11. And we see the ground of that phrase of cutting out a Covenant; alluding to that solemn rite of dividing the body of some slain beast for sacrifice, and passing thorow the sides of it lying apart, as confessing themselves worthy, and in way of execration (whence the oath and the curse, Neh. 10. 29.) thereunto, devoting themselves to be so cut in twain, (Matt. 24. 51.) and destroyed, as that creature was, if they should violate the Covenant that then they made. See somewhat the like ceremony in Gods covenanting with Abraham, Gen. 15, 10, 17. and the like also among the Heathen, in making of solemn leagues and agreements. See in Homers Iliads, l. 3. Virgils Eneides l. 8. Tully of invention, l. 2. Livy, his History, l. 1. Some read the words, I will make the men that have transgressed my Covenant (which they made one with another, but before me, and concerning a branch of my Covenant with them, verse 8. 13, 15.) ——as the calf (the note of similitude inferred, as Chapter 26. 18.) which they cut in twain; and a learned late Interpreter thus digesteth them, I will give the men that transgressed my Covenant, and that have not performed the words, or contents, (as Est. 9. 31.) of the Covenant, and of the Calf which they cut in two; and therewith obsigned the same: and the tenour of the Context inclineth much this way.

V. 19. The Princes of Judah, and the Princes of Jerusalem, the Eunuchs, and the Priests, and all the people of the land, that passed between the parts of the Calfe,] All sorts reckoned up, that none may hope to escape, having deale all alike perfidiously in their Covenant.

V. 20. I will even give them into the hands of their enemies, and into the hand of them that seeke their Life] So Chapter 21. 7. and 22. 25.

and their dead bodies shall be for meat unto the Fowles of the Heaven, and unto the Beasts of the Earth.] Chapter 7. 33. and 16. 4.

V. 21. And Zedekiah King of Judah and his Princes will I give into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of them that seeke their life, and into the hand of the King of Babylon's Army, which are gone up from you.] Or departed from you; as Exodus 12. 38. Chapter 37. 5 having upon the coming of some Egyptian aids raised their siege for a short time. Chapter 37. 5. 11. but not long after returned again, as the Prophet also fore-told, that they should. Chap. 37. 8. verse 12. and left not the City until they surprized it.

V. 22. Behold I will command, saith the Lord, and cause them to return to this city, and they shall fight against it, and take it, and burn it with fire.] I will by a secret and hidden but efficacious providence and disposal, cause them to come back and do all this; as if I had given them an expreis charge and command so to do. See 2 Sam. 16. 10. 2 Kings 24. 2. 2 Chron. 36. 17. Chap. 49. 14. & 50. 21. See the like threatned Chap. 21. 10. & 32. 28, 29. executed, 2 Kings 25. 4, 9. 2 Chap. 52. 7, 13.

and I will make the Cities of Judah a desolation without inhabitant.] See Chapter 26. 15.

CHAP. XXXV.

Verse 1. THe word that came to Jeremiah from the Lord, in the dayes of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah King of Judah, saying;] See the like inscriptions, Chap. 11. and 18. and 21. This Chapter containeth a Narration of the Rechabites precise abstinence from wine, in obedience to the charge given them by their fore-father Rechab, ver. 1 ——12. here related to control and aggravate the disobedience of Gods people to his commands, verse 12 ——15. together with a denunciation of evil to the one, v. 16, 17. and a promise of blessing to the other, v. 18, 19.

V. Go unto the house of the Rechabites] Those of the family of Rechab, which were by original Kenites, descended from Jethro, or Hobab, Moses his father in Law, Judges 1. 16. and 4. 11. they were called Rechabites from one Rechab, a man, it seems, of speciall note among them in his times. 1 Chr. 2. 55. 2 Kings 10. 15. being foreigners they had no possession among Gods people, but lived upon their employments, v. 7.

and speake unto them, and bring them into the house of the Lord, into one of the chambers, and give them wine to drinke,] Under the name the Lords house, are comprehended all the buildings that were about the Temple, among which were chambers, wherein the Priests lodged, and wherein were beſtowed the holy vestments, the oblations, and other the like necessaries, 1 Chron. 28. 11, 12. 1 King. 6. 5. 6, 10. 2 Chr 3. 11. Ezek. 40. 17, 44, 46. & 41. 6. & 42. 13. thither would God have them brought, rather than unto some more obscure and private place, that the more notice might be taken of it.

Go

give them wine to drink] Heb. thou shalt make, or do thou make them drink wine; that is, offer them wine, tender it to them; and that is all he did, v. 5.

V. 3. Then I took Jaazaniah the sonne of Jeremiah, the sonne of Habaziniah, and his brethren, and all his sonnes, and the whole house of the Rechabites; Or, So I took; as Chapter 13. 2, 5. Heb. And.

V. 4. And I brought them into the House of the Lord, into the chamber of the sons of Hanan, the son of Igdaliah a man of God,] This Hanan some suppoſe to be that Hanani mentioned, 2 Chron. 16. 7. but that is uncertain, and not very probable; for, whether the title of a man of God (given usually to Prophets and Teachers of Gods people, Deut. 33. 1. Psalm 90. 1. 1 Tim. 6. 11.) belong here unto Hanan, or unto Igdaliah, is somewhat doubtful. Whoever he was, these his sons it seemeth were of the course of those that waited and served that week. See 1 Chr. 24. 5, 6. & 25. 1, 2, &c. 2 Chron. 23. 4. 8.

which was by the chamber of the Princes] That is, fay some, where the rich gifts were disposed; or their treasure for safety keep, 2 Kings 18. 15. or, rather where they used to meet, to consult together of publick affairs. See chap. 26. 10, 17. though others understand it of the chief of the Priests of the course that then ministred, or those that were next under the high Priest: See 2 Chron. 23. 4. c. 20. 1.

which was above the chamber of Maaseiah the son of Shallum] For the chambers were built with divers Stories one over another, Ezek. 41. 5, 6. See on Esay 6. 1.

the keeper of the door] Heb. threshold; as Ezekiel 43. 8. and the title of Keepers of, or attendants at the threshold, is commonly given to porters, or door-keepers, 1 Chronicles 9. 19. 2 Chronicles 34. 9. Howbeit, the Jewish Commenters here render it, the Keeper of the Veſſell; in likely-hood, because the word is sometime used for Veſſels, cups, basons, or bowls, Exodus 12. 22. 2 Kings 12, 14. See 1 Chron. 9. 28, 29. and the Chaldee both here, and 2 Kings 12. 10. & 22. 4. the Treasurer, as being one of these seven Chamberlines, or Treasurers, that kept the keyes of the sacred Treasure; the word being used as for a threshold, or transome, first then for a dore, and after-for a chamber; and thence the Kings Chamberlaines so termed, Esther 2. 21. & 6. 2. See on Esay 6. 4.

V. 5. And I set before the sons of the house of the Rechabites pots full of wine and cups, and said unto them, Drinke ye wine.] He inviteth them to drink it, to try what they would do: Yea saith not to them, Thus saith the Lord, Drink wine: for then they ought not to have refused it; but the end of his tender was by their refusall out of obedience to their ancestors charge, to convince and condemn the Jewish people for their disobedience to Gods commands, v. 16.

pots full of wine, and cups] Pots containing some large quantity of wine; for it hath affinity with a term that signifies an hill, or hillock; and cups to pour it out into, and so drink it: but because the former word is used for a drinking cup as well as the latter, Gen. 44. 2. I suppoſe there is a trajection in the words, and it is all one, as if he had said. bowls and cups full of wine. See the like hereunto before, c. 32. 9, 11.

V. 6. But they said, we will drinke no wine:] Heb. And (as Chapter 30. 9.) they said, we will not drinke wine, or we may not; as, that shall be done, for that ought not to be done, Genesis 20. 9.

for Jonadab the sonne of Rechab our father commanded us, saying,] Our father, that is our Ancestour, or progenitour; for this Jonadab lived in Jehues time, 2 Kings 10. 15. between two and three hundred years before Jeremies dayes: Nor is that learned mans Argument convincing with me, who would hence evince, that this Jonadab should be one that lived in or about Jeremies time, because they call him their father, and say, our father commanded us: your father Abraham, saith our saviour to the Jewes, John 8. 56. and, what did Moses command you? to those that then lived, Marke 10. 3. and how the one Pashur, is called the sonne of Immer, and the other of Melchiah, see on Chapter 20. 1. and 21. 1.

Ye shall drinke no wine, neither ye nor your sons for ever;] Why Jonadab enjoyned his illue this ſtrict course of life, is questionable. Some suppoſe, to keep them in that course, that they had followed, while they lived in the land of Midian, where they gave themselves to a shepherds life, living in tents, and tending their flocks, not planting of vines, nor drinking wine, which the Countrey yielded not; but contenting themselves with such sustenance as their flocks affonded, Exod. 2. 16. & 3. 1. Judges 4. 17, 19. Others, because having no inheritance in the land, being but strangers therein, they were to live upon their employments, and should not therefore looke to live in so free and plentifull a manner, as those that had lands and revenues yearly coming in. Others, that he would thereby enure them to hardship, as by a prephetical spirit foreseeing those calamities, that should in processe of time befal those among whom they lived. But these things being but mere conjectures, it is not easie certainly hereof to define ought, neither ye, nor your sonnes] Heb. ye, and your sonnes; as ye and your fathers, chapter 16. 13. and, the King and his servants, chapter 36. 24.

V. 7. Neither shall ye build house, nor sow seed, nor plant vineyard, nor have any; but all your dayes, ye shall dwell in tents:] The words of the charge may well all be readred in the imperative, for which the future is frequently used, Drink not wine, nor build house, &c. but dwell in Tents all your dayes; all your life long; as Deut. 21. 1. & 22. 1.

that ye may live many dayes in the land where ye be strangers] Heb. on the face of the land (as Gen. 6. 1.) which ye are sojourning there, or wherein ye sojourn: as 2 Samuel 4. 3. for they were by originall Kenites, or Midianites, not of the line or linage of Israel. This promise of lengthning their dayes subjoyned, some refer to that blessing annexed by God to the precept of obedience to parents, Exod. 20. 12. Ephes. 6. 2. Others rather suppose herein to be intended that by retaining such a course of life, they were like to live the longer in a strange countrey peaceably and quietly, free from envy and grudge of the natives of the land, who are not wont so well to brook the growth and greatness of strangers among them, but are thence moved many times to seek the rooting of them out, Exod. 1. 9, 10. But whatsoever the ground of the injunction was, or whatsoever the end aimed at in it, they had been and still were very careful to observe it.

V. 8. Thus have we obeyed the voice of Jonadab the sonne of Rechab our father,] Heb. And (which would rather be here retained) hearkned to the voyce; as c. 7. 23.

See chap.31 36. for to expound it, as some, of continuance in Gods favour; as Genesis 17. 18. there is no necessity: or that they should not fail of some constant employment about the sacred Offices concerning the Law, as the phrase sometimes importeth a special attendance, Deut. 10. 8. 1 Kings 10. 8. & 17. 1) which as some have not improbably supposed that they might have because it is reported of them that they were Scribes, and given to the study of literature, 1 Chr 2. 55. so long as that State, either civil or sacred should stand: for with restriction and relation to the continuance of those things, whereupon the matter mentioned dependeth, are the like forms of perpetuity commonly conceived and to be understood See Genesis 17.13. Exodus 31.16 Numbers 18 8. But what some others add out of Eusebius his Ecclesiastical History, l. 2. c. 23. from Hegesippus, that these Rechabites should be Priests, and that one of them, a Priest, being present at the murther of James the Just, should reprove them for so doing, is of no probability, but seems a frivolous supposition and groundless relation: for what part or portion could strangers, as they were, have in the Priesthood Numbers 3. 10. Nor seemeth that surmise of one of the Rabbines probable, that some of the Priests or Levites marrying of their daughters, some of their issue in processe of time might come to be Priests: for the words seem to imply continuance in some present employment (if to such a notion they be restrained) and to a constant succession therein And as unlikely is that which a learned Writer suggesteth, that these Rechabites in Jeremies days, should begin a new course of combining themselves into a body, and engaging themselves to a constant attendance on the Temple-service in such manner, as did Anna the Prophetess Luke 2. 37. and to a free contributing thereunto; and that therefore it was, that they did forbear the use of Wine, because they were dayly to frequent the Temple; for that Law concerned the Priests onely, and then onely when they went in to do service Lev. 10.9 Ezekiel 44.21. Nor is there any ground, or probability of such their perpetual and general resort to the Temple-service, living ordinarily in Tents abroad out of the City, v. 7. 10.

CHAP. XXXVI.

Verse 1. And it came to passe in the fourth year of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah King of Judah, that this word came to Jeremiah from the Lord, saying,] The charge mentioned here to Jeremiah, seemeth to have been given him toward the latter end of this fourth year of Jehoiakim (se verse 9.) and in likelyhood consequently to have been later than those related, chap. 25. and 35. Heb. it was that this word was; as chapter 1. 2. & 31. 28. The Chapter containeth first, a charge given by God unto Jeremy to gather together, and engross in one volume, the sum of all the Sermons, that he had delivered from his first entrance upon his prophetical function unto the time present, verse 2, 3. 2 Jeremies performance of it by the help of Baruc his Scribe, v. 4. 3 Baruc's publishing of it by the Prophets appointment in the Temple upon a solemn fast day, v. 5 ——— 10. and after again upon occasion, at the Court in the Scribes chamber before the Princes, v. 11. — 15. 4 The effect it had upon those that there heard it, and their acquainting the King with it, verse 16. 20. 5 The Kings hearing some part of it read and thereupon cutting it in pieces, and burning it in the fire, and giving order to apprehend Baruc and Jeremy, v. 21. — 26. 6 A second charge given the Prophet to write a new roll with further additionals to the former verse 27, 28, 32. together with a dreadfull denunciation against Jehojakim for his burning of the other, ver. 29. — 31. 31.

V. 2. Take thee] An elegant redundancy; as Esay 8. 1. & so v. 28.

a roll of a booke] That is, a book made up in a roll, or a volume, Esay 8. 1. not fit che up, as ours usually are; but rolled up, as our records, and draughts of deeds, and instruments are ordinarily wont to be Yee herein, as is supposed, differing from these, in that not fastned all the sheets together, as they, at the head; but either glewed or sowed up sheet after sheet, the head of the sheet following to the tail of the foregoing, as our long Inventories oft are and so rolled up the whole body of it from the head of the first sheet to the end of the last. See Esay 34 4.

and write therein Heb. and thou shalt write] (as Deut 37. 3. or cause to be written, as chap. 3 1. 30. & Deut. 17.18. for the Rabbines conceit, as if the King were there enjoyned to write out the book of the Law with his own hand, is frivolous) on it; as chap. 51.60. on a book.

V. 3. It may be that the house of Judah will hear all the evil which I purpose to do unto them, that they may return every man from his evil way] O It may be that when the house of Judah shall hear all the evil that I intend (Heb am intending or thinking; as c. 29. 11.) to do unto them (unles they prevent it by timely repentance, c. 18.8) they will turn each one (H. a man; as c. 34 9.) from his evil way, c. 36. 3.

V. 4. Then Jeremiah called Baruch the son of Neriah, and Baruch wrote from the mouth of Jeremiah all the words of the Lord, which he had spoken unto him upon a roll of a booke.] Then; Heb. And as Chapter 29 12. upon (as Joshua 10. 13. so verse 18.) a roll of a Booke See on v.2. Jeremy made that use of Baruc, as Paul did of Tertius, Rom 16. 22.

V. 5. And Jeremiah commanded Baruch, saying, I am shut up, I cannot go into the house of the Lord:] Or, I am detained or restrained, (as 1 Samuel 21. 5. 2 Chron. 20. 37.) so that I cannot go into the house of the Lord:] a defect of the particle; as Chapter 18. 16. Esay 63. 13. what the occasion of Jeremies restraint was at present, is not certainly known. One of the Rabbines saith, he was shut up in prison; but that seemeth otherwise: for what needed the King then to give order for the apprehension of him? verse 26. Others say he was commended by the King to keep his house. But neither doth this seem to sort well with the advice given by the princes for Baruch and him to hide themselves, verse 19. Others, that he durst not goe abroad, or be seen in publike for feat of the King, whose cruell disposition he was well acquainted with. Chapter 26. 20. ——— 23. But this Story in that Chapter related, sufficiently refelleth. Others suppose that by some Ecclesiasticall censure he might be restrained; and others again, by some Legall pollution: and others, Lastly, by some special inhibition from God, or secret intimation from his Spirit, as was Paul, Acts, 16. 6, 7. But sufficient light of Information herein falling us, there can be no certain determination of ought.

V. 7. It may be they will present their supplication before the Lord,] Heb. their supplication will fall to the face (or, in the presence) of the Lord: an allusion to the dejected gesture of persons that come to seek for mercy, Deut. 9.25. Matth. 26.39.

V. 9. And it came to passe in the fifth year of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah King of Judah, in the ninth moneth, that they proclaimed a fast before the Lord to all the people in Jerusalem, and to all the people that came from the cities of Judah unto Jerusalem.] Or, Now, (as chap. 23. 22.) so it was (verse 1.) in the fifth year of Jehoiakim (in the beginning of that year of his reign, the year after that, wherein this charge was given Jeremy, verse 1.2. the length of the matter to be written in the roll, requiring some time for the engrossing of it, or it being on purpose reserved till then) in the ninth moneth (not of that year or his reign, but from the ordinary beginning of the year then current) that (a defect of the particle, as verse 1. (a fast was proclaimed (for the verb is indefinite; as chap. 6. 30.) to be held before the Lord in his Temple at Jerusalem; as they told Joseph to be carried into Egypt. Acts 7. 9. as well for other the people of Judah, as for those that dwelt there, see on verse 6. This was not the ordinary yearly fast enjoyned in the Law, Lev. 23. 27. for that was kept on the tenth day of the seventh moneth, answering to part of our September, and part of our October, whereas this was held in the ninth moneth, which comprehended part of our November, and part of our December, called Chisleu, Zach. 7. 1. two moneths later than that; and was therefore proclaimed upon some extraordinary occasion, whether of that long and great drought and dearth thence proceeding, mentioned, Chap. 14 2, 3. whereof some intimation seemeth there, verse 12. or upon fear of a new invasion by forrein forces, Jehojakim having been sometime before compelled to submit unto the King of Babylon, and to hold from him, Dan. 1. 1. 2 Kings 24.1. from whom yet not long after he began to revolt, and thereby incensed him against him, 2 Kings 24. 1. For that seemeth to me nothing probable, which yet some suggest, that the fast should be to bewail the calamities that had formerly befallen them, in the siege, and surprisal of the city, in the latter part of Jehojakims third year, and entrance of his fourth a twelve-moneth, or more it may be, before: Nor doth that instance of those fasts, Zach. 7, 3, 5. come home here for their captivity, and the desolate of their city, Temple and Land, did all that while still continue the same. But I enclin rather to that first of famine by drought, which might be further also encreased much by the spoyl made in the late invasions.

See Jeremies Charge to Baruc, verse 6. and the words following, which expressly controll it.

Howbeit, there want not those, who by the upper court here understand the peoples court; yet not simply or absolutely, but that part of it wherein the men or males met, so termed in relation to the other part of it wherein the women used to assemble; being lower much than the other: but whether any such distinct court were to ancient or no, is uncertain: these Authours themselves acknowledging, that this lower court for the women, was not at the first built by Solomon.

in the ears of all the people] Or, hearing, as verse 6.

V. 11. When Micaiah the son of Gemariah the son of Shaphan had heard out of the book all the words of the Lord;] Or, Now when Micajah had heard Heb. and Micajhu (as Jirmjahu, chap. 1 1.) heard (but the copulative hath oft a double notion: as chap. 13. 12. & 34. 10. or in this syntax the one may be fetcht hither from the head of the next branch, verse 12.) from off the book, all the words of the Lord; as verse 6.

V. 12. Then he went down into the King s house] Or, He went to the Kings house; the copulative hence taken into the former for the clearer expression, in our language, And he heard, —— and he went, for, And, or. Now, (as chap 30.4.) when he had heard, —— he went; as chap. 26. 10. Now when they heard, ——they came.

V. 13. Then Micaiah declared unto them all the words that he had heard, when Baruch read the book in the ears of the people,] Heb. And (which may well be retained) and, words, for things; as chap. 26 . (for it he had related all the words that he spake, they should not have needed to send for the roll; nor was his memory so good) and, read in the book as verse 10 and ears, for, hearing, as there. Now for what end Micajah did this is uncertain; whether out of a malicious disposition to cast the Prophet and his Scribe to be questioned as Shemajah, chap. 29 24, 25. or out of a religious intention to have some course taken, if it might be for the pacifying of Gods wrath, and preventing of the judgement denounced, is not certaine: yet the later seemeth the more probable.

V 14. Therefore all the Princes sent Jehudi the son of Nethaniah, the son of Shelamiah, the son of Cushi unto Baruch, saying,] Of this Jehudi, see further on verse 21.

Take in thine hand the roll, wherein thou hast read in the eares of the people, and come,] Heb. And (as verse 4.) and, which thou readest in it: an elegant redundancy; as the like, chap. 7. 14. and, eares, for, hearing; as verse 10. 13.

Heb. a man to, or, on his friend, or neighbour; as chap. 34. 15. and it is, howsoever, a complexive form, such as v. 9.

and said to Baruch, we will surely tell the King all these words.] Or, things; as before. Heb. telling tell: as 1 Sam. 22. 24 Judg 14. 12. to try whether any good might thereby be wrought upon him? for they seem to be better affected than either themselves, or other of them afterward in Zedekiahs time were. See on chap 38.4.

V. 17. And they asked Baruch, saying. Tell us now how didst thou write all these words at his mouth?] Or, How couldst thou write (in a potential notion; as Chap 2. 23) all these words, or, things (as before) from his mouth: for so the Hebrew hath it: as Job 22. 22.

V. 18, And Baruch answered them, He pronounced all these words to me with his mouth.] Heb. from his mouth; as verse 17. They

They seem to lay here too much weight upon the words of the text, who following the Latine rendring them, He spake them as if he read, would have Baruchs meaning to be, he uttered them as distinctly and readily all along, as if he had read them out of a book, whereby it might appear that they were by an immediate instinct of spirit suggested unto him. But the terms of the text imply no more, but that the Prophet dictated unto him, what he should write; in doing wherof, he might well for ought I see make use of such copies of his Sermons so merly delivered, as he had by him: as also he did sometime in likelihood, not of some of his own onely, but of the Sermons of what Prophets also that had been before him. See Chap. 45.1.19, 43, 44. & 51. 15 ——15.

and I wrote them with ink in the book.] Heb. on the book; as Josh. 10, 13. and the Jewish Doctors criticisme seemeth here over-nice, that would have it to be spoken in way of anticipation: for it is not a book, saith he, untill it be written in, and written out: as if tables to write on, were not tables, untill such use had been made of them; a defect there is of the pronoun: as Chapter 34, 10.

with ink.] The usual material to write with in those times; not added here, as a learned Writer, to intimate, that he did not draw them on flate, or in lead, or, on waxed tables; for their own eyes to whom he spake shewed them the contrary: but intimating only the ordinary manner of doing it.

V. 19 Then said the Princes unto Baruch, Go hide thee, thou and Jeremiah, and let no man know where ye be.] Heb. And; as verse 4. and, he hid; the passive in a reciprocal notion: as Chap. 23. 24. & 34. 14. They foresaw that the King might be enraged against them; and give order to apprehend them; as he had formerly for Uriah, Chap. 26. 21. that which also he did verse 25. and they seem to have been desirous of, and carefull for their indemnity and safety: the one of them had been formerly employed by the King for the bringing back of Uriah, when he was fled into Egypt, Chap. 26. 22. but it may be he had now some remorse for what then he had done. See verse 25. however, it appeareth that Jeremy was not at present in custody, as some have said. See verse 5.

V. 20, And they went in to the King into the Court.] Into the Inner Court, where his personal residence usually was; for the Kings palace was divided into three Courts: the utter, next the ordinary way, the middle, and the inner. See 2 Kings 20. 4 The Scribes Chamber, and of other principall officers was in likelihood in the middle court, the Kings peculiar lodgings in the innermost; for the word court here, as also verse 10. comprehendeth not the open court yard onely, as we call it, but the buildings also about it.

but they laid up the roll in the chamber of Elishama the Scribe,] Because uncertain whether the King would desire to see it or no.

V. 21. So the King sent Jehudi to fetch the roll.] Heb, And. as verse 14. and, to take the roll,] for, to take and bring it: a complexive form; like that, Psal. 78. 18. thou hast taken, or, received gifts, to men; that is, to give to, or, bestow upon, men: Eph. 4. 8. & Prov. 25. 22. thou shalt take coales upon his head, that is, take and heap them, Rom. 12. 22. So Gen. 27. 9 take me two kids, for, take and bring me: and 1 Sam. 4. 3. let us take the Ark from Shilo; that is, take and bring it: or, as we use to say, fetch it: and so we render it not amisse both here and there: for that word with us also includeth a two-fold notion. See the like forms, Esay 38. 17. 21. This Jehudi seemeth to have been one that was usually employed as a messenger. both by the King and the Princes, See verse 14. what a learned Writer here saith of him, that he was a man much of the Kings own disposition and one that the King therefore had continually about him, I suppose is no more than his meer conjecture.

and he took it out of Elishama the Scribes chambers.] Took and brought it, as before; for the word is the same.

and there was a fire on the hearth burning before him,] Heb. onely; and the hearth burning before him: that is indeed, fire burning upon it, verse 22. but the particle here used hath no such notion of upon here, but is a note onely, as also in divers places elsewhere, of that which we call a nominative case. So Prov. 16. 33. Ezek. 31. 4.

V. 23. And it came to passe, that,] Heb. And it was, as verse 9.

when Jehudi had read three or foure leaves] The word properly signifies doores, whence rendred in the dualI form, two-leaved doores, Esay 45, 1. and as we take the word from a leafe of paper, to design thereby a board, or boards, whereof such doores consist. So the Hebrewes take from such doores, or, boards, whereof they are made, the word to signifie leaves of paper, parchment, or the like whereof rolls or books are made. So called, say some, because in figure and shape they resemble such tables or boards. Others, because they are shut and opened as doores are, Esay 29 11, 12. & 34. 4, chap. 32. 11. Rev. 5. 1, 2. & 6. 14. Some learned Interpreters rendericleaves, as ours doth: that the Scoliast controlleth, because it was a roll, not a book, such as we commonly use: and he instead thereof substituteth columns: in my mind more untilly, since the the term of columnes is used commonly for the two moities, or counter-parts (if I may so call them) of a page. Another learned man rendreth it, three or four titles of the sections, into which it was divided. (See not why we may not retain, either with ours and others, leaves? or with the old Latine, pages: seeing that either word may be used, as well of the parcells of a roll, as of a book. Heb. three leaves and four, for, three or four, as Esay 17. 6. four, five, by an ellypsis, for four or five: the copulativein a disjunctive notion: as, father and mother, for, father or mother, Exod. 21, 15. So two witnesses and three, for two or three witnesses 2 Cor. 13. 1. and a trajection withall; three leaves or four, for, three or four leaves: as, seven sheckels and ten, for, seventeen sheckels Chap. 32. 9.

Heb, he tore it with the Scribes knife, or razor, as it is rendred, Psal. 52. 2. Esay 7. 20. such as the Scribes used to make or mend their pens with, and to race out ought in any roll or writing, when occasion was so to do.

V. 24. Yet they were not afraid, nor rent their garments,] In token of grief, or fear; as the manner with them was. See Esay 36. 22. & 37. 1. See also on verse 27. The Princes feared, the King and his servants feared not. See ver. 16.

neither the King, nor any of his servants.] Heb. the King, and all (for, any, as Chap. 40. 5.) his servants. So Chap. 35. 6. ye and your sons; neither ye nor your sons.

V. 25. Neverthelesse Elnathan, and Delaiah and Gemariah, had made intercession to the King, that he would not burn the roll,] Or, And albeit, or, Notwithstanding that; so is the particle used Neh. 6. 1. Esay 49. 15. And it may be observed, that this Elnathan who had before so far condescended to the Kings pleasure, to be used by him as an instrument for the apprehending of Uriah, Chap. 26. 22. was one of those who now endeavoured to diswade and stay the King from the burning of Jermies book. See ver. 12. 19.

but he would not hear them.] Or, Yet (as Chap. 35. 14.) he would not hearken to them. Heb. and he hearkened not unto them: being desperately bent to run on in a godlesse course to his own ruine: as Chap. 8. 6.

V. 26. But the King commanded Jerahmeel the son of Hammelech, and Seraiah the son of Azriel, an Shelamiah the son of Abdiel to take Baruch the Scribe, and Jeremiah the Prophet] Heb, And (which may well here be retained) charged (as Deut, 3. 28.) Jerahmeel, or, Ierachmeel, the son of Hammelech, or, the Kings Son: but it seemeth rather to have been a proper name, as Chap. 38. 6. for it is not likely that the King, though a wicked man, would use his own sons as purse vants, or messengers.

but the Lord hid them] Heb. and; as Chap. 35. 6. God suffered them not to be found, having before withdrawn themselves, by the advice of the Princes, verse 19. God herein shewing his care to protect and secure his Prophets, according to his promise, Chap. 1. 19. & 15. 21. Though we need not descend to such niceties, as the Jewish Doctors here do, affirming that God either cast a mist about them, or made their eye-fight fail the kings messengers, when they came into those places where they were: as was done with the men of Sodome, Gen. 19. 11. and with those that came to seize on Elisæus, 2 Kings 6. 18. God could many other ways secure them.

V. 27. Then the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah,] Or, Again the word of the Lord come, Heb. was, as Chap. 32. 1.) unto Jeremiah, as Chap. 14. 4.

(after that the King had burnt the roll, and the words that Baruch wrote at the mouth of Jeremiah) saying.] Or, with the words: as Chap. 26. 21. the roll wherein they were written: otherwise Gods Word cannot be burnt, no more than it can be bound, 2 Tim. 2. 9. And the Jewish Doctors here dally, after their wonted manner per, who because it is said, burnt the roll, and the words, hence gather, that there should have been a two-fold renting of their garments, verse 24. one for the burning of the parchment; and another for the burning of the writing in it: they might better have said, one for the cutting or rending of it, and another for the burning of it, but these are meer fancies.

at his mouth.] Heb. from his mouth; as before, Verse 4, 17, 18,

V. 28 Take thee again another roll,] Heb. Return (as Gen. 26. 18.) and take thee (as verse 2.) another roll. See verse 18.

and write in it all the former words that were in the first roll, which Jehojakim the King of Judah hath burnt.] Heb. write on it, as ver. 4. all the former words, or, things as verse 13. that were in the first roll, or, former: as Esay 48, 3

V. 29 And thou shalt say to Jehojakim King of Judah.] Or, And say (as Chap 35. 13.) unto (as verse 12. chap. 26 5.) or, concerning (as chap. 18. 8. 9.) Jehojakim, ver. 30. and thus rather, as the particle doth with words of speech most frequently signifie, as Esay 1. 1. & 2. 1. Chap. 16. 3. & 49. 1, 7. for it is not likely that God would have him to present himselfe to Jehojakim, from whom he had taken a course to conceale him? but would have him to put theseie things into the new roll, verse 30.

Thus saith the Lord, Thou hast burnt this roll.] Or, Because thou hast burnt this roll. See the like defect of this causall, Chap. 10. 14. the rather to be supplyed here, to make it cohere the more fitly with verse 30.

saying, Why hast thou written therein, saying,] Spoken as Jehojakim's words, not unlike to those of Zedekiah, Chap 32. 3 This, fay some, he would have spoken to him, if he could have been found. But God is wont to attribute unto persons speeches correspondent to their inward thoughts and imaginations, which he seeth and regardeth. See Esay 14. 13. & 47. 7 Chapter 2. 25 & 6. 16, 17.

The King of Babylon shall certainly come and destroy this land.] Heb. shall coming come; as Habb 2. 3.

and shall cause to cease from thence both man and beast?] See Chap. 33. 10. that it may keep an exact Sabbath; for thereunto the word alludeth, 2 Chr. 36. 21.

V. 30. therefore thus saith the Lord, of Jehojakim King of Judah, He shall have none to sit upon the Throne of David;] None of his illue shall sit upon it, for any time, worth speaking off: for his son Jehojacin or Jeconiah, reigned but three moneths and ten dayes, 2 Kings 24 8 2 Chron. 36. 9. and Zedekiah his Uncle succeeded him, 2 Kings 24. 17. See chap. 1. 1, 3 & 22. 30. where the like is also denounced against his son Jeconiah Yet we need not strain the term of sitting here with a learned late Writer, to have it signifie remaining, staying, abiding; as Psal. 9 7. the sense is proper and plain enough, as before: and it is like that, Chapter 37. 9. the Chaldeans shall not depart, and yet they did depart, as is said there, verse 5. but not for any space of time, or to any purpose: not unlike to that of our Saviour concerning James his daughter, the damsel is not dead, Mat. 9 24.

and his dead body shall be cast out in the day to the heat, and in the night to the frost.] Or, to the heat by day, and to the frost by night: that being so exposed, it may the sooner putrifie and become the more vile and loathsome; not that his body could be sensible of such ufage, or himself being de ead of ought that should befall his body; but that the sight of a Kings body in such a condition, should be an hideous spectacle, and horrid monument of Gods heavie wrath and indignation against him, unto all that should behold it, Esay 66. 24. See the very same in effect denounced before against him, chap. 22. 19.

V. 31. And I will punish him, and his seed, and his servants for their iniquity,] Heb. I will visit upon him, and his seed, and his servants, their iniquity. So Chap. 3. 34 See Chap 21 7.

and I will bring upon them, and the Inhabitants of Jerusalem, and upon the men of Judah, all the evill that I have pronounced against them:] See Chap. 35. 17.

but they hearkened not.] Or, because they would not hear. Heb. and they heard not; but the copulative hath sometime a causative notion: as Esay 64. 5. thou art wrath, and we have sinned, for, because we have sinned.

V. 32. Then took Jeremiah another roll, and gave it to Baruch the Scribe the son of Neriah, who wrote therein from the mouth of Jeremiah all the words of the book which Jehojakim king of Judah had burnt in the fire; and there were added besides unto them many like words.] Or, So Jeremy took, as verse 14. Heb. And. and, wrote upon it; as 18. and, many words as they. Thus dealt God with the roll that Jehojakim burnt; as before with the yoke that Hananiah broke, Chap. 28, 13, 14. and the King gained no more by burning the book, than wicked Princes and people by murthering of Gods Prophets, 2 Chron. 24. 21, 22, 25. Zach. 1 5, 6. an increase of guilt, Chap. 26. 19 and an addition of wrath, Esay 28. 14, 22 The Jewish Doctors here dote again, who as before by the roll, that Baruch wrote from Jeremies mouth, they would have to be meant the Lamentations of Jeremy; so here they tell us, that there were but three alphabets of it in the first roll, the rest were added in this second.

CHAP. XXXVII.

Verse 1, And King Zedekiah the son of Josiah reigned instead of Coniah the son of Jehojakim,] Or, Now (as Ezr. 7 2. chap. 29. 1 verse 4 because this discourse hath no connexion with, or dependance upon, any foregoing relation) Zedekiah the son of Josiah (so styled, to distinguish him from another Zedekiah, of the same time, his Nephew, (the son of Jehojakim his brother and brother to Jeconiah, 1 Chron. 3. 16.) reigned instead of Coniah; that is, Jehojacin or Jeconiah, in contempt so termed, Chap. 22. 24.

whom Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon made King in the land of Iudah.] Heb. made to reign: so naming him, whereas before he was called Mattaniah, 2 Kings 24. 15. This relation of Zedekiahs entrance into the royall government, together with the difobedient carriage of himselfe, his servants, and subjects, verse 2. is here prefixed to make way for a messige, which he was to receive by Jeremy from God, verse 9.—— 10.

V. 2. But neither he, nor his servants, nor the people of the land did hearken unto the words of the Lord. which he spake by the Prophet Jeremiah.] See 2 Chron 36. 12.—— 16 Heb. by the hand of Jeremiah as Esay 37. 24 Mal. 2. 1. Chap 50. 1.

V. 3. And Zedekiah the King sent Jehucal the son of Shelamiah, and Zephaniah the son of Maaseiah, the Priest, to the Prophet Jeremiah saying, Pray now unto the Lord our God for us.] This is related together with some circumstances of the time when it was done, verse 4, 5. as giving occasion of the messige ensuing from God. The like addresse from the same King by one of those here mentioned, and another, to the Prophet. See chap. 21. 1, 2. See there. But thus are the wicked in their distresses glad to seek unto Gods servants for their prayers, whose wholesome advice yet they refuse to follow, verse 2. Chap. 38 15. So 2 King 13. 6. Acts 8 22, 24.

V 4. Now Ieremiah came in, and went out among the people] Heb. and (as chap. 36 22.) was coming and going in the midst of the people; as chap. 40 5, 10. He went at large; being yet at full liberty.

for they had not put him into prison.] Or, he was not yet put in prison: for the verb is indefinite; as Gen 40. 15. They have put me in prison, for, I was put in prison. Heb they had not given him (as verse. 18.) into the house of restraint; as Esay 42. 5. which yet shortly afterward they did, verse 15. chap 32. 2.

V. 5. Then Pharaoh's Army was come out of Egypt.] Heb. And. which might here well be retained, Zedekiah was made king of Judah by Nebuchadnezzar, and had sworne fealty unto him verse 1. 2 Kings 24 17 2 Chron. 36 13. but being seized in the kingdome, he entred into a feere confederacy with Pharao king of Egypt, and revolted from the king of Babylon, Ezek 17. 15——18. who thereupon made war upon him and besieged him in Jerusalem, 2 Kings 25. 1. Now Pharao, though he came no more in person abroad after the great overthrow given him by Nebuchadnezzar in the reign of Jehojakim chap. 46 2. 2 Kings 24 7. yet he sent some forces to relieve Zedekiah, and to raise the siege, if it might be; but all to no purpose, Ezek. 17 17.

and when the Chaldeans that besieged Ierusalem heard tydings of them, they departed from Ierusalem.] Heb. And the Chaldeans heard —— and they went up or, departed, (as chap. 4, 7.) from against Jerusalem; to go to meet with the Egyptian forces: but Zedekiah it seemeth feared that they might return again; and therefore sendeth to the Prophet, verse 3. and yet how wretchedly and perfidiously they had dealt in their covenants with God, upon the approach of those sayds, see chap. 34. 15 16, 21. The like syntax to that in this place, see chap. 35, 11.

V. 6. Then came the word of the lord unto the Prophet Ieremiah, saying,] Heb. And the word was to him; as chap. 35, 12. And this hath reference to what was before related, concerning the message sent from the King to the Prophet, verse 3 what unto an answer is now returned; as between this and that, verse 4, 5. being all inclosed in a parenthesis.

V, 7 Thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel:] As Chapter 35 13.

Thus shall ye say to the King of Iudah;] Or, Thus say; as Chap 21. 3.

that sent you unto me to enquire of me:] Or, to seek to me; as Esay 55. 6. Ezek. 36. 37 for his request to the Prophet was to pray for them verse 12.

Behold, Pharaoh's Army which is come to help you, shall return to Egypt into their own land: Not daring to bicker with the Chaldean forces, or not able to stand before them, and much lesse able to relieve you, Ezek. 17. 17. thus no course nor counsell can prevail, or avail ought against God, Phal. 33. 10, 11, 16, 17 Prov. 21. 30, 31. Esay 14. 27 & 30. 1——3. But what the Valmudists here fable of the Egyptian forces coming by shipping, and what strange matters God caused the sea to raise up, that did affright them, and made them turn back again, is of the same stamp with other their absurd and ridiculous figments.

V. 8. And the Chaldeans shall return.] Having either frighted them away, or worsted them in fight, and so put them to flight, and fight against this city and take it, and burn it with fire.] Chapter 32. 22, 29.

V. 9. Thus saith the Lord, deceive not your selves] Heb. your souls; as Chap. 17. 21. & 51.6.

saying, The Chaldeans shall surely depart from us] Heb. Going go (as Judg. 4 9.) from against us, as verse 5.

for they shall not depart.] For any long time; or, so as to relinquish and give over their siege, See of the like, on Chapter 36. 30.

V. 10. For though ye had smitten the whole army of the Chaldeans that fight against you, and there remained but wounded men among them,] Heb. if ye had smitteen: the conditional is a diserective or adversative notion; as Chap. 5. 2, & 15. 1. and; there remained wounded; or, thrust through; as Chap. 51. 4. for, none but such, or such onely: a defect of the restrictive; as Job 8.9. Eccles. 4 8. or, they were left all thrust through; the general note supplyed; as 1 Sam. 30. 8.

yet should they rise every man in his tent, and burn this city with fire.] Heb. a man (for, each one; as Chap. 36. 3.) in his tent they shall rise: the diserective wanting; as Chap. 15. 1, 10. and the noun singular with a verb plural in a distributive notion; as Chap. 36, 16. See before verse 8. the weakeſt and feebleſt shall be able to prevail against those whom God will have to be destroyed, Esay 40. 29 Chap. 49 20. & 50. 45.

V. 11. And it came to passe] Or, Now so it was; as Chap. 36. 22. 23. verse 2. For here beginneth a new relation of a further buſinesse having no dependance upon the former; where it is related, first, some harsh usages of Jeremy, and his imprisonment, upon his attempt to repair to Anathoth the place of his former wonted abode. ver. 11——13, and secondly, a private conference that passed between the King and him, during the time of his imprisonment, ver. 16——21.

that when the Army of the Chaldeans was broken up for fear of Pharaoh's Army] Heb. when the Army of the Chaldeans was gone up from against Jerusalem (as verse 5.) from the face, or, before, or, because of, Pharaoh's Army: for howsoever the term here used be sometime not amisse rendred, for fear of this; or that; as Esay 21. 15. & 31. 8. Chap. 35. 11. yet the word signifieth more generally, because of, or, by reason of; as Chap. 4. 4. & 21. 12. & 23. 10. and there is no necessity therefore so to render it here: but it may well be rendred, by reason of, or, because of, Pharaoh's Army; not so much it may be, because they stood in any great fear of them, whom they had but lately shrewdly foiled, Chap. 48. 2, and had forced their King to keep in person at home, 2 Kings 24. 7. but rather, in likelyhood, to go forth to meet them on the way, and so to prevent their nearer approach, that so they might the more quietly, and constantly, carry on the siege afterward, without any disturbance from abroad.

V. 12. Then Jeremiah went forth, out of Jerusalem] Or, That, And Jeremiah went forth out of Jerusalem: taking in here the particle that; from verse 11. where it hath no place. So the copulative is familiarly used; as Esay 2. 2. Chap. 3. 9. & 4. 9. & 6. 19.

to go into the land of Benjamin] To Anathoth his own Town in that contrary, Chap. 1.1. & 11.21. & 12. 6.

to separate himself thence in the midst of the people] The verb here used is diversly expounded, according to its divers and different acceptions: it signifieth sometime to divide, or, share, as Deut. 2. 19. Prov. 17. 2. and so some, following the Chaldee, and the old Latines here take it; he went to divide his possession among his people, or to share with the Priests at Anathoth, to receive among them his portion accrewing to him. Others, to buy, or get some share of bread among his countreymen: And some again, to divide, that is, to sever and withdraw himself from the people; which he did not offer to do, say some, while the Chaldeans lay in siege about them, but stayed to continue his prayers for them: This our Version followeth; and it consisteth well with that wish of his, Chap. 9. 2. But the ground that those give for it is frivolous; there was still as much need of his prayers as ever; and that he himselfe well knew: Besides that, it is not said, from the people, but amidst them. Others, from another use of the word; in a notion of making slick, or, smooth, Esay 41. 7. Chap. 23. 21. render it, to slip away, that is, to get slily and secretly away, in the midst of, or, among the people; as Chapter 39. 14. verse 4. in the throng of those that issued out of the city to repaire to, and look after, their wonted places of abode, hoping now quickly to enjoy them again, and that they might be in safety there: and this seemeth most probable: But of the ground or end of this attempt of the prophet, we have no great certainty. Some suppose with the Jewish Doctors, that he did it out of fear to be clapt up in prison, as shortly after he was, for his forementioned free language to the Kings messengers, verse 9, 10. Others; because he knew that the city would be taken by the Chaldeans ere long. Others againe, because hee saw that he could do no good upon them, and grew weary therefore of his work and paines with them; as Esay 49. 4. Chapter 20. 8, 9. But to fix ought here is unsafe, unleſse we had surer footing.

V. 13. And when he was in the gate of Benjamin] That looked that way, and by which, men passed into those parts. See Chapter 20. 2. & 38. 7.

a Captain of the ward was there,] Heb. a master, or, owner of over sight, or, charge; that is, an over-seer: one that had the charge to keep watch and ward there, and to look to it, that none went out to agree or joyn with the enemy; but such onely as had occasions otherwise, whom it was not unlikely that they were content to let return unto the places of their former habitations, to ease the burden of the city, much shortened of provisions by the length of the siege, having been begirt some good space of time already, 2 Kings 25. 3.

whose name was Irijah the son of Shelamiah, the son of Hananiah,] Heb. Jirjah: and this Hananiah his Grand-father the Rabbines tell us was that false Prophet, whose death Jeremy foretold, Chap. 28. 16, 17. and that upon his death-bed charging Jeremy as the procurer of his end, he gave his sonne Shelemiah withall in charge to be avenged upon him for the same, if it lighted in his lot, and that Shelemiah accordingly gave the like charge to his son after him, who thereupon out of a spite to Jeramy, for his Grand fathers quarrell, dealt with him as is here related. But these are groundlesse reports of no great probability; nor doth the small distance of time between the decease of that Ananias, and this occurrent, afford any great likelyhood of it. See Chap. 28 1.

and he took Jeremiah the Prophet,] Or, apprehended; as Chap. 26. 8. Or, laid hold on him; as 1 Kings 13. 4.

saying, Thou falleſt away to the Chaldeans] Heb. thou art falling to the Chaldeans: to fall to them; as afterward, to go out to them, Chap. 38. 2. and both together, Chap. 21. 9.

V. 14. Then said Jeremiah, it is false.] Heb. And, or, But (as Chap. 12. 2.) Jeremy said, Falshood, or, A lie: the abstract for the concretes; as Chap. 27. 14.

I fall not away to the Chaldeans] Heb. I am not falling to the Chaldeans; as before.

but he hearkned not to him:] Heb. And; as before: He would not give credit to him, regarded not his words: being one it seems ill affected towards the Prophet.

So Irijah took Jeremiah, and brought him to the Princes.] Heb. And; as Chap. 36. 14.

V. 15. Wherefore the Princes were wroth with Jeremiah,] Upon the Captains misinformation, ver. 14. Heb. And; which may well be here retained; albeit the copulative be also sometime so used: as Neh. 2. 2. Esay 8. 2.

and smote him] Caused him to be smitten: as Chap. 39. 6. & 52. 20. Acts 5. 40. & 16. 22. 27. with 23. 2.

and put him in prison,] Heb. gave him into the house, or, place, (as verse 4.) of the bond; as Judg. 16. 21. Eccles. 4. 14. they were grown now more rough and rigorous against him, than in Jehojakims time they had been. See Chapter 26. 16. and 36. 19.

for they had made that the prison] Heb. made that (or, prepared and fitted it; as Gen. 28. 7.) for an house, or, a place, (for the word is very general. See on Gen. 28. 22.) of restraint; as verse 4. a very inconvenient place it seemeth to have been for that purpose, verse 20. This (besides that of Pashur, which was but for a night, Chap. 20. 2, 3.) seemeth to have been the first commitment and over sharp usage of Jeremy: which some deem might befall him through an hand of God, for attempting to withdraw himself, and relinquish that place, wherein by Gods appointment his office was principally to be performed. See Chap. 26. 20, 21. But such censures, unleſse better ground were for them, are not safe.

V. 16 When Jeremiah was entred into the dungeon, and into the cabines;] Heb. when Jeremy was come into the house, or, room, or, place, of the pit, or, the hole: as Exod. 12. 29. and into the cabines, or, vells, or, wards, or, lodges. The Jewish Criticks some of them tell us, that they were cells or lodges situate before the prison, for the gaids, or wards, that kept the prison to abide in: but it may seem rather to signifie such sorry cells or cabines, as the prisoners had to lie in, for the word is with the Talmudists said to be used commonly for an inne, or lodging, wherein travellers and passengers are wont to rest and repose themselves: for that seemeth not agreeable to the present relation which some other of them have, that by it should be here meant a certain room about the Temple built with hewen stone, situate without the place of Judicature: whereas it seemeth rather to have been about some part of the Kings house, about the uttermost court in likelyhood. See Chapter 36. 20. verse 17.

and Jeremiah had remained there many dayes,] Heb. sate, or dwelt: as Chap. 35. 11. & 40. 6. had remained some good space of time there: in likelyhood untill the Chaldeans came back again, having repelled, if not dispelled and disperſed the Egyptian forces, that were coming to raiſe their siege. See on verse 19.

V. 17. Then

V. 17. Then Zedekiah the king sent and took him out,] Caused him to be brought unto him. So Chap. 18. 14.

and the king asked him secretly in his house,] In that part of the Court where his own residence was. See Chap. 36. 20. secretly: for fear of the Princes, whom he was too much over-awed with, and over-much enslaved unto, Chap. 38. 5, 24, 25.

and said, Is there any word from the Lord?] Thus obstinate and rebellious persons would fain have some word of comfort from him, whom yet they refuse to be ruled by, and to obey, verse 2. Heb. a word, for, any word; as, a man, for, any man, Chap. 23. 24. or, any thing, ought; as Chap 26. 2.

and Jeremiah said, There is: for, said he,] Heb. and he said: as Psal. 60. 11.

thou shalt be delivered into the hand of the King of Babylon,] Heb. given: and hand, for power. So Chap. 24. 8. and 32. 4. and 34. 3.

V. 18. Moreover, Jeremiah said unto King Zedekiah,] Heb. And; as Chap. 33. 1.

what have I offended against thee, or against thy servants, or against this people, that ye have put me in prison?] Heb. to thee, and to thy servants, and to thy people; as Psal. 51. 4. and, for, or; as Chap. 39. 9 and so verf. 19. and, given me; as verf. 4. and, house of restraint; as verf. 15.

V. 19. Where are now your Prophets?] As Chap. 2. 27. Where are your gods? See the like, Judge 9. 35. Heb. And where, for, Where now; as Judge 6. 13.

which prophesied unto you, saying, The King of Babylon shall not come against you, nor against this land.] See Chap. 28 4. and it may well; hence be deemed, that by this time the Chaldeans, having defeated the Egyptians, were returned unto the siege of the citie again. See Chap. 38. 2. Else it might have been excepted, Why you see yet, that they are gone again, and have not prevailed.

V. 20. Therefore hear now, I pray thee. O my Lord, the King,] Heb. And now: which may well be retained: Nor is it unworthy our observation, both how free and plain the Prophet is in delivering of Gods errand, verf. 17. and yet withall how submisse and humble in his addresses otherwise concerning himself to his Soveraign, notwithstanding the hard usages that he had through his default unjustly sustained, and did still sustain for the faithfull discharge of his duty: therein directly oppoſite to those, of whom, Jude, verf. 8. 16.

Let my supplication, I pray thee, be accepted before thee] Heb. let my supplication fall before thee; as Chap. 36. 7. and 42. 2. Give me leave humbly to present my supplication in thy presence: as Psal. 119 170.

that thou cause me not to return to the house of Jonathan the Scribe] Heb. and cause me not to return. Of this place, see above verse 15.

lest I dye there.] The place being so vile and noisome: wherein he could not but have endured much annoyance already, having been no small space of time there. See verf. 16.

V. 21. Then Zedekiah the King commanded] Or, So he commanded: according to the Prophets request, verf. 20. Heb. And; as verse 14.

that they should commit Jeremiah into the Court of the prison] Removing him from that hole, and those cels, in which before he was coupped up, verse 16. unto a place, where he might have fresher aire and more liberty, and his friends freer accesse to him, Chap. 38. 1. Of this place, see on Chap. 32. 2. Heb. and they committed him: yet our English Version may well stand. See the like, Josh. 24. 9. Mal. 1. 9.

and that they should give him dayly a piece of bread] Heb. and to give him dayly a piece of bread: as the Chaldee rendreth it, both, here and elſe-where: or, a morsel of bread; as our English rendreth it, 1 Sam. 2. 36. and it may not amisse be rendred, Prov. 6. 26. and 28. 21. But it may rather, I suppose, be here rendred a loaf; and so the Greek after this manner for want of that variety, which our English affordeth, a bread, both here, and 1 Chro. 16. 3. as also in divers places of the New Testament, as Matth. 14. 17. Luke 11. 5. Joh. 6. 9. 1 Cor. 10. 17. (in which place also in our English one loaf, would do better) the old Latine rendreth, a wreath, or, roll; and that the word doth signifie a loaf, and that as the notation of it seems to imply, a round one, and that of some bignesse (for it hath near affinity with a term that is used for a talent, or great lump of lead, or other metal, Zach. 5. 7.) appeareth by Exod. 29. 23. where Moses is willed at the consecration of Aaron to take out of the basket one cicear (the word here used) that is, saith the Jewish Critick, one great round loaf; the quantity whereof he thence gathereth, because it is distinguished from the oily cake, and the wafer, or the thinner, or broader sort of cakes, such as we call crackнels: as also by that place, 1 Chron. 16. 3. for howsoever that which is called ciccar, a loaf there, is termed a cake of bread, 2 Sam. 6. 19. yet being the Kings dole, and having a fair piece of flesh, and a flagon of wine joyned with it, it could not but be a loaf of some bignesse: and such a loaf, though not so great, but according as the scarcity of the time and place then afforded; yet a loaf, not a piece of one, was that in likelyhood, that the King willed to be assigned for the Prophets dayly allowance, so long as any remained of the publick store in the citie. Howbeit, if a piece of a loaf, not a whole one should be meant, it might have reference to such quarters of loaves as were in common use among the Romanes, which being made of some bignesse, but after the fashion of our buns, were at table usually divided into four quarters, whereof each took one: whence the by-word with them, of living on another mans quadra, not trenchers, as by many it is mistaken; but bread, or, quarters. But I adhere rather to the former.

out of the bakers street] That were set on work to bake out of the publick stores for the relief of those that wanted.

untill all the bread in the citie were spent.] Thus God made the King himself, though no friend to him, an instrument to provide for him, that he might not perish for want of sustenance. See 1 King 17. 6. 9, 14. Job 5. 20. Psal. 33. 19. and 34. 10.

Thus Jeremiah remained in the Court of the prison.] Untill he was by the importunity of the Princes removed thence for a while into a worse place, where yet he stayed not long, but returned soon thither again, Chap. 38. 6, 13. Heb. And (as Chap. 7. 34. & 25. 14.) Jeremy sate (as verf. 16.) in the court of the prison; as Chap. 32. 2. and 33. 1. See Chap. 38. 28.

CHAP. XXXVIII.

Verf. 1. THen Shephatiah the son of Mattan, and Gedaliah the son of Pashur, and Jucal the son of Shelemiah, and Pashur the son of Malchiah heard the words that Jeremiah had spoken unto all the people, saying;] Poor Jeremy is no sooner rid out of one strait and difficulty, but he is shortly after cast again into another, as bad, or worse than the former: Out of Jonathans house, or hole rather, he is, at the Kings command, removed to the prison court, Chap. 37. 21. where he is at more liberty, and people have now freer accesse to him than before; and there repair to him not a few; some of kindnesse and good-will to him to visit him; Others, and those many more in likelyhood, either out of an itching affection to hear some novelties and strange matters, or out of a longing desire to understand what he thought, or faid concerning the issue of their present troubles and distresses, as in such cases, both good and bad, are ready to enquire after the thoughts and speeches of those that are but deemed to have any spice of a prophetical spirit. But this freedome and frequency of accesse was a means of bringing this our Prophet into new troubles, and grievous annoyances, even to the hazzarding of his life. For he cannot forbear speaking, he must of necessity be doing his duty, 1 Cor. 9. 17. Chap. 20. 9. acquainting those that came to him with Gods minde, his messages, to wit, that if they staid in the citie, they should be sure to miscarry; if they quitted the citie, and yielded themselves to the Chaldeans, they might thereby secure themselves, verse 2, 3. Hence, some of the Princes ill-affected, clamour to the King against him, and procure to have him, either executed, or clapt up closer again, verse 1, 4. and upon the Kings delivering of him up to their wills, verse 5. they put him into a worse pit, or hole, than that of Jonathans was, where he remaineth sticking in the mire, verse 6. untill a religious Courtier, but a stranger, by importunity wresteth from the King his delivery from thence, and restitution to the place of his former restraint, verse 7——13. After which here ensueth a new privy conference between the King and the Prophet, verse 14——23. and the means contrived to conceal what had passed between them in private from the Princes, verse 24——28. And this is the summe of the whole Chapter.

Then] Or, Now when; as Chap 37. 1.

Shephatiah] Divers others of this name are mentioned in Scripture; but of none, no mention is found, save in this place.

Gemariah the son of Pashur] Of that Pashur, faith one, mentioned chap. 20. 1. but of that no great likelyhood; for that Pashur was a Priest: this Gemariah seemeth to have been a Prince.

Jucal the son of Shelemiah] Of whom, chap. 37. 26. and this the more likely.

Pashur the son of Malchiah] The same before-mentioned, chap. 21. 1.

heard the words that Jeremiah had spoken,] Heard of them in likelyhood by such as came to inform against him: as those, chap. 20, 10.

unto all the people] That either were in prison with him, or repaired into the prison to him.

V. 2. Thus saith the Lord, He that remaineth in this citie shall dye by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence:] Heb. He that sitteth, or, stayeth; as chap. 28. 21. See the like denunciation, chap. 21. 9.

but he that goeth forth to the Chaldeans] And falleth to them; as chap. 21. 9. that yieldeth himself to them. Heb. and he, &c. as chap. 12. 2.

shall have his life for a prey] He shall live; he shall by so doing save his life, chap. 21. 9, See the form also, chap. 39. 18. and 45. 5.

V. 3. Thus saith the Lord; This city shall surely be given into the hand of the king of Babylons Army, which shall take it.] Heb. being given be given: and, hand, for, power; as chap.34.2,20.21. and, and he shall take it: to wit, the King, Chap.32.3,28.

V. 4. Therefore the Princes said unto the king.] Or, Those Princes then said unto the king: for this hath reference to the persons named, verf. 1. Heb. And they heard —— and they said; for, When they heard —— then they said. See the like, chap.36.11,12.

We beseech thee, let this man be put to death.] The poor Prophet is now in a pitifull plight, in a forlorn condition, when the Princes that saved him before from the Priests, are turned as eager against him as the Priests then were: nothing can satisfie them but his bloud; they cry out now against him to the king, as the Priests did then to them. See Chap.26.8,11,16.

for thus he weakneth the hands of the men of war that remain in this city. and the hands of all the people in speaking such words unto them.] Or, because, or, for that, he weakneth. So is the particle oft ufed; as Gen.38.26. Num.10.3. and 14.43. Heb. to speak (for, in speaking: as, not to drink, for, in not drinking, Num.3.8,9.) according to these words, Gen.39.17,19. Thus out of carnal policy is piety impugned. So 1 King.12.27. Joh.11.48.

For this man seeketh not the welfare of this people, but their hurt.] Heb. is not seeking the peace; as chap. 28. 9. and 29. 7. or, to the peace: thofe things that concern, and conduce to the peace and welfare of the State: as Luke 19.42. and yet none fought the true welfare of it more than he: the common plea against Gods miniſters, thus ſeek to reclaim people and States, and to ſave them from ruine by reducing them to God, 1 King.18.17,18. & 21. 20. Act.16.26. and 17 6.

but the hurt.] Heb. the evil, or, to the evil: ſuch things as tend thereunto, as chap.29.11.

V. 5. Then Zedekiah the king ſaid.] Heb. And. which need not here be altered.

Behold, he is in your hand.] In your power, to do with him, as you pleaſe; as chap.26.14 Job 2.6.

for the king is not he that can do any thing againſt you.] As if he had ſaid, the King can deny you nothing: too large a condeſcenſion, ill beſeeming a Ruler, without all regard of right, or wrong, and tending to an unjuſt, cruel, and impious uſage of Gods Prophet. Howbeit, the Text ſeemeth not ſo clear here for this ſenſe. It is true, that the particle here uſed doth ſometime ſignifie againſt. So is it deemed to do, Eſai 10.15. and Ezek. 21. 20. Yet thoſe places are queſtionable: and it is very rare, if any where it ſo do: for howſoever in thoſe forms where it is ſubjoyned to terms of fighting and ſtriving; as Pſalm 35.1. Eſai 49. 25. Chap.33.5. it be ſometime rendred againſt: as Chap. 37. 10. and in effect, it importeth as much; yet in propriety of ſpeech it ſoundeth no more than with, and is ſo moſt commonly expreſſed. Nor hath it that notion of oppoſition from it ſelf, but from the word it is annexed unto. Some therefore would rather have the words thus rendred; For without the king, the thing (Heb. word, as Chap. 32. 27.) may be done, by you: as Eſai 7. 17. or, with you; among your ſelves. You have power enough to diſpatch this buſineſſe without me; which ſome alſo apply unto the power that they had, being ſome of the grand Conſitory to cry and doom a falſe Prophet, ſuch an one, as they pretend Jeremy to be. But there appeareth here no hint of any judiciary proceeding; but a motion made, and preſſed for diſpatching the Prophet without more ado, and ridding their hands of him by any means whatſoever: and that not upon ſuggeſtion of any falſe Propheſie, but upon grounds of policy, becauſe by his propheſies he diſheartned the ſouldiery, and diſcouraged the people: and according to this reading therefore the king ſhould rather imply, that having him in their hands already, they had power enough to diſpoſe of him as they pleaſed, without asking his aſſent. And this way I ſhould incline to, did I any where finde the negative particle here found, to be uſed for without: with another preſſixed I finde it ſo uſed, Chap. 33. 12. and elſe-where, but never alone: and I leave it therefore to the determination of the Learned: I ſhall onely ſubjoyn, how I conceive, it may, very near to the former notion, be rendred, The king is not he that can prevail in ought againſt you; as Pſalm 13. 4. I have prevailed him, for, I have prevailed againſt him; for the verb is the ſame there with that here uſed; as alſo, Eſth. 6. 13. Pſalm 129.2. Chap.20.10. verſ. 22. a defect of the relative there is, as Chap. 31,24. a word, for, ought, as verſ. 14.

V. 6. Then took they Jeremiah] Or, So they took; as Chap.32.14. Heb. And Having gotten the king thus far to condeſcend unto them, and to leave him wholly to their diſpoſal, verſ. 5.

and caſt him into the dungeon of Malchiah the ſon of Hammelek, that was in the court of the priſon:] Or, as ſome read the words, ſuppoſing a tranſection in them, they took Jeremy who was in the court of the priſon (as yet remaining there, Chap. 37. 21.) and caſt him into the pit, or, hole (as Gen. 37. 22. Chap 41.7.) of Malchiah, the ſon of Hammelec, or, the kings ſon. See Chap. 36. 26. a filthy dungeon, far worſe than that of Jonathans, Chap 37. 15,16. ſituate in ſome part, or place of Malchia's houſe where being deſtitute of all means of relief, he might by the noiſomneſſe of the place ſoon periſh, and no body know what was become of him. Thus Satans inſtruments, therein like their maſter, are wont to be the fiercer, the ſhorter their time is to tyrannize. Rev. 12, 12.

and they let down Jeremiah with cords:] There being it ſeems no ſtairs, or ordinary paſſage down into it, verſ. 12. 13. and no means conſequently of any relief likely there to come at him.

and in the dungeon there was no water, but mire:] Which made it the more noiſom, Zach. 9. 11.

So Jeremiah ſunk in the mire,] Heb. And; as Chap. 32. 15. ſunk, or, ſtuck faſt as 1 Sam. 17. 49. Pſalm 69. 2. So verſe 22. And of this pit ſome expound that in Lamentations, 3. 55. but ſee there.

V. 7. Now when Ebedmelech the Ethiopian, one of the Eunuchs, which was in the kings houſe, heard that, they had put Jeremiah into the dungeon,] The buſineſſe, it ſeems, was not ſo cloſely kept, or covertly carried, but that it came to this godly courtiers ear; whom the Lord, according to his promiſe more than once to the Prophet, Chap. 1. 19. and 15.20,21. made an inſtrument of his delivery and ſafety.

Now when] Heb. And. And he heard, —— and he went out, verſ. 8. for, Now when he heard, —— he went out; as verſ. 1.4.

Ebedmelech] Or, a ſervant of the King, a courtier, as the Chaldee, who rendreth it, a ſervant of the King Zedekiah: and the Jewiſh Doctors, deſcanting thereupon, tell us, that by the Cuſhite is meant Zedekiah, that had changed his hew with the times, from good to bad, but would not change back. Again: as Chap. 13, 23. and that this ſervant of the King, was Baruc the ſon of Neriah: but theſe are their fond fancies, which one ſounder than his fellow Rabbines juſtly controleth, obſerving that then the article would have been prefixed before the word King, as in the clauſe following it is, but is not here; and concludeth therefore Ebedmelech to be his proper name, Chap. 39. 16. as the like is Abimelech, Judge 8. 31. and Achimelech, 1 Sam. 21. 1.

the Ethiopian] Heb. Cuſhite as Num. 12. 1. See Chap. 13. 23. Better affected did this ſtranger ſhew himſelf towards Gods Prophet, than thoſe that profeſſed themſelves to be, and by birth were, of the body of Gods people; and well therefore deſerving to be preferred before them, Rom 2.26,27.

one of the Eunuchs] Heb. a man an Eunuch; as Act. 8 27. whence the word may ſeem to be as there, ſo here, a name, not of office as the Chaldee taketh it, but of bodily ſtate and condition; ſee Eſai 56. 3, 4.

which was in the Kings houſe] Or, who was (Heb. and he was; as Chap. 16. 23.) of the Kings houſe. So is the particle uſed and rendred, 2 Sam. 12. 1. in ellis ungodly kings family as well as in Herods, Luk. 8. 3. and in Nero's, Phil. 4. 22. there were ſome well-affected. See 1 King. 14. 13. and 18 3, 12, 13.

(the King then ſitting in the gate of Benjamin)] To receive petitions, hear cauſes, and decide controverſies, and paſſe cenſures; the gates of the citie being the ordinary places of audience and judicature, Deut. 17. 2, 8. 2 Sam. 19. 8. Prov. 31. 23. Lam 5. 13. for it is but a frivolous conceit of thoſe, who ſuppoſe that the king ſate in the gate, conſidering how to make an eſcape out of the citie, he had other privater weayes to have done it than that, 2 King. 25. 4. Of this gate, ſee Chap. 37. 13. Heb. and the king was ſitting in the gate.

V. 8. Ebedmelech went out of the kings houſe, and ſpake to the king, ſaying:] He ſtaid not till the king came in again, (the Prophet in the mean ſpace might have periſhed) nor did he wait his time, to break the matter to the king in private; but though he knew before-hand, how diſtaſtfull his motion would be to the Princes, who in likelyhood were divers of them there attending upon him, he had the courage in open court to complain to the king ſitting on the Bench to their faces, of their barbarous and inhumane uſage of Gods Prieſt and Prophet; and to preſſe the king in his behalf, for his ſpeedy delivery out of the preſent diſtreſſe.

V. 9. My Lord, the king, theſe men have done evil in all that they have done to Jeremiah the Prophet, whom they have caſt into the dungeon.] Theſe men that ſtand here attending upon you: he dareth tell them their own to their faces; and in open court publiſh how they had dealt with Gods Prophet in ſecret. Such courage and confidence, and ſuch freedom of ſpeech ſhould men have in Gods cauſe, Pſalm 119.46. Thus the Prophet found more favour and aid at the hand of a ſtranger, than at the hands of any one of his own country-men: as God more obedience, Chap. 3. 14, 15. and more repentance, Jon. 3. 10. and Chriſt more faith, Matth. 8. 10. than in Gods own proſeſſed people; to their greater condemnation, Matth. 21.43,42.

and he is like to dye for hunger in the place where he is:] And there he is like to periſh for want of relief; becauſe no body ſeeth him to pity him, nor can look after him to relieve him (as formerly they might and did) where now he is. So the Rabbins; or, as the words would rather be read, who (Heb. and he, as verſe 7.) would have dyed (Heb. will dye; but uſed here in a potential notion, as Hoſea 7. 1.) for hunger in the place where he was. Heb. under him, or, in his place: as Job 7. 10. Pſalm 109. 16. to wit, in the priſon, Chap. 37. 21. and it argued therefore in them a moſt ſpitefull and inhumane diſpoſition toward the Prophet, by ſo vile and baſe a courſe to ſeek to haſten his end, when as he could not have long ſubſiſted, though they had let him alone, had the ſiege been for any conſiderable time lengthened; the reaſon is ſubjoyned in the words following.

for there is no more bread in the citie.] The citie ſtores are in a manner cleen ſpent; from whence by the Kings appointment, ſo long as they held out, he was to receive ſome dayly, though but ſlender, allowance, Chap. 37. 21.

V. 10. Then the King commanded Ebedmelech the Ethiopian, ſaying; Take from hence thirty men with thee, and take up Jeremiah the Prophet out of the dungeon before he dye.] The hazzard the Prophet was in, required haſte. And the king, better adviſed, preſſeth it to be done ſpeedily, without further delay; and ordereth Ebedmelech therefore to take a competent number of perſons then and there preſent to be aſſiſtant unto him in diſpatching the buſineſſe; which he as readily goeth about, verſe 11. But why thirty men to draw up one? when as three, or four at moſt would ſuffice? To this ſome anſwer; becauſe the pit was very deep: and ſo in likelyhood it was; the upper part of the citie ſtanding on a craggy hill, and yet more found in the bottom of it; yet fewer might have ſerved for ſuch a buſineſſe; nor could many in likelyhood be employed about it: the Jewiſh Doctors ſay, becauſe their bodies were generally ſo weakned, and their ſtrength ſo impaired with famine, that a few men were not able to do it; but this ſeemeth as improbable as the former: it is rather therefore not amiſſe conceived by others, that thoſe men were taken along with him to be aſſiſtant unto him, not in the drawing up of the Prophet onely, but in withſtanding and keeping off of any that ſhould offer to oppoſe, or diſturb them in the execution of the Kings command.

Then] Heb. And; as Chap. 37.6.

take from hence] take and lead from hence. So ver. 11.

with thee] Heb. in thy hand; as Chap. 41.9. So ver. 11.

V. 11. So Ebedmelech took the men with him,] Heb. And; as verſ. 6. and, in his hand; took and led them along with him; as verſ. 10.

and went into the houſe of the King under the treaſury,] Or, ſtore-houſe, (as the word in a generality ſignifieth, 1 Chro. 27. 22. Neh. 12. 44. and 13. 12.) under which, into ſome eel, cellar, or vault, were caſt cloathes and ſuch trumpery wont to be caſt. Heb. to under, for, to a place under: as, to a place that I know not, 1 King. 18, 12.

and took thence] took, and brought. or, carried from thence; a complexive form of ſpeech; as Chap. 36. 14.

old caſt-clouts, and old rotten rags.] Heb. old, or, worn, clouts, of caſt, or, torn things; (for the one word cometh of a term that ſignifieth to be old, and worn out with long wearing, Deut. 9. 5. the other of a root that ſignifieth to drag, and tear, chap. 15. 3.) and old, or, worn clouts (for the ſubject wanteth, as Eſai 28. 4. Ezek. 13. 14.) of ſalts; that is, rotted, as with ſalt; or waſted with wearing, as ſalt doth, when it melteth. See Eſai 51. 6, and 64. 6.

and let them down by cords into the dungeon to Jeremiah.] To make uſe of in the drawing of him up: being ſofter and fitter for that purpoſe than cloathes of better worth.

by cords] Partly, becauſe the pit in likelyhood was deeper, than that they could by hand be reached to him; and partly, leſt they ſhould in caſting down be ſcattered, or falling into the mire be made unſerviceable unto him.

V. 12. And Ebedmelech the Ethiopian ſaid unto Jeremiah; Put now theſe caſt-clouts and rotten rags under thine arm-holes under the cords.] That is, between thine arm-holes and the cords, to keep the cords from fretting and galling the skin and fleſh of thoſe parts, which the weight of his body was to reſt and hang upon in the pulling of him up. Heb. under the hollow places of thine hands; that which ſome render, put them under thine arm-holes with thine hands: and ſuch a defect of the inſtrumental particle is not unfrequently found; as Pſalm 17. 13, 14. but I ſuppoſe we need not have recourſe to that defect here: the hollow places of the hands, are no other than the arm-holes: ſo likewiſe termed, Ezek. 13. 18. the hands put for the arms; as Eſai 25.11. See there; as alſo chap. 48. 37.

V. 13. So they drew up Jeremiah with cords, and took him out of the dungeon; and Jeremiah remained in the court of the priſon.] Where before he abode, and whither now he was remitted. See Chap. 37. 21.

V. 14. Then Zedekiah the King ſent, and took Jeremiah the Prophet unto him into the third entry that is in the houſe of the Lord.] Hence followeth the narrative of another perſonal conference had in private between the King and the Prophet, during the time of his reſtraint. A former, ſee Chap. 37. 17. that but ſhort, this more large.

Then] Or, Afterward] Heb. And, as Exod. 32. 6.

into the third entry] Of this third entry, or, as ſome would have it rendred, principal entry: (as coming from a term that ſignifieth a Prince, Exod. 15. 4. 2 King. 7. 2.) being no where elſe read; neither our Writers, nor the Jewiſh themſelves, have any great certainty: the moſt ſuppoſe it to be that on the South-ſide of the Temple, by which the King entred, when he came thither from his Palace; called therefore the Kings entry, 2 King. 16. 18. yet it ſeemeth by Ezek 46. 1 2,8. that the king uſed to enter, not by the South, but by the Eaſt-gate.

that is in the houſe of the Lord] Or, that went to it. See 1 King. 10. 5, 12. 1 Chro. 26. 16, 18. 2 Chr. 9. 11. Eſai 63. 13. and it may as well be meant of an entry in the kings houſe, as of an entry in the Temple: and to the former rather I incline, ſuppoſing this priſon, wherein the Prophet now abode, to have been in ſome part of the Kings houſe. See Chap. 37. 15, 22. and conceive that the words may well be rendred, into the third entry (to wit, of the kings houſe that conſiſted of three ſeveral courts, or parts, 2 King. 20. 4 chap. 36. 12, 20.) which is by the houſe of the Lord; near unto it, or of all the entries, or paſſages about the kings houſe next to it. See the very like, Chap. 7. 20.

and the King ſaid to Jeremiah, I will ask thee a thing; hide nothing from me.] Heb. I am asking thee a word; conceal not a word from me: a word, for, a thing, or, ought; as Chap. 26. 2. and 32. 27. So ver. 14. Thus wicked men will ſeem deſirous to know, what they are not willing to hear.

V. 15. Then Jeremiah ſaid unto Zedekiah] Heb. And; as before, verſe 14.

If I declare it unto thee, wilt thou not ſurely put me to death?] Heb. ſlaying ſlay; as Chap. 26. 19. as if he had ſaid; wilt thou not put me to death, if I deal plainly and freely with thee; if I tell thee the truth?

and if I give thee counſel wilt thou not hearken unto me?] This latter branch would rather be read enunciatively; on this wiſe, and though (as Pſal. 23. 4.) I adviſe thee, thou wilt not hearken to me: as if he ſhould ſay, it is to ſmall purpoſe for me to ſpeak ought to thee; for if I tell thee the truth of things, thou wilt but ſlay me for it: (for negative interrogatives do more vigorouſly affirm) and though I give thee never ſo good counſel, (as formerly I have done) yet thou wilt not follow mine advice.

V. 16. So the King Zedekiah ſware ſecretly unto Jeremiah, ſaying,] Heb. And; as verſ. 13. in ſecret; as Chap. 37. 17. being over-awed by his Princes, verſe 25.

I will not put thee to death,] Heb. If I ſlay thee; and ſo in the next branch, If I give thee, &c. of which manner of ſpeech, uſual in oathes, ſee on Eſai 5. 9. and 22. 14 and 65. 8.

neither will I give thee into the hand of thoſe that ſeek thy life.] Heb. ſoul. and, hand, for, power; as chap. 34. 20.

V. 17. Then ſaid Jeremiah unto Zedekiah,] Heb. And, as before, verſe 15.

Thus ſaith the Lord, the God of hoſts, the God of Iſrael;] As Chap. 35 17.

If thou wilt aſſuredly go forth unto the King of Babylons Princes,] Heb. going forth, go forth; as 2 King. 4. 11. and yield thy ſelf to them, verſ. 2. as Jehojacin did, 2 King. 24. 12. unto the Princes: for the king himſelf was not in perſon then before Jeruſalem, nor at the ſurpriſal of the citie, See Chap. 39. 3, 5.

then thy ſoul ſhall live.] Heb. and thy ſoul ſhall live; (as Gen. 19. 20. and my ſoul ſhall live) thou ſhalt live; thou ſhalt be in ſafety. So Pſal 119. 175. Let my ſoul live, for, Let me live.

and this citie ſhall not be burnt with fire,] As otherwiſe it will; chap. 37. 8. verſ. 18.

and thou ſhalt live, and thine houſe.] Thy family, wives, children, and ſervants. See verſ. 23.

V. 18. But if thou wilt not go forth to the king of Babylons Princes, then ſhall this citie be given into the hand of the Chaldeans, and they ſhall burn it with fire, and thou ſhalt not eſcape out of their hand.] Heb. And, and, And, for, But, and, Then; as verſe 2, 5. See Chap. 32. 3, 4.

V. 19. And Zedekiah the king ſaid unto Jeremiah, I am afraid of the Jews that are fallen to the Chaldeans, leſt they deliver me into their hand, and they mock me.] He feared more the mocking of men, than the diſobeying of God. Thus a mans fear caſteth him into a ſnare, Prov. 29. 25. See the like, 1 Sam. 31. 4. 1 Chro. 10. 4. Judge 9. 54.

V. 20. But Jeremiah ſaid, They ſhall not deliver thee:] Heb. And; as verſ. 18. and, give thee, as verſ. 19. God knoweth the affections of all men, and foreſeeth them as he pleaſeth. See 1 Sam. 23. 14. Pſal. 105. 25. and 106 46.

obey, I beſeech thee, the voyce of the Lord, which I ſpeak unto thee;] Heb. hear (as Chap. 7. 23.) not my word, but God's; who is able to ſecure thee againſt all theſe groundleſſe and falſe fears, ſo it ſhall be well unto thee, or, it ſhall go well with thee, as Deut. 28. 63. Job 22. 21.

and thy ſoul ſhall live.] As verſ. 17.

V. 21. But if thou refuſe to go forth, this is the word that the Lord hath ſhewed me;] Heb. And. as verſe 18. and, the word, for, the thing, or, that, ſimply; as verſe 14. and, made me ſee; doth as certainly aſſure me of it, as if I ſaw it. See Eſai 21. 1.

V. 22. And behold,] Or, That behold; as Chap. 35. 11. or, Then behold; as verſ. 17. 18. otherwiſe the words following will have no good coherence with the former.

all the women that are left in the King of Judahs houſe,] Either thoſe that were left in the kings palace when Jeconiah and his mother, and others with them were carried away, 2 King. 24. 12. or that Zedekiah ſhould leave them,when he ſhould ſeek to ſave himſelf by flight, chap 39.4. 2 King. 25.4. and then the noun is put for the pronoun: as Iſai 2.1. But the former ſeemeth more probable, that ſuch court-Ladies that were left behinde,when Jeconiah went away, a crew of wanton creatures, would be inſulting over Zedekiah, and asking him why he could not do as Jeconiah did before.

ſhall be brought forth to the King of Babylons Princes,] To be diſpoſed of at their pleaſure.

and thoſe women ſhall ſay,] Heb. and they will be ſaying; theſe twitting terms, or the like, will be rife in their mouths.

Thy friends have ſet thee on, and have prevailed againſt thee,] Heb. The men of thy peace, or, thy men of peace; as Pſalm 41. 9. Chap. 20. 10. Obad. 7. Either thy falſe Prophets and Prieſts, and Princes; or the Egyptians thy confederates have encited, and encouraged to revolt from, and rebel againſt the king of Babylon. and to ſtand out ſtifly and unadvizedly againſt his forces, and have contrary to that wholſome advice that hath been ſ.om time to time given thee, and thine own inclination at ſome times to hearken thereunto, perſwaded thee, and prevailed with thee to hold on in that deſperate courſe to thine own ruine, and now leave thee in the lurch, Chap. 2. 36, 37. and 30.14. and 37. 19.

thy feet are ſunk in the mire;] Or, ſtick faſt, or, are ſet faſt: as the word is uſed, Job 38. 6. Prov. 8. 25. So verſ. 6. a proverbial ſpeech uſed of ſuch, as are brought into grievous difficulties, out of which they are unable to unwind themſelves, Pſalm 69. 2. And ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors ſuppoſe, that there is in theſe terms an alluſion to ſome quagmire, wherein Zedekiah ſhould be taken, when the enemy over-took him, Chap. 39 5. But howſoever, thus that befell him from women, which from men he ſo much feared. See Prov. 10.24.

and they are turned away backward.] This the Jewiſh Commenters, and moſt others, underſtood of Zedekiah, and apply to his feet before-mentioned, thy feet are turned backward: and this ſome expound of his revolt from the King of Babylon; as the word is uſed of the like, Pſal. 44. 18. and 80.18. Others of his being conſtrained at length to turn back and betake himſelf to flight, not being able now to go on, or hold out any longer. So is the word uſed, Pſal. 35.4. and 70.3. Eſai 42.17. chap. 46. 9. and this ſeemeth moſt probable. Howbeit, ſome underſtand it, of his friends before ſpoken of: that they were turned back, and had deſerted him in his ſtraits. See chap 37.7. But the former ſeemeth the better. Some lea ned men preters mince this paſſage into parcels, reading the words, that thy friends have incited thee,--- -and that they feet are faſt in the mire, and that they are turned backward. But ſuch ſupplics I ſuppoſe here needleſſe.

V. 23 So they ſhall bring out all thy wives and thy children to the Chaldeans] Heb. And, as verſ. 11. or, For; as chap. 36. 9. as rendring a reaſon of the fore-going predictions; or ſubjoyning the means, whereby this ſhould come about, and be effected: For they ſhall bring out all thy women, (the word is the ſame with that, ver. 22. and may well comprehend concubines, and ſuch like Court-creatures, as well as his wives) and thy ſons (for ſo the word here is) who were taken and carried away by the Chaldeans, and ſlain before their fathers face, and in his ſight, chap. 39. 6. for as for his daughters, it ſeemeth, that, being leſſe regarded, they were left behinde. See Chap. 41. 10. and 43. 6. Theſe he mentioneth the rather, to move him to hearken to the advice given him if not for himſelf, yet out of fatherly regard and tender affection unto them. See the like, Deut. 28. 32, 41. Chap. 5. 17. and 16. 3.

but ſhalt be taken by the hand of the King of Babylon.] That is, by ſuch power and force, as he ſhall raiſe and ſend to take thee, and thy citie. See verſ. 17.

and thou ſhalt cauſe this citie to be burnt with fire] Heb. thou ſhalt burn this citie with fire; as Num. 4. 18. cut not off; for, cauſe not to be cut off: thou by thine obſtinacy wilt be the means to procure the burning of the citie, which by rendition of thy ſelf thou mighteſt ſave. Yet ſome render the words, and this citie ſhall be burnt with fire: And in our Engliſh indeed, it might run well enough, were it ſaid; And this citie ſhall burn with fire. But I finde not where the Hebrew verb here uſed is in this form ever found in a paſſive ſenſe.

V. 24. Then ſaid Zedekiah unto Jeremiah] Heb. And; as verſe 17.

Let no man know of theſe words] Theſe matters that have paſt between thee and me in private. Heb. Let not a man know: a man, for, any man; as chap. 5. 1. and, words, for, things, or, matters; as chap. 26. 10. Eſt. 9 31.

and thou ſhalt not die.] Thou ſhalt not ſuffer death for ought that thou haſt now ſpoken; according to his ſolemne oath and promiſe, verſ. 16. or, as the words may well be rendred, that thou die not: ſo is the copulative oft uſed, Joſh. 24. 9. Mal. 1. 9. leſt the Princes put thee to death, as it is to be feared they will do, if they come to underſtand what thou haſt ſpoken to me.

V. 25. but if the Princes hear that I have talked with thee] Heb. And (as verſ. 11) when; as Jer. 12. 5. the Princes that over-awed the King, and whom he was afraid to diſpleaſe, verſ. 5.

and they come unto thee, and ſay unto thee; Declare unto us now what thou haſt ſaid unto the King; hide it not from us, and we will not put thee to death; alſo what the King ſaid unto thee.] In ſuch a vaſſalage as this poor King to his Princes, that he might not have any communication in private with any, but they would be diving into it, and dealing with him for it, beyond duty, if they liked it not.

V. 26. Then ſhalt thou ſay unto them] Heb. And; as before, verſe 17.

I preſented my ſupplication before the King, that he would not cauſe me to return to Jonathans houſe to die there.] Heb. I made my ſupplication to fall before the King, or, to his face, or, in his preſence; Chap. 36. 7. and 42. 2. that is, in humble and ſubmiſſe manner falling down before him, I preferred my ſuit to him; and this indeed he had formerly made ſuit to the King for, Chap. 37.20. and it is not unlikely but that he now renewed it again; the rather, ſome hint being given him by the King to that purpoſe, that ſo he ſhould do.

V. 27. Then came all the Princes unto Jeremiah, and aſked him;] What the King ſuſpected, accordingly fell out, Heb. And; as verſe 24.

and he told them according to all thoſe words, that the King had commanded:] Words, again, for, things; as verſ. 24.

ſo they left off ſpeaking with him:] Heb. and (as verſ. 23.) they were ſilent or, ceaſed, from him; as Job 13.13.

for the matter was not perceived] Or, while (as Prov. 19. 18) the matter (Heb. word; as ver. 14, chap 52. 34.) was not perceived; as chap 5. 15. as if he had ſaid, the matter remained the whileſt undiſcovered according to the Kings deſire.

V. 28. So Jeremiah abode in the court of the priſon] Heb. And; as ver 27 and ſate in the court of the priſon, chap. 37. 21.

until the day wherein Jeruſalem was taken,] As he ſtill told them it would be, verſ. 3. chap. 37. 8. being now no more ſhifted from place to place, as formerly he had been.

and he was there when Jeruſalem was taken.] Being then there found, and from thence taken, and not long after fet free by the King of Babylons officers, at their Maſters command. chap. 39. 12 ---14. and 40. 1.---4. a deſect of the locall particle; as Job 3. 18.

CHAP. XXXIX.

Verſ. 1. IN the ninth year of Zedekiah King of Judah,] This relation of the ſiege, and ſurrender of Jeruſalem, ver. 1---3 Zedekiahs attempt to eſcape by flight, apprehenſion and captivity, together with the ſlaughter of his ſons and his nobility, and loſſe of his ſight, ver. 4---7. the burning of the citie, verſ. 8. the deportation of the people, ver. 9. 10. and the Prophets delivery out of priſon, ver. 11---14. is here inſerted, partly, to declare the complement of the Prophets fore-going predictions; and partly, to make way for, and give light unto ſome occurrents afterward reported in the Chapters enſuing.

In the ninth year of Zedekiah] For in that year the ſiege began, 2 King. 25. 1.

in the tenth moneth] The moneth Tebeth, Eſther 2. 16. containing part of our December, and part of our January, Chap. 52. 4.

came Nebuchadrezzar King of Babylon, and all his army againſt Jeruſalem, and they beſieged it.] Or, with all his army: for ſo is the copulative oft uſed: as chap. 26. 21. and 27. 2. the occaſion of this his expedition and invaſion was, becauſe Zedekiah, whom he had made King of Judah, was revolted from him and rebelled againſt him, 2 King. 24. 17, 20. He came thither with them, but having ſettled the ſiege, withdrew himſelf to take his eaſe and pleaſure elſe-where, leaving the buſineſſe to be purſued and carried on by his Princes. See chap. 38. 17.

V. 2. And in the eleventh year of Zedekiah in the fourth moneth,] The moneth Tamuz conſiſting partly of our June, and partly of our July.

the ninth day of the moneth the citie was broken up.] Stormed and taken: ſome of the gates being firſt broken open, and part of the citie ſurprized, ver. 3. the reſt thereupon given up, 2 King. 25. 3. Chap. 52. 6. So that the ſiege continued about a twelve-moneth, and an half. Hence the faſt of the fourth moneth, Zach. 8. 19. for the ſurpriſal of the citie.

V. 3. And all the Princes of the King of Babylon came and ſate in the middle gate] Called the ſecond gate, Zeph. 1. 10. ſituate in the mid-wall that divided the one part of the citie from the other; ſo the moſt. Yee ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors ſay, it was the Eaſtern gate: of which, Chap. 19. 2. ſo called; becauſe it ſtood between two other gates on that ſide of the citie: And others again, becauſe it ſtood between the citie and the Temple. But howſoever about the particular gate they jar; herein they agree, that Jeremies prophecie was hereby fulfilled, of the King of Babylons commanders ſetting their thrones in the gates of Jeruſalem, Chap. 1. 15. But of that place, ſee there. Why they made a ſtay at this gate is ſome queſtion made: and ſome ſuppoſe it done out of warineſſe, it being not ſafe to pierce ſuddenly over-far into a ſtrong and large citie, wherein trains and ambuſhments may be, untill all be well clear-ed; which is not unlikely.

even Nergal-ſharezer.] The Jewiſh Doctor telleth us, that theſe are two ſeveral names of ſeveral parties: but the moſt rather (as doth our Verſion) take them for one name: the latter part of the name, one of Sennacheribs ſons bare, Eſai 37. 38. whence it may ſeem to have been an Aſſyrian name.

Samgar Nebo] This moſt take alſo for the proper name of a party diſtinct from the former. But a learned Interpreter deemeth it to be a name of office belonging to the fore-named party; and to ſignifie the Keeper, or Treaſurer of the Temple of Nebo, a principal idol among the Babylonians, Eſai 46. 1. and the Hebrew points and pauſes, both in this, and the following, encline this way.

Sarſechim, Rabſaris,] The former ſeemeth the name of the man; the latter is clearly the name of his office; and ſignifieth the Captain of the Guard.

Nergal Sharezer, Rabmag,] One of the ſame name with the firſt; (whereby it appeareth, that it was an uſual name with them) from whom to diſtinguiſh him, his office is added: and the title given him is by ſome deemed to ſignifie the Camp-Maſter; though a learned late Writer would have it to be, the Maſter of the Magitians. But the former ſeemeth more probable.

with all the reſidue of the Princes of the King of Babylon.] Heb. and all; as ver. 1. for three only of them are here named.

V. 4 And it came to paſſe, that when Zedekiah the King of Judah ſaw them, and all the men of war, then they fled: Or, And ſo it was ſaw them, and all the men of war, then they fled: Or, And when they (for there is a tranſition in the words) that they fled. Heb. And they (as chap 35. 11. as deſpairing now, and not daring, either to hold out any further, or to ſtay any longer by it; conſidering how far they had pierced into the citie.

and went forth out of the citie by night] The more ſecretly to eſcape in the dark: which ſecret flight of his, ſee deſcribed, Ezek. 12. 12.

by the way of the Kings garden, by the gate betwixt two walls] By ſome poſtern gate on the South ſide of the citie, (for on that ſide the Kings gardens ſeem to have been ſituate) by ſome ſuppoſed to have another vvall before it, beſides that wherein it ſtood: but it ſeemeth rather to have been ſituate at the end of ſome private paſſage, having on either ſide a vvall to make it the more private. The Jewiſh Doctors tell us of a cave, or vault, under ground, reaching from the Kings houſe to the plains of Jericho, by which the King ſhould attempt to eſcape: but this ſeemeth one of their wonted figments. See 2 King. 25. 4. Chap. 52 7.

and he went out the way of the plain.] Intending, it may be, for Egypt.

V. 5. But the Chaldeans purſued after them,] Heb. And; as chap. 38. 25. See Lam. 4. 19.

and overtook Zedekiah in the plains of Jericho:] This is the ſame in effect with the Talmudiſts build their fabulous vault: dy ground on which the Talmudiſts build their fabulous vault: whereof, on verſ. 4. But this is not amiſſe obſerved to be the net that God threatned to catch him in, for the breach of his oath, Ezek. 17. 10.

and when they had taken him, they brought him up to Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon.] Heb. and they took him, and made him aſcend, or, brought him, ſimply; as 1 Sam. 7. 1. So 2 King. 25. 6. chap. 52. 9. See this fore-told him by Jeremy, chap. 32. 4. and 34. 3.

to Riblah in the land of Hamath] Of this Riblah, ſee Num. 34. 11. It is ſuppoſed to be that which was afterward called Antiochia in Syria: a very pleaſant place, where Nebuchadnezzar lay, and kept his court, to repoſe, and ſolace himſelf, during the ſiege: which he may be alſo proved longer than he looked for.

where he gave judgement upon him.] For his perfidious treachery and perjury joyned with it. Heb. ſpake judgements with him; as chap. 4. 12. and 12. 1. and 52 9.

V. 6. Then the King of Babylon ſlew the ſons of Zedekiah in Riblah before his eyes,] He cauſed them to be ſlain, (as chap. 37. 15. and 52. 10. 1 Sam. 15. 33.) being brought thither to him, (as was fore-told they ſhould be, chap. 38. 23.) in his ſight, before he put out his eyes: to aggravate his grief, ſee Deut. 28. 32. Heb. And; as Chap. 38. 24.

alſo the King of Babylon ſlew all the nobles of Judah.] That had encouraged, yea, in ſome ſort, enforced Zedekiah to ſtand out againſt him, Chap. 38. 4. 22. Heb. and; as Chap. 29. 20. and white ones, as Chap. 7. 0.

V. 7. Moreover he put out Zedekiahs eyes:] Heb. And (as chap. 28. 12.) he blinded (as Deut. 16. 19.) Zedekiahs eyes: and ſo abandoned him to a perpetual darkneſſe: hence that Ezek 12. 13. that he ſhould not ſee Babylon, though he ſhould be brought thither. Howbeit, he ſlew him not, as Jeremy had alſo fore-told, ch. 34. 4.

and bound him with chains] Heb. with two braſſes; or, of braſſe: to wit, chains, or fetters; as Judge 16. 21.

to carry him to Babylon.] So bound; as alſo he did, Chap. 32. 5. and 34. 3. and 52. 11. Ezek. 12. 13. 2 King. 25. 7. See the like, 2 Chron. 36. 6.

V. 8. And the Chaldeans burnt the kings houſe, and the houſes of the people with fire.] Chap. 21. 10. and 37. 8. and 38. 18, 23. and 52. 13. Lam. 2. 5. 2 King. 25. 9. Heb. the houſe of the people: which ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors expound of Synagogues, or other places of publick convention: and ſome of ours, a place near to the Kings court, whither people uſed to reſore for exerciſe of ſhooting, ſporting, walking and teaſting: But others, and moſt of both, take it in an ordinary, but collective notion, for the dwellings of the inferiour people; confirmed by that, 2 King. 25. 9. and Chap. 52. 13. and all the houſes of Jeruſalem.

and brake down the walls of Jeruſalem.] Chap. 52. 14. 2 King. 25. 10. Lam. 2. 8, 18. Neh. 1. 3.

V. 9. Then Nebuzaradan the Captain of the Guard.] Or, Provoſt Marſhall. Heb. chief, or, Maſter of the executioners or, ſlaughter-men: as Gen. 39. 1. So alſo, verſ. 10. 11. the old Greek rendreth it, the Maſter of the Cooks: becauſe the word is ſometime uſed for a Cook, that killeth and dreſſeth fleſh, 1 Sam. 8. 13. and 9. 23. And ſome other again, the Maſter of the Butchers; becauſe the Greek term includeth either: but neither of theſe here ſeemeth ſuitable. Heb. And; as verſ. 6.

carried captive into Babylon the remnant of the citie, and thoſe that fell away, that fell to him, with the reſt of the people that remained.] Heb. and the reſt: Whence ſome Interpreters ſuppoſing three ſorts of perſons here preſcribed, would have the firſt, ſuch as were found in the citie, when it was taken: the ſecond, ſuch as had gone out to the Chaldeans during the time of the ſiege: the third, ſuch as had left the citie, when the ſiege was intermitted. Chap 37. 12. Others would have the firſt to be thoſe that were left in the citie formerly, when Jeconiah was carried captive: the laſt, thoſe that were now remaining there. But I conceive onely two ſorts mentioned that were led away; thoſe left in the citie, and thoſe that had gone out to the Chaldeans together with them: as our Verſion well rendreth it. Nor is that uſe of the copulative unuſual, 2 verſ. 13. Chap. 22. 7, 14, and 26. 21. Num. 14. 42. Even thoſe alſo that turned to them, as well as thoſe that ſtaid in the citie, they took along with them to Babylon, though better entreating, it may be, the one than the other.

V. 10. But Nebuzaradan the Captain of the Guard] Heb. And; as verſ. 9. See verſ. 9.

left of the poor of the people, which had nothing in the land of Judah, and gave them vineyards and fields, at the ſame time.] That they might till and husband the land, and it might not wholy run to ruine, and become utterly waſte; 2 King. 25. 12. Chap. 52. 19. but might yield ſome revenue to the King of Babylon, and ſuch Rulers, as he ſhould ſet over it; Neh. 9 36, 37. But thus the rich and mighty, that truſted moſt to their ſtrits and means, were through Gods juſt judgement moſt rigorouſly handled, when the meaner ſore fared better than either they now did, or themſelves formerly had done: And by this means, God in all likelyhood providentially ſo diſpoſed it, that many poor, who had by the greater and wealthier ſort, been ſo merly oppreſſed and forced out of their poſſeſſions, came both to recover their own again, and to be owners alſo of their lands, who had in former times ſo oppreſſed them. See Eſai 5. 15, 17. and 7. 21, 22. and 28. 15, 18. Ezek. 34. 17 ----22.

at the ſame time] Heb. in that day: As Eſai 26. 1. verſ. 17.

V. 11. Now Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon gave charge concerning Jeremiah to Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard, ſaying] Or, by Nebuzaradan. Heb. by the hand of Nebuzaradan: as Chap. 37. 2. God not unmindfull of his Prophet, and his promiſe to feeure him, Chap. 15. 11, 21. inclined the heart of this great Monarch, and Conqueror, to provide for the Prophets ſafety: that which he the rather, in likelyhood, was alſo inclinable unto; having been informed by thoſe, who during the time of the ſiege had got out of the citie, of the Prophets preaching and preſſing both King and people to ſubmit and yield themſelves up unto him; and what hard meaſure he had ſuſtained for ſo doing. See chap. 21. 9. and 38. 2.---6. Now. Heb. And; as Chapter 27. 4. So verſe 15.

V. 12. Take him, and look well to him;] Set thine eyes upon him; as Pſal. 34. 15. So Chap. 38. 4.

but do unto him, even as he ſhall ſay unto thee.] Let him have whatſoever he ſhall require. Thus God uſed him as an inſtrument to deliver and preſerve his Prophet, whom he made a ſcourge to puniſh his adverſaries.

V. 13. So Nebuzaradan the Captain of the guard ſent, and Nebuſhaſban, Rabſaris, and Nergal Sharezer, Rabmag, and all the King of Babylons Princes] Heb. great ones; as Chap. 41. 1. and 52. 13. Of theſe names, ſee before, verſ. 3. He that was called Sarſechim there, is called Nebuſhaſban here: it may ſeem he had two names; or there were two of them that bare that office: all the Princes, for, there were two of them that bare that office: all the Princes, for, the reſt of them; as Chap. 36. 12. and as, all the Captains, Chap. 40. 13.

V. 14. Even they sent and took Jeremiah out of the court of the prison.] Where as yet he remained, chap 38. 28. Heb. And, as chap 33. 14. they sent and took, that is, they sent to take: and so after, to commit: as, rose and marred, for, rose to war, Josh. 24. 9. They give order to have him taken out of prison, and set at liberty, and recommended to Gedaliah: which yet seemeth not to have been presently put in execution. See chap 40. 1---4.

and committed him] Or, and to commit him; as before. Heb. and they gave him; as 2 Chron. 24. 12. Esay 22. 21.

unto Gedaliah the son of Ahikam the son of Shaphan] Whom the king of Babylon had set over those that were left in the land, 2 Kings 25. 22. chap. 40. 5. he seemeth to have been the son of that Ahikam, that refused the Prophet out of the hands of the Priests in Jehojakims reign, chap. 26. 24.

that he should carry him home] That he might either take him home to him; or convey him home to his own house at Anathoth, chap. 1. 1.

he dwelt among the people] Heb. and, as verse 13. and, in the midst of the people; as chap. 29. 32. & 37. Howbeit, the words would rather be rendred; Yet (as chap. 27. 15. and 35. 14.) he abode still, or, stayed, (as the word is used, Deut. 9. 9. Chap. 38. 28.) among the people; with whom, through the negligence of those, to whom the charge of him was committed, though let out of prison, with such others as were found there, yet was he not loosed from his bonds, but carried among the rest in chains unto Riblah. See chap. 40. 1.

V. 15. Now the word of the Lord came unto Jeremiah, while he was shut up in the court of the prison saying;] Here beginneth a new relation of a businesse that fell out in the time of his latter commitment to the prison court, after he had been drawn up out of Malchia's dungeon, chap 38. 13, 28. and it concerning a gracious message sent by him from God to Ebedmelech, who had been a chief instrument of helping him out of that dungeon, chap. 38. 7---13. Heb. And the word of the Lord was, &c. as Chap. 32. 1. & 33. 1.

V. 16. Go and speak unto Ebedmelech the Ethiopian, saying,] Heb. Going go, and thou shalt say; as chap. 28. 13. of this Ebedmelech, see Chap. 38. 7. Yet we are not hence to gather, that the Prophet was then at liberty; because God bids him go, and deliver him this message: it is a familiar term of incitement to the doing of ought, requiring nothing of the Prophet, but that he should sometime acquaint him with it, either by sending to him, or by word of mouth when he should come to visit him.

Thus saith the Lord of Hosts; the God of Israel;] As Chapter 33. 13.

and they shall be accomplished in that day before thee.] At that time, as verse 12. Thou surviving to see it; as chap. 16. 9. & 20. 4.

V. 17 But I will deliver thee in that day, and thou shalt not be delivered into the hand of those men of whom thou art afraid.] This reward had he for his piety shewed to Gods Prophet, Chap. 37. 7.---13. Heb. And. as verse 10. and, before whose face thou art afraid; as Chap. 22. 25.

V. 18. For I will surely deliver thee,] Or, But, as chap. 14. 2. and, Heb. delivering deliver; as the like, Esay 36. 15.

because thou hast put thy trust in me, saith the Lord.] He will deliver them ——and save them, because they trust in him, Psal. 37. 40.

CHAP. XL.

Verse 1. THe word of the Lord, which came to Jeremiah,] These words are the Title or Inscription, of a word or message sent from God, and delivered by the Prophet unto the Captains, or heads of those people, that were left in the land, under the government of Gedaliah, recorded, chap. 42. 7. for all between this and that, is but matter of story, relating the time and occasion of it, to clear the way to it, and to procure the better understanding of it. See of the form, chap. 1. 2, 4.

after that Nebuzaradan the Captain of the guard had let him go from Ramah,] Heb. had sent, or, dismissed him (as 1 Kings 20. 42.) from Ramah, whither he had by over-sight, contrary to the Kings charge given concerning him, been brought, so soon as he understood who he was, Verse 4. See chap. 31. 15. & 39. 11, 14.

when he had taken him being bound in chains among all that were carried away captive of Jerusalem and Judah, which were carried away captive unto Babylon.] Heb. when he had taken him, and he was bound, &c. or, for he was bound; and being found in bonds, was brought along to Ramah among the rest of the captives intended for Babylon; no notice being taken of him before he came thither, in chains, or manicles, Verse 4. See Job 36. 8. Psal. 149. 8. Esay 45. 14. Heb. in the midst (as chap. 39. 14.) of all the captivity; as chap. 29. 1.

V. 2. And the captain of the guard took Jeremiah,] Or, as some render it, For (as chap. 36. 9.) the captain of the guard took him. I should rather take the former copulative, verse 1. in a causative notion; and this in a discursive: for he was bound,---- but the captain of the guard, so soon as he had notice of him, took him, and loosed him from his bonds, and set him at liberty.

Saying, The Lord thy God hath pronounced this evill upon this place.] The infidel Prince is caused to utter and aver that, which out of obstinacy Gods own people would not see and acknowledge: and it is not unlikely, but that by those that fled to the Chaldean camp, he had heard of the substance and subject matter of Jeremies Sermons.

V. 3. Now the Lord hath brought it, and done according as he hath said:] Heb. And the Lord hath brought and done according to what he said, because ye have sinned against the Lord and have not obeyed his voyce, therefore this thing is come upon you.] See chap. 50. 7. or, for ye have sinned against the Lord, (Heb. unto the Lord; as chap. 8. 14.) and have not hearkened to his voyce; (as chap 9. 12.) and this thing (Heb. word; as chap. 38. 14.) is come upon you.

V. 4. And now] Here seemeth to have been a two-fold reading, the one most commonly received; which our Version followeth: another, some Interpreters exhibit, who render the words, And thou, o, as for thee; put absolutely: as, and I, or, as for me, 1 Chron. 28. 2.

behold, I loose thee this day from the chains which were upon thine hand:] Or, that are upon thine hands; as it is said of Peter, Acts 12. 7. his chains fell off from his hands: for the word hand, is collective: and it appeareth that he came in chaines manicled to Ramah Verse 1.

if it seem good unto thee to come with me into Babylon, come, and I will look well unto thee:] Heb. if it be good in thine eyes (as Gen 20. 15.) to go with me to Babylon, (a defect of the locall particle; as Chap. 32. 5.) come, as 1 Kings 13. 7.) and I will set mine eye upon thee; as chap. 39. 12.

but if it seem evill unto thee to come with me into Babylon, forbear:] Or, or (Heb. and, as chap. 2. 18. & 5. 11.) if it like thee not (Heb. be evill in thine eyes; as Josh. 24. 15.) to go with me unto Babylon.

behold, all the land is before thee, whither it seemeth good and convenient for thee to go, thither go.] Heb. unto good, and unto the right in thine eyes to go; as chap. 26. 14. A free and a large offer. Pharaoh could say no more to Joseph concerning his father and his family, Gen. 47. 6. See the like speech of Abraham to Lot, Gen. 13. 9.

V. 5. Now while he was not yet gone back, he said, Go back unto Gedaliah the son of Ahikam the son of Shaphan,] These words are very diversly rendred and resolved. Who the person should be that is here spoken of, said not to have returned or gone back, is by some questioned; and the generality goes for Jeremy: but these among themselves much divided: for some make all these the words of Nebuzaradan. So the Chaldee, thus rendring them, And if thou like not to dwell, then return to Gedaliah. Which our old English seeming to follow, rendreth it: And if thou canst not be content to dwell alone, then dwell with Gedaliah. The old Latin, And come not with me but dwell with Gedaliah; as joyning them to the words before-going, forbear, Verse 4. But how the Hebrew will bear any of these Versions, I see not. The most rather conceive them as a relation inserted of some thing concerning, or occasioning, the speech ensuing. And one of the Jewish Doctors rendreth them, And when he had no mind to go back, he said, that is, the blessed Lord God said, Go back to Gedaliah. God suggested that to him, that made him willing to go, when as of himself he had no inclination thereunto: another of them, And when he had not yet said, that he would return, Nebuzaradan perceiving yet by his silence, that his mind was rather to go back; than to go along with him, said to him, Go back to Gedaliah. And others again, as the Tigurine, whom our Geneva, and the newx Version before it, conjecture with, render them, as by way of parenthesis, (for as yet he was not returned, or gone back,) and then carrying on the sentence, and go back, or, or go back to Gedaliah. Take thy choyce, either to go along with me, or to fear thy selfe elsewhere, wheresoever thou pleaseſt, or to repair to Gedaliah, that he may provide for thee. Others, as our last Version, And when, or, while he was not yet gone back, he said, Go back to Gedaliah. Either make thine abode where thou pleaseſt in any part of the land elsewhere, or repair to Gedaliah and abide with him. And this seemeth the most probable of any of those, that understand the words of Jeremy. But some others expound them of Gedaliah, and render the words thus, And because he is not to come back, repair to Gedaliah. since that Gedaliah is not to come hither to me, but to stay at Mizpah to settle things in his new charge, repair thither to him, who will be carefull both to protect thee, and to provide for thee: the copulative in a causative notion is not in frequent; as chap 36. 9. & 38. 23. The Italian to remove the ambiguity, rendreth it, And because Gedaliah----returneth not hither, return thou to him.

or go whither soever it seemeth convenient unto thee to go] Heb. or to all (all, for any; as Job 1. 11. & 8. 12.) place (a defect of the subject; as c. 38. 11.) that is right in thine eyes to go to, (as verse 4) go. A full freedom.

So the Captain of the guard gave him vitails, and a reward, and let him go] Heb. and, as c. 39. 13.

vitails] The word arising from a root, that hath a notion of journeying, signifieth properly, that which the Greeks call Itia, the Latines, viaticum, vitails, or provisions for a journey: and so it seemeth to be here intended. Howbeit, because it is used sometimes for a meal, Prov. 13. 17. for a dinner, there is too scant; and a feast too large: some here render it, he feasted him; and so some Greek Versions, he made him a feast; or he entertained him: and again, because it is used of a constant allowance, or diet, 2 Kings 24. 30. Chapter 52. 34. some understand it here of a continued allowance of diet by Nebuzaradan assigned him; but the entertaining of him with a meals-meat (though it is not probable that he would neglect so common a courtesie) was scarce worth the reciting: and for constant allowance for the future, it is most likely that he would leave that to Gedaliah, unto whom he was to commend him; the first therefore is here most probable: he would not dismiss the Prophet to travel in a land so wasted, and dispeopled, without competent provision and necessaries for his journey.

and a reward] Or a present, rather; for it is used for a gift, either rendred in restimation of due respect and honour, as Ezekiel 20. 40. or exhibited in signification of grace and favour, Esther 2. 18. which because it consisted sometime in messes of meat, Genesis 43. 34. 2 Samuel 11. 8. some of the Jewish Doctours would make this and the former all one: but there is small reason for it.

V. 13. Moreover, Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the Captains of the forces that were in the fields came to Gedaliah to Mizpah.] Here, beginneth a new narration of a conspiracy entred into by some of the forementioned parties, v. 8. against Gedaliah, which being discovered by some other of them, they acquaint Gedaliah with it, and offer him their service to prevent it, verse 13——15. whom he giving no credit to, as being confident of the others fidelity, v. 14. 15. is treacherously surprised and murthered by them, together with those as well Jews as Chaldeans about him, Chapter, 41. 1.——3. whereupon mischiefs and miseries, afterward. related, enfue.

V. 14. And said unto him; Dost thou certainly know,] Heb. knowing know; as chap. 13. 12. but the negative, is wanting; as very frequent in interrogatives of this nature: for their meaning is apparently, Dost thou not know? undoubtedly it is so? and thou maist well be assured of it. So they to Elisha, Dost thou know? 2 Kings 2. 3. for Dost thou not know? as it is rendred, Job 20. 4. See the like before, c. 31. 20.

that Baalis the King of the Ammonites hath sent Ismael the son of Nethaniah to slay thee? Heb. to smite thee in soul, or to strike thy soul, that is, to take away thy life: as Numbers 35. 11. Thus the King having, as by a lineal descent, a malignant affection unto Gods people, puffeth up this young gallant (who among others in likelyhood had fled for shelter into those parts, ch. 40. 11.) with hopes of raising himself by the ruine of Gedaliah, that he might be an instrument of this peoples further calamity, whereby himself might have the more liberty to prey upon the countrey at pleasure, leaving none now to protect them. Because some of the Greek copies here render the words, the Queen of the King of the Sons of Ammon; (See the Hebrew commonly sly'eth them, see chapter 49. 1.) a learned late Writer would have the word Baalis here used to be no proper name of any person, man or woman; but a title of dignitie: for, saith he, as the Queen-mother was among the Jewes called Gebirah, c. 13. 38. So was she same among the Ammonites called Baalis, which by a various dialect is no other than Baalit in Hebrew: and addeth withall, that this Queen Dowager being Regent in her sons minority, mingled her own malignity with this Princes ambition, to work this mischief. But this I shall leave to the judgment of others.

But Gedaliah the son of Ahikam believed them not.] An ingenious disposition is seldom suspicious, chapter 11. 18, 19. Heb. And: as, verse 10.

V. 15. Then Johanan the son of Kareah spake to Gedaliah in Mizpah secretly saying,] When they could not prevail herein with him joyntly, he attempts to effect it more privately: supposing that in private he might be perswaded to hearken to that, which he would not not openly take notice of, or seem at least to be acknown of: withall rendring his service for the preventing of the stroke, that was likely to fall upon Gedaliah, by turning it upon the traytour himself.

for thou speakest falsly of Ishmael] Heb. thou speakest falshood, or a lye; as chapter 29. 9. & 43. 2. Thus the well-minded intending no evil to others, and deeming others by themselves, are not easily induced to think evil of others, or that others intend evil to them; and by occasion thereof, are oft deceived and ensnared to their utter undoing: Yet it behoved a prudent man, in Gedalia's place especially, upon such intimation to have been more cautelous than he, it seems, was.

But then there is a doubt how ten or eleven men should be able to make such massacre, as was by these there made. To which some answer that these great men came not without their followers: and others add, that these ten are especially mentioned, as ten persons expert and skilful to do mischief (Exek. 21 31.) enured unto, and exercised in shedding of blood: such as Abimelech hired to assist him in the murther of his brethren, Judges 9. 4, 5. which Ishmael, for that end, brought along with him, and are said therefore to come not with them, but with him. having their beards shaven, and their clothes rent, and having cut themselves,] In the manner and habit of mourners; such, in part, as being Heathenish, was disallowed among Gods people and inhibited in the Law, Leviticus 19 27. to bring them to the house of the Lord] But here question is moved, to what purpose these folk should travel with such presents to Jerusalem, when as both City and Temple were now rased and ruined. To this the Jewish Doctors answer, some of them, that they had not yet heard of the taking of the City, when thy set out, but heard of it on the way, and thereupon put themselves into that mournfull habit. But against this may be objected, that though they had not heard of the storming and sacking of the City; yet they could not but heare of the strait siege that was about it: and could have little hope therefore of any free access to the Temple. Other of them therefore say, that they had heard indeed of the taking of the City, and the deportation of the people: but not of the demolition of the Temple: which afterward hearing of, when they were on their way, they turned in unto Mizpah, where they heard that Gedaliah the new Ruler resided: for as for that which some add, that they might hope to find an Altar built at Mizpah, instead of that at Jerusalem, such as Samuel sometime erected there, 1 Samuel 7. 5——9 is nothing probable. It is more likely that, albeit they had heard both of the destruction of the City, and demolition of the Temple, which could not but be known in places no farther remote before that time, and was the occasion of putting them into that mournfull habit; yet they were travelling toward Jerusalem, to mourn over the sad condition of the place, and in hope to finde some of the Priests there, and an Altar at least erected in the room of the former, to receive such oblations as they carried along with them: and to the House of the Lord, may be here well put, for to the place where it sometime stood: As, Houses, and Pallaces, and Forts, and Towers, for places, where which sometimes were scituate, Esay 13. 22. and 31. 14.

Howbeit, I conceive that to be groundless, which a learned Writer hence gathereth, that these persons intended not at all to take Mizpah in their way, had they not been ticed in thither by this train of Ishmaels.

V. 7. And so it was when they came into the middest of the City] Or, into the City; as 1 Samuel 9. 14. and so afterward, into the midst of the pit, for, into the pit: as, in the midst of a pit, for, in a pit, 2 Samuel, 23. 30.

See Chapter 40. 10. But their meaning must be, that such commodities they had in their countrey-farms and store-houses: which they were willing to part with for the saving of their lives, Prov. 13 8. Howbeit, I cannot assent to that learned Interpreter, who rendreth the words, we have treasures hidden in a certain field: as if it were a speech parallel to that of our Saviour, Matth. 13. 44. for however the term here used spring from a root that signfieth to hide, and treasures are said sometime to be hidden, Esay 45. 3 yet the word in general signifieth treasures, or stores, whether hidden or other, Gen. 43. 23. nor is it probable that such stores as these of so many sorts, should be hidden under ground in some one part of a field; and much less that all ten should so bestow their stores in any one place.

wherein Ishmael had cast all the dead bodies of the men, whom he had slain because of Gedaliah] To conceal his murthers, both of Gedaliah, and those other, whom either together with him, vers. 3. or by this occasion afterward, he had dispatcht and made away. Heb. whom he smote (as v. 3.) at, or, by the hand: which is variously expounded: for some of the Jewish Masters expound it, as the word in its proper and most familiar notion is wont to import, by the hand of Gedaliah; as it is said, they fell by the hand of David and his servants, 2 Samuel 23. 22. and they are said, say they, to be slain by the hand of Gedaliah; because he slighted the advice that Captain John gave him, whereby their death and his own also might have been prevented. But this seeming somewhat too far fetcht, others of them give other interpretations: Either, by occasion of Gedaliah; for they came chiefly to kill him; and by occasion thereof did the like to them finding them with him: as, thou hast consumed us by the hand (that is, by occasion, or because) of our iniquities, Esay 64. 7. or, in Geldaliah, that is, in the place, where Gedaliah was: to wit, at Mixpah: the word being used sometimes for a place or quarter: as Deut. 23. 12. Esay 56. 11. Chapter 6. 3. See there. Others again render it, in the hand of Gedaliah; that is, in his service: hand, for service, or ministery: as by the hand of Moses; that is, by his ministery. Numbers 4. 37. Psalm 77. 20. and so also, 2 Chron. 36. 15. Mal. 1. 1. Others, by the side of Gedaliah: as, I will stand at the hand (that is, by the side) of my father, 1 Samuel 19. 3. and by the hand of them; that is, beside them, Neh. 3. 4, 5. such as were about him, or attending upon him: as 1 Chron. 18. 17. and others, in the hand of Gedaliah; that is, under his charge: as all his masters goods were in his hand; that is, under his charge, in his custody, Genesis 24. 10. and these were in the hand of Ithamar, for, under his charge, Numbers 4. 33. but the meaning of the form of speech, as it is here used, is plain enough, intending no more than simply, with Gedaliah, the men that he slew with him: Nor need we go far for the interpretation of it we had it before twice, chapter 38. 10. take thirty men in thine hand: and he took thirty men in his hand; that is, take them with thee: and he tooke them with him; as it is there well rendred: and why it should not be likewise here, I see not: for it was before said, with him, v. 3. yet so to be restrained, as was there observed.

was it, which Asa the King had made for fear of Baasha King of Israel] Or which Asa the King made because of Baasha: for the term here used importeth no more: and is well so rendred, vers 18. See on chapter 37. 11. How Asa fortified Mizpah, being a frontier Town between him and Baasha, with the stones and timber, that he fetcht away from Ramah, we read, 1 Kings 15. 22. but of the pit here mentioned, we find nothing elsewhere; some suppose it to have been a trench or ditch, digged without the wals of the City. But this seemeth rather to have been some pit delved within the City near to which he drew on those 80. the greatest part whereof he slew, before he massacred them, the pit being ready at hand to receive them: but for what end or use it was at first contrived, whether to receive and contain water for necessary uses, upon occasion of a siege Esay 22. 9, 11. or for what other employment doth doth not appear, nor can easily be determined: deep and large it seems it was as the Prophet saith of Tophet. V. 15. But Ishmael the sonne of Nethaniah escaped from Johanan with eight men, and went to the Ammonites.] Heb. the sons, of Ammon. See Chapter 40. 14. Some render it, For Ishmael escaped: to wit, by flight; not staying, or daring to make head against the party that pursued him, which gave the people opportunity to go unto John. So is the copulative used c 38. 23.

V. 16. Then tooke Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the Captains of the forces that were with him, all the remnant of the people whom he had recovered from Ishmael the sonne of Nethaniah, from Mizpah, (after that he had slain Gedaliah the son of Abikam) even the mighty men of war, and the women and the children, and the Eunuches, whom he had brought again from Gibeon:] from Mizpah, that is, carried away from Mizpah; to wit, formerly by Ishmael. vers. 10 Heb. smit, for slain; as vers. 2 and men, simply, not mighty men, distinguished onely from the women, as chap. 43. 6. and, child, for children; as chap. 40. 7.

V. 7. And it came to pass after ten dayes, that the word of the Lord came unto Jeremiah.] Here cometh to be related at length (after all this long diſcourſe, or narrative inſerted, to make way thereunto) that Word of the Lord before pointed unto, and intended, Chapter 40. 1. Heb. and it was (as chapter 36. 1.) from the end of ten dayes, (as chap. 34 14) and (as chap. 41. 14.) the Word of the Lord was to Jeremy: as chap. 34. 1. Becauſe it is ſaid, after ten dayes, ſome hence gather, that the Prophet ſpent all thoſe ten dayes in Prayer: But that is not neceſſary. The Prophet having ſeriouſly and ſolemnly commended it by prayer to God, was to expect when God would pleaſe to returne to him, and to them by him, an anſwer. The reaſon, why God thus delayed it, being not revealed, is not eaſily conjectured, much leſs, can it be certainly determined. Some ſay, to adde the more weight to the Oracle, when it ſhould be delivered: and to free the Prophet from ſuſpition, of ſpeaking from himſelf, which might have been at leaſt. If not miſ-deemed, yet amiſs pretended, had he ſuddenly returned an anſwer. I conceive, it might rather be to puniſh their hypocriſie, by holding them in ſuſpence, who were queſtionleſs impatient of delay, having before-hand reſolved what they would do, whatſoever the anſwer ſhould be.

V. 8. Then called he Johanan the ſon of Kareah, and all the Captains of the forces which were with him, and all the people, from the leaſt, even to the greateſt:] No ſooner had the Prophet his anſwer and errand from God, but he calleth them all to come and hear it; becauſe all had requeſted it, and all were concerned in it. know certainly that I have admoniſhed you this day.] Heb. knowing know (as Gen. 11. 13) that I have, or that I do, this day teſtifie againſt you, as Deut. 4. 26.

V. 20. For ye diſſembled in your hearts,] Or, That (as chap. 4. 18.) ye diſſembled; as knitting this unto that which went before, I teſtifie againſt you; or, Certainly ye diſſembled; for ſo is the particle alſo uſed; as chap. 22. 23, and 24. 8. Heb. ye deluded in your ſoules, or in your minds; as Gen. 23. 8. Prov. 23. 7. or, as others, againſt your ſoules; as 1 King. 2. 23. Proverbs 7. 23. ye fought to beguile God, or to deceive me, ſpeaking one thing with your mouths, and minding inwardly another: for ye have dealt thus deceitfully to your own evil and miſchief. A learned Scholaiſt rendreth it, Ye have feluted your ſelves; or made an error in your ſouls. And the old Latine much to the ſame effect, you deceived your ſouls: ſomewhat the like form of ſpeech, is found in a term uſed, James 1. 26. but the former ſeemeth ſomewhat harſh here: the latter taketh no notice of the particle, which ſeems not here vacant. I ſhould rather render it, with a late learned Annotator, Surely ye deceived me againſt your own ſouls, or your ſelves, me, wanting, as Eſay 29. 6. chapter 15. 16.

The like Syntax, ſee c. 40 7. 8.

V. 22. Now therefore know certainly, Heb. And (as chap. 36. 6.) knowing, know; as v. 19.

CHAP. XLIII.

Verſe 1. And it came to paſſe, that when Jeremiah had made an end of ſpeaking unto all the people, all the words of the Lord their God, for which the Lord their God had ſent him to them, even all theſe words; Or, things: as chap. 36. 13, 32. In this chapter is recorded what effect the meſſage from God before related, had with thoſe unto it was ſent to; to wit, their refuſal to obey it, perſiſtance in their former reſolution for Egypt, and accompliſhment thereof, v. 1——7. together with a new prophecy delivered by Jeremy in Egypt, after they were come thither, v. 8.——13.

V. 2 . ben ſpake Azariah the ſon of Hoſhaiah,] This is deemed by moſt to have been no other than that Jezaniah, mentioned c. 42. 1. Yet it might be another, and a brother of his, becauſe the father ſeems the ſame; and ſom ſuppoſe him the firſt mover of the journey into Egypt.

Pride being the ordinary and moſt common cauſe of diſobedience and rebellion againſt God; and of the contempt of his meſſengers, and meſſages ſee Exod 5. 2.

ſaying unto Jeremiah, thou ſpeakeſt falſly,] Heb. falſhood, or a lye: as c. 40. 16.

The Lord our God hath not ſent thee to ſay, Go not into Egypt to ſojourn there.] Thus diſcovered hypocriſie turneth into outrage and fury. So they c. 5. 13. The Word of God is not in them.

V. 3. But Baruch the ſonne of Neriah ſetteth thee on againſt us,] They are not content to traduce and ſlander the Prophet, but Baruc alſo for him. The reaſon that a learned man rendreth, why they ſhould caſt this aſperſion upon Baruc, to wit, becauſe he being a younger man, ſhould be more hot and eager than the Prophet in the delivery of theſe things, is groundleſs; nor ſeemeth probable: nor could he be lightly more eager than Jeremy himſelf was in the delivery of it, had he been to do it nor is it; likely that Jeremy made any uſe of him therein.

for to deliver us into the hand of the Chaldeans, that they might put us to death, and carry us away captive into Babylon.] To ſlay ſome of us, and to tranſport the reſt. See the like, Eſay, 10. 4. and v. 12. and what hand Baruc gain by this? But any pretence is colourable enough, where men are maliciouſly minded, Heb. to give us into the hand, or power: as c. 34. 20.

V. 4. So Johanan the ſonne of Kareah, and all the Captains of the forces, and all the people obeyed not the voyce of the Lord, to dwell in the land of Judah.] Heb. And Johanan: as c. 41. 14. and, all the captains (or the reſt of them; as v. 2.) hearkened not: as c. 42. 14. and, to ſit, or, abide: as c. 42. 10, 13.

V. 5. But Johanan the ſon of Kareah, and all the Captains of the forces, took all the remnant of Judah, that were returned from all nations, whither they had been driven to dwell in the land of Judah.] Heb. And, as c. 42. 13. and, all, for the reſt: and to ſit, for to abide; as v. 4. See c. 40. 11.

V. 6. Even the men, and women, and children, and the Kings daughters, and every perſon that Nebuzaradan the Captain of the guard had left with Gedaliah the ſon of Ahikam, the ſon of Shaphan,] See chap. 40. 7. & 41. 10, 16. Heb. every ſoul; as chap. 52. 10. Romans 13. 1.

and Jeremiah the Prophet, and Baruc the ſon of Neriah.] Whom by force they led away with them; and ſome other alſo in likelyhood beſide them.

V. 7. So they came into the land of Egypt,] Heb. And, as verſe 4. See c. 42. 18.

for they obeyed not the voice of the Lord;] As Chapter 42. 21. verſe 4.

thus came they even to Tahpanhes.] Heb. and they came unto Tahpanhes, or Tachpanhes. An ancient citie of Egypt, ſo called from a Queen of that name, 1 Kings 11. 19. The ancient Greek Verſion termeth it Taphnas. Whence the later Greeks, corrupting the term, and framing it nearer to their own language, as if it had its original with them from a word that ſignifieth a laurel, or bay-tree, call it commonly Daphne, and Daphnæ Peluſiacæ, to diſtinguiſh it from another Daphne in Syria. See Eſay 30 4. where it is termed in a more contracted form. Hanes, or Chanes.

V. 8. Then came the Word of the Lord unto Jeremiah in Tahpanhes, ſaying,]Heb. And the Word was; as c. 36. 27.

V. 9. Take great ſtones in thine hand, and hide them in the clay in the brick-kill, which is at the entry of Pharaoh's houſe in Tahpanhes, in the ſight of the men of Judah:] By this viſible ſign would God have confirmed, and as by an ocular demonſtration ſet before the eyes of this refractary and rebellious people, the accompliſhment of that judgement which before he had denounced againſt them, by the acceſs of Nebuchadnezzar with his forces into Egypt, and his purſuance of them among others there, from whoſe force they ſhither fled.

in the clay in the brick-kill] By the former word here uſed, though no where elſe found, is by the Jewiſh Doctors, and moſt others, agreed to be meant ſuch materiall, as brick is went to be made of; and that by the latter word is meant ſuch a Fornace, or place, as bricke is wont to be framed and burnt in, is no leſs agreed on from 2 Samuel, 12. 31. Howbeit, becauſe ſome Greek Verſions render the former word, an hidden place, and the old Latine, the former, a Grot, or, Cave, or, Vault; and the latter, a bricke wall: grounding in likely-hood, on a place in Nah. 3. 14. hence ſome make much adoe to finde out ſome trench or ditch near the Kings Pallace, whereunto Jeremy ſhould caſt theſe ſtones; on which, as part of the foundation, Nebuchadnezzar, when he came into Egypt, ſhould raiſe a bricke wall, and build him a Pallace there. But little reaſon have we for ſuch far-fetcht fancies to recede from the received Interpretation of the words: the main matter that ſome object is, that there is no likely-hood, that a bricke kill ſhould be ſituate ſo near to the Kings Pallace, which could not but be, by occaſion of the noyſome ſmoake thereof very offenſive. To which may be anſwered: Firſt, that the Houſes of theſe Egyptian Kings were many of them of vaſt amplitude; and the bricke-hills therefore, though they were ſcituate not farre from ſome of the Court Gates, yet might be farre enough diſtant from thoſe parts of the ordinarily Pallace, wherein the King and his great ones, did ordinarily keep. Secondly, that this place might be rather a work-houſe to frame some special kind of brick in for peculiar uses, then a furnace or kill to burn them; and that such, as were either to be burnt elsewhere, or to be hardened only with the Sun: and lastly, that the word rendred entry; doth not always signifie a door, or, a porch; but an opening, or, open way, that leadeth to a place, house, town, or city. So it is used, chap. 1. 15. and so rendred, Gen. 38. 14. and may well therefore also here so signifie: as also that the particle here rendred, in, is used also for, besides. See Chap. 32. 7. & 36. 10. and the words may therefore be well here rendred, besides the open way to Pharaoh's house.

V. 10. And say unto them, Thus saith the Lord of Hosts, the God of Israel,] As chap. 42. 15.

Behold, I will send and take Nebuchadrezzar the King of Babylon my Servant,] As he is also styled, chap. 25 9. Heb. Lo I am sending. So also chap. 25. 9.

and will set his throne upon these stones that I have hid, and he shall spread his royall pavilion over them.] Thereby implying that Nebuchadnezzar should proceed so far in the conquest of Egypt, as to pitch his pavilion in that very place, not far distant from the kings palace at Tanes; where his brick houses erected for his building then stood: the word rendred pavilion, so termed for the beautifulness of it, (for the term royall is not in the text), is no where else found.

V. 11. And when he cometh he shall smite the land of Egypt: and deliver such as are for death to death, and such as are for captivity to captivity; and such as are for the sword to the sword.] Heb. And he shall come, and be shall smite (the like to that, chap. 47. 2.1.) the land of Egypt, (that is, the inhabitants of the land; as Mal. 4 6.) those that are for death, to death; &c. to smite, for, to smite and give, or deliver up, or by giving and delivering up, to death. A complexive form of speech, like those Esay 38 14, 17, 21. chap. 36. 23. & 41. 7. See of this distribution of judgments, compared with chap. 42. 17. on chap. 15. 2. See also Zach. 11. 2.

V. 12. And I will kindle a fire] As chap. 17, 27.

in the houses of the gods of Egypt] I will cause him to set their idoll-Temples on fire, and burn them down; that I may execute judgement as well on their gods, as on themselves. So Exod. 12. 12. Esay 19. 1. Chap. 46. 25. Ezek. 30. 13.

and he shall burn them, and carry them away captive,] Some of their idols, being of wood, or other like combustible matter, he shall burn: others of them, being of more rich and sumptuous materials, he shall carry away among other spoils, to imploy otherwise, or to reserve in token of conquest. See Esay 46. 2. chap. 48. 7. and of this form of speech, on verse 3.

and he shall array himself with the land of Egypt, as a shepherd putteth on his garment,] The meaning in general of this passage is agreed on, to wit, that by the land of Egypt is here meant the spoils of that countrey, which the Chaldean should gather together, and go away enriched with them: but about application of it to a shepherds wonted guise, there is some variety of opinion. One of the Jewish Masters would by the garments here mentioned, have understood the cloth, that the shepherd fetteth up for a tent, to shelter him, while he stayeth in some one place, but taketh down again and carrieth away with him, leaving nothing behind him, when he removeth to some other place; as they use oft to shift, Esay 13. 20. and so should the King of Babylon go from place to place in Egypt; and sweep all away with him, But this conceit needs lessly forceth the term and so the text: and some of ours therefore instead of his rent substituting his coat, go the same way, but keep closer to the term in the text. Another will have it allude to a shepherds wrapping himself up in his garment to keep himself warm, because in the wilderness he is to tend his flock as well by night as by day, Gen. 31. 40. 1 Sam. 25. 16. Luke 2. 8. which some of ours also follow. But other of ours referre it to the shepherds going forth in the morning to lead his sheep out to their pasture. (See Esay 40. 11. Chap. 31. 9. Josh. 10. 3, 4.) who is not wont to spend much time in arraying and dressing himself up, before he go out but casteth on his coat suddenly, and is by and by gone: and so should Nebuchadnezzar, without difficulty or long delay, as speedily and easily, seize on the wealth of Egypt, and go away with it. And others again, to his returning home at evening, when having fate all the heat of the day without his coat, or upper garment, (as the word seemeth properly to signifie, Gen. 9. 22.) while he tended his sheep in those hot regions, he casteth it on about him at evening, at such time as he goeth homeward. and in like manner should Nebuchadnezzar return at his leaving of Egypt, not naked or bare, (as men are said to be, when they want their upper garment. See Esay 20. 1.) but well clad, as with his coat, or upper garment about him. And this seems best to agree both with the drift of the Prophet, and the terms of the text. For as for that of the ancient Greek Interpreter, whom a learned Writer supposeth to have read chatas, for atah: and renders it, he shall purge Egypt as a shepherd purgeth his coat of lice. Which some expound, he shall at leisure ransack all Egypt, and seize on all her wealth and treasure; as shepherds are wont leisurely to look their clothes, and pick out their lice: it is but a louse interpretation (howsoever some seem to be much taken with it) grounded upon a corruption of the text: and so therefore I leave it.

and he shall go forth from thence in peace.] Or; depart (as Chap. 29. 2.) from thence in peace; that is, in safety, without hurt or losse, as 2 Sam. 3. 22, 23. 1 Kings 22, 27, 28. or, quietly; the Egyptians not daring nor being able to stirre, or to impeach him in his passage. So Exod. 11. 7. Psal 78. 53. See the like, Esay 10. 14. or, securely, saith a learned Writer, as a Shepherd that having cast on his coat, doth not fear in his return to be robbed or stript of it, before he get home. See the like prophecy of Nebuchadnezzar's conquest of Egypt, Ezek. 29, 19, 20, & 30. 19.

V. 13. He shall break also the images] Heb. And (as Chap. 1. 3.) he shall break (to shivers; for thence seems our English word shiver to have come) the statues, or, standing images. So the word properly signifies, Mic. 5. 13.

of Beth-shemesh] A prime city of Egypt, with them called anciently, On, Gen. 41. 45. the word signifieth the house of the sun; and it was famous for idolatry, in regard of a flately Temple, wherein the Sun was there worshipped, whereof Herodote, lib. 2. See Esay 19. 18.

that is, in the land of Egypt:] This is added to distinguish it from another city of the same name in Hebrew, situate in the land of Judah, Josh. 15. 10. 1 Sam. 6. 12.

and in the houses of the gods of the Egyptians shall he burn with fire.] The same in effect that was faid before, Verse 12. save that God is faid to kindle this fire there, and Nebuchadnezzar is faid to burn them with it here; who was therefore no other than Gods instrument in this act; as Sennacherib before him in other the like, Esay 10. 5 6, 15. & 37. 18, 19.

CHAP. XLIV.

Verse 1. THe word that came to Jeremiah, [In this Chapter is contained, 1. A fecond Sermon or message, brought from God by the Prophet, reproving and menacing the Jewish people in Egypt, not so much now for their disobedience in leaving their own land, and journeying into Egypt, contrary to Gods expresse command; as for that grosse and abominable idolatry that they committed when they had seated themselves in several parts of that land, Verse 1. —14. 2. The refractary carriage of the people upon the delivery of it, expreffly refusing to give any heed unto it, and professing a stiffe resolution to perfist in their idolatrous practises, Verse 15.——19. 3. The Prophets reply upon this their peremptory answer, Verse 20.——23. 4. A new message with the like menaces to the former, ratified by a solemn oath, with reserve of a few that should survive to see the accomplishment of it, Verse 24.——28. and confirmed by a signe that should be made good upon the person of the King of Egypt, under whole protection they there were, verse 29 30.

and in the countrey of Pathros, saying;] Another region in Egypt, that had its name from one of Misraims sifuse, Gen. 10. 14. supposed by some learned to be that which is commonly termed, Thebais; which they conjecture, partly, from some terms, though corrupted, of places therein situate, as the Phaturite canton in Pliny, and Pathyris a Town in Ptolomy; and partly, from the situation of it; which from hence they gather to have been higher, and farther up into the Countrey than Noph, or, Memphis; as Noph, or Memphis, than Migdol, or, Magdolus; as the Greeks and Latines term it. Of it, see also on Esay 11. 11. It is mentioned also, Ezek. 29. 14. & 30. 14.

V. 9. Have ye forgotten the wickednesse of your fathers, and the wickednesse of the Kings of Judah, and the wickednesse of their wives, and your own wickednesse, and the wickednesse of your wives, which they have committed in the land of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem?] See the like expostulations, Neh. 13. 18. Heb. evils; as verse 7. evill.

V. 10. They are not humbled even unto this day, neither have they feared; nor walked in my Law, nor in my statutes that I set before you, and before your fathers.] Or, How they have not been humbled, or, Yet they have not been humbled, Neither humbled by those afflictions, that for their sins have befallen them, nor been wrought thereby unto any sincere and serious compunctions of heart and contrition of spirit, for their sins the procuring causes thereof, 2 Chron. 36. 12, 13. Heb. have been contrite; as Esay 57 15. an, that I gave before you; as chap. 26. 4.

V. 11. Therefore thus saith the Lord of Hosts, the God of Israel,] As verse 2, Behold, I will set my face against you, for evill, and to cut off all Judah.] God threatneth to set his face against them purposely to do evill to them, Chap. 21. 10, Amos 9. 4. to cut them off, and destroy them, Lev. 20. 5. Psal. 34. 16. See verse 7. as they had obstinately set their faces to go into Egypt against his injunction to the contrary, chap. 42. 15, 19. verse 12. Thus God long before hand menaced to walk crosse, or, thwartingly with them, when they should walk so with him, Lev. 26. 27, 28. See Esay 66. 3, 4.

V. 12. And I will take the remnant of Judah that have set their faces to go into the land of Egypt to sojourn there,] Or, that did set their faces, that fixed their resolution to go thither, or, have set their faces to go; that is, out of a fixed resolution did go, and are come thither. See Chap. 42. 15. not those that were brought thither by constraint, as Jeremy and Baruc, Chap. 43 6.

Of these judgements, see before chap. 14. 22. & 15. 2, & 38, 2. & 42. 17. See verse 6.

V. 14. So that none of the remnant of Judah, which are gone into the land of Egypt to sojourn there, shall escape, or remain, that they should return into the land of Judah, to the which they have a desire to return to dwell there: for none shall return but such as shall escape.] This passage is by divers diversly rendred. Some render it, so that (Heb. And) there shall be none, that shall escape, and be left of the remnant of the Jewes that came into the land of Egypt to abide there; besides those that shall set their mind (Heb. lift up their soul; as Hos. 4. 8.) to return into the land of Judah, to return, I say, to dwell there. But how this Version may be fitted to the words of the text, I conceive not: that, besides, is without ground forced into the text. Our former Versions (save that of Geneva, which our last concurreth with) So that none of the remnant of Judah, which are gone to dwell in Egypt, shall be left to come again into the land of Judah, although they think to come thither again, and to dwell there.] But neither will the words of the text admit this; that although, findeth no place in it. The Ancient Greek gooth much the same way that our last doth. The old Latine a little otherwise; And there shall be none], that shall escape, and be left of the residue of who went to sojourn in the land of the Jewes, Egypt, and to returne into the land of Judah, to which they lift up their soule (that is, hope, or, desire; as chap. 22. 27.) to return to, and dwell there. As if their going into Egypt, yet mere joyned, with a purpose not to abide for ever there, but to sojourn there for a time, as Elimelec did in the land of Moab, Ruth 1. 1, 1. and the Shunamite with the Philistines, 2 Kings 8. 2. and when opportunity should be, which they hoped after some space of time would be, to return back into their own country again: and this the words of the text may well bear. And these all agree in the Verfion of the last clause, as ours here exhibiteth it: for none shall returne, but such as shall escape, or, some that shall escape; intimating yet, that there should be a reserve of some, but very few. See verse 28; But a learned Scholiast departing, in the connexion of this last clause, from all that went before him, thus exhibiteth it; So that there shall none escape, or remain to the remnant of Judah, to those that came into Egypt to abide there, and to return into the land of Judah: for they lift up their minds indeed to return to dwell there; but they shall not return, save those that escape. But how that for cometh in here, I conceive not, and leave it therefore to the judgement of others. The old Latine seemeth to have kept closeft to the terms of the text. Howbeit, I conceive that that which our Version exhibiteth, may well stand, if one of the copulatives in the text, be deemed superfluous, as oft it is, Psal. 7. 9. Job 23. 21. Chap 6. 25. Jon. 1. 1. for that, and to return, be rendred simply, to return. See chap. 22. 27. That of some, escaping, some of the Jewish Doctors expound of Jeremy and Baruch, whom out of their Talmudick Chronicles they tell, that Nebuchadnezzar, at his conquest of Egypt, sent back againe into Judea: but the words are indefinite; and whether they died or no, is uncertain.

V. 15. Then all the men which knew that their wives had burnt incense unto other gods, and all the women that stood by, a great multitude, even all the people that dwelt in the land of Egypt in Pathros, answered Jeremiah, saying,] Heb. And all, &c. as Chap. 43. 8. The effect of the message delivered from God to them by the Prophet here followeth. And in this verse is a defcription of the parties that return a peremptory answer of refusal and disobedience to it; to wit, such as were themselves guilty of the crime charged upon them. or that knew their wives so to be; by the great multitude of whom it appeareth how exceedingly this idolatrous practice had spread it self among them, as such evills are wont to do, 1 Cor. 5. 6. 2 Tim. 2. 17, 18. Heb. 12. 15. and the women seem to be the chief speakers in this peremptory answer. See verse 19.

V. 16. As for the word which thou hast spoken unto us in the name of the Lord, we will not hearken unto thee.] Heb. the word, put absolutely: as the like, Esth. 6. 7. Psal. 73. 28. Luke 21, 6. See the like peremptory answers, Chap. 6. 16, 17. and observe how they proceed from evill to worse, Chap. 9. 3. At first, it was no word of God, that the Prophet spake, Chap. 33. 2. Now though it be, yet they will not obey it: they were at defiance with Gods messenger before; now, with God himself; and his message.

V. 17. But we will certainly do whatsoever thing goeth forth out of our own mouth.] Heb. We will doing do (as chap. 22. 4.) every word (as chap. 43. 4.) hath gone forth from our mouth: whatsoever we have resolved upon, and have spoken, or have by solemn vow engaged our selves unto; as Judg. 11. 36. for.

for then had we plenty of victuals and were well, and saw no evill.] Heb. and (but the copulative is oft so used,as Esay 53. 2 Chap.38. 23. verse 13.) then (to be supplied, that it may cohere with verse 18.) we were satisfied with bread (we had our fill of it, as Prov.20. 13. & 28.19. & 30.22. Ezek.16. 49. bread, for, victuals in generall; as 1 Kings 4 22. N.b. 5. 18.) and we were good (that is, merry; we lived merrily: as,good with wine, that is, merry with it; 2 Sam.13. 28 Esth.1.10.and, a good heart, for, a merry, or, a cheerfull heart Prov. 13.13 15. & 17.22.) and we saw not evill; felt none,suffered none,endured none,had no experience of any evill;as ch.5.12.& 42.14 A fecond reason why they would not leave their wonted guil.s, from the plenty and prosperity that they had enjoyed while they used them, as ibing to their idols, and idolatrous services, the good things, that God bestowed upon them. See Acts 14.17. See of their proneneſſe hereunto, Esay 48. 5. and their practice herein Hos. 2. 7, 8. The usual argument of blind and lorry creatures, the ignorant popish sort among us, What a merry time it was; and how cheap and plentifull all things were, before this new Gospel came in, when they had nothing but masse and matins.

V. 18. But since we left off to burn incense to the Queen of Heaven, and powred out drink-offerings unto her, we have wanted all things, and have been consumed by the sword, and by the famine.] Heb. And (as verse 17.) from then; as Gen.39. 5. Ruth.2.7. Thus profane and godleſſe wretches measure religion by their belly; will serve God no longer than he fredeth them to their fill; and fatisfieth their unlimited lusts;and prone to impute as their plenty when they enjoy it, to their idols, so their penury and scarcity when they are pinched with it, to any other calamity that befalleth them, to their neglect, not of God, but of them.

V. 19. And when we burnt incense to the Queen of Heaven; and poured out drink-offerings unto her, did we make her cakes to worship her, and pour out drink offerings unto her without our men?] Their husbands, they mean, as Gen. 3. 16. whose approbation of what in this kind they did, it seemeth that they deemed warrant sufficient to bear them out in doing of it. And hence it appeareth, that the women here took upon them to answer the Prophet, as well as the men, yea, may seem to have been the chief and forwardeſt in this bad buſineſſe; as was Jezabel with Ahab, 1 Kings 21. 25. See verse 24.26. Of the cakes here mentioned, see before, on chap.7.18.

to worship her] Or, to worship, simply: the termination of the verb here used, seemig rather to be a lyllabicall adjection, than a pronoun feminine affixed. Some render it, not amiſſe, to idolize, or, make an idoll, to wit, of her, or its or, to do idol-service to her, or it: as framed for a term that is used for an idoll. Esay 48. 5. for that which one of the Jewiſh Doctors hath, who expoundeth it, of drawing figures of Idols on the cakes they made for that superſtitious fervice, seemeth not so probable: and that much leſſe that another hath, who interpreteth it, to chear her, or, make her merry; by an Antiphraſis: for the word rather ſignifieth to grieve, or, put to pain; whence Jabets had his name, 1 Chr.4.9. and idols likewiſe juſtly theirs. See Pſal. 16. 4. A learned late Writer, becauſe in the Ethiopick tongue the like term ſignifies to be precious, Mar.14.3. Luke 12.23, from hence deemeth that it may ſignifie here to make precious: and knitting to the next word, rendreth it, in making precious, and pouring out liquors; which he interpreteth, in pouring out precious, or, coſtly liquors: as, he digged, and made deep, for, he digged deep, Luke 6.48. That which I ſhall refer to the conſideration of others.

V. 20. Then Jeremiah ſaid unto all the people, to the men, and to the women, and to all the people, which had given him that answer, ſaying,] Jeremies reply followeth to this peremptory anſwer, acquainting them with the true cauſe of all the evills that had befallen them; to wit, not the neglect of their idoll-services, but their perſiſting ſo long in them; which though for a while ſometime under ſome religious Kings they intermitted, yet eſt-ſoons they returned unto again, and that theſe their idolatrous praſtiſes, God, though he long forbare them, yet would not endure for ever: but at length for the ſame, inflicted thoſe evills upon them, verſe 21.---23. preſumptions, which ſhould be fruſtrated and annulled, Pſal. 33. 10,11, Esay 14. 24,26, 27.

V. 30. Thus ſaith the Lord, Behold I will give Pharaoh Hophra King of Egypt into the hand of his enemies: and into the hand of them that ſeek his life;] God in theſe words, as he pointed them before unto the inſtruments, and the perſons of thoſe, by whom the judgement denounced ſhould be put into execution upon them, Chap.43. 10. ſo here he foretelleth them of ſomewhat that ſhould forego and make way for it. There is a two-fold queſtion here moved; the one who this Hophra,or,Cobphra ſhould be? the other,who it ſhould be into whoſe hands, he was given. For the former, ſome of the Jewiſh Maſters ſuppoſe, that there is no proper name at all here of any Egyptian King, but that Hophra, or, Chophra is by change of a letter (Chet, or, Het, put for He) Pharaoh inverted, to note the overturning or overthrow of him: and the Chaldee ſeemeth to go much the ſame way, rendring it, I will give, or, make Pharaoh rebira; that is, a confraction,or, breaken. But this ſeemeth of the ſame ſtamp with other their Talmudical toyes; It is rather by the moſt deemed, that this Hophra, is that king of Egypt, whom the Greeks call Apries, being nephew, or ſons ſon to Necho; in fight with whom Joſias was ſlain, 2 Kings 23. 29. and herein moſt concurre. But concerning the party unto whoſe power he was delivered, there is more difficulty and diverſity of opinion. For ſome conceive that this Hophra or Apries, was, by ſedition, moved among his people, depoſed, and one Amaſis ſet up in his room; who for a time kept him alive under reſtraint, but for his own better ſecurity afterward ſlew him. So Herodote reporteth it, lib. 2. and this, ſay ſome, made way for Nebuchadnezzar to ſeize the eaſier upon Egypt, the Egyptians having been divided among themſelves, and not well cemented yet again. But others rather conceive it to be meant of Nebuchadnezzar, and the Chaldeans ſees, who under this Hophra,or,Apries,invaded Egypt: Howſoever that Greek Authours make no mention of any ſuch their expedition into thoſe parts, either under Apries or any his ſucceſſours, following onely ſuch relations of thoſe times, as he had from the Egyptian Prieſts, who would tell him no ſtories,but ſuch as might ſtand with the honour and reputation of their own nation. But to this purpoſe Joſeph the Jew relleth us in his Antiquities, lib.10 cap.11 that Nebuchadnezzar in the twenty and third of his reign, about five years after the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, having ſubdued the Moabites, and the Ammonites, invaded Egypt, ſlew their King, ſpoyled their countrey, and carried away the Jews that he found there captive to Babylon. For my part, I doubt not but this Hophra was then King of Egypt, when that Chaldean King invaded that countrey, as was foretold he ſhould do, Chap. 43. 10. & 46. 13. 26. a place parallel to this, Ezek. 29. 19 & 30. 10,11. Howbeit, as concerning Joſeph's relation, to let paſſ: his computation of times, which is nothing exact here, (See 2 Kings 24.12. & 25. 8.) that he ſaith concerning this deportation of the Jews out of Egypt to Babylon, ſeemeth not true; God threatneth the contrary, that they ſhould die in Egypt, where at preſent they were, Chap.42. 16 verſe 12. See the like, Hoſ. 9. 6. and it is not improbable that Nebuchadnezzar would the rather do execution there upon them, being enraged againſt the nation, as well for the murther of Gedaliah and his officers with him, though acted by others, Chapter 41. 3. as for their repairing for ſhelter to the Chaldeans to Egypt, unto whom he had a quarrell againſt the Chaldeans to Egypt, unto whom he had a quarrell before for the like office, Chap. 37. 5. and unto his ſword they were now expoſed, having gone out of the verge of Gods proteſtion. See Chap. 42. 10.---16. Howſoever, the ſlaughter of this Hophra (under whoſe wing they ſuppoſed themſelves ſafe and ſecure) by ſome hoſtile force, which they ſhould ſurvive to ſee, was to be unto them an undoubted ſign and fore-runner of their enſuing ruine and deſtruction.

Verſ. 1. THe word of the Lord which came to Ieremiah the Prophet againſt the Gentiles,] From this place, enſueth a recital of divers prophecies againſt ſeveral Nations; the moſt, ſuch as were to be ſubdued and ſubjugated by the Babylonian Monarchy; as Egypt Chap.46.Paleſtine, Chap. 47.Moab, Chapter 48. Ammon, Chap 49. 1. Edom.Chap.49. 7. Damaſcus Chap. 49.23.Kedar, Chap. 49. 28. and Elam, Chap. 49. 34. And laſtly, againſt the Babylonian Empire it ſelf, Chap. 50. & 51. And this verſe ſeemeth to contain a common Title or inſcription, belonging in generall to them all. See the like, Eſay, 1, 1. Chapter, 1. 1.

V. 2. Againſt Egypt] Or, Concerning Egypt. Heb. unto Egypt: but the particle is uſed ſometime for, concerning; as chapter 41. 1. and ſometime for, againſt: as Chapter 34. 7. with the Egyptians the rather he ſeemeth to begin, becauſe Gods people were too prone to rely upon them, Eſay, 30. 1. and 31. 1. and 36. Chapter 2. 18.36. and 37. 5. and 41. 17, 18. and 42. 14. Ezekiel 29. 6 7, 16.

againſt the Army of Pharao-Nechoh King of Egypt,] Or, concerning; as Eſay 1.1. c.23.2. & 49. 1. This Pharao-Nechoh was the ſon of Pſammetichus, and was King of Egypt in Joſias time, who was alſo ſlain by him in fight; 2 Kings 23. 29.

which was by the river Euphrates in Carchemiſh, which Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon ſmote in the fourth year of Jehoiakim the ſon of Joſiah King of Judah.] Of this Carchemiſh, ſee on Eſay 10.9. held held it about Ezekiahs time. But the Egyptian King in Josiahs dayes, went with an Army towards those parts; to recover it from them, which whether he did at that time, is not certain; yet is not unlikely but that he might. Howbeit whither making a second attempt to the same purpose in Jehojakims reign, or the Chaldeans, now masters of the Assyrian Monarchy, seeking then to regain it back from him; he and his forces opposing them, were then foiled, as by this place appeareth; yea his strength so impaired, and he so stript of all that before he held between Euphrates and Egypt, that he never durst in person stirre abroad again out of Egypt, 2 Kings 24. 7. And this great overthrow was by Jeremy foretold some space of time before the same, in this Prophecy, though after it was entred into, and recorded in this latter volume with the rest. The former part of this chapter, is concerning this foile given to Pharao, Verse 3---13. the latter part concerning the conquest of his country. Verse 14---26. with a close of comfort and encouragement to Gods faithfull people, containing a promise of protection and restitution, Verse 27, 28.

V. 3. Order ye the buckler and shield, and draw near to battell,] Or, Prepare, or, Weld; the word is used sometime of preparing and furnishing of the table; as Prov. 9. 2. Esay 21. 1. sometime, of fitting armour for fight, or welding it in fight, 1 Chron 12.8. The Prophet maketh entrance into the prediction of this overthrow that should be given to Egypt, with an ironical incitement of them, to make all the warlike preparations that they could, to encounter the Chaldeans and their forces, with whom they were to joyn battell, verse 3,4. but withall implying that all would be in vain, they should not dare, or be able to stand to it, verse 5, 6. of the defensive warlike implements here mentioned, See also Esa 25. 2,3. Esay 22. 6.

V. 4. Harnesse the horses,] Heb. Bind; either, saddle and girt them, as some; or rather, make them fast to the chariots, which they are to draw in. So 1 Kings 18.44. See 2 Kings 9. 21. Mich. 1. 13. where the charet is said to be bound in the one place; the beasts that draw in it to the charet in the other.

and get up ye horsemen,] To wit, into the charets; in those times much used in war. See Esay 21. 7, 9.

and stand forth with your helmets:] Heb. set your selves, or, present your selves; as it is rendred, 1 Sam. 10. 19.

furbish the spears,] O, polish; as 2 Chron. 4. 16. great care there was anciently among the souldiery, commanders and officers especially, to have their arms glitter, and put on the brigandines.] Or, corslets, or, coats of male: the terms here used is more commonly found writ n with another letter, to wit, with shin; as Esay 59. 17. with samec here onely, and chap 51.3.

V. 5. Wherefore have I seen them dismaid,and turned away back?] Or, wherefore do I see (as if he beheld in vision what he related, as chap 4.23 to wit, their affrightment, flight, and shamefull, discomfiture) that they (to wit the Egyptian souldiery for all their gallant preparations) are dismaid, and recoile; turn back upon the enemy. See the like chap. 30 6.

and their mighty ones are beaten down,) Or, and that their mighty men (such as should support and stay the rest) are beaten down; to carry it on in the same tenour with the former. Heb. are broken to pieces: as Mich. 1. 7.

and are fled apace,] Or, and fled apace] Heb. fled a flight; or, fled with flight.

and looked not backe:] Or, look not back. So chap. 47. 3.

for fear was round about, saith the Lord.] Or: fear being round about: or, by reason of fear on every side: a defect of the particle for; as Mal. 2. 5 of this proverbial form, see chap. 6. 25. & 20. 3. 10.

V. 6. Let not the swift flee away nor the mighty man escape] Or, The swift shall not flee away: (that is, escape by flight; as chap. 25 35. see Esay 30.16.) nor shall the mighty man escape, Psal. 33. 16, 17. neither shall be able to save himself, nor the one by flight, nor the other by his might, Amos 2. 14 15. for the particle here used is not always an inhibitive, but sometime a bare negative. See on Esay 2. 9.

they stumble and fall) As Psal. 27 2. Esay. 8. 15. being discomfited by the Chaldean forces, Verse 12, 13.

toward the North] Or, in the North; in the Northern parts: for Carchemish where this overthrow was given, verse 2. lay Northward from Egypt; and the paragogical addition doth sometime denote not a motion to the place, whereunto it is affixed, but a stay, or act done in it, as, on the ground. Gen. 28. 12. and, on the altar, Exod. 29. 13, 18 and, in Babel, chap. 29. 15. and so it is expounded here, verse 10.

by the river Euphrates] Heb. upon the hand; that is, place, or region, near Euphrates, on the banks whereof Carchemish was situate: hand, for, place; as chap. 6. 3. or, side, as 1 Sam. 19. 3. and by the hand of Jordan, Numb. 13. 29. that is, beside it, on the bank, or the coast of it. So also Josh. 15. 46.

V 7. Who is this that cometh up as a flood, whose waters are moved as the rivers?] Or, stir themselves, as the waters of rivers: of many joyned together, more than one. See Esay 11. 15, the word waters supplyed from the former member; as Psalm 92. 10. chap. 6. 23. and the verb importeth a vehement concussion, either through fear from without, Psal. 18. 7. or force and violence from within, as Chap. 5. 22. and so here so rather, than as that learned Annotator, her floods are troubled. or, muddy; as alluding to the slimyness of Nilus its waters. See chap. 2. 18. Esay 23. 3. The Prophet in this passage describeth the great preparations that the Egyptian King had made for this expedition, and with what multitudes of men, and shew of valour and vigorousnesse; they set forward to the place of encounter, as if the waters of their river Nilus, or of Euphrates had broken thorow their sea walls, or got over their banks, and with a stream irresistibly bore down all before them. See the like, Esay 8. 7. & 59. 19. chap. 49. 19. And he speaketh it, as if he beheld Pharaoh Necho's marching out of his own land with a vast army, overspreading the face of the country, and proceeding without resistance. See the like, Esay 63. 1.

V. 8. Egypt riseth up like a flood, and his waters are moved like the rivers; and he saith, I will go up, and cover the earth, I will destroy the city, and the inhabitants thereof.] The Egyptian forces they are that rile and swell and surround their banks, as their river is wont to do; and make full account to cover the face of the countrey, and to carry all away before them, and with their impetuous assaults to beat either the city of Carchemish, as that against which their expedition was principally intended, Verse 2. down to the ground, and destroy her inhabitants, fee on verse 7. or city, that is, cities; (for the article is not in the text, city put collectively for cities, as Esay 25. 2.) and their inhabitants: whatsoever cities or people shall come or stand in my way. See chap. 47. 2. the like: and see the like peremptory Egyptian vaunts in confidence of his forces, yet all blown away with a blast of Gods breath, Exo. 15. 9, 10.

V. 9. Come up, ye horses, and rage, ye chariots, and let the mighty men come forth,] Before the Prophet had by way of derision incited them to make what preparations they were able to make for their expedition then at hand, Verse 3, 4. now in like manner he calleth upon them, as being come near to the place of encounter, and ready to joyn battel with the adverse party, to come on gallantly, and in fierce and furious manner fee upon fight.

rage] beſtirre themselves, as if they were wood or mad; so the word properly signifieth, 1 Sam. 21. 14. Psal. 102. 8 Eccl. 2. 2. So it is used also, chap. 25, 27 & 50. 38. & 51. 7. Nah. 2. 4. where it is applyed to chariots, or cavallery, as here: the verb is plural; because the noun, though singular, yet is collective, and might not amisse be rendred cavallery, both here, and Exod. 14. 7. all the cavallery of Egypt.

the Ethiopians,] Heb. Cusli, or, the Cushites, the Egyptians kinsmen and allies coming both of Cham, Gen. 10. 6. near neighbours and confederates, Esay 18. 1, & 20. 4. Ezek. 30. see more of them, chap. 13. 23.

and the Lybians that handle the shield,] Heb. Phut, or, Put, or, Phuth: people of the same race with the former, Gen. 10. 6. 1 Chron. 1. 8. seated in Africa to the West of Egypt; in which parts was sometime a city of the same name mentioned by Ptolomy, and a river likewise that in latter times retained the same appellation. See Pliny, l. 5. c. 1. Joseph in his Antiquities, l. 1. c. 7.

and the Lydians that handle and bend the bow.] Heb. handlers, and treaders, of the bow; as chap. 50. 14 29. and two regents to one subject, as the like, Deut. 33. 19 Job 20. 17. Esay 19. 11. Of this name are two found in Moses his Antiquities, one the son of Sem of whom came the Lydians in Asia, Gen. 10. 22. another the son of Mitsraim, from whom descended the Lydians in Africa, Gen. 10. 13. and of these latter a learned Writer would have to be the Lydians here mentioned, and to be no other than those who are now termed Ethiopians; the rather for that they are here brought in as auxiliaries to the Egyptians, and have a peculiar mark fee upon them, as noted for skill in archery. See Esay 66. 19.

V. 10. For this is the day of the Lord God of Hosts, a day of vengeance, that he may avenge him of his adversaries:] Or, as some rather render the copulative particle, taking it in a diferetive, or adversative notion, But. They mind one thing, but God intendeth another; as chap. 33. 5. Mic. 4. 12. They make account to carry away all hand-smooth before them; but it will prove farse otherwise, God in this expedition hath a purpose to take vengeance upon them to the purpole, which to this time, as a day of affiie or execution, he hath hitherto deferred. So Esay 61. 2. & 63. 4. chap. 51. 6.

and the sword shall devour, it shall be satiate, and made drunk with their blood:] It shall be glutted with their flesh, and drenched with their bloud. See Esay 34. 6.

for the Lord God of hosts hath a sacrifice in the North-country by the river Euphrates.] Or, a slaughter: as Esay 34. 6. and of the place before, verse 2. 6.

V. 11. Go up into Gilead, and take balme;] Or. Go (as Gen. 13. 1. & 19. 30. & 26. 23.) to Gilead; where the best balm was to be had for the cure of wounds, chap. 8. 22. implying that the hurt that Egypt should receive by the blow that should now be given to that State, should prove incurable, and irrecoverable, Ezek. 30. 21---25. See the like of Babylon, chap. 51. 8, 9.

O Virgin, the daughter of Egypt:] Or, O damsel, daughter of Egypt: nor, as some, Virgin; because unconquered: it is a term usually given to great and goodly States, compared to some faire and beautifull damsel, the daughter of some great person, living deliciously, faring, delicately, sumptuously & gorgeously attired, brought up suitable to his state, whose daughter she is and, as is with such usual, prideing her self in her bravery & her beauty. See Esai 47. 1. So verse 20.

in vain shalt thou use many medicines:] Heb. multiply medicines: as multiply washing, Psa 51. 2. and multiply sope, chap. 2. 22. no medicine will heal, or help against the stroke of Gods hand, Hos 5. 13.

for thou shalt not be cured. Or, without the for, which is not in the Text, thou canst not be cured; the verb in a potential notion: as chap 2. 23 32. Heb. no cure shall be to thee. See chap. 30. 13.

V. 12. The Nations have heard of thy shame,] Of thy shamefull

and thy cry hath filled the land.] The out-cryes and lamentations for their defeat and losse of their men, is gone over the whole countrey. See the like of Moab, Esay 15. 5, 8. Chap. 48. 34. and the same term used, Psal. 144. 14. Chap. 14. 2.

for the mighty man hath stumbled against the mighty, and they are fallen both together.] That is, saith a learned late Writer, the Egyptians against the Chaldeans against whom they come forth, but fell before them in fight verf. 6. and those that go this way, render the latter clause, and they shall both fall alike; as the Egyptians by the Chaldeans now, so the Chaldeans hereafter by the Medes and Persians, Chap. 50. 32. Others, not altering the received Version, understand it of the Chaldeans and Egyptians falling one upon another, and making much slaughter of men on either side: and so many of either party falling together as did those, 2 Sam. 2. 16. But the generality of Interpreters, both Jewish and others, expound it all of the Egyptians, their mighty men, that stumble one upon another, as in a confused flight is wont to be; those that first fled, some of them stumbling at somewhat in the way, and those that come after them, before they are able to recover themselves, stumbling at, and upon them, & so both coming to the ground together.

V. 13. The word that the Lord spake to Jeremiah the Prophet, how Nebuchadrezzar King of Babylon should come, and smite the land of Egypt.] Heb. concerning (as Psalm 91. 11.) his coming to smite the land of Egypt. Here beginneth a new prophesie; but this also, like the former, concerning Egypt; that onely of a difcomfiture that as the former against Egypt; that onely of a difcomfiture that the Chaldean forces should give Pharao-Nechoh's army in a forreign land, in the time of Jehojakims reign, verse 2. this of their invasion of the Egyptians own country, and the subduing of it; which was done divers years after that overthrow, sometime after both Zedekiahs reign, and the dissolution of the Jewish State, in another Egyptian Kings reign. See Chap. 43. 10---15. and 44. 30. of this expedition, see also Ezek. 29. and 30.

V. 14. Declare ye in Egypt, and publish in Migdol, and publish in Noph, and in Tahpanhes:] Of these places, see before on chap. 44. 1. that is, in all parts of Egypt; say some, in Migdol, toward the East; in Tahpanhes, toward the North; in Noph, toward the South: for as for the Western part, it lay out of the Chaldean way. But not to stand scanning of this Chorography; these places seem rather here mentioned, because the Jewish fugitives had in these places most of them settled themselves, to let them know what was like to befall them, being by the Chaldeans found there.

publish] Heb. make to hear, as chap. 4. 5, 16.

for the sword shall devour round about thee.] Heb. hath devoured round about thee; and so the ancient both Greek and Latine render it. As for the Greek that rendreth it, Call ye the name of Pharaa Necho King of Egypt, Sein Exkie Mede: which the Syriack is said to render, One that disturbeth and trasplateth the times: and the old Latine rendring somewhat in the same track, Call ye the name of Pharao, Time hath brought tumults: which so parallel with that, Esai 8. 2. they wrong the Text, both by corrupting it, and confounding one member with another. I adhere to the first, as the most familiar, and most generally received. I shall add onely, that i conceive the words may well be rendred, Pharao the King of Egypt, is a King of noise. See of the like supply, verf. 7. 8.

there] So hath the Text sham; which these last turn into shem, a name: there, at Carchemish, say some, where the fight was, verf. 2. and then Necoh should be the King here intended, as the Greek would have it, inserting over boldly his name into the Greek would have it, inserting over boldly his name into the Text: or in Egypt his own country; as others rather: for this latter concerne it not a fore-going fight abroad, but the conquest of it; and so Hophra should rather be the party here implied, Chap 44 30.

he hath passed the time appointed.] So both the Jewish Doctors, and some Greek Versions, and most of our Interpreters. He hath let slip his opportunities, or the fit season for action, and warlike employments: not unlike that, Chap. 8. 20. where they complain in like manner, that the times of year for such affairs were over; and yet they were not relieved by such succours, in likelyhood, as from Egypt they then expected. And the most conceive this as from Egypt they then expected. And the most conceive this as from Egypt they then expected. Howbeit, to be the speech of the foreign souldiery, as before. Howbeit, because the word here used doth sometime signifie solemne meetings and festivals, Esay 1. 14. a learned late Writer would therefore stood, (for, could stand) before you; because the Lord driveth them. It is an answer to the former question, no marvel if they can not stand to it, or stay by it (as the word also is used, Deut. 5. 31.) because the Lord purposeth them: it is he that by the Chaldeans driveth them before him. It may seem an allusion to that speech of theirs at the red-Sea, recorded by Moses, Exod. 14. 25. See verse 21.

V. 16. He made many to fall, yea, one fell upon another,] Heb. He multiplied the faller (as before ver. 12.) and a man fell upon his neighbour or friend, or fellow, that is, each one (as chap. 34. 9.) upon another; as Lev. 26. 37. chap 19. 9. and 36. 16. See on ver. 12.

and they said, Arise, and let us go again to our own people, and to the land of our nativity from the oppressing sword.] The speeches of hired souldiers of other nations, that assisted, or served under the Egyptians, repenting them of their undertakings when they began to perceive what the issue of them would be. See the like of those that were assistants to Babylon, chap. 51. 9. See also, verf. 21. Of the last clause, see before on chap. 25. 38. the meaning is plain, from the sword, or force of the Chaldeans that destroyeth all before it, ver. 14. For as for that which the Chaldee here exhibiteth, and some of the Jewish Doctors admit, rendring it, the wintry sword, or, the sword drunk as with wine, verf. 10. It is both too far-fetcht, and hath no good analogy. And for that which the ancient Greek hath from the Grecian sword; as if it came from Javan: it swarveth from analogy as well as the former, and is directly against the history; as also what the old Latine yieldeth, from the face of the Dove: though the word sometime so signifie; as Hosea 7. 11. yet hath no place here: howsoever Pagnin with Writers to maintain that vitious Version, some of them tell us, that the Chaldeans and Assyrians had a dove in their ensigns; in memory of Queen Semiramis, who was either nursed and fed by a dove, or turned into a dove: and other of them, because that is a groundlesse relation, and they finde the same used of the Persian sword, Chap 50. 16. would have the Chaldean forces so termed for their swiftnesse, Chap. 4. 13 and 48. 40. as winged like a dove, Psalm 55. 6. But the collation of places, where the same term is used, refelleth all these fancies.

land of nativity] As Gen 31. 13. and 32. 9.

V. 17. They did cry there, Pharao King of Egypt is but a noise:] The continued speech of Pharaoh's foreign auxiliaries, uttered in contempt of Pharaoh, as if he were nothing but a found of words, or a noise, like one of those tinckling cymbals or jingles, to rife in his countrey. See Esay 18. 1. which may seem here alluded to; as the like, 1 Cor. 13. 1. one that vaunted and bragged, promised and menaced much; made a great bluster and buskling, but performed nothing; so is the word commonly used for noise and tumult, or, a tumultuous noise, Psalm 74. 23 Esay 14. 8 and 25. 5. Chap. 40 45 and 51. 55 The restrictive particle is supplied: as Job 8. 9. Chap. 37. 10. yet some retaining the notion of the term, would have it, the speech of Pharaoh's forreigne auxiliaries, flattering their King, and perswading him that the Prophet Jeremies words, concerning the great overthrow that should be given him were but empty words, were but winde; as they, chap. 5. 13. Others, because the root whence it cometh hath a notion of devastation, and wastenesse, would have the word here so to signifie, and to be the speech of the people complaining of their King, that he is one of a tumultuous and restlesse disposition (taking in with all the former notion) and one that thereby is like to bring nothing but devastation and destruction upon this whole countrey and himself. But I finde not where the word here used hath the notion here assigned it. As for the Greek that rendreth it, Call ye the name of Pharaa Necho King of Egypt, Sein Exkie Mede: which the Syriack is said to render, One that disturbeth and trasplateth the times: and the old Latine rendring somewhat in the same track, Call ye the name of Pharao, Time hath brought tumults: which so parallel with that, Esai 8. 2. they wrong the Text, both by corrupting it, and confounding one member with another. I adhere to the first, as the most familiar, and most generally received. I shall add onely, that i conceive the words may well be rendred, Pharao the King of Egypt, is a King of no se. See of the like supply, verf. 7. 8.

there] So hath the Text sham; which these last turn into shem, a name: there, at Carchemish, say some, where the fight was, verf. 2. and then Necoh should be the King here intended, as the Greek would have it, inserting over boldly his name into the Greek would have it, inserting over boldly his name into the Text: or in Egypt his own country; as others rather: for this latter concerne it not a fore-going fight abroad, but the conquest of it; and so Hophra should rather be the party here implied, Chap 44 30.

he hath passed the time appointed.] So both the Jewish Doctors, and some Greek Versions, and most of our Interpreters. He hath let slip his opportunities, or the fit season for action, and warlike employments: not unlike that, Chap. 8. 20. where they complain in like manner, that the times of year for such affairs were over; and yet they were not relieved by such succours, in likelyhood, as from Egypt they then expected. And the most conceive this as from Egypt they then expected. Howbeit, to be the speech of the foreign souldiery, as before. Howbeit, because the word here used doth sometime signifie solemne meetings and festivals, Esay 1. 14. a learned late Writer would therefore have it so here to signifie, and to be the voice of the people, complaining, that by reason of their Kings tumultuous and turbulent counsels, and the troubles and devastations, which thereby he had brought upon the State, they had not opportunity to observe their solemne festivals, as in times past they had wont to do. But this I leave to the judgement of others.

V. 18. As I live] The usual form of an oath (chap. 44 26.) God himself here useth, as Chap. 22. 24.

saith the King] The Soveraign Lord of heaven and earth, Psal. 103. 19. Mal. 1. 14. Mat. 11. 25.

whose name is the Lord of Hosts] See Esai 47 4. and 48. 2. Chap. 48. 15.

Surely, as Tabor is among the mountains, and as Carmel by the sea, so shall he come.] Or, it shall come: Tabor, a mountain of the Tribe of Issachar, Josh. 19. 22. Judge 4. 6, 14. called in the Greek Version, Itabyrium, supposed commonly, but groundlesly, to have been the place of our Saviours transfiguration, Mat. 17. 1. Carmel another mountain situate in the confines of Asher and Issachar, not far from the Midland-sea-coast, and extending it self into the land near to mount Tabor, Josh. 19. 26. 1 King. 18. 42, 43. Amos 9. 3. The meaning is, as some of the Jewish Commenters, and others, As sure as these two mountains keep their several settled situations, and fixed seats; so assuredly shall that which I now fore-tell and threaten, come to passe and be effected. Whereunto some add, that there is here an allusion to two ancient stories; the one of Barac, going down against Sisera from mount Tabor, Judge 4. 14. the other, of that storm of rain, the approach whereof Elias descried from mount Carmel, 1 King. 19. 41, 42. as if it were said, the King of Babel shall as surely come upon Egypt, as Barack did with his forces upon Sisera from Tabor, and the storm of rain, that Elias fore-saw and fore-told, from Carmel. But this seemeth over-nice and needlesse. Others thus understand and open it, As Tabor advanceth it self above, and over-looketh, and commandeth the lesser hills, and lower grounds, round about it, and Carmel the Sea near unto it; So shall Nebuchadnezzar come into Egypt to subdue, and bring under the whole countrey, both before, and on every side of him. And lastly, some later Interpreters, Though (as Josh. 17 18. Psalm 23. 4) the Egyptians be as Tabor among the hills, and as Carmel that goeth, (or, reacheth) unto the sea; that is, albeit, they seem as well secured, both by sea and land, as Tabor that is encompassed with hills, and Carmel that hath the Sea near to it; yet shall these things befall them. So should there be a defect of the reddition, or latter part of the sentence, and application of it to the present purpose: not unlike that, Psalm 48. 7. Matth. 25. 14. Marc. 13. 14. And this seemeth not improbable; more probable sure, than that far-fetcht conceit of a great Jewish Master, who would have Tabor and Carmel here mentioned, to intimate, that the Chaldean forces should hunt the Egyptians, as men used to hunt Deer, or other wilde beasts on mount Tabor, Hosea 5. 1. and that they should carry them away captive, as merchandise used to be transported in shipping, built of the Timber-trees growing on mount Carmel: though the words next following imply this latter.

V. 19. O thou daughter] Of this title, see on verf. 11.

dwelling in Egypt,] That seemeth to have there a sure seat of constant abode; as chap. 10 17. and 21. 13.

furnish thy self to go into captivity;] Heb. make thee instruments, or, implements of captivity; or, captivity furniture. So Ezek. 12. 1.

for Noph shall be waste and desolate without an inhabitant] Or, Memphis, See Chap. 44. 1. verse 14. and of the like condition, Chap. 9. 10.

V. 20. Egypt is like a very fair heifer;] Or, calf. So the word is rendred, Psal. 106. 19. Chap. 34. 18. A rich and goodly Kingdom, and not enured to the yoke of subjection; as Hosea 10. 11. Though in the word heifer, some suppose an allusion to Apis the Bull, and Mneuis the Cow, adored with them, as deities. See Herodote, lib. 2. and verse 5. And the Epithet here given her, arising from a root that hath a notion of beauty, some make but one word, but in a doubled form; as the verb in cometh of is found, Psalm 45. 2. Others divide it into two words, and render it, fair of face: as, fair of visage, Genes. 12. 11. and, fair of shape, Deut. 21. 11. Heb. of mouth: and the latter word here used, though no where found in the singular form, as here, yet in the plural it is found, Judge 3. 16. Prov. 5. 4. But others go a step further, and deem it a compound of three simple terms, fair face, or mouth, and God, and to signifie fair of face to God; as it is said of Moses, that he was pretty, or, comely to God, Act. 7. 20. as being of the same form with those emphatical words, a flame of God, for, a most intense flame, Cant. 8. 6. and, a mist of God, for, a most thick mist, Chap. 2. 31. Howsoever it be for the genuine frame of the word; (for a two-fold exception may be taken to these latter: one, that the term of mouth is hardly found used in Hebrew for face, though in Latine nothing is more common; another that in those forms a point is usually in the belly of the last letter, which is wanting in this) yet certain it is, and generally acknowledged, that the word importeth an eminency of goodlinesse and beauty.

but destruction cometh; it cometh out of the north.] Heb. cutting out, or, cutting up, from the north cometh, or, coming cometh; for I suppose the former to be a participle, the latter a verb; as Heb. 10 37. though for the participle the verb infinitive be found, Habb. 2. 3. howbeever, the gemination argueth the certainty of it, as in that of Habbakuk, and in that of Ezekiel 7. 6. An end is come, the end is come: it is come: and the word rendred destruction, no where else found, save in the Writings of the Talmudists, where it is said to be used for the killing, and cutting up of a beast; (onely the word whence it springeth in that notion Job 33. 6. where man is said to have been cut out of clay) may well be deemed to have some respect to the former similitude of an heifer; as if it were said, from the North (that is, from Chaldea, lying North from those parts, chap. 1. 14. and 4. 6. and 6. 1.) shall slaughter-men come (so the Chaldee rendreth it) that is, sacrificers, or butchers that shall kill and cut up this fair heifer, or fat calf.

V. 21. Also her hired men are in the midst of her, like fatted bullocks:] Her souldiery likewise of forreign forces, hired from abroad, (see ver. 16.) that are with her, or within her, in her countrey (see ver. 19. Heb. in the midst of her, as Esay 5. 18.) are like fatted, or, stalled bullocks. (Heb. bullocks of the stall, as calves or, heifers of the stall, Mal. 4. 3. and, calves out of the midst of the stall, for, out of the stall, Amos 6. 4.) they are fat, & lusty, and in appearance likely to perform, and go through with whatsoever they undertake: the Prophet perstiteth in the same similitude that he used before, v. 19. Egypt like a goodly fair calf, or heifer, and her souldiery like fatlced oxen, or bullocks. See Chap. 50. 11. the note of similitude wanting there, as Psal. 11. 1. Elay 21. 8. is here expressed.

for they also are turned back, and are fled away together;] Or, rather, but: for the particle here is in no doubt, but in a disjunctive notion; as Chap. 43. 3. as strong, and stout, as they seem to be they turn their backs, or necks (as the Hebrew phrase is, and the word there to be supplied; as Josh. 7 8. Psal. 18. 40.) to the enemy, and instead of fighting, betake themselves to flight. See ver. 5. and the like, Elay 22. 2, 3.

because the day of their calamity was come upon them, and the time of their visitation.] See ver. 10. So chap. 50. 27.

V. 22. The voice thereof shall go like a Serpent,] Or, Her voice, that is, Egypts shall be low and submisse, not loud and lofty, as formerly. She shall not now bellow, like an heifer, Esay 15, 5 or like a bull, or bullock, chap 50. 11. as most there render it: but she shall now, as being utterly daunted and damped, whisper softly and submissly, like a snake out of some hole in the ground, scarce able to mutter, or utter ought for fear, Esay 29. 4. For as for the old Latine Version that renders it, a voice of brasse; that is, fay your Popish Writers, the sound of trumpets, or of cymbals, and gingles, 1 Cor. 13. 1. See Elay 18. 1. some writhing it this way, and some that way, some applying it to the Chaldeans, and some to the Egyptians; it is grounded on a palpable mistake, and we shall leave it therefore to them, to make what they please of it. Nor do those Jewish Commenters stray lesse from the notion of the Text, who expound it of the noise and sound of the Chaldean arms and army, that should come creeping towards Egypt, like a Serpent, Gen. 3. 14. And as for their Talmudists, they doat here prodigiously, when they would have it meant, that the cry of Egypt should be so loud, that it should passe through the whole world; like that hideous cry that the Serpent made, what time, God having past that doom on him, that he should go upon his belly, the Angels came down from heaven, and cut off his legs, Gen. 3. 14.

for they shall march with an army,] Or, when (as chap. 11. 23. and 10. 2.) they, to wit, her enemies, the Chaldeans shall come marching with an army into her countrey.

and come against her with axes, as hewers of wood.] The Prophet here passeth to another comparison, wherein Egypt is compared to a wood, or a forest, bethwacked with trees; either in regard of her numberlesse towns and cities, or of the multitude of her people. Howbeit, there want not those, who conceive some respect to be had here to the former resemblance, supposing the state of Egypt to be compared to a wanton heifer running at large; and the countrey to a large wood, grove, or coppice, wherein she ran for at large, grasing, browsing, and sporting her self at pleasure. See somewhat the like to this, Chap. 22. 7. Heb. hewers of trees; as Josh. 9. 21. Judge 9. 8.

V. 23. They shall cut down her forest, saith the Lord;] Or, That shall fell, (a defect of the relative, as Chap. 31. 23, 24.) or, (as some of the Rabbines would have it read in the imperative; which though others of them justly control, yet some of ours retain) Fell ye, (as spoken in the person of God enjoyning it) the trees (supplied from verse 22.) of her forest. See Elay 10. 18, 33, 34. Chap. 22. 7.

though it cannot be searched: Heb. though (as Josh. 17. 18.) it shall not be searched: but the verb is in a potential notion, as some other in this Chapter before ver. 11. 15, 21. It is a proverbial form of speech, intimating such a number, or quantity of ought, as it is vain to endeavour to take any reckoning, or tale of it. See 1 King. 4. 47. 2 Chron. 4. 18. of the almost incredible number of their towns of note, and cities anciently, and the populousnesse of the countrey. See Herodote, l. 2. & Diodore, l. 1. c. 31. Howbeit, some expound the form here used, as implying not so much the number of the places, or people, as the difficulty of passage and accesse to them, the land lying low, and full of streams, and water-courses, either branching out of Nilus, or derived from it. See Elai 19. 5. —10. Ezek. 29. 3, 4. But the former seemeth the right. Howbeit, the Jewish Commenters expound this clause of the Chaldean Army that was to come against Egypt, and render the words, for (as chap. 10. 21.) it (that is, their Army, verse 22.) is unsearchable. But it seemeth rather to have relation to because they are more than the grasshoppers, and are innumerable] This last clause is likewise variously expounded; some conceiving it to be spoken of the Chaldean forces: as tending a reason how they should be able to do such execution as was formerly intimated, to wit, fell down a whole forest so large, as seemed scarce possible to pierce thorow it, or finde an end of it. To which answer is returned that their multitude should be answerable to the largenesse of that forest; for they should come, as locusts, that are wont to come flying in such swarms, or clouds rather, that they overspread a whole countrey, and seize on all the trees and shrubs, and what soever else is green that groweth in it, and make havock of all before them. See Exod. 10. 5 15. Esai 7 19, 20. Joel 1. 6, 7 and 2. 2 —10 And this exposition seemeth most probable. Yet some others understand it as spoken of the Egyptians; and either as rendring a reason of the branch next before-going why her forest could not be searched; to wit, because the trees thereof are more than by ones: (Heb. I cast) taken collectively: as judg. 6. 5, 7. 12.) and there is no number of them, as Psal. 104. 34, 35. or, as further prepositing and meeting with what might be suggested to make the matter here foretold unlikely ever to be effected: and of these, some render the particle, as before; though (and it is repeated also in the like speech, Josh 17. 18.) they be so many: as if it were said, their numberlesse num ber shall not hinder the doing of this execution upon them.

V. 24. The daughter of Egypt shall be confounded] See verse 11. 19.

she shall be delivered into the hand of the people of the North.] hand, for, power: as chap 44. 30 North; as verf. 20.

V. 25. The Lord of hosts the God of Israel, saith;] Or, hath said it; as chap. 48. 8. and i shall surely thereto e be effected, for, shall he say, and not do? Num. 23 19. The Jewish Doctor fupposeth the God of Israel, to be here added, to intimat that the ground of Gods proceeding against Egypt was for the wrong done to Israel in the death of Josiah, Kings 23 29. but this seemeth somewhat too nice and narrow. See the same stile with this here, chap. 35. 13, 17 could, I will punish the multitude of No.] Heb. I, I am visiting (or, omnipotently visiting) to, or on, (as chap. 44. 13. and 50. 18.) Amon Manny, or, Populous No. The Chaldee by Amon understandeth the company, or, promiscuous multitude, which our Version followeth, taking Amon for the same with Hamon; and so is the word used chap. 52. 15. as also many take it Nah 3. 8. rendring No Amon there, populous No: whereunto would fit well that of a late learned Annotator, could it be made good, who affirmeth Amon here to be a dialect, for Ommin, or Ummim; that is, people. But I see little ground for this conceit. The learned Scholiast, who alone seemeth to have taken notice of the particle min, rendreth it, the multitude born at, or issuing from No: as the boar from the wood, for, the wild boar Psal. 80. 13. But othe s both there and here render it nourisher, or nourishing. No: and so Amon here should be the same with Omen, Num. 11. 12 and these would have No, or Alexandria, (for that both Jews and ours most generally agree to be meant) to be so called, as a citie that by its trade and traffick being the principall Sea-Town and mart for Merchants from forreign parts, fed and furnished the whole countrey with wares and commodities of all sorts from abroad. The same term is found, Prov. 8. 30 but there somewhat ambiguous, whether one nourishing, or nourished, as some Greeks here render it; and the ancient Greek here, Ammon her son; as if it were rather nourished, than nurse: whereunto also they seem to incline that render it, the foster-child of No; to wit Pharaoh, and Egypt: for they go too far wide here, that render it, the cunning workman, or artificer, of No; because the term Amon is so found used, Cant. 7. 1. The Jewish Doctors affirm it to be the name of the King of Alexandria that then was. But for that they give no great ground, or proof. A learned late Writer here departing from the common stream of former Authors would have this Amon to be Jupiter, whom the Egyptians should term Amun: the Africans (and the Greeks and Latines after them) Ammon, and Hammon, not from a Greek word that signifieth sand, because a famous Temple of his was situate amidst the sandy wastes of Cyrene; but from Ham or Cham, one of Noahs sons; whom another in part complying with, would have Amon to be Jupiter Ahon; that is, the nourisher; as before: or Jupiter Tutator, that is, the confirmer, or, establisher: because the word, Amen, hath some time a note of stability and firmnesse, Esai 65. 16. that former learned Writer would likewise have No, not to be Alexandria, a citie built, long after the times of those Prophets that mention it by Alexander, whose name it yet beareth, but to be Diospolis, as the Greeks render it. Ezek. 30 16. which Amon No, or, No Amon, doth, as he conceiveth, exactly expresse. Howbeit, because there are two cities of the name in Egypt, the one famous, called also Thebe, but an in-land city, and not so furnished with water, as the description of No in Nahum importeth, the other situate in the lower part of Egypt, with much water about it, but of lesse note, whereas Nahums No seems to come in competition with Nineveh it self: this learned Author seemeth somewhat uncertain in his judgement concerning this No, sometime hanging it upon the one, sometime fixing it upon the other. I shall leave the controversie to be decided by others better seen, and versed therein than my self. Hence it appeareth, as also by those other places, that it was a principal city in the land of Egypt, and of great repute, and renoun also in forreign parts, and afterward it shall be inhabited, as in the dayes of old, saith the Lord.] After the space of fourty years expired from this time of its ruine, and spoil made of it by the Chaldeans. See Ezek. 29 13. Heb. shall sit, or, dwell, or, inhabit: as Esay 13. 20. chap. 17. 6. and 50. 39. and dayes of antiquity: as Lam. 1 7. and 5 21. yet the meaning is not that Eg pt should at that time be raised to its former lustre again but that it should then be peopled again whereas by this conquest, there had been much of it dispeopled, and the residue much impaired. See 1 Ezek. 29. 13 —15.

V. 27. But fear not thou, O my servant Jacob, and be not dismayed, O Israel; for behold, I will save thee from afar off and thy seed from the land of their captivity; and Jacob shall return, and be in rest, and at ease, and none shall make him afraid.] A confolatory clause for the comfort and fupport of Gods faithfull ones, though dispersed abroad, and abiding in captivity at present. See the very same in the very same terms, chap. 30. 10. Thus God set never forgetteth, or forsaketh those that continue constant and loyal to him, Psal 9 10. and 94 14. Ezek. 11. 16.

V. 28. Fear thou not, O Jacob, my servant, saith the Lord;] The same exhortation inculcated and repeated again and again, to cause it to make the deeper impression upon their drooping and dejected spirits. So Elay 41. 10, 13, 14. and 43. 1, 5. and 44 2, 8.

Verf. 1. The word of the Lord that came to Jeremiah the Prophet against the Philistines,] Or, Concerning the Philistines; as chap. 44. 1. The foregoing two prophecies chap. 46. 1, 13. were concerning the Egyptians, the worsted flay that Gods people were too prone to rely upon: the present in this Chapter, is concerning the Philistines the bad neighbours, and both ancient and constant vexers and annoyers of them. See Esai 9 12. Chap 25. 20. and the like prophecies concerning them Elai 14. 29. Ezek. 25. 15. Amos 1. 6. Zeph. 2. 4, 5 Of the phrase, see Chap. 1. 2, 3.

before that Pharaoh smote Gaza.] Before that Pharaoh Nechoh, as most suppose, either by the way in his expedition against Carchemish, as some would have it, 2 Chro. 35. 20. or, as others, rather, in his return from thence, after he had slain Josiah in Megiddo, 2 King 23 29. and was now on his way homeward, had smote, that is by force stormed and taken, (as Ezek 40. 1.) Gaza Heb Azzah; a strong town of the Philistines, Judge 16. 1. See on chap 25. 20. And this seemeth no e probable, than that which the Rabbines out of their Seder Olam, or, Iconicler relate, that the Egyptians com ng to relieve Jerusalem, besieged by the Chaldeans, in the tenth of Zedekiahs reign, when they found them risen, should in their return home over-run Palestine and surprise Gaza. See chap 14. 2. and 37. 9 1 his is here mentioned, to shew that this Prophesie was then delivered, when the Philistines were in a present quiet and flourishing condition and had no fear of ought, either from Egypt, or from the Assyrians; much lesse, with whom they were then at no enmity: as also, as some suppose, to let the Philistines know, that they were to receive for a far greater, and more general hurt from the Chaldeans, than that blow that the Egyptians were shortly to give them in the surprisal of Gaza.

V. 2. Thus saith the Lord, Behold, waters rise up out of the North, and shall be an over-flowing flood, and shall over-flow the land, and all that is therein, the city, and them that dwell therein] A far greater deluge will come upon the Philistines land, from the North (that is from Assyria, Esai 14. 31. chap. 8. 7) than that temp st from the south, from Egypt, Esai 30. 6. that lighted upon Gaza: such an one as should over flow and drown, not some one citie alone, but the whol land, citie, and countrey. As the Egyptians excurtions are ofte mixed by the inundations of Nilus, chap. 44. 7, 8. So the Assyri n and Chaldean invasion by the over flowings of Euphrates, Esai 8. 7. See the like, Esai 28. 18. and 59. 19. ch 51. 42. Heb. the land and the fulnesse thereof; as Psalm 24. 1. and the city: not this, or that particular, but collectively, the cities, in general; as Esai 19. 2. and 27. 10. See chap. 46. 8. This, in all likelyhood, came to pass, not long after the destruction of Jerusalem. See Josephus in ipsius vita, lib. 13. cap 7.

then the men shall cry, and the Inhabitants of the land shall howl.] Heb. and; as chap 44. 15. and man, for men; the man shall cry, for, every one that cry each one: the noun singular, the verb plural; as chap. 4. 3. & 44. 16. there shall be nothing but crying and howling every where with them. See Esai 14. 31.

V. 3. At the noise of the stamping of the hoof of his strong horses;] A description of such a dreadfull approach of the enemy, as should so affright men, that it should make them, forgetting all natural affection, to leek onely how to shift for themselves, with an utter neglect of those that are wont to be naturally deareft unto persons of all degrees. Instead of strong horses, which our Version exhibiteth, some both here, and Judge 5. 22. a place parallel to this, understand strong men; among whom the old Latine: the word is used of the prime, or principal, eminent, or excellent in any kind, whereof it is used. See Esai 10. 13. and is most attributed unto beeves, or bulls, Psal. 2. 12. Esai 34. 7. and horses, or steeds, chap. 8. 16. and 50. 11 and so here: and might well be rendred without further addation, of his steeds: the word rend ed stamping, is no where else found, but of the like notion another Judge 5. 22. by which some of the Rabbines here expound it: Yet the Chaldee rendreth it, by a word that signifieth rage, passion, or pace, in found neer to thefe our latine: and the Septuagint and Vulgar the rather inclineth this way, because in the copy back it is so commonly used.

at the rushing of his chariots.] Or, rustling, Esai 17. 12. or rattling, Nah 3. 2. the word signifieth such a sound or noise, as is raised by the violent concussion, or shaking of ought, chap. 10. 22. Heb. chariot, for, cavalry; as chap. 46. 9. See there.

the fathers shall not look back to their children for feebleneſs of hands.] Extremity of fear, joyned with feebleneſſe as well of hand as of heart, shall so over-sway natural affection with them, that they shall caft and seek every one onely how to shift for, and save himself, not once looking after their children, as unable to refcue them, though never so fain they would, and being in vain for them therefore to hazzard their own lives, by looking after those, whom they were not able to relieve: they will trust to their heels rather than to their hands. See Chap. 46. 6. 7. and 46. 5. and 49. 5. See also, Deut. 28. 31, 32.

V. 4. Because of the day that cometh to spoil all the Philistins] The time by God designed for their destruction; as Chap. 46. 10.

and to cut off from Tyrus, and Sidon, every helper that remaineth:] For these being the issue and posterity of Cham by Canaan, and seated not far from the Philistines quarters, who likewise were descended from him by Cush, were on all occasions ready to be assistant unto them. See Gen. 10. 14, 15, 19. Joel. 3. 4.

for the Lord will spoil the Philistines, the remnant of the countrey of Caphtor.] That the Caphtorim were of the same linage and race with the Philistines being both of them descended from Mitsraim, appeareth Gen. 10. 13, 14 that before Moses his time, they dwelt near unto them, possessing the land that bordered upon them, even unto Gaza, from whence they had expelled the Avites. appeareth Deut. 2. 23. and it may seem that they had sometime subdued the Philistines, and carried of them captive into their own country, from whence God had yet by some means refcued and reduced them again, Amos 9. 7. Howbeit, in Jeremies time it may hence be gathered, that they and the Philistines were confederate together, and in regard both of vicinity and confederacy, were likely to fare alike the one with the other. By the remnant of them, some would have meant the Philistines, in general, because descended from the Caphtorim; but that is not so: for the Philistines are said not to have descended from the Caphtorim, but from the Casluchim, Gen 10. 14. Others, those of them, whom the Caphtorim should leave, when they did over-run Palestine. But they seem rather to be distinguished here from the Philistines, as well as the Tyrians, and Idonians, before-mentioned, and to be called the remnant of that country, either because the Egyptians had made spoyl of them before, when they invaded Palestine, and Gaza, near unto which their ancient abode was: or because the Chaldeans were to begin with them, before they fell upon the Philistines countrey. See the like, chap 25 20 What countrey this Caphtor should be, much doubt is made. The Chaldee Paraphrase both here and elsewhere rendreth it, Cappadocia: and with him most, both Greeks and Latines, concur: and a learned late Writer, though assigning Cappadocia to others, yet would feat these Caphtorim in Colchis, a countrey, if not coming within the compasse of some part of it, yet confining at least upon it: and that the rather, because he findeth a region in those parts, called Sidene from a citie therein situate termed Side, which in Greek signifieth a pomegranate, as doth Caphtor also in Hebrew, Exod 39 24——26. But as well Colchis, as Cappadocia, feemeth too far remote from the habitation of these Caphtorim. One of the Jewish Commenters on this place, with whom the Arabick interpreter, and one, or two other Jewish Writers are said to agree, would have caphtor to be Damiata, which the later Greeks call Damiathis, a city in Egypt: which though it may seem the more probable because they were of Mitsims race, yet the sacred records seem still to fetat them not far from the Philistines, and more into the land, and not likely therefore in Egypt. I should rather suppose their place of abode to have been between Palestina, and Idumea. by conjecture from a city in Idumea, or its confines, called anciently from this Caphtor Caparorsa; as one of Ptolomy a learned Annotator here observeth. But why is their countrey then termed an Ile? may some say; for that term in Hebrew, though it do not always denote an Iland, properly so termed; yet it implieth, at least, a sea-coast, or a countrey bordering upon the sea: whereunto some answer, that all remote, or transmarine parts, such as passage was to by sea, are in Scripture so termed: but the word is used more generally for any foreign countrey, one, or other indefinitely. See Esai 20. 6. and 41. 1. and so the Caphtorims countrey, though an inland one, may well come within the compasse of that term.

V. 5. Baldneſſe is come upon Gaza;] Either she is shaved and stript of all her wealth by the enemies pillage of it: as Esai 7. 20. or rather they have made themselves bald by shaving and cutting, or pulling and rearing of their hair; which upon occasions of great grief, was a thing usual among them, Job 1. 20. Esai 15. 2. chap. 16 6, 7. and 47. 5. and 46. 37. Ezek. 29. 18 Mic. 1. 16. Of Gaza, see verf. 1. Heb. Baldneſſe is come unto Gaza: and so the ancient Greek rendreth it: sometimes but el is oft used for al, or upon; as chap. 36. 23. and so of the like.

Ashkelon is cut off with the remnant of their valley.] A chief city in Palestine: whereof see 1 Sam 6 17. 2 Sam. 1. 20. instead of, is cut off; as the word commonly signifieth Esai 15. 1. Hosea 10. 15. Zeph. 1. 11. the old Latine here readeth, is silenced: and the two roots in Hebrew are somewhat neer, but divers. By the remnant of their valley, some of the Jewish Doctors following the Chaldee, understand their wealth: for the word of depth, fay they, from whence the word cometh, hath a notion of abundance, or muchneſſe, Esai 7. 11. Hosea 9. 9. But other of them take the term in its ordinary sense, and understand it of such Askelonites, as lived not within the citie, but in the vale near unto it. Some others more generally of the reſt of the Philistines countrey, that lay most of it low, and is termed the coast of a vale. See Joseph the Jew his Antiquities, lib. 5. cap 2. the ancient Greeks following some corrupt copy, render it, the remnant of the Enakim; as if it had some reference to the sons of Anak, Num. 13 22. 29. Deut. 1. 28, 21. which yet a learned Annotator seemeth to approve.

how long wilt thou cut thy self?] Spoken to Askelon, or to Palestine in general, or the inhabitants of either; demanding of them how long they will be taking on in that manner, cutting & maiming themselves, as in extremity of grief and vexation, out of impotency and impatiency of Spirit, heathen people were wont to do. See Lev. 19. 28. chap. 16. 6. The speech implieth as a grievous, so a long and tedious calamity, and lamentation thereunto correspondent. The Greeks joyn this clause to the words following, rendring it, how long will thou cut, O sword? the Lord? but the word is in a reciprocal form: nor is it ever found in any other notion elsewhere. Howbeit those reciprocal forms are not in notion perpetually such: and if any instance of this therein varying from the ordinary use could be produced, I should incline to this Version: the rather, for that the Text would go very smoothly away with it.

V. 6. O thou sword of the Lord, how long will it be ere thou be quiet?] The words, as some would have them, of the Philistine people cutting themselves, verse 5. But it foundeth not after their prophane strain; little dreamed they in likelyhood of any hand of God in those things that now befell them. And the most therefore rather conceive them to be the Prophets own words, lamenting the havock that the sword made among them, ranging up and down so long together from place to place with them, and humbly preferring his supplication to God for a stay of it. For Gods Prophets are sensible of, and affected with the calamities not of their own alone, but of other people also, though their enemies. See Esai 15. 5. and 16. 9 chap 48. 31.

O sword of the Lord! The sword he speaketh of is the sword of the Chaldeans; but it is called the Lords sword, because sent by him; because it cometh by command, and with commission from him, chap. 25. 29. verf. 7. So, the sword of the Lord, and of Gideon, Judge 7. 18, 20.

put up thy self into thy scabbard:] Not, gather thy self, or, be gathered; as some render it: though the word have usually a notion of gathering: but retire, or betake thy self unto thy scabbard; as the word is used, Exod. 9. 19. Num. 11. 30. 2 Sam. 17. 13. Psalm 104. 22.

rest, and be still.] Rest; Of this term, see on chap. 31. 3. the Latine rendreth it be cooled, or cool thy self: and that Popish Expositors descant upon to no purpose; for the word hath no such notion in it; and be still. Heb. be silent; as Psal. 4. 4. Esai 23. 2.

V. 7. How can it be quiet?] An answer to the Prophets requeſt: or his own reply to himself; as recalling himself, and demanding of himself, how it could be that it should so do, when as God had given it a charge and command to the contrary. Heb. How shalt thou be quiet? or, shouldst thou; as in a potential notion: a change of the perſon; as Ezek. 31. 10.

seeing the Lord hath given it a charge] Heb. and (as chap. 10. 26.) the Lord hath commanded it, and it cannot stay till his Command be executed, till his work be done, till his will and word be fulfilled. See chap. 33. 20. and 30. 24.

against Askelon, and against the sea-shore? there hath he appointed it.] Heb. unto Askelon, and unto the sea-port, or, coaſt, Gen. 49. 13. Deut. 1. 7. but el, may be for al; as before, verf. 5. the sea-coaſt; that is, Palestine in general, which coasted much on the mid-land-Sea, Esai 9. 12.

CHAP. XLVIII.

Verſ. 1. Against Moab] Heb. unto Moab; or, Concerning Moab: thus saith the God of Israel,] As chap. 46. 25. but here the rather so stiled, because he is coming to be avenged upon Moab, for his Israel, and the wrongs by Moab done them; as the like, Esai 34. 8.

Woe unto Nebo; for it is spoiled:] Nebo, a city of Moab: whereof, see Esai 15. 2. It seemeth to have its name from some idols oracle there seated: and the Prophet is by some deemed the rather to begin with it: because thence they had their oracles of prosperity and peace, such as themselves desired, and their idol Interpreters were wont to coyn for them, and to furnish them with.

Kiriathaim is confounded and taken:] Another Citie of Moab, sometime belonging to the Reubenites, Josh. 13. 19. it is of a dual form, whereby the city seemeth to have consisted, as divers others, and so Jerusalem it self, of two parts.

Misgab is confounded and dismayed.] Whether the word here used be a noun of common notion, signifying an high place, as Psal. 9. 9 and 46. 7, 11. but taken collectively for the high & strong forts of Moab in general, or the proper name of a place, is questionable: and it may well seem to be, either the peculiar name of some place usually so termed, though from a word of more general notion; as Beth Baal, both in Moab, verſ. 24. and in Edom, Esai 24. 6 and 61. 1. or, as some think, an attribute of it, rendring the Text, the city of the high place; thereby understanding a city in Moab from its situation called Bamoth, Num. 21. 20. and Selah, Esai 16. 1. because situate aloft upon a rock.

V. 2. There shall be no more praise of Moab: in Heshbon they have devised evil against it;] This passage is variously both divided and rendred. This of our Version will not well stand, for who in Heshbon should consult, or conspire against Moab? Heshbon is self being a city, and that a chief one in Moabs country, Esai 15. 4. & 16. 8. and no better will that of the old Latine hold, There shall be no more exultation of Moab against Heshbon. For there is as little reason, why Moab should exult against Heshbon, as why Heshbon should conspire against Moab. Others therefore render it, there shall be no more vaunting of Moab in Heshbon; that is, Heshbon shall no more vaunt it self of the strength of their State, of the Kingdom of Moab its wealth and power. Others, There shall be no more vaunting in Moab concerning Heshbon; that is, the Moabites shall no more vaunt of Heshbon as a place impregnable; esteemed one of the greateſt strength in those parts, verſe 45. Others lastly, No more praise of Moab shall there be, (there shall be no more talking abroad of Moab, as of a goodly, famous, rich, flourishing State) as concerning Heshbon, (so is the particle used, chap. 38. 24. verf. 27.) they (that is, the Chaldeans) have devised evil against it. There is in the words an elegant allusion to the name of the city; as if it were said with us, There is mischief devised against the Devises: a Town of that name with us, that suffered in the late civil wars: and for notion answereth precisely to the Hebrew Heshbon.

come and let us cut it off from being a nation.] The Chaldeans words expressing their purpose against Moab, and egging one another on to the execution of it, as c. 6. 4, 5. See the like of other nations, among which Moab is one, now paid in his own coyn, against Israel Psal. 83 4. The like form, see verſ. 42. Esai 17. 1. and 23. 11. and 14 10. 1 Sam. 15. 12. Hos. 4. 6. and 9. 12.

also thou shalt be cut down, O mad-men:] Another city of Moab called Madiama by Ptolomy; Medeba, (which some suppose should be Medema) in Josephs Antiquities, lib. 13. cap. 17.) thereof see Esai 25. 10. Heb. thou shalt be silenced, or, brought to silence; as Psal. 31. 17, 18. thou shalt be brought so low, that thou shalt not dare so much as to murter for fear and dejection of spirit, much lesse vaunt thy self as formerly. See Esai 29. 4. chap. 46. 12. There is again in the terms here used an affinity of found, as if it were said, Silly (the name of an Island with us) shall be silenced.

the sword shall purſue thee.] Heb. Go after thee, as chap. 42. 16. and 49 37.

V. 3. A voice of crying shall be from Horonaim:] A city of Moab, where Sanballat was born; or whereof he was sometime Governour. Neh. 2. 10. See Esai 15. 5. verſ. 5. And it is of a dual form, saith the Rabbine, because there were two Horons, the upper and the lower. See Josh. 10. 10, 11. and 16. 15. and 18. 13.

spoiling, and great destruction.] Heb. a great breach; as chap. 4. 20. So chap. 50. 22. and 51. 54.

V. 4. Moab is destroyed: Heb. is broken: as chap. 22. 20.

her little ones have caused a cry to be heard.] While the great ones leave them to save themselves; as chap. 47. 3. and there is an elegant consonancy in the words of little ones, and cry, which our English cannot expresse. See the like, Esai 5. 7. For the Chaldee seems to stray here, rendring little ones by princes; which yet the Jewish Commenters retaining, say, some of them, that they are so called here, because lesse than Kings, lower than Soveraigns. Other of them, that they are so termed in way of derision and contempt. But these are like here to the Popish Expositors, torturing the Text, and their wits withall, to make somewhat of a vitious Version.

V. 5. For in the going up of Luhith, continual weeping shall go up:] Up, and down all the way along, that the Moabites flee from, or before the Chaldeans pursuing them, verſ. 2. shall be nothing but continual weeping and wailing. See Esai 15. 5. Heb. weeping with weeping shall go up; as Esai 16. 9.

for in the going down of Horonaim the enemies have a cry of destruction.] Heb. of breaking; as verſ. 3. which some expound a broken cry; as having reference not so much to the occasion, or subject of it, as the Jewish Commenters, and others of ours take it; as to the manner, or quality, and affection of their cry: and because the word enemies is in a form of regiment, they render it, the enemies of breaking, or broken noise, have heard a broken cry, to wit, from the Moabites, crying so loud, that they drown the enemies shouts with their out cries. But the Jewish Critick well observeth, that the form regent, or the contracted form, is not infrequently found used for the absolute and entire; as Num. 5. 18. 1 King. 4. 6. and 17. 13. and our Version therefore may well stand. As for that which a learned Writer hath, that they wept indeed as they went up to Luhith, but more abundantly and vehemently when they were down from Horonaim, because that was the utter limit of their land; and they were then going into captivity to leave their country, seems not so probable, because of that which followeth, ver 6. Whereby it appeareth, that they fled rather from them, than were yet led away by them. It seems rather to argue the impotency of their spirits, and exceſſiveneſſe of their griefs: that whereas it had been their wiſeſt course to have made away, with as much silence, and secrecy as they could; yet they were not able to contain themselves, but must needs cry out, and that so loud, that the enemies themselves might hear them. See somewhat the like, but in another case, Gen 45. 2.

V. 6. Flee, save your lives, and be like the heath in the wilderneſſe.] These are by the most Interpreters conceived to be the words of the Moabites, calling one upon another to flee with all speed for their lives, and betaking themselves to the desarts, there to live; as Psal 55. 7 The word Aroer here used, the Chaldee taketh for the proper name of a place, as it is afterward, verf. 19. as if it were said, Be like the tower of Aroer that standeth in the waste; but therein few follow him: the word signifieth a bare naked tree: whereof see on chap. 17. 6. and one of the Jewish Doctors seems to expound it of their cities, leave them as bare as such trees on the waste. See verſ. 9. Some would have these to be the speech of the Prophet himself in a prophetical way, foretelling what should befall them, to wit, that they should be compelled to flee for their lives, and be as bare and vile as the heath that groweth on the waste, or as some naked tree, standing by it self alone on the waste, stript of all graceſull furniture of fruit, or leaf, and exposed to all winds and weathers. And a learned Writer conceiveth it to be mixt with an Irony, as if he should say, Flee, ye may save your lives, and so do; but when you have done all you can, and escaped the sword, your life will be such, that it had been better for you to have died by it, your life will prove more miserable and bitter to you than death: See Lam. 4. 9. I adhere to what was propounded at first: or, if ought further be deemed to ly hid in this last clause, I should rather conceive it to be spoken out of a regard had, above all befides it, to life; as Job 2. 4. Matth. 16. 26. as if it were said, Flee, and save your selves, or your lives, (Heb. soul, as chap. 51. 6. Job 2. 6.) whatsoever we do else, though you leave your selves as bare as the naked'ſt shrub that groweth on the wilde waſte: the looking after ought else may cost you your life. It seemeth to me not unlike that advice of our Saviour, Mat. 24. 16----18. Luke 17, 31. 33.

V. 7. For because thou hast trusted in thy works, and in thy treasures, thou shalt also be taken,] Thy self-confidence shall prove thy ruine. By works, some understand their idols, Psal. 115. 3. Chap. 32. 30. Others, their possessions, 1 Sam 15. 2. Others again, their fortifications, verse 18. 41. It may seem to comprehend all those means, whereby they had endeavoured to strengthen themselves.

and Chemosh shall go forth into captivity with his Priests, and his Princes together.] Chemosh, thy chief idol, Numb. 21. 29. 1 Kings 11. 7. 33. whom in vain therefore thou shalt seek unto, Esay 15. 2. verse 13. 46. shall go into captivity, (as Chap 15. 1. 2. See Esay 46. 2. Chap. 43. 12.) and all his abettors together with him, the Priests that attend on him, and Princes that maintain both them, and him, Chap. 49. 3.

V. 8. And the spoyler shall come upon every city, and none shall escape] The King of Babylon. chap. 6. 26.

the valley shall perish, and the plain shall be destroyed,] The cities situate in the vale and in the plain, together with those that stand on the hills, and higher grounds, verse 1. See chap 47. 5.

as the Lord hath spoken.] Asher, for, caasher, as the Jewish Critick here observeth; and so the ancient Greek here rendreth it as; so also, Exod 34. 18. Chap. 9. 14. & 33. 22. or, as others, and so the old Latine; because the Lord hath spoken; as 1 Kings 15. 13. Neh. 2. 3. 10. Chap 1. 19 & 13. 25. or, surely, as a learned late Writer; and so saith he, 1 Sam 15. 20. N.h. 4. 12. Psal. 10. 6. & 9. 11. & 144 13. Esay 8. 20. Habb 3. 16. I suppose it may as fitly be rendred, for the Lord hath said it: as 1 Sam. 15. 15. Chap. 32. 3. a defect of the pronoun, as Esay 1 20. See chap 46. 15.

V. 9. Give wings unto Moab,] Implying, that there would be no possibility for him to escape, unless he could get wings and fly. So Psal. 55. 6. Heb. Give ye feather, or, wing to Moab: the word here used, doth with the Hebrewes, in the first place, signifie a flower, Job 14. 2. Esay 40. 6. in the next place, a feather; so termed, saith the Jewish Critick, because feathers sprout out from the bodies of Fowles, as flowers do from the stems and branches of trees and plants: and from a word therefore of that notion have the young of Birds and Fowles their name, Deut. 22. 6. Job 39. 10. Psal 84. 3. feather therefore for feathers, or for wing, consisting of feathers: either taken collectively. Howbeit, some of our Jewish Masters fetch it another way about; the word, say they, in Chaldee, signifies the fins of fish. So used, Lev. 11. 5. and in the next place the wings of Fowl: so they use it, Psal. 139. 9. because wings are to the one, as fins to the other; the one to flye, the other to swim with. The word in this notion is no where else found in the Hebrew. But the old Latine taking the word in his first and proper sense, as also some Greek Versions before it, rendreth it, Give Moab a flower, or, flowers; for he shall go out full writhing: Which though it be here so senseless a notion, that it can be no way fitted to the context; yet Popish Expositors waste ink and paper in discourfing at large of it, and descanting upon it; forcing in hither the fading nature of flowers, and the sticking of corpses with them; and adding a forged fiction withall of a ceremony used in the land of Moab, of setting garlands on the heads of those that were to be executed: and all this, because their vitious Version must be maintained, though it be never so falsified. What the ancient Greeks read here is uncertain: for they render it, Give Moab a sign; for with a touch he shall be touched. And the Chaldee reads it as wide as the rest, rendring it, Take away the crown from Moab, he is going into captivity: and it seemeth that hence the Paraphrast took his rise for this Version: because the word here used doth sometime signifie a plate of gold, Exod. 28. 36. Lev. 8. 9. such as crowns are wont to be adorned with, or consist of: whence also some expound that, Psal. 132. 17. I will adorn his crown, with golden plates. But the text speaketh of somewhat to be given to him, not taken from him: and the very next words sufficiently refell all these figments and fancies: whereof thus much onely, that none may trip or stick at them.

that it may flee, and get away.] Heb, that (as Job 11. Psal. 15. 15.) she may flying, fly: as the word is used, Job 4. 15. and thence a word for a feather, wherewith Fowl fly, Lev. 1, 16. Ezek. 17. 3. 7. and for the Ostrich, a Fowl of goodly, large, and fair feathers, Job 39. 13. an irregularity which the Jewish give notice of, not observed in the word here used, hath caused a mistake both in our Version, and some others: which yet for the meaning in general are found, though they fail in the genuine notion of the terms, supposing them to come from two several roots: and the latter to signifie to go out, not to fly.

for the cities thereof shall be desolate without any to dwell therein.] Heb. desolation: as Chap. 44. 2, 22.

V. 10. Cursed be he that doth the work of the Lord deceitfully,] Or, negligently: (and so the Greek render it) or slackly: as a bow of slackness, or, a slack bow, Psal. 78. 57. and an hand of slackness, or, a slack hand: opposed to a diligent one, Prov. 10. 4. & 12. 24. The work of the Lord in destroying the Moabites, and doing execution upon them; which God hath now given in charge to the Chaldeans, by a secret instinct concerning the Moabites: as by an express word to Saul concerning the Amalekites, 1 Sam. 15. and would have done to the purpose. See chap. 47. 6, 7. & 50. 25.

and cursed be he that keepeth backe his sword from bloud.] A curse there is as well on such as shed not bloud, when they have Commission and charge from God to do so, as on those that doe the like without either: Numbers 34. 31, 33. 1 Kings 20. 42. Proverbs 17. 15.

V. 11. Moab hath been at ease from his youth, and he hath setled on his lees, and hath not been emptied from vessel to vessel, neither hath he gone into captivity:] Moab hath lived a long time at ease, he hath not been disturbed much in his land, or removed out of it, and hurried from place to place, as Israel hath been: illustrated, by a resemblance taken from wines that have not been drawn from lees, as thofe whereof Esay 25. 6. Heb. to his lees: elsor, as chap 36. 13. & 47. 5. 7.

therefore his taste remained in him, and his sent is not changed.] Or, remaineth. Heb. standeth, or stayeth: Deuteronomy 5. 31. Ecclesi. 4. He remaineth still his like, his dignity, his strength, his wealth; and withall (as with such wicked ones especially is wont to be) his pride, his presumption, his impiety, his impurity, his iniquity. See Psalm 55. 19. Esay: 6. 10. Hos. 4. 7. Zeph. 1. 12. verse 26. 29.

V. 12. Therefore behold the dayes come, saith the Lord; Heb. The dayes coming: 3. 17.

that I will send unto him wanderers that shal cause him to wander,] Heb. and (as chap 44. 15.) I will send him wanderers; (such as come from a far country, from Chaldea. Esay 39. 3. chapter 6. 22 and 8. 19.) or transporters: as the Jewish Commenters would have it: so rendring it also, Esay 63. 1. such as make others to wander: but the word seemeth rather to be in a consistent, than a transient notion, both here and there; and to signifie in his fifth and single form to wander, or travel from place to place; in his second or double form, to make to wander, or to remove; and there is an elegant antanaclasis, or variety of notion in the terms; as if it were laid, the Chaldeans shall come far from their own place of abode into the Moabites countrey, as if they were some vagrants, or wanderers; but they shall make the Moabites in good earnest to wander by leading them away captives. v. 46.

and shall empty his vessels, and breake their bottles.] Alluding to the former resemblance of Wine, either in casks, or in bottles. They shall depopulate his Cities (as Chapter 51. 34. and break them as earthen bottles, Psalm 2. 9 Esay 30. 14. Chapter 19. 10, 11.

V. 13. And Moab shall be ashamed of Chemosh, as the house of Israel was ashamed of Bethel their confidence.] Because he shall be no more able to deliver them from the Chaldeans, v. 7. 46. Esay 15. 2. and 16. 12. than the golden calf at Bethel, 1 Kings 12. 29. was able to save the Israelites from the Assyrians, 2 Kings 17. 6, 12. Hos. 8. 4, 5 & 10. 15.

V. 14 How say yee, we are mighty and strong men for the warr?] Or, How can yee say? As Chapter 2. 23. with what face can ye brag of your valour, when ye carry your selves as cowards? verf. 39. 41. See the like in another kind. Esay 19. 11. and of Moabs vaunts, 2, 29, 30.

V. 15. Moab is spoyled and gone up out of her Cities] There is no small varietie of Versions and Interpretations of the latter clause here; for the former is the same in effect with what he had before, v. 8. and shall have after again, ver 18, 20. The Hebrew hath no more than this, and her Cities up, her, up. Some render it her Cities, or the multitude of her Cities are gone up, to wit, into smoke; that is they are burnt, as Judges 20 40. Esay 9. 18. Others, her Cities are gone; they are loft fallen down. So the old Latine: Or are gone up fay some, that is, are perished and destroyed as the Chaldee hath it: taken from vapours, that as they ascend, vanish away, James 4 14 so they suppose the word to be taken. Amos 8 8 N.h. 2, 1. but these places are as dubious if not more than this. Others, he (that is the inhabitant of Moab) is departed from, or gone out of his, or her Cities, or he shall depart from his Cities; as the word is used, Numbers 16. 16. 1 Samuel 14. 46. Chapter 37. 57. but the Verb is here masculine, the Pronoun affixed to the Noun feminine. Others, he (to wit, the enemy) hath made the Cities to ascend; that is, he hath destroyed and taken them away; as Psalm 102. 24. but the forms are not the same. Others, the stirrer up of her is come up; that is, one is come, or coming up to her that will rouze her from her security, verse 11. from a word that signifies to raise, or rouze up, Joel 3. 9. but no instance of such use of the word is produced. A learned late Annotator coming after all these, rendreth it, her enemies are got up, over her: to ascend, or get up, or over one, for to overmaster him, or to be advanced to greater honour and dignity than he: and to descend, for to be overmastered by another, and depressed to more disgrace and misery. Deut. 28. 42. So here in this branch, and the next: and the word ar, is by a Chaldeism put sometime for iyar; that is, an enemy, or adversary; as 1 Samuel 28. 16. Neh. 4. 12. Psalm 10. 6. & 55. 11. & 144. 12. Esay 8. 20. Dan. 4. 16. and for the diversity of the number between the Verb and the Noun, it is not unusual, in a distributive notion; her enemies each of them hath got up, or shall get up; as the like, Exodus 17. 12. Job 12. 7. Proverbs 14. 1. Joel 1. 20. But this learned man doth elsewhere go himself another way, one of those before specified. I shall adde in the last place mine own opinion, yet not mine alone; for I find find it backed by a Jewish Master, I light hitherto on none that take notice of it, and his son, though he relate him, seemeth not to adhere to him: I render the words with him, Moab is, or, shall to adhere to him: I render the words with him, Moab is, or, shall be spoyled; he (to wit, the spoyler) is come up, or, shall come up on her cities; as verse 18. the spoyler is come upon thee: and of Babylon, Chap 51. 48 56. and, her cities, as her young men; in the next branch: the noun or participle is supplyed from the foregoing verb; as Gen. 50. 2, 26. the preposition included in the verb present.

and his chosen young men are gone down to the slaughter,] Or, shall go down; that is, be stucken down, and slain, as an oxe, or other like beast, by the sacrificer, or the butcher; as Esay 34. 6. chap. 50. 27. & 51. 40. So rather than as that learned Annotator, who would have it parallel to that. Deut. 28. 42. and an antithesis herein between this and that ascending in the former branch: which though some may well be granted; yet that which he would have, the very words of the text refuse to admit. Heb. the choyce of her young men; as Exod. 15. 4. and there is an elegant consonancy of the two terms in the text, not in found of letters onely, but in notion also, and notation; as if it were said, The choyce of her choyce ones

V. 16. The calamity of Moab is near to come, and her affliction hasteth fast.] So Esay 13. 22. Mal. 3. 5. 2 Pet 2, 1, 3.

V. 17. All ye that are about him bemoan him, and all ye that know his name,] Condole with him, both ye that are his near neighbours, and have been formerly acquainted with him, and ye also that are further off, and have known him only by hear-say.

Say ye, how is the strong staffe broken, and the beautifull rod?] Heb. staffe of strength; and, rod of beauty, or, bravery; as it is rendred, Esay 3. 18. See Ezek. 19. 11, 14. How is Moab destroyed, notwithstanding the greatnesse of his strength and state, that he so much gloried in, and trusted unto? Ezek. 19. 12. staffe and rod, are emblems of power and authority. Psal. 110. 2. Zach. 11. 7. Yet because the same terms import oft-times an afflicting and chastising or punishing power, Esay 10. 5. Lam. 3. 1. in regard hereof some conceive here to be an intimation withall of Moab's having been over-troublesome and burdensome to others in the height of her former strength and state; and this way the Chaldee Paraphrast seemeth to incline. See the like of some other, Esay 14. 4, 10, 12. Hab. 3. 13. & 51. 41. Lam. 1. 1.

V. 18. Thou daughter that dost inhabit Dibon,] Thou goodly fair city, like some beautiful and gorgeous damsel, See chap. 46. 11, 19. and of Dibon, see Num 21. 30. Esay 15. 2. 9.

Come down from thy glory,] As Esay 47. 1. Chap. 13. 19. the pronoun is wanting, as chap. 31. 17 and sit in thirst.] Not in thy fat soyl, and well-watred plains, where formerly thou didst reside, Numb 21. 13 14, 20. & 22. 1. but in some dry and thirsty place: thirst, for a place of thirst; as Psal 107. 33. Esay 35. 7. or, a thirsty place; as Esay 44. 3. a defect of the subject, see verse 16.

for the spoyler of Moab shall come upon thee and he shall destroy thy strong hold.] See verse 8. 15 & verse 1.

V. 19. O Inhabitant] Heb. Inhabitress; as chap. 10. 17 & 22, 23. & 44. 19 & 51. 35 So verse 18.

of Aroer.] A city of Moab situate on the banks of the river Arnon, Deut. 2. 36. & 3. 12.

stand by the way, and espy, ask him that fleeth, and her that escapeth, and say, what is done? Ask of every one that passeth by thee, whether man or woman, What is the cause of their flight; as chap. 46. 5. or enquire of them, how things go abroad; as people full of fears are wont to do, 1 Sam 4. 13.

V. 20. Moab is confounded; for it is broken down:] The answer of those that either flee, or passe by, returned to the former enquiry: that all is loft, verse 4.

tell it in Arnon] Of this river, See Num. 21. 13. and it may seem that some city of speciall note had its name also from it: otherwise, by Arnon must be understood the region near about it, or on the other side of it.

that Moab is spoyled.] Verse 15.

V. 21. And judgement is come upon the plain countrey,] As well as upon the higher land: or upon Moab's land in general, being most of it such. See the like, chap. 47. 5. Heb. land of plainnesse, or, evenness; as Psal. 143. 10. Esay 26. 10 upon Holon,] A city of Moab, verse 24. We find one of that name in Judah's lot, Josh 15. 51. assigned the Levites. Josh 21. 15.

and upon Mephaath,] Out of Reubens lot, Josh. 13. 18. assigned the Levites, Josh. 21. 37.

V. 22. And upon Dibon,] In Reubens lot, Josh. 13. 17. See verse 18.

and upon Nebo,] See Num. 32. 3. from whence it appeareth that most of the Towns here mentioned, were sometime part of the possessions of those Kings of the Amorites, whom the Israelites subdued beyond Jordan. See also verse 1.

and upon Beth diblathaim,] One of the Israelites stations in their passage to Canaan, Num. 33 46, 47. called there Almon-Diblathaim, and Dibla, Ezek. 6. 14. whence it appeareth, that it stood toward the wilderneste. The ancient Greek rendreth it, the house of Darblathaim; and the old Latine accordingly, though lesse corruptly, the house of Deblathaim; as if it were the name of some person, as is Dibiaim, Hos. 1 3 but Beth is part of the name of the city, as in Bethlehem, and Bethsheemesh, and Bethnon, and the like: and it may in them signifie house, as a city. So Beth gamul, and Bethmeon. verse 23.

V. 23. And upon Kiriathaim,] Of it, see Num. 32. 37. Josh. 13. 19.

and upon Bethgamul,] This city I find not elsewhere named in Scripture: A learned late Writer supposeth it to signifie in notion and notation, the same with Gog-gamul, or Gaugamela, the place of Darius his last defeat by Alexander: and to signifie the Town of Camels: (as Strabo also, lib. 16. observeth of that other, that it signifieth, the house of a Camel) and to be that which for Gamala is written Makala in Ptolomy

and upon Bozrah,] Not that in the land of Edom, Esay 63. 1. but another of the same name in the land of Moab, called also Bezer, Josh 21. 36. the word signifieth a strong fort, or hold, Esay 25. 2. & 26. 10. See on verse 1. and thence after the Punick pronunciation, Butsra, and by Inversion of letters in the Greek and Latine, Byrsa, the name of the Fort that Dido built in Africk; of which they give another fabulous notation. See Virgil. Eneides l. 1.

and upon all the cities of the land of Moab, far or near.] And, for, the rest of; as Chap. 43. 2.

V. 25. The horn of Moab is cut off, and his arm is broken, saith the Lord.] His might and majesty is utterly abandoned; set out by a two-fold expression and resemblance: the one taken from beasts, whose force and grace is in their horns, Psal. 74. 4 5, 10. & 89. 17. & 92. 10 & 148. 14 Lam. 2. 3. the other from man, whose strength, for action, consisteth most in his arms Job 22. 9. Psal 10. 15. & 18 30. & 37. 17. & 89. 13, 21. Ezek. 30. 21, 22. A learned late Writer supposeth in the terms of horn and arm, the names of two cities in that countrey alluded to, called by Ptolomy, the one Karna, the other Zoara; which come very near to those words in the Hebrew. And by horn, and arm; some, after the Chaldee, understand Sultans, or Princes, Num. 22. 24 15.

V. 26. Make ye him drunken,] Make Moab drunk, ye Chaldeans; not with wine, but with the wine cup of Gods wrath, cause him to drink of it, till he stagger and fall Esay 51 17—23. Psal. 60. 3. & 75 8. Chap. 21. 17, 21, 28. Ezek. 23. 32—34. as drunken men use to do, Psal. 107. 27.

for he magnified himself against the Lord:] So Lam. 1. 9 Zeph. 2, 10. and those that so do, God will expose to shame and contempt, Prov. 3. 34. 35. & 11. 2. Luke 14 11. & 18. 14. against the Lords people: saith the Chaldee. So verse 27. & Zeph. 2. 4, 10. See Psal. 89 50, 51. Ezek. 36. 20.

Moab also shall wallow in his vomit,] As men in drink are wont to do, Esay 19. 14. Heb. and; as chap. 1. 3 or, as some render it, then: as Chap. 44. 10 The old Latine rendreth the verb here ufed, shall clap his hands; and though the word hand, be not in the text, yet the word here found, is so used: sometime with it, as Numb. 24. 10. Job 27. 23. Lam. 2. 15 sometime without it, as Job 34. 37. but this seem not to fit so well here: the word is used for to smite, or, beat. So, to smite on the thigh Chap. 31. 18. Ezek. 21. 12. and, to beat down or, beat one against another, Job 34. 26. and might therefore not amisse be rendred, beateth himself (as he tumbleth and rolleth to and fro) in his vomit. I shall adde onely a conjecture, and shall leave it to the Learned. Why may not the verb be taken here indefinitely? and then might the word well be rendred in its most usual acception, as the old Latine taketh it, but making Moab, not the agent, but the object of the action: he shall clap the hands at Moab lying in his vomit: the like is any one, or every one; as in such indefinite forms, the words are commonly expressed as Gen. 11. 9. Some such thing the Chaldee giveth an hint of: who paraphrasing the place, saith idreshun: that is, in the common acception of the word, they shall seek out the Moabites in their place, but peradventure it is a term, by corruption drawn from the Latine irrideo: as divers terms do besides from the Latine and Greek are. See Dan. 3. 5. and then it is, they shall deride them. But this I propound only: yet hence observing that the Caldee took the word Moab here for a noun, not preceding, but following the verb.

and he also shall be in derision.] As men in such case are wont to be exposed, while they so lye along, to scorn and derision, Gen. Gens 9. 21.

V. 27. For was not Israel a derision unto thee?] Heb. And, as Chap. 44. 13, 17. Did'st not thou deride him in his misery, and rejoyce at his fall, Job 31. 29. when the ten tribes were spoyled and captived by Salmanesar? 2 Kings 17. and is it not just then, that the like now befall thee? See Judg. 1. 7. Prov. 24. 17, 18. See the like charge against the Ammonites, Ezek. 25. 6. and of the insolencies of them both against Gods people, Zephan. 2, 8, 10.

was he found among thieves?] That thou shouldest so deride him, insult over him, and make a laughing-stock of him, as men are wont to do with thieves, when they are taken in the manner? a proverbial form of speech. See Chap. 2. 26. and Job 30. 5. and the like expostulation, chap.2.14. & 49.1. Some require here a supply of somewhat, where of they conceive a defect; to make the sentence more compleat: and they supply therefore both the negative particle from the former branch, as Psal. 9. 18. Ezek. 20. 30. and the rotes of similitude, as Psal.11.1. Esay 21.8. and whereas in the copies there is here some variety; the word found, being in a masculine form, in some of them, in a feminine in others; some following the former; which is the more commonly received, render the words, was he not to thee as one found among thieves? Others, taking to the latter, render it, Was he not with thee a thing found among thieves? for the Hebrews use ordinarily the feminine in a neutral notion: and that the theft or thing stolen being found about a thief, is wont to be much matter, as of shame and diligence to him, so of merriment and laughter to others. But I see no necessity of departing from the received, either reading or version.

for since thou spakest of him, thou skippest for joy.] Or, that (as Verse 20.) as thou spakest of him, (so is the particle here found used, 1 Sam 18.30. 1 Kings 14.18. 2 Kings 4. 8. 2 Chron. 12.11. Esay 28.19.) Heb. from thy words of him; as Chap. 20. 8. & 31.20. So oft as thou hast any words concerning him, or his calamity, or captivity, thou shakest thy self, or, moveth thy self, for joy, or, with laughter; as is implied from the former branch: or, as some, thou shakest the head at him, in way of insultation, and derision, Psal.22.7. Lam. 2. 8. and so also some would have the word here. used: Psal.64.8. Howbeit, a learned late Writer following the old Latine, would have this clause rendered, but (or Gen.45.8. Chap. 46.21.) for those words (or, because of that which thou hast spoken) against him, thou shalt wander, or, be led captives: and the verb indeed in his first form signifieth to remove, or wander, from place to place: whence the land of Nod Gen. 4. 14, 16. But the reciprocal form will not so well here admit it.

V. 28. O ye that dwell in Moab, leave the cities, and dwell in the rock.] Leave your wonted places of abode, verse 6. and betake your selves for surety and safety to the ragged rocks, if you can find any succour or shelter there, Judg. 20. 45. and 21. 23. Esay 2. 19, 21.

and be like the dove, that maketh her nest in the sides of the holes mouth.] That for fear of birds of prey is wont to build in some cleft on the side of a rock, Cant. 2. 14. Chap. 49. 16. Heb. in the passages of the mouth of the pit. Whence the Chaldee understandeth it of a dove, that is come down from her turret, or locker, to hide her self in some hole on the ground: but the former seemeth the genuine sense and more agreeable to that fowls wont.

V. 29. We have heard the pride of Moab, (he is exceeding proud) his loftiness, and his arrogancy, and his pride, and the haughtiness of his heart.] Gods words, manifesting his taking notice of Moab's proud and arregant carriages. See Esay 16.6. where a great part is found of that which followeth. Yet somewhat is added here to Esay's words, and so after again; to shew, saith a learned Writer, that the Moabites not onely perssited in the same sins, but grew worse rather than better; as those, Chap. 9. 3.

V. 30. I know his wrath, saith the Lord, but it shall not be so, his lies shall not so effect it.] His vain vaunts and menaces against me and my people, Verse 26. Zeph. 2. 8. which I take notice of, (as Hos. 5.3. Amos 5. 12.) shall not take effect, Psal. 1.4. & 33, 10, 11, or, as some render the latter words, those on whom he flattereth, or, relyeth, (Heb. his bars) do not right. See Chap. 50. 36. A late learned Annotator giveth here a twofold reading diverse from others before him; either thus, I know his rage, and that not to be right, just and equal; I know also that they do each of them his lies, and not that which is right: or thus. I know his rage, is it not so? (is he not exceedingly outragious?) and his lies, (I know also) do they not do so?) Is is not true, that he is in either kind very faulty? the words read interrogatively; as 1 Sam. 20. 14. But of this passage, see more on Esay 16.6.

V. 31. Therefore will I howl for Moab, and I will cry out for all Moab.] Esay 16.7. Moab shall howl for Moab. But what was there said of the Moabites howling one for, or over, another, the Prophet applyeth unto himself here. So verse 32.

mine heart shall mourn for the men of Kirheres] mine heart, is supplyed from Esay 15.5. Yet some render it without any supply, he shall mourn, that is, Moab shall mourn: or, taking the verb indefinitely, men shall mourn; or, mourning there shall be: as Esay 32. 12. for the men of Kirheres. Esay 16.7. for the foundations of Kirhareseth; for the like thereof, for the people here: for the city is the same.

V. 32. O vine of Sibmah, I will weep with thee for the weeping of Jazer.] Or, as some render it, or, above more than, the weeping of Jazer. So is this form taken: Psal.45.7. & 130 6. Chap.49.19. I will bewail thee more largely and lamentably than Esay bewayled Jazer: whose words and forms of lamentation Jeremy here enterlardeth and enlargeth, the rather for that this devastation of Moab by the Chaldeans was to be much more grievous, than that Esay foretold by the Assyrians, Esay 16.14. See of Sibmah, and this passage there, Esay 16. 8.9.

thy plants are gone over the sea, they reach even to the sea of Jazer.] See Esay 16.8.

the spoyler is fallen upon thy summer-fruit, and upon thy vintage.] See Verse 33, 18. & Esay 16.9.

V. 33. And joy and gladnesse is taken from the plentifull field, and from the land of Moab, and I have caused wine to faile from the wine-presses; none shall tread with shouting.] See Esay 16. 10. tread, for, tread grapes. as Esay 63. 2. Chap. 25.30. and in Esay, to tread wine, for, to tread grapes, to make wine.

their shouting shall be no shouting.] The stout of the enemies assailing them, and breaking in upon them, Chap.25.30. or the shout and out-cry that themselves shall make at the enemies irruption on and storming of them, shall be another manner of shout and cry, than that which they were wont to use in the Vintage or harvest times, at the bringing in of the wine and corn; a shout, not of joy and mirth, but of terrour and dread, verse 34. chap. 51. See Exodus 32. 18.

V. 34 From Heshbon, even unto Elealeh, and even unto Jahaz have they uttered their voyce.] See Esay 15.4.

from Zoar even unto Horonaim, as an heifer of three years old.] Thus beginneth to low after the bull. See Esay 15. 5. Verse 3.

for the waters also of Nimrim shall be desolate.] Heb. desolations; as Chap. 51. 62. See Esay 51.9.

V. 35. Moreover, I will cause to cease in Moab, saith the Lord, him that offereth in the high places, and him that burneth incense to his gods.] Heb, And as Chap.44. 24. that which was before threatned, Ver. 7 See Num.21.28.

V. 36. Therefore mine heart shall sound for Moab like pipes, and mine heart shall sound like pipes for the men of Kirheres:] Alluding to the custome of playing with flutes and pipes certain sad and doleful tunes or funerals and solemn mournings. Mat. 6.23. See Esay 15. 5. & 16.11.

the riches that he hath gotten is perished.] See Esay 15.7.

V. 37. For every head shall be bald, and every beard clipt.] Heb, diminished, or, cut short, Lzek.5.1. 11. See Esay 15. 2, Chap.47.5.

upon all the hands shall be cuttings, and upon the loynes sack-cloth.] See chap 17.5. Esay 15. 3. hands. for, arms, as chap. 38. 12. for their arms they used to cut and slash in such cases. So also, wounds in their hands, for, upon their armes. Zach. 13.6.

V. 38. There shall be lamentation generally upon all the house tops of Moab, and in the streets thereof:] See Esay 15. 3.

for I have broken Moab.] Or, for I will break; or, When I shall break, Moab; as Chap.13.21.

like a vessel wherein is no pleasure, saith the Lord.] See Chapter 22. 28.

V. 39. They shall howl, saying] Or, Men shall howl; or, There shall be howling, and, saying; for the verb is indefinite, as verse 31. Esay 32. 12.

How is it broken down?] See the like, verse 17.

How that Moab turned thee back with shame?] As those that dare not shew their face for shame; say some: but rather, as those, that dare not look the enemy in the face, but turn their back to them; and in shameful manner instead of fighting betake themselves to flight: as Chap.46.5. Heb. neck; or, hinder part of the neck: as Chap. 2. 27. 32. Josh. 7. 8, 12.

So shall Moab be a derision, and a dismaying to all that are about him.] Or, thus. Heb. and, as Chap. 25. 34. and, for laughter, or, unto derision, as Israel was before to him, verse 27. and, for a dismaying, or, affrightment. as Esay 19. 16, 17. & 23. 5. as fearing yet, lest the like might also befall them.

V. 40. For thus saith the Lord; Behold, he shall flye as an Eagle and shall spread his wings over Moab.] Nebuchadnezzar shall come swiftly, like an Eagle, flying at, and spreading his wings over his prey. Deut. 28. 49. Chap. 4. 13. & 49. 22. Dan. 7. 4. Hos. 8. 1. Habb. 1. 6. and in the term of wings, may an allusion be to the wings (as they are termed also) of an army: wherewith the Chaldean Kings forces covered over-spread his whole land. See Esay 8. 8.

V. 41. Kerioth is taken, and the strong holds are surprised:] Or, The Cities are taken, for it may be, either the proper name of a city, as verse 24. or, a common term of cities in general: as Heb. 2. 5, 12. and it forteth well here with what followes, cities and forts are all surprised; no place so strong, that is able to hold out. See Verse 15, 24.

and the mighty mens hearts in Moab at that day shall be as the heart of a woman in her pangs.] The hearts of the strongest and stoutest of them shall quail; and it shall be with them, as with a woman that hath grievous hard labour. So Esay 21. 3. Chap. 30. 6. & 49. 22, 24. Mich. 4. 9, 10.

V. 42. And Moab shall be destroyed from being a people.] See verse 2. Esay 7. 8.

because hee hath magnified himselfe against the Lord.] See Verse 26.

V. 43. Fear, and the pit, and the snare shall be upon thee, O Inhabitant of Moab, saith the Lord.] See Esay 24. 17.

V. 44. And he that fleeth from the fear, shall fall into the pit, and he that getteth up out of the pit, shall be taken in the snare:] He that escapeth one danger, shall be surprised with another; and if that misse also, with a third. So 1 Kings 19. 17. & 20, 30. Amos 5. 19. See Esay 24. 18.

for I will bring upon it, even upon Moab, the year of their visitation, saith the Lord.] So chap.11. 23. & 29. 22. & 46. 21. There is an elegant redundancy of the noun subjoyned to the pronoun; that maketh the sentence more vigorous: as the like, Prov. 5. 21. Esay 8. 13. & 48. 6. Chap. 9. 15.

V. 45. They that fled, stood under the shadow of Heshbon, because of the force:] Those that fled out of the villages, for want of strength, (as some render it; like that, from fat, that is, for want of fat, Psalm 109.24. See Lamentations 4.9.) or from the enemies of fat, Psalm 109.24. See Lamentations 4.9.) or from the enemies forces pursuing them, betook themselves to Heshbon, as being a place of chief strength; hoping to find succour and shelter there, as in the shade of some great tree against the scorching heat of the Sunne, or under the shroud of it against a storm: shadow, for, protection: as Judges 9. 15. 20. Eccles. 7. 12. Esay 32. 2. Daniel 4. 12.

but a fire shall come forth out of Heshbon] But their expectations shall be frustrate: for both Heshbon shall be surprised by the Chaldeans, who from thence shall surround, and with fire and sword waste the rest of the Countrey unto the utmost bounds of it. This whole passage with little variation, is taken out of Moses, in whose writing is recorded a proverbial kind of speech in those daies very common in mens mouthes, concerning the mischief that from Heshbon King Sihons city the Ammorites had done to the Moabites. Numb. 21. 28, 29. but by the Prophet here applyed to the Chaldeans. See v. 2.

a fire shall come forth out of Heshbon] So Judges 9. 15, 20.

and a flame from the midst of Sihon.] Heb. from between Sihon, that is, simply, from Sihon, or from out of Sihon: and Sihon, for the city of Sihon; as it is in Moses, that is, from Heshbon: for Heshbon was the City and seate of Sihon a King of the Ammorites Numbers 21. 26.

and shall devour,] Or, which shall devour; the copulative for the relative: as c. 41 8.

the corner of Moab] Or as some render it, the side from Exodus 27. 9. Numbers 35. 5. but it may here better be rendred coast. than side, or corner: as it is Numbers, 34. 3. As also Nehemiah 9. 22. coasts, rather than corners, or the end: as it is rendred, Ezekiel 41. 12. it shall spoil all Moabs land from the one end to the other.

and the crown of the head of the tumultuous ones] Or, revellers, Heb. children of noise; as chapter 46 17. not so much the rude and promiscuous multitude, Esay 16.14 & 17.12. as the gallants those revelling and roting ones; as Esay 5. 14. & 24. 8. So rather, than as some of those tumultuous ones, that could not be quiet, but would needs be shaking off the Chaldean yoke. See Chapter 27. 3, 8. and, the crown of the head: Either the King and his Princes; as Esay 1. 5, 6. for the most, it cause they find Lords Numb. 21. 28. as Esay 1. 5, 6. for the most, it cause they find Lords Numb. 21. 28. though the word be no more than owners and masters, there: or, the chief and principal, among those revelling gallants; as the like Esay. 28. 1, 3. or the principal of the wealthy and fat soyl, that maintaineth them, and their riot: as Esay 28. 1, 4. Chapter 2. 16. or simply, which I take to be the genuine sense, it shall destroy these gallants, it shall break their heads; as Psal. 68 21.

V. 46. Woe unto thee, O Moab,] See Num. 21. 29.

the people of Chemosh perisheth,] Or is perished, the people of Chemosh, their chief Idol whom they served, v. 7. 13.

for thy sons are taken captives, and thy daughters captives.] Heb. they have taken them in captivity; as verse 7. but the verb is indefinite: and is both of them here therefore rendred by the passive: As Nehemiah 2.7. Job 7. 3.

V. 47. Yet will I bring again the captivity of Moab, in the latter dayes saith the Lord.] Heb. And; as chap. 44.4. Either I will bring back his captives; as Psalm 126. 1. Chap. 30. 3. or I will restore him again to his former state; as Job 42. 10. Heb. in the posterity of dayes, or the after-times, chap. 23. 20. After a long time of desolation; by a spirituall restitution principally in the dayes of the Messias. So the Jewish Commenters themselves here, and c. 49. 6. 39. Zeph. 2, 11. See Esay 49 v. 6.

Thus far is the judgement of Moab.] The conclusion of this long prophecy concerning Moab; as the like of the whole volume of his prophecies, c. 51. 64. So rather than as some, following the Chaldee, would have it, as setting a limit to Moabs desolation: Thus long shall the judgement of Moab continue.

CHAP. XLIX.

Verse 1. Concerning the Ammonites, thus saith the Lord] Into this Chapter are cast divers severall Prophecies, against severall people, most of them the Jewes, their neare but bad neighbours. The first that he beginneth with are the Ammonites, the Moabites brethren, Lots sons, Psalm 83. 8. the former by his elder daughter, the latter by his younger, Genesis 19. 37, 38. they dwelt neare together, and banded both with the Chaldeans and others. against Gods people, 2 Kings 24. 2. Psalm 83. 6, 7. and are therefore joyned together, Zeph. 2. 8. Heb. sons of Ammon: as chapter 43 10. they are so constantly termed from the root of their stock, whom his mother named Benammi, Gen. 19. 38. Heb. unto them, and so some render it: but the particle is sometime also so used, as our Version rendreth it, Genesis 20. 13. Psalm 91. 11. Chapter 14. 19. & 28. 8. Others, against; as it is rendred, Job 7. 20. & 8. 4. chap. 3. 25. See the like denunciation with this against them, Ezekiel 21. 28. & 25. 2. Amos 1. 13.

Hath Israel no sons? hath he no heir?] He beginneth this discourse about the Ammonites, with an expostulation concerning their wrong offered to Gods people, in seizing on their Land, as if they wanted issue of their own, or other neaver of kin, that might more justly lay claime thereunto; continueth it with a denunciation of judgement against them for their so dealing, verse 2——5. and concludeth it with a gracious promise of restitution, verse 6. See the like expostulation, or demand at least, Chapter 2. 14.

Why then doth their King inherit Gad, and his people dwell in his Cities?] What reason is there, that their King or Idoll should as by right of Inheritance seize upon, and hold any part of that Land, that God hath by lot assigned to his people, as escheated to him for want of Heires? See Judges 11. 23, 24. and Zeph. 2. 8.

their King] Or, Melcom, their Idol, 1 Kings, 11. 5. whom in place of the true God, they see up in those places which they seize upon. See Verse 3. and the like ambiguitie. Zephaniah, 1. 5.

Gad.] The Tribe of Gad: that which God had by Moses assigned unto it, the one half of Gilead (for the other halfe of it, the Tribe of Manasses held, Numbers 32. 39. Joshua 13. 29, 31.) even so much, or all of it, as costed upon half of the Ammonites, country, Joshua 13. 24, 25. (for so I should rather chuse to expound that place, than as some other, of Lands taken by Sihon from the Ammonites, and so possessed by the Ammorites, Numbers 21. 26. for there is no mention at all of the Ammonites countrey in that place) and that the Ammonites had by their vicinity, when the Israelites were sometime in a weak and low condition, either by distractions at home, or disturbances from abroad, taken occasion to encroach upon the possessions of that Tribe, that part of it especially, that lay so near to them, to wit, Gilead, appeareth plainly by Amos, 1. 13. howsoever the Text (in one word there ambiguous, whereof see on Esay 7. 14.) be rendred: and this seemeth to have been about Jeroboam the seconds reign, for under him Amos prophecied, Amos 1. 1. and at that time was that State in a very dejected and forlorn condition, 2 Kings 14. 26. Howbeit, some suppose this to have more special reference to Pekah reign, under whom the Ammonites, joyning with Tiglath Pileser King of Assyria, should seize upon the Gadites inheritance: and that Tiglath Pileser indeed then seized among other places in that kingdome, upon Gilead. we finde 2 Kings 15. 29. and that both Pul and he carried the Gadites away captive, 1 Chronicles 5. 26. but of the Ammonites joyning therein with either of them, nothing is said in the Holy story. Yet is it not unlikely, that those parts being by this means much dispeopled, they took occasion thereby to seize upon some part of that Tribes inheritance, lying so near to them, and so fit for them: as also that after the dissolution of that State by Salmaneser, 2 Kings 17. they continued their possession of it; while the Assyrian Kings having dispeopled much of it, did not look much after it. To which purpose Zephany also long after giveth us an hint, that both the Ammonites and Moabites in Josias his reign had encroached upon the borders of Israel, Zeph. 2.8. And we finde them both further in Jehojakim's reign joyned with the Chaldeans against Judah, 2 Kings 24. 2. And that at the time of this prophecy they held some good part of that territory, doth from Gods expostulation with them by the Prophet here appear: God with all intimateing, that they could have no right thereunto; since that, albeit the ten Tribes had had no issue of their owne, yet they wanted not an Heir; Judah by right of consanguinity might well come in before the Ammonites, and lay claime to that Land, which his brethren of the other Tribes had formerly held, 1 Kings, 12. 24.

V. 2. Therefore behold the dayes come, saith the Lord,] The wrong was before, v. 1. the righening by judgement to be executed upon the Ammonites now followeth. Heb. the dayes coming; as c. 48. 12.

that I will cause an allarm of war to be heard in Rabbah of the Ammonites,] Heb. and (for, that; as c. 48. 12.) I will cause to be heard a shout, or sounding of war, (that is, a warlike, or military shout; as Chapter 4. 19. & 20. 16. So Amos 1. 14. & 2. 2.) in Rabbah: the chief City in the Ammonites countrey, 2 Sam. 11. 1. & 12. 26. Amos 1. 14.

and it shall be a desolate heap,] Heb. an heap, or hillock of desolation: as Deut. 13. 16. See Ezekiel 25. 5.

and her daughters shall be burnt with fire:] The Towns and Villages belonging to her, as a mother city to them. See ch. 15. 18. So are the inferiour Towns usually termed in Scripture, Num. 21. 20, 33 Lam. 3. 51.

then shall Israel be heir unto them that were his heirs, saith the Lord.] The Israelites shall then inherit the Ammonites land, who had before, as if he had been rightful heir to them, possessed himself of theirs, v. 1. See the like, Esay 14 1.

V. 3. Howl O Heshbon] A City which had been sometime King Sihons chief seat, Numbers 21. 20. re-edified by the Reubenites, Numbers 32. 37. but whether parted afterward between them and the Gadites, or whether by lot it fell afterward to the latter, doth not so clearly appear; for it is mentioned as one of their boundaries, Joshua, 13. 15, 16. and as a City out of their inheritance assigned to the Levites, Joshua 21. 38, 39. but seemed to have been about these times possessed by the Moabites. See Chapter, 48. 2, 34, 45. And hence come gather that the Ammonites were over-runne, and ruined before the Moabites; because Heshbon is willed to howle upon the takeing and sacking of Rabba, and some other place betweene Heshbon and it, as expecting to fare as Rabba, and those others had done.

for Ai is spoyled:] Not that Ai. whereof mention is made, Josh. 7. 1. & 9. 3. but another of that name, on the other side of Jordan, situate between Heshbon and Rabbah; by Ptolomy deemed to be called Gaia; as Gaza, for Azzah. Chap. 47. 1. and Gomorra, for Amorah, Elay 1. 9.

cry ye daughters of Rabbah,] Either ye towns belonging to it; as verse 2. but then towns, for inhabitants; as Esay 1. 27. and so the Jewish Commenters: Or, ye women of Rabbah; as Daughters of Israel, 2 Samuel 1. 24. and Daughters of Sion, Isaiah, 3. 16. and, Daughters of Jerusalem, Luke 23. 28.

gird ye with sackecloth] Heb. gird sackes: the usual mourning weed in those times, c. 4. 8 & 6. 20.

and run to and fro by the hedges:] To hide your selves behind them in the fields amidst the bushes and the thickets, for fear of the enemy ranging up and down; seeing ye have no towns or cities left for you to repair unto, they being all surprised, sacked and burnt down to the ground, verse 2. For the Jewish Masters seem to stray, who expound it of such mounds or fences as their villages had about them, that had not walls and gates, as their great cities had, 1 Sam. 23. 7.

for their King shall go into captivity; and his Priests, and his Princes together.] Heb. Malcam. Either the King of the Ammonites that resided at Rabba, verse 2. or their idol, as verse 1. shall go into captivity, or shall goe among the captives; as Ezekiel 12. 11. the very same is said of Camosh, Chapter 48. 7. of Malcam, Amos 1. 15. but there their King seemeth to be intended, because he speaketh onely of his Princes: here the idol rather, as Camosh before; Priests are also in both places mentioned; of idols carried captive, see also c. 43 12.

V 4. Wherefore glorieſt thou in the valleyes] In thy rich and fertile soyl, in thy well watered plains that therefore fear no drought, c. 17. 8. and that by their constant fertilty make thee so wealthy. So the Jewish Commenters, with whom most others concur: yet a learned Interpeter of ours would have it rather rendred in thy profundities, as in a notion of fortification. See v. 8. 30. because though low, yet invironed with hils. But the former notion seemeth the natural, and is the more familiar notion. The Greek here hath, the fields of Enacim: whence I wot not. See c. 47. 5. & 48. 8.

thy flowing valley,] Thy valethat floweth with abundance of all revenews, as well for delight and pleasure, as necessity and wealth; as the land of Canaan is said to flow with milke and honey, Chapter. 11. 15. and 32. 22. But the most, both jewes and others reade it, thy vale floweth: which they expound diverſly. Some, it fainteth, and is grown weake; as a woman in her infirmity. or man and woman by an immoderate fluxe, Leviticus, 15, 2, 3, 10, 33. Others, it flush flow, with blood of those that shall be slain in thee: As Esay 15. 9. and 34. 7. Others with such a storm of rain or land floods, as shall wath away all that is in thee, or groweth on thee, thine inhabitants and all their wealth: As Chapter 48 8. Others, lastly, it shall flow away, waste, vanish away, and be gone or be stuyed; as Lamentations 4. 9. see Job 20. 28. It is an allusion, saith one of ours, to the fire of Valleyes, that shoot along betweene the Hills, as Rivers, or Brookes, or, Land-floods runne downe, till they empty themselves into the Sea, Psalm 104. 10. Either Version hath good probabilitie; of this latter, the last, most of any, But I incline rather to the former reading, because the menace comes after, verse 5.

O backe-sliding daughter] Or, that turneſt away: to wit, from God; as Esaiah, 57. 17. Chapter, 31. 22. But I should rather here render it untoward, or refractarie: because spoken of a people, that never had been joyned in Covenant with God. Of the terme Daughter: See 49. Chapter, 46. 11. 19.

that truſted in her treasures,] Or troſteth in thy treaſures: a change of the person; as Job 18. 4. O thou that teareſt himself in his wrath: Of such vain confidence, See Psalm 49. 6. & 52. 7. Prov. 11. 28. Mark 10. 20. 1 Tim. 6. 17.

saying.] Supplied; as Psalm 105. 15. Acts 7. 32.

who ſhall come unto me?] or who can come at me? in a potentiall notion; as supposing themselves impregnable, and sufficiently able to keep out any forrein force, that might offer to invade them. See the like, c. 21. 13.

V. 5. Behold, I will bring a fear upon thee, ſaith the Lord God of Hoſts, from all thoſe that be about thee:] Heb. I am bringings as c. 42. 17. & 45. 5. fear upon thee from all thy circuits, or from all (places, rather than persons here) round about thee; as c. 46. 14. I will rouze you out of this your self-confidence and security, by surrounding you with terrours on every side of you; as Chap. 46. 5. So v. 29. 32. See Ezek. 32. 32.

and ye ſhall be driven out every man right forth,] As Amos 4. 3. not daring either so stand still. or to looke backe, Genesis 19. 17. Chapter 46. 5. and 47. 3. Matthew, 24. 16. ——— 18. Marke 10. 32. Luke 16. 31, 32. and 21. 21. Heb. a man, for each one; as chapter 44. 16.

and none ſhall gather up him that wandreth.] None shall entertain them, or take them in, when they flee and wander from place to place, seeking for refuge and relief; as Psalm 17. 10 Mic. 4. 6. or none shall be able to rally them, or bring them together again, to make head against the enemy; as Judges 3. 13. or none shall look after any other to succour them, or to take them along with them in their flight, but as in great consternation and affghtment is wont to fall out, every one shall seek onely how to shift for himself; as c. 47. 3.

V. 6. And afterward I will bring again the captivitie of the children of Ammon, ſaith the Lord.] or yet afterward; as c. 44. 4, 28. A gracious close with promise of restitution: the like whereunto, see c. 48. 47. So v. 39.

V. 7. Concerning Edome, thus ſaith the Lord of Hoſts;] Heb. unto Edome. See ver. 1. The second Prophecy is of the Edomites, the posterity of Esau, Genesis, 36, 8, 9. See other the like concerning them, Esay 21. 11. & 34. 6. & 63. 1 Ezekiel 25. 12. Amos 1. 11. Obad. 1.

Is wiſedome no where in Teman?] The Arabians, or those of the East, were anciently famous for wisedome, 1 Kings 4. 30. Mat. 2. 1. those of Esau's posterity especially. and among them the Temanites, a race descended from Teman, the son of Eliphaz, whom Esau had by Adah his first wife, Gen. 36. 10, 11. of which family was Eliphaz one of Job's friends. Job 2. 11. And therefore demanded, whether all their wisedome that they had wont to be so much cried up, and renowned for, were utterly lost, that they seem to be at their wits end. like those at Sea, Psalm 107. 27, See the like of Egypt. Esay, 9. 11 ——— 13. and of this concerning Edom; Obad. 8.

is counſel periſhed from the prudent?] Heb. from the underſtanding ones. Howbeit, some of the Jewish Masters render it, sons; which the word also may well signifie: and one of them taking it to have reference to Teman, expoundeth it from those of this generation; as if it were said, from the children of Teman, from those of his race that now live: the old Latine also going this way rendreth it: from the sons, which some referring to wiſedome, expound it, from the sons of wiſedome; as Matt. 11. 19.

is their wiſedome vaniſhed?] Some render the word here used, is it become ſuperfluous, unprofitable, or uſeleſs, naught worth. So the old Latine, and the Tigurine, because the term hath sometime a notion of superfluity, Exodus 26. 12, 13. The Jewish Doctor after the Chaldee, It is corrupted and ſpoyled, from a term that very commonly in the Talmudic tongue signifieth, to be corrupt, rotten, stinking, vile, and abominable. A learned late Writer, Is it tired out? from an Ethiopick term, that signifieth to be wearied or tired, Mark. 11. 28. An Interpreter of note, Is it worn out? and consequently, become uſeleſs: which may seem to come home to the first, not to the severe from the second; for that things worn out, are usually such, as that Rabbinical term importeth c. 38. 11. and to suit also with our Version, since that things waxen old and worn out, are ready to vaniſh, Heb. 8. 13.

V. 8. Flee ye, turn backe, dwell deep, O Inhabitants of Dedan.] These words are diverſly read, and diverſly rendred. Some read the words all in one notion; as imperative, or hortative, flee, turn backe, dwell deep: as this our present Version exhibiteth them and to the same effect our former; as also the old Latine, the Tigurine, and some other Interpreters of note. But against this a Jewish Critick excepteth, and saith, the two latter terms cannot have that notion; because there is no such mood in that form of the one, and the vowel is diverſe in that mood with the other: and a learned Scholiast therefore to establish this Version, requireth some change in the points. But to help this without any such alteration, a late learned Annotator well observeth, that there may be, as oft there is, an interchange of the person, the third for the second, as was before, Verse 4. and the Tense past or present, for the Imperative; which is also not unuſuall: Flee yee, they turne, they dwell deepe, for, Flee yee, and turne yee backe, and dwell deepe, O yee Inhabitants of Dedan. See the like change of person, Genesis 28, 21, 22. Esay 2. 29. and 61. 7. Chapter 5. 21. and 6. 17. and 16. 12. and 29. 19. and 44. 10. and the Tense past or present with the Copularive here understood, Exodus 3. 16. and 4. 22. and 12. 22. and 25. 13. 2 Kings 9. 3. Chapter 2. 2. and 3. 12. and 5. 20. Howbeit, other of both the Jewish Commenters and ours, render the two latter Verbs as in an enunciative form; one of the Rabbines, Flee yee, Inhabitants of Dedan; they, (that is, the Enemies) are turned againſt you, and have pierced deep, or, farre into your Land to dwell in it, and to expell and drive you out of it; and others, when they said. Flee; (such a defect and supply; as Psalm 27. 8. no sooner was such a word cast out, but presently) the Inhabitants of Dedan turned their backe, and dweit deep; sought to get into Caves and Holes as deepe as they could, where they might be most safe, and secure from the Enemy, for fear of whom they fled. A late learned Interpreter including the two latter in a parenthesis; Flee ye ye (it ſhall come to paſs that they ſhall turn themſelves away, and retire to deep dwellings) O Inhabitants of Dedan. If any change in the vowel points might be admitted, I should rather chuse to attempt it in the first word, reading Nasu, for Nasu, rather than with that learned Scholiast Nasbu, for Nasbu: but I see not why nasu may not be here a Verb of the indicative past or present; since that form is in divers particles of Verbs of the same stampe and ranke found, as in Cassu, hastening, Numbers 32. 17. surah flitting, Esay 49. 21. shoze, returning, Mic. 2. 8. and other the like. Thus they might run all in the indicative, The Inhabitants of Dedan are fled, or flee, they have turned the backe, or are turned backe, they dwell deep, or abide in deep places. But since that I finde the same in effect, yea, for the first and last in terms the same, again afterward, v. 30. I adhere to that which our Version exhibiteth, and with the change of the person only allowed, the irregularity found in the last, is not great, nor such as need force it from being an impe ative form.

turn backe,] Or, they turn backe: a term used sometime of turning, or looking back, either to make head against the enemy in purſuit, or to save and rescue somewhat from them: So c. 46. 5. & 47. 3. See v. 5. sometime of turning the back to the enemy, to make an escape by flight, chap. 46. 21. and 48. 39. So here, and again v. 24. One of the Jewish Masters renders it, they have removed themselves, as saith he, the word is used, Leviticus, 14. 36. where it is rendred, they ſhall empty the houſe; that is, remove all the houshold-ſtuff out of it: but the forms are not here and there the same.

dwell deep] Or they dwell, or abide deep. Heb. they make deep, or make deep to ſit: that is, to dwell, or to abide; as 2 Kings 6. 2. Chapter 43. 4. So Psalm 113. 5. that maketh high, or aloft, to dwell: that is, who dwelleth aloft, or on high; as our Version well rendreth it. So, make deep demand, for ask somewhat below, or in the deep, Esay 7. 11. and, that make deep to conſult, for, deviſe profound projects, Esay 29. 15. and, they corrupt, they make deep, for they are deeply corrupted, Hos. 9. 9. and that which cometh neareſt home to this, he digged and made deep, for he digged deep, Luke 6 48. the meaning is, not dwell, or abide in the vale, as a learned Interpreter would have it, because the word for a vale, v. 4. cometh from this root: but retire, pierce as deep as ye can into the cleſts of the Rocks. or Grots and Caves in the ground where ye may lye hid, by moſt out of ſight and so ſecret and cureſt from the enemy, and there make your abode. See Judges 6. 2. 1 Samuel 13. 6. & 14. 11. Esay 2. 19. 21. c. 48. 27. The very form is verſe 30.

Dedan] A city in Arabia joyning upon Idumea, Esay 21. 13. inhabited by the people deſended from Abraham by Keturah, Genesis 25. 3. who it seemeth had been subdued by the Edomites, and their city with its territory annexed to the Land and State of Idumea. See Ezek. 25. 13.

for I will bring the calamity of Eſau upon him, the time that I will viſite him.] Heb. for I have brought. As Chapter 32. 42. and 44. 2. but the time past here for the future, as Esay 30. 19. Micah 7. 8. yet it may be rendred, when I bring, as Chapter 10. 2. and 11. 23. or, And, in the time of his viſitation: a defect of the Particle in; as Chapter 11. 23. that is, what time I come to visite them: as Chapter 10. 15. & 46. 21. Eſau, that is, Edom: for Eſau and Edom are one and the same, Genesis 36. 1, 8 9. as Jacob and Iſrael, Genesis 32. 28.

V. 9. If grape-gatherers come to thee, will they not leave ſome gleaning grapes? Heb. cleſters: but the word seems peculiarly to signifie such clusters as are wont to be left, either by overſight, or wittingly, according to the Law, Leviticus 19. 10. Deut. 24. 21. in the cutting and gathering of the grapes in Vintage: alluded to, Judges 8. 2. & 20. 45. Esay 17. 6. & 24. 13. chap. 6. 9. Mic. 7. 1. The same thing is found Obadia 5. and thereby is implyed, that the Chaldeans when they came, found help the Edomites utterly of all their wealth, leaving nothing of worth behind them. The old Latine, not regarding the interrogation, maketh the sense directly contrary to what is intended, while he rendreth the words, they would not have left a cleſter: it is intimated indeed, that the Chaldeans would do no less; but that illuſtrate by an agreement of diſſimilitude. Which howſoever the Greek not unfitly expreſſeth, rendring it, There are grape-gatherers come, that will leave thee no remnant; yet they mangle the Text, and do not faithfully exhibit it, but inſtead of the Potatis, or former part of the collation, give us here the Apoſtis. or application of it, which cometh after, as being the latter part: v. 10.

if thieves] To wit, had come unto thee: supplied from the former branch: as the like, Gen. 1. 16. 2 Chron. 10. 11. compared with 1 Kings 12. 11.

by night] As thieves usually do, Job 24. 16. 1 Theſſalonians 5. 2. 2. Pet. 3. 10.

they will deſtroy till they have enough.] Or, they would have deſtroyed Heb. their ſufficiency; as Exod 36. 7. Prov. 25. 16. they would have taken so much as would serve their turn, and left the rest behind, not have swept all away, as these Chaldees will do, when they come

V. 10. But I have made Eſau bare:] Or, I have bored him, (as Joel, 1. 7.) or will ſtrip Eſau: that is, the Edomites deſcended of Esau Gen. 36. 1. as v. 8. I will by the Chaldeans ſtrip them of all that ever they have.

I have uncovered his ſecret places] Heb. his coverts, or hiding places, or places of covert; as Chapter, 23. 24. either their forts and ſtrong holds, Esay 4. 6. or the holes that they creep into to hide themselves in, v. 8. or the ſecret places where they hide their treasure, Esay 45. 3. See Esay 15. 7. or both the one and the other: implying that nothing should be concealed or kept from the enemy. See v. 20.

and he ſhall not be able to hide himſelf,] Or, ſo that (as Chapter 29. 6, 26.) he ſhall not be able to hide himſelf. Heb. to be hid; as chap. 36 19.

his ſeed is ſpoyled] Either the Edomites themselves: as the seed of Jacob, the Israelites, Chap. 33 26. or their children: as Chap. 36. 31. for whom they shall finde no place, wherein to conceal, or if cure them, nor friend or neighbour to commit them unto, verse 11.

and his brethren] The Moabites and Ammonites deſcended from Lot Abrahams nephew, Genesis 11. 31. and 19. 37, 38. undergoing the same calamitie with the Edomites, Chapter 48. verse 1.

and he is not] Edom is no more a Kingdome, or a State; as, Psalm 37. 36. c. 31. 15. or as som: of the Jewish Masters, who joyn this clause to the next verse; There is none to him; or there is none left him: he hath none, either brother or neighbour to take charge of his children, that they may fay, as it is there, or there is not he, that may fay, Leave thy orphans with me, v. 11. But of this farther there.

V. 11. Leave thy fatherleſs children, I will preſerve them alive, and let thy widowes truſt in me.] These words most Interpreters conceive to be the words of God himself to the Edomites, as advising them to commit their children and their widowes to him. And our ancient English Versions render them: thou ſhalt leave thy fatherleſs children with me, and I will keep them: for it is no small comfort fay some of them that goe this way, when dyes, or when they fee they muſt perish themselves, yet if they have some friends, that will take care for their widows and their orphans: or fay others, when men are compelled to flee, or withdraw themſelves, being constrained to flit from place to place, if they have some friend with whom they may leave wife and children as David did his parents with the King of Moab, 1 Sam. 22. 3. that which God, as some suppoſe, should put the Edomites in hope that he should do for them, when all others should flit them; and so it should be not unlike that, Psalm 27. 0. But others conceive that God speaks it not as promising any such thing, but implying onely that they should have none left to leave them to, but God, their friends, alliance, and neighbours being in the same case with themselves, verse 10 Others, that they should have no such to leave to any their wives and children being slain as well as themselves. Whence it is said, that there should be no remainder of them, Obad. 18. and that of Babylon fay they, includeth also the Ed mites, Psalm 137. 7, 9. Others, that God speaketh it by way of irony or deriſion, as if he ſhould fay, you may do well to commit and commend your wives and children to me, as hoping that I should undertake the securing of them; but little favour or mercy are either they or your selves like to find with me, who have carried your selves ſo inſolently towards me and my people. But these seem all of them somewhat ſtrange and ſtrained Interpretations Which the Chaldee perceiving, maketh it Gods ſpeech to the Israelites, rendring the Text, O houſe of Iſrael ye ſhall not leave, or leave not your orphans, I will ſecure them: and let your widowes reſt on my word; as encouraging them, not the Edomites, to depend upon him; as one that would take care of them, and provide for them, Psalm 68. 5. But others, as was in part before hinted, ſuppoſe them to be conceived as the ſpeech of some friends, if any such were, that would offer ſuch kindneſſe to the Edomites in this their diſtreſſe as to undertake such an office of love and amity in their behalf: to which purpole some, not of the Jewish Doctours onely, but of ours also following them, tear off the last clause from the former verse, and affixe it to this. But howſoever in some places, these may ſeeme some neceſſity of ſo doing; whereof, see on Esay, 63 1. yet it seemeth not ſo here. That may well stand ſtill, as in our Version it doth; and this, with that ſupply, which a learned Scholiast ſuggeſteth, follow as a Sentence diſtinct from what went before: No man is there that may fay, Leave me thine O ſhames &c. Or, as I ſhould rather ſupply it, to make some coherence of this with the former: He is not: (Edome himselfe is loſt. is gone:) Nor is there any to fay, Leave thine Orphanes, I will keep them alive. See the like ſupply of the negative, from the Verſe before-going, Esay 28. 28.

I will preserve them alive :] Leave them to me, and I will secure them. Heb. make them live, or quicken them : but the word is vſed alſo, for to preſerve in life, or keep alive, Exod. 1.18. Numb. 31.15.18. Pſalm 22.29 and ſo it would alſo be rendred, Pſalm 109.25.37,40. 50.88.93.

V. 16. Thy terribleneſs hath deceived thee, and the pride of thine heart.] The word rendred terribleneſs is no where elſe found ; and is therefore by divers diverſly both rendred and expounded. The root from whence it riſeth hath a notion of terrour and trembling in it ; and it is but once found, Job 9. 6. but another word thence ſpringing is found oft uſed for dread or terrour, Job 21.7. Pſal. 55 5. Eſay 21. 4. Ezekiel 7. 18. Some render it, thine idoll. becauſe a word from the ſame root, differing onely in a miniſterially letter, is uſed for an idoll, ſo termed, becauſe the worſhippers of ſuch dread them, 1 Kings 15. 13. 2 Chron. 15. 16. Others, pride or arrogancy; ſo ſome of the Jewiſh Maſters, whom the old Latine followeth, and they ſay, pride is ſo termed, either by a contrariety of ſpeech, becauſe proud perſons are furtheſt from fear, or becauſe they affect to be frightful to others, Job 40. 10 ——12. The Chaldee rendreth it fatneſs, or fatwity, folly ; for the word he uſeth may ſignifie either : and they go frequently together, as the Greek Proverb inſo meth us. See Eſay 6.10. nor are pride and fatneſs, far aſunder, Pſalm 73.6,7. and 119.69, 70. th: Greek giveth it, ſport, or mockery : wh.nce I wot not. A learned Interpreter, horrour or roughneſs ; as having reference to the roughneſs of thoſe mountains, on which, having expelled the Horites, Edom ſeated himſelf, called from their roughneſs, ſaith he, the mountains of Seir, Deut. 2, 12. But of theſe ſcarce any ſeem very probable. The plaineſt, and that whence they both ſeem to have ariſen, is of thoſe that take the word, as its fellow, in a notion of terrour ; thereby underſtanding not the terrour wherewith Edom was affected himſelf, but the terrour that he ſtruck into, and wherewith he was wont to affright others : as the like is faid of other great States, Eſay, 14. 16. Ezekiel 32. 23 ——27. and it is therefore in our Verſion very fitly and exactly rendred terribleneſs : And pride of heart, or a proud heart, (Heb. thy pride of heart, for thy proud heart ; as his greatneſs of heart, for his great ſtomacke, Eſay 10. 12.) is well adjoyned to this terribleneſs : for that is one principall thing that puſheth up perſons with pride, when they perceive that others ſtand in aw of them, and dare not ſtir, or do any thing to croſs or oppoſe them in ought, Eſay 10, 12——14. and this terribleneſs is here ſaid to have deceived the Edomites, or to have fed, fed, and led them aſide as the Chaldee rendreth it ; and as Babels wiſedome is ſaid to have perverted her, Eſay 47. 10. becauſe it made them ſecure and preſumptuous, as if none durſt attempt ought againſt them and their State, as their enſuing vaunts ſhew. But herein a learned late writer controlleth all the former verſions, for ſaith he, the word of terrour, or terribleneſs, cannot here be joyned with the Verb deceived, or deceiveth : for the Noun is feminine, and the Verb maſculine, and agreeth therefore not with terrour but with pride ; and he would therefore have the Text thus to be rendred ; Oh thy terrour ! (as ſpoken by way of admiration ; as, O their perverſneſs ! Eſay 29. 16.) the pride of thine heart hath deceived thee ; and this Syntax the place in Obadiah, whence this paſſage is taken, may ſeem to ſecond : for there this firſt term is not found ; but the text runneth there, the pride of thine heart hath deceived thee : Obad. 4. But to let paſs that place of Eſay, wherein I conceive that this notion will not ſo well fit, it ſeemeth not ſo eaſy any plain or ſmooth ſenſe here : and for the diverſity of the gender, it is frequently found, and there is an inſtance of it in the verſe next before-going, where the word widower is feminine, the Verb of truſting joyned with it, maſculine. However becauſe the words are ſo concerned in Obadiah, I ſuppoſe that they may well here be thus rendred ; Through thy terribleneſs, or Becauſe of, or by reaſon of thy terribleneſſe, the pride of thy heart, or, thy proud heart hath deceived thee, The particle Beth, taken in ſuch a procuring, or, producing notion, is frequently wanting : As Pſalm 56. 4. and 167, 8, 15, 21.

O thou that dwell ſt in the cleſts of the rock, that holdeſt the height of the hill :] The land of Idumæa, was much of it hilly and rocky, in regard whereof they deemed it inacceſſible and impregnable, Gen. 36 8, 9 ſuppoſing themſelves as ſafe there ; (See Obad. 3.) as the Dove when ſhe hath made her neſt within ſome cleft of a rock, where the Fowl of prey being bigger of body, cannot get in to her, or her young : for that ſeems here alluded to. See c. 48. 28. and of the conv. Prov. 30. 26.

V. 19. Behold, he ſhall come up like a Lion from the ſwelling of Jordan.] This paſſage is very variouſly by interpreters expounded, Some expound it of the Edomites in fierce and furious manner invading Judea Gods people, 2 Macab. 10 15. Others, of ſome enemy that ſhould in like manner break in upon the Edomites : and this enemy ſome would have to be the Iſraelites according to that, Obadiah 18 22. which they underſtand of Hircanus and Judas the Jews victories againſt them; whereof Joſephus Antiquities, l. 13. c. 17. 1 Maccab. 5. 3. 1 Maccab. 10. 16——23. but the moſt underſtand it of Nebuchadnezzar, and the Chaldean forces ; of whom chap. 46. 20. v. 18. reſembled by a Lion, as here, ſo chapter 4. 7. this Lion is ſaid to come up as ſome conceive it, from the ſwelling of Jordan ; as noting the place from whence he ſhould go up againſt the Edomites, whether the Jews army under their conductors, that were to paſs Jordan, ere they could invade Idumea, or the Chaldean forces under Nebuchadnezzar, who having firſt conquered Judea, fell afterward upon Idumea, marching up thither from the fertill ſoil that Jordan watereth, Zach. 11. 3. where the word ſeemeth to be ſo taken. Others, as deſigning the violent manner of irruption, whether of the Edomites into Judea, or of forrein forces ; Jews or Chaldees into Edom, breaking into Idumea, and thence under it ſwelling, he ſhall come up above, or beyond the ſwelling of Jordan ; (Heb. the excellency, as Eſay 2. 10. or pride of Jordan : as it is rendred, Zeph. 2. 10. and ſo Zach. 11. 3) that is, more forcibly and violently, than Jordan is wont to break in upon the plains near to it, when it geteth over its banks : and ſuch hoſtile irruptions are indeed compared to ſuch inundations, Eſay 8. 7, 8, chap 46. 7, 8 & 51. 42. and the particle is in compariſons commonly ſo uſed, Geneſis 19. 9. Eſay 2. 6 and 48 4. and 53 5. But others rather, as pointing to the place where Lions uſed to harbour, to wit. in the woods and groves near to the banks of that river, from whence they were wont to prey upon cattle that feed thereabout, Zach. 11. 3. and of theſe ſome more particularly to the manner of thoſe Lions that harboured thereabout who at that time of the year, when Jordan uſed to riſe and ſwell above his banks, were fain to quit the plain, being then all over-flown, and to make up to the higher grounds. And the learned Scholiaſt's ſupply doth very well here ; as a Lion, or as Lions (the word taken collectively) cometh up, or, are wont to come up (as Genſis, 49 5. deriſorio, that is, in want to drinke) from the over-flowing of Jordan, ſo ſhall he come up. See the like, Chapter, 46. 18. Of Jordanes over-flowings : See Joſhua, 3. 15. 1 Chronicles 12. 15. Chapter 12. 5. of the Lions leaving his covert, Chap. 25. 38. and this whole paſſage again repeated, chap. 50. 44.

againſt the habitation of the ſtrong :] Heb. of Ethan ; which ſome take for the proper name of a place in the land of Edom, which they conceive to be that, which was one of the Iſraelites ſtations, in their journey from Egypt, Exod. 13. 20. Numb. 33. 6, 8. but they are herein much miſtaken : for that place is termed not Ethan, but Etham ; and ſo the ancient Greek, but corruptly, readeth the word Ethan ; and ſo the ſame, as moſt take it, ſignifieth ſtrong; as Numb. 24, 21, chap. 5. 15. Pſalm 74 15. Or as ſome, ſtrength : and ſo it is clearly taken, Geneſis 49. 24. and Seir or Idumea is here termed, as Babylon alſo, chap. 50. 44.) the dwelling of the ſtrong or a dwelling of ſtrength, that is, a ſtrong dwelling : in regard of that ſuppoſed ſtrength of their land, which the Edomites ſo much boaſted of, and whereunto they ſo much truſted. See Obadiah 4. for as for thoſe, who interpret it, the habitation of the mighty, to wit, God ; underſtanding it of Judea, by the Edomites invaded ; I ſuppoſe to be out of the way here, as well in that as in this, as late learned Writer would have it rendred, a rough, or rocky habitation : from that of Moſes before cited : ſuppoſing alſo a city in Scilly ſo ſituate, to have its name Petra in Greek, and the inhabitants thee of Nerini in Latine, from the very terms here uſed : and true it is, both that Idumea land was ſuch, as alſo that ſuch a ſite conſereth much to the ſtrength of a place ; but the word ſeemeth to be much larger.

but I will ſuddenly make him run away from her] This branch is exceedingly tortured with multiplicity of Verſions and Interpretations. And whereas the root whence the former word here uſed doth ariſe, hath a threefold notion, ſometime of rending and breaking ; ſometime of ſhort and ſudden acting ; ſometime of reſting and being quiet. Some take the word here in the firſt notion, rendring the Text ; I will break or rent them (to wit, the Edomites) aſunder, as the word is uſed Job 7. 5. and chap 31 15.) and I will make them run out of their Land. I will caſt them out of their Land into captivity. Others take the word in the notion of ſuddain, quick, momentary motion, or action. And of them ſome, whom our Verſion may ſeem to follow, take it for an adverbial, I they ſuppoſe it alſo to be, Prov. 12. 19. and they apply it to the Edomites invading Iſrael, whom God would ſuddenly drive out again. See Eſay 59. 20. The ſame way goe the ancient Greeke and old Latine though in expoſition of the ſentence they depart both from thoſe, and either from other : for the Latine rendreth it I will caſe him to come ſuddenly into the land. I will cauſe the enemy ſuddenly to invade it : the Greek, I will make them ſuddenly to run out of its Land ; being by the enemy thence expelled. Others taking it for a Verb, but in the ſame notion, thus render it, I will in a moment app roach to her or bring him to her, and I will make him run from her ; that is, depart again and retire as ſpeedily, having had good ſucceſſe, and obtained in a ſhort time, what he came for. Thoſe laſtly, that take it in a notion of reſt, render it ; ſome, when I ſhall have reſted a while, as Eſay 18 4 Others when I ſhall make to reſt : when my purpoſe is, and I ſhall come to give reſt to my people Iſrael, chap 31. 2. I will make him (to wit, Iſrael) to run out of her ; that is, out of Edoms land, where they had been in captivity. Others, when I have cauſed him to reſt I will make him run out of it : after that I have ſuffered the Edomites to enjoy reſt for a while, I will compell them to quit their Country, and diſperſe themſelves into forrein parts. Or if theſe the old Latine ſeemeth to have come neareſt home to the true notion of the Text ; the terms whereof yet require ſome clearing. The inticiall particle be would be rendred for ; as chap. 47. 4 the ſame word, whether it be an Adverbial or a Verb, to the ſenſe not much material ; it comes from a root, that ſignifieth a moment ; and is uſed for ſpeedily, ſuddenly Eſay 26 20. & 47 9. & 54 7, 8. chap. 18. 8. I ſuppoſe it to be here a Verb ; for taken it ſhould ſignifie to cauſe ought to be done in a moment ſuddenly : and after the Hebrew idiom to ſay, I will cauſe to be done in a moment, or ſuddenly, will cauſe him to run (for in ſuch tranſitive forms both the Verbs are) is no more than, I will cauſe him ſuddenly, or in a moment to run : as will thou not return wilt quicken us ? for wilt thou not quicken us again ? Pſalm 85. 6. and, they made haſte forgat, for ſoon, or haſtily they forgat, Pſalm 106. 13. and, they have made deep have corrupted, for they have deeply corrupted, for they deeply e corrupted, Hoſ. 9. 9. which by the Adverb, whether it be an adverbial or a verb, is to be alike expreſſed here ; as the like, though Verbs, in all thoſe other places ye ſee it : thus the ſenſe is thus far plain : I will cauſe him in a moment, or ſuddenly to run : about the laſt particle is moſt doubt, and it hath contrary ſences given it : that the words may ſignifie from off her, or it ; cannot be doubted. much leſſe denied : as 2 Chron. 33 8. chap. 24. 10. and 28 16 Ezekiel 1. 19, 21. & 10. 16. but one of the Jewiſh Criticks obſerveth on the place, that the term meal, is ſometime as much as mimmaal, above or over : as ſaith he, Gen. 1. 7. the waters above the firmament : and Ezekiel 1. 26. above the firmament that was over their heads : and beſides theſe inſtances, a learned late Annotator ſupplieth us with ſome other, Gen. 27. 39. the dew of Heaven from above : and Gen 49. 25. the bleſſings of Heaven above : and Pſalm 50. 4. He ſhall call the Heaven from above ; or above : but thoſe of the Rabbine fit here better than theſe ; becauſe in theſe the term is abſolute and conſiſtent, whereas in thoſe it is tranſitive; as it is alſo in this place. Thus then conceived, the Text runneth ſmoothly. The Deſtroyer, Nebuchadnezzar ſhall come up with his forces againſt Edoms ſtrong dwellings, like a Lion, or as Lions uſe to doe from their covert about Jordan, when by that Rivers overflowing the plains near unto it, they are forced to make up into the higher grounds ; and ſhall ſuddenly, or in an inſtant, overrun his whole Connrey, get above it, and become maſter of it : that which is after ſet forth by another reſemblance of an Eagle, the chiefe of Fowles of prey, as the Lion of beaſts, Verſe 22. See further there.

and who is a choſen man, that I may appoint over her ?] This branch is as many wayes tentered and to-cured, as the former. Some underſtand it of the Jewiſh people, whoſe land the Edomites had invaded ; I will drive them again out of it ; and I will ſet over it, him, whom I have made, or ſhall make choice of : not him to whom they deſign it, as Eſay 7. 6, 7 Others of the Edomites, and thoſe diverſly : Some, whatſoever choice young man there is with her ; to wit, with Edom, him will I viſite ; that is, I will deſtroy all the flower and choice of her youth : as of Moab, Chap. 48. 15. Others, what choice of young men is there that I may ſet up for her ? to oppoſe the Chaldean forces that came againſt her ? implying that ſhe had none at all left. Others, apply it to thoſe that were either to afflict or to deſtroy Edom ; and of them ſome more generally ; what choice ones (as Rev. 17 14.) are there that I may muſter againſt her ? as if he had ſaid, I will pick and cull out Warriers as many as can be found fit for ſuch a ſervice, to be imployed in this expedition againſt Edom, as 1 Chron. 19. 10. Other of them reſtraining it to one chief Commander, and him that is choſen, (that is whom I have deſigned to that ſervice) will I ſet up againſt her. Others again, what choice one is there, that I may ſet over thoſe forces that are to goe againſt her ? and others, what choiſe one is there for me to ſet over her ? as implying, that he would finde out enow ſuch to ſet over the Edomites as ſhould not mildly and moderately rule, but tyrannize over them, and grievouſly oppreſſe them : like that of Egypt, Eſay 19.4 I concur with thoſe, who underſtand it of one that he intended to imploy in that ſervice, to wit Nebuchadnezzar, the Lion, or ſpoyler, before ſpoken of : and render the words, for (the copulative in a cauſal notion ; as chap. 44 13, 7) I will give charge to (as Exo. 1. 22.) him that is (the interrogative for the demonſt. ative ; as Eccle. 9 4 and a defect of the relative, as chapter 50. 5.) a choice one, (as Pſalm 89 19.) againſt her ? el, for al ; as cha 48 11. that ſhall do this ſervice effectually for me; as Eſay 44. 28. and who will appoint me the time ?] Or, or (as Chap. 23. 18.) will, or, dare. (as Chap 2 23.) ſet me a time ? either to joyn iſſue with me in judgement, as ſome ; from Job 9. 19. or, as the moſt rather, to joyn iſſue with me in battel. See Chap. 46. 17.

who is that ſhepherd that will ſtand before me ?] Or, or (Heb. and) as before : which ought not to be omitted) who is (the pronoun demonſtrative, for the verb ſubſtantive, as Pſal. 25. 12) the ſhepherd (that Prince, or Potentate, as Eſay 44. 28. Chap. 6. 3. & 12. 10. but the term here uſed the rather ; as alluding to a ſhepherd into whoſe flock a fierce lion is broken, and maketh havock of his sheep, Eſay 31. 4. Joel 2. 11. Mich. 5. 8.) that can, or, dare to ſtand before me, Pſal. 76 7. See Eſay 19 17. & 44. 25. & 46. 10. and the thoughts that he hath thought, or, the deviſes, or, the contrivements, that he hath deviſed, or contrived; as 1 Sam. 4. 14. Verſe 30 a form of ſpeech taken likewiſe from me, who having cunningly contrived, and prudently plotted things before hand, are the more likely to go thorow with their deſigns, and to bring them to good effect. See Eſay 14. 24, 26, 27 Heb. unto Edom ; or, concerning, as Chapter 44. 1. Of Teman, ſee on Verſe 7. and the ſame again, Chapter 50. 45.

Surely the leaſt of the flock ſhall draw them out] Heb. if the little ones (or, leaſt as 1 Sam. 9. 21.) ſhall not draw, or, drag, them out; as dogs do in a caſſe, Chap. 15. 3. or wolves a ſheep, when they worry it: it is conceived as in the form of an oath; as Pſalm 95. 11. chap. 44. 26. and it is as if he had ſaid; What ſpeak I of Nebuchadnezzar as a fierce lion, that I ſhall bring in upon the Edomites, the very weakeſt and feebleſt of all his retinue of thoſe that follow his camp, going under my conduct as their ſhepherd and leader, (alluding to the title of a ſhepherd before mentioned, v. 19.) ſhall fetch out the ſtrongeſt and valianteſt of the Edomites: nor ſhall they be able to ſtand before, and make head againſt, or by skulking into caves and corners to conceal themſelves from the meaneſt of his followers. See Rabſhakehs vaunt of his maſters followers, Eſay 36. 9. and ſee v. 10. As for thoſe Jewiſh Doctors, who by little ones here mentioned would have underſtood, either the Perſians, becauſe they came of one of Japhets younger ſons; or the Jewes that were of ſmall eſteem at preſent, but were ſtill Gods flock, Ezekiel 34. 30, 31. The poſterity of Jacob, younger brother to Eſau, to fulfill that Prophecy, The elder ſhall ſerve the younger, Geneſis, 25. 23. and ſome again of them more particularly of the iſſue of Ma. hel Benjamin and Joſeph, who were Jacobs youngeſt children: they are many miles from the Prophets meaning in either.

Surely he ſhall make their habitations deſolate with them] Heb. if he make not (as before) their dwellings deſolate upon, or, together with them: As Exodus 35 22. Eſay 7. 2. Chapter 3. 18. he; that is, the Lord, ſaith the Rabbine; the enemy, ſaith the Scholiaſt: but there is no neceſſity of either: the Verb is indefinite; and it may well be rendred, their dwelling together with themſelves ſhall be deſtroyed: as Chap. 51. 30. See the ſame again, Chapter 50. 45.

V. 21. The earth is moved at the noiſe of their fall] Either the earth is ſelf ſhall ſhake with that hideous noiſe, that the fall of their State, as of a vaſt ſtructure, muſt cauſe: or the people of the lands and countries about them ſhall tremble and be diſmayed at the report of this their down-fall. So Ezekiel, 26. 18. and 31. 10. See Chapter, 38. 39. and the ſame with this, c. 50. 46. voice, for report: as c. 4. 15.

at the cry, the noiſe thereof was heard in the red ſea. Heb. a cry by, or, in the ſea of weed, or, reit, ſhall be heard her voyce, or, its voyce; nor, their voyce: as, their fall, before; though ſome here ſo render it. Were the interpreters ſuppoſe a defect, and make aſſay of ſundry ſupplyes, ſome one, ſome another: ſome prefix a preposition, ſo ours, at the cry; others, by reaſon of the cry. Others ſupply a verb, a cry is heard: but neither is neceſſull. The old Latine, and divers others, render it not altogether aniſſe, without either, the clamour of his, or, its voyce is heard in the red ſea: but more agreeably to the ſyntax and prophecy of the original thus, the noiſe of the out-cry is heard to the red ſea: for the pronoun feminine affixed to the word voyce, or, noiſe, hath reference to cry, or, out-cry, by an elegant redundancy ſo riſe in that language as nothing more, Gen. 2. 14. 1 Sam. 9. 13. Job 3. 8. Pſal. 19. 30. & 104 17. Eccl. 2. 18. Eſay 8. 13. & 45. 9. & 48. 6.

in the red ſea] Or, as ſome render the particle, beſide the red ſea: in the coaſts, and places adjacent: and ſo it is uſed, Chap. 32. 7 & 36. 10. I ſhould rather render it unto: as Eſay 8. 8. & 9. 8. & 30. 28 Heb. the ſea of weed, or, fedge, or, flag, or ruſh. (as ſome render it, Exod. 2. 3. 5. or, reed, (as others, becauſe they find it joyned with the cane, Eſay 19. 6.) or, reit; for, ſo, I take it, we call that ſea weed, which the Latines term algæ, and which ſeemeth to be the Hebrew ſaph that Jonas ſaith was wrapped about his head, Jon. 2. 6. and whereof ſtore is ſaid to be found in the bellies of whales: this ſea is that which is by Geographers called the Arabian Gulf, becauſe it is ſhooteth in from the main ſea between Arabia and Africa; and is by the Hebrews termed the weedy, or, fedgy, or flaggy, or, ruſhy, or reedy, or reiry, ſea, in regard of the great abundance of ſuch kind of weeds that grow in it, being but ſhoaly, and eſpecially about the banks of it: it coaſteth in the inwardeſt parts of it, on Egypt on the other ſide, and on Idumea fired in ſome part of Arabia, the ſtony, on the other ſide; as appeareth by Solomons ſhipping there built, 1 King. 9. 26. from whence it came at firſt to be termed the Edomean or Idumean ſea; and becauſe Edom hath a notion of redneſſe in it, Gen. 25. 30. it came therefore to be termed by the Greeks, and the Latines from them, mare Erithraum, that is, the red ſea; not as ſome have thou. ht from the colour of the ſands, or the water of it, or of the coral growing in it: and much leſſe as the Greeks, who have thence forged a fable, from one Erithræus, or Rufus, a King, that ſhould be either drown ed in it, or buried near to it: the meaning is, that the cry of the Edomites ſhould be ſo loud, and ſo great, that it ſhould run thorow the whole countrey, and be heard as far as the red ſea, See the like of Moab, Eſay 15. 4. 9. 8. Eſth. 5. 4 Pſalm 39. 7. and that which our Verſion here exhibiteth concerning this branch, agreeth with the Chaldee, ancient Greek; and the Latine, and the moſt Interpreters, one and another: yet an interpreter of prime note, and a learned Scholaſt following him, render it, ſhe ſhall get, the one, ſhe hath gotten, the other, a feaſ yeiſh trembling, ſhe is fallen into a ſhaking fit of a feaver: that, I ſuppoſe, that induced them to ſwarve from the foregoing Verſions: was becauſe they found no point in the body of the laſt letter; and took it therefore not for a pronoun affix, which hath uſually that point in it, but for a feminine form of the verb, which yet they needed not to have ſcrupled; for that point in the affix is ſomerime wanting; and that in the very next clauſe, where yet themſelves take it for a pronoun.

V. 25 How is the city of praiſe, not left, the city of my joy?] A lamentation for the ruine and deſtruction of Damaſcus, not unlike thoſe, Chap. 48. 17, 39 & 50. 23. & 51. 41. Lam. 1. 1. a city of praiſes; for a renowned city; as praiſe, for matter of praiſe, Eſay 62. 7. ſpoken of Jeruſalem, and of Babylon Chap. 51. 41. and a city of joy, for, a joyful city; as, a name of joy, for, a joyous name, Chap. 33. 9. ſo Jeruſalem is ſaid to be the joy of the whole land, Pſal 48. 2. to the joy affixed in the end is by ſome learned deemed, not to be a pronoun, as it is commonly taken; (whence many Interpreters make it the ſpeech of the King of that State) but a meer termination onely, taken from the Syriack idiom; like whereunto is in many places found, as Eſay 20. 4. & 19. 9. Ezek. 13. 9. Nah 3 9 Zach. 14. 5. Damaſcus is meant, ſaid, not to be left: to wit, ſtanding by the enemy: as ſome cities in Canaan were left by the Iſraelites. when they burnt down others, Joſh. 11. 12, 13. as if they ſhould ſay, what meaner the Chaldeans to deſtroy ſo goodly a city; and not leave it ſtanding, though they had razed and ruined others that were not of the like note? Howbeit, ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors would have the word taken in a notion of fortification; as if it were ſaid, why was not ſo famous a city better fortified? Why was ſhe not ſo fortified with walls and bulwarks, that ſhe might have been impregnable? and they alleadge to that purpoſe a place in Nehemy. in which the word ſeemeth ſo uſed, where it is ſaid, and they fortified Jeruſalem, Neh. 3. 8. to which may a ſecond be added, Neh. 2. 2. where the ſame word again is ſo uſed, as it cutteth off all thoſe far-fetcht and forced interpretations that ſome of the greateſt note give of that other place; and from thence a term in the Talmud, which ſome expound a pavement: ſome a parapher, (to which purpoſe alſo one of the Commenters on Nehemy, expounds the word in the former place there uſed, they filled it up with earth unto the wall) Others, the plaiſtering, ſome more generally, the ſtructure: hither alſo is that uſe of the ſame term referred in that place, Exod. 23. 5. of the helping up of a beaſt, that lieth under his burden: where the words would be rendred, ſhouldeſt thou forbear to lift him up? thou ſhalt in any wiſe lift him up together with him: that is, be aſſiſtant to the owner, though thine enemy, in helping to lift, or ſet him up again: a metaphor from the erecting and ſetting up again of an edifice or building, when it is fallen. And this interpretation of the word in this place, ſeemeth to me not altogether improbable: Though I cannot come home to that learned Annotator, who would have it rendred, How is that ſo much commended city not paved? that is, hath not now ſo much as a pavement: becauſe the word fore-mentioned is ſaid ſomemuch as a pavement: becauſe the word of pavement he had ſaid terace, time ſo to ſignifie: if inſtead of pavement he had ſaid terace, or parapet, it might more eaſily have paſt: this of pavement ſeemeth no way to ſuit well here.

V. 26. Therefore her young men ſhall fall in her ſtreets, and all the men of war ſhall be cut off in that day, ſaith the Lord.] How this Therefore ſuiteth well here, I ſee not. I rather accord with what one of the Jewiſh Maſters ſuggeſteth, that the particle is here a note of aſſeveration, as it is alſo, and ſo acknowledged, Chap. 5. 2. and I ſhould therefore render it, Surely, her young men ſhall fall (that is, be ſlain. as chap. 6. 15. & 8, 12. in her ſtreets, as chap. 9. 21.) and all the men of war ſhall be cut off (as Chap. 51. 3.) in that day: at that time: as verſe 22. Gen. 10. 22. Of them, ſee on Chap. 25. 25. as alſo on Eſay 22. 6. whence it appeareth, that they ſerved under Sennacherib in his expedition againſt Jeruſalem; nor is it unlikely, that they ſerved under Nebuchadnezzar alſo, having made himſelf maſter of the Aſſyrian Monarchy, in his invaſion of Judea, which the Jewiſh Maſters therefore ſay was the main ground and cauſe of this prophecy againſt them.

in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah, King of Judah, ſaying,] A long time before the execution and accompliſhment of it, much about that time, when the Prophet was by God commanded to make thoſe yokes, and ſend them to the neighbouring Kings, implying their ſubjection to the Babylonian King, Chap. 27. 1, 3. and when the falſe Prophet Hananiah had broken the yoke, that the Prophet himſelf by Gods appointment wore, withall promiſing a diſſolution of the Babylonian dominion, and the return of the Jews abiding at captivity in Babylon, Chap. 28. 1——3. to controll that vain conceit, that he endeavoured thereby to work into the minds of Zedekiah and his people, as being able to ſhake off the Chaldean yoke: when as Nebuchadnezzar ſhould carry all away, as well farther of, as nearer at hand before him, Chap. 25. 9. & 27. 8.

V. 35. Thus ſaith the Lord of Hoſts, Behold I will break the Bow of Elam, and the chief of their might.] Inſtead of that yoke, which Hananiah broke, implying a diſſolution of the Chaldean power. CHAP. L.

Verse 1. THe word that the Lord spake against Babylon, and against the land of the Chaldeans by Jeremiah the Prophet.] In this Chapter, and the next, is a very prolix prophecy against Babylon, which cometh last here, because that State was to drink last of the wine-cup of Gods wrath, after that it had gone round. and that the rest had drunk deep thereof by it, chap. 25. 9. and it is therefore the larger, because the comfort of Gods people depended much upon the expected downfall of that State. The whole prophecy is intermingled, partly, with dreadfull menaces against Babylon, describing the manner of her overthrow, the persons by whom it should be effected, their proceedings in it, and successe against it, as if the design had been already accomplished, and the Prophet present himself at the accomplishing of it; together with the procuring causes of this her calamity, among which, their cruelty exercised on the people of God, one of the chief; and partly with gracious promises of protection and deliverance to Gods people, together with encouragements of them, not to doubt or despair, though they see not things so soon, or so suddenly effected, as they desire, but to bear up their spirits with an hopeful expectation of assured freedome from captivity, and return to their own countrey in the time by God prefixed: and these are so closely interwoven, and so variously interewined thorow out the whole body of it, the one with the other, and that also accompanied with so many interchanges of persons speaking, spoken of, and spoken to, as that it may well challenge any the strongest and clearest brain, to make out an exact and accurate analysis of it, which also, when all were done, it may be, would not prove so usefull neither. The inscription of the whole prophecy is in this first verse, wherein is decared the person, from whom it cometh, the Lord; as chap. 46. 13. against whom it is dutted; Babylon and the land of the Chaldeans (Heb, unto; but el, for al: concerning, or against; as Chap. 49. 19, 20, 34. and so chap 51. 12.) and by whome denounced, Jeremy. Heb. by the hand of Jeremiah; as, by the hand of Malachy, Mal. 1. 1 See the like prophecies concerning Babylon, Efay 13. & 14. &. 21. & 46. & 47. whence also some things are transferred into this prophecy

V. 2. Declare ye among the nations.] The entrance is made into it, with a commandement to publish in all places the downfall of Babylon, as a businesse already accomplished, among the nations. Because it concerneth them, as well as Gods people, who were to be freed from the Chaldean tyranny by the fall of Babylon, as well as they, Efay 14. 6, 7.

and set up a standard,] Heb. lift up an ensigne: not, as some, to gather Gods people together, to acquaint them with this prophecy; nor, as others, to get people together to be employed in service against Babylon; as Efay 14.2. for the work is here described and delivered, as already done; but to call people together, to impart unto them the glad tidings of Babylons ruuin and downfal; as the manner was on such occasions for those that came with good tidings of victory, delivery, good successe, or the like publike affaires, to get up into some eminent place, and from thence by some signall given to gather people together, to declare it unto them, and acquaint them therewith. See Efay 40.9. & 52.7. Nah. 1. 15. the words following confirm it, Merodach is broken in pieces,] Another of their Idols; from which some of their Kings had their names: and was, it may be, at first, the name of some King, who after his decease was idolized: such as were many of the Pagan deities. And this Merodach is by some learned supposed to be the same with him, whom Africanus calleth Mardocentes, one far more ancient than Bel. See Efay 39. 1 & 46.1.

V. 3. For out of the North, there cometh up a nation against her,] or, there is come up (a military term; as Chap. 49. 22.) or, simply is come (as Exod. 16. 13, and he speaketh of it, as of a thing already done) against her, a nation (the Medes and Persians accounted as one nation, because belonging to one crown. See Efay 13. 17.) from the North: from Media, lying North from Chaldea; and from Assyria, through which Cyrus marched unto Babylon, verse 9. 21. 41.

which shall make her land desolate; end none shall dwell therein:] Or, so that none shall dwell therein: the copulative for the finitive: as Chap. 9. 6, 26 Heb. shall put it unto desolation; as chap. 2. 15. See 13. 20. verse 40.

they shall depart both man and beast] Heb. from man to beast; as chap. 9. 10. Efay 10, 18. See chap. 51. 61. and the like, chap. 4. 25. & 33. 10, 12. Zeph. 1. 3.

V. 4. In those dayes, and in that time, saith the Lord,] As chap. 33. 15. When Babylon shall be taken by Cyrus, verse 2.

the children of Israel shall come, they, and the children of Judah together,] The Jewes being set at liberty by Cyrus, Ezr. 1. 1, 2. and many of the other ten tribes joyning themselves to them. See chap 30. 3. & 31. 5, 6.

going and weeping:] Or, weeping as they go; as chapter 41. 6. as with grief for their sins whereby they had grieved God, and provoked him to wrath, and procured those fore-passed calamities to themselves: so for joy also in the apprehensions of Gods prefent gracious goodnesse towards them in remitting their sinnes, renewing his wrath, reconciling them to himself, reducing them from their long captivity again: for tears there are of joy, as well as of grief, and some mixt ones of either. See Gen. 29. 11. & 42. 24. & 43. 30. & 45. 2, 14, 15. & 46. 29. Nor need we there to restrain to understand these words, as a learned Writer therein following the Chaldee, of their weeping what time they went out into captivity, Psalm 126. 6. and while they continued there, Psalm 137. 1. but of teares shed in their return, as before, and after it also. See ch. 31. 9, Ez. 3. 12, 13.

they shall go and seek the Lord their God.] Or, go to seek; as, arise and warred, for, rose to war. Josh. 24. 9. or, go seeking: as stand and feed, for, stand feeding Efay 61. 5. to seek after him who had thewed so much mercy, goodnesse, and kindnesse to them: to acknowledge their thankfulnesse for the same. See Psal. 24. 6. & 105. 4.

V. 5. They shall ask the way to Zion with their faces thitherward,] Heb. They shall ask after Sion. the way thither shall their faces be: they shall enquire the way to Jerusalem, (see Ezr. 8. 21, 23, 31.) and that more specially in regard of Sion, the ancient seat of Gods residence among them, and principal place of his solemne service, Psalm 84. 7. See chap. 37. 21. 12. Zach. 8. 21, 22. and their faces shall be set that way. Of which form of speech, see on chapter 42. 15.

saying, Come and let us joyne our selves to the Lord, in a perpetuall covenant, that shall not be forgotten.] Let us renew our covenant with God again, let us enter into a firmer and more constant covenant with him than ever: (Heb, a covenant of perpetuity: such as God promiseth to make with them, chap. 12. 42. Ezek. 16. 60. & 37. 26.) such as we will never start from again, Psal. 80. 18. Chap. 37. 26.) such as we will never start from again, Psal. 80. 18. Chap. 32. 40. See the like form of expression in another kind, chap. 23. 40. there is in the Text a defect of the relative; as chap. 31. 21, 40. there is in the Text the word saying is supplied; as chap. 48. 39. Howbeit, the 24 an 1 the word saying is supplied; as chap. 48. 39. Howbeit, the 24 an 1 the word saying is supplied; as chap. 48. 39. Howbeit, the Chaldee acknowledgeth no such supply, but rendreth the words in an enunciative form; they shall come and join themselves to the Lords people: which some of the Jewish Doctours following, expound the Text of those strangers that should adjoyn themselves to Gods people, either upon their return from captivity, Efay 14. 1. or in the dayes of the Messias, Zach. 2. 11. because the same word is here used: and of such it is used indeed also, Efay 56. 3 6. But there used: and of such it is used indeed also, Efay 56. 3 6. But there neither is the word people, here, which the Chaldee crammeth into the Text: nor is there any necessity that the word should here be taken, since that the current of the context runneth clearly for Judah and Israel: it may rather imply, that they had so broken their conjugal Covenant with God, and God so cast them off thereupon, chap. 3. 1. 8 and 31. 32. that they were in a manner become as meere strangers to God, chap. 2. 5, 15. Hosea 9. 10. Amos 9. 7. and my seem as such to be now new joyned again to God, from whom they had severed themselves before by their sins, Efay 59 2. And of them a learned late Writer aright understanding it, but for the notion of the words concurring with the Chaldee, rendreth the text; They shall come and adjoyn themselves to the Lord: and the same way go both the ancient Greek and old Latine: nor and the same way go both the ancient Greek and old Latine: nor is this Version improbable, though some difficulties there seem in it: for as concerning the former word of coming, the form here used is generally an imperative, no where found in an enunciative notion that to remove this scruple, that learned man produceth two of the same stamp with it in an enunciative notion, the one in these words, they were abashed. Chapter 14. 3. the other in those, they are pleasant, Canticles 4. 10. for the latter, the Jewish Criticks, whom most of our Grammarians concur with go another way: they take it for an Imperative, and render the words therefore, as the former come ye; to this, be ye adjoyned, or adjoyn your selves: the passive form in a reciprocall notion; as Chapter 4. & 23 4. & 36. 19. and some Interpreters of prime note, whom the learned Scholiast also followeth, do herein agree with them: an irregularity indeed, they acknowledge in it to taken: but they suppose an other Imperative, just of the same making, to be found in those words, and be gathered together, Joel 3. 11. But this place produced by them, is as questionable as the present; and I incline therefore to the former, which is neither pestered with much irregularity, and doth very fr oothly and eavenly, without any trouble, carry on the context: conceiving the words do contain a prediction, what the faithfull party of Gods people; being set free from their fore-mentioned captivity, should do. Though some Interpreters of prime note read and render this whole passage concerning Gods people, as spoken by way of adhortation or advice. Let us then come —— let them seeke —— let them take —— let them say, verse 4. 5. But I leave that to the consideration of others.

V. 6. My people have been lost sheep:] Gods Word speaking of the Jewish people, as still owning them; My people; as chap 33 24. hath been I st sheep, or as lost sheep: a defect of the note of similitude; as Psalm 143. 12. Efay 21. 8 chap 26. 18. Straying from God Efay 53. 6. Matt, 18. 12, 12. 1 Peter 2. 25. and chased over to their own countrey into forrein parts, Psalm 119. 176. v. 17 H b p. scaring, or perished; and so Psalm 119. 176. that is ready to perish: as Efay 27. 13. and because the Noun Substantive is singular, the attribute plural: some render it, a flock of perishing sheep: as if there were a defect of some other subject to be supplied: as Ezekiel 13. 11. but neither doth the word signifie a flocke properly; and yet being here in a collective notion, the Syntax is not unusuall; yea with the very same Syntax is the word found used, 1 Samuel 25. 18.

their shepherds have caused them to go astray, they have turned them away on the mountains:] Their Rulers, Princes and Pastors, Magistrates and Ministers (for the word comprehendeth Governours as well Ecclesiastical as Civil Efay 56. 11. chap 3. 15 & 23. 1. & 25. 34. Ezekiel 34. 2.) have by their bad example, and falle Doctrine, led them out of the way, and made them to go astray from God, Efay 3. 12. & 9. 16. chap. 23. 13, 14, 15. & 18. 16. & 19 33. and by meanes thereof they caused them to be turned out of their own land, as sheep out of their pasture, and driven into strange countries, as sheep to graze on barren hills and bare mountains, Nah. 3. 18. See hap. 27. 10. Lmentations 2. 14. and it seemeth an allusion to those mountains which they were forced to pass when they were carried away in captivity to Babylon, chap. 13. 16. Yet want there not, both of the Jewish and others, who understand this of the mountains on which they worshipped their idols, Esay 65. 7. Ezekiel 18 6, 11. and they render the words, some, they have broken them upon the mountains as they suppose the word to be used, Ezekiel 38 4. & 39. 2. Others, they have made them to rebell upon the mountains: as the word is used, Efay 47. 10. chap. 8 5. the latter whereof seemeth the more probable: but neither to suit so well with the Prophets purpose, and the resemblance used by him in this place.

they have gone from mountain to hill] That is, as some, they have run up and down from one idol to another, chap. 2. 23, 24. or as others, they have been hurried up and down from place to place, during the time of their captivity; as scattered sheep are wont to be, Ezek 34. 4, 6.

they have forgotten their resting place.] Heb. place to lye down in; as Prov. 24. 15. that is, as some, they have forgotten God their onely true rest, chap. 6. 16. while they run thus after idols, chap. 2. 32 ——33. & 23. 27. Hos. 8. 14. or rather, as others, they have been so long absent from their own countrie the place of their rest, Deut. 12. 9. Psalm 95. 11. chap. 31. 2. that they may seem to have forgotten it: as in continuance of time, by long discontinuance, folk are wont to forget persons or places, that they formerly either converfed with or abode in.

V. 7. All that found them have devoured them:] As silly sheep when they stray, without any to look after them, and secure them, become a prey to every Wolf, or other ravenous wilde beast that lighteth on them, Ezekiel 34. 8. Thus the most: onely one learned Interpreter renders it, All that lead them out devour them; as chap. 12. 2. Zach. 11. 15. and so it should be much the same with that before, v. 6. But the vowel points in the text will not admit this reading.

and their adversaries said; We offend not, because they have sinned against the Lord,] Those that prey upon them, pretend that they deal but justly with them, no otherwise than as they have deserved for their sins against their God, chap. 40. 5. Zach. 11. 2. and we are therefore faultlesse. But see the contrary, chap. 2. 3. nor indeed did those wicked wretches intend or regard any such thing, whatsoever they pretended, Efay 36. 7, 10. but the satisfying of their own ambitious dispositions, and the enlargement of their Dominions, Esay 10. 6, 7. Heb. they have sinned to the Lord: as Psalm 51. 4. and so both the ancient Greek, and old Latine rendreth it: but the Particle is frequently used also for against; as job 7. 20. & 8. 4. chap. 32. 5.

the habitation of Justice] This our present Version, as others before it do as by way of apposition, adjoyn to the former; and make an attribute of God, and so the Jewish Doctor expoundeth it, a just habitation, a sure dwelling: according to that, Lord, thou hast been our dwelling, Psalm 90. 1. & 91. 1 The Chaldee rendreth it, they have given fair, or kept aloof off from the habitation of his holynesse, seeming to understand it of their leaving his Temple to goe after their Idols. The old Latine goeth the same way herein with ours, but rendreth it the beauty, or goodnesse of righteousnesse. But I find not where the word here used hath any such notion, though one near to it hath. Other Interpreters of good note, conceive a defect of the particle in, oft supplyed; as Job 12. 23. Efay 26. 8, 18. chap. 5. 7. and the place here designed, in which they so sinned, which did much aggravate their offence; and they render the words, some, in the fold of righteousnesse: becau e they find the word so used 1 Samuel 7. 8. 1 Chron. 17. 7 See Ezekiel 24. 14. Some in the habitation of righteousnesse; that is in the Church of God, in the land of Judah. and the city of Jerusalem; the place where righteousnesse should dwell. See chap. 31. 23. or righteousnesse, as some for men of righteousnesse; righteous ones; as Esay 1. 21. See Esay 60. 21.

even the Lord the hope of their fathers.] Heb. and the hope, or, expectation of their fathers the Lord. That which divers others fly unto and expound; the old Latine retaining the copulative; and the expectation of their fathers the Lord: not due our English Version much swarve from this; onely they make the copulative, not so much a note of conjunction as of amplification, or exaggeration; as chap 15. 13. & 23. 9 But others make the copulative a note of similitude: as it is, Prov. 17 3 & 0. 25. rendring the text, Who would have been a sure habitation to them, if they had not sinned against him, as he had been the hope of their fathers. Others take it in a relative notion Whose fathers expectation he was, and of them, for whose: the copulative with the Pronoun demonstrative, for the relative: as chap. 15. 19. & 17 7 Some lastly, with whom I close, take the copulative in a disjunctive notion, as it is frequently used, Psal 78. 3 Esay 35 9 Jam. 3. 13. and make it an absolute sentence. So a learned Scholiast rendreth it, albeit the Lord was the expectation of their fathers, that is, he was the object whom their Ancestors depended and from whom they expected relief, succour, safety, and all manner of good See c. 17. 13.

V. 8. Remove out of the midst of Babylon, and go forth out of the land of the Chaldeans:] Or, Remove out of her; as Esay 5 8. & 7. 22. See Esay 48. 20. Ioc. 51. 6. Rev. 18 4.

and be as the he goats before the flocks.] Or, as the great he-goats, that are as ring-leaders to the rest of the flock. See Esay 14. 9 and goats he mentioneth rather than sheep; though Gods people are more usually compared to sheep, Matt. 25 32, 33. because they are the nimbler and the swifter of the two. Strive to go one before another, in making haste to your own countrey again. See Esay 60. 8.

V. 9. For lo, I will raise, and cause to come up against Babylon, an assembly of great nations from the North countrey,] Heb I am raising (as Efa. 13. 17.) and making to come up, or march (as v. 1.) against Babylon, an assembly (a company, as called together; as Zeph 1. 7.) of great nations (as c. 27 7. the Medes and Persians, Esay 13. 17.) from the land of the North. See v. 3.

and they shall set themselves in array against her] or, set the battel in array; as 1 Chr. 12. 33. & 19 9. the like defect is 2 Sam. 10. 17. Heb to her, for against her; as 9. 3.

from thence she shall be taken:] From thence; that is, by people and forces coming from those parts, So rather, than as a learned late Writer, from thence; that is, out of hand, suddenly, unexpectedly: or, as one of the Rabbines, from the place; where they sit down, and set their forces in array against her, not needing to remove to any other place from thence: shall she be taken, verse 2.

their arrowes shall be as of a mighty expert man,] Heb. their arrowes shall be as a mighty man, for, as the arrowes of a mighty man: as, he maketh my feet like hinds, or, harts: that is, like the feet of hinds, or harts: Psal. 18.33. and Esay 63.2. garments like one that treadeth in the wine fat, for, like the garments of one that treadeth the wine-fat. In the latter term here used, there is some variety of reading: as in the pronunciation of Sibboleth, and Shibboleth, Judg. 12.6. according to the diverse placing of a point upon the right or left corner of the initial letter. The Chaldee, and and the Jewish Doctors, with whom the old Latine concurreth, place it on the right hand, and then it signifieth one that destroyeth, that bereaveth wives of their husbands, children of their parents, and parents of their children; as the che word intimateth, Hos. 9. 14. Others turn the point over to the left side, and then it signifieth one expert, or skilfull; and so the ancient Greek here rendreth it, which our Versions follow: unto which I shall adde a third Interpretation, from the root, which the word cometh from in the latter form; wherein it signifieth, not to deal prudently, and skilfully, only, but to prosper also: and he prospereth well. See Esay 52.13. & Jer. 23.5. and so it may be rendred of one successfull, whose shafts never miffe, like those Benjamites, Judg. 20.16. hence it followeth.

none shall return in vain.] But shall hit and speed, 2 Sam. 1.22. effect what it was shot and sent for; as Esay 55.11. understood of their arrows; because like the arrowes of a man both of strength to draw the bow, and of skill to guide the shaft, and that directeth it to the speeding places, and is successful in his shot. But the words in the text rather are, it shall not return empty; as the term is used, Chap. 14.3. that is, as some other expound it, the assembly of nations, before mentioned, shall not return empty; but furnished and laden with store of rich spoyles; as Exod. 3.21. the contrary whereunto, see Ruth 1.21. See verse 18. those that go the former way are lain to render it; there shall not any of them, to wit, of their arrows, return empty, or in vain: Either may stand with the termes of the text.

V. 10. And Chaldea shall be a spoyle. all that spoyle her shall be satisfied, saith the Lord.] They shall find wealth enough in her to satisfie them to the full: the state of Chaldea, and city of Babylon being the richest place at that time in the world. See Esay 13. 19. & 14.4. & 45.3. Chap 51.13.44.

V. 11. Because ye were glad, because ye triumphed,] Because ye have rejoyced at, and spotted your selves in the miseries and calamities of my people; as of Moab, Chap. 48. 27. or, as some read it, When (as Chap. 10. 2.) ye shall be merry and revel it; as alluding to the festival, at which Babylon was surprised, Chapter 51. 39.17.

O ye destroyers of mine heritage,] Ye Chaldeans, that have made such spoyle and have lot my land, Lev. 25.23. chap. 2.7. & 16. 18. or of my people, chap. 12.7——9. as dear to me, as any mans inheritance is to him, 1 Kings 21.3.

because ye are grown fat,] Or, big, or corpulent; as some: or, when (as before) ye abound: or, as others, are grown fat, or, luscurious, as, fulnesse and fatnesse is wont to produce wantonnesse, Deut. 32.15. chap 5.8. Ezek. 16.49. the same word is found, Mal. 4.2. but in no evill notion there: and from thence a word for abundance, Job 35.15. Others again, Te are diffused, and skit up and down; as alluding to beasts that grow skittish, when they are full fed, and run at large, because the word is found in a notion, of diffusion and dispersion, Habb. 1.8. Nah. 3.18.

as the heifer at grasse.] Or, like a heifer, or calfe, (the same word with that, chap. 48.34.) feeding on, or fed with tender grasse: for it is an adjective derived from a term that signifieth such herbage as doth first sprout out, and is not grown over rank, or exhausted, but is full of moisture and sweetnesse, and doth therefore suddenly fill and fat. See Esay 15.11. & 66.14. as also, Deut. 32.2. 1 Sam. 23.4. instead whereof to the same purpose, is calves, or, heifers of the stall, that is, stalled ones, Mal. 4.2.

and bellow as bulls.] The word here used signifieth properly to neigh; the peculiar note of horses Chap. 5.8. & 13.27. Job 6.5. Psal. 23.2. and because not without cause it may be questioned how bulls should be said to neigh: some suggest from a Jewish Master, that the word is used for any strill, or loud voyce, or, cry, of what kind soever. See chap. 31.7. but we need not flee to any such metaphorical use of the word: for, to Oxen used for treading out of corn, Hos. 10.11. to which employment, the strongest of them should be designed, (which seemeth nothing probable; and that of Hosea implyeth the contrary) and used to grow yet fatter and lustier by that imployment, having by the Law liberty to feed the more freely, Deut. 25.4 for the latter word here used signifieth as well horses as beeves, as well steeds as bulls, See on chap. 46.15. & 47.3. and it would therefore be rendred ye neigh as steeds, or, lusty steeds: for the word hath a note of eminency in it, as hath been before shewed: and this Version the Prophet leadeth us unto from Chap. 5.16. where both the terms here used are the same found joyned together; save that the noun of the one is there, the verb whereof is here, in those words, the neighing of his steeds.

V. 12. Your mother shall be sore confounded, she that bare you shall be ashamed:] Your former routing and reviling, insulting over and deriding of others, shall be seconded with shame and confusion; as Chap. 48. 26, 27. for your mother-city Babylon, or your native country Chaldea: as Esay 23.4. & 51.18. Chap. 15. 8, 9. shall be ashamed of you, that could defend her no better: as they of their idols, chap. 48.14.

behold, the hindermost of the nations shall be a wilderneſſe, a dry land, and a desert.] Or rather, as most both Jewish and others, the last of Kingdoms shall it be, &c. She that was the foremost of nations before, shall become the hindermost, the last, the lowest: she that was before so rich and wealthy, shall become a wild waste; as of Judah the like, Lam. 1.1. and of Egypt the same, Ezek. 29.12, 15. See Esay 13.20.

V. 13. Because of the wrath of the Lord.] This clause would rather have been annexed to the words foregoing; as the like, chap. 41.18. Hos. bubbling, or, boyling wrath, Esay 34.2. Chap. 10. 10. & 21.5.

It shall not be inhabited, but shall be wholly desolate.] Heb. It shall not sit, or dwell; See Esay 13.20. Chap. 17.6. So ver. 3.39.

every one that goeth by Babylon shall be astonished, and hisse at all her plagues.] In disdain and derision; as chap. 49.17.

V. 14. Put your selves in array against Babylon round about:] Or, Set the battell in array round about against Babylon. See verse 9.29. Gods speech to the Medes and Persians, and their assistants. Of whom verse 9. and chap. 51.11.

all ye that bend the bow shoot at her;] Heb. tread the bow: as chap 46.9. So verse 29. and throw, or cast, or cast out (as Lam. 3.53. Joel 3.3. Zach. 12.1.) to wit, arrowes, or shafts: a defective speech: the like whereunto, see chap. 4.29.

spare no arrowes,] Heb. have no pity on arrowes: for so the word properly signifieth, having in it a notion of pity, and sparing out of pity, Exod. 2.6 2 Sam 12.6, 2 Chron. 36.15. arrow, collectively, for, arrows: as Psal. 9.5. and el, for, als: as also, chap. 51.3. this latter particle being of more frequent, almoſt general, use in this sense. See chap. 48.11. and one of the Jewish Doctors supposeth that there might be in the words a close preoccupation of a secret suggestion, whereby the Persian souldiery might think, when they should be called upon to spend their arrowes apace, that it would be great pity to have so many arrowes cast away and lost; to which answer should be returned here, that no such pity should need, for none should be lost: they should every one do executions, as had been before said, verse 9. But this I conceive to be somewhat over-nice.

for she hath sinned against the Lord.] That which they pretended to be their ground for afflicting Gods people, verse 7. and it is, to the Lord, here also, as there: though it may be understood, they have sinned exceedingly: as it is said of the Sodomites, They were sinners unto God, or, of God; that is, exceedingly great, or grieved sinners, Gen. 13.13. the words are in either place the same, See verse 29.

V. 15. Shout against her round about:] Assault her on every side with a warlike shout, such as assailants are wont to make, therewith partly, to incite, and set on one another, and partly to affright those whom they assail, Chap. 4.19. & 49.2. So rather, than as some, who would have it understood of shouts used in a triumphant manner after victory obtained, and conquest of a place made: though of such also the word be used, as Psal. 47.5.

she hath given her hand:] That is, saith a learned late Writer, she hath entered into confederacy with the Lydians, our adversaries, (for which he citeth Herodot.) and therefore we must not spare her: and these words he would have to be uttered by the assailants in the shout enjoyned: for to give the hand, is used for to enter into society and confederacy, Ezek. 17.18. 1 Maccab. 11.50. Gal. 2.9. and so, to put hand, Lev. 6.2. and to strike hands, Job 17.2. But the most and best go rather another way, understanding it, as it is in other languages also, as well as in Hebrew, very frequent, in the Latine especially, for to yeeld up ones self into the power of another. So 2 Chron. 30.8. Lam. 5.6. it implyeth, as a learned Writer supposeth, an holding up of ones hand to be bound and manacled, as slaves, prisoners, and captives were wont to be. See chap. 40.4. But I conceive rather, as shewing them quitted of armes, making no opposition, but suing for mercy: as Psal. 68.31. used also as a signal of submission and allegiance 1 Chron. 29.24.

her foundations are fallen, her walls are thrown down:] So, ch. 51.58. the broad walls of Babylon shall be razed: but here speaking of it in a prophetical strain, as of a thing already done, Howsoever a learned Writer would have it taken, as spoken by the enemy, in way of incitement at the time of the assault: Let her foundations be razed, let her walls be thrown down: like that, Psal. 137.7. Strabo lib. 16. reporteth that a great part of her walls were razed by the Persians, and the rest ruined by neglect and continuance of time; so that it might well be said of it, the great city (the

for it is the vengeance of the Lord:] Against whom she had sinned, ver. 14. as that execution done upon Moab, is called the work of the Lord, Chap. 48. 10. the pronoun demonstrative for the verb substantive; as Psal. 25.11. So also ver. 25.

take vengeance upon her; as she hath done, do unto her.] Pay her in her own coyn, deal with Babylon, as she dealt with Jerusalem, Psal. 137.8. no juster Law than that of retaliation, Exod. 21.23, 25. Deut. 19, 19, 21. acknowledged so to be, even by those that have themselves suffered it, Judge 1.5. So ver. 29. Rev. 18.6.

V. 16. Cut off the sower from Babylon, and him that handleth the sickle in the time of harvest:] Sickle, or, Sithe: so Joel 3.13. Destroy her so that none of hers be left, either to till the ground, or to take the crop of it, if any come up of it self; which yet God caused the Chaldeans to leave, when they carried the Jews away captive, 2 King. 25.12. The Chaldee rendreth it, Cut off the King from Babylon, and whet the sword for the time of slaughter. But that departeth too far from the Text.

for fear of the oppressing sword, they shall turn every one to his people, and they shall flee every one to his own land.] Her hired souldiers and assistants. See the same before of Egypt, Chap. 46.16. See also, Chap. 51.9.

V. 17. Israel is a scattered sheep:] Or, as a scattered sheep; as ver. 6. he is scattered among the nations, Joel 3.2.

the lions have driven him away:] That is, as the Chaldee, fierce and mighty Kings compared to lions the King of beasts; have driven him out of his countrey. See Chap. 4.7. yet the term may be more general, and comprehend any potent adversaries, Psal. 57.6. Chap. 2.15.

first the King of Assyria hath devoured him:] Or, first the King of Assyria did eat upon him. See Chap. 10.25. moſt understand it of the Assyrian Kings vexation of the ten Tribes by Pul and Tiglath-Pileser, 2 King. 15.19, 20, 29. 1 Chr. 5.26. and the deportation of them by Salmanasser, 2 Kings 17.7. and 17.3, 4. Yet I conceive that it it may have more special respect to the people of Judah invaded and much spoiled by the hostile incursions of Sennacherib, 2 King. 18. 13——17. and Esarhaddon, 2 Chr. 33.11.

and last this Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon hath broken his bones.] Heb. hath boned him; that is as the moſt, hath utterly ruined him by carrying away captive Judah and Benjamin, 2 King. 24.14——16. and 25.11, 19, 20. as the other had done the ten Tribes: or referring both to those two Tribes; making up joyntly the State and Kingdom of Judah, he hath utterly deprived him of all strength and support, which lieth in the bones See Esay 38. 13. Lam. 3.4. the other tore his fleece and his flesh off him; but this latter hath even broken his bones too: to bone, for, to break bones, or, to unbone: as, to neck, for, to break the neck, or, cut off by the neck, Exod. 13.13. Deut. 21.4. Esay 66.3. and, to tail, for, to curtail, or, cut off the tail. Deut. 25.18. Josh. 10.19.

V. 18. Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel,] As Chap. 48.1.

behold, I will punish the King of Babylon, and his land, as I have punished the King of Assyria.] I will pull down the one, as I have already done the other: and the one produced the rather to give assurance of the other: as Esay 14.25. Heb. visit upon, as Esay 10.12. So Chap. 51.44.

V. 19. And I will bring Israel again to his habitation;] Or, to his fold; as 2 Sam. 7.8. or, his pasture: as Ezek. 34.14. See on Chap. 9.9. (for he continueth still the former metaphor taken from sheep, verse 6 17.) to their wonted places of feeding and lodging.

and he shall feed on Carmel and Pashan,] Which were of the richest and fertilest parts of that countrey, Num. 32.4. Psalm 18.12. See Esay 33.9. and 35.2.

and his soul shall be satisfied upon mount Ephraim and Gilead.] Or, he shall be satisfied, or, satiated; as Esay 58.10. Psal. 63.5. he shall feed as largely as he can desire to his full: of Gilead, see chap. 22.6. and of mount Ephraim, chap. 31.5, 6 that these places were after the return from the captivity, by such Kings as prevailed in those parts adjoyned to the State of Judea, Some Writers observe here from Josephs Antiquities, lib. 13. cap. 5.8.

V. 20. In those dayes, and in that time, saith the Lord;] As before, ver. 4.

the iniquity of Israel shall be sought for, and there shall be none; Or, it shall not be; as Psal. 39.13. Chap. 31.15, it shall no more be, than as if it never had been, God forgiving and forgetting it, Chap. 31.34. Zech. 10.6

and the sins of Judah, and they shall not be found:] The same thing in divers terms: not to be found, for, not to be; as Psal. 10.15. with 7.9. and 37.36. Dan. 2.35.

for I will pardon them whom I reserve.] And God where he forgiveth sin, forgetteth it, and utterly abolisheth the guilt of it, Esay 45.23. Mic. 7.19 Heb. I will be propitious to them; as Chap. 5.7. and 33.8. in Christ, the onely true propitiatory, Rom. 3.25. 1 Joh. 2.2.

V. 21. Go up against the land of Merathaim, even against it, and against the inhabitants of Pekod.] Gods speech to Cyrus. The words Merathaim and Pekod, as some Interpreters of the best note deem, are here the names of two countreys, through which Cyrus was to passe unto Babylon. The former is conceived to be that of the people called Mardi, so termed from their head Citie Mede; and the word seemeth to bear a dual form, in regard that the countrey was divided into two parts by the river Tigris that ran through it; that nation inhabiting part of the one side of it, which stood in Assyria, and part on the other side, within the circuit of Armenia. See Ptolomy, lib. 5. cap 13. Strabo, lib. 11 and 12. and Stephen the Byzantine, place them either within Hyrcania, or in the confines thereof; in whole works also they are called diversly, sometime Mardi, and sometime Amardi: the latter to wit, Pekod, is found mentioned, Ezek. 23 23. whence some conceive it to have been a city, or region of Chaldea; others rather of Assyria, situate in the lower part of it, and so termed as some suppose, because it was invested with the prefecture and command of the parts thereabout; Nineveh that sometime had the preeminence, being then ruined: that it belonged to one of those Provinces, that place of the Prophet sufficiently theweth: and that Cyrus marched through Assyria unto Babylon is apparent, by Herodote, lib. 1. The words therefore may well thus be rendred, as they lye in the Text, and according to the pointings of them there, against the land, (or, this land; for the article is here demonstrative: as in that form; the day, for, this day, chap. 49.19, 21.) from (or, by) Merathaim (a defect of the particle, as Gen. 4.1. Exod. 13.17 18.) go up (of which, see verse 9.) against it; (a redundancy elegant and vigorous; as Esay 8.13. and by the Inhabitants of Pekod; (so is the particle used, Gen. 49.29. Job 29.19. or, as some, against them of it, for it, as before, chap. 49.34. supposing it to be a city of the Chaldees, which Cyrus took in his way to Babylon. Thus Jeremy describeth the course of Cyrus his progresse toward Babylon, as Esay doth of Sennacheribs march toward Jerusalem, Esay 10.20——32. Howbeit, because those names have some affinity in found and letters with some Hebrew, or Syriack terms, the main thoal of Interpreters steereth another way, and taketh them not for proper names, but for names of common notion, and will have both to be spoken of Chaldea, or Babylon: and the former the Chaldee, whom the old Latine also followeth, renders, the land of those that rule: as if it came from a Syriack term that signifieth to rule: whence Maran-atha 1 Cor. 16.22. Others, the land of rebellious ones; from an Hebrew term that signifieth to rebel, Lam. 1.20. the ancient Greek, go up against the land of bitternesse; from a word, whence Marah Exod. 15.23. Ruth 1.20. the latter likewise some make a noun, expounding it, visitation, or the land that is to be visited, verse 27. Others make it a verb, rendring the words, and visit her Inhabitants: but that her, is not in the Text. A late learned Annotator coming after all, addeth a peculiar Version of his own, thus rendring the whole passage; Upon this land there is a double rebellion (that is manifold, or much, as chap. 16.18. and 17.18.) go up against her, and against the Inhabitants of visitation; that is, such as are liable to visitation, as deserve to be visited. But leaving this with the rest to the consideration of others, I concur with the first.

waste, and utterly destroy after them, saith the Lord.] That this injunction is given against Chaldea and Babylon is generally agreed: but about the last clause of it, some difference there is. Some refer those words, after them, to the places before mentioned; as if it were said, having done with them, subdued and sacked them, march on to Babylon. Others, and so some of the Jewish Commenters; pursue with the sword those that flee that none may escape; and draw hither those places, where God threatneth persons, to draw and send a sword after them, Lev. 26.33. chap. 42.16. Ezek. 5.2. Others lastly, destroy utterly the posterity, or race of them, as Dan. 4.11. and this seemeth the most probable. See Esay 14.20——22.

and do according to all that I have commanded thee.] To wit, by a secret instinct; as 2 Sam. 16.12. 2 King 18.25. 2 Chr. 36.23. Ezra 1.1. & 6. See Esay 44.28. and 48.14. and chap 34.22.

V. 22. A sound of battel is in the land, of great destruction.] Heb. A voice of war; that is, either a report of it; as Chap. 4.15. or, such a noise, as is wont to be raised in warlike conflicts. See chap. 48.33. and, of great breaking; as Chap. 4.6, 20. and 51.64. See chap. 48.38. alluding withall to such a noise, as in the breaking down and fall of high buildings is wont to be heard. See chap. 49.21.

V. 23. How is the hammer of the whole earth cut asunder and broken?] Bab lon that like a great hammer, or sledge, did subdue and destroy all the Princes and people of the world then known commonly in those parts. See Esay 14.4——7, 12, 16, 17. chap 51. 20. Such an hammer is Gods word compared to for the power and efficacy of it, chap. 23.29 and from such an one had that Charles Martel his name with the French,

V. 24. I have laid a snare for thee, and thou art also taken, O Babylon, and thou wast not aware:] Or, when thou wast not aware; as chap. 34.5. I have caused thee to be taken unawares, as a fowl in a snare, while it is feeding securely, and suspecteth no such matter. Eccles. 9.12. Luke 21.35. for the city was taken suddenly, when no such matter was expected, and while they were feasting and revelling; as Herodote relateth. See Esay 47. 11. Chap. 51. 39.

How are they spoyled, and also caught; because thou hast striven against the Lord.] Against whom there is no defence, and from whom no escape, Prov. 21. 30. Chap. 2. 24. and 48. 43, 44. Heb. hast mingled thy self with the Lord: the term is used properly of joyning ilfue at Law, or fight in the field, Deut. 25, 5, 11. 2 King. 14. 10. Prov. 15. 18. and 29. 22.

V. 25. The Lord hath opened his armory,] Heb. treasury, or, store-house: but well rendred armory; because a store house intended, not of blessings: as Deut. 28. 12. but of judgements, though the same word be used of either; as God is said to open the windows of heaven, as well to pour down wrath, Esay 24. 18. as to rain down a blessing, Mal. 3. 10. but in the ambiguous, or comprehensive term of treasury, the Prophet is deemed by some to have some glance at the Treasures of the Temple, which her King had preyed upon, 2 Chr. 36. 18. as if it were said that God would open the treasury of his wrath to be avenged on them that had pillaged the treasury of his Temple, 2 Chr. 36. 18.

and hath brought forth the weapons of his indignation:] Or, his weapons of indignati n; as also Esai 13. 5. and an army of vengeance, Esai 59. 17. and it is a figurative speech borrowed from the practice of Princes and Nations, who when any weighty expedition is intended, or invasion expected, are wont to set open the places of publike stores, and to bring forth the arms for such occasions there reserved, 2 Chr. 23. 9. Esay 22. 8. as the former word was very comprehensive, so this much more. See on chap. 49. 29. and it includeth in it as well furniture, vessels, and utensils of all sorts, as instruments, or weapons: whence it is also by some deemed, that some eye is here had to the holy vessels, as intimating that these instruments of wrath should be employed against them, for carrying away, and profaning the vessels of Gods house, 2 Chr. 36. 18. Dan. 1. 3, and 5. 3, 22.

for this is the work of the Lord God of hosts in the land of the Chaldeans.] This not mans work, but Gods, though men be made use of, and employed as instruments in it, Chap. 48. 10. See on Esay 30. 5, 15. and 63. 3. So verf. 15. The pronoun demonstrative, for the verb substantive: as there also,

V. 6. Come against her from the utmost borders,] Heb. Come to her (as verf. 7.) from the end; that is, fay some, from a remote place, from a far countrey; as Mat. 12. 42. as intimating that no remoteneſſe of place should hinder them from doing Gods work, Esay 7. 18. or from the lands end; as verf. 41. For the Persians lay upon the Persian Gulf, and the Medes coasted upon the Caspian Sea. See Esay 13. 5. which place parallel to this, helpeth to free & clear it from those forced constructions of the Jewish Master, of coming upon her from her end; when the term assigned for her standing is at an end; as chap. 51. 13. or, come upon her at the end; that is, set upon her suddenly at the one side of the city, chap. 51. 31. the former, the ancient Greek followeth, but with a disjoynting of the Text, As also it excludeth that new Interpretation of a learned late Writer, who expoundeth it in a notion of universality, but agreeth not with himself in the particular application of it: for in one place he would have it meant of an universality of persons, and renders it, Come all of you together; as, saith he, it is taken, Gen 19. 4. and 47. 21. in another place, of an universality of place, and for it should be rendred, Come on every side against her: and so saith he again, it is taken both here, and chap. 51. 31. Of which place, when we come to it; as also further concerning that of Esay on ver. 41.

open her store-houses] Break open those houses, wherein her wealth and treasure lieth locked up. The Hebrew word here onely found, doth properly signifie granaries: and so the Chaldee rendreth it; but the ancient Greek more generally, as ours here store-houses: and it is observed that the Hebrew word answering to our treasury, hath a far larger conception, and taketh in all manner of stores, wh reof see on Chap 41. 8. so this of granaries, though in its original importing places of receit for stores of grain and vitail; yet doth in likelyhood here comprehend treasuries, places defigned unto, and employed for the keeping of coyn, plate, jewels, and treasure of all sorts; whereof Babylon had great abundance. See Esai 45. 3, 3. verf. 10.

cast her up as heaps;] As men use to cast up earth and rubbish to raise the ground, when they are to make causeys; as Esay 57. 14. and 62. 10. make her of a goodly stately city, nothing but heaps of earth, stones and rubbish; as Psal. 79. 1. Esay 25. 2. and 37. 26. See chap. 51. 37. and this seemeth to be the genuine notion of the word, and the true sense of the Text: which one of the Jewish Masters laying this for a certain ground, that the word here used is never found, but in a notion of lifting up, so far backeth: but in application of it goeth another way, expounding it, not of the city it self, but of its wealth; as if it were said, heap up the spoyls of the city, cast them together upon heaps. (See on Esay 57. 11.) to which one of ours addeth, heap them so up, as if ye were to make a causey of them, make the heaps so broad, that men may walk many together a breast on them: and the Chaldee looking somewhat this way, Consume her wealth, as the enemy is wont to do the heaps of corn in the fields. The old Latine looking to that of Esai 62. 10. rendreth it, Take up the stones out of the way, and make heaps: which is altogether here unsuitable. But our margent exhibiteth another reading, which many others embrace, tread her down as heaps: which some expound of the treading down of causeys, or materials cast up to raise them, thereby to flat them, and so make them even and smooth. Others, and so moſt of the Jewish Masters, of beasts treading on sheaves of corn to thresh out the grain; whom a learned Scholiast of ours following, rendreth it, tread upon her, as on heaps, (or, as some, sheaves of corn, from Ruth. 3. 7. where it seemeth used for the more) and expounds it, As oxen tread the heaps of corn in the floor, Deut. 25. 4. Mic. 4. 13. See Esay 21. 10. which I should willingly admit, the rather for the term of granaries before used, did finde the verb solal any where in that notion; which as yet I do not; and adhere therefore to the first.

and destroy her utterly] Of the word here used, see on Esay 34. 2 and 37. 11. it is frequently used of some places in the land of Canaan that were utterly destroyed, Josh 8. 26. and 11. 21.

let nothing of her be left.] Heb. let there not be a remainder to her. See Esay 14. 21, 22. which may serve for a commentary upon this place.

V. 27. Slay all her bullocks:] Her great Princes and men of might. See Esay 34. 7. The Hebrew verb here used might well be rendred, smite them, or put them to the sword: for the word sword in Hebrew cometh from it.

let them go down to the slaughter:] As Chap. 48. 15. See there.

wo unto them for their day is come, the time of their visitation,] As Chap. 27. 7. and 46. 21. So verf 31. and the like, Ezek. 7. 7. 10, 14.

V. 28. The voice of them that flee, and escape out of the land of Babylon.] The Prophet speaketh this as if he heard the Jewish people that were got safe out of Babylon, and were now on their way homeward, how joyfully they congratulated one with another, and blessed God together for their delivery. The sentence is suspended, as in speeches full of passion and affection is not unusual. So Gen. 44. 18. be voice of my beloved: and the very like we may see Esay 66. 6. some to make the sentence entire, insert, is heard, rendring the Text as here, so in Esay, A voice, there is heard: which though it be not necessary; yet I mislike not. But that of the Jewish Doctor is ridiculous, who would have this voice, to be the speech mentioned in the next verse: for Cyrus, saith he, sent out his proclamation of liberty for the Jews to return to their own country, Ez. 1. 1. before that Darius came to sit down before Babylon, who thereupon many of them got by stealth out of it: and the words following verse 29. are the speech of those Jews thus escaped, encouraging those of Darius his forces, to go on couragiously in affaulting of the city, with assurance of successe. But this may well go among other their groundleſſe figments, whereof they have not a few.

to declare in Zion] When they have gotten thither, and are arrived there, whither they are now bound, verse 5. See chap. 51. 10. what manner of voice that there glanced at was; though it may also not improbably be understood of such, as were making shift to get before the reſt to Jerusalem, should there make report of what had been done at Babylon. See verf. 8. and Esay 40. 9. and 52. 7.

the vengeance of the Lord our God, the vengeance of his Temple.] The vengeance executed by God for the direction and destruction of his Temple, 2 Chr. 36. 18, 19.

V. 29. Call together the archers against Babylon; all ye that bend the bow, camp against it round about: let none thereof escape:] Gods speech, not the Jews, as the Jewish Masters would have it. See verf. 14. 15. and the like, Chap. 4. 17. Heb. Make the shooters (as Job 16. 13.) to bow (as verf. 2. So Chap. 51. 27.) unto Babel (for, against her: as Chap. 49. 19 20.) all treaders of bow, as verf. 14. A learned Annotator for shooters, readeth many: and the word may signifie either. But the Version generally received fitteth better here: tread the bow: as chap. 46. 9. and 51. 3.

V. 34. Their redeemer is strong, the Lord of Hosts is his name.] Or, But (supplied, as Chap. 5. 3. and 22. 10.) their strong avenger (as Numb. 35. 19, 27. here alluded to. See Prov. 23. 11. and Chap. 51. 35.) whose name is the Lord of Hosts; as Chap. 32. 18. and 48. 15.

he shall throughly plead their cause,] Heb. will pleading plead; as Esai 51. 22. he will do it, not verbally, but really; not by speaking for them, but by righting of them, and revenging them on those that have wronged them. So Psalm 35. 1. Prov. 22. 23. Mic. 7. 9.

V. 35. A sword is upon the Chaldeans, saith the Lord, and upon the inhabitants of Babylon, and upon her Princes, and upon her wise men.] Sword, for hostile invasion, doing execution upon them; as Levit. 26. 25. verf. 16. the Princes and Councellours of State are mentioned, as the chief stayes of the State, (See Esai 3. 2, 3.) and such as might be most likely to escape, either by their power and wealth the one, or by their wisdom and policy the other. See Esai 28. 14, 15, 18. el, for, al; as before, Chap. 48. 11. and so afterward, verf. 36.

V. 36. A sword is upon the liars, and they shall dote:] The word here used is ambiguous: it is used sometimes for bars, Exod. 25. 14, 15. whence some here would have it underſtood of great men in place, or power, that are as bars. the chief ſtrength and ſtayes of a State: but of those before, and hereafter; sometime it signifieth a lie, and a liar, from a root that signifieth to devise. 1 King. 12. 33. and to fain, Neh. 6. 8. So it is taken, Esay 16. 6. Chap. 48. 30. Job 11. 3. and the Chaldean pooh-fayers, and wizzards are here so termed; as also Esay 44. 25. a sword is upon her treasures, and they shall be robbed.] See ver. 10. 26. Esay 45. 3.

V. 38. A drought is upon her waters, and they shall be dried up:] Cyrus, as he had dealt before with the river Cyndes in Asyria on his way to Chaldea, which he cut out into so many several chanels, and made it passable for his people; so did he with Euphrates at Babylon, while he lay in siege before it, which by many out-lets he so drained, that his forces had thereby free accesse without much difficulty to the walls of the city, and so came suddenly to surprise it. See Herodote, lib. 1. and Chap. 51. 32. 36. there is in the words an elegancy arising from the affinity of sound in those two words, signifying a sword the one, and a drought the other, differing but in a vowel point onely, which our English cannot expresse.

for it is the land of graven images,] It is full of idols of all sorts, Dan. 5. 4. as of the land of Israel, Esay 2. 8. one sort put for the rest, as Esay 40. 20. the pronoun demonstrative for the verb substantive we have here also, as before, verf. 15. 25.

and they are mad upon their idols.] The Chaldee, with whom the ancient Greek, and old Latine agree, rendreth it, they glorie in them; as Psalm 97. 7. and a word very near to it, and springing from the same root for letters, is frequently so used. But I finde it no where in this form, but in a notion of madneſse; as Chap. 25. 16. and 46. 9. and madneſse is used to expresse any vehemency of inordinate affection, whereby persons are strongly taken with, and carried headlong without reason, or discretion, unto, or after ought. See Act. 26. 11. The word rendred idols, doth properly signifie terrours, Job 20. 25. Psal. 88. 15. there were a race of giantly people, thence termed Emim, because they were terrible and formidable to other near neighbouring nations, Gen. 14. 5. Deut 2. 11. Hence are the Chaldean idols here to termed, either, as some, in regard of the vaſt bulk, and giantlike shape and bigneſse of some of them, Dan. 3. 1. or, as others rather, because they are terrible and formidable to their followers, as fear-crows are to birds and beasts, though being things contemptible and unable to do ought, Chap. 10. 5. Baruc. 6. 70.

V. 39. Therefore the wilde beasts of the desart, with the wilde beasts of the Islands, shall dwell there, and the owls shall dwell therein:] Heb. ijsim with him: Whereof see on Esay 13. 21, 22. and 34. 14. and, daughters of the owl; as Job 30. 29. the most general term and form, where of the Fowl the Scripture speaketh. V. 42. They shall hold the bow and the lance: they are cruel, and will not shew mercy: their voice shall roar like the sea, and they shall ride upon horses, every one put in array like a man to the battel against thee, O daughter of Babylon.] Bow and Lance: The one to reach a far off, the other to pierce near at hand. See Chap. 6. 23. where the same things are spoken of the Chaldeans, who were now to meet with their matches, and be dealt with themselves, as they had formerly dealt with others. See verse 15. 29. See the very same before, Chap. 6. 24. and Belthazzars condition, Dan. 5. 6.

V. 44. Behold, he shall come up like a Lion from the swelling of Jordan, unto the hal itation of the strong; but I will make them suddenly run away from her: and who is a chosen man that I may appoint over her? for who is like me, and who will appoint me the time? and who is that shepherd that will stand before me?] See this whole paſſage opened at large, Chap. 49. 19. where the same is spoken of Nebuchadnezzar's ex edition against Edom, that is here spoken of Cyrus his expedition against Babylon. See the notes there.

V. 45. Therefore hear ye the counsel of the Lord, that he hath taken against Babylon, and his purposes that he hath purposed against the land of the Chaldeans: surely the least of the flock shall draw them out: surely he shall make their habitation desolate with them.] See the very same, Chap. 49 20.

CHAP. LI.

Verf. 1. Thus saith the Lord, Behold I will raise up against Babylon, and against them that dwell in the midſt of them that rise up against me a destroying wind.] A Continuation of the prophesie against Babylon. The hostile invasion of the countrey, and surpriſal of the citie, is here set forth by a new resemblance taken from a gale, or gust of winde, both blasting, that spoils the fruits of the earth, and boisterous, that sweeps and carrieth away all loose matter, nor chaff, or stubble onely, and such light stuff; but the corn it self also, and the weighty grain with it, ver. 2.

I will raise] Heb. I am raising; as Esay 13. 17. Chap. 50. 9.

against them that dwell in the midſt of them that rise up against me] Heb. unto (el, for, al; as Chap. 50. 9.) the inhabitants of the heart (that is, the midſt; as, the heart of the sea, Psalm 46. 2. or, amidſt, within; as Tyre is said to be ſituate in the heart of the sea, Ezek. 27. 4. and so, in the heart of the earth, Mat. 12. 40.) of those that rise up and so, in the heart of the earth, Mat. 12. 40.) of those that rise up against me: the preposition swallowed up between the participle and the noun: as the like in the same term, Psal. 18.39,48. & 44.5. and 74.22. against the inhabitants of Babylon, which dwell in the midst of the land of Chaldea, in the royal seat and center of that State, and those people, that have carried themselves so rebelliously and insolently against me in the devastation of my land, the destruction of my Temple, and the deportation of my people, c. 50.11,17,24.28,29. and this I take to be the plain and genuine sense of these words, against Babylon, the city and state it self, and against the inhabitants; those that dwell in her thus described. But both the Jewish Writers, and others of note, do here find other mysterious and more abstruse senses. For some of the Rabbines, by a device of theirs, which they call Athbash, whereof see on c. 25. 26. do out of the words leb kamai, the heart of those that rise against me, pick out Casdim, the Chaldeans. Others of them suppose a trajection in the text, and would have the words thus ordered, against the hearts of those that rise up against me, the inhabitants of the land of Chaldea, before pointed to in Babylon: like that Esay 10. 12. I will visite upon the King of Assyria's great heart. And the Chaldee goeth somewhat the like way, but swarving more from the text, against the inhabitants of the Chaldeans people murtherous, haughty of heart, and goodly of stature: as also the old Latine somewhat after the like strain; but more succinctly, and coming nearer to the text; against the inhabitants thereof that have lift up their heart against me: one of our prime Interpreters, the inhabitants of the heart; that is, those that dwell in, and rest upon their own counsels, devices and courses. And a late learned Annotator, against those that are secure in heart before me; for the word saith he, is fitting, and fitting, is a sign of security; and so one of the Rabbines sometime useth that word: and Kamai is here an abbreviation of Kamuthai, and the Talmudists oft so use it. But where doth the Scripture ever once so take it? Where find we in Scripture such a form as this, dwellers, or sitters of heart, for, secure ones, or persons that sit, dwell, or live securely? And to what purpose is it to have recourse to such forced and far fetcht strains, when we have a plain and familiar fence, freely and of its own accord offering it self to us?

V. 2. And I will send unto Babylon fanners that shall fan her and empty her lands:] As I sometime fanned and scattered my people by them, c. 4.11.12. & 15.7. so will I now fan them by the Medes and Persians, who shall empty their land of them, as they formerly emptied my land of her inhabitants, v.35. 2 Chr. 36.20,21. See c. 48 12. & 49.32.36.

for in the day of trouble they shall be against her round about.] They shall so befet her, that none shall escape, c. 50.15. 29. as they sometime begirt Jerusalem, c. 4.17. Heb. in the day of evil: as chapter 17.17,18.

V. 3. Against him that bendeth, let the archer bend his bow, and against him that lifteth himself up in his brigandine.] So the Jewish Commenters well expound it, Against those that shoot with the bow, and those that appear in their armour among the Chaldeans, let those of the Medes and Persians that use the bow, bend it, and let fly their shafts at them. Heb. el, for, al, against, or at; as v. 1. and tread, for bend, because that is the end of it; as c. 50.14. Of the word rendred brigandine, see c. 46.4. shoot at souldiers of all sorts, whether in armour, or weaponed onely without harnes: there is a defect both of antecedent and relative; as Exod. 23. 20. c. 2. 8. Howbeit a learned late Writer thus rendreth the words, Unto the bender, that bendeth his bow. and to him that advanceth in his brigandine, (to wit, those of either sort in Cyrus his army) thus saith the Lord, spare not her young men, &c. and the word of bending is thrice repeated, implying that they should bend as deep as might be. And this way in part the ancient Greek seemeth to go: but taking no notice of the initial particle in the text, which it thus rendreth the words,

Let him that bendeth bend his bow, and let him that hath armour put it on.] But the former sense seemeth the more familiar, than either of these, and keepeth closer to the expresse terms of the text, which the Chaldee, and the old Latine that followeth it, not leaving only, but crossing, while in stead of el, they render al, the negative or inhibitive particle, and render it, Let not him that draweth the bow, draw it, saith the one; and let not him that bendeth, bend his bow, saith the other; nor let him go up in his brogandine. One of the words of bending in the text, is by the Jewish Masters deemed superfluous. And it is observed by some, that they are willed to shoot at all, whether armed or unarmed, as not doubting but that their Arrowes should pierce, wheresoever they lighted. See on c. 50. 14.

and spare ye not her young men; destroy ye utterly all her host.] This, and, controlleth the latter exposition of the fore-going branch, which maketh this the beginning of Gods speech to the enemies forces. See c. 50. 30.

V. 4. Thus the slain shall fall in the land of the Chaldeans, and they that are thrust thorow in her streets.] Heb. And as c. 49.39.) the slain or wounded, (as c. 37.10.) shall fall in the land of the Caldeans: there shall havock be made of them, as well within the city, as in the countrey allso abroad. See Esay 13. 15. c. 50. 30. A learned Annotator supposeth a trajection in the text, and would have the words thus rendred, And the chaldeans being slain shall fall to the ground. But the distinguishing points in the original will not admit it.

V. 5. For Israel hath not been forsaken, nor Judah of his God, of the Lord of Hosts;] Heb. Israel is not widdowed(a word in this form no where else found) nor Judah divorced from his God, from the Lord of Hosts: the latter word supplied in a congruous term; as 1 Cor. 3.2. I gave you milke to drinke, and not meat to eat. Neither is Israel a widow, that hath lost her husband; nor is Judah as a woman divorced and put away, without hope of being taken home again, Deut. 24.4. Their husband liveth still, and hath not utterly cast off either, but will in his due time take them unto him again, though he have left them for a while, 1 Sam. 12.22. Esay 50. 1. & 54.5,6. c. 3.1,8,14. Lam. 1.1.

though their land was filled with sin against the Holy one of Israel.] This the Jewish Commenters understand of the Chaldeans countrey, and render it, for, or but their land, that is, the Chaldeans, is full of delinquency and sin, for the evil that they committed against the holy one of Israel in his people. But this is somewhat a strange over-straining of the text: and yet want there not divers that go this way, rendring it, because the Land of their sins is full of guilt from the holy one of Israel; contrary to that, that they presumed chap. 50.7. But this also seemeth to found over-harsh. Most others understand the words, their land, of the land of them both before mentioned, as well Judah, as Israel: but in the term following they differ; for some take the term asham here used in a notion of delinquency; as it is commonly used, Levit. 5.21. Num. 5.6. and render it as our Version doth, albeit, that they have deserved to be irrecoverably cast off & cut off for their sins, wherewith they have fulfilled their whole land, chap. 16.18. And some again, because the words of sinne and delinquency, or guilt, are taken also for the penalty due thereunto, would have it so to be here taken, rendring the words, for their land is full of penalty from the holy one of Israel: it hath received fully sufficient from him. So it should be as that Esay 40.2. But this also seemeth forced as well as the former. Others take the word in a notion of devastation: and although the noun here used, be not found elsewhere in that notion, yet is the Verb from whence it cometh, Psalm 34.22. Esay 24.6. Ezekiel 6.6. & 35.12. Joel 1.18. and the tenour of the Text requireth it here to be so taken; for it is word for word, though their land hath been filled (for it is a Verb, not a Noun) with devastation from the holy one of Israel; that is, though he have in his wrath caused their whole land to be wasted, and to lie thus waste for a long time together, c. 4.20,27.

V. 6. Flee out of the midst of Babylon;] See the same before, chap. 50. 8. Though that was directed to Gods people the Jews; This to me seemeth directed, not to them, (though most so take it, and the like speech be afterward made also to them, v. 45.) but to those in her, that were aiding and assistant to her, c. 50. 16. v. 9.

and deliver every man his soul:] Or, himselfe; as Psalm 32.2. Matthew 16.25,26. Heb. deliver a man his soul: Shift every one (as Chapter 49.5.) for himself, or for his life; as Genesis 19.17. c. 48.6.

be not cut off in her iniquity:] Or, left ye be cut off in her penalty, or punishment; as the word is used, Genesis 4.13. and 19.15. Some conceive this as an admonition to Gods people, not to partake in Babylons sins, lest they partake allso with her in her sufferings; as Esay 62.11. Revelation 18.4. But I conceive it rather to be intended as before, of such, as taking her part, and standing for her, should perish together with her, Esay 13.15. chapter 50.37.

V. 7. Babylon hath been a golden cup] Such an one she hath been hitherto; one by whom God hath caused other people to drinke deepe of his wrath: but now her turne is come to drink deep of it her self, c. 25.26. the cup of which, c. 25.15. called a golden cup, as here, so Rev. 17.4. as most understand it, in regard of the great wealth and illustriousnes of that Empire: resembled therefore by an head of gold, Dan. 2.32 38. and hence is Babylon called the golden city, Esay 14.4. Howbeit, the Jewish Doctors, by a cup of gold, (for so the words are, a vessell of gold, Psal. 115.4.) understand a cup of pure wine of the colour of gold: as gold, for pure yellow oyl, Zach. 4.12. and gold, for clear wind, and fair weather, Job 37.22. But the former is more familiar, and seemeth the genuine notion of the word in this place.

in the Lords hand;] As Psal. 75.8. and so, take the cup from my hand, c. 25.15. because he made use of that State as an instrument to execute judgement thereby upon others, and the cup there mentioned is expounded to be the Chaldean sword, c. 25.9.19.

that made all the earth drunken:] With the Wine of Gods wrath poured out by her hand, Chapter 25.15. Revelation 14.10. for that, Revelation 18.3. though the same words with this, beareth another sense from this. See there: and that learned Annotator seemeth to be out of the way, who would have this meant of Babylons inticing and drawing other Nations into association with her by her glittering shew, and glorious state, unto their destruction.

the nations have drunk of her wine, therefore the nations are mad.] That learned Writer rendreth it, therefore they shall be mad: they shall for their joyning with her, suffer also and undergo such judgements together with her, as shall make them even mad withall. But it seems meant rather of those calamities that they had sustained from her, and by her, as the Prophet fore-told they should, using this very term, where he spake of this cup, chap. 25. 16. and it might well be rendred, therefore they are mad; or, so that they became mad, or, fared like mad men; as chap. 46.9.

V. 8. Babylon is suddenly fallen] Babylon is fallen; as Esay 21.9. Rev. 14.8. and 18.2. as, Babylon is taken, chap. 50.2. suddenly, unexpectedly. See chap. 50.24. in one hour, Rev. 18.10. read Dan. 5.

V. 9. We would have healed Babylon: but she is not healed;] Or, could not be healed: the verb in a potential notion, as the like, chap. 46.15. The words of those that had assisted her, and served under her: we have done our best to save her from destruction; but all in vain: there is no cure, or help for her; as chap. 46.11.

for her judgement reacheth unto heaven, and is lifted up even to the skies.] Her punishment and calamity is exceeding great and grievous, (as the term is used to expresse extraordinary eminency of ought, Psal. 56.5.) proportionable to her sin, Rev. 18.5. the like whereunto, see Gen. 18.24. Ezra 9.6. Jon. 1.2. too great to be holpen by any humane helps. The word skies in our Version some render clouds: which the learned Scholiast controlleth, because the word in his native notion signifieth small dust, or, fine powder, Esay 40.12. whereas the clouds are air, condensated, or thickned: Our Version is the better and more exact; but that the word includeth also the clouds, or cloudy sky at least, appeareth Psalm 18.12. and Prov. 3.20. the clouds, or thick clouds, of the skies, being mentioned in the one place; and, the clouds, or skies, said to drop down dew in the other.

V. 10. The Lord hath brought forth our righteousnesse:] The speech of Gods people, acknowledging Gods mercy and goodnesse, & righteousnesse also in righting them upon their cruel oppressours, and owning thereby the religion profe sed by them, and their relation therein to him. However it be, one of the Rabbines rendreth it, slether the arrows: deriving it from a word that signifieth a slether, Job 39.16. Esai 40.31. slether them well, to make them fly, Job 39. 26. but the former is sure the right. The words of God, as some, yea, the most, to those that were to come against Babylon; as Chap. 50. 14, 15. But I suppose rather with some other, though fewer, that they are spoken in way of derision to the Babylonians, as calling upon them to make all the preparation they can, against the Medes and Persians that are coming against them; as intimating what need of such preparations there would be: but implying withall, that all the strength and means they could make would not be able to secure them. See the like in like manner delivered, Esay 21.5, and again here, verf. 12. and this the very course of the context doth abundantly confirm. See the like also, chap. 46.3,4.

gather the shields:] Heb. fill the shields, get them altogether, make up the full number of them; for that none of them be missing. So, a fulnesse, for, a full assembly. Esay 31.4. and, be filled the fore-skins (that is, delivered them in full tale) to the King, 2 Sam. 19.27. It is implied that all got together would be little enough for the employment that should need them: the word shelet here used comes near home to our shield, which in likelyhood came at first from it.

V. 12. Set up the standard upon the walls of Babylon:] About this whole passage again Authors dissent. For the Jewish Commenters, whom some other also follow, conceive this whole speech, as that also, ver. 11. to be directed to the Medes and Persians, inciting them to use all possible industry and diligence in besetting and assaulting the city of Babylon; and would have this first branch meant; some, of marching with their ensignes displayed towards Babylon: because the Hebrew it el, that is, unto Babylon: but it hath been formerly observed, that el is oft used for al, upon; as chap. 48.11. and 50.35,36,37. And others therefore understand it of setting up their banners on the top of her walls and towers, in token of conquest and triumph, when they have taken it: like that, Psal. 74.4. But to omit that the words run then in a prepostereous tenour, inciting to triumph in the first place; and to sedulous, vigilant, and cautious courses for surprisal in the second; the course of the contexe carries it clearly the contrary way. And others therefore rather deem the words directed to the Babylonians, in an irony; advising them to use all the care, diligence, and caution they can, to secure and safeguard themselves and their city against the enemies assaults, implying, say some, that they should not want either courage to stand to it, and make their party good against the adverfary, or means sufficient, as they suppose, to oppose them: but withall, as the most, that all their endeavours would not avail ought; or, as a late learned Writer conceiveth, twitting them with their remilnels and retchlelnels, that little regarding the enemy fet down before them, as if they were safe enough, & sufficiently secured against him, by the river that ran round about them, neglected the means of defence, and gave themselves to jollity and revelling, which they were deep in, what time, by occasion thereof, the city was taken. See on ver. 39. 41. And which seemeth backed with that Esay 21.5. in which place the Prophet joyneth these two together: and those that apply the passage to the Chaldeans, expound this first member of it, of an ensign to be set upon the walls, to bring up thither those forces that were to be employed for the defence of the place, and repulse of assailants, and to keep them together in such employment.

and the measure of thy covetousnesse.] Heb. the cubit of thy lucre, or, oppression, or, covetousnesse. The cubit was the most common measure in dimensions of length, breadth, height and depth among that people, Gen. 6.15. Exod. 25.10. it was taken, and so termed, as by the Greek term more plainly appeareth from the former part of the arm, reaching from the top of the middle finger up to the elbow. Hence come of the Jewish Doctors expound it, the arm, that is, the might and power, (for so is the word arm, commonly used. See Chap. 48.25.) wherewith thou hast formerly subdued and kept down others, is now come to an end. But other of them take it rather in a notion of measure; yet the word following these also expound directly; some, the measure of thy covetousnesse; because the word seemeth so used, Exod. 18.21. Some, of thine oppression, because it is found joyned with oppression, Ezek. 22.12. and these understand it of that recompence and retribution, that God would mete out to the Babylonians, for their insatiable avarice, exercised in the spoyling of other people, Esay 14.2. and 33.1. Chap. 50. 15, 29. Others, the time set and measured out for her visitation, fo the Chaldee; as Chap. 50. 31. or, as another Jewish Master, whom the old Latine concurreth with, of her destruction. because the word in some of the contexts of scripture, is found to come to cut off, or destroy, Job 6.9. Esay 38.12. But the word properly signifieth lucre, or gain, 1 Sam. 6.3. Psal. 30.9. Esay 33.13. Chap. 22.17. Ezek. 33.32. And I conceive that the words may well be rendred, the lust, or, limit of thy gain, or, getting. The fast stint and term of time, that God hath precisely limited and designed to allow thee, wherein to proceed in the fethering of thy nest, and enriching thy self by the spoils of other people; and which therefore thou canst not exceed, is now expired and come to an end. See somewhat the like, but in a divers notion, taken from another kinde of measure, Gen. 15.16. Zach. 5.6---11. Mat. 23.32. 1 Thes. 2.16.

V. 14. The Lord of hosts hath sworn by himself, saying,] Heb. by his soul; as Amos 6.8. See verse 6. a supply of the term, saying, as Chap. 50.5.

Surely, I will fill thee with men, as with caterpillers,] Heb, but if; that is, unlesse; as Gen. 32.26. Esay 55.10. the usual form of an oath. See Chap. 44.26. and 49.13. for, if not; and, but if, or, unless, are in effect and force all one. And the learned Scholiast lesse, are in effect and force all one. And the learned Scholiast therefore, who here maketh another unusual supply, and giveth the particles other notions, while he renders it, Certain it is that though I fill thee with men as with locusts: which he expoundeth of fur-furnishing Babylon with great multitudes of auxiliary forces, (because of Nineveh the like is said, Nah. 3.15,17.) doth herein leave a plain beaten road, to step aside into a more uncouth, and solitary by-path. It is generally expounded both by the Jewish Doctors and others, of the enemies souldiery, for their vast multitudes compared to locusts, that should fill her whole countrey first, and city afterward also; and so afterward again, ver. 27. The word here used is a kind of locust; as appeareth, Psal. 105. 34. compared with Exod. 10. 4 5. So called, because they lick up, and destroy all before them, Nah. 3.15. amisse rendred caterpiller, in the Psalm, and canker-worm, in the Prophet, for it is there said to fly. And to multitudes of locusts are such vast companies commonly compared, Judges 6.5. Chap. 46.23. Nah. 3.15,17.

and they shall lift up and shout against thee.] Or, that shall (as Chap. 50.9.) utter (Heb. a-fuer; as Deut. 26.1.) or cry aloud, (as Hisay 13.22.) or sing (as Hos. 2 15.) a shout (as Chap. 25.3.& 48.33.) against thee, or over thee; as Hisay 31.4. an allusion, saith a Rabbine, in the words of singing and shouting to such songs and shouts, as the countrey peasants used amids their treading of grapes for wine in the vintage, and at the bringing in of their wines and fruits. see Hisay 16.9. Chap 48.33.

V. 15. He hath made the earth by his power, he hath established the world by his wisdom, and hath stretched out the heavens by his understanding.] Or, Even he that made the earth, &c. for the word of making here is a participle, not a verb; and so the other two, that shall stand, and that stretched out. He it is, that hath sworn it, and is able to make good what he hath sworn. See the very same passage, Chap 10.12. The particle is suppli'd as Job 15.26. Psal. 119.41.

V. 16. When he uttereth his voice. there is a multitude of waters in the heavens, and he causeth the vapours to ascend from the ends of the earth, he maketh lightnings with rain, and bringeth forth the wind out of his treasuries.] Or, At the uttering of whose voice, &c. The demonstrative for the relative; as Exod. 18.20. Job 3.25. Chap 46.18. and 48.15 See of the whole verse, Chap. 10.13.

V. 17. Every man is brutish by his knowledge: every founder is confounded by the graven image: for his molten image is falshood, and there is no breath in them.] This passage is here inserted, to discover and controul the foresaid fancy of the Babylonians, that trusted upon their idols for protection and safeguard; and to shew how unable they were to bicker with the true God or to stand before any, that should come furnished with power and commission from him. See the whole, Chap. 10.14.

V. 18. They are vanity, the work of errours; in the time of their visitation they shall perish. See the same, Chap 10.15.

V. 19. The portion of Jacob is not like them for he is the former of all things, and Israel is the rod of his inheritance: the Lord of hosts is his name.] See Chap 10.16.

V. 20. Thou art my battle-ax, and weapon of war:] Or, Thou hast been my hammer. So was the word rendred, Chap. 50.23. and it signifieth such a weighty one as is able to break stones; and to make them fly asunder, as the root it cometh from, properly signifieth, Psal. 2.9. Hisay 27.9. thence also an instrument of dissipation, or destruction, Ezek. 9.2. See Chap 23.29. Howbeit, some suppose it here to signifie more specially such a warlike weapon, or spiked pole-ax, as horsmen make use of in fight; therewith to batter and break the armor, helmets, and harnesse, of those they deal with; and warlike weapons; a defect of the copulative; as Hisay 5.6. chap. 3.21. Or, As an hammer hath thou been unto me, and as warlike instruments: a defect of the note of similitude; as chap 5.8. and 26.18 and 50.6. Howbeit, the Chaldee rendreth it, thou breakest before me the fort, wherein the weapons of war are: and both the ancient Greek and the old Latine somewhat to the same purpose; Thou dissipatest, or breakest asunder, for me, the instruments of war. They seem to have taken the word here used, not for a noun, but for a participle, the one differing but in a tittle from the other, and consequently in the sound of a vowel; which in verbs of this form doth oft vary and interchange: though in the participle seldom, if ever. Our Version seemeth to go with those few, that understand it of Cyrus, whom God intended so to use and employ. See Hisay 41.2. and 45.1,2. But the most understand it rather of the Babylonian King, who was in Gods hand, as the Assyrian before him had been Hisay 10.5 and they render the words all along therefore not in the future, but in the time past.

for with thee will I break in pieces the nations, and with thee will I destroy kingdomes] Heb. and; which those retain, who admit the latter Version: but there want not that render it, not with thee, or by thee, but in thee: and turn the copulative into a differetive; as if it were said, But I will now break asunder the nations, that are in thee, and destroy the kingdoms that are in thee, or under thee: which latter clause the Greek rendreth, I will take away the Kings out of thee. But our Version seemeth herein the righter: the copulative is oft used in a causal notion; as Chap. 48. 27. & 49.37. and it rendreth a reason why Babylon was said to be Gods hammer, or wherein like unto such an hammer, as the word before importeth, taken from the proper notion of the verb here used, from whence that term is deduced. Onely the words would be read in the time past; I have broken asunder. & I have destroyed; unlesse, saith a Rabbine, this prophesie were penned by Jeremy before Nebuchadnezzar's conquests of those several countreys; whereof Ch. 46.--49. See Ch. 50.23. But whether it were penned before a good part of his conquests, or no, as it is not unlike it was; (for a copy of it seemeth to have been sent in the time of Zedekiah, while the Jewish State yet stood unto Babylon. See ver. 59.--64.) the Prophet throughout this whole Prophesie speaketh of Babylon, as having subdued all those nations that were to come under the yoke of that Empire and now drawing on to her downfall.

V. 21. And with thee will I break in pieces the horse and his rider, and with thee will I break in pieces the chariot and his rider.] Or, I thee have I broken: for it is the instrumental bet, as they term it, and spoken as in the time past; as before, ver. 20. and so also ver. 23. As before all warlike weapons and instruments, ver. 20. so now the Warriours themselves, with their horses and chariots; as Chap. 50. 37. This enumeration of particulars hath much emphasis in it, both here and there; as also, Chap. 50 35.---38.

V. 22. With thee also will I break in pieces man and woman, and with thee will I break in pieces old and young; and with thee will I break in pieces the young man and the maid.] Or, By thee have I broken, &c. as before ver. 21. and so also ver. 23. both sexes and all ages. See 2 Chr. 36. 17. Heb. and, as before; and so ver. 23.

V. 23. I will also break in pieces with thee, the shepherd and his flock; and with thee will I break in pieces the husband-man, and his yoke of oxen; and with thee will I break in pieces captains and rulers.] People of all sorts, and of all ranks. See Jhap. 50. 16, 27. 35.---37. The former two, the support of a State, for provision of sustenance, 1 Chr. 27. 25.--31. 1 King. 4. 21, 22. Eccles. 5. 9. The two latter for protection, safeguard, and government, 1 Chr. 27. 32.---34. Hisay 3. 1. 2 3.

V. 24. And I will render unto Babylon, and to all the Inhabitants of Chaldea all the evil that they have done in Zion in your sight, saith the Lord.] This Version fitteth well with the tenie of those, who understand all that went before of Cyrus: who also some of them supply from the former, And I will by the render to Babylon. But those that conceive it as the most do, to be intended of Babylon, take the copulative here in a diferetive notion, and render it, But (as vers. 9.) I will render unto Babylon, &c. Though I have made use of thee for the punishing of many nations, and of mine own people in particular, yet will I now at length execute judgement also upon thee for thine insolencies against me; and thy cruelty shewed unto my people. So Hisay 47.6,8. Chap. 50.15,29. See the like of the Assyrian, Chap. 10. 5,6,12. those words, in your sight, (wh. cin God turneth his speech unto his people) have reference not to the evil done though next before-mentioned, but to the evil return'd, and the term of rendring though more remote as if he had said, Ye that are now in captivity at Babylon shall survive to see the judgement executed upon her. So Psal. 79.10.

V. 25 behold, I am against thee,] Or, I am coming against thee; as Chap. 50.31. and el here, for, al; which yet the old Latine retaineth rendring it unto thee.

O mostly ing mountain, saith the Lord,] A mountain is Babylon terminal, not for her situation, as if it had stood upon an hill; for it was built on a plain. Gen. 11.2,9. and so feated that it had abundance of water round about it. ver. 13. but it is so stiled, as some in regard of the height of its power and eminency, wherewith it did, as a mountain, over-top other cities, countreys, and kingdoms. Or, as others, in regard of its high and flanely palaces, lofty Towers, and strong Fortifications: that, as Berosus reporteth of them, resembled high mountains; and appeared as such to folk afar off: by means whereof it seemed to reach as high, and to be as impregnable, as it it had stood upon some great and high mountain. Hereunto may be added the strange height of her walls: whereof further on verse 53. and those stupendious orchards, or gardens, with groves and walks, furnished with variety of goodly tall trees, and erected on arches aloft far from the ground, that made the city shew afar off, like some Lebanon, or other forest-like mountain: whereof Diodore, lib. 2. cap. 2. See the like expression, chap. 22.23. Zach. 4.7. and 12.1. yea, so faith the Jewish Doctor, the mountains of Gilead, for their strong holds, Amos 2.13. which is not improbable.

which destroyest all the earth,] And well therefore deserveth the title of a destroyer. See Hisay 14.16,17. and Chap. 50.21.

and I will stretch out mine hand upon thee,] Or, against thee; as chap. 6.12. and 15.6.

and roll thee down from the rocks;] From thy strong Holds and Forts, and from thy lofty Towers that seem to threaten heaven, Gen. 11.4. Dan. 4.11,30. See ver. 53.

and I will make thee a burnt mountain.] Or, a burning mountain: alluding to those mountains of sulphury matter; such as Mongibal in Sicily, Soma in Italy, Hecla and Hogla in Island, that burn continually, and with the ashes and cinders at some times belching out from them, waste and spoyl all the countrey near to them: Of which kinde there was a field also sometime in that region continually burning; as Strabo, lib. 16. and Pliny, l. 2. c. 106. report: or to the heaps of ashes and cinders, that cities and towns ruined and burnt down to the ground, are wont to leave behinde them, Chap. 50 26. ver. 37. Heb. I will give thee (as Ezek. 22.4, and 35.3.) unto, or for, (as Chap. 50. 23 and so ver. 29.43.) a mountain of burning: as, a land of burning, Deut. 29.23.

V. 26.

V. 26. And they shall not take of thee a stone for a corner, nor a stone for foundations;] That is, as some, there shall not remain any stone of thee, that may be useful for building: or, as others, there shall be nothing left of thee, whereon some hope or attempt may be to raise up a new State again; or thou shalt never be re-edified: that which the words following confirm. The Chaldee by corner stone understandeth a King, by foundation stones, Princes. But of that seemeth over-curious. These two sorts of stones are mentioned, because of special note and principal concernment in building, Psal. 118.22. Hisay 28. 16. Zach. 10.4. Eph. 2.20. Rev. 21.12. The verb is indefinite, and may well therefore be rendred, There shall not a stone be taken off thee, &c. as Luk. 12.20. & 16. 9.

but thou shalt be desolate for ever, saith the Lord.] Or, for (as ver. 5.) thou shalt be. And so Heb. desolations of perpetuity, or, perpetuall desolations; as chap. 5.22. Ezek. 35. 9.

V. 27. Set up a standard in the land; blow the trumpet among the nations:] The standard, and trumpet, both to call people together, that are to serve and be employed against Babylon, Of this use of the one, see Hisay 5.26. & 13.2. Of the latter, chap. 4. 19,21. & 6. 1.

prepare the nations against her:] Heb. sanctifie; as Hisay 13.3. chap. 6.4. ver. 28.

call together against her the Kingdomes of Ararat, Minni, and Ashchenaz.] Heb. make to hear against her (as chap. 50.29.) the kingdoms; that is, people out of those kingdomes; as Hisay 13.4. The two former of these are the most Writers bring within the compasse of Armenia. Of the former mention is made in Moses where the Ark is said to have rested on the mountains thereof, after that universal deluge, Gen. 8.4. See on Hisay 37. 38. And for the latter, to wit, Minni, the Chaldee here hath also Armenia: which countrey divers learned men suppose so to be termed by a word compounded of two other, either Aram and Minni, (because Syria was sometime deemed to take in Armenia, as Strabo, lib. 1. & 12. Pliny, lib. 5. cap. 12.) or of Har and Minni, as the more mountainy part of Minni; and under these two terms therefore conceive to be comprehended the higher and lower Armenia; not want there of them who deem Minni to be the same countrey, which Nicholas of Damascus calleth Minyas, on a mountain above which in Armenia, he saith, that one of the Arkes of Noah at the time of the deluge. See Josephs Antiquities, lib. 1. cap 4. Ashchenaz are a people descended from Japhet, whose sons fon by Gomer his eldest son was so called, Gen. 10.3. 1 Chr. 1. 6. Their seat seemeth to have been within Asia the lesse in Bithynia and Phrigia, where the Asoanian gulf, and lake, and river, and city, and region, all of that appellation are found. See Strabo, lib. 12. & 14. Pliny, l. 5: c. 31, 32. and that out of these parts Cyrus having subdued them, took foulders along with him to serve under him in his expedition against Babylon, is related by Xenophon, lib. 7.

appoint a captain against her:] So the Jewish Commenter, one of them, following the Chaldee, expoundeth it as a military term and office, a captain: though another of them, a Prince; because the latter syllable of the word is in a manner the same with the Hebrew term that so signifieth. And because the former part of the word in Hebrew signifieth a little one: Hence, some Critickes over-curiously descanting upon it, would have it to import an inferiour Prince, or one set over the meaner sort: and the old Latine therefore in Nah. 3. 17. where the same word is used in the plural form, rendreth it, little ones. In this it retaineth the word, as a proper name of a person, as some would have it, of a place, or people, as some other: Which because it is singular here, some would have it to denote therefore a General: and this, say some of them, must needs be Cyrus: but another controlling that conceit would have it to be a Lieutenant General under Cyrus, that may rule the Army by direction from him, and may from time to time acquaint the severall regiments with his mind and pleasure: and would have the word to import a Prince of instillation, or interpretation, from an Hebrew word that signifieth to distill, or drop, applyed sometime to teaching, preaching, and prophecying, Job 29.22. Mic. 2.6,11. But the word seemeth to be a forrein term, and these strained interpretations rather witty than weighty. Some would have it to signifie an army; building on the old Latine, that biddeth, Muster Taphsar. The Greek rendreth it βασσοφορεις, that is, engines to cast arrowes or darts. A learned Annotator would have it a Persian word, but of the Hebrews, corrupted, partly by transposition, and partly by transmutation of letters, from one that is used, Esth. 9.13. and to be the same with that which by the Greeks and Latines is called Satrapa: and would therefore have the the meaning to be, set a satrapa over it; make it, of a Kingdome, a satrapy; that is, a Province; for the Satrapa were Governours of Provinces. Thus it should be herein not unlike that of Rezin and Pekah concerning the sonne of Tabeel, Hisay 7.6. But not to insist on any debate about the deduction of the word, though more probable than any of the former, yet tiphsar from Achasdarpan, not so easily brought about: the whole tenour of the Prophets speech here, both in the words next before, and those that immediately follow after, is concerning the mustering of forces against Babylon, not concerning her, as being not yet dealt with, much lesse subdued. Amids this great variety I shall make bold to suggest mine own thoughts. I conceive with those Jewish Masters above mentioned, that the word signifieth a Captain, and to be a term of some military prefecture: and so it seemeth to be taken, Nah. 3.17. for elsewhere, save here and there, it is not found in Scripture. But in one of the Chaldee Paraphrases it is said to be taken for Angels, that are as captains of Gods host, Gen. 32.1,2. Josh. 5.14. and our Version in Nahum well rendreth it Captains; for of military men it is spoken: and so might it very well be rendred here; for the word is collective; as the word horse in the next clause: and the text to me seemeth clear and plain to this purpose, set up captains. or, Commanders against her, to wit, over those forces, that ye shall gather together out of the nations before-mentioned: for in vain doth that great man prefix this place, to ex lude Darius, and to back his strained interpretations Kings for a King, v. 11,28. wherof see further there.

cause her horses to come up as the rough caterpillers,] That the word horse is here collectively taken; as Psalm 76.6. is not to be doubted: and that the word rendred caterpillers (singular also but taken collectively; as Psalm 105. 34.) doth signifie a kind of locusts, hath been shewed already, on v. 14. The question is here onely in what regard these horses are compared to locusts, or such a kind at least of them, as this term importeth: and here some would have them to be intended like them for multitude, and render the words, bring on, or bring up, (as Exod. 8.1. 1 Sam. 19.15 Sometime a military term. See on chap. 50. 21.) horse as locusts, for number, or numberlesse rather, as Psal. 106. 34. for it was shed here before, verse 14. and so both this and the like, Nah. 3.15,17. Others would have the resemblance to consist in the motion of either; make the horse to rise like locusts; that is, to prance, or to curvet, or to leap and run, as locusts use to do, skipping and flying from place to place, either by shorter jumps when they remove not far, or by longer flights, as when they passe sometime over-sea. Of the motion of the locusts, see Joel 2 4,5 7,9. where they are compared to horses, as horses here to them: and of horse and chariots, Nah. 3.2. The former way the Greek goeth; the Chaldee the latter. I conceive the former to be intended, though the latter not improbable. But there is an Epithet given here to this kind of locusts, concerning which there is some diversity of opinion, and from which some draw new resemblances. The word rough, that our Versions yield, is by the Jewish Commenters approved, pointing us to the places, where the word it cometh of doth so signifie, Job 4.15, Psal. 119.120. and in these places alone it is found. Nor do I see why it should be rejected, the originall of the world backing it, and the relations withall concurring of those that write of the several kinds of locusts, among which they affirm some to be rough. Yet the Chaldee here rendreth it, glittering; as some kind of flies also do, as well as the glow-worm: and this some would apply to the horse-mens glittering armour, or the trappings of their horse, See Rev. 9.7. The Latine rendreth it, furnished with stings, or prickles: and that some such thing the male locusts have in their tails both Aristotle, lib. 5. cap. 28. and Pliny l. 11. c. 29. affirms and hither also some would draw that, Rev. 9.3,10. and those would have these resembled to such locusts, as those in John, for the mischief they should do to men: only they question whether this attribute should belong to the horse or the locust, which will come much to one. Lastly, a late learned Annotator rendreth the word wasting; and seems to ascribe it to the horse, wasting as the locust: and of the locusts laying all waste before it, there is no doubt, Psal. 105. 34,35. Joel 2.3. Nah 3.16. for the word, saith he, written with shin, signifieth waste and destroy; but the Chaldee dialect turneth shin into samec: the less-ned man seemeth to have read samad, for samar, the letters being much alike. Howbeit, herein I concur with him, in that he taketh horse collectively for horses; and horses, for horsemen.

V. 28. Prepare against her the nations] Heb: Sanctifie; as before, v. 27. but here repeated to adde further vigour to it, again.

with the Kings of the Medes, the captains thereof, and all the Rulers thereof, and all the land of his dominion.] Either together with the nations before-mentioned, ver. 27. that were to serve under them; or, simply the Kings of Media, Darius and Cyrus as verse 11. for that great man seemeth very much here out of the way, in excluding Darius from any copartnership with Cyrus, would have Kings to be taken for King, both here, and before, ver. 11. the particle seemeth to note onely the nouns coming in regiment after the verb, Sanctifie, to which it hath reference: and it is not amiss therefore omitted in the members ensuing; though there also in the text, the meaning is, employ all the power ye can make against Babylon.

V. 29. And the land shall tremble and sorrow] The people of Chaldea quake for fear, and be in pain, as a woman in travell: so the word properly signifies, See Hisay 13.8. Chap. 50.43.

for every purpose of the Lord shall be performed against Babylon, to make the land of Babylon a desolation without an inhabitant.] See Hisay 14.27. Chap. 50.3. verse 11,12,45. the noun plural put in a distributive notion, joyned with a verb singular; as Esth. 9.23. Prov. 14.1. Joel 1.10.

V. 30. The mighty men of Babylon have forborn to fight; they have remained in their holds;] They have no heart to fight, they dare not stir abroad; as the Philistines of the Israelites, 1 Sam. 14.11.

their might hath failed,] So some of the Jewish Criticks, deriving it from a word that signifieth to fail, Esay 19. 5. or to wax faint, Esay 14. 17. 17. but some other of them expound it, their courage is gone; fetching it from a word that hath a notion of dislocation in it; as having reference to a limb put out of joynt and removed, Gen.32.32. so it would rather be, their courage is shrunk; as it is there rendred, or it is lame, and halteth, as it is said there of Jacob, verse 31. The former seemeth the genuine.

they became as women:] Heb. they are unto women; or, they are become women: they are so affected, so timorous and heartlesse, as if they were turned into women; as if they were not men, but women indeed; the phrase is the same with that, Exod.4.3,4. So Esay 19.16. Chap.50.37. Nah.3.13.

they have burnt their dwelling places.] Or, her dwellings are burnt: for the verb is indefinite; as the like, chap.49.28 and as verse 26.

her bars broken.] The bars of the gates, as well of her forts and palaces, as of her city: all flyeth open before the enemy, and all lyeth open to him: her gates are all broken open, as is wont to be, when the bars are broken wherewith they were kept fast shut, Psal.107.16. & 147.13. Prov.18.19. and the enemy become master and commander of all. See Esay 45. 2.

V. 31. One post shall run to meet another, and one messenger to meet another, to shew the King of Babylon that his city is taken at one end,] Heb. A runner to meet a runner shall run; and a reporter to meet a reporter. Or, A post shall run meeting a post; and a messenger meeting a messenger. A post, and a post, for, one post, and another; and of reporter, or messenger the like: as day to day; and night to night; for, one day to another, and, one night to another, Psal. 19.2. and, to meet, for, meeting; or, in meeting; as 1 Sam. 25. 34 unlesse thou hadst made haste, and hadst come meeting me: and of this use of the particle, see chap.35.8 9. & 38 4. & 44. 5,17. The meaning is, saith the Jewish Commenter, there shall come post upon post, and messenger upon messenger, that as one goeth away, he shall meet with another coming; and all to bring word to the King of the surprisal of the city, (Heb. to report, or, declare to the King of Babel) that his city is taken from the end, or, at the end: as, at my right hand, Psal.16 8. & Exod. 37.8. at the end on this side, and, at the end on that side; that his city is taken at the one end; as our Version rendreth it; and the like is again, verse 46. and yet there needeth not here that restrictive supply; at, or, on the end, or, edge of it, is enough; for whether it were taken by assault made on the one side onely; or, on either side at once, (as a learned Interpreter would have it. both where the river entred into the city, and where again it passed out) at, or, on the end, or, skirt of it, it was. For whereas a learned Annotator would have it expounded; his city is taken from end, that is, it is all taken, the whole city is taken: and addeth withall, that this is a most manifest place, to prove that acception of this forme, which he attributeth unto it, to wit, a notion of university, or, as we use to speak, universality: that which, I suppose, no one place produced by him proveth, and this here least of any: that the term importeth precisely, from the end, or extremity, cannot be doubted, much less denied. Now because the end, or extreme part of a company may be the best, or chief, one way; the worst and meanest another way; hence the word is used sometime for the chief: as where it is said, that Joseph took of the end (the better end) of his brethren, the chief of them, and set them before Pharaoh, Gen. 47. 2. sometime for the meanest; as where it is said of Jeroboam, that he made Priests of the ends (of the fag end, as we say) of the people: of the meanest of them, 1 Kings 12.31. and the word is plural here, which was singular there, where applyed, as may seeme to the better part. As for that of the Sodomites, Gen.19.4. the whole people from the end: the universality is in the whole people, young and old, the place or places from whence they came, noted onely in the word end, or quarter; as it is sometime not amiss rendred. So Esay 56. 11. every one from his quarter: and of the Danites, from their quarters. Judg. 18. 2. and if it be rendred as our Version doth it, from every quarter: the universality will be, not in the word quarter, but in the note of generality supplyed; as 1 Sam. 30. 8. Esay 30. 17. but I should rather render it from each ones quarter; as in distributive notions is wont to be expressed. See Esay 2. 20. & 26. 19. So Numb. 11. 1. fire was kindled, and devoured in the quarter, or quarters (the word being taken collectively) of the camp. And for that, Cap 50.26. enough was said of it there. Yet will I not deny but that this form may sometime signifie from among; as the Chaldee rendreth it, Ezek.33. 1. and if any shall deem it so to be taken, either Gen.47.2. or 1 King.12.31. I shall not contend with him. But that implieth not an universality, which this learned man striveth for: Nor do I see any colour of ground here to admit it: nor can it be so taken, but where it hath some other noun after it to rest on, as in those places it hath: nor yet in such case neither, where it passeth on to some other end, or extreme; as Gen.47.21. Exod.26.28. & 36. 32. But could his exposition of it here be made good, and the matter of the message brought to the King, thus by post after post, were, that his whole city was taken, it would much conduce to strengthen the opinion of a late Writer of great note, who building upon a relation of Berosus a Chaldee Writer, reported by Joseph the Jew, against Apion, lib.1. maintaineth very stifly, that when Cyrus was marching with his army towards Babylon, the King of Babylon whom he called Nabonidus, went forth to meet him, with such forces as he had: but being worsted by him, fled with some few to a Town called Borsippus, whither Cyrus having taken Babylon, and given order for the demolishing of the walls thereof, afterward pursued him, and having there taken him, gave him his life, and bestowed the province of Carmania upon him. And he presseth this place very hard for the further proof of this story: For what needed, saith he, such posting to the King; who ever he was, to acquaint him with the surprisal of the city, if he were at that time in the city, and not rather in some remote place? And indeed if the whole city had been taken, as that learned Annotator would have it, the King and his Court needed not be informed of it by messengers, they would have been themselves in the midst of the broyl. But this relation neither sorteth well with other the passages of the Prophet in this place; and it is far otherwise, and more agreeably to the Prophets discourse, related by Herodote, lib.1. who wrote near two hundred years before this Berosus, and received what be wrote hereof from the Chaldeans, as also by Xenophon, lib 7. that wrote about an hundred before him: neither of them make mention of any such flight of the Babylonian King to Borsippus; and the latter of them expresly mentioneth the murthering of him in his palace at Babylon: whom if Cyrus had dealt so kindly with, as Berosus reporteth, or had he heard of any such thing, would not have failed to have inserted it into Cyrus his life, whom for his humanity and kind usage of those whom he conquered, he striveth by all means and upon all occasions to extoll. And for the post upon post, or runner upon runner, as the Hebrew hath it, comeing one upon the neck of another to bring tidings to the Kings Court of the taking of the city, we need not remove King or Court out of the city, to some more remote place, if we do but consider, first what kind of messengers it is that the Prophet here speaketh of; for neither are they horsmen, such as those 2 Kings 7. 4. & 9. 18,19. sent out for scouts; not Persian posts, (as that learned Writer expoundeth the terme here used) disposed into certaine stages, (whence ours have their name) to dispatch messages and intelligences with speed; but as the word is plain, curriers, or runners, foot-posts, as we use to speak; such as Ahimaas and Cushi, 2 Sam 18. 19---23. and again if we shall take notice of the strange largeness and amplitude of the city, even within the walls, in regard whereof Aristotle therefore in his Politicks, lib 3.cap.2. saith. that it deserved the name rather of a countrey than of a city: and withall what both he and Herodote also report, the one of them, that the utmost parts of the city, the ends, as our Prophet here speaketh, were taken, while those that dwelt in the midst were wholly ignorant of it, having heard nothing at all thereof, but went on with their revelling, (for at one of their drunken festivals it was taken) see on verse 39. 41 the other from some other ancient historians, that it was three dayes after it was taken, before tidings came of it to some part of the city. And thus much may serve to clear this place both from those forced expositions of the terms therein used, and the removall of the ground thereupon laid, to thwart the received opinion concerning Cyrus and Darius their joynt surprisal of Babylon, conjoyned with the slaughter of the King of Babylon, Dan. 5.28 30,31.

V. 32. And that the passages are stopped:] Or, rather, taken, as Verse 41 or, seized, or, surprized, as Chap.48.41. the passages; that is, such places by which from the river Euphrates there was ordinarily entrance into the city: as one of the Rabbines expoundeth it: who addeth also not amiss, that by the passages, is consequently understood the forts and towers situate in those places, to inhibit enemies from entrance; as of Moab, Chap.48. 41. or, as others, not unlike to that, Judg. 12. 5. where it is said, that they took the passages of Jordan, that is the places by which men usually passed over it: so here passages are taken, whereby the river Euphrates is, or may be, passed over: and this way if we take it, it may be rendred, passages have been deprehended, or discovered, or found out: as the word is used of the wife suspected of disloyalty, it is hidden from her husbands eyes, and she hath not been deprehended; that is, discovered, found in the deed, or, as our English rendreth it, taken with the manner. Numb.5.13. By diverting and draining of the rivers there, have been passages made and discovered, whereof use hath been made for the taking of the city.

and the reeds they have burnt with fire,] That which is here rendred reeds; the Jewish Commenter expoundeth great rushes; deriving it from a word that signifieth a rush, Job 8. 11. and making it the same with that rendred a bullrush, Esay 58. 5. and these, saith he, Cyrus his souldiers burnt down, that they might not hinder their accesse to the walls of the city; but the words are not the same: and it would rather be rendred with the old Latine, meers, or pools. So the word is commonly, yea, generally, used; as Psalm 114. 8. Esay 14.23. & 19. 10. & 32. 6. & 41. 18. & 42. 15. Nor need we, with that Jewish Critick, have recourse to the Arabick, who suggesteth, that in that language, the word signifieth a fort; and would have it so taken here. The meaning is, that Cyrus had by draining so dryed up the meers, that were about Babylon, that they were as if they had been wasted, and burnt up with fire, And hither some think that of Esay hath some reference, Esay 44. 27,28. For as for that which some surmise, that Cyrus his souldiery might fire the reeds, rushes, flags, and such sedgy stuffe as grew in those meery places, thereby to harden the ground, and make it the more passeable, to me seemeth very improbable; considering, how suddenly the attempt was to be made, and how covertly to be carried, whereas this would have retarded the enterprize, and partly with the smoke of the green, rushy, and sedgy matter have smothered and choaked the assailants, partly by the flame and crackling of the dryer reedy stuffe have discovered them, and given notice of their approach unto those in the city, who might as easily then, as Herodote well observeth, have taken them as fish in a pursnet.

they have burnt] That is, the enemies: which some make so bold with as to thrust into the text: but that is not so well done: the verb is indefinite; and may best be rendred in a passive form: the meeres are burnt up. See on verse 26.

and the men of war are affrighted.] Daunted, and dismayed with the sudden irruption of the enemy, whom before they slighted, little deeming or dreaming of any such passage for them, or means of surprisal by them. Se Verse 30.

V. 33. For thus saith the Lord of Hosts, the God of Israel;] As Chap.50. 18.

The daughter of Babylon] As Psalm 137.8. Of the term, see Esay 47.1.

is like a threshing floor; it is time to thresh her:] Or, as some render it, in the time that he thresheth her; that is, what time it is wont to be threshed, as some, taking the word indefinitely. So there should be a defect both of the particle in, and of the relative that: but the Jewish Master taketh it rather for an infinitive, in the time of threshing it; the word signifieth to tread: but to tread, both in Hebrew and Syriack, 1 Cor. 9. 10. is used for to thresh, saith a learned Writer, and of the Syriack he giveth an instance: but none of the Hebrew in which it is used for treading of grapes commonly; as Esay 63. 2,3. Chap.48.33. and of olives also sometime, Mic.6. 15. but of corn, for threshing, or, treading it out, I find not where it is used. Yet thus also some of the Jewish Commenters, here expound it, Babylon is like a floor full of sheaves; the time of threshing her approacheth; or, when the time of it, to wit, of the floor, (for the word of floor is in Hebrew feminine) approacheth. But to speak properly, the floor is not said to be threshed, but the sheavesf of corn in the floor, whereof there is no mention in the text. And I concur therefore rather with those, that take the word in its native and most usual notion, for to tread. as Judg. 20. 43. conceiving it to have reference to the usual manner of preparing and fitting of floors for threshing against harvest time, by new laying, and claying, or plaistering of them, and then treading them down to make them, as well firmer as eavener. So the meaning will be; the City and State of Babylon must be thrown down and levelled, made eaven and plain, Verse 25. as a threshing-floor against harvest time, that her Princes and people may be threshed in her. See Esay 21.10. Joel 3 14. Chap.50.26.

and the time of her harvest shall come] Not for her to reap, but to be reaped and cut down: her sin being come to the height, Ver. 13. Gen. 15. 16. she is now ripe for judgement, ready to have her Princes, people, and partakers cut down and threshed in her. See Joel 3 13. Rev.14.16.

V. 34. Nebuchadnezzar the King of Babylon hath devoured me,] Gods peoples complaint of the Chaldeans cruelty exercised upon them, Heb. hath eaten me, or, eaten upon me: as of Assur, Chapter 50. 17.

V. 35. The violence done to me, and to my flesh, be upon Babylon, shall the inhabitant of Zion say; and my blood be upon the inhabitants of Caldea, shall Jerusalem say,] Gods peoples complaint of the Babylonians harsh and cruel usage of them: (whereof see 2 Chr. 36. 17, Esay 47.6.) and either a prayer for, or prediction and profession of God their avengers (Chap. 50. 34.) just judgement upon them for the same: so Psal.137. 8,9. It is an intimation at least that the cruelty shewed them, and their bloud-shed by them, did of it self cry to God for vengeance against them, as Gen.44. 10. See Habb. 2. 11,12. Jam. 5. 4 Rev. 6. 9, 10. Sion and Jerusalem are here one and the same; as Esay 4.4.

violence done me] Heb. my violence; as, my wrong, for, the wrong done me, Gen.16.5. and, the violence of Jerubbabels sons, for, the violence done to them, Judg.9 24. and, the violence of the children of Judah, for. that shewed to them, Joel.3.10.

my flesh] As Mic.3. 2,3. where this word is also used; and he seemeth to persist in, or have an eye at least, to the former resemblance of a ravenous beast, tearing the flesh of that he preyeth on. The Jewish Masters, some of them distinguish the terms here somewhat over-curiously, the spoyl of me, in the rapine of my goods, my flesh, in those whom they hold in captivity and thraldom my blood, in those that have been slain by them. Some for flesh read remnant; as the like word is used in Shear-Jashubs name, Esay 7. 3, but the words differ in a vowel.

my blood] The guilt of, and vengeance for, that blood of my people that hath been shed by them. See the like. Mat.27.25.

inhabitant] Heb. inhabitresse; for people that sometime inhabited there; as Chap.10. 17. & 48. 19. speaking of them, as of a damsel, Esay 1. 8.

V. 36. Therefore thus saith the Lord, Behold. I will plead thy cause, and take vengeance for thee,] Gods answer to his peoples cry; I will plead thy cause, not by words, but by deeds; by righting the wrongs by her done thee, and executing judgement upon her for thee; as Chap.50.34. So verse 40 Psalm 35.1.& 43. 1 Lam. 3.58. Mic 7. 9. Heb. avenge thy vengeance; that is, the spitefull wrong and cruelty offered unto thee; as Lam. 3. 60. See before, on verse 35.

and I will dry up her sea, and make her springs dry.] Her sea; that is, her great stream of the river Euphrates; so that it shall no more stand her in stead, than as if the springs that fed it were clean dried. See verse 32. sea, for, river, or, lake, Mat 4.13,18. & 8.14. & 17.14. Joh.21. 1, as river, for sea, Jon.2.4. See Esay 21.1. & 44.27.

an astonishment, and an hissing without an inhabitant] As chap. 25 9. and 40. 17. So chap.50. 3,13,39,40. Verse 41. 43, 29.

V. 38. They shall roar together like lions; they shall yell as lions whelps.] These words some of the Jewish Masters understand of the Medes and Persians, like fierce lions, with hideous shouts, and out-cries breaking in upon the Babylonians; as Esay 5. 29 Chap. 2. 15. See verse 14. Other of them, of the Chaldeans, and their out-cries forced from them by extremity of pain and grief, when the enemy should break in upon them: because of such mournfull out-cries the word is found sometime used, Job 3.24. Psal. 22 1. & 32. 3. & 38. 8. But I concur rather with those of our Writers, who understand this passage of the Babylonians roaring and revelling it in their drunken festival, at which their city was surprised. Of which, Herodote, lib. 1. Zenophon, lib 6. before on verse 31. and again on verse 41. and this way the very next words direct us, verse 39. The latter word rendred yel, is no where else in Scripture found in this notion; though some of the Jewish Masters would have it so taken, Zach. 2. 13. the Chaldee rendreth it, they shall lift up their voyce on high; and the Jewish Commenters upon the place tell us, that it signifieth properly the braying of an asse: and is so used among the Talmudists To which some adde, that it is sometime used also with them of camels: that the braying of asses is a very uncouth noyse is well known; nor is a camels like to be any other; but a lions roaring mixt with an asses braying must needs produce a very hideous noyse indeed: such as may very fitly be used to express such confused shouts and clamours, as are wont to be rife among revelling companies over mastered with wine, Howbeit, because the word in Hebrew is used commonly for to shake off; as Esay 33. 9 or, to shake; as Neh. 5. 13. Esay 33. 15. Hence, the ancient Greek rendreth it, they rouze up themselves; and the old Latine, they shake their shaggy hair, as young lions use to do: and as with swaggering folk is not unusual: and some of ours, which our margent exhibiteth, they shake themselves. Our ancienter Versions had it, As young lions when they are angry, so shall they bend themselves; that which seems to look this latter way. But the former seemeth the more probable.

V. 39 In their heat I will make their feasts, and I will make them drunken, that they may rejoyce, and sleep a perpetual sleep, and not wake saith the Lord.] Or, When they are hot I will dispose their drinkings. When they are heated with drinking (as Esay 5 11.) I will temper and tender them such a potion, as shall make them so drunk, as they shall sleep their last, even an everlasting sleep with it: And a learned man observeth, that as to give, is used for to put; so to put is used sometime for to give; as Gen.4. 25. and according to this Interpretation of the term here, it should be rendred, I will give their feasts, or, I will give them feasts: but neither in that place of Moses doth the word necessarily so signifie: and here it seemeth to be somewhat harsh. Our last Version is, I will make their feasts, and so the ancienter ones, I will make them a dinner: the learned Scholiast, I will set on their potions Others of prime note before him, which to me seemeh fittest of any, I will dispose their drinkings, or, their banquettings: for the word may have a notion of drinking in it; and drinking is in banquets deemed a principall matter, whereof both in Hebrew and Greek they have their appellations; yet the word doth generally signify a banquet, though to the wine, therein plentiful, respect be more peculiarly here had. And in this passage there seemeth to be a two-fold reference; first of all to that great magnificent banquet that Baltazar made to his grandees; Dan.5. 1. and to that revelling festivall that at the same day was for divers dayes kept thorowout the whole city, that gave Cyrus his forces the greater opportunity suddenly to surprise it,when the people of all sorts were deep generally in drink, as Herodote, lib.1. and Xenophon, lib.7. See Hay 21. 5. And secondly, to that wine-cup of wrath, that God had threatned to temper to them, and tender to them, so as they should not refuse it, Chap.25.15.16,26.28.

made them drunk] With another manner of wine, than that they feast with and in another manner affecting them, than that is wont to do: such a wine as shall fill them with dread and astonishment: such as shall make them mad indeed, and at their wits end, Chap.2.5.16. See the effects of it in Baltazar, Dan.5.6.

that they may rejoyce] Or, make merry, or, revell it; as Esay 22. 2. for the word signifieth properly a skipping, or leaping; and by such like motions an expression of merriment and jollity, that they may revell it, and sleep their last; for, that while they are revelling it, they may sleep their last. So the Jewish Commenter, that after they have revelled, and drunk themselves drunk with their concubines in the vestells of Gods Temple, they may be cast into such a sleep, as they shall not awake out of it again, Dan. 5. 1.-4, 30. a syntax, not unlike that Rom. 6. 17. God be thanked that ye were the servants of sin, but have yielded obedience, &c. for, that though you were such sometime, yet it is otherwise with you now; ye yielded now obedience to the doctrine of Christ. The Chaldee is supposed to have found here another reading, rendring it, they may not be valorous, but faint, as that word signifieth, Esay 51. 20. Amos 8. 13. and both the ancient Greek and old Latine, that they may be cast into an heavinesse or sleep. But to attempt to alter the text here is neither safe nor needfull.

sleep a perpetuall sleep] Heb. a sleep of perpetuity; as verse 57. the sleep of death, Psal. 13 3. Job 7.21. Esay 26. 19.

and not wake] As after ordinary sleep men are usually wont to do, Psal.3. 5. Chap.31. 26. but continue their sleep, being once surprised with it, untill the heavens be no more, Job 14. 12. untill the last day, when all shall be awaked with the sound of the trumpet that then shall be blown, Joh. 5. 28. 1 Cor. 15. 51,52. The Chaldee rendreth it, and shall not be quickned in the world to come; a spice of that Jewish Conceit, which some of their Doctors are tainted with, that wicked men shall never rise again, abusing to that purpose those passages, Psal. 1.5. Esay 26 14. but the Scripture is herein expressely clear against them, Mat. 13. 39, 41. & 25. 30 31,46. Joh.5. 28 29 Yet true it is, that they shall never rise out of a state of deadly sleep and death again: for they rise to passe from death to death, from the first death to the second death, not to shake off death, but to enter into a further and far deeper degree of it. Rev.20.6. 14. See the same passage again hereafter, verse 57.

V. 40. I will bring them down like lambs to the slaughter, like rams with the he-goates] Or, I will throw them down, or, lay them along, (as Esay 10.13. & 43.14. Ezek.26.20.) like rams. (See Esay 34.6.) to the slaughter, (as ch 11.3 & 48.15. & 50.27.) like Fell-wethers, and great he goats; as Deut. 32.14. Ezek.27. 21. for these two latter terms properly and more peculiarly import,the one the choyce and chief of rams, from their strength so termed:as the other the bigger and larger sort of male-goats See Esay 14 9. chap.50.5.

V. 41. How is Sheshach taken?] Some conceive it spoken in way of lamentation, Others, in way of admiration. Others again of both joyntly; both as bewayling Babylons fall, and withall wondring by what means or power she could in such manner be thrown down. See the like, Chap.50.23. Of the name, Sheshac which Babylon is here stiled, somewhat hath been already hinted, on chap.25.26. The name is taken from an idol in no small request with them, in honour of whom they observed a festivall every year divers dayes together. not unlike to the Greek and Latine Saturnalia, and our wonted Christmas holy dayes,where in every man had liberty to do what he listed, the masters were at their servants command, they had n every house a master of misrule, whom they called Z-ganes; and all that time for some five dayes, which from the name of their idol, whom they thus honoured, were called the Sesacean, or the name being in common speech cut thorter, the Sacean dayes; they abandoned themselves generally night and day (for in such liberty, or licentiousnesse rather, how could it be otherwise?) unto all excesse and extremity of revelling and riot. This is reported by Athenæus in his Supper-Sophisters, or Table-discourses, lib.14. out of Berosus his Babylonian, and Ctesias his Persian stories: as also Dion Chrysostome, in his fourth Oration of Kingly power, mentioneth it. And at the time of this feast, (for the same by all circumstances it seemeth to have been) when the whole city was in this posture of revelling and routing, and the people as well great as small drowned in drink, did Cyrus take his opportunity to seize upon the city as the Authours before-mentioned, both Herodote and Xenophon report: and the Prophet therefore the rather calleth Babylon by that name, as pointing with the finger to that very time, in which that State was to receive its fatall blow. Nor is it unlikely, as that during the time of this festival (according to that Prussian Writers relation) besides their houshold Masters of misrule, they had one, whom they make a publike spectale of, for having made choyce of some notorious malefactor or other condemned to die, they arrayed him as a King, and set him in a chaire of state; allowed him a table royally furnished, officers to wait on him, and concubines to make use of at his pleasure; and thus he passed the time so long as the festival lasted; but that expired, they stript him, whipt him, and hanged him: so that the King, to adde the more grace to that idol-festivity, might over and beside the generall revels, make that solemn invitation of his great ones, and give that royall entertainment unto them at that supper. which he then little thought should be his last, Dan. 5. 1. 30. wherein by Gadatas and Gobrias, two of Cyrus his Commanders, and their followers, he was slain, in revenge of some wrongs formerly done to them and their friends, as Xenophon relateth it. Nor tell it out much otherwise with King Baltazar, than with that mock-King in the close of his royal banquet, and how is the praise of the whole earth surprised?] That city so famous over the whole world: praise, for matter of praise, as Esay 61. 11. & 62. 7. So Chap.49.35 Lam.2.15.

how is Babylon become an astonishment! As Ver. 37. rendred desolation, Chap 50.23.

among the nations?] Over whom the before tyrannized; as Chap 50. 23. where is the same in effect with this here.

V. 42. The sea is come up upon Babylon: she is covered with the multitude of the waves thereof] An answer returned to the former question That it is not to be marvelled, if Babylon be thus surprised and spoyled, when a whole sea of hostile force is broken in upon her, and hath with numberlesse multitudes overwhelmed her. See the like expressions, Esay 8.8. & 59. 19. Ezek. 26. 3. 19. Lam.2.15. See also verse 14.

V. 43. Her cityes are a desolation, a dry land and a wilderness, a land wherein no man dwelleth, neither doth any son of man passe thereby] This some refit ain to Babylon as consisting of two cities, the inner and the outer, divided by the river Ephrates running between them. The most rather unde stand it of the other inferiour cities, called hers, as being the mother-city to them (as also the cities of Judah are called Jerusalems cities, Chap.34.1.) and were to undergo the like with her, Chap.50. 3, 12, 13, 39, 40. as also the whole land was to do verse 29. The like descriptions of desolation see chap.2.6 & 9 12.

V. 44. And I will punish Bel in Babylon,] Heb. I will visit upon (as Chap.40. 18.) Bel. Babylons chief idol: whereof, see on Esay 46. 1. Chap. 50. 2.

and I will bring forth out of his mouth that which he hath swallowed up,] Heb. his swallowing The spoyles of the Babylonians, whereof they had fleeced other people: ascribed to their principal idol Bel, either because they attributed their conquests and successes in war to him, Hab.1.11. as the Phylistines did theirs to their Dagon, Judg 16. 23 and the Ammonites theirs to their Camosh, Judg. 11. 24. or rather because of their booties and spoyles taken by them, rich presents were usually offered unto that idoll. To which purpose Eusebius in his Evangelical preparative, lib. 9. cap. 40,41. relateth out of Abiden, an ancient Greek Writer, that N buchadnezzar adorned and furnished the temple of Belus very plentifully with such spoyls as he gat in war: and the sacred records inform us, that the precious vessels of the Temple of God at Jerusalem were thence carried away by him, 2 Chron. 36. 18. and put into the Temple of this his idol, 2 Chron. 36. 7. Dan. 1. 2. which he that had swallowed down, verse 34. was afterward constrained to cast up again, that they might be restored to their due and proper place, Ezra.1.7. & 5.14. See Joh 20. 15.—15. But of the rich furniture of this Bels Temple at Babylon, see Diodore, l.2.c.9.

and the nations shall not flow together any more unto him;] They shall not flock to Babylon as they had wont to do, when she was in the height of her Imperial estate; nor resort to Bel their idol and to his Temple, with presents as formerly they had done. See the contrary to be practised at Jerusalem, by Gods people, after their return from captivity, Chap.31. 12. and of the nations under the Messias, Esay 2. 2.

yea, the wall of Babylon shall fall] Heb. also the wall of Babel shall fall; on the strength whereof she so much relyed. See chap. 50. 15. and hereafter, verse 53,58.

V. 45. My people, go ye out of the midst of her, and deliver every man his soul from the fierce anger of the Lord.] That is to be poured forth upon Babylon. Of the terms whereof, See Chapter 4. 8. And this some understand of danger by staying in Babylon, till Cyrus his forces come, as advising and admonishing the Jewes that there were, to get away before: but this seemeth not to fit so well with what followeth. Others of prime note, not to stay in Babylon, when liberty was once published,as many might desire to do, being loath to leave a place and that very delightfull, where they had so long lived, and where they might now abide free from their former bondage; and chooling rather now to continue there where they had built and planted, Chap. 29. 5. than to remove to their own land, that had lien long time waste and desolate, and wherein they were to begin as it were a new world again: and this I take to be the genuine intendment and scope of the place: for the wrath of God was not all at once poured forth by Cyrus upon Babylon; as appeareth in that Darius continued in it for some space of time, the royal seat of the Empire, but was afterward to be further inflicted upon on it; and howsoever God should seizure them at Cyrus his hand, albeit they were found there; yet he might justly surprisal of it, albeit they were found there; yet he might justly leave them afterward to endless destruction, if having liberty to depart, they should still desire and deem it better, to abide there among heathen people, than to return to serve God in their own country again. See also the like admonitions of leaving Babylon before, c.50.8 v.6.50 Rev.18.4.

V. 46. And lest your heart faint,] Or, And see that your hearts faint not; or, let not your hearts faint; be not faint-hearted: a desponding speech: the like whereunto, see Gen. 3.22. Exod. 13. 17. Deut.8.12. Esay 36.18. Heb. be sofe, or tender, as Esay 7.4. 2 King. 22. 19. Joh 23 13.

and ye fear the rumour that shall be heard in the land:] The rumour or report of Cyrus his preparation to com: against Babylon: This they are encouraged not to fear, which they might the rather do, because they had by this our Prophet been formerly willed to pray for Babylons prosperity, their own safety and tranquility being wrapped up in its peace, c. 29. 7. but this, saith the Jewish Commenter not amisse, to assure them, that God in his providence meaner not amisse, to assure them, that God in his providence would so dispose of that Cyrus his accesh should be no way prejudicial unto them. For that of a learned Writer, that this should be subjoyned to this foregoing advice, v. 45. to admonish them that yet they should not make to much haste as to get out of Babylon, upon the first report coming of Cyrus his intendment for Babylon, but stay til such time as God should further acquaint them with its seemeth not to suit so well with the rest of the context.

a rumour shall both come one year,] Heb. and after that in another year shall come a rumour,] Or, as some, for as v 20) or, when (as ch. 34.1.) a rumour shall come in one year, (a defect of the numerall, as v.31.) or this year, and a rumour after that in another (supplied, as c.32.20.) or in the next year; that is as soone, in general; there shall come rumours frequently or year after year. But some more distinct report will come one year of Cyrus his preparations for war, and that might take him up no less time than a twelvemonth, for such an expedition, as this against Babylon the headcity of that vast Empire, was in reason required to be. The next year comath the report of his setting forward, and being now on his way toward Babylon; but that year was spent in his march thorow Assyria, where the water passages proved troublesome; and the draining of the river Gyndes, to be revenged on it for the loss of an horse of special note, and much account with him, drown'd in it, took him up much time, as both Herodote and Xenophon report: for in the third year having pierced into Chaldea, he came and sate down before Babylon, and gave not over the siege thereof untill he had surprised it, Nor doth the Jewish master here go far from them, who expounding the place tells us that Belshazzar reigned three years, and in the first year of his reign a report should come to Babylon of Cyrus his intendment against it; and in the second of his reign the fame should be renewed; but in the third year he should come indeed.

and violence in the land] Or, then (so some render it, as chap. 47. 2. that is, in the third year) shall violence be on the land. That which the Jewish Doctors, and most other also expound of the Medes and Persians harassing the land of Chaldea: and a learned Writer would have understood by the word here used, the reward, or recompence that should from God be inflicted upon the Chaldeans for the violence, or wrongs, done to his people, v. 35 (See v. 34.) as the word, saith he, is taken, Psalm 7. 16. But the plain and proper sense of the word, doth well enough here: Though those seem to go further out of the way, who taking the word so, apply it to the Chaldeans perstitance in their oppressions of Gods people, remitting nothing of their rigorous courses towards them but enhancing them rather, as Pharaoh did with them in Egypt, Exod. 5. 6——9. and that this was it against which God here endeavoured to confirm them.

ruler against ruler,] That is, Cyrus against Belshazzar or Baltasar, as in other languages he is commonly termed. But some render the words, ruler upon ruler: expounding it of the frequent change of Rulers in a short compass of time, first, Baltasar, then Darius, then Cyrus: and this way the Jewish Commenter, and a prime Writer of ours seem to go: and because such changes are wont to breed much trouble, that therefore against this in particular God here bindeth his people, assuring them that these shiftings should no wise prejudice their safety: the new Kings successes surely should rather help and favour, than hurt them or hinder their welfare.

V. 47. Therefore behold the dayes come, that I will doe judgement upon the graven images of Babylon,] This Version of the particle agreeth well with those that expound the foregoing words of the Chaldeans perstitance in their oppressions of Gods people. But I suppose it would rather be rendred, Moreover, as chap. 23 7. Heb. the dayes coming, and I will visit upon (as chap 48. 12. verse 44.) the graven images of Babylon; one sort of images put for all, as Chap.50. 38. See the like hereunto, Exod 12. 12. Chap 43. 12, 13.

and her whole land shall be confounded] That whole land, for the inhabitants of the whole land, as Psalm 66. 3. they shall be at their wits end, unable either to act, or to advice ought, Esay 66. 5. the same again hereafter, v 52. shall be confounded, or abashed, which in found also agreeth with the term in the text; or ashamed of their idols that were not able to protect them. See Esay 1. 29. c. 50. 2.

and all her slain shall fall in the midst of her.] O, shall by O: lye fallen in the midst of her; as 1 Samuel 31. 8. Lam. 2. 21. A learned late Writer would have it rendred, all her dancing ones, or dancers, shall fall in the midst of her: 2, Saith he, the word is used, Judges 21. 21, 23. 1 Samuel 3. 6 & 21. 11 Kings 1.40. and is by the Greek in those places so rendred: which would well fit with Hesychores relation, who reporteth in express terms, that the Babylonians were dancing, and in meriment passing the time away, what time their city was surprised But the terms, though rising from the same root, yet are not the same.

V. 48. Then the heaven, and the earth, and all that is therein, shall sing for Babylon:] Heb. And; as v.46. and, over Babylon as Esay 65.25. or, for; as Chap. 47.4. All the creatures in Heaven and earth shall seem to rejoyce at the ruine of Babylon; as cased of the heavy pressures that the whole world had sustained by her tyrannical dominion. See Esay 14.6——8. Chap. 50. 23. verse 23——25. or, as applauding of Gods just judgement, in avenging of the wrongs done his people by her. See Esay 14. 3——5. & 44.23. & 49.13. and the like expressions, Psal.96. 11.——13. and 98. 7——9. Howbeit, they seem somewhat too curious, who by heaven here understand the Angels; by the earth, the Jews and other nations abroad: the outward face of the whole visible world is commonly in Scripture by these terms described, Psal. 69. 34. Esay 1. 2. & 24.8.

for the spoylers shall come unto her from the North, saith the Lord.] Or, When; as Chapter 10. 2. See C. 40. 3. and verse 53,55,56.

V. 49. As Babylon hath caused the slain of Israel to fall: so at Babylon shall fall the slain of all the earth.] Not of the City alone, but of the whole countrey: and there is in the words a reason ren lred of what was before menaced, that Babylons people should be slain, and ly slain in the midst of her, because she had deale so with other people before, with Gods people more specially among the rest. chap.4.27,29. And this Version is backed with the ancient Greek, old Latine and others Texts. As for that, which some other of prime note suggested, both Babylon must fall, O ye slain of Israel, and with Babylon shall fall the slain of all the land, seemeth overstrained, and not to come so freely, without some force, from the Text. Heb. also; and, also, for, As, and so; as somewhat the like, Psalm 49.2. chapter 14.18. & 23.11. and to fall, for to make to fall, saith the learned Scholiast; as Numb. 22. 22. but the vowel points are not there the same.

V. 50. Ye that have escaped the sword, go away, stand not still!] Or, stay not. Heb. stand not; as Gen. 45. 1. Chapter 4. 6. Ye that have escaped the sword of the Chaldeans; as those of the Egyptians, chap. 31.2. Or rather, ye who by Gods gracious provision, and powerful protection abiding in Babylon, at the time of its surprisal, have escaped the sword of the Medes and Persians, make no stay, when you have liberty to be going, once granted to you; let nothing retard you from letting speedily upon return to your own country. See on v. 25.

remember the Lord afar off, and let Jerusalem come into your mind.] Heb. come up upon your heart; as chap.3.16. Think upon God, and the seat of his solemn service, the Temple at Jerusalem; though ye be now in a place of much distance from it, chap. 4.16. Esay 39.3. let the remembrance of him and it, draw your hearts and affections thitherward and incite you to hasten thither, Psalm 102.14.& 137. 1,5,6.50.4,5. A learned Annotator, with some others, maketh this the intendment of it, to shew them, what meditations they should have, when they were upon the way homeward; expressed more fully in the words following, v. 15. which to make good, or therefore the more smoothly, he subjoyneth here a supply of the word, saying. I conceive rather as before, verse 46.

V. 51. We are confounded, because we have heard reproach: shame hath covered our faces.] The complaint and lamentation of Gods people, being put in mind of Jerusalem the wonted seat of Gods service, at the very mention of it, and the remembrance of its present condition; bewailing the reproachful language and carriage of the adversary even against God himself, occasioned by the deportation of his people, and the devastation of his temple: of which kind of intolerable and despiteful language, see Deut. 32. 7, 8. Psal 44. 13 & 115. 2. Esay 10. 10, 11. Ezek. 36. 20. and the like laments in the same terms some of them, see Psal. 31. 11, 13. & 69. 7. & 44. 15, 16. & 89. 50, 51. & 123. 3, 4. & 137. 1——6. As those Instances of note, and that learned Annotator before mentioned, annexed a supply to the latter part of the foregoing verse, to carry on their supposed connexion of it with this. So a learned Scholiast prefixeth another supply in the front of this, to wit, If ye shall say, as if it were spoken by way of preoccupation, as if they should say, How can we remember Jerusalem, when we cannot do it without much shame and confusion to it selfe? should be not unlike that, Psal. 137.4. But this also seemeth needless as well as that, and to strain the context without cause.

for strangers are come into the Sanctuaries of the Lords House] Or, Because (as c. 3.21,25.) have come in upon it (have not only entred Sanctuary, Num. 1.51.) have come in upon it (have come in holily manner into thy Temple, Lament. 1. 10. but have come in hostile manner into thy Temple, Lament. 1. 10. but have come in hostile manner into it; 2 Sam. 4.5. the sea is come in upon Babylon, the spoiler is come upon her,) verse 56. the Sanctuaries of the Lords by se: both the holy place, the body of the Temple, and the Holy of Holies, or the

the most holy place; the Oracle wherein the Ark was seated, on which God, as on his royal throne, or in his chair of estate, was said to sit between the Cherubs, and there was wont to be consulted with Exod. 5. 22. Num. 7. 89. Psal. 80. 1. or, as the Jewish Commenter, upon the house, consisting of those two, as one entire frame; and the courts with the buildings about them, as another: yet both comprehended in the name of Sanctuary, or Temple. (See chap. 36. 6.) and have burnt them down and demolished them, 2 Chr. 36. 19.

V. 51. Wherefore behold, the dayes come, saith the Lord, that I will do judgement upon her graven images,] In consideration of these lamentable complaints of my people, as Psal. 12. 5. or in regard of these insolencies committed against me in the devastation of mine house; I will be avenged both on the Chaldeans themselves, and on their idols, (together with their Temples too; as Chap. 43. 12, 13.) which shall not be able to save either themselves, or their servers. See the same before, verse 47.

and thorow all her land the wounded shall groan.] Their idols being not able either to deliver, or to relieve their people that depend upon them, to preserve them from wounds, or to relieve them of their pains, and much lesse to save their lives, See v. 49.

V. 53. though Babylon should mount up to heaven,] Though her walls were as high as heaven; as they speak, Gen. 11. 4. Deut. 1. 28. and they are reported to have been of a stupendious height, two hundred foot, saith Pliny, lib. 6. cap. 26. cubits, and those royall ones, an hands breadth longer than the ordinary, saith Herodote, lib. 1. though Strabo, lib. 16. and Diodore, lib. 2. say, fifty cubits onely between the towers, and at the towers threescore. See the like expressions, Obad. 4.

and though she should fortifie the height of her strength] Though she raise her Fortifications as high as heaven: So some, following the old Latine, that rendreth it, Though she establish in the holy place her power; that is, set it, or settle aloft in heaven, in Scripture so frequently termed, Efay 24. 18. & 32. 15. Chap. 25. 30. Lam. 1. 3. but the word is here in a contracted form, resting in regiment upon the next. The meaning therefore seemeth rather, Though she make their strength equall with, and proportionable to, their height.

Yet from me shall spoylers come unto her, saith the Lord] Yet for all her height and strength shall those come unto her, that coming with commission from me, shall not fail to plunder her, verse 48. No height or strength can secure against God, or those that come furnished with power from him. So again, Ver. 55, 56. a defect of the discretive, as Chap. 25. 8, 10.

V. 54. A sound of a cry cometh from Babylon,] A loud out-cry; as Efay 65. 19. Chap. 48. 3. the speech is abrupt, the verb wanting, as Efay 66. 6.

and great destruction from the land of the Chaldeans.] Or, and of great destruction. Heb. breach, or, breaking; as Chap. 50. 22. See Chap. 6. 1. & 48. 3.

V. 55. Because the Lord hath spoyled Babylon,] Or, For (as verse 5. 27.) the Lord will spoyle Babylon, by them that shall come with commission from him, Verse 53. Heb. is spoyling; about to do it, as Chap. 25. 36.

and destroyed out of her the great voyce,] Thus the most, both Jewish and others, understanding the place, some of that strepe rous noyse, that is wont to be in places where great concourse of people is, Efay 13. 4. and such was no doubt in Babylon, being so populous, and having such resort unto it out of all parts, V. 44. Others, of those confused clamours, that their roarers and revellers made at their drunken meetings, Verse 38, 39. See Efay 22. 5. which God, whither way we take it, would now still and lay, by bringing those in upon them, that should either make them change their note, or silence their multitude. See Efay 16. 9, 10. & 22. 1, 2. & 25. 5. Chap. 48. 45. But some Interpreters of note conceive it no be spoken of the enemies breaking in with shouts and clamour upon them, rendring the words, and he will destroy her strength (supplyed from verse 53.) out of her with a great noise: the particle defigning the manner of doing ought, omitted; as of it is, Efay 34. 2. Chap. 23. 28. and the words following seem to carry it this way. See Efay 16. 9. with Chap. 48. 32, 33. Amos 1. 14.

when her waves do roar like great waters, a noyse of their great voyce is uttered. Heb. and (which some render, for, as Verse 20.) their waves shall roar like great waters, or, like many waters? the noyse, or, shout of their voyce shall be given out, or, when the shout of their voyce (that is, their loud shoutings) are given out: the particle of time wanting; as Chap. 8. 18. Efay 17. 6. & 16. 10. & 42. 11. 17. the waves of that sea, which shall break in upon her, verse 51. shall make an hideous noyse, such as the waves of the sea are wont to make, when they beat upon the rocks, or rush in with violence upon the land, having either broken thorow, or got over the sea banks. See the like expressions, Efay 5. 30. & 17. 12, 13. See the term of giving out a voyce, Chap. 2. 15. & 10. 13.

V. 56. Because the spoyler is come upon her, even upon Babylon,] Or, For (as verse 55.) the spoyler (as v. 53.) is come upon her (as v. 42. 51.) upon Babylon: a redundancy, but such as makes the sentence the more vigorous; as Efay 8. 13. & 48. 6. Prov. 5. 21. Hab. 1. 11.

and her mighty men are taken] Unawares, when they little dreamed of any danger. See verse 39. 40.

every one of their bowes is broken,] Heb. their bows is broken: a distributive form; as Efay 26. 19. Joel 1. 14. their strength is utterly spent and gone; as chap. 49. 35.

for the Lord God of recompences shall surely requite,] As, the Lord of vengeances, Psal. 94. 1. Heb. rendring render, or, requiting requite; as Exod. 21. 36. & 22. 2. See verse 6. 24. Efay 59. 18.

V. 57. And I will make drunk her Princes, and her wise men, her captains, and her rulers, and her mighty men, and they shall sleep a perpetual sleep, and not wake,] I will make them all drunk with the wine of my wrath, Chap. 25. 26. Yet withall alluding to that drunken feast, at which they were to their utter destruction surprized and slain. See verse 39. and of the terms here used there: the enumeration of several sorts, of those of principal note especially, maketh the sentence more emphatical; as Efay 3. 2, 3. So Chap. 50. 35 —— 37. Verse 21 —— 23.

saith the King, whose name is the Lord of Hosts.] As ch. 48. 15.

V. 58. Thus saith the Lord of Hosts, the broad walls of Babylon] Or, the walls of broad Babylon: Of the amplitude of the city, see on verse 31. Strabo lib. 16. saith the compasse of it within the walls was three hundred fourscore and five furlongs: and Diodore, lib. 2. with some abatement, three hundred threescore and five; just so many as dayes in the year: but Herodote, lib. 1. saith, four hundred and fourscore furlongs: with whom, Pliny agreeing, lib. 6. cap. 26 saith, threescore mile. And for the walls of it, it is reported by Herodote, that they were fifty large cubits broad: though Pliny transcribing him, instead of cubits saith feet. So broad they were, as Strabo and Diodore agree, that two charets drawn with four horses on breast, might easily meet on them, and leave space enough on either side vacant. Of the height of them, see before on verse 5. .

shall be utterly broken:] Or, made naked, Heb. shall in breaking down be broken down; or shall in making bare be made bare; for the word is ambiguous: the root at least whence it springeth, The Jewish Masters say it is taken in a notion of demolition, or breaking down, Efay 23 13. where our Version hath, raised it up, but they, ruined it; and so say they here. But the ordinary use of the word is frequent in a notion of stripping or making bare, Efay 32. 11. Lam. 4. 21. Habb 3 9. Zeph 2 14 (See Chap. 17. 6. on the word, heath) and in this notion both taken, as by divers Interpreters of the best note it is, it will in effect come fully home to the former: for the wall is said to be laid bare in a figurative form of speech; not so much when it is destitute of defendants, but when it is razed and her foundations are laid bare, and the ground made level on which it before stood. So Psal. 137. 7. a place parallel to this, make it bare, make it bare to the foundation: well rendred, raze it: for when the walls are razed, both the ground it stood on is made bare, and the town it environed is laid naked. As thick therefore and as strong as her walls were, yet God threateneth and foretelleth that they should be razed: and Berosus reporteth that Cyrus took order for the demolishing of them. Yet were they not then wholly razed but then in part ruined, and utterly afterward. See on Chap 50. 15. it is thrice repeated to give the stronger assurance of it, because it would be deemed a matter incredible. See verse 44.

and her gates shall be burnt with fire:] An usual form in describing the devastation of a city, Neh. 1. 3. & 2. 3, 13, 17. Chap. 17. 27. Lam. 1. 4. 8. 19 Ezek. 16. 2. The gates of Babylon were built with stately and lofty arches, proportionable to the walls, as Diodore reporteth: an hundred there were of them, as Herodote saith, with their posts and hinges all of brasse, and the people shall labour in vain, and the folk in the fire, and they shall be weary.] Or, thus, (as verse 4.) shall the people take pains for vanity, and the folk, untill they tire themselves for the fire; that is, as some of the Jewish Commenters, people shall use their utmost endeavours to save Babylon from destruction; but all in vain, and to no purpose, verse 9. for withfire and sword shall the be consumed, and all those together with her that do aid and assist her, v. 4. 47. Or, as other of them rather, It shall then appear, that all the paines that people have taken, wearying and tyring out themselves, about the building of Babylon, have been but labour in vain, and produced nothing but fewell, matter onely to feed the fire, Verse 25. for are some faid to breed children for the sword, Job 27. 14. and Ephraim, for the murtherer, Hos. 9. 13. See the same expressions, Habb. 2. 13. A learned Annotator supposeth a trajection in the text, and would have it thus rendred, The labours of the people and folk that have been wearied (with building thy walls) shall come to nothing by the fire. But this both disturbeth and disjoyneth the text over-much.

V. 59. The word which Jeremiah the Prophet commanded Seraiah the son of Neriah, the son of Maseiath;] To this prolix Prophecy against Babylon is subjoyned a course taken by Jeremy at Gods appointment, for the copying of it out, and conveying of a copy of it unto Babylon, Verse 59, 60. there to be read unto the Jewish Captives abyding there. Verse 61. and after solemn protestation made of Gods purpose to put in execution the matters therein menaced, Verse 62. to be sunk in the river Euphrates, Verse 63. as a sign and seal of Babylons irrecoverable downfall, Verse 64.

The word,] Or, thing, or, matter; as Exod. 16. 16.

Jeremiah commanded,] Gave in charge from God,

Seraiah] Of this Seraiah we read nothing elsewhere: but of

when he went with Zedekiah King of Judah into Babylon in the fourth year of his reign;] So, out of their Annals one of the Jewish Commenters telleth us, that Zedekiah went to Babylon, and this Seraiah in company with him, and returned thence shortly after to his Kingdome again: but others rather render the text, when he went for, or, on the behalf of Zedekiah. So one of the Rabbines; or, as others, from Zedekiah: and so the ancient Greek, and the Chaldee: and so the particle is used, Gen. 4. 1. & 44. 4. & 49. 26. Exod. 9. 29. sent in embassage by him to the King of Babylon to treat with him about affairs of state. Hence it appeareth that this prophecy against Babel was penned seven year before the subversion of the Jewish estate. See c. 39. 3.

and this Seraiah was a quiet Prince.] Or now (as chap. 37. 4.) this Seraiah was (as the Hebrew hath it) Prince of Menuchah: which some take to be the proper name of a place, whereof this man had the rule and charge: as some also suppose it to be, Judges 20. 43. but this is of a place in Judah, whence the Menuchothes, 1 Chron. 2. 52. Others, whom our Translators follow, make it an attribute intimating the mans disposition. a Prince of rest, one that lived peaceably and quietly, as Salomon is called a man of rest, 1 Chron. 22. 9. or one that laboured to make peace, and mediated for reconcilement between Zedekiah his master, and the Chaldean Monarch. Others again would have it to be the name of an office; and of these, some, the Kings familiar favourite, with whom he used to recreate himself, when he had times of leisure and liberty of rest from other more serious affairs. Some, the Lord Chamberlain, he that had the charge of the Kings resting place, or bed-chamber. Others, that he was Lord chiefe Justice of peace: one that by such forces as he had the charge of, was to see the publike peace kept and maintained, and to procure rest unto the State. The Chaldee deriving it from another root, expresseth it by a terme used of him Efay 18. 7. answering to the Hebrew minchath, that signifieth a present, and rendreth it, the master of gifts, or presents, and so the ancient Greeke also: that which some understand of presents brought to the King, who were by such an officer to have accesse. Others, of gifts, or donatives, bestowed by the King, either on the Souldiery or communalty, which this man was by vertue of his office to dispose of. The old Latine rendreth it, the Prince of Prophecy: which Popish Writers to little purpose strain their wits to make somewhat of. Amids this variety and uncertainty, the two first seem most probable; and of the twain, that to me seemeth the more, that our Versions generally pitch upon, being backed with an instance of the same stamp, and seemeth to have been here specified, to intimate that this Seraiah was none of those factious and turbulent Courtiers, that opposed Gods Prophets, and disturbed them in the execution of their ministery, and one therefore not unfit for such an employment as this.

V. 60. So Jeremiah wrote in a booke all the end that should come upon Babylon: even all these words that are written against Babylon:] Or, as some render it, After that he had written in a Book, Heb. And but so is the copulative sometime used; as Exod. 14. 21. & 16. 20. Leviticus 9. 22. and the Noun for the Pronoun, as again, Verse 61. and in one booke, for in a booke; as in one pot, for in a pot, Exodus, 16. 33. and words, for things; as Deuteronomy 30. 1. and el, again in the first place, for al upon; as Chapter 50. 35, 36. and el the second time, for al, either concerning, or against; as Chapter 50. 14.

V. 61. And Jeremiah said to Seraiah. When thou comest to Babylon, and shalt see, and shalt read all these words,] Or, as some render it, and shalt have seen, or, beheld the City (as his Disciples did the Temple, Matth. 24. 1, 2. and Christ himself Jerusalem, Luke 19. 41.) then shalt thou read all these words, or thou shalt then looke upon this book, or roll, and shalt read all these words or things; as v. 6. out of it; as Neh. 8. 1, 3, and, for then; as chapter 47. 1. and words for things: as v. 60. Howbeit, it is not likely that Seraiah should read this in some publick place where the Chaldeans should hear it: for, nor is that probable that Jeremy durst adventure, that he was to reade it onely privately in some closet apart by himself: for why that there, rather then before he set out, or when he was on his way thither: but that he was to reade it unto his countrey men, the Jewes, who had together with Jeconiah about four years before been carried captive thither, 2 Kings, 24. 12, 14. in some private house, whither, as to an Embassador coming from Zedekiah, that held from the King of Babylon, 2 Kings 24. 17. they might have free accesse.

V. 62. Then shalt thou say,] Or, And shalt say: if we follow the latter version before-mentioned, v. 61.

O Lord, thou hast spoken against this place to cut it off, that none shall remaine in it, neither man nor beast, but that it shall be desolate for ever.] In the Hebrew Text el, again, for, al, concerning, or against; as verse 60. and from man even unto beast; as Chapter 50. 3. and desolations of perpetuity; as verse 26. Chapter 48. 34.

V. 63. And it shall be when thou hast made an end of reading this booke, that thou shalt binde a stone to it, and cast it into the middest of Euphrates.] On the banks whereof Babylon was situate: into the midst of it, for into it; as out of the midst of it, for out of it, verse 6. In like manner is a mill-stone said to be cast into the Sea, to represent the irrecoverable downfall of the spiritual Babylon, Revelation 18. 11.

V. 64. And thou shalt say, Thus shall Babylon sinke and not rise from the evil that I will bring upon her:] See Efay 26. 14. ch. 50. 39. 40. v. 26. 39.

and they shall be weary.] That is, saith the Jewish Doctor, they shall not be able to hold out against Cyrus: Or, as others rather render it, though they weary themselves; as Efay 40. 30. verse 58. the copulative in a directive notion; as Efay 10. 5. & 49. 5. Though they take never so much pains, even till they tire out themselves, in endeavouring and striving to raise and restore her again: as of Edom, Mal. 1. 4. Those that render it; and they shall flee away, as Job 20. 8. Psal 90. 10. misstake the root.

Thus far are the words of Jeremiah.] That is, as some, thus far concerning Babylon, as before; Thus far concerning Moab, chapter 48. 47. Or as others rather, Thus far of the Prophets own writing, For the Chapter following seemeth to have been afterward added unto this book of his Prophesies by some other holy man of God, (as the last Chapter to the Writings of Moses) for the further illustration, and fuller confirmation of some things therein contained. For that which one of the Jewish Masters would have to be the meaning of it, that after he had finished this Prophecy against Babylon, he prophecied not, is apparently controlled by the inscriptions of some other of the Prophecies in this volume recorded, that are of later date than this. See chapter 32. 1. & 33. 1. & 34. 1. & 37. 5, 6. & 42. 7. & 43. 8. & 44. 1.

CHAP. LII.

Verse 1. ZEdekiah was one and twenty year old when he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem, and his mothers name was Hamutal the daughter of Jeremiah of Libnah.] This chapter is supposed to have been written by some of those that lived in captivity at Babylon. The principal matter of it is concerning Zedekiahs wicked reign, v. 1 —— 3. the siege and facking of Jerusalem, v. 4 —— 23. the slaughter of some chief ones, v. 10. 24. —— 27 the deportation of the rest, v. 28 —— 30. and the enlargement of Jehojacin, verse 31 —— 34. the most of it is related, 2 Kings 24. and 25. 2 Chronicles 36. 11 —— 18. Heb. reigned; for began to reign; as 2 Kings 21. 1. & 22. 1. See 2 Kings 24. 18.

V. 2. And he did that which was evil in the eyes of the Lord,] That is, displeasing to him; as 2 Sam. 11. 28. See 2 Kings 24. 19. 2 Chr. 36. 12.

according to all that Jehojakim had done.] Of whom see 2 Kings 23. 37.

V. 3. For through the anger of the Lord it came to passe in Jerusalem and Judah, untill he had cast them out from his presence, that Zedekiah the King rebelled against the King of Babylon.] According to this Version, God punished his fore-going evil carriages, verse 2. by giving him up to his own perverse will, and permitting him to perfist in a rebellious course against him, who had made him King, and unto whom he had sworn loyalty, to the ruine of himself, and the whole State together with him. The like whereunto, see Psal. 81. 11, 12. Rom. 1. 21, 24, 26, 28. Howbeit, I conceive the words may be thus rendred. Tea, unto the anger of the Lord it was against Jerusalem and Judah —— that Zedekiah rebelled against the King of Babylon. Tea, for the particle is used in way of exaggeration, Efay 32. 13. Chap. 14. 6. 18. unto the anger of the Lord; as add iniquity unto their iniquity, Psal. 69. 27. where the same particle is used, it was; it is accrewed, it was added further thereunto; as 1 King. 13. 34. compared with Chap. 12. 30. against Jerusalem and Judah, as Psal. 78. 21. and 106. 40. Efay 5. 25. that (Heb. and; as c. 48. 12. and 49. 2.) Zedekiah rebelled against the King of Babylon; That which God taketh so hainously, as being such a transgression, as should both surely and most severely be avenged, in regard of his oath therein falsified, and Gods name thereby scandalized. See how eagerly God insisteth upon is, with oath upon oath, to punish him for the breach of his oath, Ezek. 17. 13, 14, 15, 16, 18, 19. in the story, 2 King. 24. 20. 2 Chr. 36. 13.

cast them out from his presence;] Heb. face; as Psal. 139. 7. out of that land, wherein they had formerly enjoyed the special prefence of God in his house, word, and worship, Psal. 42. 2. and 84. 7. So 2 King. 23. 27.

V. 4. And it came to passe in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth moneth, in the tenth day of the moneth, that Nebuchadrezzar King of Babylon came, he and all his army, against Jerusalem, and pitched against it, and built forts against it round about.] See 2 King. 25. 1. Chap. 39. 1. Hence arose the fast of the tenth moneth; observed during the time of the captivity, Zach. 8. 19. because in it the siege of the city began.

V. 5. So the city was besieged unto the eleventh year of King Zedekiah.] Heb. And; as Chap. 37. 21. the siege continued an year and an half. See verse 7. and the same with this, 2 King. 25. 2.

V. 6. And in the fourth moneth, the ninth day of the moneth, the famine was sore in the city.] This occasioned the fourth moneths fast, Zach. 8. 19. Because in that moneth the city was surprised and facked.

so that there was no bread for the people of the land.] Heb. and; as Chap.50.3. See 1 Kings. 25. 3. Chap. 38. 9. none for the common sort of people; as Chap.26.8.3. whatsoever remainder of store some great ones might have.

V. 7. Then the city was broken up,] Heb. And; as Chap.47.2. It was taken by storming some of the gates being broken open, and the walls battered, or scaled. See 2 King.25.4. Chap.39.2.3.

and all the men of war fled, and went forth out of the city by night, by the way of the gate between the two walls, which was by the Kings garden, (now the Chaldeans were by the city round about) and they went by the way of the plain.] See on Chap.39.4. 2 King.25.4.

which was by the Kings garden] Or, which were: to wit, walls.

V. 8. But the army of the Chaldeans pursued after the King, and overtook Zedekiah in the plains of Jericho, and all his army was scattered from him.] Heb. And; as Chap.50.24. 2 King.25.5. Chap. 39. 5.

V. 9. Then they took the King, and carried him up unto the King of Babylon to Riblah in the land of Hamath: where he gave judgement upon him.] Or brought him unto him: as Chap.39.5. See on Chap. 5 1.27. Heb. And; as verf. 7. and, spake with him judgements; as Chap.4.12. and 39 5. 2 King.25 6

V. 10. And the King of Babylon slew the sons of Zedekiah before his eyes:] Caused them to be slain, as 1 King.19.17. and so hereafter, and verf.11. See 2 King.25 7. Chap.39.6.

he slew also all the princes of Judah in Riblah.] See Chap. 39 6.

V 11. Then he put out the eyes of Zedekiah,] Heb. And (as verse 9.) he blinded the eyes of Zedekiah; as Chap. 39. 7. 2 King. 25. 7.

and the King of Babylon bound him in chains and carried him to Babylon.] Or, fetters of brasse; as Lam 3.7. So 2 King. 25. 7. See Chap 39 7.

and put him in prison,] Heb. gave him (as 2 Chr.16 10. into the house of the wards or custodies; as a prison is also termed by a word of the like notion, Genes.42.7. Mat. 14.3. and this seemeth rather the proper notion of the term, as Chap.37.13. Ezek.44.11. than, as a learned Annotator would have it, the house of inquisitions.

till the day of his death.] A defective form; put in the prison till the day of his death, for, put him in, and kept him there till he died: as bruise it upon the boil, for, bruise it, and lay it upon the boil, Esay 38.21. See more the like there. See this before menaced to Zedekiah, Chap.32.5. Ezek.17.16.

V. 12. Now in the fifth moneth] Heb. And; as Chap.30.4. Hence the fast of the fifth moneth, Zach 7.3. and 8. 19. for the burning of the Temple.

in the tenth day of the moneth] It is faid, 2 King.25 8. on the seventh day. The one of the two faith a learned Annotator, doubtlesse erroneous: but of that there is no necessity. The one may point to the day of the Captains arrival at Jerusalem: the other to the day wherein he set fire on the Temple: which also though it were fired on the seventh day, yet might not be burnt down before the tenth. Either, rather, than what another suggesteth, that he might set forth from Riblah upon the seventh day, and arrive at Jerusalem upon the tenth. But how soever, that learned Annotator is doubtlesse himself in an errour when he saith that Joseph the Jew assigneth it the ninth: for he in his Antiquities, lib. 10. cap. 11. saith expressly it was in the new moon; and that is neither seventh, nor tenth, nor ninth, but the first.

(which was the nineteenth year of Nebuchadrezzar King of Babylon] See Chap. 25. 1. and 32. 1. So 2 King. 25 8.

came Nebuzaradan Captain of the guard[s] Or, Provost-Marshall: so ver. 14, &c. See of the term, on Chap. 39. verf. 9.

which stood before the King of Babylon into Jerusalem.] Heb. stood before him; as 1 King. 10 8. and 17. 1. Prov. 22. 29. It is said simply a servant, 2 King. 25 8. which theweth the relative here omitted, as chap. 50. 5. to have reference to the Captain, not to the guard, which in the Hebrew is not ambiguous.

V. 13. And burnt the house of the Lord, and the Kings house, and all the houses of Jerusalem, and all the houses of the great men burnt he with fire.] He burnt all the houses of Jerusalem one and other, to what end is mention made of the great ones houses after apart? But the words would be rendred, all the houses of Jerusalem, even every house of any great one (Heb. house of great; that is, noble, or rich; as Gen. 24. 35. and 26. 13.) chap. 22 1. he burnt. So that the copulative here is not in a notion of distinction, but of restriction rather, and further explication; as if it had been faid, when I fay, he burnt all the houses of Jerusalem, my meaning is not, that he burnt all the forty dwellings of the meaner sort; for of those he spared some for such as should be left to husband the land thereabout; at least, regarded not so much the demolishing of them, being no grace, or ornament, much lesse strength to the Cities but that he burnt down all the great mens stately buildings, together with the Kings Palace, and Gods Temple, all the strong and gracefull edifices, that were in any part of the citie; though it is not unlikely but that many others of lesse note standing near them were burnt down together with them. See the like use of the particle again, verf. 15. and such additional restrictions, Pf. 73. 1. and 145. 18. For those great Masters seem to shoot wide here, who would have by this term intended, either their Chappels, or their Schools, because God was by praise and prayer magnified in the one, and the Law by the Lectures of their Doctors in the other.

V. 14. And all the army of the Chaldeans that were with the Captain of the guard brake down all the walls of Jerusalem round about.] They dismantled the citie that it might not be a place of strength to receive any that might rise again. So 2 King. 25.10. Neh. 1. 3. Ezr. 4.12,13. 5.16. Lam. 2.18.

V. 15. Then Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard carried away captive certain of the poor of the people, and the residue of the people that remained in the citie, and those that fell away, that fell to the King of Babylon, and the rest of the multitude.] Heb. And, as ver. 9. 11. So 2 King. 25.11. See Chap 39 9. and 51.34.

of the poor of the people, and the residue] Or, even the residue; not of the people of the whole land in general; but of those that were found in the city; a. before, ver. 13.

the rest of the multitude] the word rendred multitude is in the story of the Kings hamon; here amon: as Chap.46.25.

V. 16. But Nebuzaradan the Captain of the guard left certain of the poor of the land for vine-dresses, and for husbandmen.] Heb. And, as verf. 8. See 2 King. 25.12. Chap.39 10.

V. 17. Also] Or, Moreover, as Chap 39.7. Heb. And. See 2 King. 25. 13.

the Chaldeans brake, and carried all the brasse of them to Babylon.] They brake them for the more ease and convenient carriage of them; as the Chaldean idols were dealt with by the Medes and Persians, Chap.50.2. Esay 46.1.2.

V. 18. The Caldrons also,] Heb. And. as Chap. 39. 6. but also doth well here; and better than before, verf. 17. of such caldrons, see Exod. 7.3 it is rendred pots, 2 King. 25.14.

and the shovels] instruments they were wherewith to remove the ashes from the altar of burnt-offerings, Exod. 27 3 for they were of brasse, 1 King 7.45. and they have this name from a term that signifies to remove, and do away, Esay 28. 17. in regard whereof some render it besoms, or brooms; but that not likely: they would never be at the trouble to carry besoms to Babylon. The ancient Greek and old Latine render it here fleshhookes; but without ground.

and the snuffers,] The ancient Greek retaineth the Hebrew term; though mis-placed: the old Latine rendereth it Psalteries; and the Jewish Masters some of them make it some instrument of musick and the word indeed cometh from a root that is of various conception, and signifieth very frequently to make musick by playing on some instrument: and for such musical instruments, is a word very near to this frequently used. But what should such instruments do here, among brasen caldrons and shovels? The word is indeed rendred snuffers: as here, 1 King. 7. 50. 2 King. 12. 13. 2 Chro. 4. 22. and being so taken, it may come from another acception of the same root, whereby it signifies properly to prune, and by pruning, to trim trees and plants, and consequently by a metaphorical use of its lampt whence the snuffers might have their names: for that they pare off the superfluous part of the wicke, as pruning hookes (from hence in Hebrew so termed, Esay 2.4.) do the superfluities of plants: but those snuffers belonging to the lamps were of gold; as by the places above pointed to appeareth: whereas these were of brasse, and are reckoned among those implements that belonged to the brasen altar; and I conceive therefore it should rather be rendred tongs; though by another name also so termed from a root that signifieth to take; because by them men are wont to take up quick-coals, and the like, from the fire on the hearth, or in the chimney, Esay 6. 6. and yet is the same word used also for snuffers; so termed, because they lay hold on the wicke, and take it by the end to raise it up: and it is so rendred in our Version among the implements which belong to the lamps, Exod. 37 23. nor see I on what ground the same Interpreters turn them elsewhere into tongs, Exod. 25.38. and Num. 4.9. whereas the very word next ensuing, in all the three places to wit, snuffdishes. doth evidently shew the word before it, to intend no other than snuffers: (and indeed what use is there of tongs about lamps?) the very self-same thing being spoken of in all those places. Howbeit, in Solomons Temple, it seemeth, that there were instruments of two sorts, that were used about the lamps, the one to raise up the wicke, called by this latter term, and another to snip it off, designed by the former: for both the terms are found distinctly mentioned, 1 King 7.49,50. 2 Chron. 4. 21, 22. though but one of them in Moses: and tongs seemeth no fit term for either. But as the word that signifieth tongs properly, is used also for snuffers, in regard of some general notion designed in that term, common to either; so the word that most usually signifieth snuffers, seemeth both here, and 2 King. 25. 16. used for tongs, in regard of that some-common use there is of them to trimme lights with the one, and fire with the other. A learned scholiast would have it to signifie fleshhookes; so termed, saith he, because they cut the meat: but fleshhookes; so termed, saith he, because they cut the meat: but the office of such instruments is not to cut or mince meat, but to take it up onely: So that neither observation nor notation, balketh this his interpretation; wherein I suppose he walketh alone.

and the bowles,] So is the word rendred, Numbers 7. 13. and oft in that Chapter: or basons, as it is rendred 2 Kings 12. 13. Neh. 7.70. The word is used sometime for a bowl to drink in; as Amos 6.6 and such in likelyhood were those that were in the Temple and Tabernacle, for the receiving of the wine or drink-offering, and pouring it out upon the sacrifice: sometime for a bason: such as were those that were used to receive the blood of the sacrifices so called, lay the Jewish Criticks; because out of them the blood of the beast sacrificed was sprinkled, part of it upon the Altar, the residue being poured down at the foot of it. Now these, whether bowls or basons, (for the word comprehendeth both) were some of them of brasse, as those that Hiram cast for Solomon, 1 Kings 7.45. and those that Moses made for the brasen Altar, Exodus 38 3. Numbers 4. 14. some of silver, as those that the twelve Princes gave, Numbers 7. 13, 85. some of gold, belonging to the Altar of Incense, 1 Kings 7. 50. 1 Chronicles 28. 17. those of Brasse are here spoken of; the other, verse 19. See there.

and the spoons,] Or, ladels, or cups, or dishes; for they were some of them to put Incense in: and are so called, because they were hollow, resembling the palm, or hollow of the hand. These seem to have been brasen ladels, used about the Caldrons before-mentioned, belonging to the service of those sacrifices, whereof part used to be boyled: and of this form to conceive those to have been distinguished from the Vessels of gold and silver, 2 Chron. 24. 14. Other there, though rendred spoons in our Versions yet indeed cups, or dishes rather, in which the incense was placed on the shewbread Num. 4. 7 & 7. 14, 86. and those were of gold, as all implements belonging to that Table, Exodus 25. 29. & 37. 16. 1 King. 7. 50. 2 Chr. 4. 22.

and all the vessels of brasse,] That is, the rest of them; as Chapter 43.2,14.

wherewith they ministered, took they away.] That is, wherewith Service had vent to be performed: for the verb is indefinite: as chap. 51.26.

V. 19. And the basons,] This is omitted 2 Kings 24. 15. The word is used sometime for a bason, or a piece, as we term it: so where the blood of the Paschal lamb is said to be received in such, the service of God in the Temple, appeareth, 1 King. 7. 50. 2 King. 12. 13.

and the fire-pans] Or censers; as the word is rendred, Numbers 16.17,37,38. These were some of them of brass, belonging to the brasen Altar, Exodus 27.30. & 38.3. Numb. 16. 39. But one such at least belonging to the golden Altar, of gold, Lev. 16. 12. compared with Heb. 9. 4. & Rev. 8. 3, 5. and others, so termed, not so much from the use, as from the fashion of them, belonging to the lamps, rendred commonly snuff-dishes; because they stood by the lamps, with sand in them, therein to bury the snuff, so oft as occasion was to snuff them. Of these, see Exod. 25.38. & 37.23. 1 King. 7. 50. 2 Chr 4. 22.

and the bowles,] Such of them, as were of silver, or gold. See on Verse 18. There were of these an hundred golden ones made by Solomon for the service of the Temple, 2 Chronicles 5. 8.

and the caldrons,] Or pots: this is not mentioned, 2 Kings 25. 15. but in the verse onely before-going; and whether any such silver pots or pipes might be used in the Temple, some doubt may be made; though we read of some golden fleshhookes, 1 Chr. 28. 17. which yet one of the Jewish Doctors supposeth to denote there some other implement that did belong to the table, and would have to be the same with the last here mentioned. But the Scribe having the same with the last here mentioned. But the Scribe having be the same with the last here mentioned. But the Scribe having the former verse in his eye, when he was writing, might put that the former verse in his eye, when he was writing, might put that again here that he had there. See the like acknowledged superfluous insertion, c. 51.3.

and the candlesticks] Whereof, being ten in number, see 1 King. 7.49. 2 Chr. 4. 7.

and the spoons] Or dishes, or incense-cups. See on v. 18.

and the cups] So the ancient Greek and old Latine render it. That by the term some implement is designed appertaining to the Table of Shew-bread, is apparent from Exodus 25. 29. and Numbers 4.7. And whereas there are two terms there joyned together, this and another, the Jewish Masters some of them tell us, if we may believe them, that thereby are designed certain golden pipes, or half-pipes rather, like to cleft reeds, or canes, and props or shores made somewhat after the manner of a fork: and whereas the loaves or cakes of shew-bread were to be set on two rowes, six in either row one upon another, these half-pipes were to be laid three of them between every other cake, to make free passage for Air between them. and so to keep the bread from moulding; and that those forked props or shores were to keep up these half pipes, and enable them the better to bear up the weight of the bread: and that hence the term here used hath its name; because these pipes or halfe pipes kept the bread pure and free from growing mouldy. But some of them of no small note herein differ from their fellows, nor is there among those of them, that go this way, an entire agreement: for some of them would have this here mentioned the pipes, and that other the props: others of them would have that to be the props, and this the pipes: and some of ours, because the root it cometh from hath a notion of making or keeping pure, or clean, conceive thereby to be meant besoms, and so render it: but of that somewhat was said upon occasion of another term on Verse 18. and of silver and golden besoms, I remember not to have read. By these places of Moses pointed to, and compared together it appeareth, that the use of them both was one and the same, to wit, to cover the Table, (so the words are expresly in both places) that is, the things set upon the Table, to wit, the bread, and the incense, which stood both upon the Table in two Chargers the one; in two lesser dishes the other: which how those pipes or props may be said to doe, is beyond my shallow capacity. But these were then both in nature of covers, if Moses may be believed: and it may be (as to me seemeth) not improbably conjectured, that the one was of a larger size or bredth, flat-bottomed, not unlike to our Plate-trenchers; that it might both cover the uppermost loaf, or cake, (which was in likely-hood of some good bredth, containing, as each of the rest, two ten parts of an Ephe, Leviticus 24. 5. of which measure, see on Esay 5. 10. that is, two Omers, Exodus 16. 16.) and have the incense-cup, or dish, also set on it: the other of lesse compasse to cover the incense, which in a Cup or Dish, stood on the uppermost loaf or cake of either row, Leviticus 24.6. both for use at least, if not for fashion; not unlike to such sort of covers, as we have oft for greater glasses and standing cups; the one, the other to those Brasen-plates made of those mutinous ones, censers, to cover the Altar. Numbers, 16. 38, 39. nor is this use of them unsuitable to the terme given the one of them, that is here mentioned: for by means hereof both the bread and incense were kept clean, and free from dust or ought else that might casually fall on them. But this my conjecture, I shall leave to the learned; resting ready to yield unto any, that shall produce and render some more probable matter.

that which was of gold in gold, and that which was of silver in silver, took the Captain of the Guard away.] Heb. what gold gold, and what silver silver: that is, as some, whatsoever was of gold, or silver: such repetitions sometime importing an universality: as, man man, for every one. Lev. 15.2. and day day, for every day, Psal. 61.8. & 68.19 and morning morning, for every morning, Esay 50.4. or, as others those of gold apart by themselves; and those of silver apart by themselves: and both of them entire as they were; not broken as the brasen ones were, verse 17. See the same, 2 Kings 25, 15.

that were under the bases,] There is some doubt here moved how the bulls should be said to be under the bases, when as they were under the Sea, and the bases not under it, but the other lesse lavers, 1 Kings 7. 27, 38. To which is answered by one, that the nethermost parts of the Sea are here meant by the word bases: by a Jewish Doctour, that the meaning is, they stood before by, or beside the bases: by a third, that there is in the Text a defect thus to be supplyed, the twelve Bulls that were under it, (to wit, the Sea,) which King Solomon had made in the House of the Lord:] All which, as well Pillars, and Sea, and Bulls, as Bases, Solomon hath made; That is, procured, or caused to be made: as he built the house, Acts 7.47. and this is added to shew, as a Jewish Doctour observeth, that they were the very same that Solomon had made; having not been altered, or imbellished: as some other things about the Temple had been, in some former Kings reignes, 2 Kings 16. 17, 18. and 18.16. Yet it is expressely said, 2 Kings 16. 17. of Ahaz, that He mangled the wards of the Bases, and removed the Lavers from off them: as also that He to be down the Sea from the brazen bulls that were under it. But Ezechiah his son and next succeffor, in likelyhood repaired the one, and restored the other again.

in the House of the Lord.] Either, in the House of the Lord, which, (to wit, Pillars) Solomon made: and so there should be a Trajection in the words of the verse as the like Chapter 32. 9. Or, for the House of the Lord: for they were not made in it, but in the plain of Jordan, 2 Kings 7 46. for it. So is the Particle used. Nehemiah 5. 3. and 13. 14. Est. 4. 7. Jeremiah 15. 13. See Verse 21.

the brasse of all these Vessels was without weight.] Heb. of the Brasse of them, to wit, of all these Vessels, there was no weight:

the quantity was so great, that they could not well or easily be weighed; or that they regarded not the weight of them, they were not willing to stand to weigh them See 1 Kings 7. 47. 1 Chronicles, 22. 3, 14. 2 Chronicles, 4. 18. and the like Syntax, Chapter 51. 56. and the same in effect, 2 Kings 25. 16.

V. 21. And concerning the pillars,] Heb. And the pillars; as verse 20.

and the height of one pillar was eighteen cubits.] This agreeth with what is related. 1 Kings 7. 15. where the making of them is mentioned: as also with 2 Kings 25. 17. where the same story with this is reported. But in 2 Chronicles 3. 15. parallel to that, 1 Kings 7. 15. the pillars are said to be thirty five cubits long: for so the words are there, he made and placed, or to be placed before the house (a complexive form of speech, for they were not there made, but in the plain of Jordan, 2 Chronicles 4. 17. though to that place they were designed, and there they were placed, 1 King. 7. 21. See of the like on verse 11, 20.) two pillars thirty and five cubits in length. These seeming differences to reconcile, some have recourse to the diversity of cubits, which (say they) were of two sorts, the civil or common cubit, consisting of one foot and an half six hand breadths twenty four finger breadths, and eighteen thumb-breadths; and the sacred or holy cubit that consists of an hand-breadth, or foure fingers more than that other, Ezekiel 40. 5 & 43. 13. that which exactly agreeth with what Herodotus reporteth of the royal cubit in Egypt, that it was three thumbs breadth longer than the ordinary cubit, and the computation, say they, is made by the civil or common cubit in the one place, by the sacred in the other. But because this computation will not serve to bring up the lesse number to the greater; for an hands breadth added unto each cubit will not raise eighteen, to above 21. which cometh far short of thirty five. Some tell us of a third sort of cubits that was of a double length to the common cubit, called the chief cubit, 2 Chronicles 3. 3. and the arm-hole cubit, because it reached not from the top of the hand to the bending of the elbow, as the common cubit, but up to the arm-hole, Ezekiel 44. 8 And this being admitted, might indeed bring us home to the longer measure, and a little also beyond it, a cubit over either in the greater (say they) omitted, because it belonged to the basis; or in the lesse number, though but seventeen and an half indeed, added to make up a full number. But the places produced for it are both ambiguous, the latter especially, on which the main weight of this conceit lyeth; and by the word rendred arm-hole, some interpreters of prime note conceive some part of the building it self to be meant, which they render a wing. Certain to me it seemeth, that no other cubit can there be meant, than that which was before mentioned, chap. 40. 5. where the Angel is said to have had in his hand a measuring cane, reed or rod of six cubits, by the cubit and an hand-breadth; and here, as having an eye to what he had there said, he saith, that the foundations of the side Chambers were the fulnesse of the reed of six cubits: that is, full as long as that measuring cane of six cubits: and that cubit can there be any reason to imagine here intended, other than that so spoken of at first, and after repeated again? which may also justly be deemed to be the same with that chief one mentioned in the dimensions of Solomons Temple; if the word at least be there fo to be rendred, whereof some also make doubt. This therefore unlesse better ground could be produced, will hardly here help us. Some other therefore have recourse to the fabrick of the pillars. These pillars, or columns, saith a learned Writer, consisted of five parts, a square table at the bottome, rundle or round basis upon that, the shaft, or main body; the head, or Chapiter, and the crown, or pomel. Unto which five I suppose a sixth may well be added, the square border on which the Pomegranates were: wherof see on verse 23. Now, saith this learned man, the shaft or the main body of the pillar was of eighteen cubits mentioned in the one place: the square Table and round basis below, together with the Chapiter and Coronet above, made out between them the other seventeen; and these altogether with the shaft, make up the thirty five related in the other. The Jewish Doctors go a third way. The one place, say they, speaketh of either pillar apart, which were either of them of eighteen cubits, in the shaft or main body; besides the Chapiters, the measure whereof is reported by it self, 1 Kings 7. 16 the other place speaketh of them joyntly together, as they were cast at first in one entire body, though after divided into two; and one cubit, say they is not expressed in the whole number, because it was divided between them, and went with either to the making up of the Chapiter on the top, and to back this their opinion, they presse the word of length used in the Text: for it saith not, say they, the height of the pillars, as in other places, where they are spoken of as they stood, but the length of them, because he speaketh of them as lying yet along on the ground in the place where they were at first cast. Either of these two last seem to carry some good probability with them.

and a fillet of twelve cubits did compasse it,] Heb. a thred (as Genesis 14. 23. rendred a line, 1 Kings 7. 15. a cord, Eccles. 4. 12.) of twelve cubits will, or would, or might compasse it: the Verbin a Potentiall notion: as, it will, (for, it would, or could) contain, 1 Kings 7. 25.

and the thicknesse thereof, was four fingers: it was hollow.] Before was the perimeter, or compass, (saith a learned Annotator) here the diameter or bredth, of the pillar: and here, saith he, the scribes muſt of necessity be out: for four fingers cannot make a dimetient of eight cubits in a column. But I doubt that this learned man is herein himself rather much mistaken: the purpose of the Writer hereof, whoever he was, being not as I conceive it, to give the diameter, or breadth, of the main body of the pillar, (what needed that when he had related the exact compass of it before, from whence the diameter might be easily gathered?) but to acquaint the Reader with the thicknesse of the brass thorowout the main body of the column; which though it were not entirely solid and massie, but hollow within, yet was the brass of it four fingers thicke, which to the dimetient maketh nothing at all. And this appeareth plainly by what is said of the sea, 1 King. 7. 26. & 2 Chron. 4. 5. the thicknes of it was an hand breadth: the very term here used though the measure a fingers breadth more in that than in this here, whereas both the perimeter and the diameter, or compass and breadth had been distinctly before mentioned, v. 23. in the one place, v. 2. in the other.

V. 22. And a chapiter of brasse was upon it, and the height of one Chapiter was five cubits.] The word rendred chapiter signifieth properly a crown or coronet; and so divers render it: that which is here said of it, however we shall term it, and its mate agreeth with the dimensions thereof reported, 1 Kings 7. 16. But 2 Kin. 25. 17. where the same story with this is related: this work Chapiter or cornet is said to be three cubits high, which falleth two cubits short of this. This seeming difference the Jewish Commenters thus reconcile: the Chapiters, say they, were divided into two parts, the upper and the lower; the lower part next to the shaft of the pillar had no figures on it; the upper part above that was set out, with figures and much curious workmanship: and this upper part onely is respected in the latter story of the Kings, being of three cubits height: the lower of two cubits being let pass as belonging to the shaft. Some of ours more exactly divide the whole work above the shaft into three parts the chapiter, the table, and the cornet: and they affigne to the Chapiter one cubit, to the Table one, and three to the Cornet: which therefore say they, considered together with the Table, both four affigned in, 1 Kings 7. 19. Others again divide it into the Table, or square, the belly and the crown: which I conceive to be the better division, and suppose, that the square or table with its rise, untill it cloſed with the middle part, termed the belly, was of two cubits, omitted for that cause which the Jewish Doctors give, as comprehended in the pillar, and the belly with the crown to make up the three cubits between that mentioned in the place parallel to this.

with net-work and Pomegranates upon the Chapiters round about, all of brasse: the second Pillar also, and the Pomegranates were like unto these.] Heb. and; for with; as c. 27. 2. Ezek. 23. 24. Of this net-work, or writhed work; as it is rendred in the second of Kings: as also of these pomegranates, see 1 Kings 7. 17, 18. 2 Kings 25. 17. and hereafter v. 23.

V. 23. And there were ninety and six Pomegranates on a side, and all the Pomegranates upon the net-work were an hundred in all.] There are here again some deeming differences both about the sum in groſs between this Text and some others; and about the sums themselves here mentioned. Concerning the former we finde it said, 1 Kings 7. 19. that the Pomegranates were in rowes two hundred about up in either Chapiter, and 2 Chronicles 4. 13. that there were four hundred Pomegranates upon the two wreaths; two rowes upon either wreath. But these seeming differences, for the sum in groſſe, are by generall agreement thus reconciled, that there were two rowes of them on the toppe-workes of either Pillar, one over another and an hundered in either row, as is here said, and this place therefore to be understood, as if it were said, an hundered all in one row: and consequently, two hundered. as the former place saith, in the two rowes upon the one; foure hundered as the latter hath it on both. There is a little more difficulty about making the two sums here mentioned to agree; for according to the words here thus rendred it might seem, that there werd nynety five Pomegranates on each side of either Chapiter, or Coronet above-mentioned, which would rise to the summe of three hundred eighty and foure in all, for each either Chapiter or row, which none of the former summes would admit: and whereas there is mention in the after summe of an hundered onely: Unto this the common answer is, that the foure that should goe to make up the hundered that was in each row were out of sight, by reason that the Pillar stood close to the wall, either of the Porch, or the House; and the Writer here mentioneth those alone that were in sight. Thus both the Jewish, and others: which yet seemeth not very satisfactory: for neither is it probable, that two such goodly Columnes erected, not to beare up ought, but for a grace and ornament to the House, should be scituate so close to the wall, that the curious workemanship of them might not be conspicuous on every side: Nor again, doe they take notice, either of the Translation, or of the Text, which may seem to raise the computation to such an excesſive sum as was hinted before. In the Hebrew Text, for that which is here rendred on a side, it is word, for word Winde-ward: That is, toward the four Winds, or quarters of the World: as the word wind is used, 1 Chr. 9. 24. Chap. 49. 36. Ezek. 42. 20. whence it may well be deemed that the table, or border on which the pomegranates were engraved, was square; albeit that the belly or main body of the Chapiters were round; as the borders of the bases on which the lavers stood; set out with the like imagery, were square, although the mouth and main body of the bases were round, 1 King. 7. 29, 31. and that the pomegranets stood twenty and four on each side, to which number the four corner ones added to the number here mentioned, make up the sum of an hundred hereafter subjoyned, and understood as before. And this I conceive to be the most probable way of reconcilement For as for that apprehension of the late learned Annotator, who would make but two sides of them, and would have ninety six in each row on either of those sides, which with the two parting ones in each row, being eight in all should make up the 400. neither doth it suit well with the term of wind, unlesse we make but two winds: nor will it with that addition of those eight, make up that entire sum, unlesse foure more be added.

V. 24. And the Captain of the guard took Seraiah the chiefe Priest, and Zephaniah the second Priest, and the three Keepers of the door.] The Historian returneth from the spoyles carried away, to some persons of note, that Nebuzaradan took away from Jerusalem, at his return from thence to Riblah, where by Nebuchadrezzars appointment they were slain. Those mentioned in this verse, he took out of the Temple; those in the next, out of the city. Seraiah, the son of Azariah, 1 Chr. 6. 14. the chief Priest: another from him of that name mentioned, Chap. 51. 59. and Zephaniah; of whom, Chap. 21. 1. & 29. 25. the second Priest: the next in place to the chief Priest, who, upon any extraordinary occurrent restraining or disabling him, was to supply his place, Chap. 21. 1. 1 Chr. 7. 12. 2 Kings 23. 4. and three (not the three, for them were many more of them) Keepers of the door. Heb, threshold. See Chap. 35. 4. three select ones of those, it may be, that used to attend at the three gates, the East-gate, 2 Kings 11, 6. 2 Chr. 23. 5. Ezek. 44. 1, 3. & 46. 1. and the North and South gates Ezek. 36 7. which seem to have been the chief, and of most use. See the same, 2 King 25, 18.

V. 25. He took also out of the city an eunuch which had the charge of the men of war,] Heb. And out of the city (for the former out of the Temple, Verse 24.) he took an Eunuch, or, officer; as Gen. 39. 1. Esay 39. 7. one, as chap. 51. 60. who was overseer of the men of war; or, the Master-Master.

and seven men of them that were near the Kings person,] Heb. that saw the face of the King; as near attendants, standing before such, usually do. See the manner of speech, Mat. 18. 10. In 2 King. 25. 19. there is mention of five only. But Joseph the Jew, lib. 10. cap. 11. hath, as it is here, seven: two of them might be men of lesse note, and in that regard it may be there omitted. Some of the Jewish Masters say, that they were the two Scribes, that belonged to the Judges. But for this assertion they give no ground.

and the principal Scribe of the host,] So the old Latine; but others rather with the Jewish Commenter, the Scribe of the Captain of the host or the Generall: the office that Joab had under David, 1 Chr. 27. 34. alluded to Josh. 5. 14.

who mustered the people of the land,] Heb that hosted, or, armied, if we might so speak: that made an host, or army of them, This some refer to the Commander, that framed the people into an army, and so led them out to service: others, to the Scribe, that enrolled and listed them for service: and this latter seemeth the right. See the like office, Esay 33. 18.

V. 27. And the King of Babylon smote them, and put them to death in the land of Hamath:] See Verse 10. and the same, 2 King. 25. 21.

Thus Judah was carried away captive out of his own land.] Heb. And. as Chap. 51. 4. But the copulative may well be retained here; or else it muſt have reference to what was before related, Verse 15 but this seemeth rather to look further backward than so, as appeareth, Verse 28. and to be in nature of an introduction, used as a paſſage to a new discourſe, concerning such as either had been before, or were at this time carried away captive, containing the summe in general of the ensuing relation, Verse 28——30.

V. 28. This is the people whom Nebuchadnezzar carried away captive in the seventh yeare, three thousand Jewes and three and twenty.] This was done in the shore reign of Jehojacin related, 2 Kings 24. 12, 14, 16. But there seemeth some difference between the relation of it here and there: for first what is said to have been done in Nebuchadnezzars seventh yeare here, is said to have been done in his eighth year there. That which may easily be reconciled, as being transacted in the latter end of his seventh year, and about the beginning of his eighth: and so verse 29. the like whereunto, see 1 Kings 15. 25, 28. and on Chap. 25. 1. Another difference more difficult is in the number, which are but three thousand, and odde here, but ten thousand there, 2 Kings 24. 14. and seven thousand, if not eight thousand, as may seem more to them, Verse 16, for it is there said; and all the men of might, seven thousand, and craftsmen and smiths, a thousand. Which some to reconcile, as if the first number included the two latter; to wit, that of the ten thousand, seven thousand were men of arms, and a thousand of them cunning workmen: and this seemeth not improbable; because they were mentioned together with the grosse summe in the same verse before. But for the reconciling of this and the former, both the Jewish Writers and others give joyntly this answer, that of that ten thousand, the three thousand and odde, were of the Tribe of Judah, Jewes strictly so termed, the residue of the Tribe of Benjamin, and some other that adhered unto them; which for ought I see muſt be admitted, and ſtand for good, unleſſe some errour have by the Scribes delicate crept into the account.

V. 29 In the eighteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar he carried away captive from Jerusalem eight hundred thirty and two persons.] That is, what time the city was taken in the eleventh year of Zedekiah, 2 Kings 25. 2. said to be the nineteenth of Nebuchadnezzar, 2 King. 25. 8. from which place a learned Writer would have to be corrected. But thereof there is no need: In the eighteenth expiring, and in the nineteenth then entring, may well ſtand together, as before, verse 28. Heb. souls, for, persons, as Exod. 1, 5. Chap. 35. 6. So after Verse 30.

V. 30. In the three and twentieth year of Nebuchadnezzar, Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard carried away captive of the Jewes seven hundre. forty and five persons:] This seemeth to have been done after that barbarous murther of Gedaliah, chap. 41. 2. 2 Kings 25. 25. to prevent some new rebellion. Heb. souls, for, persons, again, as before, Verse 29, and so in the next clause.

in the twelfth moneth in the five and twentieth day of the moneth,] Here agen a commein some seeming difference between the relation of this paſſage here, and that in the History of the Kings: for what is said to be done on the five and twentieth day here, is said to be done on the twenty seventh there, 2 Kings 25. 27. Now this to reconcile the Talmudiſts tell us a tale of Nebuchadnezzar and his son Evilmerodac; to wit, that when Nebuchadnezzar died and was buried, his son Evilmerodac was afraid to take the kingdome upon him, for feare leaſt his father ſhould return, (either not being dead indeed, or risen again as he did before,) after his seven years siensie, Dan. 4. 33, 36. and ſhould then kill him, as he had done other of his sons before, whom he found then ſitting upon his throne; though some of them say, (for they are not all in one tale neither) that it was this Evilmerodac that he found in his royal seat, and that he did but imprison him; but that he feared now, if he came again the second time, he would deal worſe with him: and durſt not therefore take the Kingdome upon him, untill he had seen his fathers corpſe taken out of the grave, and before his face cut in pieces and caſt to the vultures, that flew away several wayes with the goblets of it; and that Jehojacin, (with whom he had been fellow-priſoner, whereby they were grown into some familiarity) then ſtanding by him, told him that his father would then come again, when all thoſe pieces of him, that the vultures flew away with, ſhould meet together in that place again: and that thereupon he releaſed him from his imprisonment: And I thus after all this long rale told, the knot is readily untied, and they will ſhew you how: for, say they, Nebuchadnezzar died the five and twentieth day of the moneth, and was buried on the six and twentieth: (they made haſte belike to be rid of him) and on the seven and twentieth day his corpſe was taken up, and used as ye have heard, to fulfill that prophecy of Esay 14 19. and Jehojacin withall releaſed. And how helps all this, if all of it were true, to abſoil the doubt? One of them therefore a little wiſer than his fellows, though he relateth their story too, ſleeth us, this enlargement of Jehoiachin was resolved upon, and order given for it on the twenty and fifth day, though not put in execution till the twenty seventh; and this our Interpreters alſo approve. nor is it either unreaſonable or incongruous to allow a day intervenient, for the fitting of one in ſuch a condition for a ſuitable receit.

that Evil-Merodach King of Babylon, in the first year of his reign,] Heb, in the year of his Kingdom; that is, in the same year wherein he came to his Kingdom: as, in his reigning, or, when he reigned; that is, when he began to reign, verse 1. and ſo it is, 2 King. 25. 27 in the year of his reigning: well rendred there, that he began to reign.

lifted up the head of Jehoiacin King of Judah,] To lift up the head, is sometime used for to advance, set up, or above: as thou liftest up the head, Psalm 3.3. 8.18. 41.8, and he shall lift up the head. Psal. 110 7. but sometime it signifieth to survey and take account of; or upon survey, to take special notice of, be it for good or evil. So it is said of Pharaoh, that making a solemn feast upon his birth-day he took a list of his servants, and among the rest he lifted up the head of two of them then in restraint, that is, he took special notice of them both but to contrary purposes, to release and restore the one of them to his former place, and to execute the other, Gen. 40. 20 —22. In the former sense the word is not here to be taken, (for he did not advance him before he released him) but in the latter taking a list or survey of such Princes as his father Nebuchadnezzar had left under restraint at his decease, he tooke special notice of Jehoiacin among the rest.

and brought him forth out of prison.] Heb. out of the house of restraint; as Chapter 37.15. See verse 33. much dispute and debate there is among Writers, what the reason should be why that Chaldean King should shew Jehoiacin this kindness: and the Jewish Masters tell us, as was hinted before, because he and Jehoiacin had been sometime fellow-prisoners: but that relation is of as much credit, as any other tales that they tell. Some other say it was done in regard of his voluntary yielding himself unto Nebuchadnezzar. 2 Kings 24.12. whereunto some add, that he did so by the advice of Jeremy, which God would hereby make to appear that he approved of. But neither doe we read of any such advice given by Jeremy to Jeconiah, though to Zedekiah he so did, chap. 38.7,8. But it may well be thought rather that he did it by his mothers direction, by whom he was in other things in likely-hood too much led. Nor did Nebuchadnezzar, unto whom he so yielded himself, ever shew him any such favour so long as he lived. Others would have it again so disposed by Gods special providence to fulfill Jacobs Prophecy, concerning the continuance of the Scepter with Iudah untill the coming of the Messias, Gen 49. 10. which had failed, say they, had not Jeconiah been set at liberty to be head of the captivity, in which heads, him and his issue after him being of that stock, the government was continued. But what answer will these men then give to the Maccabee Commanders, who were of another tribe, and yet that prophecy by their government not frustrated? Nor doth this therefore give any satisfactory reason of this kindness shewed by Evil Merodae to Jehoiacin. If conjectures may be given in a business so uncertain, I should suppose that Jehoiacin being a youth of eighteen years when he was brought captive to Babylon. 2 Kings 24.8. and it may well be, well-favoured and comely withall, and one that had been King of one of the Kingdomes of special note and name in those times, Evil-Merodae being also but a young stripling then, might take some liking to him, and set his affection upon him: and howsoever, during his fathers life, he could not in this kind shew it, yet did it, when he had power so to do after his decease. But whatsoever the ground or occasion on mans part was, which is not easie to define, thus God made good, what the Psalmist, whosoever he were, with thankfulness, to the amplification of Gods mercy to that people, acknowledgeth, that God gave him, and others of them at several times favour in the sight of those, with whom they were under restraint, Psalm 106.46. See chap. 15.11. Daniel 1.9. and 2.48, 49. and 3 30. and 6.1,18. Nehe. 1.11. and 2.8. Act. 7.10. In the Book of Kings, this is delivered in a more concise form, but in Scripture very frequent, he lifted up his head out of prison, for he lifted up his head and took or brought him out of prison: as more fully here we have it. So, thou hast loved, or affected my soul from the pit, for thou hast loved, or affected my soul and delivered it from the pit, Esay 38.17. See the like, v. 20.

V. 32. And spake kindly unto him, Heb. spake good things with him; 2 c. 12.6. So 2 Kings 25.8.

and set his throne above the throne of the Kings that were with him in Babylon.] Divers whereof it seemeth Nebuchadnezzar his father had with him there; before whom he gave Jeconiah the precedency, as some think, in regard of the great fame of his Ancestors David and Solomon; but might as well be out of some other private respect, or affection to his person.

V. 33. And changed his prison garments:] Heb. the garments of his restraint; or, his garments of restraint: that is, of the house of restraint: as it was more fully, Verse 31. the prison. So 2 Kings 25. 29. The like is said of Joseph, when he was to appear before Pharaoh, Genesis 41. 14. because it was not fit for him to come into the Kings presence in such sorry rayment as in the prison he wore. But there seemeth more than so implyed in it here; to wit, that instead of such rayment, as had formerly been allowed him, while he was under restraint, he had apparell now allowed him suitable to the condition of one of his quality, a Prince living at liberty: As is is said, of Joseph afterward, that the King put him into a vest of fine linnen, Gen.41. 42.

and he did continually eat bread before him all the dayes of his life.] Either he mealed frequently with him; (so some) as did Crœsus with Cyrus: he was constantly at Table with him, as was David with Saul, 1 Samuel 20.31. 27. or he had a table in the Kings Court prepared of course for him. See of Mesbiboseth the like, 2 Sam. 9.7.

V. 34. And,] or, for: the copulative in a causal notion, as Chapter, 51 22. because in these words is contained a further confirmation, and fuller explication of what before had been delivered verse 33.

for his diet] Or, as concerning his provision: that is, the provision made for him, or assigned him: for it is a nominative absolute, as the like before, Verse 20, 21. The word signifieth properly, that which the Latines call Viaticum, provisions for a journey; as doth also the Latine commeatus; Whence our English meat: though restrained sometime to victuall; whence it is used for a meal, Proverbs 15. 17. See on Chron. 40. 5. here it may well be rendred provision: though, having reference chiefly to diet, yet including also all other ordinary accommodations together with it.

there was a continuall diet given him of the King of Babylon,] Heb. a provision of assiduity; that is, a dayly, or constant provision; as a sacrifice of assiduity, for the dayly, or set constant sacrifice, Ezra 3. 5.

every day a portion,] Heb. word, or matter, (as Chapter 38. 27.) of a day in its day. See the very same forme, Exodus, 5. 13.

untill the day of his death, all the dayes of his life.] The like manner of formes of speech conceived in the Positive and Privative, or Affirmative and Negative conjoyned, and both intimateing one and the same thing, is in Scripture very rife, and addeth some Emphasis to the things so related. See Genesis 40, 23. Deuteronomy 9. 7. 1 Samuel 1.11. Psalm 118. 17. John 3, 20, and 3. 15, 16. 1 Thess. 5. 6.

ANNOTATIONS

On the LAMENTATIONS OF JEREMIAH.

The Argument.

THe Booke of the Lamentations was composed by Jeremiah in the time of the Babylonian captivity; Therein he bewaileth the grievous calamities, that had befallen his people, the ruine of their State, the devastation of their Land, the destruction of their chief City, and of Gods Temple therein with it: the profanation of his holy things in it, and the deplorable condition of all sorts and States, both during their strait siege at home, and afterward in their heavy bondage abroad: complaineth of the manifold sinnes and excesses of all sorts; whereby they had enforced God to inflict Gods judgements upon them: and exhorteth them to patience, under Gods just chastising hand, to repentance of their sinnes, the procuring causes of those evils; and to unceassant seeking unto God, for the remission of the one, and the removal of the other, with an hopeful expectation of a gracious restitution in his due time, and of the righteous execution of his judgement upon those, who now insulted over them.

The whole worke is conceived in a very artificial frame, full of rhetorical amplifications, and pathetical expressions: and for the better help of memory, all of it, (the last Chapter onely excepted) is contrived according to the order of the letters in the Hebrew Alphabet; as also sundry of the Psalms are.

Some of the Jewish Doctors affirm that it was penned by Jerem. in the fourth year of Jehoiakim: and that part of it at least is that roll, that the Prophet at Gods command then compiled, Baruc his Scribe wrote out and read, and Jehoiakim burnt, Jerem. 36.1, 4, 10, 23, which as the first, say they, consisted but of these three sing: Alphabets, in the first, second, and fourth Chapters: but was afterward new written with addition of a threefold Alphabet, contained in the third Chapter; straining to this purpose those terms, Jerem. 36.32. There were added unto them many like words; that is, say they, written in an Alphabetical manner as those former were.

But this other of them control; and it appeareth to be a very frivolous fancy: for it is apparent, that that roll was, according to the charge given the Prophet by God, a large Volume, containing the summe of all these Sermons that the Prophet had preached from the time of his calling to the Prophetical function in the thirteenth year of Josias, Jerem. 1. 2, unto that day, Jerem. 36. 2. being about the space of three and twenty years, Jerem. 25.3. the most whereof, if not all, we have in likelyhood yet extant: and are, both for the subject matter, many of them, and for the manner of composure generally, much different from this.

Others of those great Masters, whom some of ours also concur with, suppose this to be that sad Poem, or dolefull ditty, wherein this our Prophet lamented the death and loss of that, in some regards, matchless King Josias, 2 Kings, 23.25. whereof mention is made in the sacred Annals, 2 Chron. 35.25.

But of this also there is no likelyhood, that seemeth to have been lost: neither doth any mention at all of Josias clearly discover it self in the whole work, whom yet it should principally treat of, if it were that: and the main subject of it is apparently concerning such matters as fell out many years after his decease.

And this I thought not amisse, to subjoyne here to remove those mistakes, which yet some of note seem to be taken with, as, at least, not unlikely.

CHAP. I.

Verse 1. HOw doth the city sit solitary, that was full of people?] The first Alphabet of this doleful lamentation is spent in bewailing the sad and forlorn condition of the Jewish State; the insolencies of her professed adversaries; the perfidiousness of her pretended friends, and her own grievous transgressions, the procuring cause of these her sufferings: these all interwoven one with another, and seconded with prayer unto God for mercy to her, and justice against them. In this first verse he lamenteth her as in the person of a woman, that had been sometime a stately Lady, richly married, and abundant in issue; but now become childless, a widow, a dejected one, bereaved of children, husband and state.

How] The word is here not so much an Interrogative, making a demand, and moving a question, as some would have it, (who carry on still the whole tenour of the context in this Interrogative form for four verses together; to all which the answer should be at length returned, verse 5.) but as a note rather of Admiration and astonishment, mixt with grief, and commiseration; wondering at so strange an alteration, and compassionating the party whom such a change had befallen. The like see 2 Sam. 1. 25. Jer. 49. 25. and 51. 41. Chapter 2.1. and 4.1. Ezekiel 26, 17. Rev 18.10, 16, 19.

doth the city sit] Sitteth she; that is, as some, continueth, abideth; as Deut. 5. 31. Luk 24. 59. or, as others rather, setteth down on the ground; after the manner of mourners, Ezr. 9 3. chap. 2. 10. See Esay 3. 26. And it is observed by a learned Annotator, that on some some of Vespasians coyn the state of Judea is deciphered in form of a captive woman, with a rusull aspect sitting under a palm-tree.

Solitary.] Having lost her daughters, (see Jer. 34. 1) and being bereft of her people, Jer. 39. 9. not affecting solitude, as some would have it, because mourners commonly so do, Jer. 15. 17. who seem like wife to Elimbath too far, as well this as the former term of sitting; when they would have an allusion therein to womens sitting apart, during the time of their infirmity, Gen. 31. 35. Lev. 15. 19. though to one so affected the seemeth to be compared, vers 17.

that was full of people?] Heb. much of people; that had many people, was populous: as, much of treasures, for abounding in treasure, Jer. 51. 13.

how is she become as a wid w?] Having lost her King, who is to the state as an husband to the wife, as an head, Ephes 5. 23. this, some Interpreters of note understand of Josiah; as also that Chap. 4. 20. suppeling this book to be that of Lamentation for his death mentioned, 2 Chr. 35. 25. and would have all this whole piece so far as it concerneth the siege and sacking of the citie under Zedekiah, together with the captivity, and other consequents of it, to be penned in way of prophesie, because of such things in his Sermons under Jehoiakim he foretold much before. But this seems to me to carry no shew of probability at all with it. Zedekiah was a King, though a bad one, in whom the royal State expired. See Chap. 4. 20. Some go further, and expound it in regard of God, who seemed for a time to have left her, having taken away, and given up into the hands of his enemies, all those visible pledges of his special prefence with her, and conjunction to her, and withdrawn his wonted protection from her, in regard whereof she might be said to be, if not a widow, simply and absolutely, yet as a widow, at least, like a woman, whose husband, though not deceased, yet upon some distaft and discontent liveth apart from her, and looketh no more after her, than as if he had no such relation at all to her. See Esay 49. 14, 21. and 50. 1. and 54. 4, 46 7. and 62. 4.

she that was great among the nations,] The word here used is the same with that before, but in a notion of multitude there, of greatnesse here. Howbeit, the ancient Greek taketh it in the former notion here, knitting this member to the second branch, and rendring the text, Is she become a widow, that was filled with nations? and so making a distinct antithesis expressed in each branch: so the meaning should be, she is become as a widow, that is, as alone woman, Esay 49. 21. and 60 15. who was formerly frequented with people from all parts round about her. The old Latine also, though it take the word in a divers sense from that in the first branch, yet carrieth it on to the next limb, rendring the text, she is become as a widow, that was a Lady of nations: the that had a command over neighbouring nations, or was much respected by them, as one of great state and power, while her husband lived and abode with her, hath now left her former, either command, or esteem and regard, and sitteth as a widow that none looketh after, Jer. 30. 17.

and Princes among the Provinces,] Either one that was of chief esteem among them, or one that had some power and authority over them, as that State had sometime over the Syrians, Philistines, Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, and others, 2 Sam 8. 1, 2, 6 12, 14 & 10. 19 & 11. 19——31. 2 King. 1. 1. & 3. 4. and to this latter the words enfuing add weight.

how is she become tributary?] First to Egypt, 2 King. 23 33, 35. then to Babylon, 2 King 24. 1. the supply is both in the second and third branch from the first. So Chap. 3. 1 and 4, 1.

V. 2. She weepeth for] Heb. weeping weepeth; as Esay 30. 19. Jer. 15 Mic. 1. 10. So verse 16.

in the night?] In the night, fay some, of her affliction; as Amos 5, 8, 8, 20. but as others rather, having no rest, night or day; as grief commonly groweth more rife in the night, silence and solitarinesse then concurring to let loose the reins to such cogitations and imaginations, as may feed and foment that affection, and to still all that may help to stay it, 1 Sam. 15. 11. Job 7. 3. Psal 6. 6, & 22. 2. & 77. 2. 4. Job 30. 17. Jer. 14. 17. Revel. 14. 11.

and her tears are on her cheeks:] Some render the text, the tears fall down upon her cheeks: but our Version hath a more familiar supply, and affordeth a notion more emphatical; as if it were said, her cheeks are continually bedewed with tears, as if she had a spring of them in her head, Jer. 9. 1. and they never wanting upon her cheeks. So rather, than as some, because as it is with persons oft in hard services, she had no time or leisure to wash them off.

among all her lovers she hath none to comfort her,] Her wonted allies and confederates, the Assyrians and Egyptians, afford her now no help or relief. See Jer. 2. 18, 19, 36, 37. & 4. 30. & 30. 14. & 37. 7. Chap. 9. 8.

all her friends have dealt treacherously with her, they are become her enemies.] The Edomites and Moabites, and other neighbouring nations of the same flock with her, joyn with the enemy against her. 2 Kings 24. 2. Psal. 83. 6, 7. & 137. 7. Obad 7.

V. 3. Judah is gone into captivity because of affliction, and because [of great servitude:] Heb. greatnesse of servitude. This some, with the Chaldee Paraphrast, expound, as pointing to some of the principal crimes, that had been the procuring causes of their captivity; to wit, their cruel oppressions of the poorer sort, and hard usage of their brethren that served them, Esay 3. 14, 15. & 58. 3. 4 Jer. 6. 6, 7. & 34. 11, 17. Mic. 3. 2, 3, 10, 12. Others understand it of such of the people of the land, as either in regard of such oppressions from their governours, and great ones; or for fear of the enemy invading the country, or the hath usage they suffered by them, when they were become masters of it, had voluntarily betaken themselves into forrein parts, by a kind of transmigration rather than depotation, of which they understand the word here used. See Jer. 6. 1. & 40, 11. The former agreeth better with the termes of the text, and suiteth well with that followeth, verse 5. 8.

she dwelleth among the Heathen,] Or, she abideth; as Jer. 40. 6. which some understand of those Jewes, that sojourned sometime in forrein parts, Jer. 40. 11. Others rather of their abiding in captivity at Babylon, and in other strange countries, Psal. 137. 4.

she findeth no rest:] As it is said of the dove in the deluge, Gen 8. 9. or, she hath no rest: to find none, for, to have none; as verse 6. chap. 2. 9. she is hurried to and fro from place to place, at the pleasure of those in whose hands she is: or she enjoyeth no quiet of mind among them, but is continually in a restless condition. See Deut. 28 65, 66. Or, if it be understood of voluntary flight, it is as that of Tyre, Esay 23. 12. she findeth no where any quiet abode.

all her persecutors overtook her between the straits.] They did so straitly befet her people on every side, and seize on them, that they had no way to escape their hands. Jer. 4. 16, 17. & 23. 25. & 52. 8. An allusion to the practice either of hunters that surprize wild beasts, or robbers by the high-way side, that seize upon passengers, when they have gotten them into some strait or narrow place, where no means appear any way to decline or avoid them, so had Pharaoh the Israelites between the jawes of cliffs, Exodt 14. 2, 3, 9. and so met the Angel with Balaam, Num. 22. 26.

V. 4. The wayes of Zion do mourn,] They have as rufull an aspect, as if they mourned, lying waste, and being over-growne, through want of passengers. See the like figurative form of speech, Esay 24 4. Jer. 23. 10. cap. 2. 8. Joel 1. 10.

because none come to the solemn feasts:] As in times past with much mirth and jollity, they had wont to do, 1 Sam. 10. 3. Psalm 42. 4. Esay 30. 29. 32. 9. Howbeit, the word here used more in general comprehending all solem assemblies, as well faits as feasts. See on Esay 1. 14. it should here be the singular, but collective; as Chap. 2. 6. But it may seem rather to respect here the place of their set-assemblies: as Esay 14. 13. than the set-times of meeting which were not many, Lev. 23. 4. and so the singular notion may well suffice; that place for such solemnities designed, being but one, Deut. 12. 4——6, 11.

all her gates are desolate:] Either her cities; as Jer. 34. 1. or, the gates of Jerusalem, Chapter 2. 9. Nehem. 1. 3. See Jerem. 14. 2.

her Priests sigh:] Heb. are sighing. So of the people also, Verse 11.

her Virgins are afflicted:] Or, are in heavinesse, or grief; as Zeph. 3. 18. where it is made a note of Gods faithful servants, of such as he will save; that are in grief and heavinesse for the solemn assembly, that is, for the want, or miss of it; as, for the fruits; that mentioned, because they were wont to be employed at those festivities to make mirth, Psal. 68. 25. See Jer. 31. 4, 13.

and she is in bitternesse.] Heb. and to her (a nominative absolute; as 1 Chron. 28. 2.) bitternesse is to her; if it be a noun, as 1 Sam. 15. 32. or, it is bitter with her; if it be a verb, as it may well be. So Ruth 1. 13. bitternesse, for sore grief, or affliction and vexation of heart and mind, Ruth 1. 20, 21. So chap. 3. 15.

V. 5. Her adversaries are the chief:] Heb. are for the head; as Psal. 18. 43. they have the better of her, and rule over her; See Deut. 28. 13, 14, 43, 44.

her enemies prosper:] See Jer. 12. 1.

for the Lord hath afflicted her;] Or, made her to be in heavinesse; as verse 3. where the same word in another form. So Verse 12. Chap. 3 32.

for the multitude of her transgressions,] As Jerem. 30. 14. See there.

her children, are gone into captivity,] Or, little ones: so the word properly signifieth. See Jer. 6. 11. & 9. 20. the word here the rather used to move compassion, and make her condition the more lamentable, when even little children are not spared, but are carried and hurried away in the throng, to pass among them into forrein parts. Heb. have walked, or, are gone into captivity: as was before theatned, Deut. 28 41, 50. Jer. 6. 11. and fulfilled accordingly, 2 Chr. 36. 17. 2 Kings 24. 2. 14——16. & 25. 11. Jer. 52. 15, 27, 28. See the form of speech also, Jer. 30. 16. and here again, verse 18.

before the enemy,] Not fleeing from them: as Deut. 28. 25. and as verse 6. but being driven before them like beasts: as those, 2 Chr. 28, 5. 8.

V. 6. And

V. 6. And from the daughter of Zion all her beauty is departed:] Or, glory; as it is rendred, Esay 5. 14. where it is laid to go down; as here, to be gone: Of the daughter of Zion, see on Esay 1. 8.

her Princes are become like harts that find no pasture;] They are, what for famine, what for fear clean out of heart, as heartleffe as stags or deer, pined away for want of pasture, See Jer. 14. 3. 5. find none, for, have none; as verse. 3. and as, not to be found, for, not to be, Luke 17. 18. See Jer. 4. 9. The old Latine by mistake of the vow-l-points instead of harts, or, stags, substitutes rams; nothing to fitly.

and they are gone without strength before the pursuer.] Not being able to make head against them: no more than deer, out of heart especially, against hunter or hound. See Jer. 39 4. & 52. 7, 8.

V. 7. Jerusalem remembred in the dayes of her affliction, and of her misseries, all her pleasant things that she had in the dayes of old.] Or, as some render the words, Jerusalem in the dayes of her humiliation (for the verb it cometh of signifieth to humble,) and of her ejections, or exilements, (see on Esay 58. 7. and hereafter, Chap. 3. 19.) remembreth (thinketh now upon) all her delireable things, (vers. 10. 11. chap. 2. 4.) that she had in times past, or, formerly. Heb. in dayes of antiquity, or, of before. See Chap. 2. 17. The memory of her former state, wealth, plenty, prosperity, much enhanceth her present grief and misery. So Job 29 Psal. 42. 4. The old Latine taking the word, miseries, in a notion of rebellion, or, prevarication, disjoyneth the text, and jumbleth the words together without any good coherence; which yet Popish Expositors in vain strive much to make somewhat of.

when her people fell into the hand of the enemy.] Hand; for, power; as chap. 2. 7. 2 Sam. 24. 14.

and none did help her,] Or, could help her: the verb in a potential notion; as the like, Esay 46. 7. Jer. 51. 9. none of her own children: See Esay 51. 18, 20. nor any other from abroad; among whom, some were false and perfidious: other too feeble and unable to do ought for her. See on verse 2.

the adversaries saw her,] Or, her adversaries look on her; with a malignant or a feornful eye: as feeding their eyes, and delighting themselves, with the sight of her present misery: See Psal. 12. 17. & 35. 21. Mic. 4. 11.

and did mock at her Sabbaths.] Or, they deride her Sabbaths, or, cessations: which some expound of the enemies scoffing at their religious observation of the Sabbath: as many heathen Writers do. Others, of their deriding them, in regard of the cessation of their wonted solemn services, which the Temple being demolished, they were constrained to intermit. See Psal. 133. 3. Others again of the sabbatical cessation of their land, lying untilled during the time of their captivity, Lev. 26. 34. 43. 2 Chr. 36. 21. The first as it is plainest, so to me it seemeth the best.

V. 8. Jerusalem hath grievously sinned,] Heb. hath sinned sin; as Exod. 32. 30. well rendred, as here, so there: and the Chaldee here, as our Version there, hath committed a great or grievous sin; for those that would restrain it to the sin of idolatry here, because that was the sin that they had been faulty in there, do too much needlessly and groundlesly narrow the text See verse 3.

therefore she is removed,] Heb. therefore is she for, or, unto removing, or, wandring: from a word that so signifieth, Jer. 4. 1. & 15. 4. & 24. 9. whereof the land of Nod also had its name. Gen. 4. 14, 16. So some of the Jewish Doctors, and most others, expounding it of the captivite, and removing of them out of their land, as the Chaldee also doth: nor doth the Greek seem to fowve we much from this, therefore is she become unto fluctuation: and the old Latine it may be intended no more, when he rendred, it therefore is she become unstable: though Interpreters that follow that Version expound it, some of falling from her former felicity into misery. Verse 9. Others, of a restleffe, and unsettled disposition; such as described, Esay 57. 20, 21. or Ephes. 4. 14. Heb. 13. 9 Jam. 1. 6, 8. Howbeit, some other of the Jewish Masters expound it, as in shaking at; that is, in derision; one, at whom every one shaketh the head; because from the same root come two words differing little from this, that signifie both of them a motion, or shaking: the one applyed to the lips, Job 16. 5. the other, to the head in a notion of derision, or mockery, Psal. 22. 7. & 44. 13. Jer. 48. 27. Others, conceiving it to rise from another root, render it, she is become a woman separated for her uncleanness: Niddah, for, Niddah: So is such an one termed, Lev. 15. 19. Ezekel. 22. 10. & 36. 17. & 39. 24. as some abominable thing: for so also is the word used in an abstract notion, Lev. 20. 21. 2 Chr. 29. 5. Ezr. 9. 11. So v. 17. The word is not in this form elsewhere found: and though many go the first way: yet this last receiveth much strength from what presently enfueth both in this ver. and the next.

all that honoured her, despise her, because they have seen her nakednesse,] Her filthinelle is laid open to common view, as it befalleth some notorious strumpet, produced and exposed to publike shame and punnishment; or as women captives to stripe and contumelionsly used, that they have not wherewith to cover their shame: See Esay 3. 17. & 20. 4. So is the word nakednesse commonly taken in Scripture, Gen. 9 22, 23. Lev. 18. 6. Jer. 13. 22, 26. Ezek. 16. 37. & 23. 29. Hosea. 10 yea, she sigheth, and turneth backward.] For shame; as those in such case would do, that have any shamefacednes, or spark of ingenuity at all in them: See Esay 47. 5. for they seem to swerve here from the genuine sence, who understand the term of turning backe; as intimating a want of power to stand to it, or to rise and recover again: as Jer. 46. 5.

V. 9. Her filthinesse is in her skirts;] The signs and marks of it appear on her garments, are seen every where about her, Esay 3. 9. Jer. 2. 34. Ezek. 24. 7. 8.

she remembreth not her last end:] Or, she remembred not: She considered not, when time was, what the issue of her wicked courses would be, what they would bring her to at last: See Deut. 32. 29. So was it with Babel, Esay 47. 7. and with this people, though forewarned of it, Jer. 2. 25.

therefore she came down wonderfully.] From an high pitch of felicity, to the very lowest degree of misery: See the like of Babylon, Esay 47 1. and of this state, Esay 3. 8. Jer. 13. 18. ch. 5. 16. want of due consideration a principal cause of her downfall, Heb. and (as Jer. 3. 3. & 6. 11.) she descended, or came down with wonderments; that is, with a descent or coming down of wonderments: in plainer terms, with a most wonderful coming down, or descent: as by dreadful things for in dreadful manner, Psalm 65. 8. that is the genuine resolution and notion of the terms.

She had no comforter!] See v. 2, 7.

O Lord, behold mine affliction;] Some would have here inserted, She saith; She saith, See O Lord; and so again, verse 11. and elsewhere; but thereof there is no necessity: in writings of this kinde, interlocutions, and enterchanges of persons, and abrupt addresses to God are not usuall: So Genesis 49. 18. Esay 38. 14. See the like, verse 11. and the same Psalm 25. 18. See on Esay 37. 17.

for the enemy hath magnified himself.] Or, how (as Esay 66. 24.) he magnifieth himself. How they insult over me, and over thee also in me, D uteronomy 32. 27. Psalm 35. 26. & 38. 16. & 140. 8. Jer. 48. 26, 42. Zeph. 2. 10. a supply of the Pronoun, as Jer. 48. 26, 42. Zeph. 2. 8 10.

V. 10. The adversary hath spread out his hand upon all her pleasant things.] Or desireable things; as v. 7. 11. He hath seized upon all things of price and worth with her, the rich gifts and whole furniture of the Temple, among which those precious pledges of Gods special presence amidst her, together with the Temple it self, Kings 14. 13 & 25. 15. See the like Jer. 20 4. & 48. 10. & 49. 2. 32. the stretching, or spreading out of the hands, is used to exprime in a notion of supplication, Esay 1. 15. sometime of invitation, Esay 65. 2. sometime of beneficence, Prov. 31. 20. sometime of violence, Esay 25. 11. and so here.

for she hath seen] Or, as some surely, (so is the particle used, Jer. 22. 22. & 14. 8.) she hath seen; hath been compelled to see to her grief: So 1 Sam. 2. 32.

that the heathen Or how the heathen: the Chaldeans, and their complices, Jer. 51. 51.

entred into her sanctuary,] Either the holy land, as some, so called Exod. 15. 17. which they now possess as their own, Esay 63. 18. or the Temple rather, that was ransackt and rifled together with the city, Ezek. 7. 21 22.

whom thou didst command that they should not enter into thy congregation.] Such as were not to be admitted into the body of thy people, Deut 23. 3 much less might presume to pierce or peer into thy Sanctuary the seat of thy special residence, which to the generality and main body of thine own people, excepting some few peculiar ons only, was inhibited, Num. 1. 51. & 3. 10 38. & 4 15. 19, 20. See Ezek. 44. 7. & 9. 6. 21. 28. 29.

V. 11. All her people sigh: As well as the Priests. v. 4.

they seek bread:] So did they in the siege of the City, Jeremiah 38. 9. and 52. 6. Verse 19. and the like in their captivity, Chap. 5. 6.

they have given their pleasant things] Or, desireable things: as before, verse 7. 10. Nothing was so dear or precious with them, but they were content to part with it for the procuring of food. See 2 King. 6 25 for meat to relieve the soul:] Hebr. to make the soul come again Psalm 23. 3. to fetch it again when it is fainting away. See ver. 16, 20.

See O Lord, and consider.] A sudden and abrupt ejaculation: in such passionate speeches not unusual. See v. 9 for I am become vile] Or, how (as verse 9.) I am vilified: as how the enemy magnifieth himselfe. Verse 9. so in how meane and vile an account they have me, Jeremiah, 30. 17. Chapter, 3. 45.

V. 12. Is it nothing to you all, ye that pass by?] Heb. that pass by the way: or rather passengers of the way: as Job 21. 29. and 6. 21. 15. Do ye make light of mine afflictions? or, Doe ye not regard them, and lay them to heart? as complaining that her calamities were so slighted by others, and endeavouring to move them to some commiseration of her. See somewhat the like form of speech in the prayer of those holy men to God Neh. 9. 32. Many read the words by way of enunciation; It is not to you: and expound them some, to the same effect as before, as a complaint that her sorrows were so slighted. Others as an admonition of them, that had not yet befallen them that had befallen her. Others again as in way of well-wishing to them, let not that befall you, that hath befal'n me.

me. But the interrogative seemeth the best, and most suitable to what ensueth.

Behold, and see if there be any sorrow like unto my sorrow, which is done unto me, See Dan. 9. 12. Some suppose an allusion herein to be unto those inscriptions upon tombes, wherein passengers are wont to be called upon, & invited to consider of the party deceased, whose corpse lies there interred, and of the manner how, or means whereby he came unto his end. But whether such were in those times among that people in use, is uncertain. The manner of persons that sit weeping and wailing, as wandring out-casts, by the way side, is wont to be no other than is here deciphered, in a promeneels to acquaint others with their calamitous condition, (so Verse 18.) and to aggravate them in the relation of them, as being such as had never the like been known or heard of before. See chap. 3. 1. & 4. 6.

wherewith the Lord hath afflicted me] So before, Verse 5, and it is, as if he had said, by the transcendent greatnels of mine afflicti-on ye may easily perceive, that there is a special hand and work of God in it. See Hag. 10. 5.

in the day of his fierce anger.] Heb. heat, or fervour of his face, or nose. Of which form of speech, see Jer. 4. 8. So after, Chap. 4. 11.

V. 13. From above hath he sent fire into my bones,] He hath in his wrath burnt up and consumed all my strength, as with fire from heaven: fire, as Jer. 17. 27. & 21. 14. & 32. 13. Chap. 4 11. from above, for, from heaven; as Esay 24. 18. Jer. 25. 30. Rom. 1. 18. alluding to those material fires; Gen. 19. 24. Job 1. 16. and bones, for, strength, and vigour; as Psal. 32. 3. & 51. 8. Jer. 20. 9. & 50. 17. and therein also may be an allusion to those sulphureous flames, that pierce deepest into the most solid parts of those bodies below that they light upon, and exercise their power most upon them: and by bones may be understood their strongest holds and fortifications, wherein the chief of their strength consisted: so Jer. 49 27. Amos 1. 7. 10.

and it prevailed against them;] Heb. it (that is, the fire) or, he, (that is God) hath over mastered (See the use of the word, Lev. 25. 43. 46.) it; that is, each of them to wir, of my bones; or, as some late Writers of note, he ruled it; to wit, the fire: it was not so much man, as God himself that so directed and disposed it; as Joseph to his brethren, Gen. 45. 8. As for that Rabbine, who because the word is used sometime for to take; as Judg. 14. 9 would have it so taken here, he hath taken it; that is, my strength away, or the marrow out of my bones: not unlike that, Job 6. 4. it seems over-lat-fetcht: either of the former the words will bear.

he hath spread a net for my feet;] As Psal. 57. 6. Ezek. 12. 13. & 17. 20. & 32. 3. Hos. 7. 12.

he hath turned me back;] Cast me down backward: throwne me down, and laid me on my back, Chap. 2. 1.

he hath made me desolate, and faint all the day:] Or, faint (as Verse 22) all day long: continually, without intermission; as Psal. 38. 26. & 44. 22. The attribute here also'd seemeth to have an eye to the condition of women in the time of their disease: as that o-ther also before, Verse 8. but that there with reference to their legall uncleannes; this to that infirmity and faintnes that is wont then to surprise them, Lev. 15. 33. & 20. 18.

V. 14. The yoke of my transgressions is bound by his hand:] God hath, for my transgressions, laid a grievous and heavie yoke of affliction and thraldom upon me, that so he setteth me down to the ground, that I am not able to rise from under it, and is so fastened to my neck. that I am not able to shake it off.

yoke] For vexation and servitude; as Genes. 27. 40. Deut. 28. 48. 1 Kings 12. 4, 9. ---- 14. Psal. 2, 3. Esay 9. 4. & 10. 27. & 14. 25. & 47. 6. Jer. 2. 20. & 5. 5. & 27. 8, 11. & 28. 2, 4, 11, 14. & 30. 8. Chap. 3. 27. Ezek. 34. 27.

is bound by his hand:] It is he that hath imposed it, and bound it fast to me. See Verse 12. The word here used, saith one of the Jewish Criticks, hath neither father nor mother in the Hebrew tongue; but the meaning is, it is drawn out, it is buffened: by the sinewy sty of notion he giveth unto it, it appeareth how uncertain he was of the sense of it. And another of them telleth us, that though it hath no kindred in their language, yet in the Syrian it is found used for to prick; and thence a word, but written with a samec, for a goad: but what affinity between a goad, and a yoke? Yet hence some of them would wrin; out a forced exposition, as if it were said, that God as with certain pricks marked out her transgressions upon his hands, that he might keep them in mind. So it should be like that Esay 49. 16. A third saith, it signifieth to be tied, or bound, joyned, or fastened: and this most of ours take to: who render it, some. it is composed, or joyned together; framed and made up: some, it is imposed and laid on: some, it is bound, or, fastened by his hand; and one of note, conceiving it a complexive form of speech, it is imposed, or fastened to my neck, and held in his hand: he hath not only composed and framed it, imposed or laid it upon my neck, and bound or fastened it to my neck, but he holdeth it fast in his hand, as by some cord or the like, that I cannot get or shake it off, or by any means be rid of it. The Chaldee rendreth it, it is aggravated, made hard, heavie and grievous. The old Latine, it hath watched: the Authour of it seemeth to have read misbcad; for, misbead: which that Jewish Critick seemeth also to have tripped at, when he rendreth it, it is hastned: having an eye in likelyhood to that, Jer. 1. 12. where the other word is used: but that word in a passive form is no where else found. The ancient Greek goeth the same way; nor doth one of our ancient Versions seem to swarve from it: who yet (because the waking, or watching of a yoke soundeth somewhat harsh) to qualifie the phrase, do both alter the terms; ours rendring it, the yoke of my transgressions is come at last; and the Greek, He hath awaked, or, watched over mine iniquities; as Dan. 9. 14. But this manifestly corrupteth the text, turning ol, that is; a yoke, into al, upon, or over. That of binding, or fastening, which our Version followeth, seemeth the most probable: and this also our former Versions, most of them, agree with; save that one of them, rendreth it, is fastened to his hands; another, is bound upon his hand; neither of which seemeth so plain or familiar, as that, which this our last exhibiteth.

they are wreathed,] They, that is, the penalties, whereunto by them I have made my self liable, and which God hath justly inflicted upon me for them, are made up together as in a wreath. The word here used is very pregnant and vigorous: it is derived, as some think, from the boughs, or twigs of trees or shrubs, that growing thick together, are entangled one with another: so termed Gen. 40 10. As others, from threds, that are twirled and twisted together to make up a line, cord, or cable, Eccles. 4. 12. whence a word for bedcords in the Talmud: Or, as others again, from withs and twigs, that are wreathed together for the making of baskets; or, as others lastly, from nets and snares made of tines so twisted, wherein birds, beasts, and fish, are wont to be entangled, or, weels made of such withs and twigs, for the catching of fish; because in the Chaldee and Syriack, the word is commonly used for such nets, or weels, Job 19 6. Ezek. 12. 13. & 19. 8. and such baskets, 2 Cor. 11, 33. So that the meaning seems to be, as it he had said, That God hath made up, of those penalties that he had before threatned me with twirted and twifted, or wrapped and wreathed together, as a strong cord, wherewith he holds me and keepeth me down, or as such a wreath, as is wont to be put about the necks of unruly beasts, wherewith he holdeth me so fast, that I cannot either get it off, or get out of it. no more than fowl or fish, taken in a net or snare, which the more they strive and struggle to get free ot, the more they do but math and entangle themselves. See Prov. 5. 22. & 29. 6. Esay 51. 20. Ezek. 12. 13. The ancient Greek and old Latine joyn some part of the former branch with this, rendring the text, by his hand are they wrapped, or wreathed together.

and come up upon my neck.] The wonted place of yoke, or wreath, Esay 10. 27. & 52. 2. Jer. 27. 2, 11.

he hath made my strength to fall:] Heb. he hath made my strength to stumble; and by a complexive notion consequently also to fall; so to stumble, as to fall. So N. h 4. 10. Psal. 31. 10. 2 Chron. 25. 8. & 28. 23. and by strength seemeth to be understood mon of strength; as might, for men of might, and valour, Esay 3. 25. where the same is threatned. See Verse 15.

the Lord delivered me into their hands, from whom I am not able to rise,] Hand, for, power; as Jer. 34. 20. Heb. in hands of those, from whom I am not able to rise up: for the word, hands, is in a form of regiment: and there is a defect both of the antecedent and relative: the like whereunto see Jer. 2. 8.

V. 15. The Lord hath trodden under foot] The term foot is not in the text; but the word trodden to tread down, or trample upon, (as Psal. 119. 118. where and here alone the word is found in that notion) as men do on a common path, or cause: from whence in this notion the word that so signifies, seemeth to have its original. See Esay 51. 23. to tread down is used frequently for to subdue and destroy, Psal. 7. 5. & 44. 5. & 60. 12. Dan. 7. 7. See another example of the same thing in the last branch.

all my mighty men] The word here used importeth any chief, eminent, or excellent in that kind, whereof it is used, see on Jer. 50. 12.

in the midst of me.] Or, with me; as Jer. 46. 21.

he hath called an assembly against me,] An allusion to the summoning of the people to their festivals and solemn meetings by sound of trumpet. Numb. 10. 2. See chap. 2. 22.

to crush my young men] Heb. to break (or destroy; as Esay 14. 25.) my young men, or my choyce younglers; as Esay 40. 30. before her chief men, for place and wealth, fitteft for civill employments and government: now her choyce youths, fitteft for service and military employments, Jer. 9. 21. & 11. 22. & 18. 21. & 49. 26. & 50. 30. And in these two ranks is comprehended the whole strength mentioned, Verse 14.

The Lord hath trodden the Virgin, the daughter of Judah, as in a wine-presse.] Or, hath trodden the wine-presse of the damsell the daughter of Judah: He hath trodden her as grapes, in the wine-presse of his wrath, and squiezed out her blood as wine: See the like expressions, Esay 63. 3. Rev. 19. 15. and of the stile of Virgin or damsel given to Judah, Esay 37. 22. & 47. 1. Jer. 31. 4.

V. 16. For these things I weep,] As Verse 2.

mine eye, mine eye runneth down with water,] As Jer. 13. 17. & 24. 17. Chap. 2 18. & 3. 48. and the ingemination maketh the speech more passionate: mine eye, mine eye: as, mine head, mine head, 2 Kings 4. 19. and, my bowels, my bowels, Jer. 4. 19.

(because the comforter that should relieve my soul, is far from me:] Because God should comfort me (Heb. bring back, or fetch again my soul; as Verse 11. Psal. 23. 3.) by his word and Spirit, as he had wont to do, had him withdrawn himself and standeth aloof off from me, Psal. 10. 1. Chap. 3. 43, 44. Yet the words may be taken more generally, and seem so to run in the text; because there is far from me a comforter, or reliever of my soul, that is, of me; as Psal. 3. 2. because they keep aloof off, all that should comfort or relieve me, (as Psal. 38. 11. & 88. 18.) there is none at hand to perform either office to me, Verse 12, 17, 21. so Psal. 22. 11. & 142. 4. Esay 51. 18, 19.

my children are desolate, because the enemy prevailed.] They that should relieve me, are themselves destitute of ability to help and relieve themselves; the enemy proving too strong for them, and having prevailed against them. So the same term is used, Exod. 17. 11. Psal. 65. 3. See Esay 51. 18, 20.

V. 17. Zion spreadeth forth her hands,] As craving help, or seeking relief and comfort; as Psal. 143. 6. Jer. 4. 31. there is a particle in the Hebrew before the word, hands, from whence some, as well Jewish, as others, have taken liberty to coyn a strange and uncouth interpretation of the text, thus rendring the words; she breaketh, or distributeth bread with her hands: not to others, as Prov. 31. 21, but to her self: as wanting those that should in this mourning condition perform that office to her. See on Jer. 16. 7. But one of the Jewish Masters well observeth, that the particle here used is oft redundant; as Psal. 65. 4. & 80. 5. Esay 26. 4. & 40. 10. Jer. 17. 3. Hos. 13. 9.

and there is none to comfort her:] Heb. there is not a comforter to her, or, for her. See Verse 16.

The Lord hath commanded concerning Jacob, that his adversaries should be round about him.] Because they regarded not to keep Gods charge, to observe his commands, Verse 18. God therefore by a secret instinct gave it in charge to their enemies, and made out a commission to them, commanding them (as Esay 10. 6. Jer. 34. 22.) to beset and begirt them on every side, Jer. 4. 17. So Jer. 49. 5. and so 50. 15, 29. See Verse 3.

Jerusalem is as a menstruous woman among them.] Or, as an abomination; as a person severed from the society or accesse of any; such an one as every one shunneth, that none can abide to come near? or, as some abominable thing, so vile and foul, that none can endure once to touch, for being polluted and defiled therewith. See Lev. 15. 19 ---- 27. & 20. 21. Ezek. 17. 19, 20. & 36. 17. and before, Verse 8.

V. 18. The Lord is righteous,] Though the complain of Gods harsh and severe carriage towards her, and sharp dealings with her; yet she acknowledgeth Gods justice therein, and that she had suffered no more than what the had justly deserved, and had procured to her self by her sins. So Dan. 9. 7. Neh. 9. 33. Psal. 119. 137. and 145. 17. Jer. 12. 1.

for I have rebelled against his commandement.] Heb. against his mouth; that is, against the words of his mouth; as Job 23, 12. Or, the law of his mouth, Psal. 119. 72. as it is in those places more fully expressed. See the like reason of affliction rendred, Psal. 107. 11.

hear, I pray you, all people, and behold my sorrow,] See before, V. 11.

my Virgins and my young men are gone into captivity.] Or, my damsels and youths. See Verse 3, 4. no sex or age hath been spared, 2 Chron. 36. 17.

V. 19. I called for my lovers, but they deceived me;] Or, When I called to my lovers, they failed me; as Cuap. 3. 55. See Verse 2. Jer. 22. 20. & 30. 14. Job 19. 13 ---- 19.

my Priests and mine Elders gave up the ghost in the city; while they sought their meat to relieve their souls.] They perished through famine, wanting food to relieve them, and not meeting with, but missing of what they fought for, Chap. 2. 10, 19. Jer. 14. 18. & 38 9. See Verse 11. Heb. and they brought back, or fetcht again their soules, for, so to do, or, that they might so do; as Josh. 24. 9. 2 Kings 4. 42, 43. Mal. 1. 19. Or, wherewith they might so do as Psal. 106. 19. Of the form of speech, see on Verse 15, 16.

V. 20. Behold, O Lord, for I am in distresse,] Or, In what distresse I am: Or, how I am in distresse. See Verse 9. 11.

my bowels are troubled;] They boyle and work within me, as the sea, Job 41. 31. Or, as waters that become thick and miry, when they are much stirred and troubled, Esay 57. 20. Ezek. 34. 18. for from thence is the word taken, Job 16. 16. Psal. 46. 3. See Esay 16. 11. Jer. 48. 36. So chap. 2. 11.

mine heart is turned within me;] Heb. in the midst of me; as Psal. 36. 10. & 55. 4. & 109. 22. Jer. 23. 9. Or, my heart turneth it selfe up and down: it cannot rest or be quiet; for thele passives have oft a reciprocal sense: as Ier. 36. 19. See the same expression applyed to God himself, Hos. 11. 8.

for I have grievously rebelled;] Or, because; as v 16. Heb. rebelling rebelled: the aggravateth her own sin; as David his, 2 Sam. 24. 10.

abroad the sword bereaveth,] Or. bereaved, slew: without the city the sword made havock. See Deut. 32. 25. Jer. 6. 25. & 14. 18. Ezek. 7. 15.

at home there is as death.] Or here was within the the city famin, Verse 11, 19 as bad as death by the sword, or worse rather, Chap. 4 9. See 2 Kings 25. 3. Jer. 52. 6.

V. 21. They have heard that I sigh, there is none to comfort me;] My pretended friends, though they heard of my doleful condition; yet would none of them afford me any relief or comfort. See verse 2, 16, 17, 19. for the same things in passionate speeches are oft repeated. See 2 Sam. 18. 33. though there want not that expound this of her professed adversaries, Have heard of my distresse and disconsolate state, that there is none to comfort me; even all mine Adversaries have heard of these straits, that I am in, and rejoyce to hear how thou hast dealt with me. But the former floweth from the text more freely.

all mine enemies have heard of my trouble, they are glad] Or, and are glad: my miseries are matter of joy to them. So Psal. 38. 16. & 40. 15. Jer. 48. 27. Ezek. 25. 6.

that thou hast done it:] That thou hast dealt thus hardly with me, and given me up to the mercy of my merciless adversaries, Esay 47. 6. or, as some read the words but (as Jer. 31. 33. & 43. 3.) thou hast done it, and I must bear it; as Psal. 39. 9. Mic. 7. 9. there is a defect of the pronoun; as Psal. 22. 31. & 109. 21.

thou wilt bring the day that thou hast called,] Or, proclaimed; as Dan. 3. 4. & 4. 14. that is, published by thy Prophets, Esay 13 & 14. 46. & 47 Jer. 25. 12. 13. & 29. 10. & 50. & 51. Thou hast fee a certain time, and that in his due season shall come, wherein thou wilt both relieve and deliver thy people and take vengeance on those that now in their calamities insult over them, Prov. 24. 17, 18. Jer. 51. 49. Chap. 4 21. Mic 7. 9, 10. See Jer. 50. 31.

and they shall be like unto me.] Or, then (as Chap. 5 1. 7.) that shall befall them, that is now befallen me; they shall fare then as I now do, Psal. 137. 8. Jer. 50. 15, 29. & 51. 24.

V. 22. Let their wickednesse come before thee:] Be remembred by thee, to take vengeance upon them for it. See the like pathetical imprecations, Psal. 109. 14, 15. & 137. 8, 9. Jer. 18. 23. Chapter 3. 64.

and do unto them, as thou hast done unto me for my transgressions:] Let them drink of the same cup, that I have drunk of, Esay 51. 22, 23. Jer. 25. 28, 29.

for my sighes are many,] Or, great, and grievous; as Deut. 31. 17, 21.

and my heart is faint,] As Esay 1. 5. Jer. 8. 18. See Verse 13.

CHAP. II.

Verse 1. How hath the Lord covered the daughter of Zion with a cloud in his anger,] This second single Alphabet consisteth much of the same subject, save further amplifications only added, with the former; being spent most of it in complaints of the grievousnesse of their forepatled and present calamities, Verse 1 ---- 20. and shut up with some addreffes unto God, verse 20 ---- 22.

How? These passionate interrogations, as Chap. 1. 1, 8. and 4. 1. are very vigorous, and add much force and life to the things spoken of, of what kinde soever; as intimating them to be matters beyond expreffion. So Psal. 3, 1, 2. and 31. 19. and 139. 17. Rom. 11. 33. 1 Pet. 4. 17, 18.

covered with a cloud! Or, with a thick cloud, Heb. thickned, or, clouded. for it cometh from a word that hath a notion of thickneffe, Jer. 52. 21. and signifieth not a cloud simply, (there is another word for that) but a thick cloud, Exod. 19. 9. Esay 25. 5. and the Prophet may seem to have covered the word of purpose, to expresse the darkesome and gloomy condition of his people in their present calamity, into which they were brought out of that lightsome estate and fun-shine of prosperity, that they had formerly enjoyed: for the word is no where found but here; and it is by some not altogether improbably deemed, to have in way of opposition some glance at that glorious bright and resplendent cloud, wherein God appeared, as a signe of his gracious presence and protection, on Mount Sion, at the dedication of the Temple, 1 King. 8. 10. alluded to Esay 4. 5. 6. See the like expressions, Chap. 3. 21 Joel 2. 2. Amos 5. 18, 20.

and cast down from heaven unto the earth the beauty of Israel,] Or, how hath he thrown down, &c. supplied from the former branch; as Chap. 1. 1. from heaven to earth. A proverbial expression of a great and grievous downfall from the highest pitch of prosperity, to the lowest degree of adversity and misery. So Esay 14. 12. Obad. 4. Mat. 11. 23. a defect of the particle of motion to a place, as 2 Sam. 24. 10. Esay 49. 23. Jer. 2. 10.

and remembred not his foot-stool in the day of his anger?] The whole earth is in generall termed Gods foot-stool, Esay 66. 1. but the land of Israel in a specialty, as some think here, in respect of other lands: but in it more specially his Temple, and the Ark therein, 1 Chr. 28. 2. Psal. 99. 5. & 132. 7. which God had not spared, but had suffered to be surprised by the Chaldeans; as before by the Philistines. 2 Sam. 4. 11. Psal. 78. 60, 61. and that, at this second time without recovery.

V. 2. The Lord hath swallowed up all the inhabitants of Jacobs] Destroyed the whole country and all his cities. So verse 5. See of the metaphor, Esay 49. 10. Some Interpreters of prime note continue the interogative in this verse, and so forward all along unto verse 12. but of that there seemeth no necessity.

and hath not pitied,] So verse 17.

he hath thrown down in his wrath the strong holds of the daughter of Judah:] 2 Sam. 8. 9. 40. Verse 5.

he hath brought them down to the ground:] Heb. made them touch the ground, as Ezay 25. 12.

he hath polluted the Kingdome and the Princes thereof.] Dealt with it and them as with a thing polluted and unclean, Esay 19. 22. or, as with a thing no more sacred and inviolable; by delivering them up into the power of prophane people, 1 Sam. 26. 9. Psal. 89. 39. 40. & 74. 3. Esay 43. 28.

V. 3. He hath cut off in his anger all the horn of Israel:] Heb. burning heat. or, fierceness of face, or nose, as Deut. 29. 24. chap. 1. 12. and, horn, for glory and strength, 1 Sam. 2. 1. Psal. 75. 10. Jer. 48. 25. royal majesty especially, Psal. 89. 24. & 132. 17. So verse 17.

he hath drawn back his right hand from before the enemy.] Heb. he hath caused his right hand to turn back. This some understand of Gods right hand, Psal. 17. 7. & 44. 3. & 118. 15, 16. and excound it of his withdrawing from them his powerfull protection and succour, upon the enemies approach, which he was wont formerly to afford them, Psal. 11. and this may seem backed with what followeth, Verse 4. Howbeit, I conceive it may well be understood of his, that is, Israels, right hand; that God had caused his hand to turn backward; for though God be said to withdraw his hand even his right hand, in that place of the Psalmist: yet is he no where said to turn it backward: but as one is said not to draw back his hand, when he goeth on constantly in the pursuit of his enemies, Josh. 8. 26. so is he not unfitly said to withdraw, or, turn his hand backward, when he surceaseth either to pursue, or oppose them: and sheeth away before them: and God is said to cause their right hand to turn back; as elsewhere to turn the edge of their sword; when he doth not enable them on hand to it in fight, Psal. 89. 43. and this I take to be the genuine sense of the place.

and burned against Jacob like a flaming fire, which devoureth round about.] he, that is, God in his wrath: or, it, that is, the fervour of his anger, before-mentioned, (so one of the Jewish Doctors, not amiss.) hath burnt, as Psal. 79. 5. & 89. 46. Heb. like a flame of fire; as Esay 4. 5. it hath devoured round about, Esay 42. 25. So Psal. 50. 3. & 97. 3.

V. 4. He hath bent his bow] To wit, against him. So chap. 3. 12. Psal. 7. 12. Heb. tread it, as Jer. 50. 14.

like an enemy:] Being constrained so to carry himself toward them by their sins, Esay 63. 10. Jer. 20. 14. So verse 5. See the like complaint of Job, but in another cafe, Job 13. 24. & 33. 10.

he stood with his right hand as an adversary.] Heb. he set his in hostile maner; as the Angel against Balaam. Num. 22. 23, 31. having his right hand furnished with deadly weapons to fight against them, whom he was wont to fight for against their foes, Esay 63. 10. Jer. 21. 5. So chap. 3. 3.

and slew all that were pleasant to the eye, in the Tabernacle of the daughter of Zion:] Heb. all desireable of the eye; a chap. 1. 10 but there of jewels and treasure: here of persons, as Ezek. 24. 16. for youth, personage, place of dignity, or otherwise conspicuous and desireable. See 2 Kings 24. 7, 18. — 22. Chap. 1. 15. Jer. 9. 21. and of the term tabernacle, see Jer. 10. 20.

he poured out his fury like fire.] See Jer. 6. 11. & 10. 25. chap. 1. 13. Verse 3.

V. 5. The Lord was an enemy:] See on Verse 4.

he hath swallowed up Israel; he hath swallowed up all her pleasant palaces: see verse 2. Psal. 9. 21.

he hath destroyed his strong holds:] So also Verse 2.

and hath encreased in the daughter of Judah mourning and lamentation.] Two terms rising from the same root joyned together to expresse an eminency of lamentation. See the same 29. 2. and expressions of the like, Nahum. 2. 7. Zeph. 1. 15.

V. 6. And he hath violently taken away his tabernacle, as if it were of a garden;] He hath violently taken away (as the word is used, Jer. 23. 22. thrown down and removed) his tabernacle, (his Sanctuary or Temple, so termed, Psal. 27. 5. & 31. 20. & 76. 2.) as of a garden; that is, as a shade, or bowel of a garden: some such sorry thing as the Keeper or gardiner setteth up in a garden, wherein to repose himselfe, Job 27. 18. Esay 1. 8. a defect of the noun regent to be supplyed from the former branch, as the like, Psal. 18. 33. & 103. 5. Esay 5. 28. & 63. 2. Jer. 50. 9. therefore the supplyed need not be precisely the same, but of somewhat proportionable thereunto: as Dan. 4. 33. Some render it, his hedge, or fence; because the word it cometh of signifieth as well to protect or fence, as to hide and cover: and expound it of Gods withdrawing his protection from them, Psal. 5. 12. & 80. 12. & 89. 40. Esay 5. 5. But I find not where the word is used for a hedge; and the former forteeth better with what followeth.

he hath destroyed his places of the assembly:] Heb. his assembly, or, set place of assembly; put collectively, as some, for his places of assembly: not the Temple onely, but the Synagogues also, as Psal. 74. 7, 8. but he seemeth here more specially to intend that of Jerusalem on Sion. See chap. 1. 4.

The Lord hath caused the solemn feasts and Sabbaths to be forgotten in Sion.] The rites wherein people were wont to meet on such dayes, and for such purposes being demolished.

and hath despised in the indignation of his anger the King and the Priest.] For the enemy spared neither, v. 2, 20, chap. 4. 16. & 5. 12. the words are indefinite King and Priest; but yet they seem to have a more speciall eye to the despiteful usage of Zedekiah, Jer. 52. 10, 11. and the slaughter of Seraiah the chief Priest, Jer. 52. 24, 27. indignation of wrath, for, wrathful indignation: as, fervour of wrath, for, wrathful fervour, Chap. 1. 12.

V. 7. The Lord hath cast off his Altar:] That was as his standing board or table, Ezek. 41. 22. but was demolished together with his house the Temple.

he hath abhorred his Sanctuary:] Or, disfooted, or destroyed; as the word is used, Psal. 89. 39. and the word is no where else found in scripture.

he hath given up into the hand of the enemy the walls of her palaces] Heb. shut up in their hand, given up wholly unto, and left in their power. 2 as Psal. 31. 8. Chap. 1. 7. as well the Kings and Princes palaces, as the Temple of his own. Jer. 52. 13. So Verse 5, the walls of them because the principal parts of strength that should se ure the rest. So verse 8. Amos 1. 7, 10.

they have made a noyse in the house of the Lord, as in a day of a solemn Feast.] The enemy is now as loud in blaspheming of God with shouting and sounding their triumphant songs to his dishonour in his house, as his own people had wont to be in singing of hymnes and Psalmes of praise there, at the solemn feasts, to his honour, Psal. 74. 3, 4. with 81. 1, 2, 3.

V. 8. The Lord hath purposed to destroy the wall of the daughter of Zion:] Or, The Lords purpose was to do it: and what he was resolved upon, he hath done, see verse 17. the walls, as before, verse 7. because the chief strength of a city: So verse 18.

he hath stretched out a line.] He hath stretched out over Jerusalem the line of destruction: not such a line, as workmen use to mete out their building by, to make it proportionable to their model; but such a line, as they use to mark by, what is to be cut off, and how far to be demolished: see 2 Sam. 8. 2. so some; or, as othe s, a levellin, line, to level the ground with, where the city fometime stood, and to lay it all eaven: See the like expressions, 2 Kings 21. 13. Esay 34. 11. As for those conceits that a learned Writer here suggesteth, either of a cord, wherewith a beast is tyed to be led to the butcher; or of a line of exact justice, in rendring to persons delinquent according to their demerits, Esay 28. 17. they seem both to swarve from the intendment of the Prophet in this place.

he hath not withdrawn his hand from destroying:] Or, he withdrew not his hand: as Josh. 8. 18. 26. See on verse 3. he gave not over untill he had ruined all. Heb. from swallowing up; as verse 2. 5.

therefore he made the rampart and the wall to lament,] Or, but he made, or untill he made, (Heb. and, but so the copulative is used, Jer. 23. 22. Dan. 12. 12.) bulwark and wall (Esay 26. 1.) to mourn, as Chap. 1. 4 Esay 14. 4. Jer. 4. 28 and 23. 10.

they languished together.] Or, ja need; and were made to fall, as a man doth when he fainteth away: See the like expression, Esay 14. 4 & 33. 9. Jer. 14. 2.

V. 9 His gates are sunk into the ground;] The Jewish Doctors upon the place, out of their Talmudists, tell us strange stories, of the gates of Jerusalem sinking down into the ground, that they might not come into the enemies power, because they were the work of David's hands: And some of ours run as wildly wide another way, expounding it of the Priests and Judges that were wont to sit in the gates, chap 5. 14. I conceive no more to be meant, to say that the gates were thrown down to the ground, and lying along there, (both of them, and such parts of them as had escaped the breach. Neh. 3. 2. 3, 13. 7.) were buried in the rubbish when the walls were demolished: See Neh. 2. 13, 14. & 4. 10.

he hath destroyed and broken her bars;] He, that is, the Lord, verse 8. or, (the verb taken indefinitely; as Job 7. 3. Habb. 3. 17.) her bars are destroyed and broken; the bars that kept fast the gates Psal. 107. 16 Jer 51. 30.

her King and her Princes are among the Gentiles:] Zedekiah, and such of his Princes as escaped the enemies sword, are abroad in captivity, Kings 25. 7. 2 Chr. 36. 20.

the Law is no more:] Heb. It not; as Jer. 31. 15. It is neither read nor regarded, neither publickly taught nor constantly kept: Yea, the Tables of it lost, and the Volumes burnt together with the Temple: They are now justly deprived of it, that little regarded it before-time when they had it, Jer. 5. 4, 5. & 8. 8, 9 Hosh 8. 12. Habb. 1. 4 A learned Annotator annexeth this clause to the fore-going member, thus rendering the words, Her King and her Princes are amongst the Heathen, without Law: that is, deprived of authority and legislative power: but when a plain and familiar sense freely offereth it self, it is but lost labour to seek out one further fetcht, and less probable.

her Prophets also find no Vision from the Lord] Find none, that is, have none: as chap. 1. 6. See the like complaint, Psalm 74. 9. and the same mentioned Ezek. 7. 26 Mic. 3. 6

V. 10. The Elders of the daughter of Zion sit upon the ground.] Not in those chairs, and on those seats, wherein they were wont to sit in judgement. Psalm 122. 5. Mat. 19. 28. & 23. 2. See 2. 5. 14.

and keep silence:] Or they are silent; they pass no sentence now as they had wont to do, Deut. 17. 9, 11.

they have cast up dust upon their heads:] In token of extream grief; as on such occasions was usual with them, Job 2. 12. 2 Sam. 13. 19. Esay 15. 3. Jer. 48. 38.

they have girded themselves with sackcloth.] Or, they are girt with sackcloth, Heb. sacks: so Jer. 4. 8. & 49. 3.

the Virgins of Jerusalem hang down their heads to the ground] Out of shame, grief, and confusion, as Esay 5. 15. See Jer. 14. 2, 3. Zach. 1. 21. as the contrary is made a note of alacrity and cheerfulnesse, of courage and confidence, Psal. 110. 7. Luke 21. 28. See Chap. 1. 4.

V. 11 Mine eyes do fail with tears;] As Psal. 6. 7. See ch. 5. 17.

my bowels are troubled,] See Chap. 1 20.

my liver is powred upon the earth;] My gall or choler is cast up: as with extremity of grief, mixt with indignation, is oft done: So Job 16. 13. my gall is powred upon the ground. They straine the text too far, who would give it an hyperbolical notion, as if it were said; all the blood is gone from my liver, the forge wherein it is framed, and is spilt upon the ground: and they much more, that go further, expounding it, as if it were said; my blood is broken; and my bowels powred out as it was with Judas, Acts 1. 18 and so they warp it no leſſe: who, because the liver is deemed the seat of desire and delight, would have the meaning to be, all my desire or delights are gone, they are all fallen to the ground, all come to an end; as it is with the dead, Eccl. 9. 6.

for the destruction of the daughters of my people,] Heb. breach, as Chap. 3. 47. Jer. 4. 20. Of the term daughters, see on Jer 9. 1.

because the children and the sucking swoon in the streets] Or, faint, and go away, for want of food. Heb. are covered, or overwhelmed. See on Esay 57. 6 and it may seem to be a borrowed form of speech, taken from that mist or cloud that cometh before the eyes of those that are fainting or swooning, and taketh away their sight. See Esay 15. 7. Of the children and sucklings, see Jer. 6. 11. & 9. 20. 44. 7.

V. 12. they say to their mothers,] Or, saids as of a thing past, in the time of the siege: they called to them for food, Chap. 4. 4.

where is corne and wine?] Meat and drink, corn, for, bread, as Zach. 9. 17. as bread, for, bread-corn, Esay 28. 28.

when they swooned as the wounded in the streets of the city,] Being in a like condition, as bad, if not worse, the one with the other. See Chap. 1. 20. & 4. 9.

when their soul was poured out into the mothers bosome.] Heb. poured out it self; as Job 30. 16 when they went away in their mothers laps, wanting wherewith to relieve them, ch. 4. 9. v. 11.

V. 13. What thing shall I take to witnesse for thee? what thing shall I liken to thee, O daughter of Jerusalem? what shall I equall to thee, that I may comfort thee, O Virgin daughter of Zion?] What arguments shall I use wherewith to comfort thee, or to convince and perswade thee, that thou hast not so much cause of grief as thou pretendest? Or rather, What example shall I give of any that have been in like misery? that may be a fit parallel to thy present calamitous condition? so Esay 51. 19 Chap. 1. 12. Nah 3. 7. Of the terms here given her, see Esay 37. 22. Chap 1. 15.

for thy breach is great like the sea;] As vast and wide, as the sea is broad, Job 11. 9. or rather, as a breach of the sea: the word breach supplyed from the former branch: See the like on verse 6. such a breach as not some small river, but the sea is wont to make, when it hath rent asunder and got through the sea-walls, that before kept it out; such as cannot be made up again. See the like, Jer. 51. 42. Ezek. 26. 3. Job 30. 14.

who can heal thee?] Heb. shall heal thee: the verb in a potential notion; as Jer. 55. 9.

V. 14. thy Prophets] Not mine, such as I sent to thee, but thine own, such as thou hadst chosen to thy self, and waſt willing to be led by, Jer. 2. 8. & 5. 31. & 5. 31. & 14. 13, 14 & 29. 8, 15.

have seen vain and foolish things for thee;] Heb. vanity and unsavory, or without relish. Job 6. 6. that is, visions of vanity, and such at were not found and unsavoury: the noun supplyed from the verb; as Ezek. 13. 11. They took upon them to be seers, but saw not what they should see, and told what they saw not, nothing but vain and frivolous stuffe, the froth of their own fancies, Jer. 23. 16, 26, & 27, 14, 15.

and they have not discovered thine iniquity to turn away thy captivity:] They did not thy sins before thee, to bring thee to repentance, whereby to prevent those miseries might have been prevented, Jer. 6. 13, 14. & 8. 11. & 23. 17, 22.

but have seen for thee false burdens, and causes of banishment] Heb. and; as Jer. 52. 8, 16. an I burdens of vanity, and of expulsions; that is, say some, burdensome, or sad, and prophecies, (as Esay 18. 1.) but false ones, against the enemy, against Babylon. Jer. 38. 2. ----4. 11. & 29. 21, 31. But the word seemeth here to be taken in a larger sense; as Prov. 31. 1. Zach. 12. 1. for any speech, lesson, sermon, or saying uttered; as the verb, whence it cometh, is used for to take up, that is, to utter, report, made use of in speech or discourse; as Exod. 20. 7. & 23. 1. Num. 23. 7, 18 & 24. 3. Esay 23. 7. & 14. 14 and the meaning is, such false and flattering sermons or prophecies, as were a means of heartening the people unto, and hardning them in their sinfull courses, and consequently of procuring their captivity, Esay 3. 12. Jer. 23. 14, 15, 17, 31, 32. and 27. 9, 10.

V. 15. All that passe by thee clap their hands at thee:] Heb. Passengers of the way (as chap. 1. 12. Psal. 89. 41.) clap on thee; or, over thee, with the hands; to wit, in way of derision and contempt, Job 27. 23. See chap. 1. 18 the pronoun is wanting, as Jer. 6. 3. & 10. 1.

they hisse and wag the head at the daughter of Jerusalem.] The like notes of derision, of the former whereof see Jer. 25. 9. & 29. 18. verse 16. Of the latter, 2 Kings 19. 21. Psal. 22. 7. Esay 37. 22. Mat. 27. 39. See chap. 1. 8 saying,] Supplyed, as Jer. 51. 14.

Is this the city that men call the perfection of beauty? As Psal. 50. 2. the joy of the whole earth?] Or, land; as Esay 5. 8. & 6. 12. So Psal. 48. 2. See of Tyre, Esay 23. 7. and of Babylon, the like, Jer. 51. 41.

V. 16. All thine enemies have opened their mouth against thee,] Or, widened it; as in mocking is wont to be done, Job 16. 10. Psal. 22. 23. Esay 59. 4. & Chap 3. 46.

they hisse.] As Verse 15.

and gnash their teeth:] In disdain and despite; or, indignation joyned with scorne, Job 16. 9. Psal. 35. 16. & 37. 12. & 112. 10. Acts 7. 54.

they say, We have swallowed her up:] So Psal. 35. 25. the same terms se: also, Psal. 56. 2. (where the like defect of the pronoun) & 124. 3. Prov. 1. 12. verse 5.

certainly this is the day that we looked for; we have found, we have seen it.] That which we have long looked for, and much desired, having at length compassed, we now behold with delight. See Psal. 35. 21. & 59. 10. & 92. 11. Job 16. 9. Mic. 4. 11. Chap. 1. 7. The pronoun demonstrative in the former branch for the verb substantive; as Esay 66. 1. Jer. 6. 19. and a defect of the pronoun it in the latter; as Jer. 12. 11. & 17. 21. Yet the text may thus be rendred, this the day that we expected. we have found, we have seen, this the day: as, him the child, Exod. 2. 6. and him the wicked one, Prov. verbs 5. 22.

V. 17. The Lord hath done that which he had devised:] Or, performed (as Chap. 1. 21.) what he purposed: as the like word was before rendred, Verse 8. See the like, Jer. 51. 12. 29.

he hath fulfilled his word that he had commanded in the dayes of old:] Or, he hath put in execution, (as Esay 10. 22.) that decree, or edict, of his, (as the like word is used, Est. 1. 5, and 9. 32.) which he had enacted (as Deut. 33. 4.) long since. Heb. from dayes of antiquity, or store-time. as Chap. 1. 7. Esay 37. 26. the menaces that by Moses he long since denounced, and annexed in way of sanction unto those Laws that then he preferibed his people, at his taking of them into covenant with him Lev. 26. 14 & 27. Deut. 28. 15, &c. to which may also be added the renewed comminations of Jeremy and other of Gods Prophets, both in former and latter times. See Jer. 7. 25 & 11. 3, 4.

he hath thrown down and hath not pitied:] As ver. 2. 21.

and he hath caused thine enemy to rejoyce over thee: Or, but, as ver. 14. See the like complaints, Psal. 38. 16. & 89. 42 Chap. 1. 21.

he hath set up the horn of thine adversaries.] Advanced them; given them occasion of triumphing in thy ruine See 1 Sam. 2. 1. Psal. 75. 10 ver. 3. and the like in effect, Psal. 89. 42.

V. 18. Their heart cried unto the Lord;] Some render these words in an imperative form, Let their heart cry unto the Lord: and of those some would have them to be the Prophets words to the people inviting and inciting them to seek unto God for mercy and relief: other some the Chaldeans, in way of derision, advising them to call to their God for protection and delivery, as Elias did Baals Priests, 1 King. 18. 7. But the moſt conceive them as spoken in way of enumeration, relating what the people did when they saw the enemy break in upon them, and that by the wall of the city, it may be, having some breaches made in it, (which might give occasion of the next passage) either directed to it, or concerning it, that then bethinking themselves of him, whom they had neglected before, all other helps and hopes failing, they betook themselves by prayer to him. So Esay 26. 16 ------28. Hos. 5. 15. and 6. 1. The heart cannot properly be said to cry, no more than to speak. V. 1 as it is said to speak, Psal. 27. 8. when from the fulnesse of it the mouth speaketh, Mat. 12. 34. so it is also to cry, when it is with grief and sorrow so full, that it must needs by such means vent it self. And yet can it not be here concluded, that the persons here intended, did sincerely cry unto, or call upon God, because their heart is said to cry and they consequently to cry from or with, the heart: for though to cry from the heart, be sometime used for to cry sincerely; to wit, when one crieth out of a true touch and remorse for sin as sin, as that which is offensive and displeasing to God, Ezek. 6. 9. and so it is said of some that they cry not with their heart, though they howl upon their beds, Hos. 7. 14. yet one heart may be said to cry, and men to cry with the heart, or, from the heart, and to weep heartily, when they do either sensibly, though not sincerely; (and so crying with the heart and with the whole heart is as Psalm 119. 145. may be two distinct things,) when they do not fain nor counterfeit grief, make as though they were grieved at the heart, when there is no such matter: as Ismael did to delude some, Jer. 41. 6. but are serious in their grief, their heart is full of it, as well as their tongues with expreſſions of it: as it was with Esau, Gen. 27. 38. Heb. 12. 17 and those Israelites, Psal. 78. 34. ---37. it was serious with both, sincere with neither: and so might be with the generality of those, whom the Prophet here intendeth. See Jer. 22. 27, 28.

teth off the thred of his relation, and feemeth to turn his ſpeech to the wall of the city at the breach whereof in likelihood ſuch out-cries were every general from all ſorts; as calling upon it, though a dead and ſenſeleſs thing to weep and cry perpetually; and the walls may be ſaid to weep in a figurative ſpeech, as well as the ways to mourn, Chap. 1.4. but by the wall, ſay moſt Interpreters, is here meant the city: and the city, ſay ſome, as being now nothing but bare walls without houſing and inhabitants. Others, the wall by a Synecdoche, put for the whole city; and the city then by a Metonymie, for the inhabitants: and ſo the wall at ſecond hand by a Metaleptis, for the wonted inhabitants of the city, that lived within compaſs of it: but I ſuppoſe the wall here to be taken in its native ſenſe, for the wall of the city demoliſhed and ruined, as the ground and ſubject matter of the mourning in this manner and meaſure required. I ſhall adde another Interpretation, and leave both to the conſideration of the reader. Thoſe words, O wall, or, O the wall of the daughter of Sion, may be conceived as the ſubject matter of the out-cries then uſed, when the walls were either battered in aſſault or demoliſhed after the ſurpriſal of the city: which being annexed to the foregoing branch; the Prophet in the next place add. cleeth himſelf unto her, whoſe walls they were, that occaſioned the out-cry, inciting her to that conſtant courſe of lamenting, to move God thereby to mercy and commiſeration towards her: thus taken, there will be no difficulty or hardneſſe at all in the whole paſſage, but all go on ſmoothly.

let tears run down like a river day and night:] Heb. make tear (for tears, as Pſal. 39.11. to deſcend (as Jer. 13. 17.) an river, (in great abundance, Pſal. 119.136.) day and night: inceſſantly, as Jer. 9.1. & 14.17. So chap. 1. 16. & 3.48.

give thy ſelf no reſt ;] Or, no intermiſſion; as it is rendred, chap. 3.49. or, remiſſion, abatement; as the verb it cometh of ſeemeth to import, Pſal 36.8. & 77.2. in which latter place either notion may well conſiſt.

let not the apple of thine eyes ceaſe.] Heb. let not (or, ſuffer not) the daughters of thine eye to be ſilent: that which we call the ball, or apple, of the eye; from the ſpeciall figure of it; that the Hebrews call the daughter of the eye; either as the deareſt and tendereſt part of it, Deut. 32. 10. Prov. 7.2. or from the figures that ſeem to appear in it; with alſo for is termed by the Greeks the damſel, by the Latines, the babe of the eye. So Pſal. 17. 18. Zach. 2. 8. in the former part of which place is another word alſo uſed for it, as for motion the ſame, ſo for notation, nor much unlike to this latter: and to be ſilent, is commonly uſed for to ceaſe; becauſe men ceaſe or forbear to ſpeak, when they are ſilent. So Job 30. 27. Pſal. 35. 15.

V. 19. Ariſe] From thy bed; as Pſal. 119. 62.

cry in the night] Break thy ſelf of thy ſleep and thy reſt, that thou mayeſt give God no reſt, but be importunate with him, as Iſay 62. 6, 7.

in the beginning of the watches,] Heb. in the head; as Exod. 40. 2. either when the watch is firſt ſet, or at the beginning of each watch: for by ſeveral watches was the night diſtinguiſhed, Exod. 14.24. Judg. 7.19. 1 Sam. 11.11. Mat. 14. 25. Luke 12. 38. See the like expreſſions, Pſal. 119. 147, 148. & 130.6.

pour out thine heart like water before the face of the Lord] So Pſal. 42.4. & 143.2. & 22.14. 1 Sam. 1.15. & 7.6.

lift up thine hands towards him,] As Jerem. 14. 18. Pſalm 28. 2. Chap. 3. 41.

for the life of thy young children] Heb. ſoul; as Jer. 34. 10. that God may pity and ſpare, if not thee, yet them. See Jon. 4. 11.

that faint for hunger] Verſe 12. Chap. 3.4.

in the top of every ſtreet.] Heb. head: as Prov. 1. 21. Ezek. 16. 31. Iſay 51. 20. So Chap. 4. 1.

V. 20. Behold, O Lord, and conſider, to whom thou haſt done this:] Heb. See and behold. (as Iſay 64. 9.) with whom thou haſt dealt thus; to wit, with thoſe that are thine own people: and what more cauſe thou do to thine enemies? the uſual plea of Gods people or others in their behalf, to move him to mercy towards them, Exod. 32. 11. Deut. 9. 26, 29. Iſay 26. 17. & 63. 19. & 64. 9. Jer. 14. 19, 21. & 30. 14. thus the word here found is accordingly again uſed for to do, or deal, Verſe 22. Howbeit, becauſe it is ſometime uſed for cutting, or gathering, of cluſters, to wit, of grapes in vintage, or rather of the gleaning of them, Lev. 19. 10 Deut. 24. 21. and from thence applyed to the cutting off and deſtroying of people, Judg. 20. 45. Jer. 6. 9. upon the ground of the ancient Greek and old Latine ſo taking the word here, render the text, See and conſider whom thou haſt vintaged: but this the ſtructure of the words will not admit: for that word in that notion is never found with the particle here ſubjoyned.

ſhall the women eat their fruit,] Or, ſhould (as Jer. 5. 7.) women eat their own fruit; their children, as Pſal. 21. 10. the fruit of their womb, as Deut. 7. 13. & 28. 4, 18. Pſal. 127. 3.

and children of a ſpan long?] Or, children, &c. for the copulative is here needleſſe. The word here uſed cometh from a term, that ſignifieth properly, not a ſpan, but an hand-breadth, or four fingers breadth; or, as the Latines uſe to expreſſe it, a palm breadth, Pſal. 39. 5. Eſay 40. 12. and ſo the old Latine here rendreth it, of the meaſure of an hand, or, a palm breadth: and the term is uſed indeed proverbially, as in Hebrew, ſo in other languages, to deſign thereby any thing of a very ſmall and ſhort ſize: and ſo in the place of the Pſalmiſt before mentioned. Howbeit, becauſe the verb drawn from it, ſignifieth to mete, or to ſtretch out, ought with the hand; as Iſay 48. 13. my right hand hath meted out, or ſtretched out, the heavens: hence both the Chaldee Paraphraſt and the Rabbines here expound it, the children of ſwadlings; the children whoſe limbes the mothers were wont to ſtretch out and ſtroke, as if they were meting or meaſuring them, with their hands, to faſhion them, and make them grow ſtraight and proportionable; and to the ſame purpoſe alſo to make them up with ſwathing bands; for this root ariſeth from a word frequent in the Talmudiſts, for a wrapper of linnen, wherewith to wrap up ought; as alſo for a weil, or apron, of the like, in Scripture, Ruth 3. 15. Eſay 3. 22. and this Interpretation receiveth further ſtrength from what followeth here, Verſe 22. that for want of food women ſhould eat their children in the ſtrait ſieges that this people ſhould endure, was before threatned, Lev. 26. 29. Deut. 28. 53—57. Jer. 19. 9. Ezek. 5. 10. and was accordingly at ſundry times effected, 2 Kings 6. 28, 29. Chap. 4. 3, 10. See Joſeph the Jew of the Jewiſh War, lib. 7. cap. 21.

ſhall the Prieſt and the Prophet be ſlain in the Sanctuary of the Lord?] Or, ſhould. Should God endure to ſee his own houſe polluted with the blood of his own Prieſts, and ſuch as boar, the name at leaſt of his Prophets: for I ſuppoſe there was no true Prophet ſlaine there by the enemy; though they had themſelves ſomerime deſiled it with the blood of ſuch, 2 Chr. 24. 21. See before, verſe 6.

V. 21. Ly young and the old lye on the ground in the ſtreets: my Virgins and my young men are fallen by the ſword:] For the Chaldeans ſpared none, regarding neither age nor ſex, 2 Chr. 36. 17.

thou haſt ſlain them in the day of thine anger; thou haſt killed and not pitied.] The Chaldeans were but thine inſtruments, the executioners of thy wrath, Eſay 10. 5, 15. See Jer. 33. 5. ſo Chap. 1. 12, 15. Verſe 17. the pronoun is not in the text, nor the copulative: nor is either here needfull, no more than Chap. 3. 43. where both are omitted. See Verſe 4 17

V. 22. Thou haſt called as in a ſolemn day my terrours round about; ſo that in the day of the Lords anger none eſcaped, nor remained.] Heb. and there was no eſcaper, and remainer: and, for, or; as Jer. 44. 14. Thou haſt ſummoned in, muſtered up, and brought in upon me, matter of terrour and ſtraits, ſo on every ſide to beſet and ſurround me, that there is no means of hope of eſcape unto any, but we are environed together, and involved, in the ſame common calamity, Jer. 4. 17, 8. 20. 3 10. So chap. 1. 17. a metaphor taken from the calling of the people together unto their ſolemn aſſemblies by ſound of trumper, Num 10.2,3. So before. Chap. 1. 15.

thoſe that I have ſwadled] Or, ſwathed; ſo rather than, as ſome, which I carried in mine hands: of the word, ſee before, on Verſe 20. it ſeemeth to comprehend all thoſe offices that mothers or nurſes exerciſe about their children, for the managing of their limbs, and keeping of them in their due proportion and poſture during the time of their tender infancy, and brought up,] Heb. made great. So Ezek. 19. 2. nor, multiplyed; as the learned Scholiaſt amiſſe rendreth it: for it is in this notion parallel to that other term uſed, Eſay 1. 2. by which the Jewiſh Scholiaſt here rightly expoundeth it.

hath mine enemy conſumed] As if they had been bred for no other end, but to be made by ſlaughter meat for the murtherers ſword, Iob 27. 14. Hoſ. 9. 13.

CHAP. III.

Verſe 1. I Am the man that hath ſeen affliction by the rod of his wrath.] The two former Chapters conſiſted of a ſingle alphabet, either of them. This conſiſteth of a three-fold Alphabet; as the Pſalm 119. of an eight-fold one. Every three Verſes in courſe beginning with the ſame letter, as every eight in order. Ther the ſame ſubject matter that was handled in the former, is with much variety of expreſſions, and further amplifications, in more conciſe and quick ſentences, very artificially and pathetically continued and carried on thorowout this. The queſtion is, Who the perſon ſhould be that the Prophet here ſpeaketh of. Some of the ancients, whom therein ſome of the Popiſh Writers concur with, would have it ſpoken of Chriſt: but to let paſſe all other arguments; the very tenour of the context doth every where almoſt ſufficiently confute that frivolous conceit. Others would have it all ſpoken in the perſon of Gods people; lying now under heavie preſſures in the Babylonian bondage, reſating both what they had formerly ſuffered, and at preſent alſo did ſuſtaine. Others laſtly, of the Prophet himſelfe, in this kind more unhappy than other his fellow Prophets, in that they had foretold onely the calamities that ſhould befall Gods people; he had ſurvived to ſee, and to undergo no ſmall ſhare among the reſt in them. I conceive that the perſon intended, is principally the main body of the people, though the Prophet himſelf alſo included as a limb of the ſame.

I am the man] I, the people of the Iewes, the Iewiſh State; and I Jeremy alſo among the reſt, am one of thoſe that have taſted of Gods wrathfull rod. See Jer. 15. 18. & 30. 12, 15.

ſeen affliction] Not barely ſeen it; but ſuſtained it: to ſee, for, to ſuffer: as Jer. 5. 12. and 14. 13. and 42. 14. Pſalm 16. 10. and 49. 9. and 89 48.

by the rod of his wrath.] Or, his rod of wrath; that is, his wrathfull rod: the rod wherewith he ſmiteth in wrath. So Eſay 10. 5 See the like form of ſpeech alſo, Prov. 22. 8.

V. 2. He hath led me, and brought me into darkneſs, but not into light.] He hath led me into captivity as the word is uſed, Eſay 20. 4. darkneſs, for affliction and miſery. Pſal. 112. 4. Eſay 8. 22. ch. 2. 1. and, light, for proſperity and jollity, Eſt. 8. 16. Pſal. 97. 11. both toſſines, Deut. 33. 8. Pſal. 38 7.

V. 3. Surely againſt me is he turned; he turneth his hand againſt me all the day.] He is turned againſt me, who had wont to be for me, Exod. 14. 25. Pſalm 46. 7. or he turneth again upon me; as Eſay 1. 25. to fetch and inflict new ſtrokes; and that continually and inceſſantly all day long: as Pſalm 44. 22. and 73. 14. See ch. 2. 38. Iob 30. 15, 21.

V. 4. My fleſh, and my ſkin hath he made old:] Either withered it with leanneſs and wrinckles, Iob 16. 8. or worn out, and conſumed it; as Iob 13 28. Pſal. 32. 3. Eſay 50. 9.

he hath broken my bones.] Taken all ſupport and ſtrength away from me, chap. 1. 14, 50. Eſay 38. 13 Jer. 50. 17.

V. 5. He hath builded againſt me] Encamped about me, and raiſed Forts and Batteries againſt me. So Iob 19. 12. Eſay 29. 2, 3.

and compaſſed me with gall and travel.] Or, with venome, and vexation. see Jeremiah 8. 14. So again, Verſe 19. The Pronoune wanting, but ſupplied from the former branch; as Verſe 3.

V. 6. He hath ſet me in darke places;] He hath laid me in the grave; the region of darkneſſe, Iob 10. 21, 22. Or, He hath caſt me into priſons and dungeons, Verſe 33, 35. Pſalm 88. 6. Eſay 44. 22.

as they that be dead of old] In them I lye as a corpſe in the grave, wholly diſregarded and utterly forgotten, Pſalm 31. 12. & 88. 4, 5. Ezek. 37. 11, 12.

V. 7 He hath hedged me about, that I cannot get out:] Or, he hedged me about. As having reference to the cloſeneſſe and ſtraitneſſe of the ſiege. Jer. 4. 17. & 52. 7. So Iob 3. 23. & 19. 8. Pſalm 88. 8 Heb. and (for that) as Mal. 1. 9.) I ſhall not go out, for cannot; as Jer. 13. 23. there is no poſſibility of eſcape, Jeremiah 34. 3. & 39. 4, 5.

he hath made my chain heavy.] Laid an heavy affliction of chraldome and bondage upon me, Pſal. 66. 11. Heb. braſs, or ſteel, as Jer. 15. 12. & 39. 7.

V. 8. Alſo when I cry and ſhout, he ſhutteth out my prayer.] Or, When I cried alſo, and that aloud, or eagerly; (two words of the ſame notion to add the more Emphaſis; as Eſay 12. 6. & 58. 1. See Chap. 2. 5.) he obſtructed, or, ſtopt, (as the word properly ſignifieth, 2 Kings 3. 19, 25. 2 Chr. 32. 3, 4, 30.) the paſſage of my prayer: alluding, as our Verſion rendreth it, to the manner of thoſe that ſhut the door to keep ſuiters out, where they are not willing to be troubled with them: but it ſeemeth rather to the practice of thoſe that ſtop the ear againſt ſpeech or words about ſuch matters as they liſt not, nor like, to hear; as Pſal. 58. 4. Prov. 24 13. Acts 7. 57. it is not ſo much againſt the party, as againſt the prayer. So v. 44 and ſome therefore render it, he ſtoppeth his ear to my prayer: a deſect of the Noun after the Verbias Geneſis 41. 33. Jer. 16. 7. See the like complaints, Iob 19. 7. and 30. 20. Pſal. 22. 1, 2. Hab. 1. 2.

V. 9. He hath incloſed my wayes with hewen ſtone;] or He incloſed my wayes.] He ſo blocked up all paſſages about me, having hemmed me in, not with a thorny hedge, as Hoſ. 2. 6. or ſome earthy mud-wall, that might with no ſuch great difficulty be broken down or digged throw, but with a ſtrong fence of hewn ſtone, that there might be no poſſibility of acceſs for any relief or ſuccour from abroad to me. See Jer. 13. 19. and this ſeemeth aimed at here, to the obſtructions of acceſs; as the prevention of eſcape before, v. 7. See Iob 19. 12.

He hath made my paths crooked.] Heb. He perverted my paths Jeremiah 3. 21. He turned all my projects and deſignes a contrary way; becauſe I took courſes contrary to his wayes, Leviticus 26. 27, 28. Pſalm 18, 26. So v. 11. See Jer. 19. 3, 7. and 33. 4, 5. and 37. 7. —10.

V. 10. He was unto me as a bear lying in wait:] So Hoſ. 3. 8. as a leopard, Jer. 5. 6. Hoſ. 13. 8.

and as a Lion in ſecret places]Pſal. 17. 12. See the like, Iob 10. 6. Eſay 38. 13 Hoſ. 5. 14. & 13. 7. a deſect of the note of ſimilitude in either clauſe: as Gen. 49. 9, 14, 17.

V. 11. He hath turned aſide my wayes,] or He turned aſide: the ſame in effect with that before of perverting his paths, v. 9. for that is too ſlight that ſome ſuggeſt. he deprived me of liberty to walk abroad: rather he made all mine attempts and endeavours fruſtrate. See Jer. 2. 1. 4 & 33. 5.

and pulled me in pieces!] Worried and tore me in pieces, Iob 16 9, 12. Hoſ. 5. 14. & 6. 1. & 13. 8. as a Lion or a Bear doth ſome beaſt that it hath preyed upon, ver. 10 Deuteronomy 33. 20. Pſalm 7. 2. Mic. 5. 8.

he hath made me deſolate.] As Chap. 1. 13.

V. 12. He hath bent his bow,] or He bent his bow. Heb. trod it. So Chap. 2. 4.

and ſet me as a marke for the Arrow.] Job, 7. 20. and 16. 12.

V. 13. He hath cauſed the Arrowes of his quiver to enter into my reins.] Or, He cauſed &c. Heb. the ſons of his quiver: as ſparks are termed, the ſons of the quick-coal. Iob 5. 7. and corn, the ſon of the ſtore, Eſay 2. 10. See the like expreſſions, Job 2. 4 & 16. 13 Pſalm. 38. 2. reins, for inward vital parts: as Iob 16 13. & 19. 27. So, loines, Deut. 33. 8. Pſal. 38 7.

V. 14. I was a deriſion to all my people;] That is, ſay ſome of the Iewiſh Maſters, to the wicked and perfidious ones among my people, as Jer. 20. 7. or to ſuch people, as had been before ſubject to me, as Moab, Amelek and Edom; or as one of ours, with all my people: as the particle ſeems uſed, Ezr. 1. 5. But it is the people that ſpeaketh it: and the words, as another Iewiſh Critick hath well obſerved, may be read and rendred, to all peoples: that is, to all forreign people: the word a plural, wanting onely its laſt letter; as the very ſame word is found with the like defect, 2 Sam. 22. 44 compared with Pſalm 18. 43. See the like complaints, Pſalm 44. 13 & 79. 4. Ezek. 36. 15.

and their ſong all the day.] Heb. their neginath, or hand inſtrument of muſick. So Iob 30. 9. See Eſay 38, 20. I was unto them as ſome Lute or Kit, (the note of ſimilitude is wanting, as v. 10.) one whom they played on at pleaſure, and that inceſſantly. So Pſal. 35. 15, 16. and 69. 12. v. 63.

V. 15. He hath filled me with bitterneſs; Heb. ſatiated; cloyed, or glutted me (as v. 30. Iob 7. 4.) with bitternefſes, that is, with things extreamly bitter: as Deut. 32. 32. See the ſame, Iob 9. 18. See the like Ruth 1. 20, 21. c. 1. 4.

he hath made me drunken with worm-wood;]or hen-bane, or wolfs-bane, rather: ſome kind of herb that is rank and deadly poyſon. See on Jer. 8. 14. and 23. 15. of the juyce of ſuch venemous ſtuff hath he forced me to drink; even ſome ſmall quantity, but in great abundance. See Jer. 31. 15. & 46. 10. or to plyed me with it, that it hath bereaved me, and made me beſide my ſelf. See the like, Iob 9. 18. Pſalm 60. 3 Eſay 51. 17, 21, 22. Jer. 25. 17, 18. Ezekiel 23. 32—34. v. 31.

V. 16. He hath alſo broken my teeth with gravel ſtones:] Such food he hath fed me with, as may ſeem rather to be ſtones than bread, Mat. 4. 3. & 7. 9. An alluſion to men that eat gritty bread, of ſuch griſt as milſtones are at firſt wont to make, or to ſuch gravel, as having by accident fallen into, and being mixed with bread or other food, not diſcovered, proveth offenſive to the teeth of him that eateth of it. See Prov. 20. 17.

he hath covered me with aſhes.] The word here uſed hath no brother, ſaith the Iewiſh Critick: and the notion of it therefore is very uncertain. Nor do their great Maſters agree about it, but tender it, ſome one way, and ſome another. One, he hath polluted me. Another, he hath preſſed me down; citing ſome inſtances for that purpoſe from the Talmud: and ſo alſo the Chaldee. Others, he hath rolled me in aſhes: as, in duſt, Mic. 1. 10. So Ier. 6. 26. another, he hath covered me over with aſhes. Like that of Iob, I am become like duſt and aſhes, Iob 30. 19. The ancient Greek and the old Latine (whom ſome Hebrew Profeſſors of note concur with) he hath fed me with aſhes. And to theſe the rather I encline, both becauſe it foreeth very fitly with the courſe of the context; and the like expreſſions is found elſe-where, Pſalm 102. 9

V. 17. And thou haſt removed my ſoul far off from peace:] Thou haſt fet me and proſperity aſunder: taken me from it; for taken it from me: caſt me out of that proſperous condition that I formerly enjoyed: the terms far off, are not in the text: peace, for proſperity: as Jer. 29. 7. my ſoul for me: as Pſalm 3. 2. & 22 20, 21. & 88 14. in which laſt place alſo the verb here uſed is found. A learned Annotator would have it read, Thy ſoul was removed from peace: which he expoundeth, thou waſt wholy alienated from thoughts of peace and welfare concerning me: and ſaith it was ſo anciently, untill the Scribes altered it: and the old Latine rendreth it, My ſoul is repelled, or removed, from peace: which though in ſenſe it fwarve not from what both Iewiſh Commenters ſuggeſt, and our Verſion holdeth out, yet neither doth it expreſs fully, what the text thus taken exhibiteth, to wit, the attributing of the thing mentioned to God unto whom the Prophet here turneth his ſpeech, nor doth it anſwer preciſely to the termes of the Text. wherein the Verb uſed is never found in a paſſive notion: that which alſo evidently reſelleth that former learned mans conceit. The Chaldee rendreth it, My ſoul refuſeth to enquire after peace: which may better conſiſt with the terms of the text, than either of thoſe twain, and would be the ſame in ſubſtance with that, Pſalm 77. 2. my ſoul refuſed to be comforted.

I forgat proſperity.] Or, I have forgotten welfare, Heb. good; as Iob 9. 5. I no more now mind it, than as if I never had enjoyed it, or knew what it meant: or I think no more on it, than as one that never looketh or hopeth to be acquainted with it again. So Gen. 41 51. Iob 11. 16 See Iob 30. 15.

V. 18. And I [ſaid,] Or, Then (as Ier. 52. 7.) I ſaid, I thought with my ſelf; as Pſal. 31. 5. & 39. 1

my ſtrength and my hope is periſhed from the Lord.] Or My ſupport: as God is called the ſupport of Iſrael, 1 Sam. 15. 29 and blood; the ſupport support of the living creature, Efay 63. 3, 6, becauſe when that is ſpent and faileth, the body falleth: and the word hath a notion of ſubſiſtence, and permanence in it. I was clean out of hope, either out of ſubſiſtence or of recovery again. So Pſal. 31. 22. & 116. 10, 11. Hay 40. 27. & 49. 14. Ezek. 37. 11.

V. 19. Remembring mine affliction, and my miſery, the wormwood and the gall.] Wherewith God hath fed them, v. 5. 15. See Jer. 8. 14. and 9 15. the word rendred miſery, is by ſome rendred attenuation; by others, lamentation: but neither produce ought wherewith to back either interpretation: the old Latine rendreth it, tranſgreſſion; and the word it ſeemeth of ſignifieth very commonly to rebell; but that ſeemeth to have no place here, nor doth it well ſuit with that expoſition of the place, that one of the Rabbines giveth an hint of upon the place: and that Verſion exhibiteth, conceiving the Text, as in form of a prayer to God, Remember mine affliction, or humiliation: ſure they would never requeſt God to remember their tranſgreſſion or rebellion, but with David rather to forget them, Pſalm 25. 7. & 79. 8. howſoever that Expoſition of the place ſeem not genuine. But ſome laſtly both Jewiſh and ours, render it expulſion, or exilement; that which ſeemeth to be ſeconded by that of Eſay, 58. 7. be ore pointed to on Chapter 1. 7. where the ſame term was uſed. Remembring, that is I remembring; as Jer. 17. 2. Pſalm 42. 4. when I remember and think upon the great depth of affliction, and extremity of bitterneſs, that God hath brought me unto; and this Verſion the words following confirm.

V. 20. My ſoul hath them ſtill in remembrance. and is humbled in me.] The ſenſe is, I have them in mind continually, I cannot forget them; and am much dejected and caſt down, (Heb. bowed down; as Pſal. 42. 4, 5, 11. & 44. 25.) ſo oft as I think on them. Heb. remembring remembring as Jer. 31. 20. and my ſoul: as v. 17. Pſal. 57. 1. but this ſo to maketh the ſpeech more emphatical and affectionate; as Pſalm 57. 4.

V. 21. This I recal to my mind; therefore have I hope.] Heb. reduce, or make to return to my heart; as Deut. 30. 1. Yet when I conſider and call to mind Gods infinite mercies, I begin to conceive ſome hope again of recovery, and am not wholly ſwallowed up with deſpair. Thus, though in extremity of affliction and depth of temptation, are even the faithfull toſſed to and fro between hope and fear: and brought down to the very pits brink of deſpair; yet the better part at length prevails, ſee v. 24. They ſeem to ſtrain the text, who would refer the ground of hope here pointed at to the foregoing relation, becauſe mans miſery is oft-times made a motive of mercy. Pſal. 12. 5 c. 13, 20. The text runs more freely of its own accord in' way of reference to what enſueth. The diſcretive, yet, ſeemeth wanting, to be ſupplied, and preſixed; as Pſalm 119. 83. Job 14. 9. Jer. 5. 53.

V. 22. It is of the Lords mercies that we are not conſumed.] Or, To wit, (ſupplied, as Jeremiah 34. 9.) that it is the Lords great mercy: ſo the word plurall importeth, Pſalm 89. 1. ſee Eſay 63. 7. conſidering our extream wickedneſs, it is a wonder that it is not far worſe with us, than as yet it is. it is of his meere abundant mercy that any of us do ſurvive and remain, and that there is not an utter riddance made of us at once, Ezr. 9. 13, 15. ſee Jer. 5. 10, 18. & 30. 11. Mal. 3. 6. That which giveth hope of Gods intending ſome good to us, in that he reſerveth a ſeed of us, Eſay 1. 9. Romans 9, 29. & 11. 4, 5.

becauſe his compaſſions fail not] Or that (as Jer. 49. 13.) his tender mercies (or compaſſionate affections: as Eſay 63. 7. are not ſpent, or conſumed: as Mal. 3. 6.

V. 23. They are new every morning:] Or, That they, (to wit, his mercies and compaſſions, v. 22.) are or have been dayly renewed, Heb. new in the mornings are they: as Eſay 33. 2. See Job 7. 18. Zeph. 3. 5.

great is thy faithfulneſs.] Or that thy faithfulneſs, (or his faithfulneſs: a change of the perſon, as Eſay 1. 29. Jer. 44. 10.) is great, Pſal. 36. 5. See 1 Tim. 1. 13.

V. 24. The Lord is my portion,] I have an intereſt ſtill in him: as Pſalm 16. 5, & 73. 26. & 119. 57. Jer. 10. 6.

ſaith my ſoul,] Or I ſay, as v. 20.

therefore will I hope in him.] Or, wait on him; with hopefull expectation wait and depend upon him, Verſe 21. Job 13. verſe 15.

V. 25. The Lord is good unto them that wait for him,] That with patience and perſeverance amids their afflictions depend upon him for delivery until his due time thereof do come, Pſalm 40. 1. Eſay 8. 17. & 30. 18.

to the ſoul that ſeeketh him.] Or, to him. to the perſon, (As verſe 20.) that ſeeketh him, Pſalm 9. 10. and 24. 6. and 27. 8. and 105. 4.

V. 26. It is good that a man ſhould both hope, and quietly wait for the ſalvation of the Lord.] Heb. No more but, Good, and he wait: which ſome render it, it is well with him that both doth wait: and this way ſhould I go, I ſhould rather render it, it is well with him that he doth wait: the copulative put for the relative, as Jer. 4. 1. 8. and 48. 5. But as I conceive. with leaſt ſupply, and moſt familiar, it may beſt be rendred, It is good that (to is the copulative uſed, Pſalm 144 3.) a man wait (as 2 Kings 6. 33.) and be ſilent, (as verſe 28. Pſalm 62. 1, 5, & 131. 2.) that is, wait ſilently (as, made haſte and came, for came haſtily 1 Sam. 4. 14. and ſit, be ſilent, for, ſit ſilently, Eſay 47. 5. and reign and proſper, for reign proſperouſly, Jeremiah 23. 5.) for the ſalvation of the Lord, Gen. 49. 18. Pſalm 119. 174. It is good for one to wait quietly, until God pleaſe to ſend deliverance, both becauſe it is his duty ſo to do, Pſalm 123. 2. and becauſe there is hope of delivery, if he ſo do, Exod. 14. 13. Eſay 30. 16, v. 29.

V. 27. It is good for a man that he bear the yoke in his youth] That he be nurtred, as to the ſtrict obſervation of Gods Law. Pſalm 119. 9. Matthew 11. 29. So to the patient enduing of his Will, in ſuch afflictions, as God ſhall ſee good to exerciſe him with, Pſalm 94. 12. and 119. 67, 71, 75. Job 5. 17. Proverbs 3, 11, 12. Heb. 12. 6---10.

V. 28. He ſitteth alone,] Or That he ſit alone. See Jer. 15. 17. Pſalm 102. 7.

becauſe he hath born it upon him.] Or, when (as Jer. 51. 48.) it, (to wit, the yoke) is laid upon him, Heb. when he had laid it upon him; as the Verb is uſed, 2 Sam. 24. 12. but taken here indefinitely: and therefore beſt expreſſed by the paſſive; as Amos 4. 2. Habb. 3. 17. Luke 12. 20. So rather, as if it be referred to the patient, when he beareth it; as a verbal thence deduced is rendred, Zeph. 1. 11. than as the learned Scholiaſt, when he hath taken it up upon him; though the word be oft ſo taken; as Eſay 40. 15. & 63. 9. for the yoke of affliction is not voluntarily taken up, but impoſed and inflicted even upon thoſe that are moſt willing and ready to bear it; compare Matt. 16. 24. with John 21. 18. 19. See alſo, 1 Chron. 12, 13. 17.

V. 29. He putteth his mouth in the duſt] Or, That he put his mouth in the duſt; Humbling himſelf even to the ground; or as if he ſhould ſtop his mouth with duſt for fear of breaking out into any repining or murmuring Language, Job 40. 4, 5. But this latter ſeemeth to be with the largeſt. It is an allution, as ſome conceive to the manner of thoſe, that having been ſubdued are conſtrained to put their necks down to be trampled upon, and to lick up the duſt under the feet of thoſe, by whom they have been ſubdued, Joſh. 10. 24. Pſalm 72. 9. Eſay 49. 23. & 51. 23. & 60. 14. or, as others rather, unto the uſual manner of ſuppliants, that uſe to bow down ſo low, or lay themſelves along in that manner, that as they lay groveling, their mouth touched the ground, 2 Samuel 12. 16. & 14. 22. Eſay 9. 8. Dan. 8. 17. Matt. 26. 39. and withall to that duſt and aſhes on which they were wont in ſuch caſes to proſtrate themſelves, Job 40. 6. Eſay 58. 5. Mic. 1. 10.

if ſo be there may be hope.] Heb. peradventure there is hope; as Gen. 32. 20. Dan. 4. 27. ſuch humble, patient, quiet, and ſubmiſſive carriage, may well give a man ground of hope. Yet it is thus propounded, implying that what God thereupon doth, is out of his mere mercy, not of mans merit, and therefore not to be preſumed on, or claimed as due debt. So Joel 2. 14. Zeph. 2. 3.

V. 30. He giveth his cheek to him that ſmiteth him;] Or, That he give, &c. Be content to endure diſgracefull, deſpitefull, and contumelious uſage, Eſay 50. 6. Mic. 5. 1. Mat. 5. 39. & 26. 27.

he is filled full with reproach.] Or, That he be filled (Heb. ſatiated, or cloyed; as ver. 15.) with reproath: ſuſtain abundance of reproachfull uſage. So Pſal. 123. 4.

V. 31. For the Lord will not caſt off for ever.] Though he do leave his people for ſome time, and that for the good of thoſe that either are ſincere and faithfull already, or that are reclaimed and reformed by his judgements; yet he will not alwayes ſo do, So 1 Sam. 12. 22. Pſal. 94. 14. Eſay 57. 16.

V. 32. For though he cauſe grief, yet will he have compaſſion according to the multitude of his mercies.] Or, as ſome render it, For when he hath cauſed grief, or grieved, he doth alſo, or again ſhew mercy according to the amplitude of his benignities. But for the former part, I adhere rather to our Verſion, Heb. if, for, though; as Jer. 15. 1. and, and, for, yet; Jer. 50. 10, 22. In the latter part, I ſhould rather ſay, abundance, than multitude: the word well admitting either; and ſo alſo, Pſal. 51. 1, & 106. 45. See Eſay 14. 1. & 54. 7, 8. Mic. 7. 18, 19.

V. 33. For he doth not afflict willingly, nor grieve the children of men] Heb. He doth not afflict from his heart. He doth not willingly afflict any, his own people eſpecially; but what he doth in this kinde, he is in a manner enforced to by their ſins, 2 Chron. 36. 16. Jer. 5. 7, 9, & 30. 14. & 44. 20. or, He taketh no delight in afflicting people; it goeth againſt the hair, and againſt the heare with him to be dealing roughly with them; it is a grief to him to be grievous to them, a pain to himſelf to be puniſhing of them, Eſay 1. 24. Ezek. 18. 23. 32. & 33. 11. or he puniſheth not according to his might; as either he might juſtly, or could do, if he would put out his might, and make uſe of his power, but with reſpect to mans infirmity. Job 37. 23. Pſalm 78. 38, 39. Eſay 27. 8. & 48. 9. Eſay & 57. 16. or, he doth not afflict his out of any ſiniſter diſpoſition towards them, or evil affection to them, but to try their ſincerity and to exerciſe their patience, Pſalm 66. 10. Prov. 3. 11, 12. Rom. 5. 3, 4. Heb. 5. 8. & 10. 32. Jam. 1. 3. 1 Pet. 1. 7. & 4. 12. Rev. 3. 10. Thus divers diverſly, among which the firſt ſeemeth moſt proper, as beſt ſuiting with that form, from the heart, as we alſo uſe it, and ſo render, Epheſ. 6. 6. what the Apoſtle there ſaith, from the ſoul. Howbeit, I ſhall add how the phraſe is in the Hebrew uſed. A man is is ſaid to ſpeak, or do a thing from his heart, or out of his own heart; for theſe terms in Hebrew differ not, when he doth it out of his own mere motion, or invention, without ſuggeſtion, information, direction, or occaſion given, or miniſtred to him, by any other. So it is ſaid of Jeroboam, that he kept a feſtival, which he had deviſed from his heart, or out of his own heart, without any commiſſion, or direction from God, 1 King. 12. 33. So Nehemy to Sanballat, there is nothe ſe theſe things from thine heart, or out of thine own heart. Neh. 6. 8. having no ground for them, or upon no occaſion given from me or information from any other. So the meaning here may be, that God doth never afflict out of his own mere Will, or motion onely, without ſome good ground and juſt occaſion given him from thoſe whom he doth afflict. So one of the Rabbines here, He doth it not out of his own Will; for mans iniquity giveth occaſion: contrary to that which of natural parents the Apoſtle ſaith, that they ſometime chaſtile after their own pleaſure, it his meaning be ſuch as our Engliſh expreſſeth it, which yet i doubt whether their children liked it, or no, howſoever they deemed of it: but ſo worldly parents ſometime do in an humour, as we ſay, where no juſt cauſe is given of ſo doing: God never. His bounty and kindneſſe ſtreweth from him freely of it ſelf, his ſeverity and harſhneſſe ariſeth from ſomewhat in us.

V. 34. To cruſh under his feet all the priſoners of the earth.] The three next Verſes ſome Interpreters annex to the words next before-going; as more particularly relating what thoſe things were, that God did not from his heart, either himſelf do or cauſe to be done. Others rather refer all that is here related to the laſt clauſe, in the cloſe of verſ. 36. whereof more ſhall be ſaid when we ſhall come to that branch. The matters here mentioned are in general oppreſſions, referred to two heads; ſome hoſtile, executed in times of war. ver. 34. ſome civil, exerciſed in times of peace, by force, or fraud, verſ. 35. 36 The entrance into this paſſage is ſome ſomewhat abrupt, divers interpreters ſeek to clear it by ſundry ſupplies: ſome inſerting, To think, or, To ſay, as if the Prophet did here relate the words, or thoughts of others, not deliver his own. Others, when a man is ready, to do as is here declared, as, I am ready to halt, Pſal. 38. 17. But our Verſion is plain and full enough. The infinitive is oft uſed in other languages, as well as in Hebrew for the noun; to do ſuch things, for, the doing of ſuch things: for any to cruſh under his feet, or, ſimply, the cruſhing, under foot of ſuch a trey, Jeel 3. 8. the Land of Judea, more ſpecially aimed at, Jer. 39. 9. & 50. 17.

V. 35. To turn aſide the right of a man] Heb. to cauſe to decline, ſway aſide or overthrow; as Prov. 18. 5. Eſay 10. 2. See there, and verſe 36.

before the face of the moſt high.] In the ſight of God. Pſalm 51. 4. verſe 38. not dreading him, or his diſpleaſure. Mal. 3. 5. who is an avenger of ſuch courſes, Pſalm 94. 1. Proverbs 22. 22, 23. & 23. 10, 11. 1 Theſſalonians 4. 6. So the moſt. Howbeit, ſome expound it of God himſelf, as not doing himſelf what is here ſaid, to wit, that God doth not ſway or pervert judgement in any cauſe that cometh before him, Job 8. 3. & 34. 5. 12. and ſay they, the Noun is put for the Pronoun; the face of th. If elf, for his face; as the Lords Heavens, for his Heavens, ver. 66. But this ſeemeth not to ſuit ſo well with the tenour and courſe of the context. And there ſuit ſo well with the tenour and courſe of the context. And there ſeemeth to be ſome marge t alſo intimateth, that underſtand the word here uſed, not of God, but of ſome earthly Judge, of a man in place of authority and judicature; rendring the words, before the face of a Superiour. Heb an high one: and the word is uſed not of God alone, but of other things alſo, both places, as 2 Kings 15. 35. 2 Chr. 8. 5. and perſons, as Deut. 26. 19. and I ſee not, why it ſhould be taken otherwiſe here: as a word of the very ſame notion is of thoſe that ſit aloft in place of judicature above others, in a place parallel to this Eccl. 5 8 There is one high above the high, and high ones ab ve them; where the term high is given to God in the firſt place; to Judges in the ſecond place; to Angels (as ſome alſo think) in the third.

V. 36. To ſubvert a man in his cauſe.] Heb. To pervert a man in his controverſie; that is, by over-ſwaying the proceedings at Law, and cauſing the ſcale to decline and weigh down the wrong way, v. 35. to overthrow a man in his ſuit: that which is termed, a wreſting of judgement, or right, Deut. 16. 19. Thus, if we conceive the one, as ſome do, to be no more than a further illuſtration of the other: yet ſome Interpreters diſtinguiſh them, conceiving the former to be meant of over-ſwaying cauſes by power and might: the other of carrying things awry by cunning and ſlight: and this ſeemeth not improbable.

he Lord approveth not.] This clauſe is generally deemed to reach to all thoſe particulars before recited: but this is variouſly expounded. The words are in Heb. the Lord ſeeth not. Which ſome read by way of interrogation, Doth not God ſee it? as if it came in by way of objection, againſt what had been ſaid of Gods unwillingneſs to afflict. Doth he not ſee ſuch things as thoſe to be done? to which the anſwer ſhould be returned, v. 39. Others as a ground laid for the enſuing affertion of Gods great forbearance and diſpoſal of all things; Should not God ſee it? can it be ſo done, that he ſhould not ſee and regard it? as Job 11. 11. ſhould he ſee iniquity, and not conſider, or regard it? But others, and ſo the moſt read them by way of enunciation the Lord ſeeth not: that which ſome take according to the proper and native notion of the word, conceiving it to be delivered as the ſpeech and imagination of wicked men, that God ſeeth none of theſe things when they are done. So Job 22. 13, 14 Pſalm 10. 11, & 94. 7. But how ſuch ſhould be brought in ſpeaking here, is not eaſie to deſery. Others therefore take the word of ſeeing, in a figurative ſenſe, ſome, God ſeeth none of theſe things; that is, he knoweth them not, he is not acquainted with them, he doth not practice any of them; he doth not handle men cruelly without right and ceaſon; nor make uſe of his power to oppreſs any man in judgement; nor of his skill to pervert any mans cauſe that cometh before him, but is willing to hear and try all indifferently, according to the rules of equity and right. Others, and ſo the moſt, he doth not ſee: that is, like of, or approve: he doth not bohold any of theſe things with an eye of allowance and appobation: as Numbs. 23. 21. Hab. 1. 13. and this laſt ſeemeth the genuine ſenſe of the place. So it is a confirmation of that which was formerly ſaid, that God afflicteth not from his heart; ſince that, though he permitteth ſuch things to be done, and giveth way therein to mans malice for the execution of his juſt judgement on ſome, and the chaſtiſement of others; yet he doth not approve the things done in thoſe whom he maketh uſe of as inſtruments the cin. See Hab. 1. 12, 13. If we read the words by way of interrogation, it will be part of an Objection begun here; continued: Verſe 37, 38. and anſwered, verſe 39.

V. 37. Who is he that ſaith, and it cometh to paſs, when the Lord commandeth it not?] Theſe words are very diverſly rendred, though to the ſenſe of them in general moſt agree, to wit, that nothing is done here below, but by a Divine providence ana diſpoſal. Some render them as a check to that impious conceit of men, as they conceive before mentioned, that God ſeeth not, or regardeth not what men here on earth doe. Who is he, that ſaith this, that it is, (that ought is done) when the Lord hath not commanded it? Who is he that can or dare be ſo preſumptuous and impious, as to ſay that ought cometh to paſs without good providence and appointment? Prov. 16. 4, 33. and 21. 30, 31. and 19. 16 Matt. 10. 29, 30. Others, Who is he, that ſaith, and it is, (that which he ſaith cometh to paſs and is effected) if the Lord hath not commanded it? Who is he, that is able to effect and bring about what he ſpeaketh, or purpoſeth, unleſs God permit and give way thereto? Prov. 16. 1, 9. Jer. 10. James 4. 13, 15. And theſe two readings, as in ſenſe they little differ; ſo the words of the Text will well admit either: but the latter, which our Verſion followeth, ſeemeth the right. There is a defect of the relative in either: in the former branch, of the particle of time with the former, as Jer. 18. 18. of the conditional with the latter, as Eſay 30. 20. in the latter branch, as Jer. 50. 5. & 52. 1. Some reſt ſtain the text to the Chaldeans employment againſt Gods people, rendring the words in two diſtinct propoſitions. Who is he, who when he ſpake, it was done? Heb. he ſpake and it was done: as Pſalm 33. 9.) hath not God enjoyned this? to wit, that the Chaldeans breathing in upon us, and dealing with us as they have done. But the ſentence ſeemeth more general, driving at this, to ſhew that though God do nothing elſe of this nature, either out of any deſire of or delight in, the thing it ſelf; nor out of his own mere motion and pleaſure; but upon occaſion miniſtred by man, and juſt ground given him from the perſons themſelves that ſuffer; yet nothing befalleth any in this kind but by his diſpoſal; nothing but what he hath commanded: that is, in his ſecret and unſearchable providence pre-ordained and appointed, either to act, or to permit and give way to. See 2 Samuel 12. 11, 12. and 16. 10. 1 Kings 11, 15, 24. Jer. 34. 22. Acts 2. 23. and 4. 28.

V. 38. Out of the mouth of the moſt High proceedeth not evil and good?] Heb. Cometh not the evil things, and the good? or, thoſe things that are evil, and that that is good? for the Article prefixed with either is emphatical: and the former word is plural, the latter ſingular: which though ſome deſcant upon, as if it implied that more of ill things ordinarily befell men here than good: yet by an uſual Hebraiſm, joyning nouns plural with verbs ſingular in a notion of diſtribution, as Exod. 2. 6. Joel 1. 20. cometh evils and goods, is no more than ſo every each evil, (as Amos 3. 6.) as well as ought that is good. So the meaning is, that as well croſs iſſues and penalties, as benefits and proſperous ſucceſſes come all of them by Gods appointment, job 1. 21. and 2. 10. Pſalm 75. 5. Eſay 45. 7. Amos 3. 6. Gods mouth; for, his appointment: whether of direction, as 1 Samuel 15. 24. or of determination, 2 Kings 24. 3. And ſo here; See Deuteronomy 8. 3. Some repeat from the fore-foregoing Verse those words, Who is it that saith? But neither is that Version there unquestioned, nor is the supply needful here.

V. 39. Wherefore doth living man complain, a man for the punishment of his sins?] Heb. For his sin. But the term is used in Scripture, not onely for sin it self, or the act of it; but sometime also for a sin sacrifice; a sacrifice offered for the expiation of some sin, Lev. 4. 3. 2 Cor. 5. 21, sometime, for the guilt of sin, or, obligation to sufferings for it, Gen. 4. 7. & 18. 20. 9. and further again for any penalty inflicted, or to be inflicted in way of punishment for it, Gen. 4. 13. Zach. 4. 19. & for our Version here taketh it: of which yet there is no necessity. For there is more ambiguity about another word in the text; for the word rendred complain, some render mourn, or be sorrowful: and in heavinesse; some, vex himself; some, murmur. The two former ground their interpretation upon a word that hath a notion, sometime of grief, and heavinesse, Deut. 26. 14. whence Beun, Gen. 35. 8. and mourners, Hos. 9. 4. sometime, of grievance, anger, wrath, vexation, ob 5. & 15. 35. Hence, some render it, Why is the living man sorrowful? man suffereth for his sin. So our Geneva Version, dividing the text into two distinct branches, a question and an answer thereto: which one of our former Versions doth another way; Why then doth the living man murm? let him mourn for his own sin; that hath brought such things upon him; as Chap. 5. 16. To which purpose also a learned Scholiast; Why doth the living man complain? let each man complain of his own sinne: a man, for each one; as Jer. 5. 1. Others, Why doth he afflict himself by himself by his sins? why doth he procure evils to himself by the committing of sin? And others again, Why doth he vex himself? (to wit, by impatient carriage under Gods hand, as those, Proverbs 19. 3. Esay 8. 21. Rev. 16. 9, 10) even a man in his sin: persisting still in the same. Rev 9. 20 21. & 16 10. But those things go the last way as the most do, following the ancient Greek and old Latine, there in going before them, build upon the use of the word, Numb. 11. 1. where in a notion of murmuring, it is most generally taken. And the Greek rendreth it, Why should the living man murmur, a man for his sin? which precisely expresseth the Hebrew: the Latine followeth him exactly, save that for his sin, he hath sins: both ufe two several words for man, as the Hebrew also doth; but our two several words for man, as the Hebrew also doth; but our two several words for man, as the Hebrew also doth; but our English cannot so fitly express, Some other, Why should the living man murmur, any one for his sins? that which must be understood of the punishment of sin: a man, for any one; as Jer. 5. 1. Our ancienteſt Version, Why then murmureth the living man? let him murmur at his own sin. The plaineſt Version ſeemeth to be, Why should any living wight complain, or murmur? (for either will ſuit with the uſe of the word, Numb. 11. 1.) any man, I ſay ſuffering for his ſinne? what cauſe hath any man to complain of God, or murmur againſt God, as dealing roughly and rigorously with him, when he ſuffereth nothing but what he hath procureth to himſelf by his ſins? Chapter 1. 18. verſe 42. Jer. 2. 17, 19, & 4. 18, & 30. 15. & 44. 8. Mic 7. 9. In the term living man, ſome would have to be intimated that kind of life that is common to man with the brute beaſt Geneſis 7. 4, 23. See Eſay 2. 22. But the word ſeemeth rather to have reference to mans life here on earth, even that which is peculiar to man as man, ſubject and expoſed to manifold afflictions, and variety of annoyances, while he abideth in this mortall life. So Eccl. 4. 2, 15, 16. See Job 5. 7. and 14. 1.

V. 40. Let us ſearch and try our wayes,] A pious inference upon the former diſcourſe, ſince that it is ſo, that God neither deſireth nor delighteth in dealing thus with us, but that we by our ſins have provoked, yea inforced him to doe what he hath done; let us repent of our ſinnes, break them off, return from them, reform our lives, and take a new courſe: and that we may ſincerely and ſeriouſly ſo do, let us take a ſtrict view and ſurvey of our former courſes, that we may alter and amend whatſoever upon a due and narrow ſearch we ſhall deſery and diſcover to have been amiſs in them. This ſerious conſideration, and ſedulous examination of a mans ſelf, is the readieſt way to true repentance, Pſalm 4. 4. and 119. 59. Zeph. 2. 1. Hagg. 1. 5, 7. 1 Corinthians 11. 28. The words ſeem to have ſome alluſion to the ſearching and diving into either the bowels of beaſts broken up in ſacrifice; or into the bowels of the earth for the diſcovery of rich mines and treaſure, Proverbs 2. 4. and 20 17. Jer. 17 10. and two words of the ſame notion are joyned together, to intimate the narrower and more accurate enquiry; as the like, Deuteronomy 13. 14. and the ſame term repeated, Zeph. 2. 1.

and turn again to the Lord.] Return to him, from whom turning away by our ſins we have brought theſe evils upon our ſelves, Jer. 1. 15, 16. & 2. 13, 15 Eſay 59. 2. and unto whom we cannot return again, but by turning away from them, Eſay 55. 7. Jer. 4. 1. Joel 2. 12. Zech. 1. 3.

V. 41. Let us lift up our heart with our hands unto God in the Heavens.] Heb. Let us lift up our heart to our hands. Whence ſome pick out myſtical notions, of joyning heart to hand in prayer; and ſeconding prayer with practice. And the Jewiſh Maſters go another way: And becauſe it is ſaid of a ſmall cloud, that it appeared like a mans hand, 1 Kings 18. 44. and of God it is ſaid, that he covereth the light ſometime with the clouds, as with his hands, Job 36. 32. (for I conceive no other to be the genuine ſenſe of that place) they would therefore have the word both here, and in that place of Job, to ſignifie the clouds; put here for the heavens; and the heavens, for God that dwelleth in heaven, Pſalm 115. 3. Luke 15. 18. and it ſhould thus be no more than Let us lift up our heart toward the clouds, (that is, to God above) unto God that is in heaven. But we ſhall not need to have recourſe to theſe ambiguous and far fetche about Expoſitions: the particle here uſed is well rendred with, as the old Latine alſo hath it: (for the Greek is ambiguous, and the Chaldee reverſeth) and ſo the particle is uſed, Jer. 25 26. and all the Kings of the North one with another; and Ezek. 26. 16. Thou haſt played the harlot with the Egyptians, The meaning then is plain: Let us lift up our hearts together with our hands; alluding to the uſual rite of lifting up the hands in prayer to God, Pſalm 28. 2. and 63. 4. and 141. 2. and withall, to that form of ſpeech, whereby Prayer in Scripture is frequently deſcribed by the lifting up of the heart or ſoul, unto God, Pſalm 121. 1. & 86. 4. & 143. 8. in the one is implied the ſincerity and ſeriouſneſs of that Office; in the other the intention and earneſtneſſe in it; to God in the heavens: unto that God, who alone is the true God, and hath his principal place of abode in heaven, Pſal 115. 3. Mat. 6. 9.

V. 42. We have tranſgreſſed, and have rebelled,] Confeſſion of ſin an individual companion of repentance, Pſal 32. 6 & 38. 18, & 51. 3. and words of the ſame notion are joyned together, to expreſſe the greatneſſe, grievouſneſſe, and heinouſneſſe of their ſin, See Chap. 1 18. See the like, Neh. 9 26. Dan 9. 5.

thou haſt not pardoned] Or, ſpar eſt, or ſo. born; as Deut. 29. 20. Amos 7. 2. and no marvel: for he was through their obſtinacy made weary of forbearance, Jer. 15. 6. & 44. 22.

V. 43. Thou haſt covered with anger, and perſecuted us:] This covering ſome refer to God, but diverſly, as covering himſelf with wrath; therewith as in a military garb to come arrayed againſt them. See Eſay 57. 17. Others of covering his face, that he might not behold the havock made of this people: as a tender hearted father would cover his face, when ſome darling childe of his were for ſome diſeaſe to be cut in his preſence. But neither of them ſeem to ſuit ſo well here, the latter of them eſpecially. And the moſt therefore may be the people rather the object of the act here intimated, which ſome conceive to have in it an alluſion to the covering of mens faces in extremity of grief, 2 Sam. 15. 30. Eſt. 6. 12. or upon ſentence of death paſt againſt them, Eſt. 7. 8. but this alſo ſeems not to have any place here. Others expound it of abſetting, or environing of them with evils, as God is ſaid to have hedged ſome in with calamities, Job 3. 23. See verſe 7. Others, of overwhelming them with, and involving them in a dark cloud of afflictions; and purſuing them ſo encompaſſed with darkneſſe. See the like expreſſions, Pſal. 35. 6. Eſay 8. 22. Job 18. 18. and this ſeemeth the right. See verſ. 66 thou haſt ſlain, thou haſt not pitied] See the ſame, Chap. 2. 21.

V. 44. Thou haſt covered thy ſelf with a cloud, that our prayer ſhould not paſſe through.] Heb. Thou haſt beſet us a cloud to thee; that is, Thou haſt drawn us as it were a cloud about thee; or, Thou haſt environed thy ſelf as with a cloud, or, wrapped up thy ſelf as in a cloud: for the particle before the pronoun ſeemeth here redundant; as it is Pſal. 140 7. from paſſing prayer; that is, ſo that prayer cannot paſſe. So that our prayers can finde no acceſſe to thee. See the like form of ſpeech, Eſay 24. 10. the ſame poſſeſſive is not in the text. As thou haſt caſt a cloud of wrath over us, that we may not ſee which way to eſcape, verſ 43. So thou haſt wrapped up alſo thy ſelf as in a thick cloud that our ſuits and requeſts may not get to thee, to obtain audience: much leſſe to gain acceptance with thee. This cloud ſome expound Gods freſh remembrance of their ſins: and they were indeed the raiſers of this cloud between God and them, Eſay 58. 2. but the cloud rather ſeems his wrath, compared to ſome fuch thing alſo, verſ. 43. Joel 2. 2. Amos 5. 18, 20. See before, verſ 8.

V. 45. Thou haſt made us as the off-ſcouring, and refuſe in the midſt of the people.] Thou haſt cauſed us to be had in as vile eſteem as may be; as if we were no better than off-ſcourings, or ſcrapings (for from a root of that notion, Bezek. 26. 4. cometh the word here uſed, and no where elſe found in Scripture: and the Greek word anſwering it, 1 Cor. 4. 13. from the like.) and refuſe; ſuch baſe droſſie ſtuffe, as cometh away from metal and oar in the melting and trying of it, Jer 6. 30 the words are in a proverbial form uſed among the Talmudiſts to deſign ſome extream vile and baſe thing. See Chap 1. 8, 11, 17. Heb. in the midſt of the peoples, for, among all other people, or, nations; as Mic. 5 7, 8.

V. 46. All our enemies have opened their mouthes againſt us.] Or, do open, or, widen in way of deriſion and mockage; as, Pſal. 22. 13. See Chap. 2. 16.

V. 47. Fear and a ſnare is come upon us,] Thus the old Latine, and all our Engliſh Verſions conſtantly. But the Hebrew text hath expreſly, not a ſnare, but a pit: and that reading the Rabbines in their Commentaries acknowledge; as alſo the Tigurine, the Italian, and the French: the terms of either, indeed, of ſnare and pit, come very near the one to the other: it is but the addition of a letter to the one, that maketh up the other; and a change of that letter, a t into a d, that maketh out the third: and in other places, where the ſame proverbial form of ſpeech is found, all three are expreſſed, Eſay 24. 17. Jer. 48. 43. If all were here, one is loſt: but though it were ſo, which is not likely, yet our Verſion would be altered; ſince that is ſwarveth from the received and generally approved Originals without any good ground. The meaning is, that carrours were fallen upon them, and pits, or pit-falls digged for them, that while being ſcared, they ſeek by flight to ſhun and eſcape the one, they may fall into the other. See Eſay 24. 18. Jer. 48 44. and what next both here and there enſueth. The Chaldee renders it, terrour and trembling; the Greek, Fear and aſſonishment: neither any thing near to the Hebrew.

deſolation and deſtruction.] Heb. deva ſtation, (as another term neer it from the ſame root, Pſal. 73. 18. & 74. 3. for this is no where elſe found) and breaking or contrition, or deſtruction; as chap. 2. 11. ariſing from the pit that they fall into and are taken in, while they flee, for fear of ſome other purſuing evil: hence the ſame term ſignifieth both a pit and deſtruction, Pſalm 7. 15. & 103. 4.

V. 48. Mine eye runneth down with rivers of water, for the deſtruction of the daughter of my people.] So Chap. 1. 16. & 2. 18. Pſal. 119. 136. See Jer. 9. 1. & 14. 17. Mine eye runneth down, or, threſteth down with rivers, or, ſtreams of water, for, ſtreams of water run, or, flow down from mine eyes. (for the word is collective; as alſo verſ. 14. 50.) as, the mountains ſhall drop with new wine, and the hills flow with milk, and the ſtreams with water, for, new wine ſhall drop from the mountains, and milk run from the hills, and water from the ſtreams, Joel 3. ver. 18.

V. 49. Mine eye trickleth down, and ceaſeth not, without any intermiſſion.] Heb. Floweth down (Job 20. 28. and ſtayeth not (as Iosh. 10. 13.) or is not ſilent (as c. 2. 18.) without intermiſſions, or, remiſſion, as Pſal. 73. 2. intermiſſions, or remiſſions. for, any intermiſſion, or remiſſion at all: 2 Sam. 15. 30. Eſt. 6. 12. or upon ſentence of death paſt againſt them, Eſt. 7. 8. but this alſo ſeems not to have any place here. it is true, that this particle is frequently uſed in a notion of collation, as Proverbs 2 1. Eccleſiaſt. 7. 1. but it is no leſs frequently uſed in a notion of cauſality; as Pſal. 12 5. Ruth 1. 13. Eſay 3. 4 & 48. 4. & 53. 5. Jer. 8 19 and it ſoundeth in this place much better this way, than it doth that other. See Chap. 2. 11.

It is obſerved by ſome, that in this Chapter, as alſo Chap. 2. 16, 17. & 4. 16. 17. theſe two letters Ain and Peh are tranſpoſed contrary to the order before obſerved, Chap. 1. 16. 17. as alſo in other portions of Scripture, where the like alphabetical diſpoſition is uſed; whereof a learned man giveth this reaſon, Becauſe the letters were ſo ranked in the Chaldee Alphabet, and that Jeremy therefore writ the firſt Chapter after the Hebrew manner as a Jew, the three following after the Chaldee method, as none a ſubject to that King: but nothing is prodnced whence it may appear, that in the Chaldee alphabet the letters ſo ſtood. It may rather probably be thought, that in ſome Hebrew alphabets theſe two letters were diverſly placed; as are two of the precepts in the Decalogue, the ſixth and the ſeventh. See Mat. 19. 18. with Mar. 10. 19. Luke 18. 20. Rom. 13. 9. as alſo the two branches of the laſt precept. See Exod. 20. 17. with Deut. 5 25.

V. 52. Mine enemies chaſed me ſore, like a bird without cauſe.] There ſeemeth to be a trajection in the words, thus in their proper conſtruction to be ranged; Thoſe that were mine enemies cauſleſly (having received no wrong from me, as 1 Sam. 24. 11. Pſal. 35 7, 19. & 54 9. & 69. 4. & 119 161. did, do ſurely chaſe me, (Heb chaſing chaſe. See Chap. 4. 18, 19) like a bird; that is, beaten and followed from buſh to buſh, 1 Sam. 26 20. Pſal. 11 1.

V. 53. They have out off my life in the dungeon,] Or, cut it off by caſting me into the dungeon, Jer. 38. 6. 9. a complexive ſpeech, not unlike to that, thou haſt profaned his crown to the ground; that is, profaned it. by caſting it down to the ground, Pſal. 89 39. with 44. or, cut it off, and caſt me into the pit: as, he ſlew them into the pit; that is, ſlew them, and caſt them into the pit, Jer. 41. 7. They have thut me up in dungeons, where I lye as one dead verſe 6. or, They have taken away my life (power and government it as the ſoul and life of a ſtate,) and laid my corpſe in the grave, Ezek. 37. 11.---13.

and caſt a ſtone upon me.] Rolled a ſtone over me, to make ſure work with me, to keep me from ever riſing or recovering again: alluding to ſuch ſtones as were wont to be laid on the mouthes of dungeons, Dan 6. 17 and caves, Joſh. 10. 18. and ſepulchres, Mat. 27. 60. or, they caſt ſtone, that is, ſtones (the word taken collectively, as Prov. 26. 27. & 27. 3.) upon me: they have cut off my life, by caſting ſtones upon me, they have ſtoned me to death, 1 Kings 12. 18. 2 Chr. 24 21. Ezek. 16. 40. Acts 7 58. as, know, and try, for, by triall know, Jer. 6. 27. and, make bald and cut, for, by cutting make bald. Mich. 1. 16. or having taken my life from me, they overwhelmed my (lifeleſs) body with an heap of ſtones; as with corpſes of perſons executed hath ſometime been done, Joſh. 10. 27. 2 Sam. 18. 17. Which way ſoever we take it, it is a lively reſemblance of their grievous, and, in manner, irrecoverable captivity. Which they in ch extenuate and enervate, that expound this and all that followerh, Verſe 55, &c. unto the caſting of Jeremy into the dungeon, Jer. 38. 6. as the former alſo, verſe 6. of his impriſonment by Paſhur, Jer. 20. 2. As little heed is to be had of what ſome other here ſuggeſt, of the ſtoning of Jeremy to death in Egypt, concerning which, ſave a twelfth tale, which many cauſleſly give credit to, we have no certain or weighty record: But belike, according to their mens conceit, he prophecied before-hand, what end he ſhould come to.

V. 54 Waters flowed over mine head,] Afflictions, in Scripture, are frequently compared to great waters and deepes Pſalm 18. 16. & 32. 6. & 42. 7. & 66. 12. & 69. 1. 2, 15. & 88. 17. & 93. 3. Eſay 28 9, 17, 18. & 59. 19. Jer. 51, 42, 55 Now this ſome expound here of the Chaldean invaſion, who with their vaſt Armies breaking, as a Sea, into their land overflowed and overwhelmed all with them, Jer. 34 1. Chap 2. 13 But becauſe at this fore inundation, God is ſaid not to have heard or regarded their cry, Jer. 7. 16, & 11. 14. & 14 11, 12. Verſe 8. 44. whereas in that deluge here intimated, he is ſaid to have heard them, verſe 56. (for they ſtray wide, that would reſt ſain it to Jeremies carriage in the dungeon;) Some therefore (whom I rather concur with) refer it to the Aſſyrian Invaſion by Sennacherib, and render the words, When the waters flowed over mine head; as Pſalm 124. 4, 5. when I was in extreamm diſtreſſe by the Aſſyrian forces who like a violent torrent or land-flood, had broken in upon me, and born downe all before them, Eſay 36. 1, 2. Of this invaſion, ſee Eſay 8. 7, 8. & 59. 19. places parallel to this The adverb is ſunpſyed; as Deuteron. 8. 12. Eſay 48 13. 21. Ieremi. 8. 18.

then I ſaid, I am cut off] Or, and I ſaid (carrying on the ſentence) I thought with my ſelf; as verſe 18. I am cut off, I am utterly undone, So Pſalm 31. 22. & 37. 13. Eſay 38 10, 11. Jon. 2. 3, 4.

V. 55, I called upon thy name, O Lord, out of the low dungeon] Or, yet (ſupplyed; as Jer. 15 1, 10. & 51. 53.) I called upon thy name out of the low dungeon. Heb. pit of lowneſſes; as Pſal. 88. 6. In the greateſt depth of mine affliction and diſtreſſe, Psal.130.1.verf.53.Jon.2.1.See 2 Chr.32.20.Esay 37.3.4.15--20.

V. 56. Thou hast heard my voice.] Or, And thou hearedst my voice. Thou wast then pleased to hear the prayers of thine people, and to lend them deliverance out of that their distresse. See Esay 37. 11-12 ——36.

hide not thine ear at my breathing, at my cry.] So read, the sense will be, vouchsafe thy people now the like favour again that then thou shewedst them; as Psalm 4.1. & 22.4.5.& 85. 1.4——4. hide not thy face from them, (Esay 1. 15.) be not deaf towards their cry, (Psalm 39. 12.) remove that cloud that thou hast now drawn about thee, ver. 44. that their breathing (so Exod.8. 11.) or panting (here rather) or gasping for breath, may together with their cries, find free passage and accesse to thine ears. Howbeit, some read the words as spoken in way of a continued relation, Thou didst not hide thine ear at my gasping, at my cry; when I was in that grievous extremity, that I seemed to ly gasping for life, and even drawing my last breath, but yet did still cry and seek to thee for succour and relief, (see Esay 26. 16——18. & 37.3. 1 Chr.32.20.) Thou didst not then reject such my sighing and seeking to thee, Esay 39.21.——36. This admitted, the main current of the context will run on smoothly without any interruption; nor can ought be objected against it, save that al, the particle here used, hath ordinarily a notion of inhibition, not of a bare negative; but that is not universal: al, for le, is not altogether unusual. Instances hereof, see Job 20 17.& 36 18 Psalm 34 5 & 41.2 & 50.3 & 66. 7. & 85.8 & 121.3 & 128.8. Esay 2.9. Jer.7 6. Obad. 12. The most of these places are clear. the rest all very probable, for this use of the particle, which the course of the context doth here very strongly plead for.

V. 57 Thou drewest near in the day that I called upon thee Thou madest thy gracious and powerful prelence with thy people to appear by succouring and saving them. So Psalm 69 18 draw nigh that I called, for, when or what time I called. so Psalm 86 7. In the day of my troubles, for, when, or what time I am in trouble.

thou saidst, Fear not.] Thou saidst so to me then by thy Prophet, Esay, 37. 6. See the like encouragements, Esay 41. 10, 13.

V. 58 O Lord thou hast pleaded the causes of my soul.] Or Thou didst plead O Lord, (so the words lye in the Text, and of Gods manner of pleading for his people, see Esay 49. 25 & 51 22. Jer. 51.26) either my causes in general, my soul, for me, as v. 17, 20, 24,51. or more specially such causes of mine as concerned my life; as Psalm 31 12, & 35.4.

thou hast redeemed my life.] Or, thou didst rescue my life: thou didst rescue or deliver me out of the hands of those that would have taken away my life. So is the word of redeeming frequently used, Psal. 55.18 & 69. 18.& 107. 2.

V. 59. O Lord, thou hast seen my wrong.] Or, thou seest my wrong, Heb. my perverseneſs (a term no where else found; but the Verb it cometh of we had before v.36) that is, mens perverſe, croſs, injurious, and outward uſage of me: as, my wrong, or violence, for the wrong offered me, the violence done to me, Jer. 51. 35. thou canſt not but ſee it, Pſal. 10.14. See v.36.

judge thou my cauſe. Heb. my judgement; as Pſalm 9 4. & 43.1. decide my cauſe now, as in former-going age. thou ſometime diddeſt, and haſt promiſed to do. Deut. 32. 36. Eſay 49. 25, 26. Jer. 51 36. And here I conceive, begins the firſt requeſt or ſuit of this people to God, all that went before, being but as a preparative, or introduction thereunto, drawn from their experience of Gods former favour and forwardneſs in this kind to do for them, produced, partly to induce God to manifeſt his conſtant and continued goodneſs, in doing the like again for them; and partly alſo to raiſe up in themſelves ſome hopefull expectation of finding the like favour with God, that in former times they had found. See the like Pſalm 44. 1——4. & 74. 12.——14. & 85. 1——4. Eſay 63. 11.——15.

V. 60. Thou haſt ſeen all their vengeance, and all their imaginations againſt me.] Or, Thou ſeeſt all that revengefull carriage of theirs towards me, whereby they deal with me, as with one that had done them ſome haynous wrong, and whom therefore they deviſe how to be revenged upon to the utmoſt: doe thou avenge me upon them, as they ſtudy now how to be revenged upon me, Jeremiah 51, 26. Heb. their contrivements (as Chapter 49. 50, and 50. 45.) to me, for, againſt me; as it is expounded, verſe 61. So is the Particle uſed alſo, Pſalm 51.4. and 56.2. Jeremiah 59.7.26.

V. 61. Thou haſt heard their reproach, O Lord,] Or, Thou hearedſt. Thou doeſt as well heare all their reproachfull language, as ſee their deſpitefull carriage, both againſt me, and againſt thy ſelfe, Pſalm 69. 19. and 80. 50, 51. Eſay 37.3,4. So verſe 59.

and all their imiginations againſt me.] As verſe 60. So Pſalm 56. 6.

V. 62. The lips of thoſe that roſe up againſt me, and their device againſt me all the day.] Lips, for, Language; as Gen. 11. 1. Pſalm 59.7. Zeph.3 9. Heb. riſers up againſt me: thoſe that roſe up againſt me and invaded me; the particle is ſwallowed up between the participle and the pronoun affixed to it. So Pſ.18.39.48. & 53. 5. and their meditation; as Pſal. 19. 14 what they muſe, or minde, either againſt me, or, concerning me; as Eſay 1. 1. all day long: continually; as ver.14.

V. 63. Behold, their ſitting down, and their riſing up. I am their muſick.] This Verſe ſome divide into two diſtinct branches, making the former a petition, an aſſertion the latter. The former they thus conceive and expound, Behold their ſitting up, and their laying down; take notice of the whole tenour and courſe of their liveſtor whereas mans whole life is taken up with, and ſpent in either employment or reſt from it; hence it cometh to paſſe, that unto theſe two heads is the whole courſe of his life referred, and under thoſe two terms comprehended Pſal 139 2. And this way our Verſion ſeemeth to incline; but the point after, behold, ſhould then be caſt out. Others rather make it one continued ſentence, rendring the words, with a very ordinary and familiar ſupply, ſuch as Eſay 23. 5. Behold it, how at their down-ſitting, and their up-riſing, I am their muſick; that is, ſay they, at all times, and upon all occaſions, early and late, I am hearing reference to their riſing up in the morning, and then lying down to reſt at even; as Deut.6.7. Pſal 139 2. and refer us back for this expoſition to ver.14. Nor is this Interpretation improbable. Howbeit, I ſuppoſe the words have a more ſpecial reſpect to their meals, or merry-meetings, at which thy uſed to make themſelves mirth and ſport with the miſeries of Gods people. And ſhould render the words, Behold their ſitting down, (to wit, at table, to eat and drink) and at their riſing up, (to wit, from table, as Exod 32.6 1 Cor.10 7) I am their muſick-maker. The word is not the lame with that ver.14. it is their muſick there, as the matter of their mirth; their muſick-maker here, one that maketh them ſport; as Sampſon did the Philiſtins, Judge 16.25,27. for the word ſeemeth to be, not a noun, as is commonly conceived, but a participle: the verbs of that ſtamp being ſometime regular, though therefore deemed in ſome fort irregular, becauſe they retain that radical initial letter, which thoſe of that making do commonly caſt away: the like whereunto are found, Num.5.22. Jer.3. 18. Ezek.22. 6. So it is an alluſion to ſuch minſtrels and ſongſters as they made uſe of at their feaſts, Luke 15.23,25. The word is in a feminine form, either becauſe ſuch forms are ſometime uſed in an indefinite notion, as Pſal.68.11. Eccl.1.1,12. whereof ſee on Eſay 40 9. or in alluſion to ſuch of that ſex as among the Jews, as well as with other people, were made uſe of to that purpoſe, Judge 21 21. Pſal 68.25. Eccl.2 8. It is as if he had ſaid, they need no other minſtrel to make them merry at their meetings, we are mirth and minſtrels enough to make them ſport firſt and laſt; with us at their ſitting down they begin, and with us at their riſing again they end. See Davids complaint of the like. Pſal. 35, 15, 16, 17. together with his ſupplication unto God that he would be pleaſed to take notice of it.

V. 64. Render unto them a recompence, O Lord, according to the work of their hands.] The like, ſee Pſal.28.4. Jer.50.29. Chap. 1. 22 The ancient Greek and the old Latine render both this, and the two next paſſages, as delivered in way of prediction, not of prayer. But in the Hebrew the future is frequently in uſe, as well in way of petition, (ſo Pſalm 83, 15, 102, 13.) as of precept.

V. 65. Give them ſorrow of heart:] The word here uſed being no where elſe read, is very ambiguous and diverſly rendred. The old Latine rendreth it a ſhield; and the ancient Greek, protection: which a ſhield indeed ſometime ſignifieth, Pſal.9 .4. but neither is this word the ſame with that which ſignifieth a ſhield; and protection can have no place here. Some Maſters render it, contrition of heart, ſorrow and grief; fetching it from a word that ſignifies to be in grief and heavineſſe: but this another of them controlleth; becauſe the radical letters agree not in either. Others, obdurition, or obſtinacy, or brawninеſſe of heart, like to the hardneſs of a ſhield; like that, 2 Cor. 3.14,15. others, obtrition, or blindneſse of mind, that they might not fore-ſee evils, to prevent them, before they did befall them; as Eſay 6. 10. others, obſcurity, or perplexity. from evils ſo befalling and environing them on every ſide, that they may not be able to finde any iſſue out of them; from a word that ſignifies to hedge in, or fence, Eſay 37.35. & 38. 6. whence the name of a garden, Cant. 4 12. Others laſtly, Confuſion, or, abjection of heart; from a word that ſignifies to deliver, or, give up, Gen. 14.20. Hoſ. 8. 11. as men not able longer to hold out, are wont to do. The two laſt ſeem moſt probable: and of the two, as to me ſeems, the former. Howbeit, I ſhall hereafter add mine own thoughts. One of the Jewiſh Commenters obſerveth an elegant conſonancy between the term here uſed, and that in the Verſe before-going, manginah, and meginnah: whence a learned Writer would referre them both to one root; and renders the Text, as if it were ſaid, They make muſick of me; and, do thou give muſick, but of ſome dolefull ditty, to them: and, ſaith he, the word may well come from the ſame root with the former: for the initial letter is in ſuch derivatives oft loſt: but he might have conſidered, that where verbals are ſo formed the middle radical letter, to recompenſe that loſſe, is ever doubled; which is not ſo here.

thy curſe unto them] Or, let thy curſe come upon them. The ancient Greek and old Latine render it, labour, by an inverſion of the radicall elements: the term of coming, omitted: as Jer. 2.1.13.& 3.3.

38. & 51 25. is in our Verſion ſupplied. But this ſupply will not be needfull, if we ſhall render the whole verſe in one ſentence, as I conceive we may, thus, Give to them for their obſtinacy or hardneſs of heart, give, I ſay, (as Hoſh.9.14. thy curſe unto them: the ſupply is no other than that, Mal.2.3. I gave them to him for his fear: the redundancy no other than that, Pſalm 51.4. againſt thee, thee alone: and, not to us, not to us, Pſalm 115. 1. and, my deliverer unto me, Pſalm 144.2. and, 1 Sam.20. 42. which we two have ſworn we; and the like. But of this let others deem.

V. 66. Perſecute and deſtroy them in anger, from under the heavens of the Lord.] Or, Purſue them in anger, (as Pſalm 83. 15.) and deſtroy them from under the Lords heaven: or, that they may not be (may have no being; as Pſalm 59.13.) under the Lords heaven: that is, under thy heaven: as Pſalm 8.3. the Noun, for the Pronoun: as Exodus 40.17. 2 Timothy 1.10. Of the uſe of the Particle, ſee on verſe 44. and the ſame form of ſpeech, Jer. 10. 11.

CHAP. IV.

Verſe 1. How is the gold become dim? how is the fine gold changed?] This is the third ſingle Alphabet in this mournful Lamentation: of the ſame ſubject with the former; deploring their calamities and concluding with menaces to Edom, and comfort to Sion. This verſe of the gold and the ſtones, ſome of the Jewiſh Doctours expound of the Nobles and Princes of Sion, the other. And a learned Writer would have Princes and Nobles meant by the one, Priests and Levites, by the other. But it ſeemeth that the Prophet in theſe words bewaileth the deſtruction of the Temple.

How] In way of Admiration as ſo ſtrange an alteration; as chap. 1 1, & 2.1.

the gold] Wherewith the Temple was adorned and beautified, 1 Kings 6.22. Matt.23.16,17.

become dim] So the Jewiſh Critick faith that ſome expound it, and that the Chaldee Paraphraſt ſo uſeth the term, Levicicus 13. But the Hebrew word ſignifieth to hide, conceal or cover, Ezekiel, 28. 3.& 31. 8. Nor ſee I any reaſon why from that uſe of the word, we ſhould ſwarve here: how is the gold, wherewith Gods Houſe was ſo richly and royally adorned, now overwhelmed, and covered over with trash, and buried in heaps of duſt & rubbiſh?

the fine gold] The word it ſelf is deemed of it ſelf to ſignifie not gold bareley, but the finer ſort of gold: for I cannot concur herein with that prime Critick, who would have it the name of ſome precious ſtone. See Eſay 13. 12. Cant. 5. 13. Howbeit, to enhance the price and worth of it, there is an attribute added to it, as Job 28.18. ſo here; pure there, good here: as the ſame to the gold of Havilah, Geneſis 2.12. and that it was choyce gold that Solomon made uſe of, about his workes, is noted, 1 Kings, 10. 18.

is changed] Either converted to prophane uſes; or jumbled together among the rubbiſh. The word is found in the ſame form, Dan.6.13.

the ſtones of the Sanctuary are poured out in the top of every ſtreet,] Or, how are (ſuppliedfrom the former branch. as before, and Chapter 1.1.) the ſtones of the Sanctuary (Heb. holyneſs. for a place of holyneſs: an holy place: as, thirſt, for a place of thirſtineſs: a thirſty place, Jer.48.18. So Pſalm 20.3. Ezekiel 43.14. Jare poured out: Heb. poor out themſelves: as Job 30.16.chapter 2. 11. come tumbling down from the demoliſhed Temple) into, or at the top Heb. head; as Chapter 2. 19. of every ſtreet. Some expound it (as was before hinted) of Sions ſons for ſightlyneſs and comelyneſs of proportion and perſon, compared to the poliſhed ſtones of the Temple Pſalm 144 12. But that Expoſition is needleſsly forced, as well as ſome other there related.

V. 2. The precious ſonnes of Zion comparable to fine gold, how are they eſteemed as earthen pitchers, the worke of the hands of the porter?] From the place City and Temple, he paſſeth to the perſons the Inhabitants of Ieruſalem, and more ſpecially of Sion, the Princes and Priests, Sion being the ſeat, both of Gods Temple and the Kings Palace; and the principall of either State and before ordinarily reſiding there. Here is another word for fine gold, ſo termed, either from the exact refining of it, or from the Countrey whence it came. See on Eſay 13.12. Ieremiah 10: 6.1 Kings 10. 8. Iob 28.16,17. Heb. as bottles of ſherd, or earthen ſtuffe. So Ieremiah 19.1,10. as things of no repute or worth, 2 Corinthians 4.7. See Ier.22.28.

V. 3. Even the Sea-monſters draw out the breaſt, they give ſuck to their young ones:] From the principal perſons in either State, Civil and Eccleſiaſtical; whoſe former height and worth made their preſent miſery and deſpicable condition the more remarkable, and ſuch as might well move the more commiſeration: he paſſeth now from the young children, to the ſucking babes, whoſe weakneſſe and tenderneſſe together with their harmleſſeſse, were the fiteſt objects of pity and compaſſion that could be, aggravating their miſery by the perſons, their own parents, their own mothers, at whoſe hands they ſuſtained it; taxed here, as more unnatural than ſome of thoſe ſavage and vaſt creatures that live in the ſea, fat heſt off from any commerce, or communion, either with mankind, or any tame creatures, ſuch as many are which live on the land. The term here uſed ſeemeth not to be ſo well rendred, ſea-monſters: for though ſome of them may ſeem to be of a monſtrous ſize, in compariſon of any creature that liveth on the land, as a grown elephant, in regard of any beaſt in theſe parts: Yet monſters are properly ſuch, as either have ſome ſtrange deformity beſide the natural and ordinary courſe of their kinde, or grow to ſuch an enormous bigneſſe and ſtature, as far exceedeth the common proportion of others of the ſame kinde: but no kinde of creature ſimply conſidered can properly be termed a monſter, nor can it be ſaid that God made any monſters in his firſt work of creation. Sea-monſters therefore is not proper here; and Sea-calves ſeems too narrow: Seale might do well; if that particular kinde were aimed at; which would include as well ſea-horſes, and ſea-hounds, as ſea-calves; all covered with a tough and hairy skin; ſuch as we ſometime cover trunks and boxes with: but I ſee not why the word ſhould not here be rendred, as in the ſtory of the creation it is, Geneſ. 1. 21. and Iob 7. 12. and as it would be, Pſalm 44. 19. and 74. 13. whales. See Eſay 27. 1. for even whales alſo as well as ſeals, being forth young, have teats, and give ſuck to their young; which the Hebrew here termeth wholps; and they are here ſaid to draw out, or let looſe, (Heb. looſen) put out, rather than as the learned Schindiah, put off) their breaſts, when they let them down for their young ones ſucking of them the more readily: the word tannin here uſed is deemed to be a plural contracted, for taninim, in the Chaldee termination; becauſe the verb adjoyned to it, is plural: but it may well be ſingular, as it is conſtantly elſewhere, and then being taken diſtributively, it maketh the notion more vigorous; as if it were ſaid, the whale each of them, they ſuckle their wholps; as Joel 1.20. the beaſt each of them they cry: there is none of them ſo ſavage, or outragious otherwiſe, but they do it.

the daughter of my people is become cruel, like the oſtriches in the wildernesſe.] Or, But (ſuppliedto continue the context: as Jer. 50. 34.) the daughter of my people (not the State in general conſiſting of both ſexes, as Jer. 31. 22. and hereafter, verſ.6. but the women among that people, as, the daughters of Sion, Eſay 3.16.17.) is become cruel: (Heb. is turned into a cruel one; as it is more fully, Iob 30. 21.) to wit, towards her younglings: ſhe is ſo affected towards them, as if ſhe were wholly ſtript of all natural affection, like thoſe, Rom. 1. 31. 2 Tim 3.3. becauſe either by extremity of diſtreſse and want, they were enforced to neglect their children in the time of the ſiege of the citie, as moſt conceive it; ſuppoſing them to be in that regard compared to the oſtrich, (ſo both ancient Greek and old Latine render it) that forſaketh not her eggs, but leaveth them buried in the ſand, Iob 39. 14——17. or rather to the owles, (for ſo the world generally ſignifies, Lev. 11.16. Deut 14. 15. but elſewhere conſtantly feminine and ſingular; whereof ſee on Eſay 13.21. Jer. 50 39. in this place onely maſculine and plural.) that living in waſte places Eſay 43. 20. Iob 30. 29. Pſal. 102.6. where many times they can come by no food, for either their young ones, or themſelves, do not onely ſometime leave them, (as it is noted of the ravens, Iob 38.41. Pſal.147.9. the like whereunto the Jewiſh obſerve of the owles, from Mic. 1.8.) but even alſo make meat of them, and feed themſelves with them; as the women dealt with their own children in the ſiege of Ieruſalem, Chap.2.20. and hereafter, verſ. 10. and this is that, which I conceive to be here intended, as an act of much cruelty.

V. 4. The tongue of the ſucking-child cleaveth to the roof of his mouth for thirſt.] Or, did cleave, for drought, as Pſal.22.15. as for fear and reverence, Iob 29. 10. ſo for famine and drought here, becauſe their mothers breaſts being dried up through want of food and moiſture, they had no milk to ſuckle them withall. See the like phraſe Pſal 137.6. This ſome take to be added as an explication of the former. I conceive it to be matter diſtinct and divers from that. See Chap.2.11.12.

the young children aſk bread, and no man breaketh it unto them.] Or, when the children aſked bread, (called for food, as Chap.1.11.) there was none to deal it to them; as Eſay 58.7. Jer.52.6. The particle is ſuppliedd, as Deut.8.12. Jer.8.18.

V. 5. They that did feed delicately,] Heb. that fed on delicates, or, dainties; that fared deliciouſly and daintily; as thoſe that are born and bred in Kings Courts and great mens houſes are wont to do, Gen.49.20. Prov.29.21. Luke 7.25. and 15.19.

are deſolate in the ſtreets:] Or, being deſolate, and harbourleſſe; lay abroad in the ſtreets: a complexive form of ſpeech, like that, Chap.3.53.

they that were brought up in ſcarlet,] That had wont to be ſofely and ſumptuouſly clad, 2 Sam.1.24. Mat. 11.8. ſcarlet; the wear of Kings, Commanders, and great ones, Ezek.23.6,12,15. Nah.2.3. but the Hebrew is rather, thoſe that were brought up upon ſcarlet: alluding to thoſe carpets that they uſe to ſpread under them, whereon to lye and repoſe themſelves, or to ſit upon at meat and meals; yea, to tread and ſet their feet upon, as is uſual in thoſe Eaſtern parts, even to this day. See on Eſay 14. 11. a place parallel to this: and of the word rendred ſcarlet, on Eſay 1.18.

vmbrace dunghils.] Or embraced, that is, fay fome, raked the dunghills to find fomewhat to feed upon, were glad of any thing to eat, were it never fo forry, though it came from the dung-hill: as the prodigal of the husks, Luke 15. 16. or raked the dunghils for any rags, that might help to cover their nakedneſs. But I ſuppoſe neither of theſe to be here intended: but a further aggravation of what he had ſaid formerly, of their lying harbourleſs in the ſtreets: to wit, that they were compelled to lodge there upon the dunghils, to take up their lodging on ſuch heaps of naſty ſtuff as the ſtreets afforded, having no other place to receive them, Job 24. 8. They ſeem to reſemble the Text too far, who either going the former way, expound it, of making meat of pigeons dung, and the like: or, of making meat of anything the latter way, underſtand it of their corpſes lying unburied on the dunghils in the ſtreets, Jer. 16. 4. the words of the text neither fort well with the former, nor will admit the latter.

V. 6. For the puniſhment of the iniquity of the daughter of my people, is greater than the puniſhment of the ſin of Sodom,] Heb. And (which need not here be altered) the iniquity of the daughter of my people (of which, ſee on Jer. 9. 1.) is great from (that is, greater then: as good from, for better then. Prov. 22. 1.) the ſinne of Sodom: that which ſome take, as the words ſound, as an acknowledgement of their ſin to be more heinous than the ſin of Sodom: agreeable to that, Ezek. 16. 48. and they adde, that therefore was their guilt greater than Sodoms: becauſe Prophets had been ſent unto them, which had not been done to Sodom. So ſaith a learned Annotater, doth the Chaldee note: but I finde in him no ſuch matter, though our Saviour do thence aggravate the guilt of his people, Matthew 11. 23. But the words next enſuing ſhew that by iniquity and ſinne is meant here the penalty and puniſhment of either; as Geneſis 4. 13. Leviticus 24. 15. Numbers 9. 13. and as hereafter verſe 22.

that was overthrown in a moment, and no hand ſtayed on her,] She ſuſtained not any long ſiege from ſome forein forces, nor was kept long in pains and miſery, as I and my people have been: but was ſuddenly, as in an inſtant, diſpatched, Geneſis 19. 24, 24. See verſe 9.

V. 7. Her Nazarites] Either ſuch as according to a certain rite had by a ſolemn vow for ſome ſet term of time, ſevered and debarred themſelves from ſome ordinary courſes of common carriage and uſage. Whereof ſee Numb. 6. 2. Amos 2. 11, 12. during which time, ſay ſome, they uſed more frequent waſhings, than others ordinarily did. Or, as others rather, their nobles and courtiers, young gallants eſpecially: for the word Nezer is uſed for a crown, or enſign of honour, 2 Samuel 1. 10. 2 Kings 11. 12. and conſequently for honour, wealth, or whatſoever maketh a man to be deemed honourable, and to be reſpected more than others, Prov. 27. 4. Hence, perſons in regard of place or perſon more eminent than others, are as ſelect ones, termed Nazarites. So is Joſeph ſtyled, Gen. 49. 26. Deut. 33. 16 the ſelect one of his brethren: and from the ſame term, thy ſelect, or crowned, or honourable ones Nah. 3. 17. and ſo I conceive the word here to be meant: for ſuch they had conſtantly, not a few with them, while their State flouriſhed. Nazarites not alwayes, or it may be, not many.

were purer then ſnow, they were whiter than milk,] Fair & in good plight; Proverbial expreſſions. See the like Gen. 49. 12. Pſal. 51. 7. the ſame thing reiterated with a two-fold expreſſion to make the deeper expreſſion.

they were more ruddy] Heb. ruddy from, for more ruddy; and ſo before] pure from, for purer: white from, for whiter. See on v. 6. ruddineſs, eſpecially joyned with a mixture of whiteneſs in ſome parts and clearneſs of complexion, is uſually deemed very ſightly and lovely in either Sex, 1 Sam. 16. 12. & 17. 42. Cant. 5. 10.

in body] Heb. in bone; as verſe 8. Ezek. 37. 7. & 39. 25. but put here for body, as Job 2. 5. and more ſpecially for the outward ſurface of the body, that lieth open and is expoſed to ſhew and ſight: as, the body of the ſky in its clearneſs, Exod. 24. 10. where the very ſame word is uſed.

than Rubies,] The Jewiſh Doctors render the word Pearls; but ruddineſs is no commendation of Pearls: the old Latine, as abſurdly, old Ivory: Which Popiſh Writers to juſtifie, ſtrain their wits immoderately and unreaſonably, to deviſe ſome ſorry ſhifts, whereby to pick ſome colourable ſenſe from ſo ſenſleſs an expreſſion: and having ſpent divers very prolix and tedious diſputes and debates about it, they come at length to this, that Ivory, in continuance of time, loſeth its genuine candor, and groweth red; (and it is then ſure very ſightly) or that anciently they were wont to colour it ſo; but where is the Ivory it ſelf at all in the Text? Some render it carbuncles: but becauſe that ſtone hath commonly rather a flamy than a bloode hew: ſome other would have it coral: which yet is not likely to have been a matter of any ſuch great eſteem among them, being in thoſe parts ſo plentiful, as by divers paſſages in Scripture, it appeareth that this here mentioned was. See Job 28. 18. Prov. 3. 15. & 8. 11. & 31. 10. And I concur therefore with our Engliſh Verſion, which conſtantly renders it Rubies: the Ruby, though deemed commonly a kind of Carbuncle, yet having uſually a clear and vegetous redneſs, enclining rather to the colour of bloud than of fire.

their poliſhing was of Saphir,] Or, their poliſhing was as the poliſhing of Saphir: the ſupply made from the former term. See the like Eſay 54. 8. & 13. 8. chap. 2. 6, 12. they were like poliſhed Saphires, to wit, for ſlickneſs, ſmoothneſs, and cleerneſs of skin. See Exod. 24. 10. or as ſome read it, Saphir was their cutting out; that is, they were as ſightly and clear, as if they had been cut out, and made up all of Saphir.

V. 8. Their viſage is blacker than a coal,] So the old Latine: than ſoot, ſaith the Greek; but neither of both is in the text. Heb. their ſhape or form, or hew, (ſee Eſay 52. 14.) was obſcured, or darkened from blackneſs. Either was become more obſcure and dark than blackneſs it ſelf; as in the like uſe of the particle, verſe 9. or, was became ſo obſcure with blackneſs. (for the particle, is uſed frequently in a notion of cauſality. See on chap. 3. 51.) their viſage or countenance was ſo altered, and become black, what with famine and what with grief, care, and fear, that thoſe to whom formerly they had been well known, did not, or could not, now know them when they met them in the ſtreets. See Job 30. 30. Jer. 14. 2. chap. 5. 10. Rev. 6. 5. 6. therefore it followeth:

they are not yet known in the ſtreets] Or, were not; for he ſpeaketh ſtill of things paſt; and moſt of what befell them during the ſiege, or upon the ſurpriſal of the city.

their ſkin cleaveth to their bones.] Or cleaved to their bones. Heb. bone; as Gen. 2. 23. Their fleſh was ſo waſted and conſumed, that they were become nothing but skin and bone. So Job 19. 20. Pſal. 102. 4, 5. and 119. 83.

V. 9. They that be ſlain with the ſword are better than they that be ſlain with hunger:] Heb. Good were the ſlain of the ſword (as Jer. 15. 18.) from the ſlain of the famine. that is, it is better with them, better caſe were they in, that were ſlain by the ſword of the enemy, than thoſe that periſhed by the famine: good from, for better than, as Pſal. 118. 8, 9. Prov. 16. 19, 32. & 17. 1. & 19. 1. Eccl. 4. 3. & 9. 4.

for theſe pine away,] The former are ſuddenly diſpatcht, and ſoon put out of their pain; whereas theſe are long waſting and pining away with a tedious diſeaſe, with a lingring death, Lev. 26. 39. See verſe 6. Heb. flow away: as Jer. 49. 4. the like term is uſed of people ſlain with the ſword, Jer. 18. 21.

ſtricken thorow] Faring yet no better, and no leſs ſure to dy than as if they were ſtab'd and thruſt thorow, Jer. 37. 10. & 51. 4.

for want of the fruits of the field:] For want of food; as Hag. 1. 10. Heb. from the fruits of the field: a conciſe or defective form of ſpeech: not unlike that, Pſalm 109. 24. from fats, that is, for want of fat: and from knowledge, that is, for want of knowledge, Jer. 10. 14. and that grieve for the aſſembly: that is, for the want of it, Zeph. 3. 18. See on chap. 1. 4. So alſo, Gen. 18. 28. wilt thou deſtroy it for five? that is, for want of five, as the place it ſelf plainly ſheweth.

V. 10. The hands of the piteifull women have ſodden their owne children: they were their meat in the deſtruction of the daughter of my people.] This is, that which before he complained of, v. 3. that women who were naturally inclined to a tenderneſs of affection toward their own children, eſpecially 1 King. 3. 26. V. 12. The Kings of the earth, and all the inhabitants of the world would not have believed that the adverſary and enemy ſhould have entred into the gates of Jeruſalem.] It ſeemed unto them a thing incredible, almoſt impoſſible, ſuch a thing as could hardly be believed, nor in any likelyhood expected, that any adverſary, or (as Exod. 15. 15.) enemy ſhould be ſuffered to ſurpriſe that City, that was Gods own Seat, and the place of his royal reſidence: or, as ſome, in regard that it was deemed an impregnable peice. See c. 2. 15, 20. Pſalm 79. 1.

V. 13. For the ſins of her Prophets, and the iniquities of her Prieſts] But thus it is come to paſs, (that which ſome inſert, for the better clearing of the paſſages, into the text) by reaſon of the ſins of the falſe Prophets and Prieſts: not that the people were not faulty, as well as either of theſe, in thoſe wicked pranks and practiſes that were then committed; but that theſe were foremoſt and forwardeſt ring-leaders and encouragers of them unto thoſe wicked courſes, which they ſhould have reproved in them, and from which they ſhould have endeavoured to reſtrain them, Eſay 3. 12. & 9. 16. Jer. 5. 31. & 20. 2. & 23. 21. & 26. 11. Chap. 2. 14.

of the juſt] Perſons innocent, or guiltleſſe, ſhed by them in the city, Eſay 59. 7. Jer. 2. 34. & 7. 6. & 19. 4. for they ſwarve, I ſuppoſe, from the intendment of the text, who expound it of their children ſlain in ſacrifice to their idols; though that alſo termed innocent bloid, Pſal. 106. 37, 38. and they much more, that would have it meant of the better ſort of them ſlain by the enemy, brought in through the wickedneſſe of the parties before-mentioned, according to that, Pſal. 79. 2.

V. 14. They have wandred as blind men in the ſtreets, they have polluted themſelves with bloud, ſo that men could not touch their garments.] Or, The blind, when they wandred in the ſtreets, were defiled with bloud; or, in that, or, becauſe they could not but touch their garments, or. they touched it with their garments, which they might not, This paſſage is very difficult, and there is great variety of Verſions, and of interpretations again far greater. I have pointed at thoſe Verſions onely, which the words of the text may without much ſtraining admit, letting thoſe paſs, which they utterly reject: and with reference to ſome of theſe Verſions are given out the enſuing interpretations. Some therefore expound them of blind perſons properly ſo termed; an this common way in general the Jewiſh Commenters go, yet ſo as they walk in two ſeverall tracks: for ſome of them expound it, of the bloud of thoſe guiltleſſe ones ſhed by the Jewes themſelves in Jeruſalem, verſe 13. wherewith the City was filled from the one end to the other, 2 Kings 21. 16. & 24. 4. Ezek. 7. 23. Others, of thoſe that were ſlain by the enemy: either during the ſiege, or upon the ſurpriſal of the city, whoſe bodies lay unburied in the ſtreets, weltring in their bloud: that the city was in every place ſo glutted at either time, with the blood and carcaſſes of either, that poor blind men, when they wandred in the ſtreets, could not avoid but while they ſtumbled at the one, and either trode on or fell into the other, they were ſo defiled with gore blood, that none could endure to touch their clothes. But other Interpreters, moſt of them, underſtand the place of perſons, either ſpiritually blind, Eſay 42. 18, 19. or ſo affected, as blind perſons are wont to be, Eſay 59. 10. and then is the note of ſimilitude to be ſupplied, as Chap. 3. 10. Now this ſome of them underſtand of the people in generall, but to two ſeverall purpoſes: Some, that the people, upon the ſurpriſal of the city, as men at their wits end, wandred up and down, like blind men, uncertain which way to take for the ſaving of themſelves; but which way ſoever they took to, they lighted on nothing but bloud, and men ſo beſmeared therewith, that there was no touching of them. See Eſay 9. 5. Others, that the city was ſo full of pollutions that which way ſoever men went, that were deſirous to keep free from them, they could not poſſibly avoyd them, but muſt of neceſſity, as if they were blind, ſtumble upon them and ſo impoſſible to keep themſelves from being at leaſt legally defiled with them: Id eſt, ſay they, put for all manner of pollutions; as Eſay 4. 4. Other again apply them to the puarthereous Prieſts and Prophets mentioned, verſe 13. But theſe again tread alſo in two divers tracks. For ſome exp und them, as relating what condition thoſe Prieſts and Prophets were in, when they ſaw the city now ſurpriſed; that they ran up and down like blind men or men in a maze, either having their garments defiled, with the blood that themſelves had formerly ſhed, Jer. 2. 34. ſo ſome, though very improbably: or, that while they ſo ran to and fro, feeking ſome way to ſhift for themſelves, they were ſo defiled with the blood of th. ſlain, that their garments were made loathſome with it; or they were defiled with the blood of the ſlain, and touched their corpſes with their garments, which was not lawfull for them to do, Lev. 21. 1, 9. they could not, for, they might not; as Deut. 12. 17. & 16, 5. Others laſtly, as having reference to their former courſes and carriages, when they dealt in that manner with poor innocent perſons, either that others deteſting their cruel and bloody courſes, though they did what they could to ſhun them yet could not but ſtumble upon them there were ſo many every where of them: or that themſelves, blind beetles as they were, Eſay 42. 19. wandred and went awry in judgement, Eſay 28. 7. as blind men, that cannot diſcern their way uſe to do in the ſtreets: inſomuch, that men for their cruell carriages abhorred them, and were as cautious to ſhun them as they would one, whole garments could not be handled or touched without pollution and defilement, Judg. 23. And this laſt, made up of the notions of one or two particle, Eſay 24. 10. Chap. 3. 41. The Chaldeans, being ſet down before it, begire our city, and raiſed their forts and works ſo far above our walls, that they could at pleaſure ſhoot into the city; by reaſon whereof we could not with ſafety look abroad, or go to and fro in the ſtreets See the like phraſe, Pſal. 58. 6. & 140. 11. A learned Annotator telleth us here of a two-fold reading in the text, tſaru, and tſadu; and that Abraham the ſon of Eſdras and other Interpreters follow the former, expounding it, they ſtreitned our ſteps: the Chaldee Paraphraſt, the latter. But I find no ſuch matter, either in that Abrahams notes on the place, or in any other Interpreters. In the next word indeed the Authour of the ancient Greek Verſion ſeemeth for tſaade, food-ſteps, to have read, tſaire, little ones, rendring it, they hunted (as the corrected copies exhibit it; not, we hunted) our little ones, but that was from a meer miſtake by the likeneſs of the letters d and r in Hebrew. There is an elegant conſonancy in the Hebrew between the two words here uſed, as if we ſhould ſay, they hunt our haunts, Depart, ye polluted ones, touch me not; when they flew away, yea, and wandred; that is, got away, as faſt and as far, as they could from them. And this ſeemeth to me very probable. Howbeit, there want not, who conceive them to be ſpoken, not to the Prieſts, but of the Prieſts, reading, ſome the former branch; They that cryed to them, (that uſed to cry to others) Depart, &c. were ſo cautious and chary of touching ought, or coming near any that might in the leaſt degree defile them. See Eſay 52. 11. & 65. 5. Col. 2. 21. Yet were now, as before was ſaid, verſe 13. And others, the latter, even they; to wit, thoſe Prieſts and Prophets, flew away, yea, and wandred; that is, were ſuddenly carried away into captivity. See Jer. 49. 9, 12. there is an elegant conſonancy in the terms, as if it were ſaid, they are flowen and fled.

They ſaid among the heathen, They ſhall no more ſojourne there] Heb. they ſhall not adde to ſojourne: Of which form, ſee on Eſay 10. 20. and the like, verſe 16 22. ſo vile and abominable were their courſes, that even the heathen themſelves had this opinion of them, that they ſhould not, or could not continue long in that land and that city, which they had with cruel and bloody courſes ſo notoriouſly defiled. See Lev. 18. 16. Num. 35. 33, 34. Pſal. 106. 38. Mic. 2. 10. The old Latine readeth it, he will not adde to dwell any more among them; that is, God is reſolved to make no longer abode with them, that which would well agree with what follows, verſe 16. But the form of the verb in the Hebrew will not admit it. Some expound it of the falſe Prophets, that promiſed the people ſpeedy delivery out of Babylon, and other places, where they remained in captivity, Jer. 28. 3, 4. & 29. 8. and they read the words they ſaid that they ſhould not continue ſojourning among the nations. But as the terms of the text refuſe the former, ſo the diſtinguiſhing points in the text reject this latter.

V. 16 The anger of the Lord hath divided them,] Or, The wrath of the Lord will diſperſe them. Heb. The face of the Lord; as Pſal. 34. 16. and, to divide, for, to diſperſe; as Gen. 49. 7. God will ſcatter them himſelf, he will no more regard them:] Heb. he will not adde (as verſe 15.) to behold, or look after them; as Pſal. 84. 9.

they reſpected not the perſons of the Prieſts, they favoured not the Elders.] Heb. they lifted not up the face of the Prieſts, (ſee the ſame form, Gen. 19. 21. & 32. 20. 1 Sam. 25. 35. 1 Kings 3. 14. Prov. 18. 5.) They ſhewed no favour, or, mercy, to the aged, or elders: the word may be a name, either of age, or office, as 1 Tim. 1. 17, 19. This the Jewiſh Commenters expound of their own people, who had been faulty, and that not a little, in the diſgracefull, yea deſpitefull uſage of the pious and religious, both Prieſts, and others of like rank, that compiyed not with them in their wickedneſs. See the dealing with Zachary, 2 King. 21. 12. with Uriah, Jer 26. 23. with Jeremy, Jer. 20. 2. & 32. 2. & 37. 15. & 38. 6. Acts 7. 52. Others, of the Chaldeans, as if in theſe words the Prophet returned again to complain, in the perſon of the people, of the harſh and cruel uſage of the adverſary, after the ſurpriſal of the city, regarding none, either for dignity or antiquity, but carrying themſelves alike roughly and rudely towards perſons of all ſorts, 2 King. 25. 18, 21. 2 Chr. 25. 17. Chap. 1. 6. & 5. 12.

V. 17. As for us,] Heb. yet we: a nominative abſolute, as 2 Chr. 28. 2. or, while, as yet we were: ſo long as our ſtate ſtood, and we were not yet ſurpriſed.

Jer. 2. 11. & 7. 8 for the Egyptians that were not able to do us any good, Eſay 20. 5. & 30. 6, 7. Jer. 2. 18, 36. & 37. 7, 8 2 Kings 24. 7.

V. 18. they hunt our ſteps that we cannot go in our ſtreets] Or, They hunted our foot-ſteps that we could not go, walk in our ſtreets. Heb. from going, or, walking in our ſtreets. Habb. 2 15, 16 thou ſhalt be expoſed to ſhame and deriſion, as perſons in ſuch caſe uſually are, Gen. 9 22. Ezek. 23. 32. See Jer. 49. 10. The old Latine rendreth it, thou ſhalt be made bare, or ſtript: and the word, indeed, as ſome thinks, the ſame, in a reciprocal form, yet is uſed in no reciprocall ſenſe, Jer. 51. 58. as alſo it is true, (that which in favour of that Verſion a learned Writer obſerveth) that any one may eaſily ſtrip a man in drink: but yet there ſeemeth ſome emphaſis in the reciprocal form here, which would not therefore be ſo ſlighted, The Greek rendreth it, thou ſhalt poure out: and it cannot be denied, but that the word is ſometime ſo uſed, Gen. 24. 20. Eſay 32. 15. & 53. 12. which a learned Writer preferreth, expounding it of ſpewing, the common ſymptome of the drunken diſeaſe, Eſay 19. 14. & 28. 8. Jer. 25. 27. Habb. 2. 16. and adding that the word ſometime ſo ſignifieth: but I find not where it is ſo uſed; nor for pouring out neither in the form here found; and the former notion ſeemeth here more familiar. See further, verſe 22.

V. 22. The puniſhment of thine iniquity is accompliſhed, O daughter of Zion,] Heb. thine iniquity is, or, will be accompliſhed. See before on verſe 6. From the Edomites he turneth his ſpeech again to his own people, the inhabitants of Sion, that is, of Jeruſalem, (ſee Eſay 1. 8.) concluding this ſad ſong with a word of comfort unto them, that a time ſhall come, when God having inflicted ſuch a meaſure and ſtint of afflictions and penalties upon them, as he hath determined to exerciſe them withall for their ſins, he will then no longer detain them in captivity, but will ſhew mercy again to them. See Eſay 40. 2.

he will no more carry thee away into captivity:] To wit, after thy return from the preſent Chaldean captivity, Eſay 54. 9. & 60. 18. Heb. he will not adde (as verſe 15, 16.) to depart, or captiue thee: which may as well be underſtood of keeping in captivity, as of carrying into captivity: as, to enlive, or quicken, is uſed as well for to keep in life; as for to reſtore unto life. Gen. 12. 12. Exod. 1. 17, 18. Pſal. 22. 29. and the text may well be rendred, when the penalty of thy ſin ſhall be conſummated, thou ſhalt no longer be detained in captivity: a defect of the adverb of time, as Chap. 3. 34. he, that is, God; ſay ſome. Others, the enemy: true of either: but the verb is indefinite; and therefore beſt rendred by the paſſive.

he will viſit thine iniquity, O daughter of Edom,] Or, puniſh it; as Jer. 50 18, God will have a day of viſitation for thee; as he hath already had with me, See of Babylon, Chap. 50, 27.

he will diſcover thy ſins.] God may be ſaid to diſcover ſins, when he taketh notice of them, puniſheth for them, proceedeth openly againſt them; and by the grievouſneſſe of penalties inflicted upon the perſons of delinquents for them, maketh the hainouſneſs of them to appear, Iob 20. 27. as on the contrary he is ſaid to cover ſins, when he paſſeth them by, pardoneth them, forbeareth to proceed further againſt them, doth no more now regard them, than as if they were hidden and concealed from his ſight, Pſal. 32, 1, 5. & 85. 2 Neh. 4. 5. But becauſe there is a particle before the word ſins, which this Verſion taketh no notice of, and yet ſeemeth to be of uſe, I conceive the text may thus be rendred; he will diſcover the ſins of thy ſins: that is the frequent uſe of the particle, Amos 1, 3, 6. 9, 11, 13. & 2. 1, 4, 6. a defect of the pronoun onely ſupplyed, as Eſay 14. 9. & 51. 13. & 58. 9 & 60. 15, and this expoſition leremy himſelf leadeth us to, who bringeth in God ſpeaking thus of Edom, I have ſtripped, or made bare Eſau, I have diſcovered his ſecret places, and he ſhall not be able to hide himſelf, Ier. 49. 10. and becauſe the term is here, as that before, indefinite, it may not amiſſe be rendred; thou ſhalt be diſcovered for thy ſins. Som Interpreters of note, becauſe the word hath a notion of tranſmigration, and deportation, or removall, as well, and as commonly as of retection, revelation, and diſcovering, would therefore have it here ſo taken; the rather becauſe it was ſo uſed in the branch before going; and ſo there would be an oppoſition not inelegant, between this and that, Sion ſhall no longer be kept in captivity, but Edom ſhall paſſe into captivity, as in her room: according to that of Solomon, The righteous is delivered out of trouble, and the wicked cometh in his ſtead Prov. 11. 8. but the form of the verb in the former is diverſe from it is here; nor is the verb ever found uſed in that notion, in that form wherein this clauſe hath it, but perpetually in the former onely.

CHAP. V.

Verſe 1. REmember, &c.] This laſt Chapter of this mournfull Treatiſe, for ſubject matter much the ſame with the former, though not compoſed in ſuch an alphabetical ſtructure as they all were; beginneth with an addreſſe unto God, minding him of their preſent calamitous condition, Verſe 1-----proceedeth to a profeſſion of hearts grief for the deſtruction of Gods Sanctuary, Verſe 17, 18. and concludeth with ſupplication to God, that he would be pleaſed, to remit of his fierce wrath towards them, and to turn in mercy again to them, Verſe 19-----22.

Remember, O Lord, what is come upon us:] Take notice of it, and relieve us: as Pſal. 25, 7, 18.

conſider, and behold] As, Behold and conſider, Chap. 2. 20. Heb. Behold and ſee; as Chap. 1. 11.

our reproach.] In what diſgrace we are, Chap. 1, 11. & 3. 61. Neh. 1, 3. & 4. 4. Pſal. 89. 50, 51. & 123. 3, 4.

V. 2. Our

V. 2. Our inheritance is turned to ſtrangers, our houſes to aliens.] The land of Canaan, which thou gaveſt us to hold as an inheritance from thee, Pſal. 78 55. & 135. 12. & 136 21, 22. together with our places of abode therein, is turned over to ſtrangers; and poſſeſſed by them, as their own right ful inheritance. See Deut. 28. 30 ——33. Eſay 61. 18, 19 Chap. 6 12.

V. 3. We are orphans, and fatherleſſ.] Being without King or Ruler, Hoſ 3. 4. or being ſo eaſken and left by thee, who waſt our Father. Deut. 32. 6. Eſay 63. 16. & 64. 8.

our mothers are as widows.] Our City and State are as wives left and caſt off by their husbands, regarded and protected no more by them, than as if they had none at all. See Chap. 1. 1. We are as orphans and widows, fatherleſs and husbandleſs, expoſed to wrong and injurious uſages of any.

V. 4. We have drunken our water for money;] We drink our water for ſilver. Silver for money, as Eſay 55 1, 2. drink it for ſilver, as Mic. 3. 11. or, with ſilver; for, drink it bought with ſilver, a complexive form, ſuch is Eſay 38. 13, 21. We have not ſo much as water free; we muſt pay for it, or earn it, before we can have it; as as Num. 20. 19 See verſe 6.

our wood is ſold unto us.] Heb. cometh (as, is made to come, verſe 9.) for price to us: we pay for it, which in times paſt we had freely out of the common woods.

V. 5. Our necks are under perſecution;] We lye under a grievous yoke of thraldome. See Jer. 28 13, 14. Chap. 1. 14. or, we are driven up and down, by thoſe that follow us hard at the heels, like beaſts, Heb. on the necks, or, at the necks, are we purſued: on the necks; as, at the heels, Pſal. 49 5.

we labour and have no reſt.] Heb. reſt is not afforded us; we are toyled and tired out with inceſſant pains taking, and no time of reſt allowed us, ſee the like, but in ſomewhat a different notion, Eſay 23. 12. Chap. 1. 3.

V. 6. We have given the hand to the Egyptians, and to the Aſſyrians, to be ſatisfied with bread.] We are fain to beg our bread of ſtrangers, having it not allowed us by thoſe whom we ſerve Or, in our extremity we have been driven either to ſeek, or to work, to theſe people for relief, Eſay 57. 9. Hoſ 12. 1. many fled into Egypt for fear of the Chaldeans, Jer. 41. 17, 18. and many were carried captive into the land of Aſsyria.

given the hand] to give the hand, is uſed for to yield ones ſelf to another, to be wholly at their command, Jer. 50 15. and ſo it is a note of ſubmiſſion, or ſubmiſſion in general: and it may here be taken, either in a notion of humble ſupplication, and addreſs thereby, to the perſons here ſpoken of as the like, Jer. 68. 31. or of employment and ſervice; as the like, Deut 12. 18. Prov 31. 19. as if they had ſaid, glad we are we to get any employment, on any never ſo mean terms to be ſatisfied with bread.] Only to have that that may ſatisfy our hunger. See the curſe denounced againſt Elies iſſue 1 Sam. 2. 36. where the copulative being in a disjunctive notion, were it to expreſsed, as it ſhould, would make the doom paſt on them more remarkable, and help to clear this place.

V. 7. Our Fathers have ſinned, and are not; and we have born their iniquities.] They are not, that is, they are dead and gone; Zach. 1. 5, 6. So Chap. 4. 16. Pſal. 39. 13 Jer. 31. 15. How dcit, I conceive ſome meaning here to be, as in that profane proverb, the wicked fort of them uſed to ſpeak, The Fathers ate the ſower grapes and the childrens teeth are ſet on edge, Jer. 31. 29. Ezek 18 2. thereby imp ying, that they ſuffered for the defaults of their forefathers, being faultleſs themſelves. For they are not ſuch in whoſe perſon the Prophet here ſpeaketh, but ſuch as made humble acknowledgment, both of their own ſins, and of the hand of God juſtly upon them for the ſame, Verſe 16. Chap. 1. 8, 14, 18. & 3. 22, 39, 42. but the meaning is, that their parents, in whoſe ſteps they had trod, being dead long ago many of them, had by deceaſe eſcaped the fight and ſenſe of their evills, which God, out of patience and forbearance, had deferred unto their dayes; and were now with the main ſtroke lighted exceeding heavie upon them their iſsue. God making them exemplary ſpectacles of his wrath; incenſed as well by the ſins of their parents, as of them their poſterity. That which he oft doth, by inflicting upon the poſterity of ſome notorious delinquents ſuch remarkable judgments, that men may thereby diſcern that he had therein an eye as well to the exceſſes of their anceſtours, as to their own perſonal trangreſſions. See Eſay 65. 7. Mat. 23. 32-35 36.

V. 8. Servants have ruled over us:] Or, rule over us; not ſtrange Lords and Maſters onely, Eſay 19. 4. & 26. 13. but the meaneſt of their ſervants alſo have us at command, and uſe us as they pleaſe; as Neh. 5. 15. So that the curſe of Canaan is befallen us, We are become ſervants of Servants, Gen. 9. 25. as in a family; ſaith one, it is not unuſuall, that the ſervant that came laſt, is as a ſervant to the reſt.

there is none that doth deliver us out of their hand.] Or, and there is none: to knit the one branch to the other: none to do, as Nehemy ſometime for ſuch as were ſo oppreſsed, Neh. 5 13, 15. but the word ſignifieth properly, by force and violence to deliver, or, let free. Heb. no reuter out of their hands: for it ſignifieth in the firſt place, to rend, or, break aſunder. So Pſal. 7. 2. leſt he tear me like a lion, renting, (that is the very term there uſed) while there is none to deliver: and in the ſecond place, by renting, to ſee free, or to reſcue. So Pſal. 136. 24. and reſcued us from our enemies; by main might let us free: and there is in it an alluſion, either to the breaking of an yoke, and ſo ſetting a beaſt at liberty: as Gen. 27. 40. where the ſame word is uſed: or of chains and bonds, whereby a captive or priſoner is reſtrained; as Pſal. 107. 14. it may well comprehend any forcible reſcue: and it is a complexive form of ſpeech; to rend, for, by rending to deliver and ſet free: the like, See Chap. 3. 53.

V. 9. We gat our bread with the peril of our lives;] Heb. made it to come (as verſe 4.) with our ſoul. So it is ſaid of thoſe three that brake thorow the Philiſtines camp to fetch water for David, that they brought it with their ſouls, 2 Sam. 23. 17. They could not ſtare out of the city to get any relief in their great extremity, but with danger of their lives.

becauſe of the ſword of the wilderneſſe.] From the face of (either for fear of, or by reaſon of, as Eſay 21, 15. Jer. 50. 10. ſo Verſe 10.) the ſword (to wit, of the enemy) in the wilderneſſe, or, in the plain; as Chap. 4. 19. the enemy lying round about the city diſperſed every where in the plains near adjoyning thereunto, Jer. 5 17.

V. 10. Our ſkin was black like an oven, becauſe of the terrible famine.] Or, as a chimney, Eſay 31. 9. Heb. from the face of, or, from before (as verſe 9.) the terrours, (as Pſal. 119. 53) or ſtorms, (as Pſal. 11. 6 but the former rather here,) of famine: terrours of famine, for, moſt terrible famine: as, the King of terrours, for, a moſt terrible King, Job 18. 14. See on Chap 4. 8.

V. 11. They raviſhed the woemen in Zion; and the maids in the Cities of Judah.] Heb humbled; as Deut. 22. 24, 29. Judg. 20. 5. 2 Sam. 13. 22.

V. 12. Princes are hanged up by their hand:] Or, were hanged by the hand; to wit, of the enemies: either their lives taken away, by that ignominious kind of death; of which Deut. 21. 22, 23. See Joſh. 8. 29. or, their bodies, after they were ſlain by the ſword, being hanged up in diſgrace and contempt, and ſo expoſed to public like view. See 1 Sam 31. 10.

the faces of Elders were not honoured.] See Chap. 4. 16.

V. 13. They took the young men to grind,] Or, as ſome, the young men have carried the grift: ſuppoſing it to be a noun; as ſome others of the like form are. The young men have been compelled to carry like horſes or aſſes, among other burdens, their corn and griſt to and fro: or, they have been conſtrained to grind as beaſts, by turning or driving the mill about: an employment that ſlaves were uſually put to in thoſe parts. See Exod 11. 5. Judg. 16. 21. Eſay 47. 2. The Chaldee Paraphraſt rendreth it, have born the mills, or, the millſtones: as the word, whereby it is by him expreſſed, is found uſed Deut. 24 7. whence a proverbiall form among the Talmudiſts, of a man with a millſtone on his neck, alluded to Mat. 18. 6. uſed of one that layeth under ſome exceeding heavie, and in a manner, unſupportable burden; which yet, ſay they, muſt not keep a man from ſtudying Gods Law. Thus taken, the word ſhould ſignify not the griſt, but the mill; as alſo ſome expound it, Deut. 9. 21. where others would have it to be a fiſt: but it ſeemeth to be neither. and ſome of the Talmudiſts tell a tale, that the Chaldeans made the young men carry millſtones with them to Babylon; becauſe there was ſome want of them there: whence it is nor unlikely, that their Paraphraſt ſeeth that his Interpretation, which yet in ordinary acception, without any ſuch forged ſtory, might be nity nor the griſt, but the mill; as alſo ſome expound it, Deut. 9. 21. where others would have it to be a fiſt: but it ſeemeth to be neither. and ſome of the Talmudiſts tell a tale, that the Chaldeans made the young men carry millſtones with them to Babylon; becauſe there was ſome want of them there: whence it is nor unlikely, that their Paraphraſt ſeeth that his Interpretation, which yet in ordinary acception, without any ſuch forged ſtory, might be true, that they were conſtrained ſometime to carry ſuch; or in a figurative form, by a proverbiall manner of ſpeech that they were put to bear burdens fit for for beaſts than for men to bear. Some put to bear burdens fit for for beaſts than for men to bear. Some of the Jewiſh Doctors, whom the old Latine alſo followeth, conceive the word to be uſed both here, and Judg. 16. 21. & Job 31. 10. in an obſcene teſtes; of young men abuſed contrary to nature, Gen 19. 5. which howſoever it may in that place of Job found ſomewhat that way, like to the abuſe offered to the Levites concubine, Judg 19 25. and that before here, Verſe 11. yet hath no place in any probability here.

and the children fell under the wood.] Under ſuch burdens of wood, as beyond their ſtrength they were conſtrained to bear: and this as it reſulteth that obſcene notion, by ſome faſtened upon the former branch; ſo it helpeth to back that other of millſtones. or former branch; ſo it helpeth to back that other of millſtones. or ſome the like, not carried from Jeruſalem, but to and fro in other places: the bigger and ſtronger ones being put to the carrying ones: the bigger and ſtronger ones being put to the carrying ones: the younger and weaker ones to burdens of wood, of ſtone, the younger and weaker ones to burdens of wood, Howbeit: Some of the Jewiſh Commenters by wood underſtand here the wooden poſt, or engine, by which they turned about the upper mill-ſtone, the rider, or the runner, as we term it: for the lower was fixed and ſtirred not. See on Eſay 47. 2. ſo the perſons ſhould be the ſame in either, But of this let others deem.

V. 14. The elders have ceaſed from the gate;] There is no more ſitting for them on the bench of judicature; which in the gates of the city they uſed to do, Jer. 38. 7. Is in that regard as a perpetuall Sabbath with them; for on the Sabbath they ſate not in judicature: and it is the word Sabbath that is here uſed; as alſo Verſe 15.

the young men from their muſick.] Heb. their ſtriking, or playing on hand-inſtruments of muſick. So Chap. 3. 14. but put here, as there there also, for musick in generall: their wonted musick, their melodious singing and playing is no more heard: the youth have no more merry meetings now, as they had wont to have. See Chap. 6. 11. & 31. 13.

V. 15. The joy of our heart is ceased,] All hearty joy is gone. See Esay 16. 10. & 24. 8, 9 11. Jer. 7. 34. & 16. 9. & 25. 10. Heb. hath rested; the same term that was before, verse 15. and it may seem to have some glance at such mirth and cheer, as they were wont to have at their solemne festivals and on their Sabbaths, Deut. 16 11. 14. & 28. 47, 48. 2 Chron. 29. 36. Psal. 42. 4. & 81. 1, 2. & 92. 1, 2.

our dance is turned into mourning] Dancing, the usual and ordinary companion of mirth, Jer. 31. 13. See the contrary in the like expression, Psal. 30 11.

V. 16. The crown is fallen from our heads:] So read, there should be a defect of the particle from, as Esay 32. 6. & 33. 6. Jer 8. 13. & 10. 10, But that is not here needfull; for it is word for word in the original, The crown of our head is fallen All our glory and state is gone, See Iob 19. 19 Psal. 89. 39, For the word is used more largely than for a royal diadem only. See Prov. 4. 9. And the Iewish Doctor understandeth it of the Temple; but I suppole it to extend further than so.

Woe unto us, that we have sinned.] And have brought all this misery upon our selves, our land, and state by our sins. Jerem. 4. 18. Chap. 1. 8. & 4. 13. A woe, not of denunciation, but of deploration, as Esay 3. 9. Jer. 4. 13.

V. 17. For this our heart is faint;] As Chap. 1. 22.

for these things our eyes are dimme :] Our eyes are wasted with weeping; as Chap. 2. 11. Psal. 6. 7. or, our eye-sight faileth; as is wont to befall those that are fainting away in qualms, or otherwise, 1 Sam 14. 29 Psal. 38. 10. Jer. 14. 6.

V. 18. Because of the mountain of Zion which is desolate,] The desolation and destruction as of the City in generall, so of Sion more especially, the seat of Gods sanctuary, Chap. 1. 10, & 2. 1, 7. seemeth to be aimed at and intimated, as that which they took most to heart; as Elies daughter-in-Law, did the losse of Gods Ark, 1 Sam. 4. 21, 22. and so the Chaldee understandeth it.

the foxes walk upon it.] A Iewish Critick would have it to be a verb transitive; because in the form here used, it is sometime; as Job 14. 20. thou prevailest to walk, or, go, naked: and so it should be rendred here; they have made the foxes to walk, or, go upon it: and it is, faith he, impersonal. as that, Gen. 50. 26. and they embalmed him, meant, as of the Physitians, or embalmers there; so of those that demolished the Temple here. But there seemeth no necessity of this nicety, since that the verb in the form here used is far more frequently found in a standing, than in a transitive sense; as Iob 30. 28. Psal. 38. 6. & 88. 15. & 86. 11. & 89. 15. & 104. 10. 26. & 115. 7. & 131. 1. onely in this weighty form it seemeth to imply an usual and ordinary walk: as if it were said, the foxes that were wont to haunt waste places, do freely and frequently walk up and down there, where Gods own sanctuary sometime stood. See Psal. 63. 10. Ezek. 13. 4.

V. 19. Thou, O Lord remainest for ever;] Or, but, or, Tet, to be supplyed; as Psal. 119. 23, 83. Jer 50. 34. & 51. 53. thou, O Lord, Heb. sittest; that is, abidest; as Psal. 1: 5 1. or, reignest, as Esay 0. 13. for ever. See Psal. 9. 7. & 10 16: & 29. 10. & 102. 12, & 145. 13. & 146. 10. And though thou sufferest these things to be done at present, yet neither is thy might and power impaired, Esay. 50. 2. & 59. 1 nor can thy truth, goodnesse, and faithfulnesse fail, Psal. 89. 34, 37. & 102. 27, 28. & 146. 6, Hab. 1. 12. Mal. 3. 6.

thy throne from generation to generation.] Heb. to generation and generation: as Psal. 89. 4. Though they have by thy permission thrown down thy stately seat and material throne here on earth, Jer. 17. 12. yet thy sovereignty and dominion continueth still, and so shall thorow all ages, the same; and thy royal seat in heaven, which no power here on earth can reach to, shall abide with thee for ever, Psal. 45. 6. & 103. 19. Esay 66. 1.

V. 20. Wherefore dost thou forget us, and forsake us so long time?] The like complaints of Gods servant and people in their distresse, see Psal. 6. 2. & 10. 1. & 13. 1. & 44. 24. & 94. 3, 4. and Gods answer to them, Esay 14------16. Heb. for length of dayes, Psal. 13. 6. which some suppose to have reference to the seventy yeares, the time assigned for the continuance of their captivity, Jer. 29. 10, 28. But the tom seemeth more indefinite.

V. 21. Turn thou us unto thee; O Lord, and we shall be turned :] Do thou convert us, and we shall be converted, Jer. 31. 18, or; receive thou us into grace and favour again, and our present condition will be soon changed for the better, Psal. 80. 3, 7, 14, 19. & 85. 4, 6. and this seemeth the genuine sense of the text, especially if taking the copulative in a finitive notion, (which I conceive to be the genuine syntax) we shall render the words, Turn thou us, O Lord unto thee, that we may be turned; as Psal. 51. 7.) cleanse me with hyssop that I may be clean, wash me that I may be whiter than snow. But the difference is not great: the one noteth the issue; the other the end.

renew our dayes as of old.] Restore us again to our former estate. See Jer 30. 18. & 33. 11.

V. 22. But thou hast utterly rejected us; thou art very wroth against us.] Those that follow this reading expound the words, as delivered by Gods people, in way of controlling and checking of themselves for craving a speedy restitution in the words foregoing, verse 21. whereas God was resolved to leave and cast them off utterly; for a long time at least. See before on verse 20. But this some other mislike; and would have the particle taken as conditional; Restore us again; unlesse it be so that thou art resolved utterly to cast us off in the extremity of thy wrath: and thus is the particle used, Gen 32. 26. Exth. 2. 14. But this some again rejecting as well as the former, require to have the particle rendred, Although, or, Albeit. Albeit, thou hast cast us off: and art exceeding wroth with us, yet vouchsafe to return in mercy to us again. So it should be like those Passages, Psal. 60. 1, 2, & 80. 4, 7. And so the particle seemeth used, Jer. 2. 22. & 37. 10. But I conceive that the two particles here used do not here, as a compound, make up one joynt notion; but are two distinct ones, as well in notion as in delineation; as ost elsewhere they are: that the former of them is a causal; the latter an interrogative: and that the same humble expostulation is here continued that was before begun, verse 20. The words therefore would be rendred as in the margent of our Version is exhibited; For will thou, or, shouldest thou, utterly reject us? Heb. rejecting rejecting us as Jer. 14. 9.) will thou be, or shouldest thou be, extremely, or, perpetually wroth with us? Heb. unto extremity; as Esay 64. 9. 12. or, unto perpetuity: as Psal. 119. 8. As if they should say, surely it will not stand with thy goodnesse, and with thy gracious disposition, so to do. See the like expostulations of Gods people, Psal. 79. 5. & 80. 4. & 85. 5. & 89. 46.

The Iewish Doctors, because they would not have the Sun here to set in a cloud. do after this verse, both in writing and and reading this Chapter, or this book, repeat again the verse next before-going. Which howsoever they do out of a superstitious conceit, before-hinted, at the end of Esays Prophecies; Yet I hope, I may without offence in these distracted times, shut up these my weak labours therewithall, as with no either unseasonable or unsuitable Prayer.

Turn us, O Lord, to thee, that we may be turned:
renew our dayes, as of old.

ANNOTA-

ANNOTATIONS on the Book of the Prophet EZEKIEL.

THE ARGUMENT.

EZekiel, of the Priestly race, was carryed captive to Babylon, in the second captivity by Nebuchadnezzar; not accounting upon that time, when Manasseh was carryed to Babylon by the Captains of the host of Esarhaddon, or Asnapper, King of Assyria, Ezra 4. 2. 10. 2 Chron. 33. 11. at the beginning of the accomplishment of that Prophetical denunciation of Esay, 2 King. 20. 17, 18. Esay 39. 6, 7. But when Nebuchadnezzar carried away Jehojachin, or Jeconiah, with his Mother, divers of his Princes, and many of the people, Namely, in the eighth year of Nebuchadnezzar's reign both over Babylon, and Judah, then was Ezekiel carryed captive, 2 King. 24. 12. Ezek. 33. 21. and 40. 1. Ver. 1, 2, &c. In the first Captivity by Nebuchednezzar, Daniel and his three Companions, among others, were carried away. And that was in the first year of the reign of Nebuchadnezzar, and in the fourth year of Jehojakim King of Judah, Jer. 25. 1. Dan. 1. 1, 2. In the Captivity of Jechoniah, and Ezekiel, by some: But much rather in the former, wherein Daniel was carryed Captive; Then, as the most learned Chronologers do justly hold, began the desolation of Jerusalem, and the seventy years of Judah's Captivity, and Babels reign, Jer. 25. 1, 11, 12. In which time of distresse, God did raise up Prophets to help his people of their woful troubles; and to assure them, that his Church should have deliverance as the time appointed of seventy yeares: and that such enemies as either afflicted them, or rejoyced at their misery, should be destroyed. Jeremie in Judah taught that Jerusalem should be as Shiloh, Jer. 7. 12, 14. foretold that Babel must reign for those seventy years; and writing to Judah that was then in Babylon, he bids them not to look for return till those seventy years were ended. Jeremie was opposed by false Prophets; by Hananiah in Jerusalem, Jer. 28. 1, 2, 3. by Shemajah and others in Babylon, Jer. 29. 8, 9 24—29. wherefore to countenance him, God stirreth up Ezekiel in Babylon, to second him, and confirm his Prophesies; and to perswade the remnant in Judah by writing, to yield to Babels yoak, to prevent greater Judgements. This Prophets example, and two Capitulations already past, might have warned Judah sufficiently, not to stirre up more wrath, by provoking God against them, to give them up into the Chaldeans hands, as to burn their Temple, raze their City, kill their Princes, disperse the people, and to extirpate out of Jerusalem all signes of Judah's Church, and Common-wealth; All which God, in these Prophesies, doth foretel, should come to passe, did they still persist and resist. But all suffced not: And upon their continued obstinacy and rebellion, All this did fall out accordingly. For his Course and general Method in this book, Ezekiel thus proceeds, upon these heads: After his vocation and calling to his Prophetical office, He foretels the woful Siege and desolation of Jerusalem, and the calamities and captivity of Judah: He sheweth the causes of such evils, to be the violation of Gods Lawes; and that in a transcendent manner. And for them already in Captivity, He reproves them also for many sins sharply; exhorting them to repent, and to be confident of their return to Canaan, and of the restauration promised at the time appointed. Furthermore, he Prophesieth against the neighbour Nations, who had been enemies to the Jewes; especially Tyre, Egypt, and Edom, that they should be involved in the same Chaldean deluge. Then he goeth on to foretell the ruine of Gog and Magog, the last and cruellest enemies of the Jewes, before the first coming of Christ; that those enemies should be subdued, and the Church delivered. The effect of the one, and the other, should be chiefly performed by Christ, of whom in this Book are many Notable Promises, and in whom the glory of the New Temple, City, and Kingdome, largely shewed him in Vision, and described; should be perfectly restored. He prophesied in Chaldea at the time Jeremy prophesied in Judah; wherefore there is very great agreement between these two Prophets. But he began four and thirty yeares after Jeremy; namely, in the fifth year of Jehojachins Captivity; and that was about the year of the world, 3400. and afore our Saviours Incarnation, about 600 yeares. He continued Prophecying two and twenty years at least, Chap. 29. 17. Of the manner of his death, what ever divers Authors do record, yet we have nothing in Scripture.

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 1. NOw] Heb. And. So haply coupling his outward expreſſions in writing, with the inward notions and viſions of his mind. Or elſe it is an Hebraiſm, only for grace of ſpeech; very uſuall in that language: whereupon as here this Book, ſo in like manner with this word do begin the Books of Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, Joſhuah, Ruth, Jonah, and moſt of the Hiſtoricall Books of the Old Teſtament.

This Chapter contains a Viſion of the glory of God, and of Chriſt.

in the thirtieth yeare] Not from the Jubilee; for this time agrees not with that accompt: but thirty years after that the Book of the Law was found; which was the eighteenth year of the reign of Joſiah; when alſo the Covenant with God was renewed, Religion reformed, and a very ſolemn Paſſeover kept, 2 Kings 22.3,8,22,23. 2 Chro.35.19. The remembrance of ſuch benefits gave the Jews occaſion of this accompt. A thing not unuſuall with them in like caſes. So are years reckoned from the calling of Abraham, the birth of Iſaac, the coming out of Ægypt, the diviſion of the Kingdomes of Judah and Iſrael, the Captivity and deportation into Babylon: and others, that we need not here to fly and fetch it from an Epoche and Æra of an Heathen King Nabopolaſſar, not mentioned in Scripture; though that Chaldean accompt may agree with this: nor refer it to the Prophets age, which he would not take upon him in this manner to ſet down; as being without any example of ſuch like reckoning in Scripture: and his birth day a time but obſcure, and not vulgarly known abroad, fourth moneth] Anſwering to part of our June and July. See Annotations on Chap.40.1.

fifth day] Towards the end of our June. Thus particularly God would have us take notice of the times, and to obſerve the remarkable paſſages of Gods providence and acts in Church and States, which fall out in them; Hoſ.14.9. That this fifth day was a Sabbath day, cannot be aſcertained.

among the Captives] Heb. In the midſt of the Captivity: when Jehoiachin or Jeconiah was led Captive to Babel, 2 King. 24.12. then Ezekiel, Chap. 40.1. Mordecai, Eſth. 2.5,6. and many of the people were led alſo away; ten thouſand Captives at leaſt, 2 Kings. 24,14,16. of which number were three thouſand and three and twenty of the Tribe of Judah, Jeremy 52.28. In the midſt, that is, amongſt, as Joſhua 7.13. thus the Godly are mingled in this world with the wicked, Pſal. 120.5, Apoc. 19. 13, 14, 15. and a Lilly among thornes, Cant. 2.2. yea, thus they are wrapped up in the ſame outward calamities and afflictions with the wicked, Eccl. 9.2,3. 1 Pet. 5.10. And therefore we muſt not judge of men by their outward eſtate and condition. It was the greateſt of Jobs three friends, Luk. 13.1,2, 3,4. Pſal. 73.15.

chebar] Chap. 3.15. a river of Meſopotamia, riſing, as is thought, from the mountain Maſius, and flowing into Euphrates; neer to which it ſhould ſeem, were appointed ſome habitations for the Jewes, which were led into Captivity, Chap. 3. 15. Pſal. 137.1. This ſeemes to be that Chabor in Ptolomy, though ſome more probably take this for Euphrates it ſelf. Thus Daniel ſaw viſions by the ſide of the great river Hiddekel, or Tygris, Dan. 10.4. That this is called a Sabbatical river, and the reaſon why, is all but a Rabbinical Dream.

The heavens were opened] To his thinking, and in humane appearance; a kind of ſpeech much uſed in the deſcription of Viſions, Mat. 3.16. Act. 10.11. Revel.4.1. and Chap. 19.11. to note a ſudden breaking forth of light from above, created by God miraculouſly, as if it came out of heaven it ſelfe; in and through the midſt of which were ſhewen the repreſentation of divine things. Or, as Joh. 1.51. or Act. 7.56. God ſtrengthening his eyes to ſee at ſuch a diſtance.

I ſaw] Hence Prophets called Seers, 1 Sam. 9.9. Eſay 30. 10. which points out their duty, Ezek. 33.3,6 Viſions] God hath revealed himſelf to his Prophets ſometimes mouth to mouth, and face to face, Exod. 33.11. Deut. 34.10. Num. 12.6,7,8. ſometimes in Dreams, Gen. 28. 12. & 31.11. ſometimes in viſions, as Gen. 15.1. And ſo here. And theſe viſions are repreſentations of viſible things to the eye of the body, or at leaſt of the mind, to a man awake, to ſignifie things preſent, or to come; and that with ſuch an irradiation of the mind, and impulſe upon the ſpirit, as aſcertains the mind, and Will, and truth, or God in them. See alſo Chap.7. 26. & Chap. 12.22,23.

of God] That is, which God ſhewed, or, wherein I ſaw God: or, notable and excellent viſions; ſo that it might be known it was no Natural dream, or illuſion of Satan, or lying fancy: but that the viſions in this Chapter came of God, ſee Annotation on Chap. 40.2.

V. 2. Fifth year] Of Jeconiah's Captivity, and conſequently Zedekiahs reign. And from Jeconiahs Captivity doth Ezekiel conſtantly begin all his reckonings of the times. This doth in Certainty denote the time of thirty years, and the beginning of it, if it were doubtfull in the former Verſe: for if to theſe five of Jeconiahs Captivity, you adde eleven of Jehoiakim, and the fourteen laſt of Joſiah, there will ariſe thirty, ſpoken of in the firſt verſe: and ſo Ezekiel propheſieth thirty years after the finding of the book of the Law, in the fifth year of Jeconiahs Captivity. And from this time to that, Chap. 8. is a yeare, and two moneths; within which ſpace all happened that is ſet down in the ſeven firſt Chapters of this Prophecy: and from this day and date of time, to the beginning of the ſiege, are four years, ſix moneths, and five dayes, Chap. 24.1. Jer. 52.4.

Of King Jehoiachins Captivity] This Jehoiachin was eight years old, when his father Jehoiakim began to reign 2 and himſelf likely in ſome ſort joyned with him, 2 Chron. 36.9. And 18, when he began to reign alone, 2 King. 24.8. He was Captive ſeven and thirty yeares, 2 King. 25.27. He was called alſo Jechoniah, and Coniah; and, as ſome would (though not ſo likely) Shallum, Jer. 22.11. He is written childleſſe, Jer. 22.30. Salathiel was his ſonne, 1 Chron. 3.17. Mat. 1.12. onely by legal ſucceſſion, not by natural generation, Luk. 3.27. In him ended the Kings, and royal line of David: Our Saviour came of Nathan, Davids other ſon, Luke 3.31. The Crownes, Zech. 6. 11. are ſet upon the head of Joſhuah the high Prieſt. Theſe five yeares of Captivity and affliction mended them not.

V. 3. The word of the Lord] That ſet down in the ſecond Chapter, and continued to the twelfth Verſe of the third Chapter, Came expreſſly] Heb. by being hath been; or, in coming it came: to aſſure the entity, evidence, and truth herein.

Ezekiel] Heb. Jechezkel ſignifying the ſtrong God, or the ſtrength of God, or one ſtrengthened by God. A name by Gods providence well ſuiting to his condition, and calling: as likewiſe the Name Iſaac, Solomon, John, Jeſus.

the Prieſt] So he was both Prieſt and Prophet: and ſo very few of the Prophets were.

The ſon of Buzi:] And therefore not the ſon, or ſervant of Jeremy as ſome would.

Land of the Chaldeans.] That is, in Meſopotamia a part of Chaldea. Abram had dwelt there, Gen. 11.31. Act. 7.2,4. whereof Babylon was the chief City, built by Nimrod. The land called the land of Nimrod, Mich. 5.6. and of Shinar, Gen. 10.10. It was a land of wicked people, Zech. 5.11. And they a mericall, cruel people, Jer. 6.22,23. & Chap. 50. 42,43. and yet here in this place God raiſeth up a Prophet in much mercy, for the good of his Church, in this diſtreſſe.

and the hand of the Lord] The Spirit of the Lord, God by his co-æval and co-equal Spirit, works as a man doth by his hand, Act. 11.21. See the power, virtue, and efficacy of his Spirit, 1 John 4.4.

was there upon him] Strongly; the intrinſecal power of his Spirit, excited and brought Ezekiel to this propheticall office and function, as it were againſt his will, he not thinking of it, much leſſe affecting or ambitiouſly deſiring it. See Chap. 3.22, 14,22,24. & Chap. 37.1. For this John ſaith, Rev. 1.10. I was in the Spirit. See 1 King. 18.46. 2 King. 3.15. Then Gods Word and Ordinances are of power, and to purpoſe, when Gods hand and Spirit goeth with them, 1 Cor. 2.4,5.

V. 4. A whirlewind] The beginning of the viſion, which continues to the end of the Chapter. The ſumme of it is ſet down by the Prophet himſelf, Ver. 28. in theſe words, This was the appearance of the likeneſſe of the Glory of the Lord. More fully and particularly, it ſhadowes out the God of glory, and the Son of Man, the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, guiding and governing the heaven and the earth, and all things in them; and their wheelings and turnings, and mutations, by his active providence, and more ſpecially his Church, and the affairs of it, by his eternal ſpirit, uſing therein the miniſtery of his Angels, and inferiour Creatures: This Viſion is oft-ſoones renewed, and mentioned in whole, or in part, Chap. 3.23. Ch. 8.4. & Ch. 10.19,20,22. & Chap. 40.3. This Viſion ſerves for the Prophets heavenly confirmation in his future calling, fitting and preparing him to it, and incouraging him in it; for the ſight of Gods glory is very efficacious upon the ſpirits of men: and it ſerves alſo for the divine credit of the propheſies hereafter followiug. The difficulties that ariſe in the explication of this Viſion, are acknowledged by all Authors.

a whirl-wind] Heb. a wind of Tempeſt. This, and what followes, is a fore-runner of the glory and Majeſty of God; as Job. 30.1. and as Act. 2.2,3. and to rouz up Ezekiels mind to due attention: and not unfitly figuring the enemies which God would uſe as inſtruments, for the puniſhing of his people the Jews. As a whirl-wind, were the enemies and their armies. And ſo God threatens, Chap. 13.11,13. & Jer. 4.11,12,13. See Prov. 1.27. Eſay 41.16.

out of the north] And thence came the Iews enemies, the Babylonians, and other nations ſerving them. So Jer. 1.13, 14, 15. Hab. 1.6, 7, 8, 9, 10.

a great cloud] A ſign of Gods preſence: So Exod. 19.16. 2 Chron. 5.13, 14. And as a great cloud likewiſe were the armories of the enemies, for numbers and ſwiftneſſe, as clouds covering the face of the earth, Chap. 38.9. 2 King. 25.1. Hab. 1. 8. and flying as a cloud, Eſay 60.8. bringing clouds of darkeneſs and gloomineſſe; as Joel. 2.2. of trouble and diſtreſs, Zeph. 1. 15. Clouds of bloud, as a great cloud pouring down upon the Jewes ſhowres of deſtructions, ſtorms and tempeſts, Eſay 28. 2. ſo Ezek. 30.18. & Chap. 38.9. ſo Jer. 4.13. as clouds full of floods and fire, and hail and lightnings, and thunderbolts, Pſal. 11.6. Thus God ordereth, and ruleth both meteors and men, Eſay 19.1. Pſal. 104.3. Amos 5.8.

and a fire infolding it ſelfe] Vapours likely in the cloud, kindling, and burning into themſelves, the flame turning inward, catching it ſelf, as the Hebrew is, and making as it were a fiery Globe: ſome would apply the ſignification of this to ſin, and the Nature of it. But we rather conceive, it repreſents the fiery wrath of God; or ſecondarily of Nebuchadnezzar, his inſtrument, who burnt up Temple, City, and all.

and a brightneſſe was about it] As a ſhining about the fire; as raies about the ſunne. Gods fiery wrath and judgement upon ſinners make the ſplendor and glory of his juſtice to ſhine abroad, Exod. 15.6.

Colour] Heb. eye. So Lev. 13.55. Num. 11.7.

of ambar] Or a moſt lively colour, as of the pureſt burning braſs; or rather, as of red, hot, fiery burning coales, ver. 13. whence Angels are called ſeraphim, Eſay. 6.1,6. as fiery and burning in the ſpeedy and fervent execution of Gods will: Pſal. 103. See 2 King. 6.17. Heb. 1.7.

out of the midſt of the fire] This cleers the meaning of the word midſt next aforegoing; as alſo in the beginning of the next verſe. See Apoc. 1.16.

V. 5 Alſo out of the midſt thereof came] The meaning of this viſion ſeemes to be; that the Son of God who had eſtablihed the Ark of the Covenant, with all the things belonging to it, for a ſign of his reſidence among his people, and for a figure of heaven where he dwelleth, and reigneth in glory among his Angels; doth here reveal his heavenly majeſty in formes and ſhapes anſwerable to the earthly figures of the Temple; appearing in judgment againſt his people; purpoſing to depart from them, and to deſtroy them, as it is declared, Ezek. 10.17,19. & 11.23. until the time appointed for the reſtauration of the Church: at which time he will return in the ſame form, Ezek. 43.3. See the like viſions, Dan. 7.9. Rev. 4.6,7.

four] Four-formed creatures; as Gods miniſtring ſpirits in all the four quarters of the world: in themſelves very numerous, Dan. 7.10. Mat. 5.9.

Living-Creatures] Or, wights; ſhadowing out and ſignifying not the armies of Nebuchadnezzar, comming againſt Jeruſalem to deſtroy it, as ſome would have it out of that, Chap. 43.3. but the angels called Cherubins, Chap. 10.15,20. See Gen. 3. 24. which are Gods miniſtring ſpirits, Heb. 1.12. for the good of the godly, to informe and guide them, to defend and guard them, to eye them in the aſſemblies, comfort them in afflictions, and attend them at their deaths: And for the wicked, to oppoſe and withſtand them, and to execute Gods judgments upon them. Here they are repreſented in theſe Hieroglyphicks. As then Ezekiel ſeeth the glory of God, and of Chriſt; ſo alſo he ſeeth the miniſtery of his angels which are Gods great officers in the great Family of Heaven and Earth; and which, in wit, excel, in might are ſtrong, in ſervice unweary, in quickneſſe fleet. What ſome here write of the four Elements to be ſhadowed hereby, or the four Cardinal vertues, or the four faculties in the Soul, or four chief paſſions in man, or four monarchies in the world, or elſe the four Evangeliſts, Matthew, Mark, Luke and John: or yet of the Name tetragrammaton Jehovah, conſiſting of four letters, or of Chriſt our Saviour, his perſon, and offices as here myſtically meant, are all rather wandring fancies, and imaginations, then Notions ſuiting with, or proper to the words and context of this, and the following Verſes.

their appearance] Differing from thoſe four beaſts, Apoc. 4.6, 7,8. And their appearances we may ſee, their eſſence we cannot.

the likeneſſe of a man] For ſtature, proportion, and all things; ſaving ſuch differences and alterations as are ſet down in the ſix Verſes following. They had ſuch qualities in likeneſs as are ſet out by theſe parts of a man: principally, reaſon, which is the property and propriety of man among all viſible creatures, 2 Sam. 14.20. Apoc. 4.6,8. 1 Pet. 1.12. 1 Chron. 11.10.

V. 6. And every one had four faces,] Of this ſee more in the 10 ver.

four wings] To ſignifie their winged ſpeed, in doing Gods Will. Of theſe, ſee more, ver. 8,9,11,13,24,25. and Chap. 10.12. Here they have four wings a piece, Eſay 6. & Apoc. 4. every one hath ſix wings. Their ſwiftneſſe is beyond the ſwift motion of the Sun, and of the Stars, which yet is almoſt beyond all admiration.

V. 7. And their feet] Comprehending the thighs and legs withall, as may be gathered by that which follows.

ſtraight feet] Heb. a ſtraight foot; round, without turning, to run readily any way, as a round bowl or globe is ready for motion any way, Heb. 12.13.

ſole of a calves foot] To ſignifie, as it ſhould ſeem, the indefatigable motion of Angels in the ſervice of God, and his Church.

and they ſparkled] Themſelves; Or rather their feet ſparkled with their ſpeed, and purity in doing Gods Will.

braſſe] Or, Steel, Apoc. 1.15.

V. 8. The hands of a man] The hand notes action, Eccl. 9.10. Prov. 3.27. This is to ſignifie their ability and action; as formerly their will and readineſs of deſire was ſhadowed out. Here is the virtue and diverſity of the angels operations, Chap. 10.7, 8.12. They are for work and ſervice, they reſt not, Apoc. 4.8. and are without weatineſs. We ſhould do likewiſe, Joh. 13.17. Apoc. 21. 14. See more, Ezek. 10.12.

under their wings] Will and Work go together. Some here do ſtretch the ſituation of their hands under their wings, to farther notions, then we can apprehend a warrant for.

four ſides] On the four ſides of the Waggon, on each ſide of which there was a Cherub, as ſome ſay: but rather under their wings on the four-ſides, as the expreſs words are. And ſo every one having four wings, ver. 6. there were ſixteen hands under their ſixteen wings; thus placed, in this order, Chap. 18. 21.

V. 9. Their wings were joyned] Touched each other in their utmoſt parts.

one to another] Heb. a woman to her ſiſter. To ſhew their joint unanimity, harmony, and correſpondency, in ſpeeding to perform Gods Will in joyned; which ever lay ready before them; and they ready and prepared for it, of what nature or kind ſoever it were: ſuch unanimity, and joyning our helps together ſhould be in us, for the doing of Gods Will. The wicked practice it againſt him, Pſal. 2.2.

turned not] See verſ. 12, ready ſtraight to all ſervices, without need or uſe of ſo much let, as the turning of themſelves. See our duty, Luk. 9.62. Phil. 3.13,14. That returning ver. 14. was in the ſame manner as they ran, without turning of their bodies, after they had done their work; as if he ſhould ſay, they ran to and fro without any winding or Circulation.

V. 10. As for the likeneſſe of their faces,] They are likened to the faces of four principall creatures. They ſeem to repreſent, and hyeroglyphically deſcribe, (as earthly things may) the humane underſtanding, the Lyon-like power, the Ox-like uſefulneſs, the Eagle-like ſpeedineſs of the Angels, in their miniſtration and obedience to Gods Will, and for the ſervice of his Church and people, Apoc. 4.7. Thus angels are; and thus like unto

They four had, &c.] Each one had four faces, ver. 6. and ſo fixteen in all. Each one, of a man, before: Of an Eagle behind: Of a Lyon, on the right ſide: Of an Ox, on the leſſe ſide.

V. 11. upward] It may be both faces, and wings: ſo ſome tranſlate upward, towards him that ſate upon the throne above the firmament, that was over their heads, ver. 22,23,25,26, to admire and adore him, Heb. 1.6 And as an Hawk upon the wing, ready, and watching unanimouſly to receive his Commands; to do his Will. Mat. 18.10. & Chap. 8.9. Pſal. 123.1,2. Thus it ſhould be with us, Mat. 16.10. and our minds ſhould be upward, Col. 3.1. Phil. 3.20. The Church hath the Moon, and all ſublunary things under her feet, Apoc. 12.1.

Upward] Or, divided above, as it may be tranſlated. Namely above the ſhoulders, where the four faces did begin to divide themſelves; and where the four wings of the Cherubins were alſo divided.

two covered their bodies] Ver. 23. Every one had two which covered on this ſide, and every one had two which covered on that ſide their bodies. This might be ſo, by joining of the wings one to another: So ver. 23. Eſay 6.2. the words are, with twain he covered his feet. Likely this for decency, and modeſty; as in thoſe caſes, Exod. 20.26. & Chap. 28.42. or elſe, as Moſes put a vail on his face, Exod. 34.33,34,35. So providing to help and ſuccour humane infirmity; as we uſe to ſhadow our eye with our hand, when we would look up to the bright body of the Sun.

V. 12. whither the Spirit] The Spirit of God who is the guide of the holy Angels, in all their Functions, and performances; the Spirit of him that ſate upon the throne, who did drive and put forward the live Wights, (as the wheels to the ſame kind of motion, ver. 20.) for the Angels are his miniſtring Spirits, Heb. 1. 12. Or, we may underſtand it, of the Spirit of the living Creatures, guided indeed by the Spirit of God.

They turned not] See Verſ. 7.12.17. Chap. 10.11.

V. 13. Like burning, &c.] In love, and zeal, to obey Gods Will. And it may be, in zeal and fury againſt ſinners, ready in indignation, to execute Gods vengeance upon them.

It went up and down] This likeneſs and appearance of fiery burning coals, and lamps, was in continual motion, darting out rayes incessantly.

and the fire was bright] This fire that went up and down, was bright and shining, gave light.

and out of the fire went forth lightning] That is, dreadful signes of Gods fiery indignation, and judgements to be executed, by the angels, upon sinners.

V. 14. Ran] With speed, as a flash of lightning, God useth the ministery of angels, in his administration of things here below; and particularly in the execution of his judgements against sinners: examples whereof are very plentiful in the Scriptures: and the angels as readily do his Will, and have influence from Christ suitable to their administration.

and returned] That is, ran to and fro without turning about, ver. 9. and they ran and returned; not in a tumultuary way, or by chance, or according to their own minds, but according as their head did guide them; and when they had executed his Will; for afore they returned not, till God had changed the state of things; as Mat. 8. 9.

a flash of lightning] Most speedily, as it were in the twinkling of an eye, Mat. 24. 27. Luk. 17. 24.

V. 15. One wheel] As one; yet more in number, ver. 16, 17. 18, 19, 20, 21. The Cherubins covering the ark are called a Chariot, 1 Chr. 28. 18. And wheels are set to the Celestial throne, Dan. 7. 9. See Ecclesiasticus, Chap. 49. 8. The meaning here is, that the Prophet did see a wheel by every one of the living creatures: So that they being four, there were also four wheels, ver. 16, 18. See Chap. 10. 9. what is meant by the wheels, is a thing full of obscurity and difficulty: Yet most understand by them, this inferiour world; which is as a wheel round, and subject to many wheelings, roulings, and turnings, various mutations, and changes. The turning of this wheel is daily seen in this world. And the story of Sesostris King of Egypt, may be a lively emblеme and expression of it: and Chap. 10. 13. is translated and expounded by sundry learned Divines, for a divine warrant, to understand by the wheel this mutable inferiour orbe. In which the Church militant is tumbled and tossed. See that verse, and the Annotations on it. And others not much differing, hereby understand the godly people that are in the world, and their various state and condition.

upon the earth] Newly upon that floor which appeared in this Vision, ver. 19. 21.

by the living creatures] In, and upon which wheel the living Wights exercised their Offices and Functions.

with his four faces] The wheel had four faces or sides, ver. 17.

V. 16. The appearance] The colour and shew.

of the wheels] Therefore more then one: four in this verse, and verse 18, yet as one, being as a wheel in the midst of a wheel, as appears in this verse. See Chap. 10. 9.

like unto the colour of a beril] A precious stone, of a green Sea-colour; representing likely the unstable floating condition of this sublunary world, and of all things in it. The Hebrew word is Tarshish, and Tarshish in Scripture is often used to signifie the Sea: and it is also the Name of the Metropolitan City of Cilicia, neer to the Sea, whither Jonas fled, Jonah 1. 3. the Apostle Pauls Country, Act. 21. 39. & 22. 3. But here it must be understood of a precious stone; as appears, Chap. 10. 9. and that of a green Sea Colour.

had one likenesse] In all respects, so that he which saw one, saw all, and thereupon called one wheel, ver. 15.

a wheel in the middle of a wheel] Not comprehensively one infolding another; then they could not be perfectly one like another: But transversly, all made up one spherical figure, touching themselves, at right angles; that without turning, or any delay, they might run and roul any way, on any side as is shewed in the next verse, East, West, North, or South. This also may more haply the intricacy and perplexity of the carriage of the affaires of this world, to humane understanding.

V. 17. went] See Chap. 10. 11.

Returned not] They had no stops or retrogradations; they went on constantly, went through, they did not move out of the direct tract, wherein the living Creatures did lead them; but even as the live Creatures were led by their Chiefe, so did they also guide the wheeles. See ver. 20. a figure of the agreeing harmony, which is in all the works of Gods providence towards his Church; and of the constant carrying of them on to their appointed ends, and periods, Esay 43. 13.

V. 18 Rings] Or, rims, or strakes, or trendles, or circumferences.

so high] Of a fearful height and Compasse; and motion sequently: Resembling likely the high, wondrous, unsearchable administration of things in this world, and of the passages of Gods providence in them; bringing fear and dread, amazement and astonishment to men, Job 21. 7, &c. and Chap. 12. 6. Psal. 73. 1, &c. Jer. 12. 1. Mab. 1. ver. 2, 3, these wheeles are of such a height, and their motions such as none can reach, Psal. 36. 6. Rom. 11. 33.

Rings were full of eyes] Instead of great nailes wherewith Cartwheeles are garnished, there were eyes, for to represent either the stars of heaven, or more particularly, Gods all-seeing providence, in all the parts of his government, 2 Chr. 16. 9 Prov. 15. 3. thereby guiding, as the least, so the most high and formidable things of this inferiour orbe, and sublunary world; Howsoever they may seem here to be carried blindly, rashly, confusedly. See Act. 4, 27, 28. yea though the second causes be blind, and know not their own motions; or move otherwise, Esay 45. 4. and Chap. 10. 7. yea or contrary wayes; yet he makes them subservient to his ends. Yet here are not excluded the gifts of Gods Spirit in the instruments which he imployeth to this end, under him. See Zach. 3. 9. & 4. 10. See Rev. 4. 6. In Ezek. 10. 12. the body, backs, hands, wings, of the four wights, were full of eyes also. Gods providence reacheth all: no place left to chance, or fortune, even in the least thing.

V. 19 And when] See Ver. 17. as the camp and Hoast of Israel removed and rested, by the guidance of the Pillar of Cloud, and fire, See Apoc. 14. 4. Their movings, forward, upward, every way; their rest depended upon the living Creatures, was guided and orderd by them. God orders both the Angels, and all second Causes, in all their motions, by his eye of providence, and secret instinct.

were lift up] See Ver. 20, 21. Some do conceive hereby, that God doth sometimes raise the spirit of the creature to more then an ordinary height, and inables it to unwonted services, Zach. 12. 8.

V. 20 Whithersoever the spirit, &c] Verse 12. the impression and impulse of Gods Spirit was their guide and mover. Yea God acts in his just judgements, even in the motions of Satan and sinfull men, not changing their Wills, but making use of them to bring about his own designs. 2 Sam. 17. 14.

for the spirit of the living creature] Heb. the spirit of life. Verse 21. that spirit wherewith the living wights were moved, was in the wheeles. That one Spirit of God works all in all. The same Divine Inspiration which did drive the live wights, did also give a motion to the wheels, not enliven them: To signifie that Gods Spirit, the vigour, vertue, and instinct of it, gives motion to all things according to their several principles, and services: that God is present effectually in all the Instruments of his providence; and that Christ doth do all in all in his Church, 1 Cor. 12. 6. Ephes. 1. 11. Col. 3. 11. Rom. 8. 9, 14. 1 Cor. 6. 17.

they went] Without dispute, without delay, immediatly, cheerfully. See Rom. 8. 14. Joh. 14. 17. Psal. 148. 8.

V. 21. Those stood, these stood] God puts stands to the motion of the wights, and of the wheeles, at his pleasure. See Josh 10. 12. 13. 1 King 12. 24. Esay 37. 3.

for the spirit] So Verse 20. here redoubled to make it more remarkable; it is a lively Spirit, 2 Corinthians 3. 5, 6. Romans 8. 2. it moves, and works in all Creatures, with instincts and qualities according to their kinds, It hath choice operations in the elect, and common operations in the rest of Mankind.

V. 22. And the likenesse of the firmament] not the firmament it self; all this was in vision, See Gen. 1. 6. By this is meant Christs Celestiall Glory, who is king of the Church; for above this firmament Christ sits in his Throne, Ver. 26. Hence to the end of the Chapter, Ezekiel sees in this vision, the Glory of Christ the Son of Man, or of God in Christ, upon the heads] Ver. 26. so this was between the Son of Man, the Lord Jesus Christ, and these wights, and wheels: and this likely did supply the office of that pair of wings, Esay 6. 2. all Creatures are under Christ, he sits above them, Phil. 2. 9. 1 Cor. 15. 27.

was as the Colour] Heavenly things are pure and glorious, Psal. 19. 1. Job 37. 18.

terrible Crystal] Transluscent strangely; even terrible to astonishment through the strangenesse, the greatnesse, and the gloriousnesse of it; such are the things above, dreadfully glorious; and what then is the dreadfull glory of God himself? 1 Tim. 6. 16. and all things below are visible to him, as in and through Crystal, Heb. 4. 13.

V. 23. And under the firmament were their wings straight the one towards the other] The Angels at a distance, attend Christs Throne, with wings stretched out, ready to fly in his service; as Mat. 8. 9. and unanimously perform it with mutual sweet agreement, See Ver. 6, 11. and the Annotations upon it.

every one had two which covered] More then four we may not admit, because of Verſ. 6. either those two wherewith they did fly, did serve also to Cover their bodies, at least wise, when they stood, and let them down, Ver. 25. Or else, out of Ver. 11. the joyning of two wings, one of each Cherub or Wight to another, might be counted two on a side: And thus Covering, they shew their reverence, and subjection to Christ; as 1 Cor. 11. 10. Psal. 89. 7. And may serve as a pattern to man, either of decency and comelinesse, or of modesty and humility, to vail and cover the glory of our parts, lest we should grow proud, or others fall to idolize us. See Annotations on Ver. 11.

V. 24. The noise of their wings] By several similitudes much amplified.

of great waters] See Rev. 1. 15. Psal. 46. 3.

as the voice of the Almighty] Psal. 29. 3——18. Apoc. 1. 10. as thunder, Psal. 18. 13. Joh. 18. 6.

the voice of speech] An articulate voice of dreadful sound and greatnesse. Gods judgments have the voice of speech in them Micah 6. 9. we should learn the language thereof, Esay 26. 9. Hos. 14. 9.

as the noise of an hoast] Of armies of men and horses, in their armours movings, fightings, Cryes, with Drums, Trumpets, Cannons, (as the case is now) All this may serve to shadow out the swiftnesse, and the dreadfulnesse of Gods judgments, Chap. 13. Psal. 119. 120. Esay 19. 6. And that, of dreadful force, and efficacy are the Angels in their motions and actions; specially in the execution of Gods judgments. Some refer all this to the noise of Nebuchadnezzars armies. See Esay 5. 27, 28, 29, 30.

they let down their wings] They kept them quiet & without noise, signifying, that they had now power of themselves, nor ought to do, but onely waited to execute Gods Commandements.

V. 25. A voice] Or noise, or sound; as a fore-runner to prepare Ezekiel the more to attend Gods Word which should be spoken unto him. So was John prepared to attendance, and hearing, Apoc 1. 10. & so Exod. 19. 16.

from the firmament] Not from the firmament it self, or from any thing under it; but from besides, and above it; so the Hebrew bears; from Christ on the Throne.

when they stood and had let down their wings] And so were silent without that noise, Ver. 24. that the voice might be heard, Job 4. 16. sedate, and silent minds and spirits, are fitteſt then to hear Christs voice.

V. 26. and above] The last and best part of the Vision.

likenesse] Likenesse, and appearance, thirteen times used in this and the two Verses following. To shew that all here was in vision only; lest wee should otherwise mistake: and God thus as it were, mantles up his Majesty; else their could not be such Communion between him and us.

throne] Psal. 9. 7. Dan. 7. 9. Heb. 1. 8. Apoc. 4. 2——7. and Chap 20. 11, 12. Heb. 4. 16. See 1 King. 22. 19. The throne here may signifie the Judiciary power, Kingly dignity, triumphant glory, and divine Majesty of Christ.

of a Saphire stone] A most glorious Throne of an heavenly Colour, of a sky, or pleasant blew Colour, with a little purple in it, Exod. 24. 10. See Solomons Throne, 1 King. 10. 18, 19. 2 Chr. 9. 17. See Lam. 4. 7. Apoc. 21. 19. this adds to Christs glory.

of a man] Christ, Jehovah, God and man; to be man by his incarnation in the fulneſſe of time: the King of the Universe and head of the Church, See Ver. 28, & Dan. 9. 13. Esay 6. 1. with Joh. 12. 41. Apoc. 1. 13. & Chap. 14. 14.

of amber] See ver. 4. and the Annotations upon it. Here is Christ of an intense fiery Colour, like to the most hot burning glowing Coals, Apoc. 1. 14, 15, & Chap. 2. 18. & 10. 1, & 19. 11, 12, 13. Thus Christ is presented in a fiery way, when acts of wrath and judgment are to be executed upon a people. To shew that God and Christ is a consuming fire to his enemies, Deut 4. 24. Heb. 12. 29. Mal. 3. 2, 3. Jer. 51. 25, 26. Apoc. 6. 17.

round about within it] A fire, is fecund, in a fire, within the outmost round about within it: A fire, is fecund, in a fire, within the concave of it, fire, reflecting upon it self, burning within the concave of it, round about; as fire in a furnace. Two particular applications, and explications of these types, we may not so safely venture upon. Christ is most glorious, Mat. 17. 2. Act. 26. 13. and then take up that, Phil. 3. 21.

V. 28. bow] Of this bow, and the use of it, we read, Gen 9. 12,——18. Esay. 54. 9. This bow then is a sign of mercy: it is a bow whose back is upwards, towards heaven; not shooting downwards towards us: a bow without arrows at all; a bow of fresh and lively delightfull Colours, to intimate Gods mindfulnesse of his Covenant of mercy to his, in the midst of his fiery wrath and judgments against his enemies; that he will ark and save his, when he rains down floods and storms upon other sinners, Chap. 38. 22. Psal. 11. 6. Thus justice and mercy do compasse his Throne.

of the brightnesse round about] Of that brightnesse in the end of the former verse; though some extend it to be round about the Throne; or the head of him that sate upon the Throne: according to those places, Apoc. 4. 3. & Chap. 10. 1.

This was the appearance] The sum of the vision, as we formerly said.

of the likeneſs] To see God and his glory as it is in himself, is not for this life; Exod. 33. 20. See Esay 6. 2. but reserved for the life to come, 1 Cor. 13. 12. 1 John 3. 2. And even then though vissionally, yet not compichensively; for so no Creature can ever see the glory of the Creator, 1 Tim. 6. 16. or comprehend his infinite essence: and therefore there is no doubt but with this clause, those places, Gen. 32. 30. Exod. 33. 11. are to be understood. This here was but the appearance of the likeneſse of the Lord. And we see it in the volume of the Creatures, Psal. 19. 1. and in his Church: and his Divine dispensation towards it, Psal. 29. 9. & 63. 2.

of the Lord] Jehovah, Christ is Jehovah; who as God hath his being of himself, and gives being to all things Jer. 23. 6. Mal. 3. 1.

I fell upon my face] In adoration with fear and reverence, at the glorious presence of the Divine Majesty. So Gen. 17. 3. Lev. 9. 14. Dan. 8. 17. & 10. 8, 9. Rev. 1. 17. and it was so usually with Gods Saints, Abraham, Moses, Manoah, Esay, Daniel, and others. Or else, astonished with amazement at the sight of Gods Majesty always terrible to sinners, though Saints, through sense of their own frailty, weaknesse and sinfulnesse, during this mortal life, Esay 6. 5. Mat. 17. 6.

a voice of one] It was the Lords voice, but the Prophet in his astonishment knew not whose voice it was. However, he was then best fitted to hear the voice, when he was thus humbled first at the sight of this vision.

CHAP. II.

Verſ. 1. And] Ezekiels Vocation to his Prophetical function, and instructions therein, are the things contained in this whole Chapter, and continues to the 22. verse of the third Chapter.

He said] He, Chap. 1. 26. as appears in the three Verses following.

Son of man] So often, and very often is Ezekiel styled by God in this book, some reckon 80 times & upwards. So Daniel once, Dan. 8. 17. else this style is appropriated to our Saviour Christ, where it is spoken of one Man, & not spoken of mankind in general: & so our Saviour styles himself above four times. This compellation might serve to put the Prophet in mind of himself what he was, even Man, earth, and ashes; of his original, and end; basenesse, brittleness, worthlesnesse in himself, Gen. 3. 19. Psal. 9. 20. and so to humble him, that he should not be puft up with this heavenly glorious vision, and so his pride to blossome; 2 Cor. 12. 1, 7. but magnifie Gods mercy in thus honouring him, Psal. 8. 3, 4. & 144. 3. Job 7. 17.

Stand upon thy feet] Chap. 1. 28. Arise, recollect thy self, be ready to attend and hear. So Dan. 10. 11. Eph. 6. 14. Act. 9. 6. See Numb. 23. 18. Judg 3. 20. thus God in mercy and compassion, raiseth and comforts him.

And I will speak unto thee] That speech which after follows, v. 3. &c

V. 2. And the Spirit entred] Either the Spirit of God, see Chap. 1. 20. & 3. 24. or his own spirit of life which seemed lost almost by his former fear and astonishment; as that, 1 Sam. 30. 12. However, Gods Spirit received his languishing spirit; and here we see that God with the command, and by it, gives power and performance: see Dan. 10. 10. compare and couple Gods commands with his promises, Deut. 10. 16. ch. 6. 5. with ch. 30. 6. and Ezek. 18. 31. with ch. 36. 25, 26, 27. and Psal. 21. 23. with Jer. 32. 40.

entred into me] By its operation and impletion: filling and fitting him for his office: see Act. 6. 3. and ch. 9. 17. & 11. 24. & 13. 2. The use and necessity of the Spirit, 1 Cor. 2. 14, 12. The word is not sufficient without it. But the Word is the Chariot of the Spirit, as here. See 1 Thess. 1. 5. 2 Cor. 3. 6, 8. Gal. 3. 2.

V. 3. I send thee] I make thee my legate and ambassador; mission, and ordination is requisite, Rom. 10. 15. False prophets run before they be sent, Jer. 14. 14. and Ch. 23. 21. and Ch 29. 9. and it is Christs prerogative to send Prophets and Ministers, Mat. 28. 18, 19. Rom. 1. 5. 1 Cor. 4. 1. 2 Cor. 3. 6. Ephe. 4. 11. Act. 20. 28.

to the children of Israel] Evil branches of a good stock, Rom. 9. 6. These were not praying and prevailing children, as their Father was, Apoc. 2. 9. Rom. 2. 28, 29. Grace comes not by inheritance, Joh. 8. 44.

to a rebellious] sin is rebellion, 1 Sam. 12. 15. and chap. 15. 23. and Act. 5. 39. Luk. 19. 14. let us do, as it is, Ioth. 1. 18. And herein 36. 15, 16. Jer. 25. 3. and Chap. 35. 15.

nation] Heb. nations. The Prophet prophesied against sundry Heathen Nations: yet here are meant the children of Israel; as is expressed: called Nations or Gentiles here, because they sinned as the Heathen Nations did: And so in reproach for their sins, they are called elsewhere by reproachfull names, Esay 1. 10. and 57. 3. Jer. 7. 27.——35.

they and their fathers] Judg. 2. 19. Jer. 7. 20. authority and example of Fathers pleaded, Joh. 4. 20. Jer. 44. 17. but is no sound Rule of Worship, or life, Ezek. 20. 18, 19. 1 Pet. 1. 18.

against me] Joh. 22. 16. Esay 1. 2.

even unto this very day] Esay 48. 8. Jer. 3. 25. & Chap. 31. 31. Ezek. 20. 31. affliction & captivity changed them not. Esay. 1. 5.

V. 4. Impudent] Heb. Hard of face; that is to say, such as are not ashamed of any thing. A great progress, and height in sin sin, Jer.6.15, and 8.12. & 3.3. and c.3. Zeph.3.5. Zech.7.12. Esay 48.4. Phil.3.19. Psal.52.1. Repentance reveals shame, Rom.6.21.

stiff-hearted] Act.7.51. when judgements, mercies, miracles, will not move and mollifie them, Exod.32.9. Deut.9.6. Esay 48.4.

thus saith] The minister is Gods mouth, Jer.15.19. and 1.9.

V. whether] Ver.7. Chap.3.11,27. Jer.26.3,3. Matth.21.37. Gods primary intention in sending his Prophets, is for the good of his people. In a second place it is for to leave the wicked inexcusable, and to justifie his proceeding towards them. See Esay.55.11. 2 Cor.2.15,16. Joh.9.39. That place of Esay, Chap 6.9,10. is fix times alledged and repeated in the New Testament.

or whether they will forbear] Namely, to hear and to obey thee from me: yet must the Prophet do his duty, and refer the issue and success to God, Esay 49.4. 65.23. he must deal roundly, as God himself here doth, and put such vile sinners to it. See Mat.10.14. Mar.6.11.

for they are a rebellious house] So charged with rebellion against God and his Commandements very often; obstinate sinners, with an high hand; whose hearts were fully set in them to do evil, Eccl.8.11. evil things, as they could, Jer.3.5. even with greediness, Eph.4.19 mighty sinners, as those, Amos 5.12. sons of Belial, filled with maliciousness, madness, as Luk.6.11. provoking most bitterly, Hos.12.14. as those, Deut.9.22. even the worse for the means; in doing, they will do their idol-service, Jer.44.17. and thus most do, Apoc.13.3. 2 Cor.1.22. Esay 53.1. few hear the word obediently, Mat.7.13,14. And thus the Lord tels the Prophet afore-hand, what he was to expect, that he might not stumble at it, nor despond, when he should come to it, and find it so.

yet shall know, &c.] So chap.33.33. and so be convinced of their rebellion, and obstinacy, for not taking warning by him, and so left without excuse, Esay 5.3,4. and so, it shall be easier for Sodom in the day of judgement, Matth.12.24. what languages will their consciences speak in that day, or on their deathbeds? In the end you shall know it, Jer.30.24. See Jer.5.31. and 16.21. and 30.21 The Prophets shall witness it against them, to their further condemnation, 2 Cor.2.15,16.

V.6. Be not afraid] Four times in this verse. Stand it out, shew thy self a man, a man of courage, a man of God. So Chap.3.9. so Jer.1.8.17. He sheweth hereby our aptness to fear: and yet, that for no fears or afflictions, Prophets should forbear to do their duties. See Psal.27.1. and 23.4. and 56.3,4. No cause for the godly to fear; but the wicked justly may. 1 Sam.8.12. Prov.28.1. Further helps against fear, specially in Magistrates, and Ministers. See Neh.6.11. Hagg.2.4. Not faint and flag, God is with them, Josh. 1.9. Jer.1.8. Psal.118.6. 2 Tim.1.7. else God will confound us Jer.1.17. Luk.12.4,5. Esay 8.13. The just live by faith, and will not dy by fear, 2 Chron. 32.7,8. Heb.11.27. Prov.29.25. The more Holinesse, the lesse fear: even Herod feared John, and Saul feared David: let us not value our life too much, Act.21.13. Apocal. 12.11.

briars] Pricking briars, Eze.28.24. Mic.7.4. See Jothás parable, Judg. 9.14,15. 1 Sam.24.13. 2 Sam.23.13. ungodly men are like thorns, Nah.1.10. worthlesse, fit to be burnt, Da.11.21. Pf.58.9. Esa.10.17. Job 30.8. pricking, grieving things, Num.33.55. Thus, in their words and calumniations, provocations, scoffs and scorns, reproachings, threatnings, sleightings. Thus, in their looks, of kin to that nation of fierce countenances, Deut.28.50. Thus, in their catching, scratching Nature.

Scorpions] A thorny weed growing like scorpions, whereof instruments are made to scourge malefactors, 1 King.12.11,14. also, a venemous stinging creature, Deut.8.15. The scorpion is cunning, vigilant, torments, and kils, Apoc.9.3,5,10. Here is the nature of the wicked, Mic.7.2. Amos 2.7. and here is the lot of the righteous to dwell among the wicked. Lot in Sodom, David in Mesheck and Kedar, Psal.120.5,6. Cant.2.2. a lilly among thorns, Apoc.2.13, we had need to walk warily, to keep our selves from their scratchings, stingings: beware of men, Matth.10.17. seek not acquaintance of them, Mic.7.4. Do men gather grapes of thorns? Mat.7 16. and, as here, so specially is it the lot of Prophets oftentimes, and of Gods Ministers, 1 Cor,4.13. and 15.32. Heb.11.36, 37 Luk.10.3. They must not think it strange: but prepare for it: when these scorpions sting us, we must look up to the brazen serpent.

V.7. My words] Not the words of any other, Jer.23.30,31,32. Num.22.38. Matth.23.20.1 Cor.11.23.

most rebellious] Heb. rebellion, in the abstract: to note the height of their sinning, see annotations on ver.5.

V.8. Be not thou rebellious,] Amos 3.8. They shall come unto thee, not thou to them. God looks for more at a Prophets hand. We must not follow the example of wicked men; though the most and the greatest. We must not write after their copy, trace their steps. Examples prevail much, Magnates, magneter. Peter among the Jews would Judaize: but it must not be so with us.

what I say] Not what others say; be they what they will be,

and eat that I give thee] Apoc.10.9. as he enjoys him the duty of his prophetical function; so he gives him the means and furniture for it. He gives feed to his fowers. He furnisheth them with abilities. If they want books, he will provide them, Exod.4.11,12. Mal.10.19. And ministers must digest first, themselves, what they deliver to the people after.

V.9. an hand] See Da.5.5,24. Gods creative and infinite power. a roll of a book] Namely, a book, or a volume, wrapped and rouled up, according to the ancient fashion, Isa.8.1. Jer.36.2. Psal.40. 8. This a fit symbol of the gift of Prophecy, hereby, and herewith bestowed on him by that great Prophet of his Church.

V.10. and he spread it before me] Expounded, and revealed it, opened it, and made it known unto me, Luk.24.27. Apoc.1.1. and 5.5. and 3.7. Esay 22.22. Mal.11,25,27. unrolled it, Ioh. 15.15.

within and without] Heb. in the face and in the back: Every where, on all sides, full; containing likely the sum and arguments, of almost all the Prophecies following; The peoples sins and punishments.

lamentations, &c.] Chap.17.32. and Chap.32.2,16. dreadful, and woful things hang over the head of a sinful Nation: which ministers must not refuse to declare.

mourning] Mourning Songs, and Elegies.

and woe] Lam.5,16. Matth.23.

CHAP. III.

Vers.1. HE said unto me] Namely, He that had spoken to him in the precedent Chapter; he which late upon the throne and spread the book before him,

Eat that] All this was done in vision; and it may serve to represent the deep Impression of the Word of God, in the heart of his Ministers, who must apprehend it by faith, and digest it by meditation; for to utter it, not as a mere Narration, but as a quick and lively doctrine.

that thou findest] Not some part of it, Rom.15.4. 2 Tim.3.16.

Findest] Namely that I give thee, whatsoever it be, sweet or bitter, hard or soft, pleasing or displeasing; and it may serve to signifie that Ministers ought to follow their vocation, simply and readily, without contradiction or doubt what soever. And the obedience of all unto Christ, must be absolute, in all and every thing, without disputing the case, without consulting with flesh and blood. A kind of blind obedience is here best. So Genes.22.3. Luke 5.5. Mark.1.18. Joh.15.14.

Eats this Roull] Rev.10.9. The meaning here is that expressed, ver.10. 2 Tim.4.13.15.

and go] Then are Ministers fit to go and preach, and feed others, when they have first eaten the Roul, and fed themselves, Matth. 5.19.

unto the house of Israel] Them of the captivity in Babylon.

Ver.2. So I opened my mouth, and he, &c.] Mans endeavour, 2 Tim.1.6. Esay 64.7. and God the chief agent, Jam.1.17. Psal. 51.15. 1 Cor.3.6. and 12.6. and 15.10. Joh.15.5. Phil.2.13.

V.3. Cause thy belly to eat] Conceit it, digest it, retain it, draw out all the vertue of it, live and act in the strength of it. And thus should we deal with the roul of Gods book, and Word, eat and take in all the truths of it; and not as weakly and sickly stomacks do, cast it up, and get no benefit by it; but eat it by faith, and digest it by meditation, turn it to our spiritual nutriment, feel the power and efficacy of it in our heart, strengthning the inner man, and act accordingly. Other books and roules we may look into, but this we must eat, and fill, &c.] The inwards of the Soul are to be filled and fed with the Word and Will of God, Psal.1.2. and that plentifully, Col.3.16. It is not enough then to hear, and know it.

Then did I eat it] Jer.15.16. Apoc.1c.10. that is, in this Vision, I seemed to eat the roul, in my own Imagination; and yet afterwards he seems, through humane frailtie, somewhat to decline his vocation, ver.14,15.

It was in my mouth] Gods Word, and book of Scriptures, is sweeter then honey, Psal.19.10, and 119.72,103. Though sinful men, as sick-men, have lost their taste. And the office of a Prophet seemed at first pleasant to him, by reason of the excellency of the revelations, the communication with God; the profit that might hence come to the Church, and the honour which God did then do him, by this Seal of his Grace; but the bitternesse did follow afterwards, ver.14. Apoc.10.9. Jer.15.16,17,18.

V.4. with my words] Chap.2.7. not thine, not the words of others, 1 Cor.11.23. 1 Joh.1.3. Jer.23.16,28,32.

V.5. for thou] That is, I will not employ thee in preaching to strange and barbarous Nations, as Jonah, and others; but thou shalt preach onely to thine own Nation, thy friends and familiars, which should be a pleasure and comfort unto thee, and should strengthen thee in zeal and vertue. Thus God appoints where, and to whom, Act.17,18. V.6.

V.6. Of a strange speech, and of a hard language] Heb. deep of lip, and heavy of language, See Esay 33.19.

of a strange speech] Heb. deep of lips, and heavy of tongue.

surely had I sent thee] Or: if I had sent thee, &c. would they not have hearkened unto thee? or albeit I had not sent thee (but thou hadst gone of thine own accord) yet they would have hearkened unto thee.

They would have hearkened unto thee] Sooner then the house of Israel, they of the captivity, Matth. 11.21,23. and Chap.12.41. the unsearchable depth of Gods wisdome, and wayes, and judgements: in denying the means of grace to those that would embrace them, or better use them, and in giving them to those that will refuse them.

V.7. will not] So Joh.5.40. Luk.19.14. and Chap.2.3,4. will not do what they are able to do: our will and wilfulnesse charged with the fault, Hos.13.9.

unto thee] Jer.7.27.

for they will not hearken unto me] See 1 Sam.8.7. Joh.17.20. Those that do not hearken to the word of God in the Scriptures, do not hearken unto God.

impudent and hard-hearted] Heb. stiff of fore-head, and hard of heart. No more moved or mollified, then a rock with the waves of the sea. See Chap.2.4. Esay 46.12. Psal.95.8. Rom.2.5. Zach. 7.12.

V.8. Strong against] God promiseth his assistance to his ministers, and that he will give them boldnesse and constancy, in their vocation, Isa.50.7. Jer.1.18. Mic.3.8. Esay 50.7.

V.9. And as an adamant] Jer.17.20.

fear them not] Chap.2.6. See Annotations upon it.

V.10. Moreover] A summary repetition and injunction of his fore-said calling and function, in this, and the next verse.

All my words] Not some of them, Psal.119.6.

Receive in thine heart] He sheweth what is meant by the eating of the book; which is, that the ministers of God may speak nothing, as of themselves, but that onely which they have received of the Lord, and lodged in their heart: and in their heart likewise the people must receive Gods Word, Deut.6.6. Psal.119.11. and Psal.40.8. as Prov.6.20,21,22. Luk.2.19. and Chap. 8.15.

V.11. To them of the captivity,] That were carried captive with Iechonias. These were not so bad as those yet remaining in Jerusalem and Judea, under Zedekiah, Jer.24.5,8. yet they were bad enough in their present affliction, ver.6. of this Chapter: and haply grudged at their present state and condition, that yet remained in the land of Jury. And therefore far fore judgements are denounced in this prophesie against Jerusalem and the inhabitants of Jury; then against these mentioned in the text.

unto thy people] As Deut.9.12,21. if God some way cast them off: and in the same dialect he speaketh, your new moons, &c. Esay 1.14. Mal.2.9.

whether they will hear, Chap.2.5.

V.12. The Spirit] Not the wind, or the vigour of his own spirit, as some would have it; but Gods Spirit, Chap.1.12,20. called also the hand of the Lord, Chap.1.3. and in the 14. and 22. verses of this Chapter, that Spirit, Mat.4.1.

Took me up] Lifted him up higher, that he might at less distance, and more clearly view and behold the glory of the Lord, the glory of the Son of Man.

Blessed] Most likely, the word of that voyce afore-mentioned: and the words not of thunder, as that supposed, Joh.12.29. but of the living wights the angels. It is their work and office to praise God, Apoc.5.10,11. Esay 6.3. Luk.2.13,14. Job 38.4,7. Psal. 148.2.

from his place] Sitting on his heavenly throne of glory, Chap. 1.26. See Mic.1.3. Some understand this of the Lords removing from his temple, and forsaking it. And the voice or noise of a great rushing, to be like as when great Princes do remove their dwellings. And histories do record the like: to have fallen out, when the Romanes afterwards burnt the temple, Josephus 6.7. Chap.12. of the War of the Jews. Apollonius 6.1. Corn. Tacitus 6.21. of his Annals: Whence it may be the Gentiles had that opinion, That their gods forsook their Cities, before they were taken and destroyed by enemies; as by many instances of theirs might be shewed. But this sense seems rather to be put upon this text, then naturally to arise out of it. The plainer sense is to take this for a doxologie, or praising of God; yea even when he is in a way of judgement, he is to be blessed and glorified.

V.13. The noyse of the wings, and of the wheels,] The noyse of the Celestial and Terrestrial creatures, in way of acclamation and applause at the glory of the Lord.

touched] Heb. kissed.

one another] Heb. woman, to her sister: Noting the angels harmony, and loving unity, in praising God, in executing their offices; they have like affections, as a woman to her sister.

V.14. And took me away] Ver.12. after the former sight, and applause; took him away and corporally translated him from the place where he had seen the vision, to the chief residence of his countrey-men, which were captives in Babylon, vers.14,15. A thing which did often befal the Prophets, 1 King.18.12. 2 King.2. 16. Act.8.39,40.

And I went in bitternesse] After I had well thought upon the subject of my prophesies, and of my commission; finding them full of miseries for my Nation, and of dangers and troubles for my self, Jer.20.9.

heat] Heb. hot anger, The Prophets weaknesse and infirmity; yea froward humour, and distemper, to be in a chafe and indignation of Spirit, upon so divine a Call to this office, and so gracious a promise of assistance in it; so it was with Jonas. The best have their failings. No perfection here. And the Prophet here conceals not his own fault; as not being grudged by his own pen, or Spirit, in writing Scriptures. 1 Pet.1.20.21.

The hand of the Lord] That is to say, the power of Gods Spirit in me over-powred my reluctancy, overcame all these fleshly apprehensions, Isa.8.11. and comforted me, Ier.20.7,9. and 31.3. Act.4. 20. Gods Spirit offers not violence to the Wills of men, yet works invincibly; he inclines them to yield omnipotenti suaviter, & fortiter omnipotentia. Some here make the meaning to be, that he went in bitternesse, and hot anger of Spirit; because the hand of the Lord was strong upon him so to force him, and over-power his Will, to this bitter and woful message and office.

V.15. Then I came] In that fourth moneth, Chap.1. vers.1.

at Tel-abib] Which was a place of Mesopotamia, where some, and haply the most of the captive Jews were placed.

that dwelt by the river of Chebar] See Chap.1.1,3. the ten tribes were of the river of Gozan, 2 King.18.11. And so this place here likely not far from the place of the vision, Chap.1.1,3.

and I sate] Sadly, no doubt, as Lam.1.1. and 2.10. And conceasing my Calling, and idlely forbearing and foregoing my function injoyned me.

astonished] At the wofulnesse of the Roul given me in charge, as the matter of my Commission, and argument of my Prophesie to my own countrey-men.

seven dayes] Mourning for his people in astonishment, as Job 2. three friends did, Job 2.13. There might be other ends and uses also of this strange behaviour.

V.16. At the end of seven dayes] God bears with the weaknesses of his servants, and leaves them not long, though they be in distempers and so overpowers them, that their will and weaknesse shall not hinder the efficacy and execution of his decree.

V.17. Son of Man] Chap.2.1.

I have made thee] God makes him so. Heb.5.4. and because of his former tergiversation, his vocation, and Prophetical function, is here again renewed, and re-inforced.

a watchman] A Prophet. This shewes the Churches danger, and the ministers duty: so Chap.33.2,7. Esay 52.8. and 56.10. Jer.6.17. Heb.13.17. See Esay 21.6,8. carefully to watch, and to warn, to fore-see, and fore-tel dangers. This is the Watchmans duty: as Gen.31.40. not to be blind watchmen, dumb dogs: given to sleep and slumber, Esay 56.10.

unto the house of Israel] Watchmen are not for themselves, but for the flock, 2 Cor.12.14,15. and 11.28. Too many do otherwise, Phil.2.21.

hear] They must hear before they speak, learn before they teach, Hab.2.1.

warning] Vers.17, 18, 19, 20, 21. Chap 33.1——10. Esay 58.1.

From me] From my mouth. The watchmans word and warning to the people must be from the Lord, and from him onely: and the warning must be given, not in his own name, but in the name of Christ, by and with his authority, and so ought to be received, 2 Cor.5.20. As Christ did come, and work in his Fathers Name, Joh.5.43. and 10.25.

V.18. When I say,] When I shall have given thee commission to say so to him from me, and this according to the warrant of my Word, and dictate of my Spirit.

surely die] In dying thou shalt die: the like phrase in the originall, is 1 Sam.26.25. and usually in the Hebrew tongue, die temporally, and eternally.

and thou giveest him not warning, nor speakest to warn] He must be solicitous, and frequent in warning, Act.20.31. Phil.3.18.

to save his life] Manasses that exceeding sinner did so, 2 King. 21.11. 2 Chron.33.12,13. And this is the end and scope of the Ministery, 1 Tim.4.16. Jam.5.20.1 Cor.3.9.

dy in his iniquity] Ignorance, or not warning is not sufficient plea for wicked men.

but his blood will I require] As Gen.9.5. Ezek.33.6. 2 Sam.4.11. Act.20.26.1 Cor.9.16.

at thine hand] So ver.20. The Lord applyes it to Ezekiel, that he may take to heart his duty, and his danger. These words seem not so much words, as thunderbolts: and what then will become of seducing Ministers? 2 Pet.2.1.

V.19. Thou hast deliuered thy soul] Doing thy duty, and what lyes in thee. So ver. 21. Act. 20. 26. and 18. 5, 6.

V.20. when a righteous man] Chap. 18. 24. righteous seemingly, in their own eyes, or in the eyes of others: Outwardly, though inwardly hypocrites, Luk. 18. 9. Mat. 23. 28. Children of the Kingdom eternally, Matth. 8. 12. and 5. 20. The truly righteous turn not thus, 1. Pet. 1. 5. 2. Pet. 1. 10, 11.

commit iniquity] Joh. 8. 34. 1 Joh. 3. 8.

and I lay a stumbling block before him] Do by my just and provident administration turn against him his own iniquity, whereby he shall fall as by a stumbling block: or lay that before him, which he will make a stumbling block to himself. God himself, and Christ is a stumbling block unto them, Esay 8. 14. 1 Pet. 2. 8. 1 Cor. 1. 23. Psal. 94. 23. and 64. 8. Not infusing any corruption into him, but for his former sin, leaving him to himself, delivering him up to his own vile lusts, giving Satan leave to tempt and seduce him, and keeping back my assistance, and withdrawing my grace; and thus in justice, punishing one sin with the occasion or commission of another, Rom. 1. 24, 26, 28. 2 Sam. 16. 21, 22. 1 Kin. 22. 22. 2 Thess. 2. 11. The Sun is without fault that draweth with his beams, as well stink out of a Cart-kesse, as a sweet smell out of a Rose. The cause is from within; only the occasion is from without.

Righteousneſſe which he hath done] Heb. Righteousneſſes: materially for the substance of the outward works; and so righteous in mens eyes, though not formally righteous, as not done in faith.

Shall not be remembred] Chap. 18. 24. Nay more, it shall make against him, 2 Pet. 2. 21.

V.22. and the hand] As Chap. 1. 3. and Chap. 3. 14.

There] At Tel-abib, Ver. 15. at the end of seven dayes, Ver. 16.

Into the plain] Or, Valley by Tel-abib: a place more free from concourse and disturbance, and more fit for divine contemplations and visions, which were there shewed and vouchsafed to him: The more separate from the world, the more free communion with God, when the mind is serene and contemplative; then the Lord opened himself unto him.

V.23. By the river of Chebar.] The same vision, the second time; suiting to the argument of his prophesie.

and I fell on my face] As Chap. 1. 28. It afflicted him the second time, no less then at the first: which further proves the majesty and terrour of it; and mans weakness and sinfulness, Esay 6. 5.

V.24. Then the Spirit] The Spirit acted in our Saviour, Esay 61. 1. in Stephen, Act. 6. 10. in Apostles, Act. 1. 4. in Cornelius, Act. 10. 44. in all the godly, 1 Cor. 6. 11.

and set me upon my feet] As Chap. 2. 2. God soon visits, revives, strengthens, comforts with his Spirit those that are thus humbled.

Go shut thy self] Spoken by way of Irony, or rather a plain Injunction to him, from the Lord; so to do. It may be there to receive further instructions from the Lord.

V.25. they shall put bonds upon thee] This not in vision onely, and imagination; but really that thou come not forth to prophesie wrath and woes against them: or possibly seeing his behaviour, ver. 15. it may be out of such a conceit as that in Mar. 3. 21. and so done in his own house by them of his own houshold, and his friends, for his credit sake, as they thought. Some conceive, as if this should emblematically set forth their shutting up in a siege; and the bonds of their captivity, Jer. 40. 1. However, bands, and bad usage, betide the Prophets and Ministers of God, Jer. 1. 19. Act. 9. 16. and 12. 8. Matth. 24. 9. Joh. 16. 2, 4. 1 King. 22. 27. Jer. 37. 15. and 32. 2. and 38. 6, 7. 2 Cor. 11. 23, 24. 1 King. 18. 4.

V.26. And I will make thy tongue] Dumb, either not able to speak; as Luk. 1. 20. or dumb, by the restraint of my prohibition. I will suffer it for a time. Thou shalt be as a man tongueleſſe, and wordleſſe, as a man whose tongue cleaves, &c. so to reverse their rebellion and ingratitude. And heavy judgement of God upon a people, Amos 8. 9, 10, 11. and 5. 13. The contrary is promised as a blessing, Chap. 24. 27. Esay 30. 20, 21.

a reprover] Heb. a man reproving. This wise he was dumb.

for they are a rebellious house] Their Rebellion then, and impudency, and hardnesse of heart, in sinning against God; and not the Prophets fear of them, was the cause of his silence, and silencing.

V.27. But when I speak with thee] When it shall seem good to me so to do, not unlikely but after other seven dayes, or very soon after compare, Chap. 1. 1, 2. and Chap. 4, 5. with Chap. 8. 1. And therefore this time is not to be prolonged to some Number of years, as some do.

I will open thy mouth] To speak my word unto them, and to pronounce my words against the for their sins. See Ch. 24. 7. & C. 33. 22.

He that heareth] Thou shalt do thy office and duty; do they what they will, Chap. 2. 5. and 3. 11. Apoc. 22. 11. God will try men, whether they be curable, or no.

CHAP. IV.

Vers. 1. THou also] The summe of this Chapter is the siege of Jerusalem, and the famine in it; foretold and foreshewed in types here; about four years before the same began.

Son of man] When thou shalt go forth among them, thou shalt thus do, and to this effect; speak to them from me, and thou shalt use no other kind of preaching or prophecying to them, during all this time, but this following, ver. 7. or thus shalt thou prophesie against it. Some take this to be done in the time of his silence, Chap. 3. 26.

Take thee a tile] Here begins as it were the reading of that roul, Chap. 2. 10. a preaching of it, not to the ear, but to the eye in a more moving way.

Tile] Some doubt, whether unburnt, or burnt in a Kill. Others say the Hebrew word will bear a Table, or Tablet, smooth, and square, and somewhat large, and so fitter for the Prophets Pencil. See Esay 8. 1.

Jerusalem] They then in the captivity, had no cause to grudge themselves, and murmure, or to envy them and their estate that were in Jerusalem. Of this city, see Jer. 32. 31, 32. and Chap. 26. 6. Zeph. 3. 1—5.

V.2. lay siege] Draw a desiga of a very strait siege.

and build a Fort] Forts, and Fortifications, Towres, Trenches, Engines, Pourtray these things upon the tyle round about the purtrature of the City; make a kind of Map of all; as Joh. 18. 4, 9. by pencil rather then engraving. See 2 King. 25. 1.

Camp] Of the Chaldean armies, battering rams] (Or, chief leaders) Namely, to batter the walls, according to the ancient manner.

V.3. an iron pan] Or, a flat plate; It may be, to shew the hardness of the siege, through Gods inexorable anger towards them; and that all endeavours and resistance that they of Jerusalem could make against the besieging Chaldeans, should be to no purpose: and that it should be impossible for any relief to come and deliver them.

for a wall] In resemblance of the wall of the City; though Most Interpreters construe this wall of Iron in sundry other meanings.

set thy face against it] As Lev. 17. 10. Jer. 21. 10.

and thou shalt lay siege against it] Thou shalt act the part of a chief Commander of an army, which doth straitly besiege a place, Jer. 1. 10. Thus he writes as it were in Hieroglyphicks, and preacheth in emblems; and this is not unusal with the Prophets. So Esay 20. 2. Jer. 13. and 16. & 19. & 27. Chapters; and Zech. 11. and none more useth it then Ezekiel. Types and figures make truth more evident, and efficacious.

To the house of Israel] To those now in Captivity; and to those yet remaining in Judah, under the reign of Zedekiah, which would not be perswaded that Jerusalem should be besieged: and to those also of the ten Tribes scattered among them.

V.4. lye thou also.] Not sleep; as the vulgar Latine hath it. All this was done in a prophetical vision and exstasie, say many; made known from God to the people. And many such things are in the Prophets; As Hos. 1. 2. and Chap. 3. 1. And otherwise as they conceive, we should here forge a monstruous thing, or a miracle; yet others take it not vifionally, but literally; as that, Chap. 12. 3, 4, 5, 6. Esa. 20. 2. a conceiving it of little, or no use to the People, if done in an Intellectual vision onely, and the Prophets bare imagination. And besides their qualifying the hardnesse of it by their expositions; They suppose that God who gave the Command, did minister also extraordinary strength, and constancy for the performance of it. And they understand this lying, seconded by that, Ver. 8. yet not to be so strict and absolute, but that he arose sometimes to dresse his meat, and fetch his drink, Ver. 9, 10, 11. and for other necessaries: But that his far greatest posture was lying; and his sleep constantly on his left side, during this Number of dayes.

upon the left side] Haply, because Samaria & the Kingdom of Israel, the ten Tribes, lay on the left hand in relation to Jerusalem, & the Kingdome of Judah; as left hand, and right hand are taken in Scripture: supposing the posture of the face toward the East. So Chap. 16. 46. and 47. 1, 2. Exod. 26. 18. in the Hebrew.

and lay] As a type of God, in long patience bearing their iniquity, and the burden of it, though trouble some to him; as it would be to a man to lie long upon one side: yet so besieging them, as it were, and provoking them to a yielding and surrendring by repentance. But now at last ready to punish them fully.

the iniquity] Guilt, and punishment.

of the house of Israel] Of the ten Tribes.

according to the number] as Numb. 14. 34.

V.5. three hundred and ninety dayes] A year and about a moneth, and between Chap. 1. 1, 2. and Chap. 8. 1. are a year and two moneths. Some begin these years from the seven and twentieth of the reign of King Solomon, when he and all Israel with him, fell away from God to Idolatry: and end them in the fifth year of Zedekiahs captivity, Jer. 52. 30. When Nebuzaradan carried away captive seven hundred fourty five persons of the Jews; having burnt the Temple and City four years before, Jer. 52. 12, 13, 30. And this seems best to suit with the truest Chronology of the times of

of the reigns of the Kings of Judah, the proof whereof, they expound and apply that Chapter 5. 3, 4. Others, begin them from the fourth year of Rehoboam, when he and Judah forsook the Law of the Lord, 2 Chron. 11. 17. and 12. 1, 2. Others more likely then so, from the division of the kingdoms in the first yeare of Rehoboam and Jeroboam: and both end them in the eleventh and last year of Zedekiah; and both labour to make their Chronologies of the kings of Judah to agree with this number. However for the main matter, the difference in all is not great. And withal, it is not unmatter, the difference in all is not great. And withal, it is not unlikely, that the siege of Jerusalem, by the Chaldeans, continued three hundred and ninety dayes; by comparing the beginning an end of the siege, 2 King. 25. 1, 3, 4. and Jer. 39. 1, 2. and 52. 4, 5, 6, 7. and considering therein the time that the Chaldeans left the siege, upon the coming up of Pharaohs army out of Egypt, Jer. 37. 5, 7, 8, 11. which may be gathered to be about five moneths spent upon that expedition. But those Rabbies of the Jews that would understand this siege of the siege of Jerusalem, by Vespasian and Titus; and assign the three hundred and ninety dayes to the time of that siege; and the forty dayes to the time between our Saviours death and that siege; do seem herein wilfully to blind themselves. However we see here Gods great patience, and his long suffering of sins and sinners: and yet at last he doth visit and punish.

of the house of Israel] Though the body of them were carried captive into Assyria by Shalmenesar long before, in the sixth year of Hezekiah; yet divers of them remained scattered in the land, 2 Chr. 30. 6. & 31. 1. & 34. 6, 7, 9, 33. & many of them joyned to Judah, soon upon, and shortly after the first rent and separation by Jeroboam, 2 Chr. 11. 16, 17. and 15. 9. and continued so.

V.6. And when thou hast accomplished] Art about to accomplish them, that is, after three hundred and fifty, when thou art within forty of the last, as may appear by comparing the ninth verse with the fifth, and this; and is clearly evinced by Chap. 1. ver. 1, 2. Chap. 3. 15, 24, 25, 26, 27. and Chap. 8. 1. compared together.

of the house of Judah] Whose sins have been in part confused and mixed with the sins of the other ten tribes.

forty dayes] Some take these years out of the first forty of the wicked reign of Manasseh, Others, begin these years from the eighteenth year of Josiah; when though the Covenant with God was renewed, yet the people continued still in their rebellions and provocations, Jer. 2. 5, 3, 4, 7. 2 King. 23. 26. and they end them in the fifth year after Zedekiahs captivity; in that last captivity by Nebuzaradan, Others, more likely, begin them from the thirteenth year of Josiah, and end them in the eleventh of Zedekiah, which make forty years, and are the bonds of Ieremies prophesie, Jer. Chap. 1. 2, 3. This difference is not great.

each day for a year] Heb. a day for a year, a day for a year.

V.7. Set thy face] Do the actions of a Commander, who is very busie about some siege: harden thy face, be stern, as one inexorable; shewing, that such should be their besiegers, the Chaldies.

arm shall be uncovered] Ifa. 52. 10. Stript up, and stretched out, ready for service, and active; not put up in his bosom. Thus the Prophet personates the Chaldeans in the siege.

Shalt prophesie against it] By these signs, with words and expressions, suitable joyned thereunto.

V.8. Lay bands] By the authority of my word, and power of my Spirit; not as those bonds, Chap. 3. 25. shewing thereby, the firmness of this divine decree.

from one side] Heb. from thy side to thy side.

V.9. Take thou] a figure of the extream dearth in Ierusalem during the siege, signified by the course miscellany bread, made of divers sorts of the worst grain, and by the small weight and quantity of it. See their complaints of this, Lam. 1. 11, 19. and 2. 11, 12, 19. 20. and 4. 4, 9. 10. and 5. 6, 9, 10.

bread thereof] A type of the sore famine they should endure in the siege. Many sieges yield example of terrible famine; as Samaria, 2 King. 6. 25, 28. and others in humane stories.

Three hundred and ninety dayes shalt thou eat it] Therefore the forty dayes, ver. 6. are included in the three hundred and ninety. And he slept not all the time, as some Papists imagine.

V.10. twenty shekels a day] There are mentioned in Scripture shekels of gold, of silver, of brass, of iron. We read also of the shekel of the sanctuary, or the holy shekel. Hence some gather a common shekel, to be contra-distinguished to this, and make it lesse by the half. This to be halt an ounce, or two shillings fix-pence; the common, a quarter, or one shilling three-pence. And so the weight of twenty shekels here, to be five ounces, or at most ten ounces. Which yet is scant enough to preserve life. Some conceive the common and scattered shekel to be all one, consisting of twenty Gerahs, Exod. 30. 13. Lev. 27. 25. Numb. 3. 47. Ezek. 45. 12. And the Gerah weighing sixteen barley cornes.

V.11. water by measure] Whereof there was also great scarcity during the siege; the springs without the City, being possessed by the enemies. See Esay 30. 20. Lament. 4. 4. and Ch. 5. 4.

the sixth part of an Hin] about as much as twelve Hens eggeshells will hold, that is, about a pint; or one of those measures, called Logs, Lev. 14. 10. whereof six went to the Hin; and the Hin containing the quantity of seventy two egg-shells. See Exod. 29. 40. and the annotations upon it.

V.12. Dung that cometh out of man] Signifying the great scarcity of wood, to bake their bread within the time of the siege; yea of the dung of Cattel; for their Cattel should be consumed in the siege and famine. And also that the Lord holding his people for profane and unclean, would make them in exile and captivity unable to observe that ceremonial purity in their meats, which God had commanded. See v. 13. Hos. 9. 3. Dan. 1. 8. See Deut. 23. 12, 13, 14.

in their sight] It seems then this was not done in vision onely, and the Prophets imaginations; but actually before the peoples eyes.

V.13. Defiled bread among the Gentiles] Defiled; not because of the diversity of seeds, ver. 9. but because of the dressing.

Gentiles] To shew their extream misery, not onely in the siege, but in their captivity also and exile.

whether I will drive them] Gentiles, here, then must not be understood of the Chaldeans, whiles they were besieging them; as some would have it.

V.14. Ah Lord] So Chap. 20. 49. Jer. 1. 6. and 14, 13. See Act. 10. 14.

of that which dyeth] Exod. 22. 31. Lev. 17. 15. Deut. 22. 8. Ezek. 44. 31.

Abominable flesh] Deut. 14. 3. And the Prophet counted this enjoyned him, as abominable, if not more; and a defilement for him to touch it.

V. 15. Cows dung] Thus God condescends; and so, Amos 7. 2, 3, 5, 6. And should not we condescend to one another? Rom. 15. 1, 2, 3. This used, being dryed by the poor, in some Nations, for to dresse their meat; and was not abominable, as mans dung, Deut. 23. 12, 13, 14. And this being the thing here changed, and condescended unto, shews that the thing complained of, as a pollution, was not the mingled seeds, but mans dung. And this might be a sign of the mitigation of this threatning towards the Elect; but rather a peculiar priviledg to Ezekiels person, in this present case. For the Jews in the siege, endured, and did worse then this, Chap. 5. 10. Lam. 1. 11. and 2. 11, 12, 20. and 4. 10. See the like, 2 King. 6. 28, 29. See Job 6. v. 7.

V.16. I will break] an Hebrew phrase, Lev. 26, 26. Isa. 3. 1. That is, I will send an extream penury of bread, and of all things needful for the sustenance of mans life. The evil arrows of famine, Chap. 5. 16. the deficiency of bread; and haply to the unsufficiency of it to nourish, Micah 6. 14. Hag. 1. 6. See the accomplishment of it, Jer. 37. 21. 2 King. 25. 3. Lam. 4. 3 — 10.

staff of bread] Chap. 5. 16. and 14. 3. Psal. 104. 15. Levit. 26, 26. Psal. 105. 16. the whole staff of bread: and Esay 3. 1. the whole stay of bread, and the whole stay of water. See Esay 5. 13.

V.17. And be astonied] at their present astonishing-misery; so contrary to their false hopes, conceived by their false prophets prophesies.

and consume away] Lev. 26. 39.

CHAP. V.

Vers. 1. AND] This Chapter carries on the argument of the former. In it are types, setting forth the general destruction of the people of the Jews for their sins.

Take thee] This seems to be commanded, during the former vision; or rather presently after the three hundred and ninety dayes were ended, vers. 2. Compare together, Chap. 1. 1, 2. & 3. 15, 23, 27. Chap. 4. ver. 5. and Chap. 8. 1. And this to be really put in execution; to signifie a total destruction of the nation, here understood by the hair of the head and beard; whereof one part was consumed in the siege, by famine and pestilence, as it were by fire; another was killed by the Chaldeans; a third was scattered over the world, and perished by Gods vengeance; and a small remnant escaped, whereof part also perished by divers calamities. See vers. 12. Jer. 15. 2.

a sharp knife] a razor is the sharpest. Such was Nebuchadnezzar: as formerly the Assyrian, Esay 7. 20.

and cause] By himself, or by a Barber, or any other.

upon thy head, and upon thy beard] This in it self was held for a reproach and shame, and sign of greatest sorrow, Esay 15. 2. Jer. 47. 5. and 48. 37. 2 Sam. 10. 5. But the Prophet undergoes it at Gods command; seven therein also to be a portentuous sign of that shame and sorrow, that should befal the people.

upon thine head] The head City Jerusalem, ver. 5. So Esay 7. v. 8, 9. See Esay 7. 20. Deut. 28. 13, 44.

ballances to weigh] The precise accurateneſſe of Gods dealing, in executing his judgements, Dan. 5. 25, 27. 2 Sam. 8. 2. They are not too light, or heavy; but just to a haires weight: yet mixed with mercy to his, Jer.46.28. Lam.3.32. Ezra 9.13.

V.12. with fire] That is, famine, pestilence, and other means, which as a fire should consume them.

a third part] Chap.7.15.

of the City] To wit of that City which he had pourtrayed upon the brick-or tyle, Chap.4.1. Or of Tel-abib; or some City, where the Prophet dwelt in Chaldea; for he was not brought unto Jerusalem, not so much as in vision yet.

when the dayes] Those three hundred and ninety dayes, Chap.4.ver.5,8,9.

about it] That is, about the City: those that did fight, or fled in the time of the seige: and of the entring in, or breaking up of the City; and those slain in Riblah, 2 Kin.25.18,19,20,21.

Scatter in the wind] Scatter them into other Nations by flight or captivity.

a sword after them] verf.12. Lev.26.33. See this accomplished, Jer.41.16, 17, 22. and 43.10, 11. and 44.27. Obad. verf.14.

V.3. a few in number] Such as Nabuzaradan left of the poor of the land, to be vine-dressers and husbandmen; and Gedaliah to be ruler over them, 2 Kin.25.12,22.

skirts] Heb. wings. Meaning that a very few should be left, which the Lord would preserve among all these storms; but not without troubles and trial. So Esay 1.9. and 6.10.

V.4. cast them] They which were with Gedaliah, soon-by Ismael come to nothing, 2 King.25,25. but the hairs of the head of the godly are all numbred, Matth.10.30.

Thereof shall a fire] Out of the fire; to wit, by the death of Gedaliah, miseries shall arise to the reft of the Jews; which are fet out by Jeremy 41.42, 43, 44. Chapters, and 52. verf.30. They look too far, that extend this to the times of the miracles.

V.5. This is Jerusalem] That is to say. This figure represents Jerusalem, and sheweth how I will use her. And in a like sacramental phrase, This is my body, Matth.26.26. So Gen.41.26. 1 Cor.10.4.

I have set] amongst many nations, as Prov. 30.19. I had sanctified it, and made choice of it for my abode, and enriched it with singular graces, Psal. 48. and 87,1,2,3. That she sate as a Queen among the nations, Lam,1,1. Yea, and placed it much about the middle, and center of the known world; and to be indeed, a lanthorn, and pattern, to them of piety and sanctity, Deut. 4,6,&c.

V.6. And she] The causes of Gods judgements against them, ver. 6,7. she that should have been a light of Religion, and of life unto them, Deu.4,6. and 32.6, Esay 1.2. Jerem.2,12, Esay 5.4. my judgments] My Word and Law, into superstition, and wicked works, and wages, Chap.7,2. Jer.2,1. Rom.1,23,25. Jude 4.

more then the nations] More transgressed my holy judgments & statutes, given from heaven, then the Nations and Gentiles have done theirs, by Natures light dictated unto them, 2 King.21.11. See the like, Ezek. Chap.16.47,48,51. They could not do worse then they did, Jer.3.5.

refused] As Hos.4.6, despised; as a light thing.

V.7. Because ye multiplied] Because your Idols are in greater number, and your superstitions more then among the professed Idolaters. See Chap 16,25,26,28,29. Isa.65. Or, he condemneth their ingratitude in respect of his benefits, Deut.32.15. Hos. 13.6. Their sins caused God to come on to judgments; provokes him to do his strange work, Esay 28.21.

According to the judgements] Namely by cleaving to your God, as every one of them hath done to their God, Jer.2.10,11,12. See Act.19,34. Solomons wives were constant to their gods; and drew him also to do as they did, Judg.2.12, and 10,6. Or, by following your meer natural reason, as the best among other Nations have done, Rom.2.14. Thus God convicts them of their sins: to make way for a further conviction, namely of the equity and necessity of his judgements.

V.8. Therefore] Gods judgements set down to the end of the Chapter, generally and particularly.

I even] By his instruments, Jer.25.9. and so he did at other times, by Assur, Esay 10.5,6,7. by Cyrus, Esay 41.1 ——— 6. Amos 3.6. Micah 1.1.2. and 6.9.

Am against thee] And then who, or what can be for us? and as true on the other side, Rom.8.31. Ezek.22.14.

judgements] Alluding haply to judgments in the former verse; and implying here judgements of another kind.

in the sight of the Nations] Not secretly, or privatly; but openly: all should see his dealing with them, even the Nations, in whose sight they had so sinned.

V.9. which I have not done] Not the like judgments upon the heathens, Lam.1.6. Greater then the punishment of Sodom: that though sharp, yet short, and sudden, Lam.4.6. Samaria's punishment, 2 King.6.28,29. short of this, by considering the next words, ver.10. and Samaria then was delivered. However, this phrase of speech serves onely to expresse the exceeding height and weight of these judgements, A like phrase is that, 2 King.18.5. and Chap.23.25. compared together. The like may be the meaning of that phrase, Mat.24.21.

because of all thine abominations] Idolatry, incest, and sundry other sins are called abominations, 2 King.11.5,7. Lev.18.27, whereof they were guilty.

V.10. Therefore the Fathers] Chap.4.9,&c. Levit.26.29. Deut.28.53. 2 King.6.29. Lament.4.10. if the pitiful mothers, much more the fathers, Jerem.16.3. and 22.8,9. Esay 9.19,20.

execute judgements] In these times of siege Ezekiel foretold extreme sorrow should be in Israel, by plague, famine, and sword; Fathers should eat their children, and children their fathers. Moses fore-saw and fore-told that, Deut.28.53. Daniel after-told of a greater desolation, when Christ is utterly denyed by them, Dan. 9.27.

V.11. As I live] The Lords vehement asseveration, Ch.16.48. often used in Scripture: but most often in this Prophet. It is an oath as the word is taken in its latitude, Heb.6.13,14,17. Deut.32.40.

my sanctuary] Psal.20.3. my Temple, with their idols, altars, Jer.7. 30. and 32.34. 2 King.16.10 ——— 16. and Chap.22.12. and with other defilements, Ezek.44.7.

neither shall mine eyes spare] Chap.7.4,9. and 8.18. Deut.7. 16. and 13.8. See 1 Sam.24.10. God it is still that doth it. 2 Chron. 12.7. Amos 4.6,10. and 5. ver.6. Esay 63.10. Now the eye is the Index, the Intelligencer of the mind, the casement it looks out at; the dispositions of the mind, are visible in the eye, as in a looking glass. The meaning here is, You shall have no sign of mercy, in mine eye, in all your miseries.

neither will I have any pity] As 1 Sam.15.3. as Amos 1.11. See Zach.11.6. Jerem.21.7. and 13.ver.14. Lament.2.2,17,21. Ezek. 8.18.

V.12. A third part] The explication of that verf. 2. no escaping from Gods judgments; one or other will overtake them, 1 King.19.15,16,17. Amos 9.1,5. and 2.14,15, 16.

I will scatter] Chap.6.8, Lev.26.33. into Babylon, Moab, Ammon, Egypt, Psal.44,11, Zech.7,14.

I will draw, &c.] Ver.1. Levit.26.33. Jerem. 46.10. and 48.2.

V.13. be accomplished] Let out to the full, go on to the highest degree. He would stir up all his wrath, pour out his full vials.

my fury] No affections or passions in Gods immixt and immutable essence; but spoken after the manner of men, and for our capacities.

to rest upon them] Rest and reside there; so as they should be a people under fury, a generation of his wrath, Jerem.7.29. a people of his wrath, Esay 10.6. See Jerem.7.10. or else, as some my fury shall rest and cease, being satisfied. See Chap.16. 42.

be comforted] That is, I will not be pacified, until I be avenged, Prov.1.26. Isa.1.24, and 30.32, God again speaks after the manner of men, and to our understanding. Thus are men eased, comforted upon revenge taken: Minuit vindicta dolorem, revenge is sweet.

in my zeal] Fiery jealousy, and hot hatred against them for their sins, Like that, Proverb.6.34. See Psal.79,5. Esay 58,17. Ezek.16. 38. Deut.29,20.

V.14. waste] Jerusalem, and all Jury. Jerusalem was the praise of the earth, Psal.132,13,14. Esay 1,21. and 52.1. and 60. 14. Lament.2.15. Jury the glory of all lands, Ezek.20.6. the Lords land, Hos.9.3. Immanuels land, Esay 8.8. See Deut.11,10,11,12. Zach.2.12. and 7.14. yet for their sins, God would lay it waste, Esay 7.24. and 64.10,11. Psal.107.34. See Neh.2.17. Lament.1.4. and 2,23,&5.18.

V.15. a reproach,] As was threatned, Deut.28.37. and executed, Ezek.22.4. Jerem.42.18, and 24.9. Lam.5.1. and Chap.2.15,16.

an instruction,] nocumenta, documenta; παθήματα, μαθήματα; as to themselves, so to others, by their examples, Esay 26.8.9.

an astonishment] Through admiration, Deut.29.22,23,24, Jer.19. 8. and 22.8.

in furious rebukes] See the height of Gods anger whereunto it was provoked by sin. These rebukes then were not to cure, but to destroy.

V.16. when I shall send] Deut.32.23.

evil arrowes] Which were the grashoppers, mildew, and whatsoever were the occasions of famine: or rather, the famine in the siege, brought upon them by the besiegers. This famine like arrows shot, pierced, and pinched their stomachs, and inwards, wounded them to the heart, slew them, and laid them heaps upon heaps, Deut.32.23,24.

staff of bread] Chap.4.16. V.17.

V.17. Evil beasts] As was threatned, Lev.26.22. Deut.32.24. 2 King.17.25. which use to multiply and increase upon vastations, and desolations of Countreys.

I the Lord] Ver.11. as I live, He subscribes it, as it were, with his hand, vouches & alleges it for his word, and doom; and that it is not the false figment of any other. And then shall the Lord speak it, and not perform it, Chap.12.25. Ier.1.12. Esay 14.27. whose word shall stand, Ier.44.28. His words should not be as wind, but as thunderbolts: and they should be convinced of it by woful experience. So Ver.13,15.

CHAP. VI.

Verf.1. AND the word] This Chapter contains a more ample explication of the former Types, and threatnings; prophesied and denounced soon after the 390 dayes, Chap.4,5. were past: as may be gathered by comparing together, Chap.1.1,2, and Chap.8.1. Together with a promise of mercy inserted to a repenting Remnant that shall be among the Gentiles.

V.2. Set thy face] By this sign shew whereunto thy prophesie looketh and tendeth, Chap.25.2. and Chap.38.2.

Towards the mountains of Israel] Chap.36.1. Israel and Judah were both mountains, Exod.15.17. Deut.11.11. 1 King.18.23. Psal. 87.1,15,2. Esay 14.25. 2 Chron.17.4. Ier.32.34. Ezek.38.21. Amos 3.9.

V.4. your images] Or, Sun-images; and so ver.6. See Lev.26,3. 2 King.13.11. 2 Chron.34.7.

V.5. Lay the dead] Heb, give.

Their Idols] In contempt of their power, and force, which shall neither be able to deliver you, nor themselves, 2 King.13.20. See ver.13. of this Chapter.

V.6. Your works may be abolished] Your idols, altars, chappels, and all other superstitious inventions of man.

V.8. Yet will I leave] A promise to a remnant repenting, he sheweth that in all dangers God will preserve a few, which shall be as the seed of the Church, and shall call upon his Name.

V.9. I am broken] That is, my patience hath been overcome. Or I have been grieved and afflicted; even as a husband would be at the evil carriage of his adulterous wife. See Psal.78.40. Isa.7.13, and 63.18.

Loath themselves] They shall repent, 2 Cor.7.11. Iob.42.6.

V.11. Smite] A repetition, if not exaggeration of the fearful judgements, to the end of the Chapter. These two signes are here of grief, shewing thereby the woful destruction to come; yet smiting the hands together, is sometimes a sign of Anger; as Num.24.10. sometimes of heartning, encouraging, and setting on; as Ezek.21.17. and sometimes of joy; as Psal.98.8. Ezek. 25.6.

V.13. under every green tree] Isa.57.5. Hos.4.13.

V.14. More desolate then the wilderneſſe] Or, desolate from the wilderneſſe.

Diblath] This place is not mentioned else-where: unleſſe it be Diblathaim: of which Ier.48.22. which was in the Countrey of Moab, neer unto that great and terrible desert, mentioned Deut. 8.15.

CHAP. VII.

Verf.1. MOreover] This Chapter is a continuation and confirmation, if not an exaggeration, of the judgements denounced in the former Chapter.

V.3. Thine abominations] I will punish thee as thou hast deserved for thine Idolatries, and other crying crimes, ver.8.

V.4. And mine eye] Chap.5.11.

shall be in the midst of thee] That is, they having been never wiped out, nor cancelled by my pardon, nor by your repentance, I will make you endure open punishment for them which you shall not be able to avoid, ver.9.

The Lord] That smiteth, ver.9.

V.5. An onely evil] Chap.5.9.as 1 Sam.26.8.

V.6. An end is come] These reduplications following, shew the certainty and celerity of the judgements.

it watcheth] Heb. Awaketh against thee.

V.7. The morning is come] ver.10.

and not of the sounding of the mountains] Not any vain eccho of false fears or foolish joyes.

V.8. Shortly] About four years after (as was formerly said) the siege began by the Chaldeans, Chap.1.2. and Jer.51.4. compared gether.

V.9. I will recompence thee] Heb. upon thee.

V.10. Behold the day] As if it were present before their eyes.

The rod hath blossomed] A proverbial kind of speech, to signifie, that the people sins were sprung up to ripeness and maturity, to the filling up of the measure heap full, which draweth Gods judgment upon them, Gen.15.16.

V.11. None of them shall remain] They shall all perish, I will suffer them no longer.

wailing for them] Chap.24,16,22,23. Jer.16.5,6. Their own affliction shall be so great, that they shall have no regard to lament for others sins, or pray for them, as before, in time of seeing, to wail for them.

V.12. Let not the buyer rejoyce] For the present profit, seller mourn] For he shall lose nothing.

V.13. For the seller] By reason of the desolation of the land, all manner of right and title to the property of land, shall be lost by the buyers or sellers, and neither shall come again to his land; not the seller, though he had not sold it: no not in the year of Jubite, though he live unto it, Lev.25,13,23.

Although they were yet alive] Heb, though their life were yet among the living.

According to their deserts] Heb, with their judgments.

CHAP. VIII.

Vers.1. AND it came to passe]This and the three Chapters following, contain one vision. In this eighth Chapter are shewed divers wayes the abominable Idolatries of the Jewes, yet remaining in Jerusalem, under the reign of King Zedekiah.

In the fifth yeare] Fourteen moneths, that is one year, and two moneths, since that time mentioned in Chap.1.1,2. and about a fortnight after the end of those three hundred and ninety dayes; Chap.4.5.as is most likely, upon consideration had of those words, Chap.3.15,14,25,26,27.

fixt moneth] Which containeth part of August, and part of September.

first day]Towards the end of our August.

in mine house] In Mesopotamia.

And the elders] That were in Captivity with me.

sate before me] Likely come to ask counsel from God by me, Chap.33.31,and by Gods providence,whiles they were there, this vision befel the Prophets, which made for the greater notification, and credit of it.

hand of the Lord] as Chap.1.3.

V.2. And lo,a likenesse] Of a man,as appears by the words following.

As the appearance of fire] As Chap.1.27.

of bright[esse] Of the bright shining Sun.

of amber]Chap.1.5.

V.3. And he put forth] That man in the former verse, (Dan.5.5) All this was done in a mental vision, and not really in a body.

to the door of the inner gate] That is, to the door of the gate of the inner court. See Chap.10.3. or Priests court, namely of Solomons temple; though some learned men would understand hereby the very ingress of the great Court which was for the people.

that lookech toward the North] This seems to be the North door and gate of the Priests court; for that court had four gates and doors: on the East, West, North, and South; that is, on each side one;and porters appointed to them;as appears, 1 Chr.9.19,22,23, 24.and 1 Chron.26.and they seem to have these names, viz. 1 Sur the East-gate, 2 King.11.6. called also the gate of the foundation, 2 Chron.23.5. from the foundation of it, because it had the greatest and lowest foundation (for the great court of the people joyning to it,stood upon the declivity of an hill) called also the higher gate of the house of the Lord, 2 King.15.35. because it was the highest,and the greatest, reckoning from the foundation to the top. This was the chief gate. 2 The gate behind the guard which is the South gate,2 King.11.6, which seems also to be called the gate Sippin, that is,of the doors, or thresholds, 2 Chron.23.4. 3 Shallecheth,the West gate towards the Kings house, 1 Chron.26. 16. 1 King.10.5,12. 1 Chron.26.16,18. 2 Chron.9.4,11. 4 The North gate behind the brazen altar,as appears in these words,and in the word of the fifth verse following, likely so called from that time and fact mentioned, 2 King.16.14.

the seat of, &c.] The Image it self was at the North gate of the brazen altar,in the entry, ver.5.

Image of jealousie] It is very uncertain what Image this was, but it is plain it was a very abominable one,(as the Idol of Baal was) to which the people bare great devotion; built likely by Ahaz first after the example of Ahab,2 King.16.3,4. 2 Chron.23.2. and after repaired by Manasseh, 2 King.20.3,4,5. and the wicked sons of good Josiah,and it is called the image of jealousie,because it was the principal object of the peoples spiritual adultery. See Jer.7.30. and 23.11. and 32.34,35.

V.4. saw in the plain] Chap.1.13.and 3.12,23.

V.5. Northward at the gate of the altar]Namely,the brazen altar of burnt-offerings; which being in the forefront, about the middle of the inner-court, the North and South doors of this court, were by direct line opposite to the said altar, in equal distance. And therefore it is not known,why the Northern gate should be so called peculiarly, unlesse this name was given it, when Ahaz removed the altar out of its place, and did set it neer to this gate, 2 King. 16.14.

V.6. from my sanctuary] For God will not be where idols are.

V.7. To the doors of the court] Which court is not named; and hereupon the opinions are divers. The tabernacle had but one court,and that court but one gate, Exod.27. The temple of Solomon which is here spoken of, had but two courts, one for the Priests and Levites which was the inner-court, next to the temple, and compassing it, which was the inner-court; and the other for the people, which was the great and utter court, compassing the court of the Priests, 1 King.7.12. 2 King.21.5. and 23.12. 2 Chron.4.9. We may not then understand this court, here, of a middle court, proper to the Levites, betwixt the court of the Priests, and that of the people;for such a one Solomons temple had not. That in Ezekiels vision mentions such a middle court, Chap.40.28.to 44. But that was fourteen years after the City was smitten,and this temple destroyed, Chap.40.1. And it was in vision onely; never in being: a type onely of the Church of Christ under the Gospel. This court then here named, must needs be understood, to be, either that of the Priests,or that of the people:but whether of the two,is not easily and certainly known. But it seems rather, by comparing what goes before and after,to be that of the Priests; and the East door of it.

7. Of the court] Namely,the Priests court.

A hole] To signifie,as it seemeth, the Jews carefulnesse, in preserving and repairing Gods temple, and the chambers of it.

in the wall] Hee seemeth to mean the wall, that was on the one side of this portal,where the door-keepers chambers were.

V.8. a door]It is likely that this was the chambers ordinary door, but now was thut; and that the door,by which the Idolaters came secretly into this Chappel of idols and imagery, was on some other by-part of the chamber.

V.10. Creeping things, and abominable beasts] Kinds of idolatry, taken from the heathen neighbouring nations, and specially from the Egyptians, whom now they courted for help, who worshipped Dogs,Cats,Crocodiles,Serpents, and other abominable beasts, forbidden in the Law, Lev.11.

V.11. Seventy men of the ancients] Not unlikely,but those of that number and order,appointed by God, Num.11.16,&c. Or at leastwise,such as should have kept al the rest in the fear,and true service of God,and yet were the Ring-leaders to all abominations;and by their example, pulled others from God.

A thick cloud] It was in such abundance.

V.12. do in the dark]For besides their common idolatry, they had particular services,which they had in secret chambers,As the Egyptians had their dark devotions to Osiris;and afterwards,both Grecians and Romanes, had the like blind, and close spiritual adulteries,and idolatries,in a secret and bidden way and manner,to some of their false gods and goddesses.

The Lord seeth us not] Chap.9.9. He takes no more care of us, he hath forsaken both us and the land, wherefore we will flye to the gods of other Nations, which do relieve them; and since he hath renounced us, we will also renounce him. See 2 Chron.28 23. Jer. 44.17.

V.13. greater abominations] Wicked idolaters proceed from evil to worse, 2 Tim.3.13.

V.14. To the doors of the gate of the Lords house, which was towards the North]The North-gate of the court of the Priests.

women] That ought not so have entred into that place; most likely the women Priests, and unchast worshippers of the Egyptian Isis.

weeping for Tammuz]Called Ammuz of Herodotus and Plutarch; and seems to be the same called Osiris, or Apis, or Serapis, a king of Egypt,and the husband,brother,or son of Isis, Queen of Egypt. Thus various are the heathen writers in their histories and narrations. This Osiris and Isis became so famous in Egypt, as they grew to be worshipped; and upon his Iosis,and death by Typhon, Isis ordained a yearly mourning for him, in their fourth moneth from him, called Tammuz. In which feast the women used very immodest rites and ceremonies. Thus out of heathen authors do Christian writers report. And this shameful, and whorish, and beastly idolatry, came in practice among the Jews, even in the house of the Lord. And to this do those places seem to relate, 1 King.14.24. and Chap.15.12. and Chap.22.46. and 2 King. 23.7.

V.16. The porch and the altar] the porch of the temple, wherein were those two huge and high pillars,Jachin,and Boaz, 1 King.6. 3. and Chap.7.15, &c. 2 Chron.3.4,15,16,17. in the East part of the temple; and the altar of brass for burnt-offerings placed in the Priests court,between the East gate of the Priests court, and the porch of the temple:as the altar was in the court of the tabernacle, Exod.3.18,19,20. and 38.1, &c. and 40.6,7. 2 Chron.4.1.

were about five and twenty men]about,so that his number is somewhat uncertain. Not so as those,Ch.11.1. Neither doth any reason inforce these to be the same with those. However prime men,likely they were, and against the Law, came into this place, and exercised most abominable idolatry in it.

with their backs] A sign that they had utterly renounced God and his service;and in that posture that they might worship the Sun toward the East,

The Sun toward the East] Deut 4.19. 2 King.23,5,11. Job 31. 26, Jer.44.17.

V. 17. Is it a light thing to the house of Judah, that they commit the abominations]Or,Is there any thing lighter then to commit? or, Is it lighter? This question is a strong negation. See Gen.18.17. The meaning is, that the Jews thought nothing lighter; although these abominations against the first Table were the most grievous and fearfullest; yet there was no Command so great, which the Jews thought not light of, to transgresse it.

with violence] By oppression of the innocent, and of the poor; which is done either in Common, by unrighteous judgement; or in particular, by all kinds of injustice,

To provoke] In profaning my Temple.

They put the branch to] זמורה, is a branch of a tree; so is the Hebrew word taken, Numb.13.24. and Chap.15.2. and here is set forth a practice of Heathenish Idolaters, in worshipping the Sun, which they call upon, because it quickeneth the fruits, and makes them ripe, in token whereof they kisse the branch, or the hand, as them ripe, in token whereof they kisse the branch, or the hand, as Job 31.26,27. So did they to Bacchus, 2 Maccab.6.7. See Jer. 44.17. Hos.2.8.Others thus,they bring the stink to their noses;that is to say, they offend themselves by committing such abominations.

V.18. Eye shall not spare] Chap.5.11. and 7.4.

Cry in my Ears with a loud voyce]Prov.1.28. Isa.1.15. Ier.11.11. Mic.3.4.

CHAP. IX.

Vers. 1. HE cryed] In this Chapter is figured out the slaughter to be made in Jerusalem, of the people that were therein, excepting the godly mourners that were marked out to be spared.

Cause them that have charge over the City] The visitations of the City draw neer;that is, The time to take vengeance; when the visitors are called for, the visitation will be kept.

even every man] In this vision, being a figure of what was to be done on earth,Gods speaks to his Angels, executioners of his judgments: by which are meant the Chaldeans,instruments of the Iews destruction. See Dan.10.13,20. and 11.1.

V.2. six men] Which were Angels in the similitude of men; as Gen.18.2. Act.10. These six may haply have some relation to the six chief Commanders under the King of Babylon, who did invade and take Jerusalem,Ier.39.3. And likewise to be fix in number,with a reference to the six gates of Jerusalem. The City being divided into three Towns, each of them had two chief gates, to which the streets and quarters of the whole City did belong. In the City of David (wherein was the strong hold, or Castle of Zion) were the port of David,or the fish-gate;and the old port, in the town of Benjamin, the gate of Ephraim, and the corner gate, 2 Chron.25.23. In that town or port that belonged to the lot of Iudah, were the dung-gate,and sheep-gate.

Higher-gate] Likely it is, that every gate belonging to the Courts of the Temple, had a portal belonging to it; which was a great building that had two overtures, with a gallery or entry between;one of the doors was toward the outward-court, the other towards the inner-court; Now the plain on the outside being lower, some conceive that that gate was likewise lower, and that the other of the inner-court was higher; and they went up to it by steps. Thus it was in that Typical vision of the Temple, Ezek.40. 28,29,20. See 2 King.15.35. 2 Chron.27.3.

which lyeth toward the North]Heb. which is turned. And from the North,by the Chaldeans,and their armies, this slaughter and destruction came, Jer.1.13.

and one man] Many understand this of Christ our Saviour, but it may seem rather to be meant of a created Angel, (as the rest) appointed to this gracious office; and so here set forth not armed, as the rest,but in a Priestly habite. See Chap.10.1.

among them] Heb.in the midst of them: but none of the six,ver.2. because those every of them had weapons, and were ordained to destroy the wicked;but this had a Writers ink-horn.

ink-horn] To mark them in the forehead that mourned for the sin of the City,ver.3.that they might be kept safe,That falleth out in Jeremy, Baruc, Abedmelech, and such godly persons. So in the spiritual fall from the faith to Idolatry, which the Apocalyps revealeth, an angel cometh from the East, and sealeth a great number, Apoc.7.

by his side]Heb.upon his loyns.

brazen Altar]Namely,the altar of burnt-offerings,2 Chron 4.1. Now these angels do here present themselves, as it were, to receive their Commission from God coming out of his Temple, ver. 3,5.

V.3. And the glory of the God] Seen in the full vision and description of it by the river Chebar, Chap.1.1,28. and again in the Plain,Chap.3.23. and lastly, at the North door of the inner-gate (of the Lords house)in Jerusalem,Chap.8.4. visiting his house,and shewing to Ezekiel the abominable Idolatries of his people there.

was gone up]Or, went up; that is, his glory more properly and peculiarly. So called, Chap.1.25,26,27,28. was gone up from the Cherubins and wheels, leaving them at the North door of the inner-gate,Chap.8.4.

from the Cherub]Cherubins:not those in Sancto Sanctorum; there was no mention of them before, nor any notification or specification made of them now; neither was there any visible sign of Gods glory sitting upon the Cherubins that were over the propitiatory in the most holy place, that might be said here to be gone up from thence. These therefore here are to be understood of the same four living creatures,wights and Cherubins, which alone are menti ned and described, Chap.1.5,&c. and 8.4. and so all along after in the 10, Chapter throughout, and Chap.11.22,23. to the end of this heavenly vision, and were now (as hath been said)at the North door of the inner-gate, Chap.8.4. from whence it appears they removed to the right side of the house, Chap. 10.3.

to the Threshold of the house] Or, Temple; there to pronounce the sentence, for marking some to be spared,and for slaying others. We read not that the Cherubins were there at the Threshold. That place,Chap.10.4 makes not to the contrary;as it is well cleared by our translation.

And he called to the man]Namely, the Son of God which sate upon the Throne,Chap.1.26. called to this Angel,

V.4. A mark] The Hebrew word is תו which signifies a mark; and is not the bare letter ת. All this happened in vision,for a figure of the distinction which God makes in his general judgements, betwixt his elect Believers and the wicked. See Exod. 12.7, 13. Apoc.7.3.and 3.12.we read of antichrists mark,Apoc.13.16.

That sigh] He sheweth what is the manner of Gods Children whom he marketh to salvation;to wit,to mourn and cry out against the wickednesse which they see committed against God.

V.6. Slay utterly]This executed,2 Chron.36.17.

V.8. and I was left] Rom.11.3.

Ah, Lord God] This declareth, that the servants of God have a compassion,when they see his judgments executed.

V.9. Then said] Jer.9.3.to 17.

The head of the Cherubins] Which in Chap.1.5. he called four living creatures; described there at large.

A Saphire Stone] Chap.1.26. Heb.as a Saphire Stone; as the appearance of the likeneſse of a Throne, appeared over them; and Christ in his glory upon it: as is perceived by the next verse. See Chap.1.26,27.

V.2. The man clothed]Of whom,Chap.9.2.

between the wheeles] Ver.13.

under the Cherub] Cherubins, which were not far off, on the right side of the house in the next verse.

fill thine hand]Heb.the hollow of thine hand.

coals of fire] Of this fire,mention is made, Chap.1.4,5,13,27. a sign of Gods Majesty, in wrath and judgment who is a devouring fire,which devoureth the wicked and such as are his enemies, Psal. 18.8,13. And here we see the same man or Angel, formerly a Minister of mercy, Chap.9.2. now in this place an executioner of Gods fiery wrath and vengeance.

over the City] This signified that the City should be burnt; which vision of Ezekiel took effect,almost five years after,Chap.8.1.and Jer.52.4,5,6,11,13. compared together.

V.3. Now the Cherubins] With all the rest of the frame, the wheeles.

stood on the right side of the house]Being removed from the North door,of the inner-gate where the glory of the Lord left them,Chap. 8,3,4. with Chap.9.1. The right side is the South; the Scripture supposing a man in posture with his face towards the East, at hath been when the man went in] Namely under the Cherubins for to take some of the fire coals.

cloud] That cloud, Chap.1.4. or cloudy darkenesse, in which was hidden this apparition of Gods glory; or rather another cloud, being now, as at many other times, an usual token of the glorious presence of the Divine Majesty, Exod.40.34, Num.9.15, and 16.42. 1 King.8.10,11.

inner Court] Namely the Priests Court, or the Court of the Temple.

V.4. Glory of the Lord] Chap.1.25,26,27,28. and Chap.9.3.

went up] Heb. was lifted up.

Threshold of the house] Chap.9.3.

Court] To wit, the Priests Court.

V.5. sound] Chap.1.24.

utter Court] That is the peoples Court, which way the Lord was now going, as he departed from his Temple.

voice] Namely, as thunder, Psal.29.3,4,5.

V.6. and it came] Returns to the fuller prosecution, and explication, of that which he began to speak of in the second Verse.

V.7. Stretched] Heb. sent forth.

V.8. a mans hand] Chap.1.8.

V.9. And when I looked] Are petition & description of the former vision in the first Chapter, with some alterations made for the further clearing and confirmation of it.

beryll stone] Chap.1.16.

V.11. when they went] Chap.1.12,17.

head] According to some he meaneth the Cherubim which stood by each wheel; but it is better to be understood of him that sate upon the throne, who guided the whole chariot by an universal and equal inspiration, Chap.1.12,20,21.

V.12. And their whole body] In this varying somewhat from the former vision, Chap.1.18, and being more glorious then it: setting forth more fully the all-seeing providence of God; clearly guiding and governing all things whatsoever.

wheeles] The outward circle and rings of them, Chap.1.18.

That they four had] Chap.1.18.

V.13. it was cryed unto them] Or, they were called in my hearing, wheel, or galgal, or round world. What was commanded them is not here set down; but all this seems to signifie nothing else, but that the wheels did absolutely obey the Son of God, as well as the Cherubims, who had life in them, and that they received all their motion from him.

V.14. And every one] Chap.1.10.

The first face was the face of a Cherub] Seeing that Ezek.1 10. among the four faces there is an oxes face, instead of which here is set down a Cherubs face; some conceive that Cherub signifieth properly the figure of an oxe, under which Hieroglyphically was represented an Angel; as indeed in the Syriac tongue, the word cherub, is taken from a word which signifieth drawing the plough, which is the Ox his proper labour; and therefore they are called the same faces, ver.22. Howbeit, Cherub is commonly taken for a beautiful childs face.

V.15. The living Creature] So ver.17,20. and so Chap.1.20, yet called also living Creatures, Chap.1.13,14,15,19. and four in number, Chap.1.5,22. This is the same living wight, with the difference aforenamed.

V.16. And when the Cherubims went, the wheels] There was one consent between the Cherubs and the wheels, Chap.1.19,20.

V.17. Spirit of the living] Or, of life.

V.18. Then the glory of the Lord] Chap.10.4. and 9.3.

stood over the Cherubims] Came from the threshold of the house, Chap.9.3. and 10.4. and stood over the Cherubims, that stood on the right side of the house, ver.3.

V.19. at the door of the East gate of the Lords house] Namely of the peoples court, which was the first coming in of the Temple: and so by degrees the Lord and his glory departed more and more from his Temple. See Chap.11.22,23.

V.20. And I knew that they were the Cherubims] The same, though with these small variations.

V.22. same faces] ver.14.

CHAP. XI.

Verse.1. MOreover] This Chapter which ends the vision, sheweth Gods fierce wrath pursuing the remant of the wicked desperate Idolaters, that should escape out of the destruction of Jerusalem; the promises of Gods mercy to the godly penitents among those that were already in Captivity in Babylon: and the glory of God finally departing, leaving, and forsaking the Temple and City of Jerusalem.

The Spirit lift me up] In vision I thought I was carried up into the air from the Priests Court.

to the East gate] Of the court of the people, that Chap.10.19. where the glory of the Lord now was.

five-and-twenty men] These seem not to be the same that were spoken of, Chap.8.16. But these seem rather to be the Senate of Jerusalem, whereof the two here named, were chief. And hither the Princes and Magistrates did often use to resort, for judgment: as Jer.26.10. These twenty five, being after that charge given, Chap. 9.1,2,5,6,7. seem to be freed from that judgment in the City; and are sentenced to another judgment afterwards, ver.7,8,9,10,11. save that Pelatiah, one of the chief among them, was strucken with present sudden death, ver.13. for a sign and token of Gods wrath against them.

V.3. It is not near] Or, it is not for us to build houses neer. There is no likelihood that these Prophets predictions, concerning the taking and desolation of Jerusalem, should happen so soon; wherefore without taking any more care about it, let us take our ease; the storm is fallen, and hath spent its rage upon the Jews which are already gone into captivity with Jehojakim. See Ezek.12.22,27, Amos 6.3. 2 Pet.3.4. or rather, if we should build houses neer the walls of Jerusalem, the Chaldeans would come, and make use of them against us, and thereby the rather take the City; and so indeed it should become the Cauldron, and we the flesh in it. They likely have herein an eye to Jeremies prophesie, Chap.1.13. though betwixt fear, and scorn.

V.4. Prophesie against them] Namely, in vision, using such gestures, and doings, as if thou were in Jerusalem speaking to this people.

V.5. And the Spirit] Chap.1.3. and 3.14.

O house of Israel,] And chiefly those, Chap.35.1,2.

V.6. ye have multiplyed] This may as well be referred to the murthers and violences committed by the Inhabitants of the City; as to the occasion which they had given, through their perfidiousnesse to the king of Babylon, and their obstinacy in not yeelding to him according to Gods command, to cause a very great number of the people to dye by famine and pestilence; and so they made up the flesh for the cauldron.

V.7. your slain] Chap.24.3.10 the 14. Mic.3.3.

they are the flesh] They indeed shall remain there: but you the chief and heads shall be carried out to the slain, Jer.39.6. & 52.10, 24,25,26,27.

V.8. ye have feared the sword] Isa.66.4. Jer.42.16. Prov. 10.24.

V.9. hands of Strangers] That is, of the Chaldeans.

V.10. in the border of Israel] That is in Riblah, 2 King.25,6,21. which City was placed in the land of Hamath, 2 King.23.33. and Jer.39.5. on the Northern border of Israel. Num.34.8. Josh.13.5. 1 King.8.65. See the fulfilling of this prophesie, Jer.52.10, 24——27.

V.11. Shall not be your Cauldron] That is to say, ye shall not remain in it, nor dye in it; but in the border of Israel.

V.12. for ye have not] Or, which have not walked.

V.13. when I prophesied] The Prophet saw this sudden death in vision, as an execution of the foresaid threatnings; whereupon he feared that God would presently destroy every thing, and make a full end.

fell down] Chap.9.8.

V.15. Thy brethren] They in the captivity in Babylon, are they that are thus wronged and reproached: They that remain still at Jerusalem, thus deem and doom you, as cast off and forsaken of God, who forsook his land and worship, and have nothing now to do with the Lord: and that they remaining in Jerusalem, are alone Gods people, and heires of all the priviledges of grace.

V.16. Yet I will be to them] That is, though they are but in Jerusalem, yet they shall have from me really, and in spiritual vertue, that which was figured by the material Sanctuary in Jerusalem, namely, the presence of my grace and favour; my protection, comfort, and conduct of my Spirit, &c.

a little Sanctuary] Heb. little is after Sanctuary: and it may be read, yet will I be to them a Sanctuary for a little, (to wit time) in the countries where they are, or shall come to; namely for those 70 years in Babylon, Jer.25.11. and 29.10. Or, a little Sanctuary imports no little blessing of Gods favour to them, and protection over them, in the countries where they shall be scattered.

V.17. I will even gather you] Under the corporal return from the captivity, is also understood the spiritual gathering together of the Church under the Messias.

V.19. I will give them one heart] Chap.36,26,27. Jer.24.7. and 32. 39. and 32.39.

V.21. whose heart walketh] Who cannot turn by any good reason, or sound judgment, from their foolish inclination to idolatry.

V.22. Then did the Cherubims lift up their wings] And the whole heavenly vision of the glory of the Lord.

See the promise of his returning upon the self same hill, Zach.14.4.

V.25. unto them of the Captivity] To those Elders, that were in some kind, witnesses of this rapture and extasie, Chap.8.1. and to the rest of the captivity.

CHAP. XII.

Verse. 1. THe word] This Chapter shadows out the flight, deportation, captivity, and calamity of King Zedekiah, and of the Jews yet remaining in Judea; and avoucheth the truth and speedy execution of it, against their proverbial scoff, and stout scorn to the contrary. This prophesie, and the rest to the 20. Chapter, came to Ezekiel, and were uttered by him, within the space of eleven moneths and few dayes, in part of the sixth and seventh year of Jehojachims captivity, and Zedekiahs reign, and within three years before the siege began, Chap.8.1. and 20.1. and 24.1 and Jer.52.4. compared together.

V.2. have eyes to see] Isa.6.9. and 42.18,19,20. Which is taught, and illuminated in the knowledg of my will, but make no use of this gift; but doth out of meer malice withstand it, and endeavours, and strives as much as it can to put it out; wherefore the sin is so much the more aggravated, Joh.9.41. Ephes. 4.18.

V.3. prepare thee] This is a sign or type, whose interpretation is set down, verf.10,11.

It may be] Whiles there is any hope left, trial shall bee made even this way; to convert them, or else convince them the more.

They be a rebellious house] Because they are not touched with thy plain ordinary preaching, therefore add this expres signe thereunto.

at even in their sight] as the fittest time for stealing away by flight, 2 King.25.4. Jer.39.4. and 52.7.

V.5. Dig] the more lively to expresse their fearfull flight.

V.6. in the twilight] verf.12. By night, Zedekiah fled through the Kings garden, and through the gate, between the two walls; and he went through the fields: the Chaldeans took him at Jericho, brought him to Riblah, condemned him, slew his children before his eyes, and brought him to Babel; but he never saw Babel, being made blind before.

Cover thy face] verf. 12.

Verf.8. And in the morning] after that he had done that verf.7.

V.9. What doest thou] Do they not deride thy doings? Not aske thy meaning in shewing this type and figure? Are they so stupid, not so much as to enquire? The false prophets, it seems, had strangely bewitched them, Chap.13. and Jer.28. 1,2,3,4,10,11. and Chap.29. 8,9,15,21. to the end of the Chapter.

V.10. This burden] a prophetical sign of threatning, and calamity, Isa.13.1. Jerem.38.23.

Verf.11. I am your sign] Esay 7.3,16. and 8.3,4,18. and 20.3.

V.12. and the Prince] ver.4,5,6. to wit, Zedekiah with his Courtiers, shall flee in the night time; he in the habit of a poor traveller; his face covered, either that he might not be known; or by reason of sorrow and grief. See 2 King.25.4. Jer.39.4.

V.13. My net also will I spread] When the King shall think to escape by flying, I will take him in my net; as Chap.17.20. (and 32.3.) by sending after him the Chaldean fouldiers which shall pursue and catch him, 2 King.25.5.

yet shall he not see it] For his eyes were put out at Riblah, 2 King. 25.7.

V.14. Draw out the sword after them] Chap.5.2,12.

V.15. And they shall know] Even experience shall teach them, the school-mistresse of fools; when they shall see me to be the God of truth, in the executing my judgments upon them, which I now threaten against them: that I do not threaten in vain, but say the word, and perform it; as it is, Chap.12. 25,28.

V.16. A few men] Heb. men of number; that is, which may easily be numbred; or few in number; as Gen.34.30.

declare all their abominations] that is, confessing their sins and idolatries, give testimony for Gods judgments against them.

V.18. Eat thy bread with quaking] Another prophetical sign or type: that is in the taking of thy food, seem to be an affrighted and perplexed person, Chap.4.16.

V.19. people of the land] Namely, the common sort of the people of Judah, of the city and land.

They shall eat their bread with carefulnesse] During the distresse of the siege; by the means of which, and after which, all the country shall be wasted, according to my decree.

all that is therein] Heb. the fulnesse thereof.

V.22. the dayes are prolonged] Of Gods judgements, foretold by the Prophets, they shall either be prolonged, or disanulled and brought to nothing. Because they did not immediately see the prophesies accomplished, they contemned them, as they should never be fulfilled; see verf. 27. Chapter 11. 3. Amos 6.3. 2 Per.3.4.

V.23. effect of every vision] that is, the things fore-told, and signified by the visions.

V.24. There shall be no more] I will confound and disanul all false prophesies, made according to every ones fancy, and for to gain favour; by the accomplishment of my true prophesies.

vain visions] Chap.13.23.

V.25. in your dayes] Within six years, all these judgements threatned, were executed and accomplished.

V.27. for many dayes to come] verf.22. that is. It shall not come to passe in our dayes, and therefore we care not for it. Thus the wicked ever abuse Gods patience and benignity.

V.5. Ye have not gone up] Manners of speech taken from siegers, in which the duty of Captains are to repair and fortifie the place, and then stand to defend it, if there be any breach made. The true strength of the Church, is faith, obedience, piety, &c. The defence, is, invocation, intercession, repentance, and zeal to repress the wicked, &c. Psal.106. 23.30. Chap.22.30. The false prophets are here reproved, for failing in both these duties.

V.15. untempered mortar] Whereby is meant whatsoever man of himself setteth forth falsly, under the colour and authority of Gods Word.

The wall is no more] I will presently destroy both the wall and the daubers thereof.

V.17. Against the daughters] Women that were false prophetesses; that look so much upon them contrary to the modesty of their sex, and to the truth of God. Indeed God raised up Miriam, Exod.15. Debora, Judg.4.5. Hulda, 2 King.22. 2 Chron.34. Anab, Luk.2.36. Philip's daughters, Act.21.9. and the Devil would never be behind to raise up his like Instruments; as these here; as Noadiah in the dayes of Nehemiah, Neh.6.14. V.18. That sow pillowes] They did use these signes and ceremonies after the manner of the Prophets: and it should seem that the pillowes were a sign of peace and ease for the one, and the vailes, of mourning and calamity for the other; according to the custome of covering their faces in like cases, 2 Sam.15.30. and 19.4. Esth 6.12. and 7.8. Job.9.24. And to this, that which is spoken, ver.19. and 22. seemes to have relation.

slay the soules] Denouncing death and unhappy chances to good men, and raising perfecution against them among the people; and contrariwise promising life and prosperity to wicked men, and so some way defending them against the Justice of them.

V.20. Behold, I am against your pillowes] I will quickly cause you and your false Ceremonies to perish.

To make them fly] Or, into gardens, or, groves, for spiritual and corporal idolatries.

V.22. heart of the righteous sad] By threatning them that were godly, and upholding the wicked.

by promising him life] Or, that I should save his life. Heb. by quickening him.

V.23. See no more vanity] I will root you out, that you may no more seduce my people, with your deceits, Chap.12.24.

CHAP. XIV.

Vers.1. THen came] This Chapter shewes the Idolatry and impiety of the Jews; and denounceth Gods judgments against them and their false prophets; and that by an irrevocable decree.

came] To enquire of the Lord, ver.7. Chap.20.1.

Certain of the elders of Israel] Namely, of the heads of the people that were in Babylon.

sate before me] In Babylon. Therefore these seem to be elders that were already captives in Babylon. Indeed some learned men take these to be certain elders, not yet in captivity, but sent as ambassadours from King Zedekiah to Nebucadnezzar, or prime men in the ambassadours company: And this the rather, because the matter and contents of this Chapter seem best to agree to the Jews in Jury, under the reign of Zedekiah, not yet captivated. But that ambassadge being in the fourth year of Zedekiah; and this being two years after, as appears by Jer.28.1. and 29.3. and 51.49. and Ezek.8.1. and 20.1. compared together, makes that opinion the less probable. However this their gesture and demeanour shewes the hypocrisie of the idolaters, who will dissemble to hear the Prophets of God, though in their hearts they follow nothing less then their admonitions, and also how by one means or other, God doth discover them.

V.3. Idols] The word signifies dung: such are idols, base things, or dunghil deities: and as dung offends a mans eyes and nose, so do idols offend God; yet Idolaters will make their hearts Temples for them.

and put the stumbling block] They are not onely Idolaters in heart, but also worship their filthy Idols openly; seeking out objects and baites fitting to nourish and kindle that wicked inclination to Idolatry, and catching occasion to fulfill it. See Zeph.1.3. or they themselves by their sins will be the causers of their own ruine, Chap.18.30.

Should I be enquired of at all by them?] Being such, how dare they once appeare before me, to enquire counsel of me? is it not a mere hypocrisie and scoff in them, to come to me to ask for help and counsel, in their distresse, seeing their hearts are separate from me, and they being the onely causers of the evils which they suffer? Should I answer them when they seek me?

V.4. Prophet] To enquire of things which the Lord hath appointed to come to pass.

according to the multitude of his idols] Not answering him to what he asketh; but to speak onely as his abomination hath deserved: his Idols shall not shut up or close my mouth, but they shall rather open it against his Idolatries, ver.5. and to denounce the sentence of punishment against him for it.

V.5. That I may take] That is, my answers shall be like so many snares, or stings, to their consciences convinced by my Word, will they, nill they; and thereby will I keep them, as it were, shut up in expectation and fear of my unavoidable judgments: or, I will give them over to the delusion of their own hearts, as their idols lead them, 2 Thess.2.11,12.

V.7. Stranger that sojourneth] Strangers and sojourners not to be tolerated in their idolatry, Exod.20.10.

separateth himself] Like unto a harlot that separateth her self from her husband. See Hos.4.14,10. and 9,10.

by my self] Not according to his design that asketh the question, nor meerly and solely according to the Prophets pleasure: but I will take the matter upon me my self, and I will answer according to my most holy truth and justice; as in the verse following.

V.8. Set my face] Chap.15.7. Lev.17,10.

a sign and a proverb] Deut.28.37. Chap.5.15. namely, for a spectacle of my judgments, of whom every body shall speak.

Cut him off] Some for example.

ye shall know] See Chap.12.15.

V.9. If the Prophet be deceived] God, for mans ingratitude, raiseth up false prophets, to seduce them that delight in lyes, rather then in the truth of God; and thus without sin, in justice he punisheth sin by sin, 1 King.22.20,22. and destroyeth as well those Prophets, as that people, ver.10. See Iob 12,16. Ier.4.10.

when he hath spoken a thing] Or, word, to please them; placentia.

I the Lord have deceived] 1 King.22, ver.23. 2 Thess.2.11,12. Rom.1.24. He deceives him by suffering him to be deceived by their rewards; as Iudges fometimes are by bribes; and birds, and fishes by baites; by withdrawing also his Spirit, and restraining grace from him; and by ordering wisely and justly such occasions, and occurrences as work upon his corruption.

I will stretch forth mine hand] Though he doth but what I by my secret providence, have suffered him to do, yet will I punish him, because he sinneth against my law, which is the rule of humane actions.

V.10. And they shall bear] Both the false prophet whom God makes use of in seducing of others; and the seduced; though they would plead for themselves, and lay the fault upon their seducer; yet God will punish both.

V.11. Israel may go no more astray] Thus Gods judgments against the wicked, are admonitions to the godly to cleave unto the Lord; and not to defile themselves with the like abomination.

V.13. Land sinneth] The meaning is, when I have once resolved to punish a land, I will not forbear to do it for any manner of intercession: all intercession were but lost labour, the final decree being once past, Ier.7.16. and 11.14. and 14.11.

Then will I stretch] Or, and I stretch.

and will break] Or, and break.

V.14. Though these three men] A case supposed; as Jer.5.1. and 15.1. to shew, his sentence here to be irrevocable, his decree unasterable (as those of the Medes and Persians; himself inflexible, inexorable.

Noah, Daniel, and Job] Ier.15.1. Moses and Samuel are named in the like case, Daniel a man here of this singular note and eminency, though living now among them in the Captivity, and being carryed away young, about 14. years at the most before this time, 2 King.24.1. their own soules] Neither Sons nor Daughters, ver.16,18,20.

by their righteousnesse] Though in other cases, the effectual fervent prayer of one righteous man availeth much, Jam.5.16. And the sentence against Sodom was revocable, if ten righteous persons could have been found in it, Gen.18.32. and Jerusalem it self, in some part of Josias time, would have been spared and pardoned, if a just man could have been found in it, Jer.5.1. But here now the decree was past, an end was come, Chap.7.2.3,4,5,6,7,10. However no place here for the prayers of the dead: nor for the pretended works of supererogation, which the Papists imagine: The meaning in this place is, that a very few (which he calleth a remnant, ver.22.) should escape these plagues, whom God hath sanctified and made righteous: So that this righteousnes is a sign that they are the Church of God, whom he would preserve for his own sake.

V.19. In blood] The Pestilence by corruption of the blood, is deaths bloudy and speedy executioner.

V.21. How much more] That is, I do alleadge all these examples of particular scourges, to conclude, that I shall much less be entreated, when I shall resolve to joyn them all together, for a deluge of evils, which are brought to the height.

comforted concerning the evil] When ye shall know their grievous sins, you will have cause to acknowledge Gods justice, and strengthen your selves against the scandal of this destruction, and give glory to God; and likewise be comforted in your Captivity, knowing the far greater evils and miseries which they in Jerusalem and Judea had suffered and endured.

V.23. when ye shall see their ways, and their doings] The just rewards of their evil works; as the words following do shew.

CHAP. XV.

Vers.1. AND the word] This short Chapter again sets forth Gods heavy judgment, against Hierusalem and the land of Judea; in a type, and the exposition of it.

V.2. what is the Vine-tree more] As if he should say, What is there in the Jewes at Hierusalem, and in the land of Judea: yet under the reign of King Zedekiah, why they should so vaunt, and feoffe up themselves? or why I should so spare them?

V.3. Shall wood] The wood of the Vine, which is the thing here brought in comparison, is of less use then other wood; not good to make so much as a pin of it; nor for any other use, but fit for the fire.

V.4. It is meet for any work?] Much less is it meet when it is half burnt: so it is expounded in the next verse, Joh.15.6.

V.6. As the Vine-tree] The explication of the former Type.

V.7. And I will set my face] See Chap.14.8. Levit.17,10.

and another fire] They shall go out of one fiery judgment into another: as 1 King.19.17. Amos 5.19. Jer.48.43,44.

V.8. committed a trespass] Heb. trespassed a trespasse, Chap.14.13.

CHAP. XVI.

Vers.1. AGain] In this Chapter the Prophet sets down the history of Gods dealing with the Church of the Jewes from first to last, under a continued allegory of a wretched maid, miserable in her birth and infancy, unpitied and cast away; till God took care of her life and preservation, caused her to grow up to comelinesse and beauty, and by Covenant took her unto himself. After which he bestowed all manner of rich and precious blessings upon her; till she became renowned through his comelinesse which he had put upon her. But she then shamefully abused all his blessings, and played the whore in all abominable manner: whereupon he pours out his wrath upon her even by her idolatrous Lovers: and recounting her sinnes above Samarin's, and Sodom's, he awardeth her a condigne punishment, and yet addeth, in the end of all, Evangelical promises of repentance, grace and mercy in after times.

V.2. Cause Jerusalem to know] Namely, the remnant of the Jews which are in Jerusalem, which represent the whole body of the Nation and State, as being the seat of the Church and head of the Kingdom.

V.3. Thy birth] Heb. cutting out; or, habitation. Though you be of Abraham's race, yet you are so degenerate, that you deserve rather to be called Amorites and Hittites which were two accursed Nations, ver.45. Gen.16.3,4,35. and 27.46. See Isa.1.10. Joh.8.33,37,40,44. Rom.2.28. and 9.7,8.

V.4. Thy nativity in the day thou wast born] Hos.2.3. An allegory, continued in all this Chapter; wherein the peoples estate, both spiritual and temporal, is represented by a wretched maid; after fostered, married, exalted, and enriched through mere grace. If their Nativity be referred to the time when it came to some form and perfection of a Nation; and was brought from Egypt, the multitude of Israel, then forsook not the idols of Egypt, Ezek.20.8. But more likely it is to be referred to the calling of Abram their father out of Ur of the Chaldees, where, he likely, and his ancestors sure, were Idolaters, Josh.24.2,14,15.

thy navel was not cut] Ternstaken from that which useth to be done to little children newly born, to them, that the people had no humane help or assistance, but were utterly forsaken in their misery.

thou was not salted at all] Salt being used about these little creatures, to bathe and rub them, to dry up, cleanse and strengthen the body of the child.

V.6. Polluted in thine own blood] Heb. or, troden under foot. Being thus in the filthiness, and forsaken of all men, I took thee, and gave thee life; whereby is meant, that before God wash his Church, and give it life, there is nothing but filthiness and death.

yea I said] God often repeated his promise to Abraham, Gen.12. and 13. and 15. and 17. and 18. and 22. Chapters.

V.7. I have caused thee to multiply] Heb. Made thee a million.

To multiply] According to my promise, Gen.12.2. and 13.16. and 15.5. and 17.2,4. and 22.17. See the accomplishment of it, Exod.1.7. Deut.1.10.

excellent ornaments] Heb. ornament of ornaments.

thy breasts are fashioned] He continueth the same figure of a maid, that is now come to age to have a husband: to signifie the time appointed by God to set his people at liberty, and honour them with the title of his Church, and to make his covenant with them in Horeb, Cant.8.8. Hos.2.15.

naked and bare] Without ornament, honour, or defence; as ver.4,5,6. yea even in Egypt thou wast in misery and Captivity.

V.8. was the time of love] For me to marry thee: That time fore-told, Gen.15.13. yet the true cause of this love is set down, Deut.7.7,8.

I spread my skirt over thee] Took thee to wife, Ruth.3.9. Gen.20.16. This seemes to be an ancient ceremony, wherein the husband, in sign of the right and property which he obtained in his wife, and for a pledge of his duty of protection and love, did when he married her, cover her with the skirt of his garment. Figuring here the righteousness, innocency, and merit of Christ, which hideth all the blemishes of his Church from his sight, and protects her; and hereby hewes himself to be her head, Lord, and husband: which hath at all times been the foundation and sum of the Covenant of Grace.

and covered thy nakednesse] These words, as bloud, pollution, nakednesse, and filthiness, are oft-times repeated to beat down their pride, and to cause them to consider what they were before God received them to mercy, favoured them, and covered their shame.

I sware unto thee] I made a solemn Covenant with thee, that I would take thee to be my people, Exod.19. and 24 Chapters. Jer.2.2.

V.9. Then washed I thee with water] Corporally, I took away from thee all signes and tokens of misery, and of thy former oppression; and inriched thee with my gifts and benefits: and spiritually, I purged thee from thy sins, which are the uncleanness of thy soul, in which man is born; and induced thee with the graces of my Spirit, signified by the anointing.

bloud] Heb. bloods.

V.10. Badgers skin] Which were some way neatly dressed for to make handsome shooes.

V.11. I decked] I furnished thee with all things necessary, and delightful; with grace, and glory.

V.12. Thy forehead] Heb. thy nose. See touching this kind of ornament, Gen.24.47. Isa.3.21.

Crown upon thine head] Hereby he sheweth how he saved his Church, enriched it, and gave it power and dominion to reign.

V.13. Prosper into a Kingdome] That is, didst grow up so high, that thou becamest a great and glorious Kingdome.

V.14. Thy renown] 2 Sam.8.13. 1 King.4.31.

Comelinesse which I put upon thee] He declareth wherein the

...ry at Jerusalem flood, to wit, in that the Lord gave them of ...bundancy and excellency.

V. 15. But thou didst trust] Here comes in her lewdnesse; Thou ...becom pe presumptuous and bold, by reason of the gifts received ...from me, and wouldst be no longer subject to me, nor contain thy ...selfe within the Chastity of my service and obedience, but didst ...chuse to live a loose life.

...exedst the harlot] In the times of the Judges and Kings; but ...fpecially for these three hundred and ninty years, mentioned Chap.4.5. See Chap.22. Isa.57.8. Jer.2.20, and 3.2,6,20. Thou ...hast joyned thy self also by unlawful covenants, and by imitation ...of Idolatry to prophane people, which thou hast drawn to thee by the greatnesse of thy State, and the prehemencency which thou hadst Above other Nations.

...ourredst out] Thou hast indifferently, and impudently prostituted thy self. See Chap.16 36. Jer.3.13.

hit it was] He might satisfie his lust as he would, for thou gavest him free liberty to do it.

V. 16. High places] Namely, the Altars, Chappels, and Temples of thine Idols, garnished with ornaments and rich tapestry, which I had bestowed upon thee for thine own use, Hos.2.8.

V. 17. of men] Heb. of a male. Namely of idols, which were as adulterers to the Idolatrous fouls; though there were many female Idols also.

V. 18. Coveredst them] Thus Idols cloathed, served, and worshipped.

V. 19. A sweet savour] Heb. a savour of rest: burning those offerings, as it were, to please and appease the Idols; as God had appointed they should do to him.

Thus it was] All these things were notoriously known and verified; and they are not to be denied, nor excused.

V. 20. whom thou] Who at their birth were mine, by virtue of my Covenant, whereby the whole body of the Nation was a Wife to me, and the particular persons as Children, wherefore thou shouldest have conferred them to me.

And these hast thou sacrificed] Chap.20.26. 2 King.16.3. and 17.17. and 21.6. Psal.106.37. Isa.57.5.

to be devoured] Heb. to devour: meaning by fire, read Lev.18, 21. 2 King 3.27. and 23.10. Jer.7.31.

V. 22. in all thine abominations] Thine unbridled Idolatry hath been accompanied with an infamous ingratitude, and presumptuous confidence, that thou couldest no more fall into thy former misery.

V. 24. Thou hast also] Like to an unchaste woman, who after she hath used dishonestly privately with some particular men, doth also prostitute her self publikely in a brothel-house; whereby is meant Idolatry which is commonly practised, and allowed by publike authority. See Esay 3.9.

...ominine part] Or, brothel-house.

...ad built unto thee an high place] Isa.57.5,7. Jer.2.20,23. and 3.2,6. and 13.27.

V. 25. Thou hast built] Prepared all accommodations for thy notorious and raging Idolatry.

V. 26. with the Egyptians] He noteth the great impiety with this people, who first falling from God, to seek help from strange Nations, (Esay 30. and 31. 2 King.14. & 25.) did also at length imbrace their Idolatry, thinking thereby to make their amity more strong. See Chap.5.10, 14. and 23.19.

great of flesh] A figurative term taken from the shameless desires of lascivious unchaste women, Chap.23.20. to signifie that the power and wealth of Egypt did intice the people to desire to adhere, and to be linked unto them.

V. 27. have diminished thine ordinary food] I have weakened thy estate, and taken away the abundance of my blessings from thee.

the daughters of the Philistines] 2 Chron.28.18.

...re ashamed] They detest and abhor thine unconstant and wavering Idolatry, they holding themselves constant to their ancient Idolatry, which was first established. See Jer.2.10,11,33.

V. 28. with the Assyrians] Chap. 13. 12. 2 King. 16. 7, 10. 2 Chron.28.23. Jer.2.18,36.

V. 29. of Canaan unto Chaldea] Chap.23. 14,15,16, 17. ever ...and even since that time, 2 King.20.12. Esay 39.

V. 30. weak is thine heart] Weakened and melted in spiritual lust; which worketh the same effect in the soules, as bodily lust doth in the bodies; extinguishing all manner of true vertue in them, and effeminating them to a base and sensual esteem of God and his service, and weakening the true worship of him in Spirit and Truth.

an imperious whorish woman] That is to say, licentious, unbridled, and uncorrigible; that taketh liberty to do what she pleaseth.

V. 31. Thou formest thine] As much as to say, thou hast not been sought after, nor solicited, nor rewarded, nor payed; but thou ...thy self hast solicited and paid thine adulteresses, which in a woman, is the extream of impudency. See 2 King.16.7,8,10. 2 Chron.28. ...,22,23. Isa.30.6. Hos.8.9.

V. 34. And in that thou givest] No body hath desired nor solicited thee. So is the sin of the people aggravated, who without any bodies inducement of their own proper motion, were run into Idolatry.

V. 35. O harlot hear] The denunciation of judgment, and condigne punishment upon her.

V. 36. Thy filthinesse] Heb. Thy poyson, Jer. 2. 23, 24. The meaning is, Thou hast sinned without shame, and I will punish thee with infamy and disgrace, even by them with whom thou hast sinned.

V. 37. All thy Lovers] The Babylonians, and other Nations in their armies, whom thou tookest to be thy Lovers, they shall come and destroy thee, Chap.23.9,22,23,24, 28.

and all them] Assyrians, Egyptians, &c.

hated] Chap.23.28.

and will discover] Chap. 23. 29. Jer. 13. 22, 26. Lam. 1. 8, Hos.2.10.

V. 38. as, &c.] Heb. with judgements of.

break wedlock] I will judge thee to death as adulteresse, Lev. 20. 10. Deut. 22. 22. and murtherers, Gen. 9. 6. Exod. 21. 12. deserve.

shed blood] That do murther the Children which they do bring forth, ver.36.

V. 39. thine eminent place] Namely, The City Jerusalem it self, or the whole State where Idolatry had been publickly practised, and without controll, ver.24,31.

Thy fair jewels] Heb. instruments of thine ornaments] ver.17,&c.

V.40. stone thee] He hath relation to the punishment appointed for adulteresses by the Law, Deut.22.24.

V. 41. they shall burn] 2 King.25.9. 2 Chron.36.19. Jer.52.13. in the sight of many women] Namely, of many kind of people, and Nations, whereof the Chaldean Army shall be composed; of all the Nations round about, that thou shalt be an example, or rather a mocking stock unto them, Psal.137.7. Lam.1.7,21. Ezek. 25.3,6,8. and 26.2.

V. 42. my jealousie] When it is fully satisfied with revenge upon thee.

V. 43. Thou hast not remembred] ver.22. thy first condition, and my first dealing with thee, ver.4, &c.

fretted me] Thus God takes on for Idolatry.

V. 44. Proverb] Taunting Proverb.

so is her daughter] As were the Cananites, and the Hittites, (who were taxed with serving of devils, and sacrificing their children to them, Levit.18.21,24. Deut.18.9,10.) and others your predecessors; so are you their successors, ye do not degenerate from them.

V. 45. thy mothers daughter] She an Hittite, in the end of this verse.

her husband] Namely, God the Creator of all, and Law-giver to all, whose knowledge and service those Nations utterly forsook, to worship devils; and so did she.

thy sisters] that is, of Samaria and Sodom. Thou, and Samaria, (that is, the ten Tribes) and Sodom, are like one another in sinning, as if ye were one and the self-same Mothers daughters, Deut.32.32. Isa.1.10. Jer.3.8.

your mother was an Hittite] verf. 3.

V. 46. Thine elder sister] Having more Tribes, and a larger Countrey.

at thy left hand] That is Northward; for the Hebrews call the fore-part the East, and the hinder part the West, the left side the North, and the right side the South: supposing the posture of a man with his face toward the East, as hath been said, Exod.26.18. Southward, or on the right hand.

thy younger sister] Heb. lesser then thou.

at thy right hand] Southward, Exod.26.18.

V. 47. their abominations] Thou hast not been content with imitating and equalling them, but hast gone beyond them; as is further avowed in the verses following.

as if that were a very little thing] Or, that was loathed as a small thing.

V. 48. As I live] God confirms it by an oath.

Sodom thy sister] Mat.10.15. and 11.24.

hath not done] Sodom wanted all spiritual means of grace, Matth.11.23.

V. 49. Pride] Sodome sins here recorded are only against the second Table. Out of that plenty, Gen.13.10. and after that Abram had refused them from their enemies, Gen.14. she had gotten none but temporal excellencies from me, and not the spiritual ones of my Word and Covenant, as thou hadst: and besides, her greatest sin was but against the second Table, and not against the first, as thine is in violating my service.

strengthen the hand] See their sins against the two Angels, and Lot, Gen.19.

V. 50. before me] Gen.13.13.

I took them away] Both Sodome, and Samaria, Gen.1.24. 2 King. 17.

as I saw] Or, after I had seen; to wit, their abominations, Gen.18.21.

V. 51. Neither hath Samaria] Which worshipped the Calves in Dan and Bethel.

half of thy sins] Because thou receivedst more favours as my hands, the true Priesthood being in Judah, and hast been longer suffered, exhorted, and corrected; and hast seen my judgments upon the other: therefore thy ingratitude rebellion, and obstinacy, cannot be equallized, Chap.23.11. Jer.3.6,7,8.

hast justified thy sisters] Made their sins to seem but little ones, and excuseable, by the exceese of thine; and them innocent in comparison of thee, Jer.3.11.

V. 52. judged thy sisters] Condemned them without any pity as wicked, and not deserving any mercy.

bear thine own shame] Mat.10.15. and 11.24. Lam.4.6.

V. 53. when I shall bring] That is, as I will never re-establish those Cities and Nations into their former estate; so the Jewish Nation, whatsoever their false prophets say, yet shall never be perfectly restored after the ruine which shall come upon them by the Chaldeans; in respect of the glory of the Temple, and the State of the Kingdom, and other advantages. But as concerning the spiritual good, the people had always a remainder of grace, and hope of restoration to salvation, verf.60,&c. which the other Nations had not, Isa.1.9.

the captivity] This word is taken for all kinds of extream misery, Job.42.10.

the captivity of thy captives] Namely, free them from servitude, and other continued and succesfive Calamities.

V. 54. A Comfort] Chap.14.22. A common Kind of speech; as if those others Nations had any way been eased, by seeing the Jews as much, or more punished then they were, Lam.4.6.

V. 55. Then thou] As verf.53.

V. 56. mentioned] Heb. for a report, or, hearing.

by thy mouth] Thou wouldest not call her punishment to mind, when thou wast aloft, to learn by her example to fear my judgments.

pride] Heb. prides, or, excellencies.

V. 57. discovered] Till thou was brought under by the Syrians and Philistines, 2 Chron.28 18,19. Or thus, thou wast not convinced in thy conscience, of thy obstinacy and wickednesse, when thy sister Samaria was reproachfully handled by the Syrians and Philistines, which should have been a lesson unto thee.

Syria] Heb. Aram.

about her] Which joyned with the Syrians, or compassed about Jerusalem.

despise thee] Would have spoiled thee, but for my preserving of thee, Esay 7. and 8. Chapters.

V. 59. the oath] Joyned with an execration, or curse, in case of failing. By which oath thou hadst bound thy self to me, as a people to their King, and a wife to her husband; as verf.8.

V. 60. Nevertheless I will remember my Covenant] I will pity thee, and so stand to my Covenant of Mercy and Love; though thou hast deferved the contrary, Gen.8.1. and 9.15,16. Exod.6.5.

I will establish] Jer.31.31,32. Hos.2.19.

an everlasting Covenant] Namely, a spiritual Covenant, made with the true Israel in spirit.

V.61. Then thou shalt remember] Chap. 20.43. thou shalt be touched with true compunction and repentance.

when thou shalt receive] Namely, when I shall convert both Israel, and the Gentiles, and make them members of the Church, (and perform that great promise, Gen.9.27.) whose body was represented by the old Jewish Nation, which was also first imployed in the preaching of the Gospel.

elder and thy younger] Samaria, Sodome; Jew, and Gentile.

for daughters] Gal.4.26. See Esay 54. and 55. Chapters.

but not by thy Covenant] Not by virtue of the old, external, and outward Covenant, in which the natural Jews had onely part, or such as joyned themselves to their Religion and Ceremonies; but by vertue of the new, spiritual, and eternal one, grounded upon the Messias, and upon his righteousnesse, redemption and Spirit, which is made with the whole Israel, according to saith, Jer. 31. 31, 32, 33, 34. 2 Cor.3.3. Gal.4.24,25. Heb.8.8.

V.63. That thou mayst remember] These things are here written and set down, to the end, that after thy re-establishment, especially in the time of the Gospel, thou mayst give God all the glory for thy deliverance, by a sincere acknowledgment and confession of thy sins, approving of, and adoring in silence those judgments, which had been formerly inflicted upon thee, Job. 5. 16. Rom. 3. 19.

CHAP. XVII.

Verf. 1. AND the word of the Lord] The Prophet under the parable of two Eagles and a Vine, sets forth the taking of Jeconiah from the Kingdome, and the placing of Zedekiah in his room, by the King of Babylon: Zedekiah's rebellion by relying upon the King of Egypt: Gods severe threatning of him, and his adherents for the same. And lastly, concludes with Evangelical promises of Christ, and of the largenesse and benefits of his Kingdome.

V. 2. Put forth a riddle] Or, parable; or a figurative speech, representing one thing by another, with a convenient correspondency.

the house of Israel] Principally is here meant the Kingdome of Judah.

V. 3. A great Eagle] That is, Nebucadnezzar, Jer 48.40. and 49.22. who hath great power, riches, and many Countries under him, shall come to Jerusalem, and take away Jeconiah the King, as ver.12.

divers Colours] Heb. embroidering. Hereby is meant Nebuchadnezzars Empire over many Nations of divers customes, and languages; or his Army composed of several sorts of people.

unto Lebanon] To Judea, which is oftentimes likened to a wood of excellent trees.

highest branch] Namely, Jehojachin, led into captivity, 2 King. 24.12.

V. 4. He cropt off] Hereby is signified the captivity of the chief of the Kingdome, led away with Jehojachin, ver.12.

merchants] Or, traffick. He meaneth Babylon, famous for merchandise and traffick.

V. 5. of the seed] Seed-Royal; namely, Zedekiah, the uncle of Jeconiah, who was of the blood-Royal. See Annotations upon verf. 13.

planted it in a fruitful field] Heb. put it in a field of seed; to wit, in the Kingdome of Judea, not yet made desolate, where Zedekiah was made King instead of Jeconiah, 2 King.24.17. Jer.37.1. and might have maintained himself, and grown prosperously.

and set it as a willow-tree] Or, with most curious circumspection, that is, with all cautions and conditions, oath and pledges, to make firm the Covenant between him, that is, Nebuchadnezzar, and Zedekiah. See ver.13,14.

V. 6. And it grew] Zedekiah prospered while he was faithful to the Chaldeans.

of low stature] signifying that he was but a Vassal, not Soveraign, nor absolute; that he might not have power to rebel against Babylon; as ver.14.

whose branches] Being a dependant, and subject to Nebuchadnezzar.

the roots] That is, he stayed in his own countrey, and was not translated into any other place; and the State remained in its ancient form and seat: onely the Kings power was diminished, and subjected to the King of Babylon.

brought forth branches] Zedekiah begat and brought up Children, Jer.52.10.

V. 7. another great Eagle] Namely, the King of Egypt, who was also a mighty King, with whom Zedekiah joyned himself against Nebuchadnezzar, verf.15,17. 2 King.24.20. Jer.52.3.

This Vine] King Zedekiah.

her roots] By secret embassies, ver.15.

water it] That is, uphold and relieve him with his forces, against the Chaldeans. See Jer.37.7.

the furrowes] He alludeth to the Channels and pipes wherewith the Egyptians conveyed the waters of Nilus to their Land. See Deut.11.10.

V. 8. It was planted] There was no cause for Zedekiah to rebel, and fly to Egypt for succour; for he prospered well under the Babylonian; as ver.6. Or, though it were very likely that Zedekiah and Judah, by this league with Egypt, might have maintained and bettered himself, and rid himself from subjection to Nebuchadnezzar; thinking to be moyftened, by the waters of Nilus; (thence to get Chariots and horses to keep them from Babylon) yet in vain did they resist: one fet up a Conquerour for their sins, when they daily more and more provoked God against them.

field] Heb. field.

V. 9. Shall he not pull] Shall not Nebuchadnezzar the great Eagle destroy it? ver.3.

without great power] He shall not need a great Army to subdue King Zedekiah, for God will deliver him into his hand for violating his oath. The King Nebuchadnezzar himself was not there with all his Army; but his Princes took Jerusalem and brought Zedekiah to the King to Riblah, Jer.37.7,8,9,10. and 52.7,8,9.

V. 10. East-wind] East wind is hurtful to vines, Jonah 4.8. By this tempestuous and scorching wind, is meant Gods Judgments executed by the means of the Chaldeans, Chap. 19. 12. Hos.13.15.

furrowes] Notwithstanding Egypts assistance and relief.

V.12. The King thereof] That is, Jehojachin, ver.3,5. 2 King. 24,12,15. who was called Jeconiah, 1 Chr.3.16. and Coniah, Jer.22.24. and 37.1.

V.13. of the Kings seed] To wit, Mattaniah, whose name was changed to Zedekiah, 2 King.24.17. who was son to King Josiah,

1 Chron.3.15. yet he is called son to Jeconiah, 1 Chron.3.16. not by nature, for he was uncle; but son, by succession in the Kingdome: also Zedekiah is called Jeconiahs brother, 2 Chron. 36. 10. by general term of kindred.

taken an oath of him] Heb.brought him to an oath, ver.16. 2 Chr. 36.13. for his subjection and obedience.

the mighty of the Land] That is, he hath carried them away with him, to weaken the Kingdome, and for to have hostages by him.

V. 14. But that by keeping of his Covenant, it might stand] Heb. to keep his Covenant, to stand to it.

V. 16. But he rebelled] 2 King.24.20.

horses] Isa.31.1,3.

V. 16. in the midst of Babylon he shall dye] Jer. 32. 5. and 34. 3. Chap.12.13.

V. 17. Make for him] He shall do Zedekiah no good, who was straitly besieged by Nebucadnezzar, Jer.37.5,7,8.

by casting up mounts] Chap.4.2. Jer.52.4.

V.18. He had given his hand] Because he took the name of God in vain, and brake his oath, which he had confirmed by giving his hand, therefore the Prophet declareth, that God would not suffer such perjury and infidelity to escape punishment. See Jer.50. 15. Job. 17.3.

V. 19. Mine oath] Namely, the punishment for breaking the oath he had made in my name. God calls it his oath, though made to an Heathen King. See Josh.9.19. 2 Sam.21.1.

V. 20. I will spread my net upon him] Chap.12.13. and 32.3.

V. 21. and all his fugitives] Chap.12.14. which fled with him, Jer.39.4.

They that remain] As we see in Gedaliah, Johanan, and those that fled into Egypt, Jer.41,42,43,44. Chapters.

V. 22. I will also take] Promises of restoring and enlarging of the Church in Christ. This begun to be put in execution in Zerubbabel, who was of the blood-Royal, and brought the people out of Babylon; but the perfect accomplishment is in Christ, the everlasting King, and Son of David, Isa.11.1.

a tender one] Hereby are meant Christs weak beginnings in his humane nature, who was descended from the ancient stock of the Kings of Judah.

And will plant it upon a high mountain] That is, God would set this King upon his holy hill of Sion, Psal.2.6. and over his Church.

V. 23. of the height of Israel] Namely, in my Church which spiritually is higher then any worldly height, Chap.20.40. Isa.2. 2,3. Mic.4.1.

and under it] The Israelites, and all the Tribes, and spiritually the Elect of all Countries, both Jewes and Gentiles, shall come under the Messias, to shelter themselves from all evils, Isa. 66.23.

V. 24. All the trees] All the great ones of the world shall know, that I have plucked down the proud enemies; and set up my Church, which was low and contemned. So it came to passe by Gods ordering, that Babylon was overthrown by Cyrus; and the spiritual Kingdome of the Devil by Christ; that the Jewish people were returned from Captivity, and the Elect from their spirituall bondage into the liberty of the Sons of God.

CHAP. XVIII.

Vers. 1. AND the word] The Prophet sharply reproves, and strongly refutes, a wicked proverb used in Israel, impeaching the justice of God, in his judgments: and seriously calls them to repentance; with assurance of life and safety thereupon.

V. 2. The fathers have eaten] That is, have sinned, and the Children have suffered for it; as the sins of Manasseh are remembred upon Judah; and the sins of Jeroboam upon the ten Tribes. See Lam.5.7. See more, Jer.31.29.

V. 3. any more] Since you make my patience an argument whereupon to take my judgments, I will hereafter bring them presently upon that him soeuer; and lay open your iniquities, like unto the iniquities of your fore-fathers; for which I have heretofore punished them.

V. 4. All soules are mine] I am equally God, and Judge of all, not accepting of persons; and if I do delay my generall punishments, it is out of my superabundant goodnesse; and if the Children do bear the iniquities of their fathers, it is to terrifie the fathers the more from sinning; and yet done according to justice: The children imitating their fathers in sinning, and having sufficient and abundant cause in themselves for the punishment; also in no wise should they dye. But seeing such ill use is made of my delayings, and putting off my judgments, as I have formerly done in your fathers times, I shall hereafter lesse use it, and make speedy demonstration of my justice, by my deeds; to cleer it the more from these wicked aspersions.

V. 5. That which is lawfull and right] Heb. Judgement and Justice.

V. 6. hath not eaten] Namely, of the idols sacrifices, whose service was done upon hils and mountains, Ezek.22.9. See Deut.32.38. Psal.16.4. and 106.28. 1 Cor.8.1,4,7,10,13. and 10.19,20,21.

lift up his eyes] To pray to them, or make worship to them, Psal. 121.1,2. but doth detest them rather.

he shall surely dye] He sheweth how the son is punished for his fathers fault; that is, if he be wicked as his fathers was, and doth not repent, he shall be punished as his fathers was; or else not.

his blood] Or, his bloods. He shall suffer capital punishment for his own sin, and he shall be the cause of his own death, Lev.20. 9. Act.28.6.

V. 16. Hath not with-holden the pledge] Heb. hath not pledged the pledge, or, taken to pledge.

V. 17. Hath taken off] That is, keeps himself from wronging or oppressing, though he might have some reason to do it.

V. 19. Yet say ye, why? doth not the son] He sheweth that those profane men contending with the Prophets did seek still to urge and presse one that proverb; and haply to catch them, and make them confesse, that either Gods judgement were not just; in punishing the child for the fathers sins, or at least that the Prophets limitations and expositions, were contrary to Gods law, Exod.20.5. Deut.5.9. Thus the wicked perish in their blasphemies, and will not be taught by it from them.

inquity of the son] God again answers his just dealing in his judgements against their blasphemy, as if he should say, The meaning of my law is, that I will punish the sins of the fathers upon their children, in case that they follow their fathers examples, which I do often suffer to fall out so, through my secret judgement; and if through my special grace I do sanctifie them, so that they do not follow their fathers steps, they shall also be exempted from their fathers punishment.

V. 20. The son shall not bear] Deut.24.16. 2 King.14.16. 2 Chr. 25.4. Jer.31.29. Namely, the innocent son which is by my spirit purged from his fathers wickednesse: yet this is no generall rule, in respect of the body and bodily good, in which God hath, and may, visit and chastise the child for his fathers sins, by temporal chastisement. But this must be principally be understood of the everlasting punishment of soul and body.

the righteousnesse] That is, every one shall receive either a reward for his good works, or punishment for his evil works.

V. 22. He shall live] He shall be delivered from the plagues & punishments of the wicked, and shall attain to everlasting life; to which the true way and direction, is the pure conversion of a sinner, and perseverance.

V. 23. Have I any pleasure at all] Ver. 32. Chap. 33.11. He speaketh this to commend Gods mercy to poor sinners; who rather is ready to pardon, then to punish, as his long suffering declareth.

V. 24. But when the righteous] Chap.3.20. and 33. 12,13.

are not your wayes unequal] All the unjustice is in you who follow your fathers wayes, and not in me: my law agreeth well with this doctrine, but your understanding is perverted.

V.26. when a righteous man] This is the rule of my soveraign justice, that the death of every one shall be the punishment of his own proper sin: as the order of my mercy is, to give a sinner hope that he shall be restored by repentance. Both the one and the other is well enough known unto you, but that in this contestation, you fight against your own consciences.

V.29. Yet saith] The wicked, desperate sinners, will never make an end of cavelling and sinning.

V. 30. Every one according to his wayes] And not for the sins of their fathers, as you impute it to me.

V.32. I have no pleasure in] Chap.33.11. 2 Pet.3.9. to the great comfort of poor penitent sinners.

CHAP. XIX.

Vers.1. MOreover] This Chapter contains a Lamentation for Jehoachaz, and Jehojakim, Kings of Judah, under the parable of a Lyoness and her Whelps; and for the whole Kingdom and State of Judah under the parable of a vine, for the Princes of Israel] Namely for Jehoahaz, and Jehojakim; which indeed were rather Princes then Kings, as being under the Kings either of Egypt, or Babylon. And under the King of Babylon were also Jehojakim, and Zedekiah, the two last Kings of Judah.

V.2. what is thy mother] Namely, the mother of the Kings, or the royal stock, or the nation of the Jews?

she lay down] Securely in former ages.

she nourished] Her self brought up, and made her Kings; but not so now.

V.3. One of her whelps] Namely Jehoahaz, who was made King three moneths in Jerusalem, 2 King.23.30,31.

it devoured men] Turned his regality and soveraignty, to inhumane cruelty, 2 King.23.31.

V.4. He was taken in their pit] A term taken from the manner of hunting of Lyons. Pharaoh Necho carryed him to Egypt, and put him in chains, 2 King.23.33. Of him Jeremy told he should return no more to his native country, but die in Egypt, Jer.22.10,11, 12. So it fell out, 2 King.23.34.

Egypt] See 2 King.23.34. Jerem.22.11,12. the places afore cited.

V. 5. when she saw that she had waited] Namely, Jerusalem, when she saw that there was no hope that Jehoahaz should be restored.

another of her whelps] Namely, Jehojakim, appointed to be king, by the king of Egypt, 2 King.23.34.

V.6. He went up and down] This haply may relate to his various estate, between the king of Egypt, and the king of Babylon.

devoured men] As ver.3. See Jer.26.20,21,22,23.

V.7. And he knew] That is, Jehojakim visited and spoyled the palaces of those whom he did destroy, or in hostile manner slew with the sword, ver.6.

their desolate palaces] Or, their widowes.

he laid waste] 2 King.23.35,37. and 24.3,4. 2 Chron.36.8. Jer.22.19,28.

noise of his roaring] By his cruel and tyrannical commands.

V. 8. The nations set against him] Nebuchadnezzar with his great army, which was gathered of divers nations, 2 King.24.2.

and spread their net] 2 Chron.36.6. Jer.22.18.

V.9. into holds] Where it seems he dyed, being upon the way to Babylon; and his body was afterward thrown out upon a dunghil. See 2 Chron.36.6. Jer.22.18,19.

V.10. Thy mother is like a vine] After thy tyranny was ceased, which was signified by the Lyons roaring, Jerusalem seemed to flourish again, especially under Zedekiah, who had many sons sitting to succeed him in his Kingdome, and to prop him up; which is signified by the following termes: else, this verse, and the next, may relate to the flourishing state of the Kingdom of Judah, in former times and ages; for the majesty of their Kings, largeness of dominion, multitude and wealth of subjects.

V. 12. But she was plucked up] In such manner, and by such means, as were shewed in the former part of this Chapter.

East-wind] Hos.13.15. meaning that the Chaldeans, which were East from them, should destroy them, as the East-wind doth the fruit of the vine. See Chap.17.10.

her strong rods were broken] Namely, all the young men, and the royal issue. See 2 King.24.7.

V.13. She is planted in the wildernesse] The whole body of the nation, is partly already, and the rest shall be carried away into Babylon within a short while, to live there in extream misery.

V. 14. Out of a rod of her branches] Namely, out of Jehojakim, or rather Zedekiah, who through his perfidiousnesse, and rebellion against Nebuchadnezzar, shall be the cause of the last desolation, 2 Chron.36.13. So that none of Judah's kings were strong, nor after should be, till Christ came, to whom the Kingdom did belong.

And shall be for a lamentation] Not onely at the present time, but in after ages likewise: like that of Jeremies, in his book of Lamentations.

CHAP. XX.

Ver. 1. AND it came to passe] In this Chapter the Prophet reprehends certain elders of Israel, for their vile and base hypocrisie, pretending to ask counsel of God by him, & yet continuing in the abominations of their fore-fathers. Whereupon he recounts their rebellions and idolatries, against God, notwithstanding his marvellous, and merciful good dealings with them: and all this, in Egypt, in the wilderness, and in the land of Canaan. He denounceth therefore grievous judgements against them, with promises of comfort to a repenting remnant. And lastly, in the end of this Chapter under the type of a forest, he denounceth extream desolation unto Jerusalem and Judah.

In the seventh year] Of Jechoniah's captivity, or Zedekiah's reign: that is two years, one moneth, and five dayes, since the beginning of Ezekiels prophesie, Chap.1.1,2. And two years and five moneths before the siege began, Jerem.52.4. and two years, ten moneths, and nine and twenty dayes; before the City was taken, Jer.52.5,6.

certain of the elders] See Chap.8.1. and 14.1.

came] In dissimulation and hypocrisie, ver.31.

V.3. Are ye come to inquire of me] In that true manner as I have appointed you, to desire my favour, by the way of faith and repentance? with a mind willing to learn, and obey my word? or rather with prejudicate opinions, and hearts setled upon your own wayes, whatsoever you shall hear from my Prophet? Jer.42. Do ye not come to tempt me, having no other aym, but to get something out of my Prophet, as may be pleasing to you? Chap.14.3.

I will not be inquired of by you] Or, I will not answer you, or you shall not find me.

V.4. wilt thou judge them?] Chap.22.2. and 23.36. or, shouldest thou plead and intercede with me for them? Jer.14.11. They should rather be roughly handled with checks, and comminations, Chap. 14.3.

Cause them to know] This declareth his goodnesse and justice, which calleth sinners to repentance, before he condemn them, though here he doth it with a kind of indignation.

The abominations of their fathers] Imitated, and increased by their children; who would not amend by the examples, nor the punishment of their fore-fathers, ver.30.

V.5. In the day when I] When as my people being in Egypt, I declared by effects, Exod.3. &c. that I had chosen them to be mine, Deut.10.15. according to my promises made to their fore-fathers, Gen.15.14.

Lifted up mine hand,] Or sware. And so ver.6 &c. and ver.23. did shew my soveraign power for their deliverance, to the destruction of their enemies. See Exod.14.8.

known unto them] Exod.3.8. and 4.31.

V. 6. Espied for them] That is, appointed it for them by my decree, as the most excellent above all other Countries: and for the conquest of which, I had prepared all things in my secret counsel; as into which I had marched before mine ark, to give them a secure entrance into it. See Exod.14.8.

glory of all lands] Or, flower. A title of the land of Israel, or Canaan, ver.15. Dan.8.9. and 11.16. Psal.48.2. So, by its natural qualities, and by Gods singular blessing upon it, and being made a Type of the heavenly Canaan.

V.7. Said unto them] These things are not specified in so many words in Exodus, but may be gathered thence. Exod.3.12. and 5.1. and are revealed by the Spirit to the Prophet, and do agree with what is written, Josh.5.9.

abominations of his eyes] That is, the idols to the spiritual delighting of which, mans heart is induced by the eyes; delighted with the matter, or the form of them: and generally by all the outward senses, seeing they could not apprehend any deity in them by the Spirit. See Numb.15.39. and to which they lifted up their eyes, Chap.18.6.

defile not your selves] God had forbidden them to make mention of the idols, Exod.23.13. Deut.12.3. Psal.16.4. Hos. 2.17.

V. 8. And would not] Exod.5.21. and 6.9. and Chap.38. their their eyes] Which thing declareth the wickednes of mans heart, which judgeth Gods service by their eyes and outward senses.

Then I said] Or, Though I said, Exod.5.3.

V.9. But I wrought for my names sake] Ver.14.and 22.I proceededon in my delivering of them, God hath ever this respect to his glory, that he would not have his name evil spoken of among the Gentiles, for the punishment that his people deserved; in confidence whereof the godly ever prayed; as Exod.32.12. Num.14.13,&c. Deut.9.28. Josh.7.9. 1 Sam.12.22.

V.10. Caused them to go forth] Exod.13.18.

V.11. Shewed them] Heb. made them to know.

which if a man do] Lev.18.5. Deut.30.15, Rom.10.5.Gal.3.12. So he shall be preserved from all dangers, and shall, at the last, obtain everlasting life; the way to which, and the beginning and pledge of which is, new obedience: though it be no way a meritorious cause of it.

V.12. Sabbaths] Exod.16.23,&c.and 20.8.and 33.13,&c. and 35. 2. Deut.5.12.

V.14. Heathen] Who might thereby take an occasion to blaspheme my name, and to accuse me of lack of ability, or else, that I had fought a means to destroy them more commodiously.

V.15. Given them] That is,had promised and resolved to give them, if they had not made themselves utterly unworthy of it. Numb.14.19.and 26.65. 1 Cor.10.5,6.

V.16. Sabbaths] That is, my true religion (the publick worship being on the Sabbath) which I had commanded them: and gave themselves to serve me according to their own fantacies. See Isa. 56.4.

V.18. Children] Whom I spared,Numb.14.31.

Not in the statutes of your fathers] Whereby the holy Ghost confuteth them that say, they will follow the Religion and example of their fathers,and not measure their doings by Gods Word, whether they be approvable thereby or no. See Jer.44.17.

V.20. A sign between me and you] A sacrament of an enterchangeable agreement; namely, that I shall sanctifie you by my Spirit, causing you to cease from your evil works; and you likewise shall be conformable to the working of my grace.

V.21. The children] Vers.18.

I would no more] Numb.21.1.and 25.9.Psal.106.26,&c.

V.22. Nevertheless I withdrew] Psal.78.38.

V. 23. I lifted up mine hand] Though I did forbear them for that time;yet I swore to them,that if they continued in their sins,after I had performed my promises unto them, by bringing them into the promised Land,I would drive and scatter them out of it.See V.5.

and disperse them] After they should be come into the land. See Levit.26.33. Jer.15.7.

V.24. They had not] The children in the wilderness had not executed my judgements; nor their posterity after they were come into the land of Canaan.

Their fathers Idols] Meaning, that they set their delight upon them.

V. 25. I gave them also statutes that were not good, and judgements whereby they should not live] I gave them in the Wildernes decrees and ordinances,that were not good for them, but hurtful;and judgments that did sentence them to death; as that to hang up the heads and chief of the people before the sun;and for the Judges of Israel to slay every one his men that were joyned to Baal-Pehor, Num.25.4,5.and that judgment for the death of Korah,Dathan,& Abiram,and the 250 Princes, and the 14700 murmurers, Num.16. And as that sentence and judgment was of the fiery serpents, Num.21.Besides that the Lord by his just judgment gave them up to themselves, that they should follow their own lusts, because they would not obey his laws; as ver.39.Psal.81.12.Rom.1.21,24.

V.26. And I polluted them] So deemed them, used them, and dealt with them,and their gifts, as polluted things, cast them from me as unclean things.

to passe through the fire] Ver.31. Chap.16.21, Though Moses expresse not this particular, yet it is most likely it was done then when Israel joyned himself to Baal-Pehor, Num.25.3. See 2 King.17.17.and 21.6. Chron.28.3.and 33.6.

That openeth the womb] That is,the first-born, which ought to be sanctified to the Lord, Exod.13.2.

V.27. Yet in this] Seeing that I give thee Commission to lay all their fathers sin open before them,ver.4.add this to all the rest,this their trespass in the land of Canaan.

committed a trespasse] Heb.trespassed a trespasse.

V.28. For when I had] Not onely in the wilderness, when I brought them out of Egypt, but since I placed them in this land: which declareth how prompt mans heart is to Idolatry; seeing that by no admonitions he can be drawn back.

Then they saw] Isa.57.5,6.

the provocation of their offering] That is,their offering which was the object and provocation of my wrath.

V.29. Then I said unto them] Or, I told them what the high place was,or, Bamah: I did often admonish them by my Prophets, and reproved them for their Idolatry. See Chap.23.43.

what is the high place?] Do you not know sufficiently by the very name of high place, which at all times hath been infamous, as a place of Idolatry, and unlawful worship, that all that is done there is abominable? as the very name of a brothel is sufficient to make any honest woman to fly the conversation and neighbourhood of it.

Bamah] Which signifieth an high place,so that for all that it was so odious to God,yet they continued it,and the Name of it, declaring thereby that they vaunted themselves of their idolatry, and were not ashamed thereof.

V. 30. Wherefore say] Seeing that reproving of the fathers sins, ought to serve for a correction to the children which follow them; which thing yet they neglect; therefore tell them that I reject all their false shews of piety, which they make in seeking after my word,ver.3.

V.31. For when ye offer] Ver.26.

Shall I be inquired of] Ver.3. He sheweth that the ingratitude of the people deserved, that God should cut them off, and that they should not have the comfort of his Word;that he would not henceforth suffer them,in this base and treacherous way,of such grosse hypocrisie, to have any thing to do with him, or his Prophets; or so much as to pretend any thing thereunto, ver.37.

V.32. And that which cometh] Your projects and purposes shall not take place.

we will be as the Heathen] Idolators as they; and so we shall prosper as they do, Jer.44.17.

V.33. I will rule over you] I will shew my self a king, and exercise my power over you in punishment, as over rebellious and disloyal subjects; seeing you have not accepted of my government in due obedience: and I will not suffer in you, that are bound unto me by duty and obedience: the excuses which I wink at in other nations, strangers to my Covenant, See Hos.9.1. Amos 3.2.

V. 34. I will bring you out] I will not let you live at ease in the idolatrous countries, where you had sheltered your selves, See Jer. 40.11,12. and 43.5. and 44.1,7,8,11,&c.

V.35. I will bring you into] I will drive you into the most solitary and savage places of the world, for a fulnesse of misery, ver.38.

there will I plead with you] Execute my revenge; and yet so, as followes, ver.37.

V.37. I will cause you to passe] Even as a shepherd maketh his sheep to passe one by one when they come out of the sheep-coat and marketh them distinctly with his rod, to distinguish them from other,Lev.27,32. So I will sever those that are rebellious from among you, to punish them; and shew favour to the other,Ezek.34. 17. Matth.25.32,33.

I will bring you into] Will constrain you to acknowledge me for your God and King by those punishments, the threatnings whereof I have joyned to my Covenant; by which I will chain you up like wild beasts,and will came your stubbornesse.

V.38. I will purge out from among] Signifying that he will not burn the Corn with the chaffe; but chuose out the wicked to punish them, when he will spare his.

I will bring them forth] As ver.35.

they shall not enter] Jer.44.14.

V.39. Go ye]I do cast you off quite,and give you over to all manner of wickednesse: that my name which you make profession of worshipping,may be no more profaned by your hypocrisie, nor be exposed to the scorn of mine enemies.

with your gifts] Offered indeed to the true God, but defiled with the idolatry which is joyned to it. See Isa.1.13. and 61.8. or else really presented to idols.

V.40. for in mine holy mountain] Isa.2.2,3. Ezek.17.23. Mic.4.1. I do cast all you apostates off, and will onely hold the true Israel, which truly believeth, and is truly converted, for to be my people,and will gather them into my Church,to be by them served in spirit and truth; whereof the ancient service was but onely a figure; An Evangelical Prophecy, whereof the return from Babylon was onely an essay.

accept them] An ordinary term for lawful sacrifices which were duly performed.

require your offerings] Shunning them no more, as I had done the offerings of idolaters,and hypocrites,verf.39. Isa.1.13.

V.41. I smell savour] Heb. savour of rest.

sanctified in you]I will cause my self to be reverenced, praised, & blessed for your sakes; and the sacred and inviolable truth of my promises shall be acknowledged by all men.

V.43. and there shall ye remember] Chap.16.61.

green tree in thee] All manner of people indifferently,both young and old,weak,and strong,poor,and rich, good and bad, Chap.21. 3, 4. Many righteous men being also entangled in these temporal judgments. See Luke 23.31.

All faces] Those that are not consumed therewith, shall be brought into extream misery. See Lam.4.8.and 5.10.

from the South to the North] From one end of the Countrey to the other.

V.48. that I the Lord have kindled it] That it is not mans work, but Gods work; and so by man not to be mastred.

V.49. They say of me] These prophane people do scoff at my prophecies,which thou dost dictate to me,in allegorical and ænigmatical terms, as if they were dreams and imaginations.

CHAP. XXI.

Vers.1. AND the word of the Lord]Ezekiel again doth prophecie and fore-tel against Jerusalem,and the land of Israel,the sword of the Chaldean: is commanded to figh at the grievousnesse of it.And upon further declaration of the sharp terrors of it, he is commanded to smite upon his thigh for forrow. After, by command, he smites his hands together;and God himself doth so, to hearten on the Chaldean to slaughter. He fore-telleth the manner of the king of Babylons consulting about his coming against Jerusalem, the overthrow of it, and of the king thereof.And lastly, he prophesieth the destruction of the Ammonites.

V.2. set thy face toward Jerusalem] Seeing it is so, prophecie the same things in plain and proper terms.

the holy places] Namely, against the Temple, and the buildings adjoyning to it;which were not to be spared in this general desolation. See Jer.7.4. Ezek 9.6.

V.3. my sword] The Chaldeans.

the righteous and the wicked] Chap.20.47. Righteous,here may signifie those less wicked then the others: for all were naught, Chap.22.18. Jer.3.8.

V.5. it shall not return]Until it hath performed all its execution, Chap.20.47.

V.6. the breaking of my loynes] Doing like a woman that travelleth,bowing and wringing her self. See Esay 16.11.and 21.3. Jer. 4.19.

V.7. for the tidings] Because of the great noise of the coming of the army of the Chaldeans, which I see approaching to Jerusalem to destroy it, as I have fore-told.

shall be weak as water] Heb. shall go into water.

V.9. a sword, a sword is sharpned] Deut.32.41. My judgment is ready to be put in execution; the instruments fully prepared.

V.10. that it may glitter] That it may terrifie, and affright with the brightnesse of it, Job 20.25.

should we then make mirth] Can one do any thing but lament, as I do?

it contemneth the rod of my son, as every tree] Or, it is the rod of my son, it despiseth every tree, Heb. the rod of my son contemning every tree. That is, the rod appointed by me to chastile my people, which is dear to me as a son, is now become a sword;and to being used against such a wicked people, it contemns all resistance. Or thus,this sword contemns,despiseth,slights, as a small matter, my other rods where with I chastised my children, or any rod that could be made of any tree or wood: this being a sword far surpassing them.And should we then make mirth? The meaning then is to this effect, Thou Nation,hardned against all fatherly punishments, as an evil child is against a rod, thou shalt now be punished by the sword. In the Hebrew text,there is an allusion,between a rod or staff, and tribe; The meaning whereof, is, Whilest thine afflictions are moderate, as from rod to rod, thou dost contemn them; but this shall be as from rod to sword,which thou shalt not be able to endure, nor withstand.

V.11. The hand of the slayer] To the King of Babylon,who is the executioner of Gods judgments.

V.12. terrors by reason of the sword] Or, they are thrust down to the sword with my people smite therefore upon thy thigh] Jerem.31,19. Devise all the actions of a grieved and moaning person.

V.13. because it is a trial, and what if the sword contemn even the rod]Or,when the trial hath been,what then? Shall they not also belong to the despising rod? I am almost forced to come to the extremity of punishment;for all chastisements,to try to bring them to repentance, would be vain, Isa.1.5.Jer.6.28,29,30.Or,as if God had said;because I have tried Judah with two captivities, & they are not bettered, therefore they are worthy to be further punished with famine, pestilence,sword,and the burning of Temple and City;and Nebuchadnezzar,set up a Conquerour by me for their sins,shall be the rod they shall not resist.

V.14. smite thine hands together] Heb. hand to hand.Either in token of extream sorrow, Ezek.6.11.or, in an holy spleen and rage against them for their sins, in that manner to animate the Chaldean to take revenge upon them,See verf.17.

the third time] The Chaldeans forces came three times against Jerusalem after this prophecie; first time, when the City was taken in the eleventh year of Zedekiah, fourth moneth, ninth day.2. When Nebuzaradan came in the nineteenth year of, Nebuchadnezzar, fifth moneth, seventh day. 3 when Nebuzaradan came in twenty third year of Nebuchadnezzar, when Gedaliah was slain, &c. 2 King.25. 1,2, 3, 8. Jer.52. 5,6, 12,30.

the sword of the slain] By which there shall be a great slaughter in Jerusalem, not onely of mean people,but of Princes and great ones also:and the King himself being overcome by this sword,shall dye in captivity.

V. 15. I have set the point of the sword against all their gates] Or, glistering or, sear. I have caused their Cities to be furiously besieged, and set upon.

wrapt up for the slaughter] Or, sharpened.

V. 16. Go thee one way or other] Heb. unite thy self,&c. In which words, by Apostrophe,God speaketh to the sword, comparing it to a souldier, because he commands it to unite it self, to wit, with fellow-souldiers, to invade, with joyned forces, all parts of the land of Judah, and to oppose the Jews, whether they turn to the right hand or the left. Or, it is an expression of the permission which God gave the Chaldeans, to rout out at their pleasure.

V.17. I will also smite] As I have commanded thee Ezekiel, to smite thy hands, verf. 14. so will I likewise smite mine, in sign of joy that I have vented my wrath, and satisfied my justice, See Deuter.28.61. Isa.1.24. Ezek.5.13. and 16.42.

V. 19. appoint the two wayes] God commands the Prophet to draw out two wayes upon a tyle; as Chap.4.1,2. the one leading to Rabbah, the royal city of the Ammonites; the other to Jerusalem, ver.22. And because the king of Babel was purposed to go against both the Prophets choice of, or pointing the side to which the king should turn at the head of the way,(or crossing of the road,) therewith his army should take the way to Jerusalem. The meaning then is, draw out in prophetick action, upon a tyle, or upon the ground two wayes, coming both from one plain place, to represent Nebuchadnezzars deliberation, where he had gathered his army, whether he should go against Jerusalem, or against the land of the Ammonites.

Choose thou a place] To make a mustering place to muster the Army in, the head of the way] At the crossing of a road way; such as those high-wayes were which led to great Cities.

to the City] Jerusalem.

Jerusalem the defenced] The fortified Jerusalem.

V.21. for the king of Babylon] Thus he shewes the meaning of the Type.

At the parting of the way] Heb. mother of the way. To know whether he should go against the Ammonites, or them of Jerusalem.

to use divination] According to the custome of the Heathens in deliberation of any importance.

his arrows] Or, knives; likely to slay the multitude of his sacrifices; as were usual in divinations, Num, 23.1,2,14,29.

images] Heb. teraphim.

he looked in the Liver] This was a kind of divination, by the shape,colour, posture,&c. of entrails of sacrificed beasts, and especially of the Liver.

V.22. At his right hand] They used lots, also in their divinations; as Esther 3.7. and 9.26.28,29,31,32. And the lot which had Jerusalem on it,came to the right hand; and likely the way, on the right hand, led to Jerusalem.

to appoint Captains] The lots, and all his divinations, shewed, that he was throughly to prepare all things needful for the strait siege and war against Jerusalem: wherein he should prosper and obtain a glorious victory.

to open the mouth in the slaughter] That he should take it by assault, with shouts and cryes, used in such actions, and with a general slaughter of the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

V.23. And it shall be to them as a false divination] The Jews, who had oftentimes before broken, and renewed their Covenants with the Chaldeans, without failing into final ruine, shall think that the businelle will passe so for this time also; and that Nebuchadnezzars enterprise will come to nothing, and thereupon they will charge and scorn thee as a false diviner, and as one that seeks to betray them into Nebuchadnezzars hands; but care not for it: thereby they shall not hurt thee, but themselves.

to them that have sworn oathes] Or, for the oathes made unto them;

to them that have sworn oathes] Or, for the oathes made unto them; and are so often forsworn and perjured: and mind still to go on in their perfidious treachery.

but he will call to remembrance] Nebuchadnezzar will at this time time pay them for their former treacheries: And this very act of theirs against thee, shall conduce to the same end, Exod, 32. 34.

V. 24. Ye have made your iniquity to be remembred] Through your wickednesse and impiety which you make open profession of; even by this your scorning of my Prophet, and slighting of your oathes, you give cause, first to me, whose name hath been used in your oathes, and next the king of Babylon, to punish you at once for your perjuries, an reiterated rebellions.

ye shall be taken with the hand] Of the Babylonian, ver. 9.

V. 25. wicked Prince of Israel] Namely, Zedekiah; who practised with the Egyptians to make himself high, and able to resist the Babylonians. e sp eak eth to him in Gods name, and sentenceth him by his authority; and so omitting any honourable compellation, he slights him, as his sin deserved. V. 26. remove the Diadem] The royal ornaments.

this shall not be the same] The kingdome of Judah shall no more be that triumphant kingdome, which it was at other times.

exalt him that is low] This seems to relate to Jehojachin, now a prisoner; and afterward set at liberty, and exalted, 2 King. 24, 12, and 25. 27, 28, 30. Jer. 52. 31.

abase him that is high] Zedekiah. See his abasement, 2 King. 25. 7.

V. 27. I will overturn, overturn, overturn it] Heb. perverted, perverted, perverted will I make it.

untill he come] The kingdom of Judah shall never be restored to its former lustre, (for after the return it was but very mean, and full of troubles and miseries, as the books of Ezra, Nehemiah, and Esther, and the 11. Chapter of Daniel, and the history of the Maccabees do declare) until the Meah come, to whom by right it belongeth, as David Successor according to the flesh, and established by God to be King over his Church, who shall alter it into a spiritual and everlasting Kingdom. See Genes. 49. 10. Luke 1. 32, 33. To this place of Ezekiel, Nathaneel seems to have respect, Joh. 1. 49. acknowledging him come, to whom the Kingdome did belong.

V. 28. Thus saith the Lord God concerning the Ammonites] This Prophecie against the Ammonites is inserted here, by occasion of those words, ver. 20. 21. Their fuller history, and Gods Judgments against them, are set down, Chap. 25. 1 ——7. Though this expedition of Nebuchadnezzar proved, not to fall out against them, yet shortly after he should destroy them: as is most likely, in the three and twenty year of his reign, when Ishmael sent by Baalis king of the Ammonites had slain Gedaliah, and the Chaldeans that were with Gedaliah at Mizpah; and after returned to the Ammonites again, Jerem. 40. 14. and 41. 2, 3, 10, 15. and 52. 30. V. 29. whilest they see vanity] Whilest thy Diviners and Soothsayers do fore-tel thee all manner of happinesse and security; perswading thee that thou shalt trample upon the Jews necks, which are slain for their sins; and that no harm shall come to thee.

the necks of them that are slain] Insulting over the dead carcasses of the Jews.

their iniquity] Ver. 25.

V. 30. Shall I cause it to return?] Or, cause it to return; insult over them no more.

In the place] O ye Ammonites, I will not scatter you into strange lands, as I have done my people, but will destroy you in your own land,

V. 31. I will blow against thee] I will light and kindle it, as Chap. 20. 47.

brutish] Ye, burning men; the Chaldeans burning in wrath against thee.

V. 32. thy blood shall be in the midst of the land] All thy Countrey shall be over flown with blood.

CHAP. XXII.

Vers. 1. MOreover] This Chapter contains a Catalogue of sins in Jerusalem, and of Gods judgments following thereupon: And that in Jerusalem he will melt them, as drosse in a furnace. After more particularly, the Prophet from God, chargeth upon her the sins of her Prophets; of her Priests; of her Princes; of her People: And not a man seeking to stop Gods anger against them.

V. 2. wilt thou judge] Or, plead for; Chap. 20. 4. and 23. 36. art thou ready to execute thy charge which I commit unto thee against Jerusalem, that murdereth the Prophets, and them that are godly?

V. 3. That her time may come] The time of her destruction.

against her self] To her own undoing.

V. 4. Thou hast sined] 2 King. 21. 16. and 24. 4. Jer. 26. 21, 22, 23.

reproach] As was threatned in the Law, Deut. 28 37.

V. 5. infamous, and much vexed] Heb. polluted of name, much in vexation: whose very name all men hate; that shall be famous for the greatest desolation that ever befell any City.

V. 6. ower] Or, arm; lending also the arm of their authority unto others, for the shed ding of blood.

V. 7. In thee] Hereby he meaneth, that there was no kind of wickednesse which was not committed in Jerusalem, and therefore the plagues of God should speedily come upon her.

V. 9. men that carry tales] Heb. men of slanders, Exod. 23. 1. Levit 18. 16.

Thou hast greedily gained] Against Gods Lawes, Exod. 22. 25. Lev. 25, 36. Deut. 23. 19.

V. 13. I have smitten mine hand] Chap. 21. 14, 17. in token of my wrath and vengeance. A sign, either of great joy, or of extream sorrow and anger: as in this place.

V. 14. Can thine heart endure] Wilt thou have courage and strength enough to withstand my judgments? or be able to defend thy self? thine heart, how hard soever, cannot bear it out.

V. 15. I will scatter thee] Deut. 4. 27. and 28. 35, 64.

and will consume] Thy filth of sin, and filthy sinners out of thee; cause thee to perish, that thou shayest no more provoke me by thy enormities, Chap. 23. 27, 48. Or, I will take away the occasion of thy wickednesse.

V. 16. And, &c.] Thou shalt be no more the inheritance of the Lord, but forsaken; or, Heb, and thou shalt be profaned, and defiled; that is to say, filled with blood, desolated, not regarded: as a holy City; but like a wicked place, which God hath cast off, and abandoned.

V. 18, become drosse] Isa. 1. 22. Jer. 6. 29, 30. it is quite degenerate, like to good silver turned to drosse.

V. 19. midst of Jerusalem] As in a furnace, Chap. 24. 10.

V. 24. Say unto her] Namely, to the Jewish Nation, or to Jerusalem.

not cleansed] The fire of my judgments hath not cleansed thee from thy filthinesse, and there is nothing found, nor good in thee; therefore I will lay a most extream burthen upon thee, and use no clemency at all towards thee, Chap. 24. 6. See Jer. 4. 11. & 6. 28, 29, 30. and 24. 8.

nor rained upon in the day of indignation] Not eased or holpen with any showre of rain, to quench and allay the flame and fire of my indignation.

V. 25. There is a conspiracy] All this may have relation to the persecutions, which the false prophets by plots and conspiracies, used against good men. See Jer. 20. 2. and 26. 8, 10, and 29. 25, 26. Lam. 4. 13.

They have devoured soules] Chap. 13. 18. Mat. 23. 14.

V. 26. Have violated my Law] Heb, offered violence to: have openly and impudently gone and done against it, Zeph. 3. verse 4.

They have put no difference] See Chap. 44. 23. Jer. 50. 29.

V. 31.

V. 31. Their own way] Their evil deeds have I punished; as Chap. 16. 43.

CHAP. XXIII.

Vers. 1. THE word of the Lord] This Chapter under the names of Aholah, and Aholibah, two sisters, sets down the spiritual whoredomes of Samaria, and Jerusalem. How Aholah played the Harlot with the Assyrian, and formerly with the Egyptian; and was therefore delivered into the hands of the Assyrian, to execute judgments upon her. How Aholibah, notwithstanding plaid the whore more then her sister, and doted upon the Assyrian, and the Chaldean, and not forgetting the Egyptian; and therefore is she also delivered up into the hands of her lovers, the Chaldean and others with them, for forer judgments. And afterwards it joyns them both together, in sins, and in punishments.

V. 2. Two women] Meaning Israel and Judah, divided into two Kingdomes; both came out of one family. See Jer. 3. 7, 8, 10. Ezek. 16, 44, 45.

V. 3. And they committed whoredomes] Levit. 17. 7. Josh. 24. 14. Ezek. 20. 8. spiritually, by idolatry.

There were their breasts pressed] A figurative description of the peoples first going astray after idols.

V. 4. Aholah the elder] These seem names framed and fitted to the present purpose in hand. Aholah signifieth a mansion, or dwelling in her self, meaning Samaria, which was the head city of the ten Tribes, Isa. 7. 9. who having forsaken the Temple of God, had established a Worship of God according to their own minds, 1 King. 12, 16, 18, 31. and Aholibah signifieth my mansion in her, whereby is meant Jerusalem, where Gods Temple was, in which the pure worship of God remained, 2 Chron. 13, 10, 11.

and they were mine] Chap. 16. 8, 20.

V. 5. when she was mine] Heb, under me: which may be understood thus, being my wife, subject to me. Some render it, in my stead, or, in stead of me.

her lovers] An ordinary title for profane Nations, with which Gods people joyned in idolatry and impiety.

on the Assyrians her neighbours] 2 King. 15. 19. after the Assyrians had conquered Syria, which bordered upon the ten tribes.

V. 6. Cloathed with blew] A magnificent, gentle, rich, and powerful nation.

V. 7. committed her whoredomes with them] Heb. bestowed her whoredomes upon them.

V. 8. From Egypt] Vers. 3. He seems to have relation to the golden Calves set up by Jeroboam, in imitation of the Calf Apis, dedicated to the Egyptians chiefest idol Serapis. See Exod. 32. 4. This may also be understood of the unlawfull covenants made with Egypt, 2 King. 17. 4.

they lay with her] The holy Ghost useth these terms, which seem strange to chaste ears, to cause this wicked vice of idolatry so to be abhorred, that scarce any should abide to hear the name thereof mentioned, Psal. 16. 4.

V. 9. I have delivered her] 1 King. 17. 3, 4, 5, &c.

into the hand of the Assyrians] 2 King. 17, 23.

upon whom she doted] And fell from them in Hoshea his time, 2 King. 17. 4.

V. 10. These discovered her nakednesse] Chap. 16. 37. that is, they have shamefully punished her: a term taken from the disgraces which are done to poor women taken in the wars, Isa. 20. 4. and 47. 3.

V. 14. Incensed] Not satisfied and content with the Assyrians.

men pourtrayed upon the wall] A description of unbridled lust; like a woman that should fall in love with strangers that are absent, only by seeing their pictures, and should send to seek after them into far Countries,

V. 16. And as soon as she saw them with her eyes] Heb. at the sight of her eyes.

sent messengers] Likely in Hezekiah's time, And partly thereupon that judgment seems threatned, 2 King. 20. 17, 18. Esay 39. 6, 7. and afterwards in the times of Manasseh; and the succeeding Kings.

V. 17. Babylonians] Heb. children of Babel.

her mind was alienated from them] Heb. loosed, or, disjointed. So Jer. 6. 8. and often here in this Chapter. The meaning is the Jews had broke the league which they had made with the Chaldeans, to joyn with the Egyptians, their enemies and emulators, 2 King. 24. 20.

V. 20. Their paramours] Heb. concubines. By the Egyptians concubines, or paramours are to be understood the neighbouring nations, adhering to them, and imitating their idolatry. And so likewise did Aholibah.

whose flesh is as the flesh of asses] Chap 16. 26. These are terms taken from the shamelesse lusts of unchaste women, and do shew the strength and riches of Egypt, which moved the Jews to make a league with them.

V. 21. Thou calledst to remembrance] Repeating thy first lewdnes, ver. 3. which yet was then more excusable, then now it is: because when thou wast in thy spiritual Child-hood, thou hadst but small knowledge and experience of my pure worship; which thou canst not now pretend, being fully instructed in it: as a young maid, if she were seduced, might pacify be excused for her simplicity, which a marryed woman which is of full age cannot plead.

V. 22. Behold, I will raise] Chap. 16. 37.

V. 23. Pekod, and Shoa] Names of some people of Asia, which were subjects to Nebuchadnezzar, of which his army was also composed, Jer. 50. 21.

V. 24. with chariots, waggons, and wheels] Such were the ancient manner of Carriages and weapons in war.

judge thee according to their judgments] They shall indeed by the secret guidance of my Spirit, execute my judgments, but I will leave the manner of the execution of them to their discretions. And men usually do it with less mercy, and pitty, then God doth, 2 Sam. 24. 14. Zach. 1. 15.

V. 25. They shall take away thy nose] A kind of speech taken from the ignominious punishments used in some countreyes against adulterous women; so to deform the beauties they so abused; or, from the cruelties of enemies enraged against prisoners, before they kill them.

V. 26, They shall strip thee] Chap. 16. 39.

V. 28 Whom thou hatest] Ver. 17, 22. Chap. 16. 37.

V. 29. All thy labour] All thy treasures and riches which thou hast gotten by thy war.

shall be discovered] Even as a malefactors misdeeds are discovered, when he is once sentenced to death. Or, all the world shall see thy shamefull forsaking of God to serve idols.

V. 31. I will give her Cup into thine hand] I will execute the same judgments and vengeance against thee. See Psal. 75. 8. Jer. 25. 15. Mat. 20. 23.

V. 34, Suck it out] Psal. 75. 8. Isa. 51. 17.

break the sheards thereof] Thou shalt grow mad therewith like a drunken man, who after he is overcome with wine will break the cups and pots, and will tear his flesh with his nails, and with his teeth, Jer. 25. 16.

V.49. Your lewdnesse upon you] Namely, the just punishments for it.

CHAP. XXIV.

Vers. 1. A*Gain*] This Chapter contains the last denunciation of judgment against the Jews, before the final ruine and destruction of that kingdom: uttered in Babylon, the very day that Nebuchadnezzar began his last siege against Jerusalem; declaring when, and there, the very day of the siege. And prophesying the utter destruction of the city, under the parable of a boyling pot, whose scum is in it. And under the sign of the Prophets not mourning for the death of his wife, shewing the woful calamity of the Jews, to be indeed, either beyond all sorrow; or to be such, & so suddain, as they should not dare, or else not have time to bemoan it: shutting up this prophecie (and so confirming it) til the time that the news should be brought to Ezekiel of the fulfilling of it.

in the ninth year] Of the second captivity, viz. since Jeconiah, Mordecai, Esth. 2.5,6. and Ezekiel, Chap. 40.1. were carried captives, and Zedechiah made king; the tenth moneth, and the tenth day of the moneth, Ezekiel is told in Mesopotamia, that Nebuchadnezzar, that very day, in Judea laid siege to Jerusalem, 2 King. 25.1. Jer. 39.1. and 52.4.

in the tenth moneth] Called Tebeth, which containeth part of December, and part of January.

V. 2. write thee] That so it may be certainly remembred and known.

this same day] Jer. 52.4.

V.3. Set on a pot] That is, set a pot on the fire, See such a similitude, Jer. 1.13. Ezek. 11.3,7. The pot is Jerusalem; the flesh and fat pieces, are the chief, the richest, and the noblest that are in her; the fire are Gods judgments, by which he would have humbled, and mollified his peoples hearts, to bring them to repentance; but that having taken no effect, by reason of their obstinate rebellion, he would convert those Judgments, into a total consumption.

V.4. every good piece] The great ones.

V.5. burn] Or, heap.

bones under it] Meaning, it seems, the bones of the innocents whom they had slain; who were the cause of kindling Gods wrath against them.

seeth the bones of it therein] It seems that the bones were put into the bottom of the pot, vers. 4, 10. and not, as others have understood it, without the pot to kindle the fire. By the bones, may be meant the great ones and Governours, which bear up the body of the state: Or rather, the mean and vulgar sort of lesse esteem; as opposed to the former.

V.6. wherefore] To make the accomplishment answerable to the figure.

woe to the bloody City] Chap. 22.2 Nah. 3.1. 2 King. 21.16.

to the pot whose scum] Namely, to Jerusalem, that hath not been cleansed from her open and notorious sins, by my punishments, Chap. 22.44. See Jer. 4.11. and 6.29.

let no lot] Let all the people, without any difference be burnt in it, or driven out of it, and carried away; let none be pardoned: though in wars, oftentimes, they cast lots to slay some, and to save some.

V.7. her blood is in] She is full of misdeeds, especially of murders and oppressions.

she set it upon] This City shewed her cruelty to all the world, and was not ashamed thereof, neither hid it; contrary to what God had commanded, namely, that the very blood of beasts should be covered over with dust, Levit. 17.13. Deut. 12.16,24. and 15.23.

V.8. set her blood upon the top of a rock] I will punish her openly; and the signs and monuments thereof shall remain for ever.

V.9. woe to the bloody city] Vers. 6.

I will even make the pile] That is what I have commanded thee to do for a sign, that I will do in act, making ready the Chaldeans great fire, Jer. 1.13.

V.10. kindle the fire] God would do it, that so the City should be utterly destroyed; and that he would give the enemies an appetite thereunto.

V.11. set it empty] To signifie, that Jerusalem, after the inhabitants were gone out of it, should be burnt by the Chaldeans, as it were, to cleanse it perfectly from all its excrements. Chap. 16.36, 37.

V.12. She hath wearied] Instead of the onely means of deliverance, which was repentance and conversion, she hath with great care and toyl, fought out other wordly and unprofitable means, that will prove false and unfaithful to her, and in the end deceive her.

V.13. lewdnesse] Thy wicked obstinacy, hath been the onely cause that thou hast not been cleansed.

I have purged thee] I laboured, by sending my Prophets to call thee to repentance; but thou wouldest not, 2 Chron. 36.15. Jer. 18. 11, 12. and Chap. 25.3, &c. and 35.15.

V.17. Forbear to cry] Heb. be silent.

bind the tire of thine head upon thee] Use thy ordinary attire, and shew no sign at all of mourning; such as those were of going bare-headed, Lev. 10.6. and 21.10. and bare-foored, 2 Sam. 15.30. Isa. 47.2. Of covering the lips, Lev. 13.45, Mic. 3.7. and eating of food brought in, and given by neighbours and friends, Jerem. 16.5,7.

lips, Heb. upper lip. And so ver. 22.

V.18. morning] Mornīng the morning following.

V. 21. I will prophane my sanctuary] The exposition of the type. Prophane, by sending the Chaldeans to destroy it; as Chap. 7.22.

the excellency of your strength] Namely, the temple, the ark, and other signs of my presence, wherein consisted the glory, and the strength of your subsistance and defence.

the desire of your eyes] Namely, your wives, vers. 16.

that which your soul pitieth] Heb. the pity of your soul. That which you are most jealous and tender of.

your daughters whom you have left] In Judea: for the Prophet spake to those which had been carried away prisoners with Jehoiachin.

V.22. You shall do as I have done] You shall be forced to digest all these sorrows, not daring so much, as to seem to be grieved thereat, for fear of angring your enemies: or because, that in so great a desolation, every one shall think upon himself, without taking any care for others: Or, because that there will be such an expresse curse of God be perceived in it: Or, for that there will be more cause of weeping for these that are alive, and languish in sorrow, then for the dead, See Job 27.15. Psal. 78.64, Jer. 16.5. Amos 6.10. and Jer. 22.10.

V.23. but you shall pine away for your iniquities] Chap. 33.10. Lev. 26.39. In a desperate and stupid senselessnesse ye shall stand astonished and waste away, Amos 6.10.

and mourn one towards another] Bemoan your selves one to another, for your miseries, and wonder at them; rather then knowing the plague of your sins in your heart, 1 King. 8.38, mourn to God in true repentance for them.

V.24.

V.24. A sign] Chap. 12.6. and 4.3. Esay 8.18.

V.25. In the day when I take] In the time when I shall have fulfilled these prophecies, by the taking and ruine of Jerusalem, I will cause tydings thereof to be brought unto thee, and then shalt thou put the people in mind of these things, for their instruction and conviction.

that whereupon they set their minds] Heb. the lifting up of their soul; that is, that which they desire most; all those things which are most dear unto them.

V. 26. He that escapeth in that day] Of my visitation, and their destruction. See the accomplishment of this, Chap. 33.21,22. The distance of time betwixt the taking of Jerusalem, and that tydings brought to Ezekiel, was one year, five moneths, and twenty six dayes. No doubt, but the Prophet heard of it long before that time. But at that time he received the most full and perfect relation, of all that Nebuzaradan also had done, since the taking of the City. And that was the time that it pleased the Lord to open his Prophets mouth again.

V.27. In that day shall thy mouth be opened] See Chap. 3.26,27. and 33.22. not that he was miraculously struck dumb in the mean time; for we may not multiply miracles, without a just and sufficient warrant. But he became as dumb, for holding his peace; as if God had said, Thou hast spoken enough already to this people for to warn them sufficiently; forbear that argument any more: let them alone, until that by the bringing to passe of these things thou hast already told them, thou mayst thereupon take occasion to convince and waken them again. And therefore in the mean time, He prophesies only against the forrain Nations, from this place to Chap. 33. that is, from the time of beginning the siege, in the ninth year, tenth moneth, tenth day, till this newes here spoken of was brought to the Prophet, in the twelfth year, tenth moneth, fifth day. And so in that mean time, he prophesies against Egypt, on the tenth year, tenth moneth, twelfth day, Chap. 29.1. And again on the eleventh year, first moneth, seventh day, Chap. 30.20 And again on the eleventh year, third moneth, first day, Chap. 31.1.

CHAP. XXV.

Vers. 1. T*HE Word of the Lord*] In this Chapter, the Prophet denounceth Gods vengeance against the Ammonites, against the Moabites; against the Edomites: against the Philistines, for their insolency and insulting over the Jews in their Calamity.

V.5. Rabbah] Which was the chief City of the Ammonites, and full of Conduits, 2 Sam. 11.1. and 12.26, 27.

V.6. because, &c.] Their sin and punishment both again insisted upon, and fore-told.

Clapped thine hands] Heb. hand. This here is a sign of joy, derision, and insulting.

V.9. I will open the side of Moab] Heb. shoulder of Moab I will cause the Chaldeans to break through that part of the Countrey, where the strong and frontier Cities are, which are here undernamed: for a difference between that, and the other part of the land, which lay open, and was not fortified, Jer. 48.

V. 13. Teman] Jer. 49.7, 8. the place, or country denominated from Teman, the Grand child of Esau, Gen. 36.15.

They of Dedan shall fall by the sword] Or, they shall fall by the sword unto Dedan, Jer. 49.8. of the posterity of Abraham by Keturah, Gen. 25.3.

V. 14. by the hand of my people Israel] We read nothing of this execution done by the Jews upon the Edomites, but onely, 1 Mac. 5.3. and 2. Mac. 10.16, 17. Some do understand this of that same hand which overthrew Gods people Israel, the hand of the Babylonians. Some spiritually, of the Churches victory over her deadly enamies, as the Edomites were to the Jews; as Isa. 11.14. Jer. 49.2.

They shall know] Namely, my people: or Edom; shall know by experience.

V. 15. Because the Philistines] See Jer. 25.20. and 47.1, 4, 5.

have dealt by revenge] See 2 Chron. 28.18. Amos 1.6.

for the old hatred] Or, with perpetual hatred.

V. 16. [therefore,] Which were a part of the Philistines, of whom mention is in the verse before. Confer with this 1 Sam. 30.14, 16. Zeph. 2.5. Of the Cherethims David had also a guard, 2 Sam. 8.18. which most likely were out of some Colonies of the Israelites, that then were planted in their room.

Sea Coast] Or, Haven of the Sea; upon which was the Philistines land, and had many haven Towns, Hezekiah had formerly spoiled them, 2 King. 18.8. And after that Psammeticus, father of Pharaoh-Necho King of Egypt, as Herodotus relates in his Euterpe. But this last was the most grievous, by the Chaldeans. See Esay 14.29, &c. Jer. 25.20. and Chap. 47.

V. 17. Vengeance] Heb. Vengeances.

CHAP. XXVI.

Vers. 1. A*ND it came to passe*] In this Chapter the Prophet denounceth Gods fearful judgments against Tyrus, for insulting against Jerusalem: & to be executed by Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon; The destruction and desolation he makes: The Iles tremble at it; for so woful and irrevocable a downfal.

The eleventh year] Of the captivity of Jeconiah, and the reign of Zedekiah.

moneth] Some say it was the first, Ezek. 40.1. But it rather seems to be the fifth; that is to say, the first after the taking of Jerusalem: which was the cause of the Tyrians insulting, which is here mentioned. See Jerem. 52.6.

V.2. because that Tyrus hath said against Jerusalem, Aha,] The sin of Tyrus, Amos 1.9. Zach. 9.2, 3. Thus Chap. 25.3.

the gates of the people] That is, the famous City Jerusalem, whereunto all people resorted, both for Religions sake, and for traffick. A manner of speech taken from that, that neer the chief gates of the City, there were commonly great places for market-meetings, and law pleas, &c.

she is turned unto me] That is to say, I being the second City in Palestine for commodiousnesse and repute, shall obtain all those priviledges which Jerusalem now hath, for traffick, concourse of people, and for wealth.

be replenished] My riches and fame shall increase. Thus they promise mountains of gold to themselves; and thus the wicked rejoyce at their fall by whom they have any profit or advantage.

V.3. I am against thee] Gods Judgement upon her for her sins. See Esay 23. Jer. 25.22. and Chap. 47.4. Amos 1.9. Zach. 9.4.

Many Nations] Or, great Nations; Namely, the Chaldeans army, composed of divers mighty Nations, ver. 7.

V.4. scrape her dust from her] That is, I will destroy it utterly. This did not befall Tyrus the first time the Chaldeans took it, Isa. 23.15. But the ruine of it began then; and then from time to time it came to that degree at last as the Prophet speaketh of, in Alexander the great in his time.

the top of rock] Ver. 14. Chap. 24.7, 8.

V.5. The spreading of nets] As who should say a waste and desolate place; as those shoares are on which fishers do use to spread their nets.

the midst of the Sea] Because that Tyrus was an Island encompassed with the Sea.

V.6. her daughters] The Towns that belonged unto her, as a mother City; or rather, her people, without sparing of either sex.

V.7. Nebuchadnezzar] Shewes now by whom this judgment shall be executed, Chap.28.7, and 30.11, and 32.12. This name Nebuchadnezzar, is no lesse then seven divers wayes written in Scripture. There were divers of this name; Insomuch, as some think this to be a common name to the kings of Babylon; as Pharaoh was to the kings of Egypt; Abimelech to the kings of the Philistines; Sylvius to the Latin kings: Cæsar and Augustus to the Roman Emperours; Arsacidæ to the Persians: and Ceropidæ to the Athenians. But this Nebuchadnezzar appears by the sacred History to be the same that had taken Jehojakim, Jehojacin, and Zedekiah, destroyed Jerusalem, burnt the Temple; and in after times, through Gods just judgment, became mad for seven years, as a mad beast. We may not then take this Nebuchadnezzar to be him that is mentioned in the Apocryphal story of Judeth; and much lesse to be either Cyrus, or Alexander the Great; as some have weakly imagined.

a King of kings] Namely, him that is possessor of this mighty Monarchy, which calleth it self the universal. See Jer.27.6,7. Dan.2. 37. See the phrase, King of kings, Ezra 7.12. and such like is the phrase, God of gods, Deut.10.17.

from the North] From Chaldea, which was partly Northward from Tyre and Palestine.

V.8. Cast a mount] Or, pour out the engine of shot.

and lift up a buckler against thee] That is, coming to the assault.

V.10. Chariots] Chap.23.24.

as men enter into a City] Heb. according to the entrings of a City broken up.

V.11. strong garrisons] Or, pillars of strength: for Tyrus was built and fortified by much art, and labour of men, against the Sea, and against all enemies.

V.12. Thy pleasant houses] Heb. houses of thy desire.

in the midst of the water] The Sea round about thee.

V. 14. Thou shalt be a place to spread nets upon] I will make thee so bare, that thou shalt have nothing to cover thee, verse 4.5.

shalt be built no more] At least, it shall be no building, in comparison of that in its former glory.

V. 15. Shall not the Isles] The horrour and consternation of the Isles and neighbouring Nations, being astonished at her fall, Chap. 32.10.

V.16. Cloath themselves with trembling] At the hearing of her fall, and for fear of the Chaldeans.

of old time] Which were dead long ago.

I will set glory] I will gloriously re-establish my people; and cause them to live and flourish again, for to be the honour of the world. See Chap.20.6. and 28.25,26.

Land of the living] Psal.27.13. Esay 38.11. The meaning here is, in Judea, when it shall be restored. See Chap.38.25,26. Or else thus, By thy destruction I will glorifie my self among the living.

V.21. I will make thee a terrour] Heb. terrours, Chap.27,36, and 28.19. Thou shalt be brought into such an extreme desolation, full of horrour in thy self, and a subject of terrour to others. Others render it, I will bring thee to nothing and to perdition.

shalt be no more] Verse 14.

CHAP. XXVII.

Ver.1. THE word of the Lord] In this Chapter the Prophet sets down a Lamentation for Tyrus; by setting forth her former glory, in her building, shipping, army, power, merchandizings, praise; and then opposing to it her present ruine; concluding with the extream wailing and astonishment of the neighbouring Isles, Nations, and Kingdomes, at her fall.

V.3. The entry of the Sea] Built there first by the Sidonians, as Justin relateth; in a very commodious place to resort unto by Sea, from divers places, and to carry merchandize from thence into the Continent or firm Land.

of perfect beauty] Heb. perfect of beauty:

V.4. Thy borders] Thou art encompassed round with the Sea.

maids] Heb. heart.

V.5. made] Heb. built.

of Senir] This mountain was Hermon, called by the Sidonians, Syrion; but the Ammorites called it Seniz, Deut.3.9. by Moses called, Sion, Deut.4.48.

V.6. the Company of the Ashurites] Heb. the daughter.

Thy benches of Ivory] Or, They have made thy benches of ivory well trodden. Ivory wherewith they covered the walls and floores of Chambers, and the decks of ships. Which shews their profusenes, and excesse of delicacy.

of Chittim] Cilicia, rather then Italy, See Gen.10.4. Num.24.24. Esay 23.1. Jerem.2.10. 1 Macc.1.1. Cilicia joyns to Syria. In Tharsus, the chief city thereof was Paul born, Act.21.39. and 22.3.

V.7. blue and purple] Or, purple and scarlet.

of Elishah] It is thought, that hereby are meant the Eoliahs, a people of Greece. Elishah is Javans son, Japhets Grand-child, Gen. 10.4.

which covered thee] Namely, the poops of thy ships; Or, which was thy rayment.

V.8. Arvad] It is thought to be the Island, called Arado, and Arlarado, neer to Sidon, Gen.10.18.

that were in thee] Other Nations were thy Mariners; but thy own Tyrians were thy Pilots, and chief in thy Navy.

V.9. of Gebal] A Prince in Phœnicia, and nigh to Sidon.

Calkers] Or, stoppers of chinks. Heb. strengtheners, Meaning, the chief of this Nation, which were cunning Ship-Wrights, were employed in mending and making of Shiping.

V.10. of Lud] See Genes.10.13. inhabitants of part of Egypt.

Phut] In Lybia, Gen.10.6.

they hanged the shield] According to the custome of Garrison Souldiers.

they set forth thy comelinesse] These Souldiers being there recontinually, did much increase thy splendour and Majesty.

V.11. The men of Arvad with thine Army] Those of Arvad which lived by the Sea Coast, ver.8, and thine own Souldiers, kept a continual watch about the City.

And the Gammadims were in thy towers] Dwelling in a Province of Phœnicia.

V.12. Tharshish] Namely, the people that lived along the Coast of the Mediterranean sea, and especially the City of Tharsus, a Tyrian Colony. Others will have it to be Carthage. Some they traded in thy fairs] That is, these kings they gave for thy commodities.

V.13. Javan] That is, Greece, Javan was Japhets Son, Gen.10. 2. of whom came the Greeks. See Dan.8.21. Joel 3.6.

Tubal] The posterity of Tubal Japhets son, Gen.10.2. inhabiting likely in a part of Cappadocia.

Meshech] Tubal and Meshech are usually joyned together. So Chap.33.26, and 38.3, and 39.1. being brethren, Gen.10.2.

Market] Or, Merchandise.

V.14. Togarmah] Chap.38, posterity of the grand child of Japhet, Gen.10.3. though to inhabit the lesser Armenia; some say, the lesser Asia.

horsemen] Men which were expert in managing and taming of horses.

V.15. Dedan] Ver.20. people of Arabia of Cham's posterity, by Cush, and Rhama. Or of Abraham by Keturah, Gen.25.3. dwelling in some part of Syria, Gen.10.6,7.

they brought thee for a present] To have the benefit of being free of thy Faires and Markets; or else to traffick therewith.

horns of ivory and ebony] So the great teeth of the Elephant, which on either side of his mouth stand out, are called; because by their crookednesse they are like horns.

V.16. The wares of thy making] Heb. thy works.

Agate] Heb. Cyprasse.

V.17. wheat] By 1 King.5,9. Act.12.20. it appears, that Tyrus was furnished with corn out of the land of Israel.

Minnith] The name of a town, upon the border of the Ammonites, on the South side of Canaan: whereof mention is Judg.11.33. where the best wheat grew.

Pannag] Some will have it to be the name of a Countrey; and the name of Phœnicia to be taken thence. Others translate it rozen, or balsome.

balm] Or, opobalsamum, or turpentine, wherein Gilead abounded, Gen.37. 25. Jer.8.22. and 46.11.

V.18. Helbon] A place of Syria, which is thought by some to be that which at this time is called Aleppo.

V.19. Dan] Likely he meaneth those which after the captivity of the ten tribes, came and inhabited the ancient countrey belonging to Dan, in Laish, a city neer to Tyre, Judg.18,28,29.

Going

Going to and fro] Or, Meurzal: to seek what they may give for thy commodities. The Greekes have been always great travellers: and the trade at Tyrus so great, that those countreyes which had nothing to exchange, went to other countreyes to get some thing, to trade with Tyre.

V.20. Dedan] ver.15.

precious cloathes for Chariots] Heb. cloathes of freedom. It may be, they were such, as wherewith they covered their horses and chariots, to fit out journey.

V.21. Kedar] Which came from Kedar the son of Ismael Gen. 25.13. inhabiting Arabia Petrea, which countrey abounded with cattel, Isa.60.7. See Psal.120.5.

they occupied with thee in lambes] Heb. they were the merchants of thy hand. Or, they occupied with thee at hand in lambs, &c. for lambes & such like cattel could not be carryed far, as other wares.

V. 28. The suburbs shall shake, &c.] Or, waves. Heb. the hoates. The Hebrew word seemes to signifie a cock-boat, which they throw out of the ship, it signifies also suburbs, which are as it were expulsed the city. The meaning is, that the Cities and Colonies subject to Tyre, should be surprised with terrour, at the fall and ruine of their chief city: and all other lesser States should be likewise so terrified.

CHAP. XXVIII.

Vers.1. THE word of the Lord] In this Chapter the Prophet sets down the blasphemous pride, and presumptuous confidence of the King of Tyrus: Gods great Judgments against him: and a lamentation which the Prophet is commanded to take up, at his fall. Afterwards he prophesies against Zidon; and concludes with a prophetical promise of the restauration of Gods own people.

V. 2. I am a God] Thou art grown vain, and hast exalted thy self, through thy glory, wisdome, and happinesse, as if thou were no more a mortal man, but a petty god.

I sit in the seat of God] I reign in a most strong place, full of glory and delights: which are the properties belonging to heaven, which is Gods habitation.

against the beauty] By strength they will overcome all thy counsels, and arts of prevention and defence, Or, they will kill thee, not respecting thy wisdom, which maketh thee so majestical and venerable.

V. 8. The deaths] Namely, of all kinds of violent death, in the general slaughter of thy people. See Isa.14.19.

V. 9. Slayeth] Or, woundeth.

V. 10. The uncircumcised] Like the rest of the Heathen and Infidels, which are Gods enemies: for circumcision was a sign of the Covenant of saving grace. Others, like to the ancient Canaanites, condemned to a curse, See Chap.32.21.

V. 12. A lamentation] As Chap 27.2, &c.

in the midst of the stones of fire] Towit, among my people Israel, which shined as precious stones: or, clad with a garment of pearl and precious stones, glittering, and sparkling, as fire such as were in the breast-plate of Israels high Priest; as appeareth by comparing with this the verse before. Or rather, as having power among, and over the fiery thunderbolts, and meteors.

V. 15. Perfect in thy wayes] Which may be also understood of the state and condition, or of the enterprises, ver.12.

from the day that thou wast created] From the time thou wast first a settled Kingdom; as ver.13. He may haply seem to allude to the fall of wicked angels.

despise] Or, spoil.

CHAP. XXIX.

Vers. 1. IN] In this Chapter are two grievous prophesies, against Pharao and Egypt. One in the time of Jerusalem's siege. Another about 16 years after Jerusalem was taken: with a promise, both of Egypts restauration, though not in its former splendour and power, at the end of 40 years, after it had been laid waste by Nebuchadnezzar; and also of some good and comfort to Gods people at that time.

the tenth year] To wit, of the Captivity of Jeconiah, or of the reign of Zedekiah; that is, one year, and two dayes, after the siege of Jerusalem was begun.

V. 2. Pharaoh] This was Pharaoh Hophra, Jer.44 30.

against all Egypt] Isa 19. and 20. Chapter, Jer. 25. 19. and 46. Chapter.

V. 3. Dragon that lyeth in the midst] Chap.32.8. Psal.74.13,14. Isa.27.1. and 51.9. The Hebrew word signifieth any great water creature. Here is meant the Whale, or Leviathan, Job 41. or the Crocodile, the figure of Pharaoh.

my river is mine own] Ver.9. I possess a most fruitful Kingdome, and so strongly situated by reason of the river Nilus, that it cannot be taken from me by any strength.

I have made it for my self] I do not depend upon any one: as I have gotten, and increased my Kingdome of my self so am I sufficient to maintain it against all men.

V. 4. But I will put hookes] See this phrase, Chap.38.4. Esay 37.29.

I will bring thee up] I will draw thee out of the countrey which is so strong, together with all thy subjects, which will follow thee, to the end, that you being all slain, your bodies may lie for food for the fowls of the air, and the wild beasts of the field, Psal.74.14.

V. 5. into the wildernesse] If we may give credit to the history of Herodotus, this is to be understood of the desert of Lybia, neer Cyrene; where the Cyrenеans gave a great overthrow to Pharaoh, soon after he fled from Nebuchadnezzars hoast, that left the besieging of Jerusalem, to go against him. Otherwise, if we understand it of the overthrow and conquest, made of him, by Nebuchednezzar, we must refer it to a later time, according to that prophesie, particularly uttered against him, above sixteen years after this, set down in the latter part of this Chapter. vers. 17. to the end.

thou shalt fall] Thy army: For he escaped back to Egypt.

open fields] Heb. face of the field.

nor gathered] To be buried.

V. 6. have been] They have solicited my people to rebel against the Chaldeans, promising them assistance, and have violated their faith; and so have not been only unprofitable, but also very hurtful unto them, Esay 30.1. &c.

staff of reed] vers.7. 2 King.18.21. Isa.36.6. Jer.37.7,8.

V. 7. and madest all their loyns to be at a stand] The meaning seems to be this, Thou hast left them to defend themselves with their own strength, and alone to bear the burden of the War, which they had undertaken for thy advantage, or at thy instigation.

V.8. Therefore] Jer.43.8. and 44.30. and 46.13, &c. This seems fore-tel their desolation by Nebuchadnezzar.

V. 9. The river is mine] vers. 3. Thus God cannot suffer that man should arrogate any thing to himself, or put his trust in any thing, save in him alone.

and I have made it] He speaketh in the person of this King, or in general, of all the Kings of Egypt, his predecessors, who with great charges and labour, had brought Nilus with channels, over all the land of Egypt.

V. 10. utterly waste] Heb. wasts of wasts.

from the tower] From one end of Egypt to the other. See Chap. 30.6.

Syene] Heb. Seventh. It hath been, and is commonly thought, by reason of the likelinesse of the name, that it was the City of Syene, standing upon the South confines of Egypt, in Thebais, where there might be some tower, to mark the defect of shadows, in the very day of the Summer-solstice: as there was a well also to that purpose; as some write.

of Ethiopia] Heb. of Chush. That is, to the borders of the Chushites, or Arabians, Gen.10.7. for between Sevench and Arabia, is situated all Egypt: for Sevench was South-border of Egypt, confronting and joyning to Ethiopia; and the Chushites or Arabians, the North-border. So we are to understand, Chap. 30. 4,5,9.

V. 11. Neither shall it be inhabited fourty years] vers. 12. From the time it shall be destroyed by Nebuchadnezzar.

V. 13. At the end of fourty years] Likely about the time, Cyrus took Babylon, Jer.46.16.

V. 14. Pathros] Gen.10.14.

base Kingdome] Heb. low. Namely, subject and tributary to the Persians, who shall people it again. See Chap 17.6,14.

V. 16. the confidence] For any greatnesse and power the house of Isshel shall see hereafter to be in them.

which bringeth] By their former trusting and confidence in them, and not in me. And thereupon breaking their faith and oath to the Babylonians, Chap.21.23,24. and by complying with them also in their Idolatry, Chap.8.10.14. and 23.19,20,21. as Ahaz did. 2 Chron.28.23,23.

V. 17. Seven and twentieth year] Counting from the Captivity of Jeconiah. Of the order of these prophecies, and how the later sometimes stand before the former, see the Annotations on Jer.27. 1. This here placed is the last in time of all Ezekiels prophecies. For that, Chap.40. &c. was almost two full years before this. Two years spent in subduing Moab, Ammon, and neighbouring Nations; and 13 years in besieging Tyrus, as Josephus relates, libro 1. cont. Appionem Alexandrinum, will rise up to this accompt of 27 years, in which year Tyre was destroyed.

V. 18. Caused his army to serve] Namely, to execute my judgments upon Tyre, and therefore I will requite him.

every head was made bald] That is, they have suffered long and hard labours, and toyles, and have worn out themselves about it.

for Tyrus] Or, from, or, out of Tyrus.

V. 20. Take her spoil, and take her prey] Heb. spoil her spoil, and prey her prey.

V. 20. For his labour] Or, for his hire.

they wrought for me] To execute my judgments, though they did not know my will, nor had any intent to obey it, Isa.10.7.

V.21. In that day] When I shall beat down the Egyptians, then will I begin to raise up my people again in Babylon, by the exaltation of Jeconiah, Jer.52.31. which certainly caused a great deal of ease, and liberty to the Jewish prisoners. See Dan.2. 2 King. 25.27, &c.

bud] Psal.132.17.

I will give thee] The like words see Chap.24.27. and 33.22. The meaning is, I will make it so, that thou Ezekiel, as all the rest of the true believers, may freely, and with open mouthes, praise the Lord in your assemblies.

CHAP. XXX.

Vers. 1. THen the word] A prophesie of the destruction and desolation of Egypt, and her helpes and confederates, by Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon. And again repeated, in the eleventh year, first moneth, seventh day of Jehojachins Captivity.

V. 2. Howl ye] Namely, ye Egyptians and other Nations, which are subject to, and confederates with you.

woe worth the day] To wit, the day of the ruine of Egypt; where of he speaketh hereafter.

V. 3. A cloudy day] Of horrible and strange calamities: as rainy dayes are very rare and strange in Egypt.

heathen] In which the profane Nations, Egyptians, Chushites, and others, their confederates, shall be visited, and punished.

V. 4. Pain] Or, fear.

Ethiopia] Heb. Chush. A neighbouring and confederate Nation with Egypt; a people of Arabia.

V. 5. Lybia, and Lidia] Heb. Phut and Lud. Here are meant two Nations, auxiliaries to the Egyptians; the one a people living in Asia; the other, in Africa, if not both in Africa, Lydia seems to be Marzolis in Egypt, or Cyrene, the Southern parts of Africa. See Gen.10.6,13,22. Esay 66.19.

mingled people] See Jer.25.20,24. auxiliaries likewise to the Egyptians.

Chub] The name of some part of Africk, not mentioned elsewhere; yet most likely here are meant the inhabitants of the inner Lybia, by the river Niger. See Ptolomy in the fourth book of his Geography.

men of the land] Heb. children.

that is in league] It might be some land that was confederate with Egypt: or some country of divers Nations, which governed themselves in Commonalities, which were confederate one with another.

V. 6. They also that uphold] Namely, those armies, or nations, which shall take their parts, or relieve them.

Syene] Which was a strong City of Egypt, Chap.29.10. on the South border of it.

V. 7. And they shall be desolate] Chap.29.12.

V. 8. Fire in Egypt] By the Chaldeans indeed, but by my inward and secret working in them.

destroyed] Heb. broken.

V. 9. From me] Namely, from Egypt; but by my secret instinct and providence.

in ships] Upon the red sea; Isa.18.2.

as in the day of Egypt] As formerly all neighbouring Nations were astonished at the report, of this plague that shall now come upon Egypt. Or, at the report of the Egyptians plagues, and final discomfiture, of old, in the red Sea, Exod.7.8.9,10,12,14. Chapters.

It cometh] To wit, the foresaid Calamity.

V. 12. And I] Isa.19.5.

will make the rivers dry] Heb. throughs. That which is most fruitful by reason of the abundance of waters which are in it, shall become barren, and desolate, as if it were scorched up with the Sun. Or, I will make the rivers thereof to be no safeguard for it; but I will dry them up, to make the way plain and easie for the Babylonian to come, and destroy it. See Jer.50.38. and 51.32.

all that is therein] Heb. the fulnesse thereof.

V. 13. destroy the Idols] Zech.13.2. Jer.43.12, and 46.25.

Noph] Called Moph, Hosh. 9.6. afterward by the ancients, Memphis; seated upon Nile in Egypt on the borders of Ethiopia. See Esay 19.13. Jer.46.14.

Prince of the land of Egypt] Heb. out of the land; that is, a Native, or Egyptians shall rule them; but strangers.

V. 14. Pathros] The name of a Countrey in Egypt. See Chap. 29.14.

Zoan] Which is Tanais, one of the chief Cities of Egypt. See Num.13.22.

No] Jer.46.25. Nah.3.8. which is Alexandria.

V.15. Sin] Which is Pelusium, a strong frontier City of Egypt, over against Arabia Petræa. Whence likely the wildernesse of Sin hath its name.

V.17. Aven] Or, On. Which is the City Heliopolis, Gen. 41.45.

Phi-beseth] Called by Authors Bubastum.

These cities shall go into captivity] Ver.18. to wit, the multitude of people which is in them.

V. 18. Tehaphnehes] This is the City of Daphne, called here Thehaphnches, and Tahpanhes, Jer.43.7. likely from the name of that Queen, 1 King.11.19. This seems to be as it were the gate of Egypt, at which the Chaldeans came in, Jer.43.7,8,9.

darkened] Or, restrained. An extream Calamity, desolation, and confusion shall overtake them.

yokes] Their imperious tyranny: See Lev.26.13.

a cloud shall cover her] As if one should say, a sudden storm of evils, ver.3.

daughters shall go into captivity] That is, the Cities which are subject to the City-Royal, Chap.26.6.

V. 20. eleventh year] Of the Captivity of Jeconiah, or Zedekiah's reign. In which year Jerusalem was taken, three moneths and two dayes after,

V. 21. broken the arm] This hath relation, either to the first overthrow of the Egyptians under Necо at Carchemish, Jer.46.2. 2 Chr.35.20. 2 King.23.29. Or rather, to that newly received by the Cuthenens, as was shewed upon Chap.29.5. After which losse they could never recover, nor defend themselves, against the Chaldeans. See Chap.29.14,15.

it shall not be bound up] Jer.46.11. See Esay 1.6.

V. 22. break his armes] His Forces and powers.

V. 24. sword in his hand] To execute my judgements.

V. 25. when I shall put my sword] Whereby we see, that Tyrants have no power of themselves, neither can do any more harm, then God appointeth; and when he will, they must cease, Esay 10.5.

CHAP. XXXI.

Vers. 1. And it came to passe] In this Chapter the Prophet confirms the truth of his former Prophecie concerning the overthrow of Pharaoh, and Egypt, by the example of this like judgment upon the Assyrian; setting forth the Assyrians pride, his downfal; and How others were affected with it: with an application of it to Pharaoh.

in the eleventh year] Of Zedekiah's reign, or Jeconiah's Captivity, Chap.1.2. one moneth, and 14 dayes, since the former prophecie, Chap.30.20. and one moneth and 8 dayes before the taking of Jerusalem, Jer.52.5,6.

V. 2. whom art thou like] Meaning, that the Egyptian was not like in strength to the King of the Assyrians, whom the Babylonians overcame. This again is repeated in the conclusion, ver.18. See Isa.14.13. where the example is to be understood, of the Assyrian formerly overcoming the Babylonians; as more appeares, 2 King.17.24,30. and 18.12.

V. 3. Cedar in Lebanon] See Chap.17.3.22,23. Dan.4.10.

V.4. waters] The Assyrian was grown great through abundance of all prosperity, made him great] Or, nourished.

set him up] Or, brought him up.

with her rivers] The great sea of his happiness did seem to run round, as it doth at the coming in of great Rivers, at the foot of this tree: and he, the Assyrian out of his grace and plenty, seemed to send forth some small streams out of it to other Kingdoms; alluding likely herein, to the waters of Nilus, Chap.29.3.

little rivers] Or, conduits.

V. 5. when he shot forth] Or, when it sent them forth.

V. 6. Fowels of heaven] Dan.4.12. The greatest part of mankinde, retired under dominion and protection of the Assyrian.

V. 8. Cedars in the garden] Gen.2. Signifying that there was no greater power in the world, then that was of the Assyrian.

V. 10. Mighty one of the heathen] Verf.12. Chap.28.7. and 30. 11. that is of the Babylonian. Some understand this of Merodac-Baladan, who, as they say, overthrew Esarchaddon the Assyrian: but Ptolomy shewes in his Can. Regum, that this Merodac died before Esarchaddon (otherwise called thy great and noble Asnapper, Ezr.4.2,10.) reigned, and that Esarchaddon left Saosduchinus his successour in the Assyrian and Babylonian Empire. This mighty one here is rather to be understood of Nebuchadnezzar, who after was the Babylonian Monarch, and onely ruler of the world.

he shall surely deal with him] Heb. in doing he shall do unto him.

V. 12. Strangers] Hereby is signified the destruction of the power of the Assyrians by the Babylonians.

V. 13. Shall] Or, did.

fowls of the heaven] The Nations which were subject to the Assyrians, after the overthrow of the empire, did prey upon them with contempt.

Shall] Or, did.

V. 14. To the end that] I have set forth the spectacle of my judgements upon Ashur, to this end, for to teach all Princes that are grown great through my blessings, not to raise themselves against me, through pride; for they are all mortal by Nature, and I can bring down their estates as I have raised them.

neither shoot up their top] As the Assyrian did.

stand up in their height] Or, stand upon themselves for their height, for they are all delivered] Psal.82.7.

V. 15. caused a mourning] By this fall of Assyria, I raised a general horrour, and terrour in them all, seeing him on a sudden deprived of my help and blessing, by the meanes of which he had prospered so well.

to mourn for him] Heb. to be black.

V. 16. All the trees] Ver.8,9.

shall be] Or, were.

comforted in the nether parts of the earth] To cause this destruction of the King of Assyria to seem more horrible, he setteth forth other Kings and Princes which are dead, as though they rejoyced at the fall of such a Tyrant. A figurative and Poetical representation; as Isa.14.8,9,10. Ezek.32.31. Hab.1.6,7,8.

V. 17. His arm that dwelt under his shadow] That is, all under his protection and dominion.

V. 18. To whom are thou] He applyeth the foresaid things by comparison to Pharaoh; as if he should say, Compare thy self to whom thou wilt, thou canst not avoid the ruine that I shall bring upon thee; as thou mayst see in the foresaid example of the Assyrian.

uncircumcised] Chap.28.10.

This is Pharaoh] All this allegorical speech hath relation to Pharaoh.

CHAP. XXXII.

Vers. 1. And it came to passe] In this Chapter are the two last prophecies against Egypt: the one a fortnight after the other. In the former under the title, and by the similitude of a Whale, is set down the fearful destruction of Egypt, by Gods Judgments; with the manner of them, and universal astonishment at them, and by whom to be executed. In the latter is set down Egypts Funerall solemnity, as it were, and manifold welcoming to the grave.

in the twelfth year] Of the Captivity of Jehojachin, Chap.1.2. one one year, seven moneths, and 12 dayes after the City was taken, Jer.52.5,6. a moneth after the taking whereof, both Temple and City were burnt, Jer.52.12.

V. 2. Lion of the nations] In cruelty and violence. See Chap. 19. 2, &c.

whale] Or, Dragon, or, Crocodile. See Chap.29.3. Thus the Scriptures compare tyrants to cruel and huge beasts, which devour all that be weaker then they, and such as they may overcome.

earnest forth] By reason of the convenient situation of thy Kingdom, Nilus at many ports running into the mid-land sea, thou didst undertake divers enterprises, annoying and invading other Countries: a similitude taken from Crocodiles which come up into the land by divers armes of Nilus.

the rivers] The States of neighbouring Nations.

V. 3. spread out my net] Chap 12.13. and 17,20.

with a company of many people] That shall be as it were my fishers, under the standart of the Babylonian.

V. 4. Then will I leave thee] Chap.29.5.

V. 5. With thy height] With heapes of the carcasses of thine army, foremost thou in thine own eyes never so high and haughty.

V. 6. The land wherein thou swimmest] Or, the land of thy swimming; that is, the land subject to thy empire; namely, Egypt; and as Nilus over-floweth Egypt, so will I make the bloud of thine host to ove flow it.

V. 7. Put thee out] Or, extinguish.

I will cover the heaven] Joel 2.31. and 3.15. Mat.24.29. I will fill the world with horrour, and terrour, at thy ruine. See Isa. 13.10.

V. 8. bright lights of heaven] Heb. light of the light in heaven.

dark over thee] Heb. thou dark.

set darkenesse upon thy land] The darkenesse of sorrow, the darkenesse of confusion. I will deprive thee of all wisdome, and discretion, and will bring all thy state into confusion; extream miseries, and desolation.

V. 9. I will also vex] Heb. provoke to anger, or, grief, with horrour and fear, they seeing Egypt so mighty a Kingdom, perish, and the King of Babylon grown so great.

V. 10. Brandish my sword] In their sight, against thee, with such speedy and bloody execution.

moment] Chap.16.16.

V. 12. The terrible] Chap.28.7. and 30.11. and 32.12.and 26.7.

V. 13. All the beasts thereof] Their horses, in the multitude whereof they trusted so much, Esay 31.3.

great waters] From off the land of Egypt, which is abundantly watered, and therefore very fruitful.

neither shall the foot] Chap 29 11.

trouble them any more] A figurative description of a mighty desolation of a waterish Countrey, wherein there is neither man, nor beast, for to trouble the waters.

V. 14. waters deep] It seems to be understood of the Chaldeans, their enemies, which shall quickly enjoy all their commodities. Or else, of other Nations, formerly, as waters, troubled with the feet of the Egyptians, as ver. 2. which now hence-forth should be quiet, as deep waters, and oil, runs smoothly and quietly, not turbulently.

V. 15. desolate of that whereof it was full] Heb. desolate from the fulnesse thereof.

V. 16. The daughters] The Cities, and Commonalties.

V. 17. Twelfth year] See ver. 1. Fifteen dayes after the former prophecie: a kind of funeral dirge and exequie over Pharaoh and Egypt.

Moneth] Namely, the twelfth moneth, ver. 1.

V. 18. wail for the multitude] Make some kind of funeral exequies for Egypt, by lamentations, or mournful songs, according to the custome; and for the funeral of other Nations likewise.

cast them down] That is, prophecie, that they shall be cast down. Thus the Lord giveth his Prophets power to plant and to destroy, by his word: Read Jer.1.10. Or, (as others) carry but as it were Egyptes funeral, and bear it to the grave.

V. 19. whom dost thou passe] O Egypt, what priviledge hast, or deservest thou, more then all the other profane Nations, and Kingdoms? Thou must even perish, as all the rest have, and must do, Chap.31.18.

with the uncircumcised] Ver 28 —— 30,32. See Chap.28.10.

V. 20. shall fall in the midst] God will make a general destruction of such people by war. To do which, he hath already given the Chaldeans a commission.

She is delivered] Or, the sword is laid.

draw her] Or, they shall draw; That is, Egypt; even as one would draw a dead carcasse.

V. 21. mighty shall speak] To make the matter the more sensible, he useth a poetical and ironical representation, of the entertainment which other Princes and warlike Nations, and especially those which were Egypts confederates, and were already dead, would give Pharaoh at his coming into Hell or the grave. See Isa.14.9,10,14,15.

V. 22. his graves] Namely, the graves of his men which were slain in the Wars. Or, the graves of the Assyrian compassing round about the grave of the new come Egyptian, surrounding him, and giving him the middle and chief place. See ver. 2,3. and 25.

V. 23. Caused terrour] Or, caused dismaying: who had also been violent and tyrannical in this world, like Egypt.

V. 24. There is Elam] Meaning the King and people of Persia, and Media; or of some part of it, Gen.10.22. They had been overthrown sooner after the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah, Jer.49.34, &c.

in the land of the living] Whom, in his life, all the World feared.

V. 25. round about him] See ver.22.

he is put in the midst] See ver. 22.

V. 26. There is Meshech] Gen.10.2. that is, the Cappadocians, and Italians, or Spaniards; as Josephus writeth.

Tubal] Usually joyned with Meshech. See Chap.27.13.

V. 27. Not lie with the mighty] These Kings did not die gloriously, having overcome their enemies; neither are buried triumphantly with their arms, as it is the manner to honour Warriours burials; but these are dead basely, being overcome and discomfited by their enemies. Others thus; That though Meshech and Tubal were not dead, and lying with the mighty that are fallen of the uncircumcised; but did now domineer over Elam; yet they should fall before the time of the Egyptians fall; and their graves should be round about his, as is here expressed.

with their weapons of war] Heb. with weapons of their war.

their swords under their heads] The ancient manner of warlike funerals. Not much unlike ours in these times. Other funerals content themselves with Scutchions, Coat-armour, and other ensigns of honour.

their iniquities shall be upon their bones] They which have not suffered punishment for their faults, and tyrannies in this life; yet it shall be reserved for them, to be inflicted upon them after their death; by reason that no man dust undertake to punish them whilst they lived.

V. 28. Thou shalt be broken] Namely, thou O King of Egypt. Some understand it of Meshech and Tubal.

V. 29. All her Princes] Gen.36.40.

laid] Heb. given, or, put.

V. 30. Princes of the North] Of Tyre, Damascus, Syria, and others; those Chap. 26. and 27. and 28. Jer.47. and 49.22,23,&c.

with their terrour] Notwithstanding, or together with, that great power, with which they kept men subject to their tyranny.

are ashamed of their might] Because that it could not save them, but is at the last come to nothing.

V. 31. shall be comforted] As the wicked comfort themselves, when they see others partakers of their miseries: but a poor Comfort.

V. 32. I have caused my terrour] I will make the Egyptians afraid of me, as they caused others to fear them. Others, I have stayed their fury through my terrible judgments.

CHAP. XXXIII.

Vers. 1. AGain the word] In this Chapter God declares the duty of a Watchman; applyes and enjoyns it to Ezekiel. Clears his justice against the Cavill of the Jewes, that his wayes are not equall. And upon the Prophets hearing of the taking of the City, God commands him to Prophecie the further destruction of the remnant left in Judea; And shews him the hypocrisie of those with him in the Captivity.

V. 2. unto the Children of thy people] Though for a time I did silence thee from preaching to them, Chap.24.27. (And thereupon from that Chapter to this, his Prophecies are against forraign Nations;) yet now the sign being come that I then foretold, Chap.24.26. and 33.21. According to my promise then made, I do again open thy mouth, that thou be no longer dumb and silent towards them: But I enjoyn thee again to speak and prophecie unto the Children of thy people. Attend therefore unto thy function; to the duty, and necessity of it.

when I bring] God the Author of punishments, by wars, &c. Amos 3.6.

the sword upon a land] Heb. a land when I bring a sword upon her: That is, war, with all the sudden invasions, in-roads, and dangers belonging to it.

of their Coasts] For, on the Coasts and borders of the land, watches are set in times of war, and invasions.

watchman] He mindeth, that the people ought to have continually Governours, and Teachers, which may have a care over them, and to warn them ever of the dangers which are at hand.

V. 4. whosoever heareth] Heb. he that hearing heareth.

his bloud shall be upon his own head] Onely, not on the Watchmans head; his death must not be imputed to any other, but to himself.

V. 6. He is taken away in his iniquity] Signifying, that the wicked wicked shall not escape punishment, though the Watchman be negligent; but if the Watchman blow the trumpet, and then he will not obey, he shall deserve double punishment.

but his bloud] The Watchman must answer for his part, for the blood of all that perish through his fault and negligence.

V. 7. So thou] God applies the former case to the Prophet.

I have set thee a watchman] Chap.3.17, &c.

at my mouth] Which teacheth, that he that receiveth not his charge at the Lords mouth, is a spie, and not a true Watchman.

V. 8. when I say unto the wicked] Chap.3.18.

V. 10. Thus ye speak] Against me, and thee, and thy Prophecies; and against themselves.

if our transgressions] The meaning is, it is true that you Prophets have admonished us heretofore; and we having neglected your admonitions, do bear our punishment, and are now ruined past all relief; how should we then live? How canst thou now prophecie and promise life unto us? What good doth it do then to speak to us any more of those preservations against the evil, into which we are already fallen? The Lord answereth, I even then protested and promised life to the repentant, Chap.18.23. And yet your ruine is not so extream, but that you may rise again by true repentance; which cometh alwayes in time, either before, or after the punishments, so it come during life.

V. 12. The righteousnesse] Chap.18.24.

V. 13. that he shall surely live] If he persevere to the end; A condition necessarily annexed to all the promises of the Law.

all his righteousnesse shall not be remembred] Or, not any of all his righteousnesse shall be remembred.

V. 14. that which is lawful and right] Hereby he condemneth all them of hypocrisie, which pretend to forsake wickednesse, and yet declare not themselves such by their fruits; that is, in obeying Gods Commandments, and by godly life.

V. 22. Now the hand] I was indued with the spirit of prophecie, Chap.1.3. and 8.1.

had opened my mouth] He had again appointed me to speak to the people, after I had a while held my tongue by his command; and had revealed unto me, and inspired me with what I should say, according to the prediction, Chap.24.26,27. And hereby is signified, that the Ministers of God cannot speak till God give them Courage, and open their mouthes, Chapter 29. vers. 21. Ephes. 6.19.

V. 24. Speak] Proudly and presumptuously.

those wastes] Ver.27.

Abraham was one] And yet God gave him this land by promise. We are many, and Abrahams heires; Therefore we sure shall inherit it. And if out of Abraham alone could come so numerous an issue, as could conquer & people all this Countrey; how much more may we hope that are left in great Number, that we may be restored to our former estate, which is beaten down by the Chaldeans; and once again repossesse, and be masters of the Countrey? Thus the wicked think themselves more worthy to enjoy Gods promises, then the Saints of God to whom they were made; and would bind God to be subject to them, though they would not be bound to him.

V. 25. ye eat the bloud] Contrary to the Law, Gen.9.4. Lev.7. 26. and 17.10. and 19.26. Deut.12.16. which ye transgresse; and so declare ye are not true sons of Abraham, Joh.8.39.

and lift up your eyes] Chap.18.6.

V. 26. Ye stand] Ye men stand upon the sword, and force, or violence; and ye women work abomination: meaning, that every one righteth himself, defends, and revengeth himself, and wrongs others by violence; and justice, and good order, and honestly, are quite beaten down.

V. 27. they that are in the wastes] That inhabite those wastes of the land of Israel, vers.24. those now left in the land, 2 King.25. 12,22. Jer.40 5, &c.

This declareth, that we ought to hear Gods Word with such zeal and affection, that we should in all points obey it; else we abuse the Word to our own condemnation, and make of his Ministers, as though they were Jesters, to serve mens foolish fantasies.

V. 32. A very lovely song] Heb. a song of Loves.

V. 33. when this Cometh] That, ver.27,28,28. that is, the accomplishments of my threatnings in the last ruine of the whole Nation.

That a Prophet] Chap.2.5.

CHAP. XXXIV.

Vers. 1. AND the word of the Lord] A Prophecy against the Shepherds of Israel; their male-administration. The hurt of it to the sheep. Gods judgments upon them for the male-administration. He will deliver his flock from them; gather them, bring them back, and be a good Shepherd to them. He will judge between the sheep, bad and good. He will set up one shepherd, with many gracious promises thereto annexed.

V. 2. Shepherds of Israel] Jer.23.1.

woe be to the shepherds] By the Shepherds, he meaneth the King, the Magistrates, Priests, and Prophets, all Governours both Ecclesiastical, and Politick.

that do feed themselves] Or, that should feed them; that is, the Sheep of Israel.

should not] Their duty.

V. 3. Ye eat the fat] Do the contrary to your duty. You seek to enrich your selves by their Commodities; and so spoil their riches, and substance, Zach.11.5,16.

V. 4. the diseased have ye not strengthened] By their faults, and failings, he shewes the office and duty of a good Pastor; who ought to love and succour his flock, & not to be cruel toward them:

with force and with cruelty have ye ruled them] 1 Pet.5.3.

V. 5. And they were scattered] Spiritually, by running into errours, superstitious Idolatries, vices, and discorders: or corporally by their diffipation out of their Countrey by the ill leading of their guides. Here is the hurt the sheep received by their male-administration.

because there is no shepherd] Or, without a shepherd; and so ver.8. that is, no true and faithful shepherd. For lack of good Government, and Doctrine, they perished, Zech.11.17.

V. 6. and none did search] As shepherds in duty ought to have done. See ver.12.

V. 8. As I live] God, as it were, in a passion against these evil Shepherds; to grate again upon their fault, breaks off his sentence, begun against them in the former verse; and resumes it, after this verse.

V. 10. for I will deliver my flock from their mouth] By destroying the Covetous hirelings, and restoring true shepherds; wherein we have a sign, so oft as God sendeth true Preachers, who both by Doctrine and life, labour to feed his sheep in the pleasant pasture of his Word, ver.22.

V. 12. As a shepherd seeketh] Heb. according to the seeking.

in the day that he is among his sheep] When after they have been scattered by some sudden storm, the shepherd tells, and reckons up his sheep, to see whether any be wanting; and then seeketh them out, and brings them back, and gathereth them together, and feeds them, and folds them.

in the cloudy and dark day] Which is full of Calamities, and publick desolations, Joel.2.2. And this promise is to comfort the Church in all dangers.

V. 13. and will bring them to their own land] Corporally, and according to the letter, into the Land of Israel, by delivering them out of captivity, Chap.36.24. and spiritually, into the Church, which is the true sheepfold of all the elect, Joh.10.16.

V. 14. I will feed them in a good pasture] Psal.23.1,2.

upon the high mountains of Israel] A countrey full of high and fruitful mountains, Chap 36.1.

V. 15. I will feed my flock] This doth not infer any abolishment of either Ecclesiastical or Politick Government in the Christian Church; but doth infer a more effectual and renewed presence of God in it, by his Spirit, providence, grace, and virtue; or the mystical and inward operation of Christ, true God, upon all the members of his body, in quickening, conducting, comforting, and defending them.

V. 16. destroy the fat and the strong] Those who in my Church shall abuse my benefits unto pride, and rebellion against me; and to contempt and oppression of their brethren, ver. 21. See Isa. 10. 16. Amos 4. 1. Deut. 32. 15. Psal. 78. 31.

with judgment] That is, by putting a difference between the good and the bad, and so give to either according to his work; as in the next verse. See Psal. 61. 11, 12.

V. 17. Behold I judge] Vers. 22. Chap. 20. 37, 38. Zech. 10. 3. Mat. 25. 32.

cattel and cattel] Heb. smal cattel of lambs and kids.

he-goates] Heb. great he-goates.

V. 18. Seemeth it a small thing unto you] O ye powerful and rich Jewes, is it not sufficient for you to enjoy my blessings in abundance, unlesse ye trouble the Poor in the possession of their small portion?

to have eaten up the good pasture, but, &c.] By good pasture, and deep waters may be meant the pure word of God, and the administration of justice, which they did not distribute to the poor, till they had corrupted it.

V. 28. but they shall dwell safely] Jer. 30. 10. and 46. 27. Esay 43. 5.

V. 29. a plant] Jesus Christ, glorious in his Divine Majesty and strength: being the true tree of life. See Isa. 11. 1. Jer. 23. 5. Or else, his Church, not of Jewes onely, but of Gentiles also, planted and rooted in him; and made famous through his gifts and graces.

of renown] Or, for renown. Christ, and his Church likewise, shall be of renown, not onely among the Jews, as in time past, but also abroad among the Gentiles, which is demonstrated in the last verse; and more copiously, Chap. 36.

V. 31. my flock, the flock of my pasture] Joh. 10. 11. Psal. 100. 3. men] as Esay 7. 7. All the aforesaid things are to be understood spiritually, with a relation to the soul of the elect, and the salvation of it: so that the correspondency which is between the sheep, a brute beast; and the shepherd, which is man, is found in spirit between Man, and his God.

CHAP. XXXV.

Vers. 1. MOreover] Gods Judgments of desolation upon Mount Seir, for their hatred, bloodinesse, envy, and anger against the Jewes; for their greedinesse after their land and possession, and joy at their fall: and for their boasting, and blasphemy against God.

V. 2. Set thy face] Chap. 6. 2.

in the time that their iniquity had an end] Or, brought an end. At which time the measure of my peoples sin being full, I also caused my judgments to fall violently upon them, Ezek. 21. 25.

V. 6. bloud shall pursue thee] Namely, the sword, and violent Death.

sith thou hast not hated bloud] Psal. 109. 17, 18.

V. 9. I will make thee perpetual desolations] Jer. 49 10, 13, 17, 18, 21. Mal. 1. 3, 4.

and thy Cities shall not return] To wit, to their former estate.

V. 10. These two Nations] Of the Israelites, subdued by the Assyrian; and of Judah, by Nebuchadnezzar. Thou hast perswaded thy self that thou should'st possesse the land of Judah, and of the ten Tribes.

and we will possesse it] Psal. 83. 5, 13. Chap. 36. 2, 3, 5.

whereas the Lord was there] Or, though the Lord was there. Though the Lord had taken it for his own proper habitation, placing his people there; and his Temple, with the signs of his presence. Thus they blaspheme God himself; as himself doth challenge them for it, ver. 13.

V. 11. And I will make my self known among them] I will make my self known to my Church, by new tryals of my justice and power against her enemies; and of my love and mercy towards her.

V. 12. to consume] Heb. to devour. See Psal. 137. 7.

V. 13. boasted] Heb. magnified.

and have multiplyed your words against me] 1 Sam. 2. 3.

V. 14. when the whole earth rejoyceth] Namely, when I shall cause all the world to rejoyce at my peoples deliverance, and their re-establishment in their Countrey, then will I increase thy desolation. This was partly verified in the Idumeans; but hath been accomplished in the enemies of the Church; whose curse and condemnation increased, when salvation appeared to the Elect, and Believers through Christ. Or, as some do render and interpret the words; As that whole land rejoyceth, (that is, though all Edom rejoyce now at Judahs fall) I will make thee desolate; that is, yet for all thy present joy, I will make the Edom desolate. And this seems best to agree with the next verse.

CHAP. XXXVI.

Vers. 1. ALso thou son of man] A summe of the former Chapter; for Gods judgments upon Edom, and the Causes thereof, here repeated. And notwithstanding his peoples sinning, and being therefore chastised and scattered among the Nations, and yet continuing there to sin, nevertheless for his own names sake, the Lord gives, and will make good unto them, many great and gracious promises, both spirituall, and temporal; chiefly in Christ.

V. 3. because] Heb. because for because.

ye are taken up in the lips of talkers] Or, Ye are made to come upon the lip of the tongue.

V. 4. rivers and to the valleys] Or, bottomes, or, dales.

V. 5. which have appointed my land into their possession] they appointed with themselves to have it; and therefore came with Nebuchadnezzar against Jerusalem for this purpose.

V. 6. the shame of the heathen] Because you have been a laughing stock unto them.

V. 7. I have lifted up mine hand] As Gen. 14. 22. by making a solemn oath: read Chap. 20. 5.

V. 8. Ye shall shoot forth your branches] Ye shall be endowed with new fruitfulnesse, which my people shall enjoy, being shortly to come out of Captivity: a figurative description of the happinesse which shall be in the world under the Messias, in the behalf of the Church.

for they are at hand to come] I will shortly bring back the Israelites unto you.

V. 9. I will turn unto you] Take care of you, Deut. 11. ver. 12.

V. 11. Then at your beginnings] Which was accomplished under Christ, to whom all these temporals did direct them.

V. 12. Men to walk upon you] That is, upon the mountains of Jerusalem. Some render the words and sense thus, I will bring men unto you, with my people Israel, Men of other Nations, together with the Jews, into the inheritance of my people, to be my people. And in this sense they take also the last verse of the 34. Chap.

34. Chapter. But this seems not so genuine and proper to the Nature and Letter of the original words.

be their inheritance] Figuring that 1 Pet. 1. 4.

beveave them of men] By consuming them in the land, or spewing them out of the land. See Lev. 18. 28. and 20. 22. & 26. 20, 22. God seems to attribute here the desolations which happened to his people, by hunger, pestilence, and war, to the countrey; by a similitude of evil women, that do kill their burden in the womb.

V. 13. Thou land devourest up men] Thou art an accursed countrey, condemned to all manner of misery; the inhabitants of which cannot live; the Canaanites having first been rooted out of it; and since that, the Israelites. This the enemy imputed, as the reproach of the land, which God did for the sins of the people, according to his just judgments, Num. 13. 32.

V. 14. Therefore thou shalt devour men no more] Thou shalt no more be subject to those frequent calamites, which have made thee infamous.

V. 15. the nations to fall any more] By ministring to them any occasion of that reproach, ver. 13. But thou shalt foster thine inhabitants, and yield forth to them all accommodations, and commodities, Hos. 2. 22, 23.

V. 17. as the uncleannesse of a removed woman] Which is extremely abominable, Lev. Chap. 12. and Chap. 15.

V. 20. they profaned my holy name] By their sinning amongst them, Rom. 2. 24. and likewise through their misery, and slavery, occasioned by their own sins, they have given their enemies occasion of blaspheming me; as if I their God could not have saved them; or as if I were not faithful in my promises. See Esay 52. 5.

when they said] These are they which call themselves the Lords people, & come as it were out of his school, and yet are so wicked. Thereby they profaned Gods holy Name among the Heathen.

V. 21. but I had pity for mine holy name] Or, tendred mine. For to free my Name from these imputations, I have resolved to forgive my people, and to re-establish them.

V. 22. but for my holy names sake] Ver. 32. This excludeth from man all dignity, and mean to deserve any thing, by seeing that God referreth the whole to himself, and that onely for the glory of his holy name, Deut. 7. 7, &c. and 9. 5. Isa. 43. 25.

V. 23. I will sanctifie my great name] Chap. 38. 22. I will cause my divine perfections to be known by the effects contrary to those slanders; that my holy name may be respected, and honoured by all men, as it ought to be.

their eyes] Or, your.

V. 24. I will take you from among, &c.] By the return from Babylon, is figured and comprehended the salvation of the Church by the Messias; together with the abundance of all spiritual graces; of vocation, justification, regeneration, and holinesse of life, in the verses following.

V. 25. Then will I sprinkle clean water upon you] I will largely communicate my grace unto you, and grant you pardon for all your sins, purchased with the price of my sonnes, bloud, which was shed for the sins of the world, Eph. 5. 26. Heb. 9. 14. 1 Joh. 1. 7. Isa. 44. 23. 1 Pet. 1. 2.

V. 26. A new heart also will I give you] Chap. 11. 19. Jer. 31. 33. and 32. 39.

the stony heart out of the flesh] Namely, the hard heart, which hath been inflexible to my Spirit, of my Word and Judgments, and impenetrable to my grace.

of flesh] Pliable, and capable of being in-lived and governed by my Spirit; as amongst natural bodies, there is none fitting nor apt to receive and contain the vital Spirit, but onely the fleshly body.

V. 27. Spirit within you] Chap. 11. 19.

V. 29. Save you] By my free justification, I will free you from that punishment which your filthinesse deserves: and by the sanctification of my Spirit, I will free you from the corruption and slavery of sin.

I will call for the corn] By mine almighty Word, I will cause all manner of good things to be brought forth unto you, as if they came upon a call; as Psal. 105. 16.

V. 31. Then shall ye remember your own evil wayes] Chap. 6. 9. and 20. 43.

loathe your selves] Ye shall come to true repentance, and think your selves unworthy to be of the number of Gods Creatures for your ingratitude against him.

V. 32. Not for your sakes do I this] Not for any desert or worth that is in you; as ver. 22.

V. 35. the garden of Eden] Chap. 28. 13. Esay 33. 20, &c.

V. 36. shall know] He declares, that it is God that brings a Kingdome and Countrey, from ruine and desolation, to a flourishing estate; and that it ought not to much to be referred to the soil or plentifulnesse of the earth, that any Countrey is rich and abundant, as to Gods mercies: as his plagues, and curses do declare, when he can, and doth make it barren for sin, Psal. 107. 33, 34.

I the Lord have spoken it] Chap. 17. 24. and 22. 14. and 37. 14.

V. 37. I will yet] I will be prompt and ready to do it: or, though I have promised to bestow on them these good things, yet I will by prayer be sought unto for them, and will give them multitudes of people to enjoy them; as ver. 10, 11.

enquired] Or, sought to; as Isa. 55. 6. Psal. 111. 2.

V. 38. as the holy flock] Heb. flock of holy things, which was brought into Jerusalem, at the three solemn feasts, for sacrifices, in innumerable quantities; so shall the multitudes of the faithful be, who are all made spiritual priests in Christ, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, Rom. 12. 1.

CHAP. XXXVII.

Vers. 1. THE hand] Under a Type of dried bones is shadowed out the Jewes desperate condition in, and wonderful deliverance out of, the captivity of Babylon; and under the type of two sticks united, is set forth the union of Judah and Israel; of Jew and Gentile, in the perfect instauration of the Church, under Christ.

V. 3. these bones] So dry.

live?] By any way, or natural power, that thou knowest, be brought to their former state of life in this world? for the article of resurrection is not here questioned.

V. 4. Prophecie upon these bones] Be thou the instrument and interpreter of mine almighty Will and Word; by which invision these bones shall seem to chee, to have life put into them: for a sign that by my power: my people shall be re-establisht in their former estate.

V. 7. there was a noise] A fore-going sign of Gods glorious presence, shewing his power, in a miraculous and supernatural work, Chap. 3. 12. Act. 2. 2.

bone to his bone] Joyning themselves again into their natural joints.

V. 9. wind] or, breath.

And say to the wind] To the soul of man, or to the holy Ghost it self; who (a personal property is to quicken, and cause all things to live, Psal. 104. 30.

Come from the four winds] For to signifie the restauration of the people from all those places where they had been scattered.

And breath upon these slain] Send the Soul and Spirit of Life into every one of these dead bodies, by the operation of thy divine power. He seems to have respect to the manner of the creating, and infusing the Soul into Adam: described Gen. 2. 7.

V. 11. these bones are] The interpretation and application of the fore-going Type.

our bones are dried] We are destroyed beyond hope of restauration; we are in Babylon like dried bones, in a sepulchre, or scattered at the graves mouth, Psal. 141. 7.

V. 12. I will open your graves] Isa. 26. 19. Hos. 13. 14. Joh. 5 28, 29.

V. 13. when I have opened your graves] That is, when I have brought you out of those places, & townes, where you are captives.

V. 14. have spoken it, and] Chap. 17. 24. and 22. 14.

V. 16. take thee] A Type of the perfect Restauration of Church by Christ.

V. 17. into one stick] Which signified the joyning together of the two houses of Israel and Judah, ver. 22.

V. 19. I will take] The interpretation, and application of this Type.

Stick of Joseph] Of the ten Tribes represented by the stick of Joseph: by reason that the tribe of Ephraim, the son of Joseph, had ruled over them.

V. 22. And I will make them one nation] vers. 19. Isa. 11. 13. Jer. 3. 18. Hos. 1. 11. And under this as a type, may be shadowed and comprehended, the gathering together of Jew and Gentile, into one visible Church, under Christ; annihilating by the Cross of Christ, the divisions and enmities of the Nations; as of Judah, and of the ten tribes; which oftentimes are used by the Prophets for a figure of the division, which was between the Jews and the Gentiles, Isa. 11. 13. Eph. 2. 14, 15, 16. And lastly, the uniting of all the elect, of what Nation soever they be, into one spiritual body.

one King shall be King to them all] Ver.24. Joh.10.16. the Messias.

V. 23. their dwelling places] Wheresoever they shall be in exile or captivity, as in Babylon, in Egypt, and other places of the world; where either willingly, or by compulsion, they have been partakers of Pagan idolatries, Ezek.14.3. and 20.30,39. Jer.44.8.

V. 24. David] Chap. 34.23. Isa.40.11. Jer.23.5. and 30.9. Dan.9.24,25. Hos.3.5. Jesus Christ the son of David according to the flesh.

V. 25. dwell in the land, That] Meaning that both Judah and Israel shall return to Canaan, a type of the heavenly Jerusalem, wherein all the elect, by Christ, shall dwell.

V. 26. Covenant of peace] Chap.34.25. Psal.89 3.

multiply them] Chap.36.37,38.

and will set my sanctuary in the midst of them] I will be present in my grace, word, and spirit, in their assemblies, and in their heart. Of which spiritual presence, the Tabernacle and Sanctuary, heretofore were signes and pledges, Lev.26.11,12. 1 Cor.3.16. 2 Cor.6.16. Exod.25.8. 1.2.

V. 27. I will be their God] Chap.11.20. and 14.11.

V. 28. Do sanctifie Israel] That is, do take it, and consecrate it to my self, and by my presence do keep it holy, and inviolable, against all manner of injuries and offences.

CHAP. XXXVIII.

Vers.1. AND] The army malice, and mischief of Gog and his adherents, against the Jewes, after their return out of Captivity, and before the coming of the Messias. Gods judgments upon Gog therefore.

the word of the Lord came] That these two Chapters following belong to the same thing, it plainly appears. In the Chapters before, the Prophet fore-told two things: first, the restoring of his people from the Babylonish Captivity: Secondly, their uniting in Christs Kingdome. But after their return, and before the coming of the Messiah, and setting up of his Kingdom, God sheweth them afore-hand, in these two Chapters, that many calamities should happen to them, and many judgments from God should fall upon the enemies of the Church. The like anticipation is used, Jer.31. verse 15.

V. 2. Set thy face against] Chap.6.2. and 35.2. This Prophecie is to be referred to the desolation that should come upon the Jews after their return from Babylon, Dan.8. and 11. Chapters.

Gog] Rev.20.8. that is, the Kings of Asia Minor, and Syria, whose history is in the bookes of the Maccabees; where it is shewed how it came to pass, that they, and their armies fell in Judea. And these two names Gog and Magog largely note the Kingdome of the Seleucidæ; in Asia Minor, Græcia, Syria, and those parts, wherein divers of the name of Seleucus, as Antiochus, Demetrius, Nicanor, did reign and rule. To the same also do belong Meshech, Tubal, Paras, Gomer, and Togarma, verse 5,6.

the land of Magog] Or, in the land. Most likely the inhabitants of Scythia, or Sarmatia: which did over-run the countries, even to Syria, and built Hierapolis, called in the Syrian tongue Magog; as some note out of Pliny, lib.5. Chap.23.

the chief prince of Meshech] Or, prince of the chief; that is, of a province which shall rule over others, or be governour of many: for the Prophet reciteth the names of certain Nations, by whom are to be understood, all they, whose endeavour and help the Kings of Syria used to invade Judea; as appears ver.5. and in the following verses.

of Meshech and Tubal] See Annotations on Chap.27. ver.13.

V. 3. O Gog] That is, all the Nations, Ministers to the King of Syria, to overthrow my people. Gog, or Gyges properly, was servant to Candaules King of Lydia, whom the Queen would have killed, because the King might see him where he might see her naked, going to bed to her husband, except he would agree with her to kill his master Candaules, and marry her, which he did perform; and to root out Candaules his name, who came of Lydus, of whom the Countrey was named Lydia, he called the Countrey Lydia, by the name of Gygea, or Gogs land. Croesus, Gogs successour, was conquered by Cyrus the Persian. The Persians were conquered by the Greeks, who holding that land, are here called Gog and Magog.

V. 4. I will turn thee back] Chap.39.2. After thou hast assaulted my people, thou shalt turn into Syria, and to thine own place. The Syrian Kings made many incursions into Judea. Or rather, After the aforesaid assaults, and return, I will turn thee back thither again to re-assault them; but to thine own destruction.

and put hooks into thy chaws] 2 King.19.28. Ezek.29.4.

I will bring thee forth] That is, I will bring thee, and the Nations, which are named in the following verses, forth out of their countries: shewing that the enemies should bend themselves against the Church; but it should be to their own destruction.

all of them] Chap.23.12.

clothed with all sorts of armour] That is, compleatly furnished with military necessaries.

V. 5. Persia] Whereof part paid tribute to Antiochus Epiphanes, Macc.3.31.

Ethiopia] In Hebrew, Cush: he was the first born of Cham, Gen. 10.6. The Ethiopians came of him; and here, as divers times elsewhere, the first Fathers are put for the posterity arising from them.

Libia with them] Or, Phut, the third son of Ham, Gen. 10.6. of whom came the Cyreneans. By the help of the Ethiopians (spoken of before) and the Cyreneans, Alexander was put to flight, and Demetrius restored to the Kingdom by Ptolemy Evergetes, 1 Macc.18. and 11. Chapters.

V. 6. Gomer] Gomer was Japhets first son, and Togarmah the third son of Gomer, Gen.10.3. and are thought to be they that inhabite Asia Minor, whose posterity were subject to the Seleucidæ.

Togarma] See Annotations on Chap.27.14.

V. 7. Prepare for thy self] Signifying, that all the people of these countries, should assemble themselves against the Church of the Jews, and that the land of Gog and Magog, by Grecians, should afflict them; with great helps from many Northern countries, ver.15. Chap.39.2.

V. 8. a guard unto them] That is, be thou their Emperour, to keep them from hostile assault. Some say, that Gog should compass the mountains of Israel, as in the next verse, with the multitude of his armies, and think to hold all the Jews, as shut in prison, or inclosed in a pit. And that Kings of Syria have done so, all histories testifie; so verf.9. Others say, it is an ironical speech; as if he should say, Defend them, if it may be, from my power and battel, which I will give them.

V. 8. after many dayes] To wit, in the times of the Maccabees, above two hundred years after this Prophecy; in the parted Kingdom of the Greeks, under the Seleucidæ, and Lagidæ; the Kings of the North, and South, Dan.11. This fell out.

visited] That is, in anger. Or, God will punish thee, O Gog, and from the times of Seleucus Nicanor, the wonderful judgments of God began to be executed, for the defence of his people, against the Grecian Kings.

in the latter years] A little before the coming of Christ in the flesh: whence there should begin a new world.

brought back from the sword] Saved from the precedent ruines of war: a description of the land of Israel. But by the land is to be understood the inhabitants; because it is said to be brought back, as it was promised, Chap.37.

against] Or, upon.

always waste] That is, a long time, and which seemed never to have been restored to its former state.

V. 9. like a storm] See Prov.1.27. Job.30.14.

V. 10. think an evil thought] Or, conceive a mischievous purpose, to molest and destroy the Jews.

V. 11. of unwalled villages] Meaning Judea; which was destroyed, and not yet built again. And this black face, or sad condition befel her, from the vastation wrought, by the Chaldeans under King Nebuchadnezzar, who destroyed the Cities and defenced places, leaving them but unwalled towns. See Deut.3 5.

rest] Haply relating hereby, in part, to the simplicity of the godly, who seek not so much to fortifie themselves, by outward force, as to depend on the providence and goodnesse of God.

Safely] Or, confidently: or, securely.

V. 12. to take a spoil] Heb. to spoil the spoil, and to prey the prey. to turn thine hand upon the desolate places] To renew, and bring again the ancient desolations of this poor Countrey, restored from its former ruines; to spoil them again.

midst of the land] In Hebrew, Upon the Navel of the land. That is, in the higher places, as mountains and hills; or, in the heart or middle, where there is more security, then in the confines: a metaphor; such as is, Judg.9.37.

V. 13. Sheba and Dedan] The Arabians; Sheba and Dedans posterity. They came of Chush, Gen. 10. 7. See Annotations on Chap.27.15,20,22.

merchants of Tarshish] There chiefly are to be understood, they of Tyrus and Sydon, and others passing the seas for gain: meaning the Arabians and Marine Nation, will come to thee to partake in thy spoils.

young Lions thereof] The Pirates and Robbers at sea, which are, as it were, the sea-beasts. Others say, merchants that lye in wait for gain, as the Lion doth for his prey.

Art thou come?] Without us? As if they should say, If therefore thou comest, we will joyn with thee. Others thus, One enemy shall envy another; because every one shall think to have the spoil of the Church.

V. 14. dwelleth safely] Or, secretly; at peace with all, and suspecting nothing; Then shalt thou spie thine occasions to come against my Church, when they suspect nothing.

shalt thou not know it?] That is, Thou shalt surely know my judgment against thee for this; as may appear, by comparing the 16,18. and following verses.

V.16. latter dayes] Meaning in the latter age, before the coming of the Messiah.

be sanctified in thee] When in punishing thee, O Gog, I shall manifest my self to be a holy and powerful God, Chap.28.22. See Lev. 10.3.

V.17. Art thou he?] Meaning, surely thou art he.

old time] There are no footsteps of this prediction before Ezekiels time; and therefore this word, Old, should be understood in comparison, not of the Prophets age, but of the time of execution, which fell out above two hundred years after this Prophet.

by my servants] Heb. by the hands. Hereby God declareth, that no affliction can come to the Church, whereof they have not been advertised afore-time: to teach them, to endure all things with more patience, when they know that God hath so ordained it. And this affliction, is fore-told by this Prophet Ezekiel, in this, and the next Chapter, and by Daniel, Chap.11. and Zach.14. See the like, Esay 48.3, &c.

V.18. fury shall come up in my face] Psal.18.8. A speech after the manner of men; taken from them that puff in the nose, when they are exceeding angry.

V.19. great shaking] All creatures shall be astonished, and afraid, at the presence of my glorious Majesty, in the punishment of mine enemies.

V. 20. so that the fishes of the Sea] By these strange expressions, God setteth forth the grievousnesse of his anger that was to come.

steep places shall fall] Or, towres, or stairs. All means, whereby man may think to save himself, shall fail; the afflictions in those dayes shall be so great, and the destruction of the enemies shall be so terrible.

V. 21. I will call for a sword] This was in part fulfilled by the Maccabees; and partly by Civil Wars of the Grecian Kings; whence the ruine of that Empire did arise.

every mans sword] That is, of the Souldiers of Gog; as it happened to the Midianites, Judg.7.22. 2 Chron.22.23.

V.22. I will plead against him] My self; that is, with many, and great Judgments will I destroy him.

I will rain upon him] I will make a miraculous discomfiture and destruction. These terms seem to be borrowed from the fire of Sodom; and the hailstones of Joshua, Josh.10.11.

V.23. I will magnifie my self] Chap.36.23, and 38.22.

CHAP. XXXIX.

Vers.1. THerefore thou Son of man] Further Judgments against Gog, to be executed on him, and his, in the land of Israel, viz. to be disarmed, and arms burnt, to be slain; and part buried there, set out with the circumstances thereof; part unburied, for a prey to the birds and beasts. The end and use of these Judgments, both to the Jews and Heathen Nations. Conclude with a glorious promise to his people, of bringing them back, and blessing them with Grace.

against Gog] Chap.38.2,14. Further denunciation of Judgment against him; Chiefly to be executed in the Land of Israel.

V.2. And I will turn thee back] as Chap.38.4.

and leave but the sixth part of thee] Or rather, as the marginal reading is, draw thee back with an hook of six teeth.

North parts] Heb. the sides of the North.

V.3. smite thy bow] I will disarm thee. This appears fulfilled in the history of the Maccabees, sundry times.

V.4. fall upon the mountains] Where they came to vanquish Israel in their own Land, there should these enemies be destroyed by them.

fowl] Heb. wing.

to be devoured] Heb. to devour.

V.5. the open field] Heb. the face of the field.

V.6. fire on Magog] That is, an extream defolation, and ruine, as Chap.38.22. will God send upon the inhabitants of the land of Magog.

carelessly] Or, confidently.

in the Isles] Isa.41.1,5. as the Tyrians, and Sidonians, and all the confederates of Magog. Censer with this, Chap.38.39. In all places where the enemies of my people dwell, seem they never so far separate, or secure.

V. 7. Pollute my holy Name] Be polluted by the blasphemies, and insultations of mine enemies.

V.8. It is come] That is, this plague is fully determined in my Counsel, and cannot be changed; shall as surely come, as if come already.

V.9. shall go forth] Hyperbolical terms, to expresse an exceeding great discomfiture. After which the Church shall have great peace and tranquility; and burn all the weapons of the slain Macedonians; see ver.10. because they shall no more fear the enemy. And this is chiefly effected at the accomplishment of Christ his Kingdome; when by their head Christ, all enemies shall be overcome.

hand-staves] Or, javelins.

burn them] Or, make a fire of them.

seven years] How often in Scripture, is a finite number put for an indefinite? yea, this number of seven. See Gen.4.15. Job 5.19. Prov.9.1. and 24.16. Meaning here by seven years, a long time. See ver.12.14.

V.11. A place there of graves] Not a possession of the land which he did earnestly covet; but contrarily I will slay them there, so that in that land, part of the enemies shall be buried, unto verf. 17. Part unburied shall be born of beasts, thence to the 21. verse: which declareth, that the enemies shall have an horrible fall.

the valley] There is no mention elsewhere of this valley. It is likely, it was a fair and large valley, much frequented by strangers that came to Judea. The end is to shew the immense slaughter by the place destined for burial, which was so great a valley, which should seem, in some sort, to be filled up, and obstructed to passengers, by bodies and bones.

on the East of the Sea] He understands either the dead Sea, the lake of Sodom; or else the Sea of Tiberias, the lake of Genesareth.

stop] The Noses, by reason of the stink: or, the mouthes of the passengers; that seeing such a slaughter there, they shall not dare to open their mouths against the Jews.

Hamon-gog] That is, the multitude of Gog.

V.12. Cleanse the land] Because, according to the Law, a dead body unburied, defiled the land, Deut.21.23.

seven moneths] Ver.14. See Annotations on ver.9.

V.13. It shall be to them] This great mountain, as it were, of bodies and bones, shall be to them instead of a glorious Trophee and Monument.

I shall be glorified] To wit, over those enemies of my people, by cutting them off. See Chap.28.22.

V.14. sever out] Because those people were unclean according to the Law, Num.19.11.

men of continual employment] Heb. men of continuance. Men of publick employment, for the burying of the dead.

to bury] Partly, that the holy land should not be polluted; and partly for the compassion that the children of God have even on their enemies.

with the passengers] Likely, taking the help of strangers, whom they shall meet in the way.

V.15. He set up a sign] Heb. build. To shew to the buriers, that yonder be bones of dead bodies to bury; and so to cleanse the Countrey.

V.16. The name of the City] There shall remain a perpetual memory of discomfitures; so that the next City, as it may seem, on the top of this valley, shall bear the name Hamonah, that is multitude. Or, according to some, From this multitude of the slain shall grow a name and fame to the City Jerusalem, 1 Macc.13. and 14. Chapters.

V. 17. unto every feathered fowl] Heb. to the fowl of every wing. Assemble your selves] Isa.18.6. and 34.6. Jerem.12.9. Rev.19. 17.

gather your selves on every side] Whereby is signified the horrible destruction that should come on the enemies of his Church.

to my sacrifice] Or, slaughter; that is, to the supper prepared by me, consisting of slain men, and fatlings.

V.18. the mighty] Persons not vile or base; and the flesh, not of unclean or starveling beasts: but renowned and delicate flesh, fatted in Bashan; which was a mount excellent for feeding Cattel; as you may see, Numb.32.4. Deut.32.14.

goats] Heb. great goats.

V.20. Table, with horses] Warriours on horses, and in Chariots.

V.21. and I will set my glory] That is, make it clearly appear. Here is the end of Gods judgmments.

and my hand that I have laid upon them] My hand of judgments, Job 23.2. and 27.11.

V.22. For their iniquity] The Heathen shall know, that they overcame not my people, by their strength, neither yet by the weakness of mine arm; But that this was for my peoples sins.

therefore hid I my face from them] Psal.10.1. and 13.2. and 27.9. I laid aside the care of them; I withdrew my help from them. To fell they all by the sword] The whole state or body of the people; or indifferently, of every condition, or quality.

V.25. Now will I bring again] The Prophet concludes with Gods glorious Promises to his people, to bring again their captivity, and to bless them with grace.

V.27. am sanctified] Chap.36.23.

V.28. which caused them to be led into captivity] Heb. by my causing of them, &c.

V.29.poured out my spirit] Joel 2.28.Act.2.17. whereupon they being sanctified by me, I will take pleasure in them for ever. As on the contrary, sin is that which turns Gods face from his Church.

CHAP. XL.

Vers.1. IN] The difficulty of the right understanding of this vision following; and specially of the three first Chapters of it, the 40,41,42. is such as gave chief occasion to that order and ordinance, among the Jews, that none under the age of 30 years, should be admitted to the reading of it. And some of their learned Rabbies and Expositors have professed, that divers passages of it must be left to the coming of their Elias, whom they again expect; despairing, but by him, of the true meaning of them. some Papists have spent many years, and bestowed much labour, in commenting upon this vision; yet fall short of their own satisfaction; and fully acknowledge their own insufficiency for so hard a Task. They tye themselves to their Latine Translation, which is a ground of erring to them: and sparingly touching upon the literal sense, they largely run out into Allegorical, Analogical, and Tropological senses, and uses of their own. And some of them, in this regard of difficulty, hardly abstain from blasphemous expressions against the holy Text-man, and his Text. As Sanctius in his argument upon this Chapter, calls the Description of the Temple, with its Courts, and Chambers, in this Vision, infulsam descriptionem. And afterwards, it seems, pleaseth himself in laying the same imputation upon it, the same word, the second time. And among all sorts of Divines, Ancient and Modern, Greek and Latine Fathers, and Late and learned Writers of the Reformed Religion, many have waved this Vision of Ezekiel, and not undertaken the exposition of it, We may not yet passe by it, lying thus in our way; But shall endeavour to give some light unto it, and be an help to those that shall come after us.

the five & twentieth year of our Captivity] He reckoneth, not by the years of Kings, but by the years of their Captivity. And this Captivity was that of Jehojachin, or Jeconiah, called also Coniah; and falls in with the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah. See 2 King. 24.12——17. and compare Ezek.24.1,2. with 2 King.25.1. And the Prophet beginning his accompt from this date, Ch.1.2. he still goes on to make the same his constant Epoche, or rise of all his reckonings of the times. See Chap.8.1, & 20.1. and 24.1. and 26.1. and 29.1,17. and 30.20. and 31.1. and 32.1,17. and 33.21. There are twenty years between Ezekiels first Vision, and this Vision. That was in the twelfth of Nebuchadnezzar, and first of Ezekiels Captivity. And this is in Nebuchadnezzars thirty two, and Ezekiels five and twentieth. This indeed is the fiftieth year from the eighteenth of Josiah; whereof Chap.1.1. But no Jubilee, (as some would have it,) not falling in with the Jubilees just accompt.

our Captivity] He so calls it, because being young, was then led away captive. See Annotations on Chap.1.1.

Captivity] Heb.migration, Matth.1.11,17. transmigration, transportation carrying away.

in the beginning of the year] Heb.the head of that year; that is, the first moneth. See Annotations on Exod.12.2. That moneth was called Abib, and Nisan, which beginneth with or about our vernal equinoctial, and answereth to part of our March; and it is still called the first moneth, where ever the moneths of the year are Numerically named, and counted in Scripture. And though the in-gatherings, or end of harvest, which fell in their Tizri, and our September be said, to be at the years end, Exod.23.16. and Chap.34.22. and the year of Jubilee be appointed to begin in that same moneth, Lev.25.9. yet there it self that moneth is called the seventh moneth, not the first: so constantly are the reckonings of the moneths of the year kept according to that Ordinance, Exod.12.2. And therefore the beginning of the year here must be understood to be in the Vernal, not Autumnal equinoctial. See Annotations on Chap.8.1.

in the tenth day] When the Patchal Lamb was to be taken up, and kept, Exod.12.3,6.

in the fourteenth year after] The fourteenth year from the eleventh of Zedekiah, when the City Hierusalem was destroyed, and the Temple burnt, 2 King.25.3,7,8,9. which fourteen added to the eleven of Zedekiah, make up the five and twentieth mentioned immediately before.

in the self-same day] Heb. in the bone, or, in the strength of the day.

The hand of the Lord was upon me] Chap.1.3. and 8.1. and 33.22. and 37.1. His Divine power was upon me, as after is shewed in this prophetical Vision; and I came under the power of his Hand, and Spirit, I was in the Spirit, rapt and ravished; as Rev.1.10. 2 Cor.12.2.

and brought me thither] To the place where the City and Temple had been.

V.2.In the visions] There are many parts and particulars in this vision.

visions of God] Great and wonderful, and divine visions. See Annotations on Chap.1.ver.1. Thus the goodliest Cedars are called the Cedars of God, Psal.80.10. and mighty Mountains, the Mountains of God, Psal.36.6. And thus we read of the garden of God, the City of God, the Man of God, the increasing of Gods the Wrestlings of God, Gen.20.8. Jonah 3.3. These visions set forth the spiritual building, and restauration of the Church, by the coming of Christ, and preaching of the Gospel. They are shadowed out, under types and figures of corporal things. Thus for mans weakness, spiritual things, such as eye hath not seen, nor can see, must be set forth by earthly comparisons. And herein the Prophet from God, applies himself to the place where, the time when, and the persons among whom he was, he prefigures here, the perfect state & constitution of the Christian Church, under the types of the re-building of the Temple, Chap.40.41,42. of the restauration of the Levitical worship and service, Chap.43.44. of the re-possession, and inhabitation of the whole land; the kingdom of Canaan, and of the city of Jerusalem, in the four last Chapters.

brought he me] Not in body, but in Spirit. Yet the vision of his mind was so clear, and perspicuous, as if not in phansie, but with bodily eyes he had beheld the same. See Chap.8.3.

And set me upon] From thence he comes down to the foot of it, vers.5.

a very high mountain] The mountain of the Temple: on the South-side of which, the city it self lay. Mount Moriah, where Isaac, by Gods command to Abraham, was bound to be sacrificed, Gen.22. 2,9. where David buying the place, built an Altar, in the threshing-floor of Araunah, or Ornan, the Jebusite, and there offered to the Lord burnt-offerings, and peace-offerings, and the plague was stayed, 2 Sam.24.16,18,25. 1 Chron.21.16. where afterward by Solomon, the Temple was built, 2 Chron.3.1. This mount was high, for it was seen far off, Gen.22.4. This mount Sion (for so most usually it is called) was a type of the Church, Psal.2.6.& 48.2. And as it was a figure of the spiritual Temple under Christ, when the Church was to be made Catholick; see of it, Esay 1.2,3. and 25.6,7, 8,9,10. Mic.4.1,2. Rev.21.10. The mount may shadow out the Churches strength, and firm stability; its satety, splendor, and visibility. And yet a city upon a mount, may be hid sometimes with clouds, mysts, fogs, tempests; and seen onely of them that are within it. And it may also mind us to mount our thoughts on high, to heaven-ward, Col.3.1,2. The woman hath the Moon under her feet, Apoc.12.1.

By which was as a frame of the City on the South] Or, upon which mountain: was as a frame of a City on the South. The City Jerusalem had formerly been built thereby; and was after by Zerubbabel and Nehemiah built there. But here the City of Jerusalem is not meant: For in this vision it was to be built from the Temple Southwards, sundry miles; as appears, Chap.45.1,2,3,4,5,6. and Chap.48.8,9,10,13,15,16,17,18,19,20. See the Annotations on Chap.48.15. Which among other things, shews this vision of the Temple and City, not to be meant literally; but mystically, of the ample and flourishing estate of Christs Church under the Gospel. And the words here are, as the frame of the City, that is, the Temple then seen in vision, was built like the frame of a City, of such largeness, and with so many walls, gates, courts and towers, as a City. And this building appeared on the South to the Prophet, that came in vision from Babylon, which stands thence most Northerly; not that this building was on the South part of the hill. See Psal. 48.2.

V.3. And behold] To raise attention; See Genes.28.12,13. a man] An Angel in the likeness of a man, prefiguring Christ, Chap.1.26. and 9.2. and 43.6. where he seems distinct from the Lord, speaking out of the Temple, Zeph.1.11. The man Gabriel is named, Dan.9.2. but yet here, most likely is meant the Angel of the Covenant, Christ himself, usually appearing as a man, and styled a man, Genes.18.1,13. and 32.24,30. Josh.5.13,14. Judg.13.11,&c. Dan.7.13. Act.17.31. Rev.1.13. and 11.1. and Chap.14.14.

like the appearance of brasse] As burnisht, and burning brass; as fire, Chap.1.7. Rev.1.15. This may intimate, Christs purity, sanctity; yea, his divinity, as some will. He appears not here, as an angry Judge; as Chap.1.27. But lovingly, as a Master-Builder.

with a line of flax in his hand, and a measuring reed] Likely the one, in the one hand; and the other, in the other. This line or cord might be to measure the greater spaces; as the compass of the outer wall, the floors of the whole building, and of the Courts, the waters, Chap.47.3. serving well for such uses, Zach.2.1,2. And the Reed, or Rod, to measure the height and thickness of the walls, and the proportion of the gates, chambers, porches, and things of the Temple. And thus much use, and most fit, for lightness, stiffness, and other wayes, for such purposes, Rev.11.1. and Chap.21.15. A golden Reed is there, to measure the golden and heavenly Jerusalem. Our measuring line, and Reed, must be the sacred Scriptures. By them must Gods house be built and ordered. To this doth allude the manner of speech, Esay 28.10. Gal.6.16. Phil.3.16. See Exod. 25.9,10. Act.7.44. Heb.8.5.

and he stood in the gate] Or, by the gate, As the keeper of the Temple, as the Gulder and Teacher of the People: He having, indeed, the direction and administration of the Spiritual Building; as the Lord of the house, and heir of all, having the charge and power of opening and shutting, Heb.1.2. and 3.6. Joh 10.2,3. Revel.3.7. In the North gate of the outmost wall, most likely, next to one coming from Babylon, and next to the East angle or corner on that square. Christ is the gate, and way, and as it were the door-keeper to the Father, Joh.14.6. and 10.9. Rom.5.2. Cant.2.9.

V.4. Son of Man] See Annotations on Chap 2.1. Here is the end and use of the vision.

behold with thine eyes, and hear] So did the Lord reveal to Moses in vision, the fashion of the Tabernacle; To David, the fashion of the Temple; and to John, the new Jerusalem. Here Ezekiel was to learn some things by sight, some things, by hearing. Prov.20.12. yet these words are not to be understood here of the bodily senses properly; for he was now in body, in the countrey of Babylon: but of the answerable faculties of the mind.

Set thine heart upon all] He was to lay up all in his heart, take it to heart, as the phrases are used, Psal.62.10. 2 Sam.21,11. 2 Sam.19.19. to mark and weigh all, to mind and remember all, with all diligence possible, Mat.11.15. Apoc.1.11. Mat.24.45. Jer. 48.10. and Ezek.44.5.

for to the intent ——; declare all, &c.] The Angel is a Prophet, to the Prophet Ezekiel; and Ezekiel the Prophet, is an Angel to the Church.

Declare] We must learn to teach others: what use of a candle hid under a bushel? Matth.10.27. 2 Tim.4.2. For to teach others, for their use and sake; as Joh.12.30. is Ezekiel here instructed, Ezek.43.10,11. Thus Paul did, Act.20.20,27. Thus our Saviour prescribes, Mat.28.20. and practiseth, Joh.15.15.

declare all] By words, deeds, gestures, to the Church. Not any thing here is superfluous or impertinent.

to the house of Israel] This concerns both Jew and Gentile, Rom. 11.20.

V.5. And behold, a wall on the out side of the house round about] The outmost wall of stone, incloling the house, temple, and courts, porches, chambers, and whole buildings. So largly is house taken; as elsewhere, 2 Sam.7.5,6. 1 Chron.22.5. So Ezek.43.12. And this wall was four square, as after appears, Chap.42.16,&c. and so compassing the house round about; or, as the Hebrew is, round about, round about. See Esay 26.1. Zach.2.4,5.

A measuring reed of six cubits long, by the cubit, and an hand breadth] The length of the measuring reed, or rod, is here set down, as the sure rule of the measures following. But here two questions, and doubts are made; First, of the length of the Cubit; And secondly, whether the hand breadth is to be added to every one of the six cubits in the reed, or only one hand-breadth to the whole reed. The length of the Cubit is a thing very considerable. For by Cubits are reckoned almost all measures of buildings in Scripture. By Cubits are measured the Ark of Noah, and the prevailing of the waters. By Cubits are measured Moses Tabernacle, the Ark, Mercy-Seat, Table, of Shew-bread, Curtains, Boards, Altar of incense, Altar of burnt-offerings, Court, and hangings of it. By Cubits are measured Solomons Temple, the Oracle, Sanctuary, Porch, Pillars, Chambers, Cherubins, Molten Sea, Lavers, with their bases and wheels, Altar of burnt-offerings. And so here in Ezekiels Temple, by Cubits are measured, the Gate, Postes, Porches, Arches, Chambers, Courts, Tables, Altar of burnt-offerings, and all within and adjoyning to the house it self, Porch, Temple, and Oracle. And so by Cubits is measured the wall of the heavenly Jerusalem, Apoc.21. ver.17.

Now a Cubit properly signifieth the elbow, and in measuring it signifieth commonly the length from the elbow, to the end of the longest finger: which is some what more then the fourth part of a mans stature. And thus it differs, and is uncertain according to the several statures of men, of men in one age, much more in several ages. Virgil speaking of the stone lifted up and thrown by Turnus hath these words, vix illud lecti bis Sex Cervice subirent, Qualia nunc hominum producit corpora tellus. Æneid. lib.12. See August. de Civ. Dei lib. 15. cap.9.

We have some distinction of Cubits intimated in Scripture by these expressions; Og's bedstead was nine Cubits long, four broad, after the cubit of a man, saith the text, Deut.3.11. and Apoc.21.17. the wall of the new Jerusalem is measured to be 144 Cubits, according to the measure of a man, that is of the Angel. The length of Solomon's Temple is said to be sixty cubits, after the first measure, 2 Chr.3.3. so implying a second measure of cubits: and Ezekiel 41.8. is mention made of great cubits. See Annotations in ver.42.

And finding the two pillars Jachin and Boaz, to be counted 18 cubits high a piece, in 1 King.7.15. and to be 35 cubits high a piece, in 2 Chr.3.15. and the bases added to it, making thereto six: This occasioneth the common distinction of cubits, into common and sacred cubits; as there is, in common, opinion, of scales: the sacred cubits doubling the length of the common cubits; as the sacred scale doth the weight and worth of the common scale: and this will reconcile the foresaid difference in the height of the two pillars. And hereupon sacred cubits, are conceived to be usually understood in sacred buildings: and the cubits of the measure of the house of the forrest of Lebanon to be understood for common cubits, least otherwise that house should exceed in measure the Lords Temple. And likewise Cyrus his decree found in a roll at Achmecha, in the Province of the Medes, doth seem to reckon by common cubits; because it doubles some of Solomons measures. Though possibly Cyrus, a heathen, might mistake in the right measures of the Temple; or the record be corrupted, Ezr.6.3. And some learned men, for a seeming need, do apply sacred cubits to the building of Noahs ark. And more then this, we read not of the length of cubits in Scripture. What learned men have added above this; some making the sacred cubit, called also, say they, the Royal Cubit, and the Legal Cubit, to consist of one hand-breadth more then the Common Cubit. Some again making the Common cubit to consist of four hand breadths, or twelve inches: some of five hand-breadths or fifteen inches, some of six hand-breadths, or eighteen inches, that is our foot and half foot; and some of four and twenty inches, or two of our feet: And some making the cubit here mentioned to be our Yard; Some, our common Ell. All these are rather raised upon probable Conjectures from uncertain Antiquities, and Traditions, then grounded on certain truths. And what Cubit is here meant, we must leave to conjecture, upon the premises. Now for Hand-breadths, being four fingers breadth, or three inches; in common accompt, three hand-breadths are our span, that is, twelve fingers, or nine thumbs or inches; and four hand-breadth are our foot, that is, fifteen fingers, or twelve thumbs or inches. And so to come to the second Question and Doubt, To what the Hand-breadth, here mentioned, must be referred. Some conceive it is to be added to every one of the six cubits in the reed: and this seems to be seconded by that Text, Chap.43.13. where the cubit is defined by a cubit and an hand-breadth: and it is further strengthened in them, by their apprehension of the suitableness of such a Measure in compliance with the several parts of all the buildings. But that Cubit then did not consist of six hand-breadths; else most likely the Reed would have been reckoned to consist of seven Cubits exactly: But the cubit then must must be of a longer extent; and specially it will be so; if it be the sacred Cubit. But most understand this of one cubit to be added to the whole reed; and that as part of the measure, and not only for the use of the hand to hold it withal. In illue the point rests upon probabilities on both sides. And so the Reed it self may rather be guessed at, then positively ascertained. But sure it is between three, and six yards.

The breath of the building one Reed, and the height one Reed] That outmost wall being as a Parapet, or Breast-wall, or a kind of outward fconse, round about all the Courts and Temple; and that it was of this breadth and height, one Reed or Rod. The length of it, in the four squares of it, is set down, as most conceive, Chap.42.16,17,18,19,20. See the Annotations there, and on ver.6. of this Chapter, and on Chap.45.2. This compassed the edge of the hill of mount Zion; very deep and steep valleyes being on the outside of it round about. It was usefull among other things, against the danger of falling: and this wall, and the other walls, of the same thickness about the several Courts, and the Temple, may note the great strength and defensiblenes that the Lord setteth about his Church, Psal.34.7. and 46.1, &c. and 125. 1,2. Esay 26.1. Zech.2.5. and 9.8. Rom.8.31, &c. Joh.10.28. We read not of such a Wall as this compassing Solomons Temple: which, among many other things, as will after appear, shews, that this Temple shewed in Vision to Ezekiel, is not the same with Solomons Temple: Though some learned Papists do stiffly, if not grosly, maintain the contrary. See Annotations on Chap.8.7.

V.6. Then came he toward the gate which looketh toward the East] Heb. whose face was the way, &c. This is the East gate, But whether of the outward wall, last mentioned, and measured, ver.5. compassing a Court common to the Gentiles, and unclean; (if such a court there were) or of the wall compassing the court for the Jews only, in some respect common both to people and Priests, is a thing where in learned Interpreters do doubt, and differ; and which cannot be easily determined. We conceive it not to be the Gate of the outmost wall; because that wall was but as a Parapet, or breast-wall: and the height of that wall and Gate is so low, and little; and the Chambers, and other buildings, within this Gate, and annexed to it, are so many, and so great; set down, ver.6.to 17. which buildings seem most proper to that Gate entring into the Court for the Jews. The Gate may mind us of Christ, the Gate, and true door, Joh.10.7. and 14.6. Zech.6.12. And and specially it will be so; if it be the sacred Cubit. But most understand this of one cubit to be added to the whole reed; and that as part of the measure, and not only for the use of the hand to hold it withal. In illue the point rests upon probabilities on both sides. And so the Reed it self may rather be guessed at, then positively ascertained. But sure it is between three, and six yards.

V.6. Then came he toward the gate which looketh toward the East] Heb. whose face was the way, &c. This is the East gate, But whether of the outward wall, last mentioned, and measured, ver.5. compassing a Court common to the Gentiles, and unclean; (if such a court there were) or of the wall compassing the court for the Jews only, in some respect common both to people and Priests, is a thing where in learned Interpreters do doubt, and differ; and which cannot be easily determined. The Gate may mind us of Christ, the Gate, and true door, Joh.10.7. and 14.6. Zech.6.12. And in all the Gates, in each Court, there is a constant regular Uniformity observed; which may school us to Conformity, and Uniformity; that all things in the Church may be done decently and in order, 1 Cor.14.40.

And went up the staires thereof] The Temple was built on the top of Mount Zion. And we read of three, or rather four degrees of of levelled floores, or courts, by which they went up unto it. The first and lowermost had seven steps, by which they ascended from the Level or floor, or plain within the Outmost wall, to the exterior court for the People. For that pretended court for the Gentiles hath no such sufficient warrant for it: Or, if any were to be so called, it was that next within the Outmost wall. The Gentiles (when they became Profelytes, at leastwise the Profelytes, not of the gate, but of the Court, as in after times they were distinguished) had the same priviledges in Gods worship with the Jews. The number of seven steps, though not here mentioned, yet are set down in the North and South gates of this Court, ver.22,26. The second ascent was from the Level of this exterior court, to the Level of the Inner and Middle Court, for the Priests and Levites; and this was by eight steps, ver.31.34.37. The third ascent was from the Level of the Inner Court, to the Level of the inmost Court of the Temple it self; proper it seems to the Priests only. The number of these steps are not set down: But may seem to be gathered from those of the former Court. Lastly, there was another ascent from that Inmost Court, to the Porch of the Temple, and Temple it self, ver.49. The Ascent from court to court, or from Level to Level, was onely by the steps: For the Gates and Buildings in them were ot the same Level with their Courts; and so the steps or stairs, were not behind the Gates, or in the thicknesse of the walls; but before the walls and Gates. And therefore he measures here the Threshold, after he went up the stairs. These steps and stairs here, no doubt, were not high, and large steps; but easie ones, such as men and Cattel for sacrifice might easily ascend. See Annotations on Vers.17.

And measured the Threshold of the Gate] The Hebrew word here used, signified the Threshold properly so called; and also the upper lintal; and likewise the side posts of the gate. Which of these is here understood, is dubious; and accordingly the minds of Interpreters various. We conceive, that the word here is taken in its proper signification, for the Threshold on the ground. Yet some would understand it so, as including a building of wall thereupon, of the same breadth, and thicknesse; which might serve as for other uses, so for side-posts to the gate. And so the two Thresholds on the grounds and the walls on them, (being of the same breadth and thicknesse with the wall of the Court) they conceive them to run from the wall of this Court, along by the East side; that is, from South toward the North, one Threshold, one Reed; & from North towards the South, the other Threshold, another Reed; And thus shall the middle space be left open, for the entry of the Gate: And the Chambers within the Gate, on each side, being each of the same measure, Reeds a piece, shall run in a manner in a line along with these Thresholds, and walls builded thereupon; and leave still the way in the middle open for passage: and this also is conceived, will best agree with the rest of the Buildings and Measures mentioned in this Gate, and Porch. And so likewise do they understand the Threshold of the Gate, by the Porch of the Gate within, ver.7. Or rather, taking it in its most proper signification for the Threshold onely of the Gate, as the very letter of the text runs; then these Thresholds, being Reeds apiece, had a two-leafed door, meeting in the middle, upon a strong post wherein they shut, and so left the breadth of the entry, of the widenesse of the opening of the Gate, ten Cubits; as it is ver.11. These Thresholds likely were a little lifted above the earth or floor. The height of this Gate is set down, ver.11. Of this, and all the other Gates, see that in the Psal.87.2.

V.7. And every little Chamber] Within the wall, towards the Temple, was a Reed square. So Vers.12. 25, say some, was the Threshold and wall upon it, Ver.6. and so both kept one breadth. It may be doubtful, whether the Chambers were each a Reed square within the wall, or without. And yet the inner walls of them might run level with the Threshold, and wall of the East gate; and the back walls go further out, Northward & Southward. Of their number, and use, see Ver.10. and the Annotations upon it.

and between the little Chambers were five cubits] The Chambers then were not continued together, nor contiguous; but a space betwixt each of them. Some conceive it best, to agree with the letter and words of the text, and with the due consideration of the length of the whole Gate, porch and portal, from entrance to end, from East to West, mentioned to be fifty cubits, verf.15. to understand here five cubits to be between each chamber; and four of those intervals to be on each side. Thus, five cubits between the East wall, and the first chamber; five between the first chamber and the second; five cubits between the second chamber and the third; and five between the third chamber, and the innergate west-ward; so reckoning in all, twenty cubits on each side of the gate between the chambers. And then these several spaces of five cubits a piece, most likely, were taken up with several posts or pylasters, arched on the top, reaching from one post to another, of that breadth a piece of five cubits, as is intimated, verf.10. And under three of those arches, on either side, were the three chambers placed. Or, possibly the posts might be much lesse for breadth and thicknes, and the far greater part of the five cubits, left for cloysters, or entries into the North and South walks, galleries, or cloysters, that lay within by the sides of the Court. Others, understand the distances, or intervals between the chambers, to be but two on a side; and make each of them, to be five cubits. Yet others, understand but five cubits in all, between three chambers on a side. And so other five, between the other three chambers on the other side of the gate. Supposing so the first chamber to joyn to the East wall, and the third chamber to joyn to the inner-gate West-ward; and the middle chamber, to have two cubits and a half on the East side of it, and two cubits and a half on the West side of it. In these uncertainties, men may sooner say their mind, then safely determine, and soundly prove it.

and the threshold of the gate, by the porch of the gate within was one reed] That is, the inner-gate, West-ward, answering to the outward gate, East-ward, (between which two, the porch, or entry-house, and the chambers were) had the like thresholds, and of the same measure, as the outward gate had. Here one of the thresholds, by analogy of number, or synecdoche of one part for the whole, is onely mentioned; implying, the other to be equally understood. See Annotations on verf.6.

V.8. He measured also the porch of the gate within, one reed] The threshold of the inner-gate was measured, verf.7. The porch of it, here; both of one measure: these two distinct names, and relations, being contained in the same building. See Annotations on verf.6. There were two porches, after the gate of the first entrance; the Exterior porch, and the Inner-porch. The exterior, verf.6. And this here; of the same length, from North to South, with the opening or light of the gate it self, ten cubits; and of the same breadth, from East to West, with the breadth or thickness of the wall of the court, which on the inside of it joyned to the chambers: and this was one Reed, as is here mentioned. This was, as it were, δυρα πρωι, ωνιδριον, πρδομος, the outward portal, porch, or entry. And this place seems to lie open to the skie; for there is no mention of any roof over it; but onely it is barely measured; and the East-eaves of the chambers reach into it; and the exterior front of the inner-porch, is beautifully garnished; which would not be so, if the outward porch did cover it, by joyning to it. The inner porch is meant, & mentioned in the next verse.

V.9. then measured he the porch of the gate eight cubits] Some conceiving, in these words, a kind of relation had to the length of the whole porch, from East to West, understand them thus, That the posts therein sustaining the arches (between which the chambers were) were at eight cubits distance one from another. Others, that the porch stood crossing, as it were, over the way, that went forward, as you passed through it, to go straight up to the Temple. And it was eight cubits over, from North to South. And that the posts thereof being two cubits, did make it answerable to the breadth of the entry of the outward gate, mentioned after, verf.11. And indeed, ten cubits is the constant measure of the breadth of all the entrances and entries, in the gates, porches, courts of the Temple, ver.22,24,28,32,35. Chap.41.2. But here the easier, and fairer understanding of the word, is, That this porch exceeded the other porch, and other parts of this body of building; in greatnesse, being eight cubits; and in the garnishing of the frontispices, both East and West, being more beautified and pretiously garnished.

and the porch of the gate was inward] Or, This was the porch of the inner-gate; so measured as aforesaid.

V.10. and the little chambers] Three on each side, stood along the way, on the right and left hand. The measures and quantities of them were set down, verf.7. These were for the Priests to dwell in, to observe and watch the gate, on both sides; to keep that no unclean person, or any other, forbid by the Law, might enter in, 2 Chro.23.19. These porters were of the Levites; and were many in number. We read of four thousand, divided by David into courses, 1 Chro.23.5,6. and assigned by Lots, to the several gates, Eastward, Northward, Southward, and Westward, 1 Chr.26.13——18. They were keepers of the doors, gates, entries. And this they did by wards, by their courses: after seven dayes still new came. And they lodged round about the house of God, because the charge was upon them; and the opening of the doors thereof every morning, pertained to them. They were also over the treasuries of the house of God; had charge of the ministring vessels, and other holy things; and were in many services, about the sacrifices and offerings, under the Priests. Thus it was in Solomons Temple. See 1 Chron.9. Chap. verf.17——33.

And the posts had one measure] Alike on both sides. See Annotations on verf.7.

V.11. and he measured the breath of the entry] See Annotations on verf.9. The breadth of the first entry, or entring in of that outward East gate; from North to South; or from the one hand to the other: And not the breadth of any other particular place, or space that was within the entrance.

and the length of the gate thirteen cubits] The length of the gate from the bottom to the top, which indeed is the height of the gate, is here rightly understood; and that by the common consent of Interpreters.

V.12. The space also before the little chambers was one cubit] Space; Heb. limit or bound. This is variously understood. Some take it for a rail, or some such partition, one cubit broad, from the wall and posts of the chamber, on both sides, running up straight along by them, towards the Temple; and make it so serve as an arrow cloyster, or through passage on both sides, North and South, of the gate before the chambers. And so the narrow the entry of ten cubits, contrary to that, ver.11.

Others, That there was the space of one cubit broad (and as much high) before the chambers, on either side of the gate, North and South; so built as to serve for seates, for the Porters, and others, upon occasions to sit on: leaving the distance of the entry between the chambers on both sides, all along, still ten cubits broad and open. Others, understand this, of one cubit onely, between the wall of the threshold and entry gate, and the first chamber, on either side, North and South, at the East end. Some also of the like cubit, between the last chamber; and the wall, on either side at the West end. But we conceive the most easie, useful, and likely Interpretation to be this. That this cubit served for eaves at either end, East and West, to keep off the injuries of weather, as sun and rain, on both sides of the chambers, that were on both sides of the gate. See Annotations on ver.13. The other interpretations have their difficulties, encountring, and encumbring them; of which this is more free. . . .

And the little Chambers were] Every Chamber on both sides was six Cubits; as ver.7. not six cubits standing inward, and distant so far from that one cubit on either side, last mentioned; For that would crosse the measures and frames of the Buildings formerly mentioned.

V.13. He measured then the gate] The breadth of the gate which he repeats in every of the Gates following, verf.21,25,29, 33,36. Some here would run this reckoning of five and twenty Cubits East and West, from one outmost bound of the Chambers, to the other, all along the doors of the six Chambers, on both sides of the Gate; And so make it five and twenty cubits, on each side thus; The three chambers eighteen cubits; between them five cubits; and one cubit at the East end; and another at the West end of the chambers, for the Eaves: The three chambers not having each a several Roof; but one continued Roof being to serve them all three. Others would run them East and West, from the Front of this Gate, (& so of the others) to the end of its Portal, thus; In the breadth or thickness of the wall fix cubits; the gate-house as it were, or Porrers Lodge, six cubits; The Portal it self eight cubits: Thresholds of the Portal at each end two Cubits; Eaves for the front of the Gate, and the West end of the Portal, each halfe a Cubit: In all five and twenty. But what are these to the breadth of the gate? The better reckoning seems to be taken from North to South; for so lyes the breadth of the gate. And then the breadth of five and twenty Cubits from the Roof of one Chamber to the Roof of another, from the outmost parts of them, seems to be taken up thus; The breadth of the gate ten Cubits; The breadth of the Chambers on either side of the gate, six Cubits; so on both sides twelve cubits: and one cubit and a half the thickneffe of the back walls of the Chambers, on the North side, and so on the South side: In all, five and twenty Cubits; from the outmost point North, to the outmost point South, as aforesaid: which is the breadth of the whole building of the Gate.

door against door] Not meant of the door of the great East Gate, being over against the door of the Inner Gate, lying West to it; and corresponding to it. But this is meant of the little doors of the little Chambers, last named, on the South and North sides of the Gate; which either did in a direct line face the one the other: Or, as some more probably, understand them, That the doors to each Chamber were two, and so framed, that door was against door, in a line running from East to West; so that the doors standing open, one might see through the three Chambers, from end to end, at one sight. And that thus it was on both sides of the gate.

V.14. He made also posts of sixty Cubits] He made; that is, by measuring shewed, or designed to be made.

posts] Heb. a post.

Posts of sixty Cubits] Here the Jewes cry for the help of Elias. And here many learned men slide over, or slighty touch upon this: and that with undue, if not unlikely satisfaction to themselves, and others. Some here conceipt a Number of Posts, of sixty Cubits high, pitch'd on end, in the Courts; But know not to what end or use. Some speak of a three-fold row of Posts, or Pillars, and three stories built upon them, one above another; each Post in each story twenty Cubits high; and they standing just one upon another, the floores onely betwixt them, they may be so reckoned, as if high sixty Cubits a piece. And this they apply to the Porches or Galleries round about the Court; and to the Buildings and Chambers over them. But the Prophet comes not yet into the Court, till ver.17. And these Posts here do but reach unto the (first) Post of the Court, as the words expresse it. These words then seem to be confined to the Buildings of the Gate; taking in it the full length and breadth of it. And then must be understood, either for the Fronts of the Gate; sixty Cubits high; or for certaine Eaves, to cover some part of the buildings of the Gate, and running along sixty Cubits: and so Posts are interpreted, Eaves; and the sixty Cubits covered by them, are counted so many, and no more; without any ground for it. And both these very hardly and harshly. Or else, as by some, for a Cloyster, or Walks, supported with these Posts, running upon the ground, from the East gate, before the Chambers, up to the opening and entrance into the Court before it, towards the Temple. But this shewes nothing how, or which way these Posts should be of sixty Cubits. Or, if they apply the number to the length of the Cloyster, they so force the words; and lengthen the Gate ten Cubits beyond its due. Neither doth this conceit stand and agree any thing well with the other Measures and Buildings within in the Gate formerly mentioned. We rather do humbly conceive, (and some such thing, some learned men do seem to intimate,) That in Analogy and correspondency to all the Buildings round about the Courts, there were two stories built above this Gate, (and so above the others, Ver.20,24,28,32,35.) of the full length, and breadth of the Gate; one story above another. The Posts whereof are here only mentioned: as we meet with divers such abbreviations; over and above that we find many things clean omitted in this strict and intricate description, as in due place shall appear) And these Posts reckoning from the ground, in such manner as formerly was touched, were each sixty Cubits high. And without this construction made, there will appear no small disproportion, and indecorum between the Buildings of the Gates, and the Buildings of the Courts adjoyning. But thus the buildings of the Gates will bear equal height with the buildings about the Courts. Yet some reckon these sixty cubits thus; that is the roof of the Chambers, with the Eaves on the one side, five and twenty cubits; on both sides fifty. And ten cubits the Inner Porch; as the outward Porch was, ver 11. In all sixty. And that these Posts, Frontispieces, or Forefronts did compasse the building.

even unto the Post of the Court round about the Gate] Of this Court, see v.17. This court had posts round about it; and buildings on them. And these joyned on both sides of the Gate; each gate being in the middle of its own wall.

V.15. And from the face] This is the length of the Gate from East to West. And so fifty cubits are constantly reckoned the length of the other gates, ver.21,25,29,33,36. These fifty cubits are reckoned by all from East to West: yet for the parcels and particulars, they are clean omitted by some. By others reckoned up; but very uncertainly and obscurely. Some do make this sum up thus; viz. Eighteen cubits the three Chambers; twenty cubits the four spaces, or else Pilars or Posts between them three chambers, and walls at the East and West end of them: Those spaces, or else Pillars being five cubits a piece. And fix cubits a piece the thickneffe of the said East and West walls. So eighteen, twenty, and twelve, make up the fifty Cubits. And all these covered with buildings. Others reckon thus; from Face to Face fifty Cubits; and make the Porch of the Inner gate to be ten cubits more, Others, from the face of the Gate of the Entrance, standing in the outside of the wall encompassing the Court, unto the Inner Gate, opening into the Court it self fifty Cubits, thus; Eighteen the Chambers; five the middle spaces, and two the Eaves: All these five and twenty, and all covered. And the other five and twenty from beyond the Inner Porch, to the Entrance of the first Court, uncovered and open to the skie. And so they make the Portal of one Reed, to stand before the face of the gate of the entrance, and not to be included in this Number. See Annotations on Ver.8. In these uncertainties and obscurities, we can get little, or no light; out of Moses Tabernacle, or Solomons Temple; because the Courts and Gates of them are so scantly touched there; which Ezekiel here doth so much, and so long insist upon.

V.16. And there were narrow windowes] Having dispatched all the parts of the structure of the Gate; Now in this peace he comes to describe the windows for light, and Palm trees, for ornament and garnishing of the parts of the Building.

Narrow windows] That is, narrowed: most likely, placed in the middle of the thickneffe of the wall; and broader, and wider, both outward and inward: the wall being to this end floped on both sides, both within and without; the better to gather and receive the light abroad; and to disperse and dilate it within. And these windows haply were like our Lettice windows as the original word seems to import, darting in the light: or else, they were with leaves to open and shut; or else with glasse, or some such thing, closed and shut up, 1 King.6.4. These windowes for Light, may shadow out that light of Spiritual illumination, and joy, whereby God shines in the hearts of his people; 2 Thess.1.6. Rom 5,12. Phil. 2. 15.

To the little Chambers] On which parts of them, we know not.

They might be towards the Cloysters, on the East and West sides of the middle Chambers.

and to their Posts within the gate round about] Posts, or rather upper lintels; so verſ.9.10. that is, in the walls above the doors, to give light to the inferiour parts of the Chambers; the doors, as some say, opening towards, or into, the main entry and passage, on both sides verſ.13. Or elſe the words for Posts, may ſignifie the Cloyſters, arched from Post to Poſt, between the Chambers. And theſe were within the Gate, round about, or, on both sides; and windowes were made to them. But they ſeem rather to be intended in the next words.

and likewiſe to the Arches] Or, Galleries, or, Porches; thoſe ſpecified in the laſt words of the former Annotation.

and windows were round about inward] Windows on both ſides, as hath been ſhewed; inward, or within the Gate; beſides the great light of the East, and Weſt ends; or doors of the outward, and inward Gate. All which gave abundant light to all the Chambers, places, and paſſages within the whole Gate.

and upon each Posts were Palm-trees] Engraven for ornament, and beauty on each Poſt, or Pillar, or Front, and Chapiter of the Pillar, or tops of the wall within on both ſides. This Ornament of Palm-trees may thadow out to us, our enſigns of triumph and victory over the World, the Fleſh, and the Devil, Rom.8.31—— 37. Apoc.12.11. and 7.9. 1 Cor.15.54,55. And thus he hath wholly finiſhed the Eaſt Gate, with the Buildings in it.

V.17. Then brought he me] The man, verſ.3. did it.

into the outward Court] Here he firſt enters out of the Gate into the Court; going on Weſtwards towards the Temple. The Gate and Buildings in this formerly mentioned, ſtood in this Outward Court; we mean within this ſecond wall. And Now he is paſſed between them, and got through them, into the Outward Court it ſelf; to ſee what is behind theſe Buildings; and what ſpace before them, and betwixt this and the next Court; and what compaſſe on either hand him, towards North and South.

Now in Moſes Tabernacle, we read but of one Court: and that was long, from Eaſt to Weſt an hundred Cubits: Broad from North to South, fifty Cubits; and high all about five Cubits. And but of one Gate in it, of twenty Cubits wide, placed in the middle of the Eaſt ſide, Exod.27. and 38. Chapters. And all this, and things in it, were under the hands and Charge of the ſons of Gerſhom and Merari: And to the ſons of Kohath belonged the charge of the Tabernacle it ſelf, Num.Chap.3, and 4. In Solomons Temple we read of two Courts; and they ſo named, and numbered, 2 King.21.5. and 23.12. 2 Chron.33.5. The one, the Inner Court, or the Court of the Prieſts, or the Court of the houſe of the Lord, or before the houſe of the Lord, 1 King.6.36. and 7.12. and 8.64. 2 Chron.4.9. and 7.7. The other called the great Court, 1 King.7.9,12. 2 Chron.4.9. which was for the People. A new Court is mentioned, 2 Chron.20.5. But that is, the old renewed by Aſa, when he renewed the Altar of the Lord, 2 Chron.15.8. Or elſe, as ſome would have it, the Court of the People, newly divided by a partition wall, to diſtinguiſh between men, and women, in it. And a middle Court is named alſo, 2 King.20.4. But the Margin reads, City, for Court: ſhewing the word ſignifies both. And to City, the ſenſe of the place might ſeem to carry it; for there was a double City of Jeruſalem, (the word is of the dual number) beſide that called the City of David. And theſe, part in the Tribe of Judah, and part in Benjamin. Compare together Jud.1.8. 2 Sam.5.6,7,8,9. 2 King.22.14. But chiefly, That place ſeems to import the middle Court of King Hezekiahs Palace: And that conſidering the Perſon of Iſaiah, and the place where the King lay ſick, and Iſaiah delivered his meſſage. And of ſuch a like Court we read, 1 King.7. verſ.8. Of an outmoſt Court for the Gentiles, we read not. But ſome labour to gather it out of, 1 King.8.41,42,43. Eſay 56.3,4,5. Mar.11.17.

Now Ezekiels Temple had more Courts. And they are, by diverſe men, diverſly numbred and named. 1 The Court or plain within the outmoſt wall. 2 The outward Court, ſo called, in relation to the inner Court. 3 The inner Court. 4 The inmoſt Court. Within this, the Temple was, with its Porch and ſtructures of Chambers, joyning to the outſides of the Temple, and of the Oracle, round about. And ſome add two Courts more toward the Weſt. And the firſt of all theſe, they make to be for the Gentiles: the ſecond, for the people of Iſrael that were clean, according to the Levitical Law. The third, for the Levites and Prieſts, and their accourrements and imployments; wherein the Altar of burnt-offering was. And the fourth, for the Prieſts onely. Yet moſt writers do reckon, but upon three Courts, viz. The firſt Court within the outmoſt wall: the ſecond, called here the exterior, the outward Court, in reference to the inner Court; this being the Court of the people. The third, called the inner Court, belonging to the Prieſts; and in part alſo to the people, in their ſervices and ſacrifices. But to theſe muſt be added the fourth Court, wherein the Temple was; and that properly to the Prieſts onely; as the Chapter following doth evince. And theſe four Courts alſo, beſides very many other arguments, do evince, that this Temple of Ezekiel is not the ſame with Solomons; contrary to the moſt common tenet of the moſt learned Papiſts. Which error of theirs, together with the captivating of their judgments, to the letter of their vulgar Latine text, doth much miſlead them in the true literal underſtanding and interpretation of this viſion and Temple. Now by Court here, we muſt underſtand and comprehend, not onely the plain floor, lying open to the skie; but alſo Porches about it and their Chambers, and other buildings; as the text ſhews. And theſe ſeveral Courts, with the riſings and varieties of them, may put us in mind of the diverſities of Gifts and Graces, and Offices, in the ſeveral members of Chriſts myſtical body here: and alſo of ſeveral degrees of Glory in the Courts and manſions of Heaven; as there are ſtars in ſeveral ſpheares; and ſtars of ſeveral magnitudes in the fixed firmaments. Of theſe Courts, See Pſal.84.2,10.

and loe there were Chambers] Being now in the Eaſt floor, and open plain of the outter exterior Court, he ſees and obſerves.

Chambers] Cells, repoſitories, ſtore-houſes. For the Prieſts and Levites to dwell in, whileſt in their turns, they kept the ſervice of the Temple; and wherein they did reſt and repoſe themſelves; and laid up in them part of the tithes, offerings and other things, belonging to them from the people; and of the frankincenſe and veſſels, and other things belonging to the Temple, and the ſervice of it. See Neh.13.5,9,12,13. And haply, into theſe might the people alſo retire themſelves for accommodation, the better to order and compoſe themſelves, and their buſineſſes about their offerings, and ſacrifices of all ſorts. Yea, ſome make theſe to belong to the uſe of the people onely. Of theſe Chambers, of this, or the other Courts, we read not any thing in the ſtructure of Solomons Temple; but what is in Davids preparation, and proviſion for his ſon Solomon; on this behalf, 1 Chron.28.11,12,13. and that in Chap.9.26,33. and Chap.23.28. And of them, we read alſo mention to be made, 2 King.23.11. 2 Chron.31.11. and Jer.35.2,4. and Chap.36.10.

and a pavement made] For ornament and uſe; of ſtone and porphiry moſt likely; and curiouſly wrought with checkquer-work, as ſome tranſlations have it. See Chap.42.3. 2 Chron.7.3. See Ahaſuerus pavement, Eſth.1.6. And the uſe of this was to prevent duſt, and dirt.

round about] The pavement was all over the Court, and the Chambers; round about the Court and pavement.

thirty chambers] Fifteen on either ſide of this Eaſt Gate, that is, Northward and Southward. And as ſome think, fifteen alſo on either ſide of the North, and of the South Gates, Eaſtward and Weſtward.

upon the pavement] Or, about the pavement, or built over the pavement, above, and upon it.

V.18. Pavement] That laſt mentioned.

by the ſide of the gates] Not that pavement, within the firſt, and outmoſt breaſt-wall, lying before the Eaſt Gate, of the ſecond wall and exterior Court, as ſome would have it. But this lyeth within the ſecond wall, and exterior Court; and by the ſide of the Gates of that Court.

gates] So plurally, ſaith the text. And the 20. and 14. verſes, ſhew, that it had a North Gate, and a South Gate, beſides this Eaſt Gate, all within this outward (not outmoſt) wall, or Court. Which Gates, running fifty Cubits from the wall into it, did further occaſion a diviſion; and break this one exterior Court, into more particular and leſſer Courts.

over againſt the length of the gates] Not then the pavement, lying in the length of the Gates, between the Chambers; and other buildings of each Gate; as ſome would have it. But that lying by the ſides of the Gate, that is, the North and South ſides of this Eaſt Gate; and ſo alſo correſpondently the Eaſt, and the Weſt ſides, of the North and of the South Gates, of this exterior and outward Court: And theſe were directly, and punctually over againſt the lengths of theſe Gates, butting thereon: and lying within the pointings in, & ends of the entrances from the three Gates. The lengths of theſe gates were fifty Cubits, running from the wall into the Courts; counting therein the thickneſſe of the wall. And that ſame length, was the breadth of theſe pavements, which did run from each ſide of theſe Gates, ſo compaſſing the Court, or little Courts. The breadth then, we ſay, of theſe lateral pavements, was equal with the lengths of the Gates. And the ſame was the conſtant breadth of all the porches, or galleries, that were round about all the Courts; and built upon, or over and above thoſe pavements. They were made as broad, as the Gates were long. Their length was a great deal more, as will after appear.

the lower pavement] Lower then that pavement, in the inner and upper Court of the Prieſts. Or, lower then that other part of this pavement, which lay in this ſame Court, from under the porches or galleries, open to the skie; and likely, a little higher then this; or lower in the two ſides, then in the middle. This pavement, haply, being a little convex in the middle, and a little decline, or declining on the two ſides.

V.19. Then he meaſured the breadth from] The breadth; that is, the broad flat, and plain floor of this inward Court.

from the fore-front of the lower gate] From the inner, and weſtern front of it. For each Gate had two fore-fronts. And ſo leaving out the length of the Gate it ſelf out of this meaſure.

of the lower gate] That is, of this Eaſt Gate of the outward Court, formerly meaſured; which is lower then the Gate of the Inner Court, as the ſteps of aſcent ſhew, from the one to the other.

unto the fore-front of the inner court] That is, the Eaſt fore-front of the Prieſts Court, and of the Gate of it.

without] Or from without, that is, leaving out likewiſe the gate it ſelf, and the length of it out of this meaſure.

an hundred cubits Eaſtward] That is, between the two gates, lay this broad plain, in the open aire, and hundred cubits from Eaſt to Weſt.

and Northward] That is, ſo much alſo from North to South, even an hundred Cubits. No other wayes can this meaſure be taken or made. The plain ſo being, not onely quadrangular, but a perfect quadrant or ſquare, equilateral. This was the Eaſt flat or floor. The like was that of the North, verſ.23. and that of the South, ver.27. For from each of theſe gates, to their oppoſite gates, lay an hundred cubits between. The meaning is, that he meaſured that floor, or flat, open to the skie, that lay between the gates of the outward and inner courts, on the Eaſt ſide; excluding the gates themſelves; and found it to be an hundred cubits broad, and long.

V.20. And the Gate] This North-gate, and likewiſe the Southgate, verſ.24. are in all points and particulars, ſo like, or rather the ſame with the Eaſt-gate, formerly deſcribed, that there needeth little, or no further explanation of them. All things for buildings, parts, meaſures, ornaments, are common to them all. See verſ.6.9, 10,11,12,13,14,15,16.

V.21. And the little Chambers] See Verſ.7,10,11,13,15.

firſt gate] Eaſt-gate: and ſo named, ver.22.

V.22. And their windowes] See ver.16.

ſeven ſteps] And ſo in the South-gate of this Outward Court. Which eveneth the number of the ſtairs in the Eaſt, to be likewiſe ſeven, ver.6. though they be not there named: they being all three Gates of the ſame Court, and the Gates, and Court, or little courts in it, being of one level and height. By theſe ſteps they came up from the floors of the lower Court, to the Gates of the higher Court. See Annotations on ver.6. And this, with all the other ſteps in the other Courts, and to the Porch of the Temple, may mind us of our increaſing, riſing, and aſcending from ſtep toſtep, from degree to degree, in knowledge, faith, vertue, and all ſaving graces, 2 Pet.1.5. ſtill climing up towards heaven, and Gods Temple there, Pſal.84.7. See alſo, 1 Cor.13.9,10,12. Eph.4.12,13,14,16.

V.23. And the Gate] The North-gate of the Inner-court was right over againſt the North-gate of the Outward Court.

and toward the Eaſt] And ſo it was toward the Eaſt; that is, the Eaſt gate of the Inner-court, was right over againſt the Eaſt-gate of the Outward court.

an hundred Cubits] That is, between the two North-gates, that of the Outward, and that of the Inner-court, was a ſpace of an hundred cubits long, and broad; a juſt ſquare, altogether like that, ver.19. The North Flat, or floor or little court, was of the ſame ſpatiouſneſs with that of the Eaſt.

V.24. After that he brought me] The South-gate of the Outward Court, See ver.21.

V.25. and there were windowes] See ver.22. and 21.

V.26. and ſeven ſteps] See ver.22.16.

and the Arches thereof were before them] The ſteps alſo before the Gates may ſeem to have their poſts, Arches, and garnishing of Palm-trees.

V.27. And there was a gate] See ver 23.

an hundred Cubits] That is Southward, and Eaſtward. See ver.23.

V.28. And he brought me to the Inner-court] So that here is no gate mentioned, on the Weſt quarter, of this Outward court; nor yet on the Weſt quarter of the Inner court. Joſephus records that in his time, there was no gate on the Weſt quarter. Joſeph. of the War of the Jews, lib.6. Chap.6 yet it was otherwiſe in Solomons Temple, 1 Chron.9.24. and Chap.26.14—18. This Inner Court is within the third wall, and in the Court of the Prieſts. And this Gate here meaſured, is the South-gate of it. He comes to it directly from the South Gate of the Outward court.

To theſe Meaſures] To the meaſures of the three former Gates in the Outward Court. And as the Gates, ſo the Porches, and Arches of the Inner Court were equal, and of the ſame meaſure with the Porches and Arches of the Outward Court.

V.29. And the little Chambers thereof] See Verſ.7,10,13,15, 21,25.

V.30. And the Arches round about were five and twenty Cubits long] Some here expound long, to be meant broad; & five Cubits, to be five tens or decades of Cubits, alledging the like Ellipſis to be the 2 Sam.8.4. and Chap.10.17. And ſo, by the laſt word, broad, they underſtand long. And thus the meaſure of the Arches would fall in with the meaſure in the former verſe, and be the ſame with it: that is, fifty Cubits long, and five and twenty Cubits broad. And ſome are ſo forward for this, that they ſtick not to charge the Text it ſelf with corruption, through erreur of Copies, and default of the Scribes; and would have it altered to their opinion afore-ſaid. But this offers open violence and injury to the ſacred Text. And that their Expoſition would ſeem to be but a needleſſe repetition, falling in with that which is ſo often fet down before. Others therefore underſtand it thus, That the Poſts which did bear up the Arches within the Gates, (for what is ſaid here of one gate, they apply alſo to the reſt of the Gates,) and were between the three Chambers, on each ſide of the Gates, were long, or high in the top of their arches 25 Cubits; and broad in their bottomes or ſettles at leaſt, five Cubits. But beſides other things, the next words following in the next verſe, that the Arches were towards the Utter or Outward Court, do ſeem to us to croſſe this Interpretation. Others would bring theſe Arches alſo within the Gates. But yet with much more Intricacies and difficulties, what Arches they ſhould be, and how to fit theſe meaſures to them. We rather conceive, That as the Prophet, after finiſhing the deſcription, and meaſuring of the firſt Gate in the Outward Court was brought into the Court it ſelf, to ſee it deſcribed; ſo here, after the deſcription of the firſt Gate in the Inner Court, he is brought now out of the Gate, into the Inner Court it ſelf, to ſee it in part deſcribed; and finds here the Arches of thoſe Pillars, round about the Inner Court, to be 25 Cubits long, or high; and five Cubits broad apiece. And theſe Arches to look towards the Outward Court, as it followes in the next words; which they could no wayes do, if they ſtood within the Gate.

V.31. And the Arches thereof were towards the outward Court] Herein this Inner Court differs from the Outward. There the Arches were before them, verſ.12.26. that is, forward: Here the Arches were toward the Outward Court, that is, looked backward. And this evinceth the truth of the expoſition of the former verſe.

and Palm-trees] See Annotations on verſ.16,22,26.

eight ſteps] And ſo in the other two Gates of this Inner Court, verſ.34,37. And herein likewiſe is a difference between this, and the Outward Court: That had but ſeven ſteps in the aſcent to it; This eight: which might amount to the height of about two yards.

V.32. And he brought me] The Eaſt Gate of the Inner Court. And this lay then next in his way. See verſ.28.

V.33. And the little Chambers] See verſ.29.

V.34. And the Arches] See verſ.31.

V.35. And he brought me] The North Gate of the Inner Court. And this lay next after the Eaſt Gate. See verſ.28,32.

V.36. The little Chambers] See verſ.33,29.

V.37. And the Poſts] See verſ.34,31. Called Arches there, and Poſts here. The wall and Outward compaſſe of the Outward Court, was of ſtone. But it ſeems the Outward compaſſe & bounds of the Inner Court, was onely diſtinguiſhed by Poſts at certain diſtances. And if ſo, the People in the Outward Court might ſee the ſacrifices, and ſervices performed by the Prieſts in the Inner Court.

V.38. And the Chambers] Here, among the parts and meaſures of the fabrick, He begins to intermingle the uſe of ſome of the parts; and ſhews, at, and about the North Gate of the Inner Court, the uſe of Chambers, to waſh the ſacrifices in, verſ.38. of Tables, to flay the ſacrifices on, verſ.39,40,41,42. and of Hooks, to hang on them, and their parts, verſ.43.

Chambers] Some imagine one, ſome two, one upon each ſide of the gate; ſome ſix, viz. three on each ſide: underſtanding them of the three little Chambers, on each ſide, within the North Gate; whereof verſ.36. But theſe ſeem to be other Chambers, without any certain Number ſet down, built for this uſe; with veſſels of braſſe, with water in them, to waſh therein the burnt-offerings and ſacrifices, their entrails and Fleſh: and ſeated by the Poſts of the Gates; either thoſe, by the Cloyſters, which run Eaſt and Weſt, along from the two ſides of the North Gate, and faced thoſe paſts of the Inner Court; or elſe, thoſe by the entries into the open flat, or floor of the Inner Court; which were cloſe by the other, and under the Fronts of the Arches of that Court; and in thoſe vacant places between the Bounding Poſts mentioned in the former verſe. Yet all this onely on the North quarter of this Court; as the Text ſeems to give it: and not round about all the quarters of it, as ſome upon probabilities do conjecture.

waſhed] In Solomons Temple we read of a molten Sea, for the Prieſts to waſh in; and of ten Layers of braſſe, to waſh in them ſuch things as they offered for the burnt-offerings, 1 King.7.23,38. 2 Chron.4.2,6. And thoſe may ſeem to be placed in the Temple, 1 King.7.39. However, yet herein appears a difference between Solomons, and Ezekiels Temple. We read but of one Laver in Moſes Tabernacle, Exod.30.18,19,20,21. and Chap.40.30. and that was between the Tabernacle of the Congregation and the Altar.

V.39. And in the Porch] We have the place, Number, Matter, Form, Meaſure, and Uſe of the Tables, in this and the three Verſes following. The place and ſituation of them is the moſt difficult.

in the porch of the gate] Some place the Tables here, even all the eight tables, within the Gate; and make the Sacred slaughter to be acted there; partly in the very porch of the Gate, in the very Threshold, and Exterior part of it: and partly in the more Inward parts of it. But we conceive this place to be too narrow, and full of inconveniencies, for such a purpose. And finding these other expressions of the place, at the side without, at the porch of the gate, Vers.40. by the side of the gate, four on this side, and four on that side; we rather understand thereby, not the inward, but the outward sides of the Porch and the Gate, by the Cloysters, which run East and West from the two ousides of the North Gate, hard by the wathing Chambers, and under covert of the cloysters; so to save the Priests from the injuries of weather, wind, sun, & rain, whiles they were slaying and preparing the Sacrifices; and to prevent disturbances, which in the Gate were likely to fall out.

Two tables] Here begins the number of the tables.

on this side] Both, not insides; but ousides; leaving the Gate, entrance, and passage free.

to slay] So verse.41,42. and to lay the flesh of the Offering, on them, vers. 43. and the Instruments for the slaughter, vers. 42. Here is the use of these tables. The sacrifice then was not slain close by the side of the Altar, but on the North side of it, agreeing therein, with that. Lev.1.11.

the sin-offering, and the trespasse-offering] Levit. 4, 5, 6. and 7. Chapters.

V. 40. And at the side] As one goeth up from without to the entry of the North Gate. And therefore they mistake, that place these Tables, mentioned in this verse, in the South Gate.

V. 41. Four tables] The number, site, and use of all the Tables. Though the Text affords no more, then is said; yet men will raise various opinions, where any the least probability may possibly appear, and give them advantage. And so, some place these Tables in the open Court, and open ayr. Some make them in number twelve; that is four for the whole burnt-offerings, for the constant burnt-offering, and for the sin-offering, and trespasse-offering of the congregation, vers. 42. And eight more for other sacrifices of particular men, in this Verse. Some others make them sixteen; some, four and twenty; assigning to each of the three Gates eight a piece. Some (which is strange) deny that there was any Table at the North Gate. But these all do sooth up themselves in their own fancies, without any warrant from the Text.

V. 42. And the four tables] Not other four besides the former eight, as some would have it. But four of them, or rather, the four Tables, on either side, in such manner as they are reckoned in the former verse, that is, all the eight Tables.

of hewen stone] The matter, and form of the Tables. It may be of one stone a piece. However, they were of hewen stone, well wrought, and polished; not much unlike those, 1 King.7.9.

of a Cubit and a half long] These Tables may seem very little on the square top, for the uses whereunto they are assigned; unlesse Cubits be here taken to be of the largest measure. A place of special note for this purpose. See Annotations on vers. 5.

The Instruments] Knives, batons, bowles, and such other. See Ezra 1.9,10. Some make four of the Tables to be for Instruments, and the other four for sacrifices, and flesh of the offerings, vers. 43.

V. 43. and within were hooks] Some translate end-irons; some ledges at the edges of the Tables, an hand-breadth high, and turning inward, to keep in the Instruments, and flesh, that lay on the Tables, from sliding, or falling off. Some, Tripets, or Brandirons, or fire-stones, set two and two together, to set pots or kettles upon, and to keep in the fire. See Psal.68.13. But we have it translated hooks; and so the word bears. And that best agrees with the business: in hand. Hooks then were in the slaughterhouses, where the Tables where. And the word being of the dual number, seems to imply, that two tangs were made upon one stem, an hand-breadth one from another: and these were fastened round about the wall, at convenient distances, that if need were, the two tangs of one hook might hold two several beasts legs upon them. These were necessary for the slaying, and quartering of the beasts, and other uses.

offering] The word Corban, is here in the Hebrew. The word used by our Saviour, Mar.7.11. and whence Corbana is used for treasury, Mat.27.9.

V. 44. And without the inner-gate] Or, rather, without at the Inner-gate. Here are various translations, and interpretations; and the place is obscure, through such brevity as the Hebrew language useth. However, the learned Papists protesse, That they will stick here to their vulgar Latine, and interpret accordingly, though they acknowledge the Hebrew differs from it: which indeed is their grand errour, as we have said, and ground of their mistakes, in their Expositions of this vision.

were the Chambers of the singers in the inner Court] Sure it is, that the Prophet still here speaks of the Inner Court of the Priests and Levites; and hitherto in the North Gate of it, he measured the Gate it self, and spake of the Chambers for washing, and places for slaughter, Tables, and hooks, at the sides of that Gate. Now he comes from without the Inner Gate, into the Inner Court it self, and there sees the chambers of the singers, in this verse; of the Priests, the keepers of the Charge of the House, vers. 45. and of the Priests the keepers of the Charge of the Altar, vers. 46. The number of these Chambers, and the right places of them, in what quarters of this Court they are situated, is the greatest point of difficulty. Some make two Chambers here to be onely spoken of, and them for the singers onely, attending the charge of the House, and of the Altar. Some make onely four chambers. In the Inner Court, two for the singers, and two for the Priests. The Priests did offer sacrifice to God. And the singers, during the sacrifice, did offer unto him the sacrifice and song of praise. And of these men, some make these four Chambers to be for the singers and priests to dwell in, successively by their weeks, as they attend the service. Others, not for habitation, but for the keeping of the musical instruments, and the vessels, and things requisite for the sacrifice. Other learned men to each of the three gates, both in the Outward, and in the Inner Court, do assign ten Chambers, five on the one side, and five on the other side, of each gate. Whence ariseth the Number of 30 in the outward Court, mentioned vers. 17. And that in these the Ministers of the Temple did dwell by turns, each according to their several degrees, orders, and offices. And that those ten Chambers, by this North Gate, of the Inner Court, were for the singers: Those by the East Gate were for the Priests, the keepers of the charge of the Altar: And those by the South Gate, were for the Priests, the keepers of the charge of the House. Others yet, do place these Chambers mentioned in this, and the two verses following, at the back side (latus or dorsum) of the aforesaid buildings of the North Gate of this Inner Court, joyning to the partition wall, or cloysters that ran on the North quarter, between the outward, and this Inner Court; and so make them opening toward the South. And they assign these Chambers to the Priests, the keepers of the charge of the House, as it is vers. 45. and likewise one at the side of the East Gate; that is, one rowor rank of Chambers, at the back side of the buildings of the East Gate, viz. on the North side of these buildings; which stood not with their backs to the wall, or partition between the Courts, as it was with them at the North Gate; but with their backs to those buildings of the East Gate, that ran along from East to West into the Court; and so their prospect and facing was toward the North: and these they assign to the Priests, the keepers of the charge of the Altar; as they find it, vers.46. And lastly, some do assign the Chambers from the East to the North, to the singers: from the East to the South, to the keepers of the charge of the Altar. And in this great and doubtful variety of opinions, we forbear to interpose, otherwise then in the notes following.

singers] We read in Moses time, that the Priests were appointed to blow with the silver Trumpets over the burnt-offerings, and Peace-offerings, in the solemn Feast, Num.10.10. But of singers, and musick, in Gods service, we read much more, in the dayes of David, Solomon, Hezekiah, Josiah, Zetubbabel, Ezra, and Nehemiah, David appointed them; and that from God, and by the counsel of Gad, and Nathan; for the service of Song, when the Ark had rest at Jerusalem, 1 Chr.6.31. and 16.4,5,6. and for the service of the Tabernacle at Gibeon, 1 Chr.16.37,39. he appointed four thousand of them, all Levites, 1 Chr.23.5. Teachers 288. 1 Chr.25.7. whereof Heman, of the Kohathites; Asaph, of the Gerishonites, on his right hand; and Ethan, of the Mezarites, on his left hand; and Jeduthun were chief, 1 Chr.25.6. and 6.31,33, 39,44. and Chenaniah, the master of the Song, 1 Chr.15.22,27. Others, their brethren, besides the 288 were scholars, or of the second degree. He divided them by lot into 24 orders, and that for the service of the Temple which Solomon was to build. They were to wait by course, in their place and station; their office was for praise and thanks to God: and that with voice, lifting up the voice with joy, and with instruments, cornets, trumpets, cymbals, psalteries, harps, horn; with the instruments of David, saith the text, and with the words and songs of David, because both of his making and composure, 1 Chr.16.7. they did thus all the time of the burnt-offering, 2 Chr.29.25,26,27,28. they were imployed in that work day and night, 1 Chr.9.33. and 16.6. we read how David used them, in the bringing up of the ark, from the house of Obed Edom, 1 Chr.15. Solomon at his bringing of the ark into the oracle, they being arrayed in white linnen, having cymbals, and psalteries, and harps, stood at the East end of the Altar, and with them 120 Priests, sounding with Trumpets, 2 Chr.5.12. Hezekiah likewise used them; and Josiah, in their solemn Reformations, and Passeovers. Many of them came with Zetubbabel, and Ezra, out of the captivity. Zerubbabel had them at his laying the foundation of the Temple; and Nehemiah at his dedication of the walls of Jerusalem: all use of musick and songs is not excluded in Gods worship and service, in the New Testament, Ephes.5.18. Col.3.16. 1 Cor.14.26. See the use of musick, 2 King. 3.15. 1 Chr.25.3.

inner court] Out of the Gate.

at the side] East and West sides of the North Gate: or, at the back of the other Buildings, and next the North partition wall.

one at the side] One row, or rank of chambers, at the North side of the East Gate, with their backs to the long side of that Gate; and so their prospect was toward the North.

V. 45. This Chamber] Or, row of Chambers; a change of numbers.

for the Priests] We may here understand the Levites, given by God to and for the use and service of the Priests, Num.3. 1 Chr. 23.27,30. and Chap.24.20. and Chap.25. and Chap.26. See Gods wrath on King Uzziah, for violation of his charge 2 Chr.26.16. The Levites kept the charge of the house, in cleansing, the holy places whereunto they had access, and observing the lawes of all the severall sacrifices, 1 Chr.23,28,29. and being singers, 1 Chr. 23.30. and Porters, 1 Chron.26.

V. 46. Toward the North] From the North side of the length of the East Gate: that row of chambers, vers.44.

the Priests] Properly so called; as the words following import.

of the Altar] About the sacrifices, and specially and particularly, the charge of the perpetual fire upon the Altar; which coming down from heaven, was commanded perpetually to be preserved, and never to be suffered to go out, Levit.6.13. and 9.24. 2 Chr.7. 1,2. Macc.2.10,11. In an apish imitation whereof some ancient Heathens had their vestal fire kept by their vestal virgins, which never suffered it to go out: whereof the Poet,

Vigilemque sacraverat ignem, excubias divum aeternas, Æneid.4.

These are the sons of Zadock] Zadock was made high Priest, and put in the place and room of Abiathar, by Solomon, 1 King.2. and 26,27,35. and he was of the right line, descended of Eleazar, the eldest son of Aaron, the ninth from him. Abiather and his ancestor Eli, and some others of that race, however they came to be High Priests, yet descended but of the younger brother Ithamar: and Abiathar was deposed, to fulfill the Word of the Lord against the house of Eli, Zadock then was the right High Priest. He anointed Solomon King. He first served in Solomons Temple; and in his race, the High Priesthood, afterwards continued. See Chap. 44.16,17.

which come neer] Exod.19.22. Lev.10.3. and 21.17,18,21,23.

V. 47. the court] Inner Court, between the three Inner Gates, the flat and floor of it.

an hundred cubits] Square, æquilatend. Of the same measure where the three open flats and floors of the outward court, ver.19, 23,27. yea, and the gates of the both courts, all six, were all alike each other, in buildings and measures, fifty long, and five and twenty broad, each of them; so uniform was the frame of the buildings: and the porches, or galleries and chambers in both courts, most alike, though with some differences. This Inner court had, it seem, but this one open flat or floor, and that lying before the three gates of it; whereas the outward court, by reason of the largeness of it, had three such; one before each gate of it. The West side of this Square seems to be some small partition between this Court, and the Temple.

and the altar that was before the house] The altar before the Temple it self. To distinguish it from the altar within the house, That was the golden altar; this the brazen altar: That, to burn incense on it; This, the shell of the Sacrifices. This is described and measured, Chap.43.13——18. Here the place of it is set down to be before the house. So Exod.40.6,29. That altar before the door of the Tabernacle of the Tent of the Congregation. This, we doubt, was placed in the very midst of this Court, or open flat; over against the three gates of it, and before the house. And these gates standing in a direct line with the three gates of the outward court, it follows that the gates being open, through them, the altar it self, the sacrifices, the priests, and the ministerial actions, might be seen of the people in the outward court, yea of them within the outmost wall. Christ is our both altar and sacrifice; our salvation in the midst of the earth, Psal.74.12. Out of all the premises in this Court, we may gather, That many things which this inner court had in common with the outward court, for brevity sake are here omitted. And further light will come to both these courts, by analogy with the court of Solomons Temple, by a right understanding of those texts, 1 King.6.36. and 7.12.

V. 48. And he brought me to the porch of the house] Having done with the courts, he now comes to the Temple it self, and the parts, chambers, and ornaments of it: which being the whole subject of the next Chapter, might best have occasioned the beginning of it here.

porch] This porch stood just West from the altar; and some think, 20 cubits distant from the former inner court of the Priests, Chap.41.10. and about 60. from the altar it self. But others rather think upon a due and joint consideration of the Symmetry of all the buildings in this Court of the Temple; that the staires of this porch joyned to the East bounds of this court. Between the altar, and this porch of the house, seems to be a place of prayer; some open place where the Priests used to pray, Joel.2.17. abused to idolatry, Ezek.8.16. This porch did joyn to the body of the Temple, as part of it, and the entrance into it. This is not that called Solomon's porch, wherein Jesus walked, Joh.10.23. and wherein the people ran together to Peter and John, and the Creeple healed by them, Act.3.11. and wherein the Apostles, and the people were all with one accord, Act.5.12. That must be some porch of the outward court. For into this, the people, or the Apostles, or our Saviour himself never entred; as not being of the tribe of Levi, and of Aarons line, who onely were to enter into it. The true door and porch is Jesus Christ, Joh.10.9,38. and 14.6.

of the house] That is, the Temple, so called κατ' ἐξοχήν, as we call the Bible; as if it were the onely house worthy of that name. So 1 King.8.27. 2 Chr.7.12. Psal.78.69. Gods house for him to dwell in. His house of prayer, Esay 56.7. Mat.21.13.

and measured each post of the porch] We have here in this and the next verse, the porch, and the length and the breadth of it; the posts of it, and their measure, and pillars by them. We have also the breadth of the gate of this porch, and steps ascending to this porch. The length and the breadth of this porch are certainly set down in the next verse, without admitting any scruple about them: yea, and the breadth of the gate likewise, in this verse; and yet great variety, and much difficulty ariseth among Interpreters, upon other points and passages of the words. The main ground thereof is, because some reckon the length of the porch from north to south, and the breadth from east to west. Others; clean contrary. The former, reckoning the east front of the porch, running from north to south to be 20 cubits, labour to make it up divers wayes. Some thus, in these particulars, viz. In the middle of it a door of four cubits broad: on either side of that door a gate, or leaves of a gate, to open when occasion was, three cubits on this side, and three cubits on that side; and on either side of these leaves, cloisters of five cubits long; and thus they take up the whole length or front of the porch: the 20 cubits. Others thus; a post in the middle, whereon the leaves of the door met, two cubits broad: the breadth of the opening leaves, three cubits a piece; and the posts whereon they did hang and turn, one a piece: and the posts or wall on either side the door, five cubits a piece; in all 20. And thus passing through the porch into the house, you pass through the breadth of the porch, not the length of it. On the other side some conceive the meaning to be this; That the length of this porch stood east and west, being 20 cubits within the walls; the breadth, north and south, being 11 cubits within the walls: which breadth was taken up thus; a two leafed gate of three cubits a piece, for the light and opening of it, like one of those, Ch. 41.24. and a middle post of one cubit whereon they met and closed; and a post on either side of two cubits a piece, joyned to and with the leaf, and opening of the gate, which so made up five cubits on either side the middle post, and so justly ariseth the sum of eleven cubits, for the breadth of the porch within the walls: and then the length of the porch remaining, will admit of no difficulty. See Annotations on Chap.41.13.

post of the porch] To distinguish it from the post of the gate which had the leaf adjoyning to it.

three cubits] Each leaf of the gate: and this joyning to the post of it, whereon it did hang and turn, made four cubits.

V.49. the length] Some take it from east to west; as the length was reckoned in the east gates; and so in the body of the Temple. But this better suites with the description of Solomon's Temple, and with the whole frame and measures of this building, to be taken from north to south, along the breadth of the Temple.

and the breadth] From north to south, eleven cubits, say some: But rather from east to west. The breadth of Solomon's porch was but ten cubits, 1 King.6.3. In this, and in many other dimensions this Temple differs from that of Solomon. The height of Solomon's porch was 120 cubits, 2 Chr.3.4.

by the steps] The text sets not down the number of these steps, as it did in the two courts. And hereupon divers men take liberty to themselves for divers opinions: Some saying 15, Some 12, Some 21. Some 10. Most 8. as were in the last, and inner court; and is so expressed in their Latine translation, though without warrant of the Hebrew Canon; and Jerom himself, the author of their Latine translation, as they will have it in his Comment upon this place, leaves the number doubtful.

pillars by the posts] Standing by themselves, within the porch, neer the wall of the Temple, as most think; as Jachin and Boaz in the porch of Solomon's Temple, 1 King.7.21. 2 Chron.3.17. The measures & form of which pillars are set down 1 King.7.15,22. 2 Chron.3.15,16,17. See the Annotations on the fifth verse of this Chapter. This opinion stands well with those, who make the length of the porch to run North and South; which opinion we best allow: But it would much impeach the entrance into the Temple, if we take the breadth of the porch, being 11 cubits, to run North and South, the breadth of the door of the Temple being 10 cubits, Chap.41.2. such therefore are forced to make these pillars to be fixed, and as it were, half incorporated into the wall, and that by the posts, (these are the words of the text) namely, of the Gate in the front of the porch. See Apoc.3.11,12. And thus much of the porch of the Temple: whereupon we may here again gather, That divers things touching the porch, and the upper buildings of it especially, are omitted here.

CHAP. XLI.

Verſ. 1. A Afterwards he brought me to the Temple] He proceeds ſtill from the outmoſt to the inmoſt, from the lower to the higher; from the porch, now to the Temple it ſelf; the Sanctum or the body of it. This part alone is often called by the name of the Temple, the houſe. This is not that Temple, ſo named very often, in the new Teſtament; wherein our Saviour is ſaid to have walked; and at twelve years old to have heard the Doctors, and asked them queſtions. Wherein he taught the people, and healed them, and wrought miracles; and through which he would not ſuffer any man to cary any veſſel; and out of which he caſt, and whipt out, and that twice, the buyers and ſellers. Not that Temple, wherein the children eryed Heſanna; and Anna continued faſting and praying, neither the Phariſee and Publican went up to pray; wherein the Apoſtles daily taught; and the Believers daily continued with one accord. The Temple in thoſe places muſt be meant, of the outward Court of it only; here it is taken in its proper ſignification, for the Sanctuary, the Sanctum, the Body, or Baſilick of the Temple, called the firſt Tabernacle, Heb.9.2. Into which none might enter, no not the Levites themſelves, but onely the Prieſts of the ſeed of Aaron. This Temple figured our Saviour and his body, Joh.2.19,21. And we, and our bodies are by grace become the Temples of the Holy Ghoſt, 1 Cor. 6.19. and 3.16,17. This material Temple here, the Angel begins to meaſure, and proceeds to the Oracle, and the parts and ornaments of them both; and to the outward Chambers and buildings, which were appendixes of them. And firſt.

the Poſts] Some here would underſtand Cloyſters, ſtanding upon Poſts, on either hand the Gate, at the Eaſt end, before the body of the houſe; each ſix Cubits broad from the wall of the houſe, Eaſtward in the Court; and running along the wall, five Cubits on either ſide the Gate, to the North and South corners of the houſe. But this in no wiſe can ſtand with the being and deſcription of the Porch already mentioned; which joyned to the Temple. Some others, underſtand the Fronts of the wall on both ſides the Gate. But the meaſure of ſix Cubits a piece, agrees not to the Fronts: and the ſtraitning of the gate to eight Cubits, to make way for ſix on both ſides, offereth too great violence to the Text, verſ.2. Others, underſtand Chambers; but this carries no ſhew of probability from the Text, or ſtructure. Others, more likely, underſtand the breadth of the wall, or thickneſſe of the wall, on both ſides the Gate of the Temple or Sanctuary. Or, which differs not much, the Poſts of the Gate, the North and South Poſt, meaſured here in their length, or thickneſſe from Eaſt to Weſt; which is one reed, or ſix Cubits; as alſo was the thickneſſe of all the walls of the Temple, verſ.5. See Annotations on verſ.21.

which was the breadth of the tabernacle] Some take tabernacle here for the upper threſhold, or lintel of the door: which was, ſay they, not arched, but ſquare or flat; and that was according to the thickneſſe of the wall of ſix Cubits. But this is a very hard and unheard of Catachreſis, an harſh, and abuſive conſtruction of tabernacle. More fair it is to underſtand, that the former two ſixes, of the breadth of the Poſts, fell in, and agreed with the breadth of the tabernacle of Moſes; as indeed they did. For Moſes tabernacle was broad eight boards, and each board was of the breadth of a Cubit and an half, which made up twelve Cubits, Exod. 26.16, 21, 25. And for tabernacle, the LXX. here read and tranſlate, Poſts. And this meaſure of them, well agrees with the Symmetry and harmony of this wondrous ſtructure.

V. 2. And the breadth of the door was ten cubits] Door; or, entrance. This door was in the midſt of the outward, or Eaſt wall of the body of the Temple or Sanctuary, joyning to the Porch.

ten cubits] The whole tabernacle of Moſes, was in all, but twelve Cubits broad. And the breadth of the Porch, here, was eleven Cubits; and of the door-way of it ſix Cubits, Chap. 40. 48, 49. This door, in Solomons Temple, was but five Cubits broad, 1 King.6.33. the fourth part of the wall.

and the ſides of the door five cubits] Thoſe five on each ſide of the door, did remain of the wall to the two ſides of the houſe, to make the whole length of that wall twenty Cubits, from North to South; according to the breadth of the Temple within, from corner to corner.

the length thereof fourty cubits] Length, from Eaſt to Weſt, and breadth, from North to South, were of the ſame meaſure in Solomons Temple, 1 King.6.2,17. And therefore it ſeems the thickneſſe of the wall here, which divided between the body of the Temple and the Oracle, is beſides the length of ſixty cubits, whereof fourty belong to the Temple, and twenty to the Oracle. In Moſes tabernacle, and Solomons Temple, there was but a vail, dividing thoſe ſacred places, Exod. 26. 31, 32, 33. 2 Chron. 3.14. Which diviſion, or vail was reckoned in the ſixty Cubits, 1 King. 6.2. and 2 Chron.3.3. And a vail ſeems to be likewiſe in Zerubbabels Temple, repaired by Herod; which was rent at Chriſts death. Matth.27. 51.

V. 3. Then went he inward] Through the body of the Temple, the holy place; to the Oracle, the moſt holy place.

and meaſured the poſts of the door two cubits] This partition differs from that in Solomons Temple; as was ſaid in the Annotations upon the former verſe. Some imagine hereby, an entry, or cloyſter between the two holy places, beſides the door. But this is inconſiſtent with the ſpace and partition between them. Neither was there any entrance into the moſt holy place, but by the door. But this muſt be underſtood, either of the breadth, and thickneſſe of the partition wall; which was thinner, as reaſon required, then the other walls of the Temple. Or, of two Pilaſters, by, or upon the poſts of the door, on either ſide; chiefly for ornament ſake.

and the door ſix cubits] Some underſtand this of the height of the door, and conceive that verſ.5,17,20. have a relation to this height; and that the breadth is expreſſed in the next words, and meaſure of ſeven Cubits. Others, and the moſt, take them for the breadth of the door. And of theſe, ſome thus, and that with moſt probability, That the door was a two-leafed door; as verſ.25. and either leaf of three Cubits, ſo making up ſix Cubits for the opening of the door, and ſpace of entrance; with a middle Poſt, whereon they met, of one Cubit; and ſo making ſeven cubits for the whole breadth, as in the next words.

and the breadth of the door ſeven cubits] See Annotations next preceding. Yet many force the words to mean thoſe parts of the wall, remaining on both ſides the door; ſeven, ſay they, on either ſide: which fourteen, with ſix of the door, make up twenty, the length of that wall and partition to the inſides of the Oracle. But here, the door and Poſt of it ſeem onely to be meaſured; and the ſide-walls, on both ſides of the door, to be omitted; as of themſelves plain enough.

V. 4. ſo he meaſured] The moſt holy place, within the walls, was a perfect ſquare of twenty Cubits. And ſo was the Oracle in Solomons Temple, 1 King.6.20. 2 Chron. 3. 8. Moſes Tabernacle, by the boards of it, and by the curtains of Cherubins, may be gathered to be fourty cubits long; whereof the holy place, thirty, and the moſt holy place, ten. And the whole, eight Cubits broad, Exod.26.

before the Temple] That is, in the inner part of the Temple. Or, thus, The breadth of it was juſt equal, with the breadth of the body of the Temple, and ſtood ſtraight and even before it, at the Weſt end of it; therefore he calls that here the breadth; though the length, ſo called, were in it ſelf of the ſame meaſure, as the ſides are in a ſquare.

This is the moſt Holy place] Far more holy then any other place: Becauſe there was Gods Meicy Seat, and Propitiatory. It is called the Oracle, becauſe God ſpake with Moſes, and gave his Oracles and Anſwers there, Numb.7.89. Exod.25.22. and 26.33. It is called the inner-Houſe, the inner-Temple, verſ.15,17.

V. 5. meaſured the wall of the houſe] Now he comes to the walls of the houſe, and the outward buildings. The wall of all the houſe, was ſix Cubits thick, fit to ſupport the height of the houſe.

and the breadth] Of that ſubſtruction of Chambers, joyning to the out-walls of the houſe, the breadth, or bottom, or floor, was four Cubits to the lowerſt ſtory of them; and conſequently, five to the middle; ſix to the highmoſt. It was five in Solomons Temple, to the nethermoſt; ſix to the middle-row, and ſeven to the third, and uppermoſt, 1 King.6.6.

on every ſide] That is North, and South, and Weſt. For the Text clears it, that the Eaſt ſide, or end, which was for the Porch and Entrance, had no Chambers.

V. 6. three, one over another, and thirty in order] Three ſtories; and thirty in each ſtory, viz. moſt likely, twelve on the North ſide, and twelve on the South ſide, and ſix at the Weſt ſide or end, in each ſtory. And all the Chambers on each ſtory were of the ſame height, and breadth; about ſix Cubits ſquare apiece, and five Cubits high; as thoſe, 1 King.6.10. that is, about one Cubit above the ordinary ſtature of men in thoſe dayes. Some conceive theſe to be overlaid with gold within; by that in Solomons Temple, 2 Chron. 3.9. But that place ſeems to relate rather to the high Chambers over the porch of the Temple. Theſe of theſe Chambers was not for the habitations of women, or Nuns, as ſome Papiſts would fain, and fondly have it: but for the Prieſts, and for the ſafer cuſtody of the gold and ſilver veſſels of the Temple, and ſuch other things, in thoſe ſafe and ſacred places.

and they entred into the wall] Not the outwall of five Cubits thick, verſ.9. but the wall of the Houſe or Temple; at leaſt the beams and floors of the middle, and upmoſt ſtories did ſo. But ſo entred, that the beams might have hold, and lye onely upon the outward ledges, narrowings, or Rabatements of the wall, as is ſignified in the next verſe.

V. 7. And there was an enlarging] The ſtories wider above, as the thickneſſe of the walls of the houſe was made narrower and thinner above; that is, abated a Cubit, for the beams, floor, and uſe of the middle ſtory: and yet another Cubit more then that, for the beams, floor, and enlargement of the higheſt ſtory. So that the walls of the Temple were ſix Cubits thick at the bottome; five at the middle ſtory; and four at the higheſt ſtory. And the Chambers broad, four Cubits the lowmoſt rank, five the middle, and ſix the higheſt rank.

To

To the ſide Chambers] For them and their uſe; to receive the beams of them, and enlarge the Roomes.

the breadth of thy houſe was ſtill upward] The breadth of the Chambers was gained, and enlarged ſtill upwards on the houſe; increaſing, as is expreſſed in the next words. Not that the ſtories jutted outward, one above or beyond another. And winding ſtaires went up to theſe ſide Chambers; and then paſſages through them, from Chamber to Chamber; winding ſo about the houſe.

V. 8. I ſaw alſo the height of the houſe round about] Some underſtand this of the height of the Seats round about the Houſe, on the outſide, ſuſtained and ſupported by beams coming out of the walls, and being in height from the ground ſix Cubits. Some, of the height of the Rebatements, Julets, or Menſolts, upon which the beams of the Chamber floor were laid, that they were ſix Cubits bits one from the other, drawing upwards. And other ſome, of the height of the Houſe, or Temple, thus; ſix Cubits from the ground, to the floor of the loweſt ſtory, that is, ſix Cubits the wall upwards, that was the foundation of the ſtories of Chambers; being of the ſame height with the breadth of the door of the Porch, Chap.40.48. and with the breadth or thickneſſe of the Poſts of the Gate of the Temple, verſ.1. And of all the walls of the houſe, verſ.5. and then after that, The three ſtories of Chambers, about five Cubits high apiece. Others underſtand it, of the height of each ſtory in each Chamber. But moſt, and moſt likely, of the height of the higheſt ſtory of Chambers; He ſaw in the houſe, or at the houſe, the height of that higheſt ſtory. The foundations of which ſtory, were a full reed of ſix great Cubits; gained ſo, by the ſecond rebatement of the wall of the Temple. The foundations of the middle ſtory were but five; and of the loweſt, but four, verſ.5. The number of them in each ſtory; and the height and breadth of them all alike. This height from the ground was about five and twenty Cubits, viz. ſix to the firſt floor; five, each ſtory; one, the thickneſſe of each floor; and one, the top Cover, being a flat roof, as houſes in Paleſtine and Egypt in thoſe times uſed to be. And above this height, the windowes of the Temple were; and room enough for them.

A full reed] As Gen.23.9. full moving. See 2 Chr.3.3. See Annotations on Chap.40.5.

V. 9. The thickneſſe of the wall] Or, the breadth of it; in the ſame ſenſe. And yet ſome, without all cauſe, deny this to be underſtood of the thickneſſe of the wall, that it was thus thick, as five Cubits; but that this wall ſtood at ſo much breadth and diſtance from the wall of the houſe.

wall] Of ſtone; not of wood, as of poſts, Joyſts, and boards; as ſome weakly imagine.

which was for the ſide Chambers without] That is, the exterior and ſubſtruction of the ſide wall for the outſides of this building, and ſubſtruction of the ſide Chambers, incloſing them all, as the outward wall and part of them.

was five cubits] And this alſo is the breadth of the place that was left, verſ.11. And the thickneſſe of the wall of that building, verſ.12. each of them one Cubit leſſe, then the thickneſſe or breadth of the walls of the houſe, verſ.5.

and that which was left was the place of the ſide Chambers that were within] Some underſtand hereby, the place of the ſide Chambers themſelves, that were within theſe bounds, and took up the ſpace and place that was left, between this exterior wall of five Cubits, and the walls of the Temple; The Chambers thus from the exterior wall ſtanding inwards towards the houſe: and this place or ſpace was alſo about five Cubits, whether you call it length, or breadth, verſ.11. Others take this place that was left, to be a void place and ſpace of ground, clear and free from any buildings upon it, and lying next before theſe Temple-Chambers; and being of the breadth of five Cubits, round about the three ſides of the Temple, North, South, and Weſt; whence paſſage was to the doors of the foreſaid Temple-Chambers, one toward the North, and another toward the South, verſ.11. This place is called the place that was left, that is, left void and free of buildings, verſ.9,11. And ſhe word there uſed in the Original, is no where elſe found in Scripture.

V. 10. And between the Chambers] That is, ſay ſome, Thoſe of the Temple laſt ſpoken of; as if between Chamber and Chamber there were the wideneſſe and diſtance of 20 Cubits. But this is incredible and impoſſible; as appears by what hath formerly been ſhewed. Others would make twenty Cubits to ariſe out of all thoſe diſtances between thoſe Chambers of the Temple ſummed together. But neither may this be admitted, upon the former grounds. The meaning is, Between thoſe Chambers of the Temple laſt ſpoken of, which were for treaſuries, and other Chambers adjoyning to the walls of the Court, to the outmoſt part; we mean, of this inmoſt Court, over the Porches, or Porticoes thereof; which Chambers were chiefly for lodgings of the Prieſts; and did face thoſe other Chambers of the Temple; Between them was this wideneſſe here ſpoken of.

was the wideneſſe of twenty cubits] The words are plain. Some take them as they ſound. Some ſay twenty Cubits, beſides the five Cubits of the place that was left mentioned, verſ.9,11. Now of this wideneſſe of twenty Cubits, it is not expreſly ſet down how it was taken up, and imployed. And hereupon opinions run divers wayes. Some ſay, ten of them were taken up in Galleries, or Cloyſters, upon pillars; thoſe mentioned verſ.15,16. And the other ten, in floores or ſpaces open to the skie, that is, five Cubits on each ſide of thoſe middle Galleries. Others ſay, This whole Intervall of twenty Cubits, was free of buildings, and lay open to the skie. However, They labour to fill up the number of an hundred Cubits in this Court of the Temple, from North to South: Some thus; The Temple with its ſubſtructions and Chambers, ſixty cubits: This wideneſſe here mentioned 20 cubits: and the Galleries and upper Chambers thereof joyning to the walls of the Court, 20 cubits on the North ſide, and 20 cubits on the South ſide. But theſe lieed not that theſe particulars corrupting the wideneſſe of 20 on both ſides of the Temple, raiſe the ſum to 120. Others, more rightly, reckon thus; The Temple with its ſubſtructions and Chambers 50. The foreſaid wideneſſe on either ſide 20. and the Galleries and upper Chambers thereof, joyning to the wall on either ſide, five. Or, excluding thoſe laſt five cubits on either ſide for the Chambers of the walls of the Court, we may take in thoſe five on each ſide, mentioned verſ.11.

round about the houſe on every ſide] Eaſt, Weſt, North, and South, ſay ſome; yet the ſymmetry, and architecture and fabrick of all the buildings in this Court ſeem to deny any ſuch wideneſſe to be left on the Eaſt end. It muſt then be underſtood of the North, South, and Weſt ſides: though ſome would have it on the North and South ſides only; and, without juſt ground, do deny any ſuch wideneſſe to be left on the Weſt end alſo.

V. 11. And the doors of the ſide Chambers] Chambers of the Temple; not of the counterfeits, or ſuppoſed: Buttreſſes of the Temple. Thoſe ſubſtructions of Chambers, each of them had doors. What Papiſts write here of theſe doors opening into places for prayer, is beſides the text; through the errour of their vulgar Latine Tranſlation, to which they are tyed.

toward the place that was left] Verſ.9. of the breadth of five cubits round about, as it is in the end of this verſe, left clear and free from buildings, cloſe to the ſides of theſe Chambers. Others, not ſo well, taking the place that was left to the Temple, make theſe doors looking towards the Temple, if not into it. See Annotations on verſ.9.

one door towards the North] The ſingular for the plural; that is, one ſorte of theſe doors were toward the North; that is, the doors of thoſe chambers that were on the North ſide of the Temple, looked Northward.

and another door toward the South] That is, the other ſort: namely, the doors of thoſe chambers that were on the South ſide of the Temple, looked toward the South: and ſo all looked towards that quarter of the heavens that lay juſt before them. On the Eaſt end were no chambers; though ſome are otherwiſe minded; the porch of the Temple ſupplyed the place of the chambers there. Some conceive, without ſufficient ground, that there were but two doors onely, or at leaſt, that here are meant the two extream doors onely, one on the North ſide of the temple, and North chambers, and placed at the corner towards the Eaſt; and another on the South ſide of the temple, and South chambers, at the end or corner toward the Eaſt: and that neither looked towards the temple, nor towards the Court, or wide and open place, but ſerved for a ſuppoſed ſtair caſe, at the Eaſt end, on either ſide, whereby they went unto the chambers, and ſo through one chamber to another.

and the breadth] Some ſay, from the wall of the temple, to the wall which incloſed the buttreſſes. Others ſay, the breadth of the chambers within, in their inſide. But moſt and beſt underſtand it of the place that was left void from buildings, cloſe to the outſide of theſe chambers, into which the doors opened.

five cubits round about] Not between the walls of the temple, and theſe chambers; as if there were a void ſpace of five cubits broad, round about, between them: which ſome would therefore have to be filled up with earth; ſo burying, as it were, the temple deep in ground. But no ſuch thing, nor any ſuch void place can be admitted; as the ſixth verſe doth evince. Neither ſeem theſe five cubits to be part of the 20 cubits, verſ.10. But to lye between them, and the Temple-Chambers.

V. 12. Great here is the difficulty of the text, and the variety of expoſitions.

now the building] Some underſtand this of the chambers of the temple, and their ſtories and buildings, which can no wayes agree with the deſcription, ſite, and meaſures following in this verſe. Others, of the chambers of the wall of the Court, ſtanding at 20 cubits diſtance from the former. And this as improbable, if not impoſſible, as the other. Some underſtand it, of a building of chambers, in the middle of the wideneſſe of 20 cubits, verſ.10. And ſome, of a wall, diſtinguiſhing this Court into certain parts, viz. The ſegment, or ſeparate place, as it is here tranſlated: and the utter Court, as it is called, Chap.42.13,7,8,9. But how theſe opinions can ſtand with the buildings premiſed, and within the compaſs of the Court of the temple, we can not conceive. Others, more likely, and better agreeing with the words of the text, make this to be a building, West from the temple, measured here; and in a several Court, measured verſ.15. and the wall, and the galleries or chambers of it, measured alſo, verſ.15. and the garnishing of them, ſet down verſ.16.

before] Verſ.15. over againſt; oppoſite, and oppoſite unto it.

before the ſeparate place] Some underſtand this of the chambers of the temple. Some of the chambers, together with counterforts or buttreſſes of the wall of the temple. Some, of the temple it ſelf. Some, of the temple, and chambers or ſubſtructions, joyntly. Some, of that ſegment, formerly mentioned. Others, more likely, of the middle open ſpace of 20 cubits between the chambers, of the walls of the temple, and of the walls of the Court, that lay at the Weſt end of the temple.

at the end towards the weſt] Toward the Weſt end of the building, ſay ſome. Of the ſeparate place, ſay others. The one making the building to be, before the ſeparate place. The other, behind it. Some thus, on, or from the North and South ſides of the ſeparate place; which by a direct line looked full Weſtward.

weſt] Sea, in the Hebrew, ſignifying the Weſt, becauſe the great midland Sea lay Weſt from Jury, as hath been ſaid.

was ſeventy cubits broad] Some reckon this breadth from Eaſt to Weſt, which in proper ſpeech is the length; and they make up the number thus. The length of the temple, along the ſides whereof, ſay they, this building was, 60 cubits: and the breadth of the laſt ſtory of chambers, and of the wall of the Weſt end, 10 cubits. Or, if they amount to ſome more, then they make the beginning of the building and reckoning to be ſo much backward from the beginning of the temple. Some reckon this breadth of 70 in its proper acception from North to South, and at the Weſt end; and compt thus; The breadth of the Oracle within, 20 cubits; The thickneſſe of the North, and South wall of the Oracle, 6 cubits a piece; the breadth of the chambers on both ſides, four cubits a piece; the breadth or thickneſſe of the exterior wall of thoſe chambers, on both ſides of the temple, five cubits a piece; the breadth of a void or open ſpace between the chambers, and another exterior wal compaſſing that void ſpace, five cubits a piece: And the thickneſſe of this laſt named wall, five cubits on either ſide the temple, North and South: in all ſeventy cubits. Others reckon this breadth from the walls of the temple, to the walls of the Court, thus; The chambers and outwall of them, nine cubits: The interval and void open ſpace between the chambers of the temple, and thoſe of the wall of the Court, 20 Cubits; and the galleries and chambers over them, joyning to the wall of the Court, ſix cubits: in all 35 on the North ſide of the temple, and ſo many on the South ſide: in all 70 cubits. But, reckoning this, in a ſeveral Court, all doubts and ſcruples are taken away.

and the wall of the building was five cubits thick round about] This was the breadth and groſneſſe of the wall of this building; and is the ſame thickneſſe with that of the exteriour wall of the ſide chambers, verſ. 9. and with the breadth of the place that was leſt, verſ.11. one cubit leſſe then the thickneſſe of the walls of the houſe, verſ. 5. Some place this wall clean behind this building, contrary to the Letter of the text. Some make this wall to be the onely thing meant and meaſured in this verſe, how thick it is ſelf, where, and how far it did run in breadth, or ſide-wiſe, from North to South; and how far long-wiſe, from Eaſt to Weſt.

and the length thereof ninety cubits] Some underſtand this of the diſtinguiſhing wall, and the proper length of it, ninety cubits, even the length of the Court floor, or open plot and flat: Whereunto the walls, or buildings to the walls, being added, makes it up a hundred cubits, as the accompt is, verſ.13. Others underſtand this of the outer wall, part of the building it ſelf, and reckon the length thus; the Porch eleven cubits, the temple and Oracle, with their walls, ſeventy; the chambers, and walls of them, nine: in all ninety. Others, taking here the length for height, comparing this with the breadth of ſeventy, conceive this building to be ninety cubits high. In this variety of opinions and expoſitions, others ſay, they can rather tell wherein to find fault, then where with to content, and ſatisfie themſelves. But we conceive, that placing this in a ſeveral and diſtinct Court, theſe difficulties will be removed; as will after more fully appear.

V.13. So he meaſured] The buildings being thus platformed, he now cometh to make their meaſures; or, what he meaſured in ſome parts, he now gathers into one ſum. He ſeems to ſome, in this, and the next verſe, to caſt the buildings into a ſquare, though there was ſome difference in the poſture of the buildings, and face of the floor of the cloſe, or inner Court. But indeed, the buildings are rather in ſeveral ſquares.

the houſe an hundred cubits long] Some vary ſomewhat, in gathering up this ſum; out of which variety, ſome further light, perhaps, may ariſe. All take this length, from Eaſt to Weſt. Some number thus; Porch twenty cubits; Wall of the temple, ſix; Temple, and Oracle 60. Walls and chambers, at the Weſt end, fourteen. In all, 2 hundred cubits. Some thus, The wall of the Porch, five cubits; the porch it ſelf, with its poſts, or cheeks of the door, 12. $\frac{1}{2}$. Eaſt wall of the temple, 6. $\frac{1}{2}$ The temple and Oracle, ſixty cubits; the Weſtwall of the Oracle, 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ breadth of the Weſt chambers, five; the outward wall of them, broad, or thick, five cubits. In all, an hundred cubits. Others thus; The wall of the porch, 6. cubits; the breadth of the Porch, eleven; the wall of the Temple, 6. Then for ſettels, five cubits; the Temple, 40. Cubits; The Baſt wall of the Oracle, 6. the Oracle it ſelfe, 20. Cubits; the weſt wall of it, 6. Cubits: In all, an hundred cubits. But we conceive, the righteſt reckoning to be thus, ſtairs to the Eaſt porch, 6. Cubits; or rather from them, the thickneſſe of the wall of the Porch, 6. Cubits; breadth of the Porch, through which the entrance was made, in the inſide, eleven cubits; the wall of the Temple, 6, The Temple it ſelf, 40. Cubits; The partition wall, two cubits; The Oracle, 20. The Weſt wall of the Oracle, 6. The breadth of the Weſt Chambers, at the bottom, four cubits; And the thickneſs of their exterior wall, five cubits: In all, an hundred cubits. The breadth likewiſe an hundred cubits, from North to South; thus, The breadth of the Temple, twenty cubits: the thickneſſ of each wall, North and South, 6. apiece: The breadth of the chambers on each ſide, four; the thickneſſe of the exterior walls of the Chambers, on each ſide, five: the breadth of the place that was left on either ſide, five: the widenesſe between, on either ſide, twenty: In all, an hundred cubits.

and the ſeparate place] Some underſtand this of the chambers of the wall of the court, that ſtood facing thoſe of the Temple, at twenty cubits diſtance, on the North and South ſides; and that they were from the Eaſt to the Weſt point of them, a hundred cubits. Others, take it for a ſeparate building of Chambers, ſtanding by it ſelf, between the chambers of the Temple, and thoſe of the Court-wall, for the uſe of the Prieſts, and their lodgings: And that this building, with the walls thereof, was of the ſame length with the other of the houſe, even juſt ſo large to ſerve their uſes. Others conceive, That this explains, what the Prophet means, by Houſe, in the former words; And that is, even this ſeparate place, the Porch, Temple, Oracle, Chambers, and walls adjoyning. So that this ſeparate place was the temple; or at leaſt part of the Temple, the Chambers running by, and adjoyning to the ſides of it; and ſo of the ſame meaſure and length with it. But we rather, conceive here to be meant, that building in a ſeveral Court; as we mentioned in the Annotations upon the former verſe; and the ſquare of that Court to be an hundred cubits, thus; The wideneſſe of twenty Cubits, on the Weſt end of the temple; the breadth of this building, which ran Eaſt and Weſt, ſeventy cubits, ver. 12. And the thickneſſe of the wall of it, on either ſide, five, verſ. 12. In all an hundred cubits. And then from North, to South, thus, The length of this Building, ninety cubits, verſ. 12. And the thickneſſe of the wall, as formerly, five on each ſide; which makes up an hundred cubits.

V. 14. Alſo the breadth of the face of the houſe] Here is meaſured, not the houſe it ſelfe, but that which was before the face of it; the breadth between the Court of the Priests, and the Porch of the Temple, ſay ſome. Or, much rather, the whole Eaſt face of the Court of the houſe; which was an hundred cubits.

and of the ſeparate place] The meaning thus, which is the ſeparate place, that is the ſeparate place: Or rather, that other ſeparate place and court, which lay in a ſquare, juſt Weſt behind the temple. And ſo the face of it, was, as the face of the houſe.

Toward the eaſt] Which lay eaſtward from the Temple, the eaſt plot, or empty ſpace, or open floor of this inmoſt Court of the Temple, ſay ſome. But we rather underſtand the breadth from North to South, of the Eaſt face of theſe two Courts of the Houſe, and of the ſeparate place juſt behind it, as we ſaid before.

An hundred cubits] From North to South; which ſome do open, and caſt up thus, That at the Eaſt end, between the Court of the Prieſts, and the Houſe or Temple, there was an empty open ſpace running from North to South, an hundred Cubits, viz. twenty in the breadth of the houſe, twenty on either ſide the houſe, in the ſeparate place, and 20 in the thickneſs of the buildings, on either ſide the ſeparate place. But we muſt rather gather up the ſum of an hundred Cubits, as we did before. Some conceiving all the Buildings, and void ſpaces, mentioned in this Court, (in the middle whereof the Temple is ſaid to ſtand) to be more then one Court of an hundred Cubits ſquare, will containe, have thought, that this Court had an hundred Cubits ſquare on each ſide of it; as the Court of the Prieſts had. And ſurely ſuch difficulties and perplexities do ariſe touching the ſymmetries, and correſpondencies of theſe buildings, and void places, in one Court, one with another, that we conceive builders and artſ-men in this kind cannot reconcile, and therefore we rather make two Courts of them.

V. 15. And he meaſured the length of the building] Of that building mentioned, ver. 12,13. See the Annotations there. Some here underſtand this of the buildings of this Court of the Temple, of thoſe Porticoes, or porches, made with Pylaſters, and Arches, joyning to the wall of this inmoſt Court, wherewith it was encompaſſed; or rather, the Weſt range of them, which ran along the Weſt quarter, at the back of the Oracle behind it. Others of the buildings, which they ſuppoſe ran on the outſide of the ſeparate place, North and South; And that theſe did not reach clean up to the building that ſtood croſſe to them, at the Weſt end; but brake off juſt againſt the ſides of the Chambers at that end of the houſe, and ſo left a ſpace to paſſe from the North buildings, through the Weſt, to the South buildings.

Again, ſome underſtand it of the buildings of that utter Court, mentioned Chap.42.1.3,7,8,9. which was behind the ſeparate place, behind the breaſt-wall of it. Which we conceive to draw neereſt to the letter of the text, and meaning of the Prophet; That the building within this ſeparate place and Court had theſe Galleries or Chambers on both ſides of it; and made up the meaſure of length in ſuch manner, as is here ſet down: yet we muſt needs confeſſe, that here we walk in the midſt of obſcurities, and difficulties.

over againſt] Verſ.12. before. The meaning may be within the breaſt-wall of it.

The ſeparate place] See Annotations on verſ.12.

which was behind it] Some underſtand this of the ſeparate place, that it was behind this building. But moſt, and moſt likely, mean it of the Building, that it was behind the ſeparate place, or breaſt-wall of it; which beſt agrees with the harmony and ſymmetry of the whole frame of all the buildings in this utter Court. At leaſtwiſe, this building was behind, that is, toward the Weſt, behind that Eaſt part, which he had meaſured before, ver. 14.

and the Galleries thereof] Some mean by theſe, Angles or Corners. Some, buttreſſes of this building. Some, Chambers, or Storehouſes. Others, more likely, do mean porches of this building; or Galleries, ſupported with pillars; or, much to the ſame effect, the Belconies of them, as we newly call them, the ornaments of them. Theſe being in the weſt had their proſpect, to the weſt part, and hindmoſt part of the Temple.

on the one ſide] North and South ſides of the houſe, or rather, Eaſt, and Weſt ſides of this building in the ſeparate place.

an hundred cubits] Equal with the place, verſ. 14. and it was according to the length of all the Porches in other Courts. Of theſe hundred Cubits, ſee the particulars, for length, and for breadth, (this Court alſo being an æquilateral quadrat) in the Annotations upon verſ.13.

with the inner temple] That is, the Oracle, the hindmoſt part of the Temple, or rather the whole Temple, which was the inner part of all the buildings, being in the middle of that Court, incompaſſed with porches, or Pylaſters and Arches and Chambers over them, joyning to the wall of that Court; ſaving that on the Eaſt quarter of the Temple Court, moſt think there were no porches, Galleries, or Chambers.

and the Porches of the Court.] Not that one porch of the Temple; but the Porches of this Court: Which Porches being the ſame in this Court, as in the precedent Courts, the Prophet thought it enough to touch them only in this one word. Theſe Porches, ſay ſome, running into the floor of this Court, divided it into ſeveral ſquares. Others make this verſe a kind of repetition or collection of what was ſaid before; that is, that he meaſured the Temple in the midſt of the Temple-court; and the Porches about it. And this the rather, becauſe of the latter words of the verſe. But thoſe words rather bear, that the Temple, and the Porches of that Court, were an hundred Cubits; as the buildings and Galleries of this ſeparate place. And it ſeems upon this occaſion, the ornaments of the buildings as well of the Temple, as of this ſeparate place, are deſcribed verſ. 16——21.

V. 16. The door Poſts.] The Prophet in all this Chapter ſeems to contain himſelf within the limits of the Court of the Temple, and of the ſeparate place; and comes here to ſet forth the garnishing of the buildings in theſe Courts, verſ. 16——21. The door poſts then we take in a latitude, to comprehend thoſe, Chap. 40.48,49. and thoſe verſe 1,2,3,11,20,23,24,25. Of this Chapter, even the door poſts in all the buildings of both the foreſaid Courts Some extend them to the door poſts in the other Courts alſo of the Prieſts, and of the people, in their gates and porches; and alſo to the Threſholds, and upper lintels of them, and to the Pylaſters for ornament upon the walls.

and the narrow windowes] Either the ſmall windows in the arches of the Cloiſters, and Porches compaſſing the court of the Temple; or, the windows of the Chambers joyning to the Temple it ſelf; narrow without, and broad within; or narrow in the middle of the Wall, and broad and ſloaped both without and within, the better to receive the light, and to dilate it and diſperſe it; as in Solomon's Temple, 1. King. 6.4. See Annotations on Chap. 40.16.

We read of no windows in Moſes Tabernacle, no not one in the holy place it ſelf. But of one Candleſtick there with ſeven lamps or lights, Exod. 25.31,32,37. & Chap. 37.17,18,23. To be kindled, and burnt always, from evening to morning; and poſſibly for want of windows, and light, from morning to evening again, Exod. 27.20,21. & 30.8. Lev. 24.1,2,3. 1 Sam. 3.3. In Solomon's Temple we read of windows, and ten candleſticks beſides, 1 King. 7.49. 2 Chron. 4.7,20,21,22. & 13.11. of theſe Candleſticks we have no mention here; as not of many other things beſides that were in Solomon's Temple. Now theſe windows, by the nature of the word, ſeem to be, like our lattice-windows, or windows of wood full of ſmall holes boared through, leaſt birds might get in at them. But the matter of them ſeems to be of gold, as Joſephus teſtifies of the Temple windows in his time; and the rather, becauſe Solomon covered the Oracle, Temple, Porch, Walls, floors, and all within, with gold: and made the Candleſticks, and ſome veſſels all of pure gold, 1 King. 6.20,21,22.28,30,32,35. 2 Chron. 3.4——11. Chap. 4.7,8,19,20,21,22. Theſe windows, for light, may put us in mind of the light of the Scriptures, Pſal. 19.8,9. Prov. 6.23. 2 Pet. 1.19.

and the galleries] Galleries, and Chambers of the houſe, verſ. 5——12. and of the ſeparate place, verſ. 15. and ſome add, of the Porches at the walls of the Courts, and of the Gates entring into them.

on their three ſtories] Some here underſtand the three ſtories of the Galleries, and Chambers, joyning to the walls of the Court of the Temple, on the three ſides; The North, South, and Weſt ſide. Others, the three ſtories of Chambers, joyning to the walls of the Temple it ſelf, on thoſe three ſides; and that theſe were adorned and garniſhed, with the Cherubins and Palm-trees following: and that the Eaſt end or face of the Temple needed it not, by reaſon of the Porch and Gate, thereof. Others, for ſtories, tranſlating parts, underſtand, thoſe three parts or ſides of the Temple it ſelf. Others, in a greater latitude, and more likelihood of truth, tranſlate and underſtand it thus, Galleries to thoſe three; that is, to the Temple, to the ſeparate place, and to the walls of the Court: yet in ſuch varieties, we deſire rather to be narrative, then too determinative.

over againſt the door] Some underſtand a door on either ſide of the Temple. Some a Threſhold, or half pace, or bottome of turning, winding ſtairs, at the Eaſt ends that led into the ſide-chambers. But the Galleries were not over againſt either of theſe. Others, underſtand doors oppoſite one to another; Thoſe of the North ſide of the Court to thoſe of the South ſide of the Court; and that they had the ſame meaſure, and manner of adorning. We rather conceive door from doors, by an allegie of numbers; and underſtand, that over againſt each door, of the Galleries aforeſaid, together with the doors of the Temple it ſelf, or, about them doors, and above them, as it is verſ. 17,20. were the garniſhings following.

ſieled with wood] Boards of wood: moſt likely of Cedar, or Olive-tree. Not that the tops or roofs of the Chambers were ſieled with them, inſtead of arches of ſtone, as ſome would. But the partitions between the Chambers rather, were made of them; or partly with them. And the doores, and poſts of the doors, namely of the Porch, Temple, and Oracle, and other places formerly mentioned, were made of them, and moſt likely ſieled with them; as the very walls of thoſe three ſacred places were, and had Cherubims and Palm-trees carved upon them, overlaid with gold, as we read in Solomon's Temple, 1 King. 6. 2 Chron. 3. and 4 Chapters.

and from the ground] Some interpret, as if the doors and poſts, on the out-ſide of the houſe, and the Windows, Galleries, and ſide-buildings, in their ſeveral ſtories had coverings, penthouſes, or weather-boards over them to keep off the rain from them. And ſo likewiſe under them, or at their ſtools; to keep the wall betwixt that and the ground unbeaten of the weather. Some underſtand this, as if from the ground up to the windows, between the walls of the houſe on the out-ſide, and the three Stories of Chambers, there were an empty and void place, and that here ſaid to be filled with earth; and the Temple ſo buried, as it were in the ground. But the words rather relate to the Inſide of the houſe, and ſhewthat the walls within were ſieled ſo high, and graven with Cherubims, and Palm-trees, Knops, and open flowers: as in Solomons Temple.

and the windows were covered] The windows of the Houſe, Temple, and Oracle, though many deny any windows to the Oracle.

covered] Not that they were windows in ſhews onely, or made in faſhion like to windows, as we call damm'd windows: But that they were like lettice-windows, with ſuch little holes, as one could hardly diſcern them at ſuch a diſtance and height to be windows: or elſe ſo covered with the tops of the three ſtories of the ſide-chambers, that from the low pavements of the Courts they could not be ſeen; or, which is moſt likely, covered, if not with curtains, yet with leaves of wood; as the walls were covered and ſieled: And theſe leaves adorned with Cherubims, and Palm-trees, as the walls were. Theſe windows were in the North, South, and Weſt walls of the houſe. The Eaſt end needed them not; nor had convenient place for them, unleſſe it were above the height of the Eaſt door. Theſe windows in the Temple, no doubt, were uniform, all of a like height and bigneſſe, and the height great; above the three ſtories of the ſide-chambers, which muſt be about 25 Cubits, allowing ſix from the ground to the floor of the firſt ſtory; 6. to that ſtone (See 1 King. 6.5,6,10.) and ſix to the ſecond ſtory; and ſix to the uppermoſt ſtory, and one Cubit to the flat roof of them; as the roofs of building did uſe to be flat, in thoſe times and places.

V. 17. To that above the door] Some understand these words of windowes. But of them in the former verse. Here they are neither mentioned nor meant, as may appear by the words following; and specially by the 20 verse, which explains this. The particulars here named, are about, and above the doors, as it is ver. 20. the doors of the Porch, exteriour, and inner house; and the sidewalls, North and South, round about on both sides; and the partition walls between them, within and without: all which amount to that set down in one sum in the end of the 19 verse. And all these were adorned, as followeth, with Cherubims and Palmtrees; and that by measures, haply drawn out into spaces, borders, and quarters, most conveniently and exactly.

within and without] This is meant of the partition walls, as aforesaid; and not of the said walls of the house within and without; for the insides of them differed much in adornings from their out sides.

V. 18. And it was made] Upon the walls mentioned in the former verse; fieled with boards of Cedar, with the ingravings or carvings of Cherubims, and Palm-trees upon them, by the art of the Gold-smith; and overlaid with gold, yea, and garnished with precious stones most likely, so as the inside of the house glistered with them, as the heaven doth with the shining stars in a cleer night. For thus it was in Solomon's Temple, 1 King. 6. 15,16,18, 22,25. 2 Chron. 3. 6.

Cherubims] Taken for the Pictures of Angels, made like beautiful young men, with wings adjoyned.

Palm trees] Used anciently for emblems of victory, as well as Laurels: as the Cherubims may put us in mind of the Angels ministring to Christ; so the Palm trees of Christs victory over the Devil, & all our spiritual enemies, Luk. 11. 21. Col. 2. 15. Apoc. 5. 5.

between] A Cherub and a Palm tree were still drawn, one after another: and so a Palm-tree was still between two Cherubs, and a Cherub between two Palm-trees.

every Cherub had two faces] These Cherubs do so much differ, from those in Ezekiels vision, Chap. 1. and Esay's vision, Chap. 6. and in Johns vision, Apoc. 4. And from those in the most holy place, in Moses tabernacle, and in the Oracle, in Solomons temple, that we wonder how many learned Papists, can avow them all to be the same; and will go about to undertake the reconciling of all the differences, for the maintenance of an assertion so improbable, and unnecessary. An affimilation may rather be made between these, and the Curtains of Cherubims that covered the Tabernacle of Moses, Exod. 26. 1. and that vail which divided between the holy place, and the most holy, Chap. 27. 33. And much more between these here, and those Cherubims, and palm-trees upon the walls of Solomons temple, 1 King. 6. 29. But they trouble themselves with these former conceits, as they do with others of like nature; namely, that Solomon, besides his two Cherubims in the Oracle, placed there also the two Cherubims, that covered the Ark in Moses Tabernacle. And again, that though Nebuzaradan, at the time of the Babylonish captivity, demolished the Cherubims in the Oracle of Solomons temple, yet Jeremy preserved the Ark, with Moses Cherubims that had covered it, and hid them. As the Maccabees relate a like story, of the hiding of the fire of the Altar, at the same time, Macc. 1. 19.

V. 19. through all the house round about] All the walls on the insides, from bottom to top, were thus adorned: yet the numbers and measures of the Cherubims, and Palm-trees on the walls, are, by some, more presumed upon, then can with any certainty, be truly determined.

V. 21. the Posts of the Temple were squared] The posts of the doors of the Temple were not round, like Pillars, as was the entrance of the tabernacle, Exod. 26. 32, 37. Nor the tops arched, or vaulted; but the form and structure of them square, both of Temple and Oracle, as in ancient buildings was usual. That they were of one stone a piece, is more then any man can determine. Some here refer square, not to the form, but to the magnitude, and quantity of the door of the Temple, that it was a square; that is, a fourth part of the breadth of the Temple; namely, one leaf of the door five Cubits, and so the other, five Cubits, as it is, verf. 2. And those six cubits broad on the one side, and fix on the other, verf. 1. are to be understood, as comprehending in them the middle Post, whereon they met and closed. But we adhere, rather to that we have set down in the Annotations, upon the said first, and second verses.

the appearance on the one] Herein are compared, not the temples of Ezekiel and Solomon; but in Ezekiels temple, the posts and face of the outward temple, or Holy place, and of the inward Sanctuary, or most Holy place, are compared and likened together; both were of one fashion and appearance. Though not of the same quantity, verf. 2. 3. As neither were those two doors in Solomons temple, 1 King. 6. 31, 33. Nor yet in Moses Tabernacle, Exod. 26. 32, 37. But still the inner door was the lesser of the two. The Posts, upper Lintels, and buildings of the Porch in Solomons temple, must needs be of an huge stanneste, by reason of the height of the walls, and superstructure, arising from the ground to the top, to an hundred and twenty cubits; four times as high as the temple was, 2 Chron. 3. verf. 4. which makes the moving and shaking of them the more wonderful, if they be included with the temple, in those words, Esay 6. 4. & Amos 9. 1.

V. 22. the Altar of wood] This was the altar of incense, that stood in the upmost end of the temple, next the vail of the Oracle, made of wood, and over-laid with gold, Exod. 30. 1. —— 11. & Chap. 3 1. 25 —— 29. & 40. 26. 1 King. 6. 20. 22. & 7. 48. At this, in Moses tabernacle, Nadab, and Abihu offered incense, with strange fire, Lev. 10. 1. The brazen altar of burnt-offering in the Court, had no wood in it. Christ is our altar of incense; at which we offer up our incense of prayers; in his Name alone, through his onely merits, and mediation.

three cubits high, and the length thereof two cubits] Moses altar was but two cubits high, and one cubit square, Exod. 30. 2. And the measures of Solomons altar are not mentioned; and therefore the more likely to be of the same measure with that of Moses. For Solomon made a new one; as he made all things else new, save the Ark onely.

length thereof two cubits] The length of the superficies, and square face of the top of this altar; as Exod. 30. 2. Where likely was a little grate, or some vessel to hold the fire, over which the perfumes were to be burned: if there were not Censers used for that purpose. And indeed such Censers there were in Solomons temple, made of pure gold, 1 King. 7. 50. See 2 Chr. 26. 19. Heb. 9. 4. Apoc. 8. 3, 5. Some conceive a great seat upon the top of the Altar: Some conceive it hung by chaines, at the corner, or side of the altar.

Corners] These were the square wooden Posts, on which the boards were fastned, wherewith the altar was made; or rather horns of the altar; as we read in Moses altar, Exod. 30. 2, 3. Lev. 56. 18. And so the altar of burnt-offerings, had four horns upon the four corners of it, Exod. 27. 2. Ezek. 43. 15, 20. Psal. 118. 27. Apoc. 9. 13.

walls thereof] Sides of the altar.

he said] Chap. 40. 3.

this] That is, Looking towards the North, (the Candlestick was on the South side, Exod. 40. 24.) and as it were with his finger, pointing to, me, as some would, the altar of incense, whereof, formerly, till now, he had spoken; (though that seems to be called a table, Heb. 9. 2.) but to the Table of Shew-bread, standing on the North-side of the Temple; whereof, Exod. 25. 25. 23. —— 31. & 40. 22. See Mal. 1. 7, 12. Else also should the Table of Shewbread be omitted; as likewise the Candlesticks are: and the Ark, Cherubims, and all are omitted, which were in the Oracle. Solomons Temple had ten tables of shew-bread, 1 King. 7. 40. and the bread set on them all, 2 Chr. 4. 8, 19. whereof, some were of gold, and some of silver, 1 Chron. 28. verf. 16. See 2 King 7. 48. Christ is that true bread, &c. Joh. 6. 33, 35, 51.

before the Lord] Not in the Oracle, as some have misconceived, but in the body of the Temple; as being to be used weekly, or daily; and that by others then the high Priest; whether you understand it of the table of shew-bread, or of the altar of incense, Luk. 1. 9. Heb. 9. 2, 3, 4. The altar of incense, was placed in the middle of the breadth of the Temple, right before the door and vail of the Oracle. He speaks nothing of this table of shew-bread; of the matter, measures, crown, border, rings, staves, bread, and vessels of the furniture of it. Of these, we may read, Exod. 25. 23 —— 30. & Chap. 37. 10 —— 17. Num. 4. 7. Of the Candlesticks, we may read, Exod. 25. & 37. & 40. Chap. 1 King. 7. 48. 1 Chro. 28. 16. 2 Chr. 4. 8. Where we observe, that seventy Candles were light, and shining in Solomons temple.

V. 23. And the temple and Sanctuary had two doors] That is, the Temple and Oracle had two doors. Not that each of them was double doored, as sometimes with us; having one door of thick boards, or planks, and another within of wainscot, or sieling; and each of them a little wicket: But that the Temple and Oracle had doors apiece; and each of them was a two-leafed door; as is expressed in the next verse. So 1 King. 6. 31, 32, 33, 34. where the word used is of the dual number, implying, the two leafs of each door. Some further conceive, that each leaf doubled, and in the opening, folded within it self: and this the rather, because the breadth of them was so great, as is set down, verf. 2, 3. We read of Hinges of gold to these two doors, in Solomons Temple, 1 King. 7. 50.

V. 25. And there were made on them] The garnishing, and ornaments of the doors.

thick planckes] That is, the heads, or ends of thick beams, or joyfts, which supported the quarters, or rafters, for the boards and floorings of the chambers above the porch. These did jet out, and were seen upon the face of the porch without. And this was the ancient manner of architecture. In following ages, the same manner hath been observed; but these jettings out have most been made of stone, in the void spaces of the freeze; and wrought for garnish, in various forms and figures.

V. 26. And there were narrow windows and Palm-trees] See verf. 16, 17, 18.

on the sides of the porch] And of the Chambers upon the porch.

and upon the side Chambers of the house] Those of three stories high, on each side of the temple and Oracle North, and South sides, and West end.

and thick Planckes] See ver. 25. Such also upon the sides of the Porch, and of the side Chambers, and garnished alike.

CHAP. XLII.

Verf. 1. Then he brought me forth] He was last in the Temple. Now he returns to the Courts, to supply what was wanting to the full and perfect description of them. He mentions other Chambers, both the sight, and fabrick of them, ver. 1. to the 13. And the use and imployment of them, ver. 13, 14.

into the utter Court] This is not to be understood of that utter spacious Court described, Chap. 40. 5. or of the other Courts you were to come into, as you went into the Temple; much lesse of any court for women; or for laicks only. But this was a court that was on the outside of the Buildings, that stood facing those Buildings that joyned to the Temple, say some; which they conceive to be in the Inner Court, properly so called; yet called here an outer Court, in comparison of those Buildings which lay along before them, Chap. 41. 10. These being on the back of them behind them. Others understand it as in the last clause of the former Annotation. Others, of the court of the Temple, that it is here further described; because here are many things let down, which by no means agree to the Court of the Priests; but fit well and accord with the Court of the Temple. See ver. 13, 14, 15. Yet others understand it of the outward court of the priests; but only so, as there to take a view of the other North and South Chambers, of the inner or Inmost court; because the staires, or eight steps ascending to the Inmost court of the Temple, were in the outward court of the Priests: and therefore that thither they must go to make this use of them. Though these opinions thus differ, yet we conceive it best to understand the utter Court of the Priests; as best suiting with the description and words of the text; as will appear.

the way toward the North] In the Hebrew, the way of the North. And so it seems the court of the Temple had a North gate; and consequently a South gate, as well as an East gate. Which is to be well observed against the opinion of many.

And he brought me into the chamber] One like a Castle, say some. But most, and most likely, Chambers; one Number being put for another: which is most usual and common in the Hebrew tongue. Or, into the place or row, or file of chambers. Or, into one of them. For Chambers were all along the North wall of the Court, built over the Gallery of Pylasters, and Arches there. And also a building of Chambers and Galleries were between those of the Court wall, and those of the Temple wall; as some conceive: To which the word here may haply refer. But we rather conceive these Chambers to be in the utter court of the Priests; as will after better appear.

That was over against the separate place] See Chap. 41. 12. which stood South from these Chambers; and they on the North side of it; in whatsoever sense you take the separate place here.

and which was before the building toward the North] The Northern buildings of the Temple; or of the North Chambers of the Temple, over against the North side of the Temple, and separate place, or building: These Chambers stood North from them, behind the North wall of this Inmost Court of the Temple. See Chap. 41. 5, 6. 10, 12.

V. 2. Before the length] Some understand these measures to be in the North Portico, or Porch: as if you should say, The porch wherin this door was, had an 100 cubits in length, & 50 in breadth; was an 100 cubits long from East to West; & fifty broad from North to South; as also the porches in the other courts were, Chap. 40. 15, 19. & ver. 21, 23. and ver. 25, 27. and ver. 29. and ver. 33. and verf. 36. For this was that constant length and breadth of all the porches of the Courts. And that the North door in this porch, and North chamber too, as some understand chamber in the former verse, (which they make to be like a Castle or Turret) was with these measures thus incompassed; That these measures were at the North door, before the face of it, and at the sides of it. Others make these Measures to lye, not in the North porch; But that this North porch had an Eastern front, which lay over against another porch, an hundred cubits long, and fifty broad. Others make these Measures to lye in the court of the Temple: That this North door in this North porch had before it the length of an hundred cubits, which was the length of the court of the Temple; from North to South, running on the East end or side of the house: And the Temple it self, with its Chambers and substructions was fifty cubits broad; or that fifty cubits were on the North side of the Temple, between it and this North porch. But others understand these measures to lye on the North side of these Buildings Northward; That, as there was a space between them, and the Temple Inward: so there was betwixt them, and the North wall of the Inner Court of the Temple, this space of an hundred cubits long, and fifty broad. But this makes the Court of the Temple exceeding spacious; very much beyond those bounds which the common stream of Interpreters do assign unto it, confining it only to an hundred cubits square: which spacious enlargement of that court must yet be of necessity granted; or else this building of Chambers and Galleries, here, and hereafter mentioned, must be placed in a Court by it self; or rather in the utter court of the priests, as we formely signified. And thereto the words of the text, touching their sight, prospect, and measures, will best accord and agree. And thus the North door of these Northern buildings, had before it toward the South, an hundred cubits, viz. the length of the Temple, and its Chambers from East to West, Chap. 41. ver. 13.

North door] Not of the Temple; as some would have it: and make the meaning to be, as if the North door of the Temple did face this building of an hundred cubits long, and fifty broad. But indeed the Temple had no North door. And this door appears to be in the court, or in a porch, or building, in the Court of the Temple. And this door seems to open, not on the South side of these Chambers & buildings towards the Temple; but on the North side of them toward the Court wall; as those doors do, ver. 4.

And the breadth was fifty cubits] Either the breadth of that hundred cubits long, viz. of the temple, whose breadth with the chambers and walls on both sides, was exactly fifty: Or the breadth of these buildings wherein this North door stood, was fifty cubits; as the breadth also of all the Porches of the courts were, even according to the length of their several Gates, and the Buildings in them, Chap. 40. 21, 25, 29, 33, 36.

V. 3. Over against the twenty cubits] Those, Chap. 41. 10. which compassed round about the house on every side. This, some make the third side of the Tower-Chamber, standing toward the void space of twenty cubits.

which were for the Inner Court] viz. of the Temple, Chap 41. 10. yet some understand this as a Periphrasis of the segment or separate place oppofed, to the utter Court, verf. 1. Both which were in the compass of the inmost court of the temple, as they say.

and over against the pavement] The paved floor: Namely, of the remaining part of the court of the Priests. This, some make the fourth side of that fuppofed tower-chamber. But pavement here relates to the Galleries following, and to their situation; which was between these two, the 20 cubits of the Inner court of the Temple on the South side; and the remaining paved floor of the outward court of the Priests on the North side. This, and other floors were paved, to prevent annoyance by the dirt of winter, and dust of summer. See Annotations on Chap. 40. 17.

which was for the utter Court] Some understand this, and that, ver. 1. of a distinct and feveral court, as it stands oppofed to the segment or feparate place. But the fair and easie Interpretation is, To take it for the exterior court of the Priests and Levites; as hath been faid.

was Gallery] Not Caftle-Chamber, Fort-Chamber, Tower or Turret, as some would. For here is more then one chamber; a Porch of Galleries and Chambers: and not upon the West end of the Temple, as some would; but on the North side, where now the Prophet was, ver. 1. See Chap. 41. 15.

against Gallery] Not, fronting or facing one another; but backing one another, and a chamber between them. Though some make the Chambers to be on each side, and the Gallery between them. And thus they stood betwixt two fair open spaces: The one South-ward, to the Inner court; the other Northward, in the court of the Priests.

In three] Some say, This fuppofed Caftle, or Fort-chamber stood on a side where three of these porches did meet, the East, the West, and the North; or, as others, the West, North, and South. But the Text expressly speaketh of Galleries, as hath been faid. And that these were in three, that is, in three stories, or heights, one over another, the lowest, middle, and highest, as ver. 5, 6. do plainly shew: and three breadths in each story, whereof the middle was a gallery; the other two on each side were closed with walls, and made chambers or treasuries. Others, more likely, hold that the middle was a chamber, and on either side galleries, as was faid. And this some make for the two upper stories; fuppofing the lowest to consist only of Galleries, with Pillars, and Arches, without any chambers in it. But this we make for the two lower stories; the uppermost being lower, and shorter, not so fit for use as the other. These Buildings, as they were of a great length, so they were of a great thicknesse. And as thus on the North side of the Temple; so the like buildings were on the South side of the temple; as is after follows.

V. 4. And before the chambers] That chamber, or row of chambers, ver. 1. those Galleries, ver. 3. Yet some, with lesse probability; take these chambers to be those adjoyning to the wall of the Inner court within.

was a walk] Lest we should think of the Galleries and chambers in the former verse, that there lay nothing betwixt them, and the 20 cubits of the Inner Court, he mentions this walk that lay between them. And indeed there was besides that, the wall it self of the inner court, and the Chambers adjoyning to it. Some make, not with such warrant, this walke to be also between them, and the pavement, on the other side, that is, the North side in the outward court of the priests.

of ten cubits breadth] The length seems to be the same with the length of the row of the chambers. And that seems to be 50 cubits, verf. 7,8. not an hundred, as some would have it.

Inward] That is, within the Gallery, on either side, (fay some: And so the Galleries should take up 20 cubits of the thicknesse of the Building. Or, The Gallery or walk was thus broad of 10 cubits, lying inward between the two rows of the chambers. And thus the thicknesse or breadth of this row of buildings should be 30 cubits; though the breadth of the Porches joyning to the walls of the outward courts, was constantly 50 cubits. But the plain and easie meaning is, that this walk of ten cubits broad lay inward, out of these buildings, toward the 20 cubits of the Inner court.

a way of one cubit] Difficulties, and obscurities run all along; and thereupon varieties of opinions and conjectures. Some think that this way of one cubit is to be underflood of a passage so narrow at the East and West ends of the Temple, that the Court being but an hundred cubits, the Building of the Temple tooke up all the space, leaving but one cubit for passage at either end. But this way of one cubit is to the chambers here mentioned. And this opinion disagreeth with the true quantity of the court, and of the buildings and open spaces in it. Others understand it thus, That upon the walls of these upper chambers, (verf. 9.) or else galleries, which were one against another, on each side there were Pylasters, like to them in the Portico underneath, jetting out the way or space of one cubit without the wall. Or rather thus; On the outside of either Gallery, or else chambers, was a way of a cubit broad; somewhat like the flagged way or path before the houses in Cheapside, or Covent-Garden. Or thus, There was a way of one cubit, into these Chambers; that is, narrow entrances into them: or so narrow a way before them, between the chambers and the galleries; into which way the chamber-doors opened.

and their dooves] doores, some say, of the walk. Others more likely, of the Chambers.

toward the north] Some conceiving two rows of chambers in this Building, understand this of those chamber-doors that stood to the Temple ward: And that the doors of the opposite file stood toward the South: And that the doores of both files opened into the Gallery that was betwixt them. Others, which make but one row of chambers in this building, conceive their doors to be towards the North, opening into the North gallery, in reverence to the Temple: That though doors toward the South would have bin neeter to the Temple, yet in reverence to that Holy place, they must go to the back of these Buildings, or to their North, to go into them. To the same purpose speak they, and most agreeable to the truth, that understand these Galleries to be chambers, and their doors to open toward the North, into that way of one cubit.

V. 5. Now] Here the Rabbies call again for the help of their Elias.

were shorter] Cut off, abridged, straitned, were lower, not so high in themselves as the inferiour chambers, and so their seiling not so high from the floor. The Lowmost bore all the weight, where the foundation on which the weight of the whole structure lay; and so were broader, of bigger and stronger proportion, then the upper chambers, built upon them; least otherwise they should shrink under the burden of them.

for the galleries] Some understand this of the Galleries distinct from the Chambers. Others, of both comprehended under one notion. Others, of the Pylasters, and half Columnes.

were higher then these] Some say, The galleries higher then the Chambers; the better to see the sacrifices, and hear the services of the Temple. Others insist upon the Hebrew word, to signifie, did eate of these. And so make the meaning this, That the walls, as they grew higher, so grew narrower in each story, straighter, and contracted on the outside, and the roof still lower; and that of that highmost so low, as made it scarce habitable. And this might be in some sort for the honour and dignity of the Temple, as veiling their top to it; and so much the more too, in that they flood on lower ground then the Temple did. See ver. 6. Some understand this of the Pylasters and half Columnes, as aforesaid, set to the outside of these upper Chamber walls: And that they were of a lesser proportion, and not so massie, as those beneath.

Then the lower] Some make the Building Commodious for use and habitation, to be only in the lower, and middlemost row and story; having an eye herein to the Hebrew words, which bear this translation thus, and the building consisted of the lower and middlemost.

V. 6. In three stories] Both Galleries, and Chambers; as in the precedent verse. The middle roomes in each story had light from the side rooms. To these stories, or rather to those joyning to the walls of this Inner court, do those words of, 1 King. 6. 36. seeme to bear a reference.

but had not pillars] Some understand this of the upmost story, that it was not high roofe, with pillars, or vaultes, but flat. Others, of that, and of the second stories likewise; that the two upper rowes, or stories, were not made up with vaults, born up with massie pillars, as the lowmost row, which flood upon the plain of the Court; but with a continued wall, divided with little Pylasters, or half Columnes, which from story to story were lessened, according to the rules of architecture; and they being lessened in that kind, reason would have the height also to be abated. Others conceive, that neither chambers nor galleries, flood upon pillars in any of the stories; as some other buildings in the Holy Verge did; For then the Galleries, in the second and third story, might have been inlarged, by jutting out towards the Courts, and not have trenched upon the breadth of the chambers; but that they were all built up with an even wall: only some large openings there were all along the galleries, for the more ayr, and better sight.

as the pillars of the courts] They had not pillars as the Porches of the other exteriour courts had. No, nor as the pillars supporting the vaults or rooses of the galleries.

therefore the building was straightned] The walks or pylasters in thicknesse, and the stories in height. What the vulgar Latine translation adds of 50 cubits, is more then is in the Hebrew text.

V. 7. And the wall] Of the foresaid building, of this Northern file, and stories, of Galleries and Chambers. Here we go on still in difficulties, about the right situation of this Wall.

that was without over against the chambers] Therefore no part of the Chambers or Galleries, themselves: but at some distance compassing and closing them, and that whole Body of Building.

on the fore-part of the chambers] Front, or head of them: not on the East end of them, as some would; but rather on the North side, called the foreffont, because the doors were there, verf. 4. And this wall was to separate and distinguish betwixt these, and other spaces, and buildings in this court.

the length thereof was fifty cubits] Fifty cubits was the breadth of the porches joyning to the walls of all the courts, generally; according to the length of the several Gates, as hath been said. And here the length of this wall was fifty cubits; answerable, in all likelyhood, to the length of this Fabrick of Building, from East to West.

V. 8. For the length of the chambers that were in the utter court was fifty cubits] As the length of their wall was, verf. 7. And therefore this is given as a reason of that. Others, by length here understand the extent and breadth; and make this whole verse but an explication of that in the latter part of the second verse. See the Annotations there.

and lo] The Angel, and the Prophet, coming from the North chambers, to the South chambers, in the way meets with these hundred cubits, which were before the Temple. See Chap. 41. 14. that is, say some, from East to West. But we rather conceive, That these hundred cubits before the Temple, were the length of the Temple Court, from North to South, the distance betwixt these Northern, and the other Southern chambers, to which now they were going. And these, not lying within the compasse and verge of the Temple-Court, as some think, leaving the walls of the court, and the porches of them, at a distance behind them: which thing must needs inlarge much the compasse of this inmost court, The court of the Temple: But without that court, close on the backside of the walls of it, within the court of the Priests. Others conceive, That both those parts of the court of the Priests, that contained those Chambers and Buildings last mentioned, were squares, both on the North side, and South side of the Temple; and squares of an hundred cubits, which the Prophet marks with this note of admiration, Lo!

V. 9. And from under] Or rather, from the place; as the word will bear. If from under, then not perpendicularly; but as when we say, A town or house stands under an hill; so here, at the lower end of the court.

from the utter court] That is, by the Eastern end or coast along of the utter court, that is, which stood East from these chambers. In all these words in this verse, The Prophet sets down his passing from the Northern chambers, to the Southern chambers, by the tract of the East on the East end of the Temple.

V. 10.

V. 10. the chambers] Still here we wade in doubts and darknesse.

was the like appearance] That is, the appearance and proportion of the way, and of the Chambers, and Galleries; and their length, breadth, and out-goings, were according to the fashions, and according to the doors of those in the North formerly spoken of, verf. 1 — 7. all alike in all respects, even the whole Fabrick, fashion, contrival, disposal, front, way of ascent breadth before them, and measures, were all in every point so like those on the North side, spoken of before, that they need no further Illustration. Some make not onely these two side-buildings, North and South, but also that called the separate place, as another distinct thing from the Temple, to have all three, 2 like buildings of chambers, galleries, and all, in all respects, of the same quantities, proportions, and fashions.

V. 11. And according to the dooves of the chambers] That is, like to those doors of the chambers, was this door here described. Thus he proceeds on, in this verse also, as in the former, to shew in the particulars, the likenesse and correspondency between these Southern, and the Northern buildings.

But other things are called also the most Holy, Num. 4. 14. 1 Chron. 23. 13. as the Tabernacle, Ark, Table Candlestick, Laver, Anointing Oil, their vessels, the perfume, the offerings, shew-bread, and all devoted things, Exod. 29. 37. & 30 10, 29, 36. Lev. 2. 10. & 6. 17, 25, 29. & 7. 1. & 10. 12. 17. & 14. 13. & 24. 9. & 27. 28. Ezek. 43. 12.

trespasse-offering] See Lev. 7. 6, 7. The difference and distinction between sins and trespasses, here mentioned, is not easie to conceive. Papists would fain get a colour hence for their distinction of venial and mortal sins. Others, would understand by the one, sins of commission; by the other sins of omission. Others, and somewhat likely, by the one, sinnes against knowledge; and by the other, sins of ignorance, yet this falls short of a full satisfaction.

V. 15. Now when he had made an end] When he had thus measured all the particular buildings, He cometh now to measure the circumference of the whole holy place, or the holy mountaine. So that here the whole compasse, or outmost wall of all the buildings is measured; and so this whole description of the Courts, Temple and Chambers, ended.

the inner house] The temple, and all the substructions, Chambers, and buildings in the inmost Court, the Court of the temple: and those Chambers, about which he was last imployed; and consequently all the Courts and buildings, inclosed within the compasse of the outmost wall. Chap. 40. 5.

round about] The four equilateral sides of it. Not that the wall was round.

V. 16. He measured] Here is great variety of opinions, both touching the thing measured; and also touching the measure itselfe. For the thing measured, some take it to be the wall of the City Jerusalem. But those being of 18000 measures or cubits, Chap. 48. 35. Therefore, others do rather take it to be the wall of the upper City, or upper part of the City Jerusalem, called the City of David, on, or next to mount Sion; See 2 Sam. 5. 7. Others, make it to be the wall inclosing, and compassing the exterior Court, the court of the people, Chap. 40. 17, 20. And this they much presse, and labour to evince, by a geometrical demonstration; taking the inmost Court (of the temple likely) to be an hundred cubits square, Chap. 40. 27. and the outward Court (of the people) to be likewise an hundred Cubits square, Chap. 40. 23. That then it will undeniably follow, that each side of that square of the Court of the people, is, and must be, five hundred cubits, And they found this by that, Chap. 45. 2. where the compasse of the Sanctuary is described, five hundred square, as is here set down; and fifty cubits by name, round about for the suburbs thereof, are expresly set down. And so make this wall, to be that separating and distinguishing wall, between the Sanctuary, and the prophane place, Chap. 42. 20. And yet, at the best supposed grounds of this demonstration, are but seeming probable conjectures. And the text it self is strong enough, to cleer it sufficiently to be meant of the outmost wall, that breast wall or Parapet, in compassing all the foresaid buildings, belonging to the Courts and Temple; whose height and breadth, was first set downe, Chap. 40. 5. as may after appear. For the measure it self, some make it to be five hundred cubits, measured out by so many reeds, each of six cubits and one hand breadth; as would make up, or reach unto that number of five hundred cubits. And this they do, though with much violence to the text, only to avoid that great, and unproportionable length of the wall, and huge quantity of compasse, that otherwise would arise, if they should take them for reeds. Yet others, understanding them of reeds, would solve the foresaid inconvenience, thus; by saying, these five hundred reeds were the total sum, arising out of all the four sides of the square; allotting to, an hundred and five and twenty reeds, to each side of the square: which is as reasonable as the former opinion. The issue may be this; pugnant to the text, as the text holds it forth; and so understand this wall to be long, five hundred reeds: For so the text expresseth reeds, thrice in this verse, and twice apiece, in each of the three verses following. And these five hundred Reeds, to be on each side of the square, as the Text also expresly avoucheth it: and so the whole summe in the compasse, to arise to two thousand Reeds.

This exceeding Largeneſſe and Compasse may well serve to typifie the exceeding great largeneſſe and diffused Compasse of the the Church of Christ under the Gospel. For the inconvenience surmised, it is not so much to be thought of in this mystical vision, purposely, set forth under Types, wherewith the Jews, Gods people then, were best acquainted, to represent the glorious state of the Church of Christ under the Gospel: Yet so as the Holy Spirit is f... of from tying himself strictly to those Types in all particularities. Which thing we see, as here; so most plainly, in the Allotment out of the portions of land, for the Priests, and for the Levites, and for all the twelve tribes of Israel, Chap. 45. & 48. in placing the City about 15. miles distant from the Temple; and in the circuit of it, Chap 45. and in the Vision of the Waters, and Trees; and their monethly fruits. Chap. 47. as hereafter will more fully and plainly appear.

the East side] This is not then the measure of the whole round about; but the measure of each side, or square.

five hundred reeds] Not cubits but Reeds; as in the Annotations aforesaid. And here the Hebrew is מאות; wherupon the Keri of the Massorites will have it to be read מאות; as it is in the same measures following, vers. 17, 18, 19, 20. And the LXX. Jerome, and Targum do read it so.

measuring Reed] Which was used to such large measurings. See Annotations on Chap. 40.3.

V. 19. west side] Heb. the Sea; taken usually for the West; because the great Inland Sea, or Mediterranean Sea, lay West from Judea, being the West bounds and border of it.

V. 20. He measured it] The wall aforesaid. Though some would make this another wall, differing from the former; and understand this of the wall of the court of the People. And that it was of five hundred Cubits square. But all this we conceive as was formerly said, to be without any warrant of the Text; or rather, against it: which onely here summes up the former dimensions, of the aforesaid wall. And therefore though reeds be not expressed in the Text, yet the word to be supplyed, must not be of any other measure then that of reeds formerly so oft expressed, vers. 16.——19.

to make a separation] This shews the true end, and due use of it, to make a separation] This shews the true end, and due use of it, to make a separation betwixt the Sanctuary, and the prophane place. And hereupon some would have the measure here to be taken of the Compasse of the mount it self whereon the Temple was built: the structure; fabrick, and proportion of the Buildings, have been thus platformed, measured, and viewed. It will not be impertinent a little, to look at the scope and intention of the description, or at the substance shadowed under these figures.

First, therefore it is to be observed, That there was never any Temple built, of these dimensions, and composure. That, builded within a while after this Vision, by Zerobbabel and Joshuah, had no relation to this. And indeed the measure of the circumference of the bounding wall, or that which separateth betwixt the Holy and prophane, utterly denyeth any such thing; being a measure that exceedeth, or at least equalleth the full Compasse of all Jerusalam, Temple, and all; yea though the Cubit be understood of the shortest size; if we take the Reeds in the proper sense, which the Letter of the Text seems to urge and require. And so also the portions of the Priests, and of the Levites allotted to them, amount to space neer as big as all the land of Canaan, Chap. 48.8.———15. These things therefore are spiritually to be understood. And howsoever the description of this House and Land were a prophetick assurance of the peoples return out of Babylon; (where Ezekiel wrote these things) yet do they chiefly ayme at Christ, and his coming among them after their return, and the gathering of the numerous Congregation of the Gentiles; and the framing the spacious Temple and City of the Christian Church under the Gospel. And therefore this can no way countenance a Temporal Kingdom of the Messias yet to come, as the Jews imagine; nor a New Temple, or City to be built, since that the Temple here described, is as big as the City; and the Holy ground of the Priests, Levites, Prince, and City, Chap. 45. neer as big as all Canaan.

Secondly, it is observable, That as Ezekiel measureth the Temple and the City here, Chap. 40. 41, 42, 48. so doth John, a New Temple also, Rev. 11. 1; 2. and a New Jerusalem, Rev. 21. Now in the opinion of some, though these agreed in this, that they all aymed at the spiritual Temple and City, the Church under the Gospel; yet in this they differed, that they had respect to different times, and aymed at times and seasons, in succession one after another. This platform and description of Ezekiel relateth, say they, to the Church, under the Gospel, betwixt their return out of captivity, and the destruction of Jerusalem; when the Gentiles first came in, and they and the Jews made one People. That in Rev. 21. pointeth, say they, at the new Jerusalem, which should be after the old one was destroyed, the Church under the Gospel, after the rejection of the Jews, and destruction of their city; which hath now taken up about one thousand five hundred and seventy years. And therefore that Jerusalem is far larger then this in Ezekiel. In that, there is no Temple mentioned, any there was no Temple at all, as the Text expresly, Rev. 21, 22. uttereth: for where there is mention of a Temple, there is some thing to do with Jews; but the Church of this space, say they, consisteth only of Gentiles, the Jews being all the while under obduration. Now the eleventh of the Revelation speaketh of a Temple measured, as the case is here: For as this place speaketh of the Church of the Jews, when the Gentiles were called in, and joyned to them, at Christs first coming; so that place, say they, speaketh of the Church of the Jews, when they shall be called in and joyned to the Church of the Gentiles; which is yet to be before Christs second coming. And it is observable, that in both these places, there is no mention of a Court for the Gentiles; as there may seeme to be in the Material Temple: But all Jerusalem must be supposed for that Ezekiel reckoneth many Courts; as hath been shewed: but for the Gentiles, there is no court there at all, expresly named and bounded, or immured for them, because of the boundlesse dilating of the Gospel: and so Rev. 11. 1, 2. there is onely one Court mentioned, the Court of the Priests, or that where the Altar stood: But the outer court is not measured, but cast out without any bounds, because it is given to the Gentiles to tread in the worship of God, (it is not καταπατησουσι,) and to come into it with the Jews; for when they shall be called, the Gentiles and they shall joyn together to serve the Lord, and to tread his Court.

toward the East] To the East gate of the utmost wall, Chap. 40. 6. so that the Angel of the Covenant, in the appearance of a man, Chap, 40. 3. having shewed to the Prophet that magnificent Temple, whereby the spiritual Church is prefigured; and having described it, and the buildings thereof in the precedent Chapters; The proportion and measures whereof, in all the parts, was hard to find out and expresse; as that which is spoken of them sheweth. He cometh now in these two next Chapters, the 43. and 44. to set out the sacred Ministery and Worship therein. More particularly, In this Chapter is set down, the returning of the Glory of God into the Temple; and the Promise of his continual Dwelling there amongst his people, upon their Repentance; whereunto they are Exhorted. Afterwards, the Altar of Burnt-Offerings is described; And the Manner of its Consecration, and its Use prescribed, In these first words, the Prophet is brought from the West side, where he ended the circumference of all the Holy place, Chap. 42. 19. to the Gate where he began, vers. 15. of Chap. 42. and Chap. 40. 6. which Gate by a direct line looked toward the Temple. V. 4. By the way of the gate] Returns by the same way that it departed.

V. 5. Inner court] From the east gate of the utmost wall, Ver. 1. to the inner Court next the Temple; that he saw the glory of the Lord filling the house; and heard the Lord speaking unto him out of the house, vers. 6.

filled the house] Likely, in a cloud, which was a visible sign of the presence of Gods majesty; as 1 King. 8. 10, 11. Lev. 16. 3. So Ezek. 44. 4. Gods presence is the full glory of the temple, and of every pious soul.

V. 6.

V. 6. And I heard him speaking to me out of the house] As God to Moses, out of the Tabernacle, Lev. 1. 1.

no more defile ——by their whoredome] That is, by their spiritual fornications of Idolatry: And this prophecie was fulfilled in them to the very letter. For after their return out of the captivity of Babylon, even to this day, they have forsaken their idols; and though they worship not the true God, as they should, yet do they not worship false gods at all. And thus are they crosse and contrary in their impieties; and yet impious still. Before their captivity they were all for idols, and nothing for the true God at all; and since that captivity, they are not for idols at all; and yet not for the true God neither.

nor by the carkasses of their Kings] So also vers. 9. Let them put the carkasses of their Kings far from me: not for that they defiled themselves by touching their dead bodies; or, for that they were grown into the idolatry of the Heathen, to deifie their dead kings, and to reserve their corpses for adoration; for we no where read at any time of that their idolatry; but rather that they defiled themselves with humane carkasses, which they had sacrificed alive to their idols; which in Scripture are sometimes understood by the name of kings, as the Ammonites used to call their idols. See Lev. 18. 21. 1 King. 11. 5. 2 King. 23. 10. Amos 5. 26.

V. 8. In their setting of their threshold by my thresholds] That is, in adding their traditions to my precepts, Isa. 29. 13. we must not add or diminish, Deut. 4. 2. and 12. 32. 1 Cor. 3. 12, 13. Apoc. 22. 18, 19.

and the wall between me and them] Or, for there was but a wall between me and them. This wickednesse was as a wall of separation between me and them, Isa. 59. 2. which hath caused me to consume them, by bringing on them the judgements threatned by the Law, Lev. 26. & Deut. 28. Or, for setting their idols, and performing their service in my Temple, or in places and Chappels neer to the place set apart to my service.

V. 9. Now let them put away, &c.] That is, all the true Elect, and especially the Jews converted under the Messiah, shall cast off idolatry, and serve God in all purity: which future time is expressed by Now, which in a sort was present to the Prophet, namely, by vision, or revelation from God.

V. 10. Shew the house to the house of Israel, that they may be ashamed. And again, ver. 11. If they be ashamed, shew them the form of the house] The house being an embleme and resemblance of the Church of the Gentiles under the Gospel, might shame the Jews to look upon it, by considering that they had become so abominable, that the Lord had refused them for his Church, and had chosen the Heathen: but if they should be ashamed with an holy shame, and sorrow with an holy sorrow, that they had been thus offensive, then acquaint them with the form, laws, and ordinances of the house, that they may know it, and have the description, marks, and delineation of it perfectly in their minds; for they also then shall have their interest in it; as it fell out, and was with the many thousand Jews converted in the time of our Saviour, and his Apostles; and as it shall be with them at their conversion neer the end of the world.

the whole limit thereof] As it is measured and bounded, Chap. 42. 16, 17, 18, 19.

V. 13. And these are the measures of the altar] The Fabrick of it seems to be thus, one cubit high was the basis, or foot, or bottom, bosome, or settle, breadth, or projection of it, one cubit; Border of it, by the edge thereof, one span. From thence two cubits, to the round ledge, or bench, or settle of a cubit broad, that went round about it. And the thicknesse of that ledge being one cubit, raised the height one cubit. This ledge or bench seems to be for them that served at the Altar, to stand upon, and to go upon, round about the Altar, and to rake up the ashes that were within the Altar: and therefore this altar was not close boarded up upon the sides every where; as the altar made by Moses was, Exod. 38. 7. which was moveable, and of small dimensions; but this was boarded up, onely those two cubits that were betwixt this settle and the ground, or basis, to keep the ashes together: but above this settle it was open at certain places, that they might go in, and get the ashes out. About this ledge or bench the altar did rise four cubits; and this part of it seems to be called הראל the Mount of God. And then, another ledge or bench, of the same breadth, round about the altar likewise: upon which the Priests might stand, for the disposing and ordering of the sacrifices themselves. And these benches being a cubit broad, it caused that their compasse increased two cubits above the compass of the altar it self; and that the standing of the Priests might be firm upon these benches, it seems there was a ledg of half a cubit broad, fixed upon the outward edge of them that the Priests might not slip off into the Court: and a ledge, which the text calleth a bosom, fixed upon their inner edg, that the Priests might not slip into the hollow of the altar: & from thence upward were the horns at every corner. This uppermost ledge being likewise one cubit thick, raised the whole height of the altar to nine cubits. And this uppermost part, or the hollow part of it, where the wood and fire were put, seemes to be called אריאל, the strong Lion, or the Lion of God. The top of this altar was 12 cubits square, ver. 16. The settle made it at that part 14 cubits square, ver. 17.

even the bottome shall be a cubit] Heb. the bosome. Meaning as it seems, that ledge that went betwixt the higher bench, and the altar.

And the breadth a cubit] Of the bench it self.

and the border thereof by the edge thereof a span] A border carved, a span-breadth upon the edge of that bosome or ledge, most likely that rose betwixt the bench and the altar.

V. 15. So the altar shall be four cubits] From the lower to the upper bench: this is properly called the altar, because that space beneath the lower bench, was the place of ashes. In the Hebrew this verse is literally thus: And the Mount of God, Hareel, four cubits; and from the Lion of God, Ariel, and upward, four horns. Where the body of the altar, as was said, betwixt the two benches, is called the mount of God, as if God dwelled upon the altar, in a singular manner, as on a little mount, in the greater mount of the Sanctuary. And the grate, whereon the sacrifices were laid, is called the Lion of God, because it devoured so much flesh, and so many beasts in sacrifice. See Exod. 27. 4, 5. & 39, 39. This may mind us of our altar, Jesus Christ, who sanctifies our sacrifices of prayers, and praise, and service, and obedience, Mat. 23. 19. Apoc. 8. 3, 4. 1 Pet. 2. 5.

four horns] So in the altars of Moses and of Solomon; both in the brazen, and golden altars. See Apoc. 9. 13. These were of the same material with the altar it self, Exod. 27. 2. Some of the blood of some sacrifices, was put upon the horns of the altar, sprinkled thereon by the finger of the Priest, Lev. 16. 18, 19. See Psal. 118. 27. The horns were counted very sacred. Adonijah and Joab, fled to them, as to a sanctuary, 1 King. 1. 50, 51. & 2. 28. Let us thus flye to Christ, and lay hold on him.

V. 16. shall be twelve cubits long, and twelve broad] Eight and fourty cubits round about. The altar in the Tabernacle, was but twenty cubits round about, Exod. 27. 1. being made to be moveable, and portable. Solomons altar was twenty cubits, on each square side, eighty in all, 2 Chron. 4. 1. So this here came short of that 32 cubits. The height of Moses altar was three cubits, Exod. 27. 1. Of Solomons, ten cubits, 2 Cron. 4. 1. Of this, some think the height to be but six cubits; but rather it seems to be nine cubits; as was formerly shewed, upon the thirteenth verse.

V. 17. and the settle shall be fourteen cubits——in the four squares] That is, fourteen, from side to side; the bench being a cubit broad, on each side of the altar.

and the border about it shall be half a cubit] See Annotations on vers. 13.

and his stairs shall look toward the East] Steps are forbidden to be made to an altar, Exod. 20. 26. But this was to an altar that was built occasionally; as Gideons, Iudg. 6. 24. and Elijahs, 1 King. 18. 32, &c. However, the Lord is of power to dispense with, and at liberty, to vary from his own temporary commands; especially, in matters of this nature and quality. The stairs of this altar were eastward; so that, as the Priests mounted them, their faces were toward the Temple: and when they were risen to the higher bench, they walked on the North, and South side of the altar; and so, many of them might stand there, and order the sacrifices together.

V. 11. they ſhall ſlay the burnt-offering] This was part of the Prieſts office; not he that brought the offering, but the prieſt was to ſlay it, and flay it, Lev. 1. 5, 6. So Moſes, at firſt, ſupplying the place of the Prieſt, was commanded, Exod. 29. 1. and did it, Lev. 8. 15. The Levites onely helped them therein, in caſe of neceſſity; as 2 Chron. 29. 34. Here then theſe lapſed Prieſts, are either re-admitted to this one part of the Prieſts office; or elſe are but onely to ſtand before them to miniſter unto them, at that time; as the words following ſeem to import.

V. 14 keepers of the charge] Partly they were in the caſe of ſuch of the ſeed of Aaron, as had blemiſh in their bodies, Lev. 21. 17, &c. partly, in the caſe of the Levites ſuperannated, Num.

CHAP. XLV.

Verſ. 1. Moreover] In this Chapter are ſet down, the Portion of Land for the Prieſts, and Sanctuary; for the Levites; for the City: for the Prince. And Ordinances for the Prince and people; in rules of juſtice: and for Oblation. the Princes part and duty for offerings in all Feaſts and ſolemnities. And particularly in the firſt moneth, firſt day, and ſeventh day; and in the Feaſt of the Paſſover, and of Tabernacles.

divided by lot the land] Chap. 48. This much differs from the diviſion made by Moſes, and by Joſhuah: and is ſuch as never was; nor ſhall be when the Jews ſhall be called to the Goſpel, Ro. 11. 25, 26. But by this of the land, as alſo of the City and Temple, and worſhip, God applies himſelf to the weakneſſe of his People that then were, ſhadowing out hereby, as by the beſt means unto them, the perfect Inſtauration and glorious ſtate and condition of his Church under the Goſpel. And generally, this land of Canaan is made a type of the heavenly Canaan, Heb. 11. 9, 10.

an holy portion of the land] For the Sanctuary, Prieſts, and Levites, They, in the firſt place are cared for, and provided. After them, the Prince. Thus the Church, and Magiſtrate ſhould firſt be rewarded and provided for; and then the people and Tribes.

five and twenty thouſand] Neither reeds nor cubits are expreſſed. Our tranſlation underſtands it of Reeds or Rods. And a Reed, being ſix cubits, and eighteen Inches, as ſome will have it, Chap. 40. 5. This length of five and twenty thouſand Reeds. (counting the eighteen Inches for an half cubit) comes to 162500. cubits. Which taking the cubit for an half yard; and a thouſand paces, or yards to a mile) comes to 81 miles and $\frac{1}{2}$. And taking the cubit for a yard, comes to miles $162\frac{1}{2}$. But counting the Reed, to be 6 cubits, and 3 inches, or one hand breadth; as we rather muſt. See Annotations on chap. 40. 5. Then this Length reckoning 18. inches for a cubit, and the cubit ſo to be one halfe yard, comes to 77 miles and a little more. And counting the cubit for a yard, it comes to 154 miles and ſomewhat more. Now, if we leave Reeds, and underſtand this 25000 of Length, to be 25000 cubits, as ſome do; Then it comes to 12 miles and $\frac{1}{2}$, after the half yard to the cubit: and to 25 miles, at the rate of a yard to the cubit. This Length of 25000 runs Eaſt and Weſt, chap. 48. 10.

and the breadth ſhall be ten thouſand] Our Tranſlators underſtand it of Reeds. And ſo the Breadth will be, 65000 cubits; (counting therein ſtill the eighteen inches for an half cubit) which number of cubits, taking the cubit for half a yard, comes to miles $32\frac{1}{2}$. And taking the cubit for a yard comes to 65 miles. But inſtead of 18 inches to each Reed, taking but three, as was ſaid before. So the Breadth will come to 30 miles and above $\frac{1}{2}$ mile of $\frac{1}{2}$ yard to the cubit. And to about 61 miles counting the cubit for a yard. Others, with leſſe probability, underſtand this 10000 Breadth, to be meant, not of Reeds, but of Cubits, do raiſe the accompt thus; to five miles, taking the cubit for $\frac{1}{2}$ yard; Or to 10 miles, taking the cubit for a yard. This breadth runs North and South, chap. 48. 10.

V. 2. Of this] Part of that, Ver. 1.

for the ſanctuary] Deſcribed, Chap. 40 & 41. and circumſcribed, chap. 42. 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20. Though ſome would fain underſtand this, not of the outmoſt wall, but of the wall of the court of the people. See Annotations on Chap. 42. 16.

five hundred —— ſquare round about] For the Sanctuary, or utmoſt compaſſe or wall of it. And underſtanding it of Reeds, as moſt do, by comparing it with chap. 42. 15, &c. it ſo comes to 3250 Cubits, counting 18 Inches to be put to each Reed. Which reckoning a cubit for half a yard, ariſeth to one mile, and half mile, and halfe a quarter, and reckoning it for a yard, it ariſeth to three miles and a half, on each ſquare, But add only three Inches to each Reed, the accompt comes to ſomething leſſe. And underſtanding it, not of Reeds but of cubits only, it ſo comes to $\frac{1}{4}$ of a mile on each ſquare, after halfe a yard to the cubit. And to $\frac{1}{8}$ mile on each ſquare, after one yard to the Cubit. Some, as we ſaid, apply this meaſure to the wall of the court of the people: But very improperly, and improbably.

fifty Cubits round about for the Suburbs thereof] Here cubits are expreſly named. Which may ſeem to ſway againſt the opinion of Reeds, in the former words of this verſe, and in the former verſe; were it not that, chap. 42. 16. ſeems to over-rule it. See the Annotations there. And this comes to 25 yards, to their halfe yard the cubit; or, to 50 yardes round about, at a yard the cubit.

V. 3. And of this meaſure] This may ſeem to relate to the meaſure of cubits, which are ſo lately mentioned in the words aforegoing: and none other expreſſed in the two former verſes. But the due conſideration of thoſe meaſures, mentioned Chap. 42. 16, 17, 18. ſeemeth ſtrongly to oppoſe this Opinion of cubits here to be meant. This verſe ſheweth, that the ſanctuary and moſt Holy place, and that utmoſt Compaſſe or wall mentioned and meaſured, verſ. 2. ſhall be part of, and placed within that Holy portion of land, mentioned, and meaſured, ver. 1.

V. 4. for the Prieſts] The Levites might alſo ſeem here to be included. But much rather, the Levites have as much for their ſeveral portion. ver. 5. and chap. 48. 13, 14, 20.

V. 5. ſhall alſo the Levites have for themſelves] Another 25000 long, running Eaſt & Weſt along by the ſide of the Prieſts; and 10000 broad, joyning to the South ſide of the prieſts, and running Southward; both wayes as much in quantity, as the Prieſts had.

the miniſters of the houſe] Porters, Singers, and Adjutants, to the Prieſts in their miniſtrations. Such of them as ſhould not be rejected, as thoſe were, Ezra. 2. 60, &c. and thoſe, chap. 44. 9, &c.

for twenty chambers] Twenty rows of Chambers. And theſe, not to be, and lye in that poſſeſſion of land of 25000 in Length, and 10000 in Breadth: But in the Compaſſe and building of the ſanctuary. There being ten gates, viz. one in the wall of the utmoſt ſurrounding compaſſe, the Eaſt gate; and three, viz. Eaſt, South, and North, in each of the three Courts. And each Gate having Porches; there were two rowes of Chambers in each Gate, one on either ſide along between the Porches, and ſo twenty in all.

V. 6. the poſſeſſion of the city] Deſcribed. chap. 48. 15, &c. and ver. 30. to the end of that 48. Chapter.

five thouſand broad] Comes to miles $32\frac{1}{2}$ or to $16\frac{1}{2}$: or to 5, or to $2\frac{1}{2}$ according to the ſeveral wayes of reckonings by Reeds, or Cubits, and the quantity of the Cubit, ſet down on the firſt verſe of this chapter.

and five and twenty thouſand long] Over againſt the oblation of the holy portion of the land; or, by the ſide of it; This comes to 162 miles and a half: or, to 81 and a quarter: or, to 25: or to 12 and a half; according to the ſeveral ways of reckonings, by reeds or cubits, and the quantity of the cubit, ſet down on the firſt verſe of this Chapter. Reckoning here to the reed 18 inches, beſide the 6 cubits. But adding onely three inches, or one hand breadth, to each reed; as the 10 rather is: Then the meaſures by the Reeds fall out to be proportionably leſs.

it ſhall be for the whole houſe of Iſrael] This Metropolitan City, ſhall be common to all the tribes: and therefore it is divided into 12 ſtreets, and a gate aſſigned to every ſeveral Tribe, Chap. 48. 31, &c.

V. 7. For the Prince on the one ſide] On the Weſt, and Eaſt ſide of that holy portion of the land; and of the Poſſeſſion of the city. This ſituation of his portion, ſome way, points out the nature of his office and duty, to be in the middle of his Kingdome; ready to take care of all; but firſt, and more immediately, of the Church, and Worſhip of God.

and the length ſhall be] Length of the Princes portion on the Weſt ſide of the holy portion, for Prieſts, and Levites; and of the poſſeſſion of the city, ſhall be to the Weſt Sea. And the length of the Princes other portion on the Eaſt ſide of the holy portions of land, and of the poſſeſſion of the city, ſhall be to the utmoſt bounds of the land Eaſtward. And the breadth of them are the ſame that is the breadth of the holy portions of the land, and of the poſſeſſion of the city, running North and South. So that theſe three, the Prieſts, Cities, and Princes, two portions, took up a breadth of 25000 from North to South, running clean through the land, from Weſt to Eaſt; and lying betwixt the Tribes of Judah and Benjamin, Chap. 48. 7, 8, 23.

over againſt one of the portions] Each one of the three portions, viz. for the Prieſts, Levites, and City.

from the weſt border] Of the three ſaid portions, to the weſt Sea, is the Princes weſt portions.

unto the eaſt border] To the utmoſt bounds the eaſt border of the ſaid three portions, to the eaſt Sea, is the Princes eaſt portion. Thus the Prince and Civil Magiſtrate, muſt have his due, Mat. 22. 21. Rom. 13. 6, 7. 1 Pet. 2. 13, 17. Their will is not a Law, nor they above the Laws. The rule belongs to them, which is preſcribed to maſters, Col. 4. 1.

V. 9. Let it ſuffice you] Your double portion; or, as in 1 Pet. 4. 3. 3.

execute judgment] Rom. 13. 4. Eſay 1. 17.

exaction] Whereby through force, and fraud, you expulſe my people from their lands and poſſeſſions.

V. 10. Juſt ballances] Lev. 19. 35, 36. Prov. 11. 1. & 16. 11. & 20. 10, 23. Mic. 6. 10, 11. In Chriſts Kingdom all muſt be juſt, without wrong, deceit, or oppreſſion, 1 Cor. 6. 1, 6, 7, 8, 10. Mat. 7. 12.

V. 11. The Ephah] The Ephah is a meaſure of dry things; as the Bath is of liquid things: the both of the ſame meaſure and capacity. And whereas the Ephah before contained ten Homers, Exod. 16. 36. and ſo ten Bathes; here the Homer contains ten Ephahs, and ſo ten bathes. ver. 14. The Epha before was the ſame with Amphora Attica, or Medimnus, containingin dry thinges, as much as 8 gallons, one pint, 4 ounces, 1 chanar, & 16 grains, or thereabour. The bath was thereabout, 1 King. 4. 22. and 7. 26. And the Homer formerly was three pints and a halfe, or thereabouts. The change therefore is great that is here made. See Lev. 27. 16. The Homer here is made the ſame with Cor. ver. 14.

V. 12. And the ſhekel ſhall be twenty Gerahs] Exod. 30. 13. Lev. 27. 25. Num. 3. 47. Gerah is penny half penny, and ſo 20 Geraha made up the ſhekel of the Sanctuary, Num. 18. 36. which was two ſhillings ſix pence. The common, or Kings ſicle was but halfe ſo much, that is one ſhilling three pence, or a quarter of an ounce of ſilver.

ſhall be your maneh] Or, mina, or, pound weight, 1 King. 10. 17. 2 Chr. 9. 16. The common pound waighed 15 ſhekels, that is, one pound, 17 ſhillings, ſix pence: the King's 20, that is, two pound ten ſhillings; the Sanctuaries, five and twenty, that is three pound two ſhilling ſix pence. But ſtill in monies the accompt muſt go by the ſhekels; as formerly in meaſures it was to go by the Homer.

V. 13. This is the oblation] The Law indeed, Num. Chap 28. & Chap 29. provided for the offerings, for the daily ſacrifice, and other ordinary ſervices: but here it is in joyned to the people more punctually and particularly.

the ſixth part] See on ver. 11. They muſt offer unto God the threeſcore part of their wheat, and of their barley.

V. 14. Of oil the tenth part] That is, the hundred part.

V. 15. And one lamb] Out of two hundred.

for a meat-offering] For the daily ſacrifice, and other ordinary ſacrifices, and meat-offerings.

V. 16, This oblation] Mentioned in the three former Verſes.

for the Prince in Iſrael] Or, with the Prince in Iſrael; that is, for the Prince to receive the ſaid oblations; and thereout, and together with his own, to furniſh the ſacrifices, and ſervices. Or rather, the Prince to offer likewiſe out of his wheat, barly, oile, lambs, his like ſhare; and thereout, or otherwiſe of himſelf to provide for the publick ſacrifices and ſervices, as is ſet down in the verſes following, to the end of the Chapter.

V. 18. Thou shalt take] Speaks to the Prince. So verf. 20, 22. he is expreſſed by name; and ſo underſtood in the Verſes following.

V. 19. Of the ſettle of the Alter] This is more then was in the Law of Moſes: As divers other things alſo.

V. 21. The Paſſeover] Compare what follows with Exod.12. Lev.23. Num.28.16, &c. And ſee the variations.

V. 25. In the ſeventh moneth] See Num.29.12, &c. And obſerve the variations; ſhewing thereby, that thoſe Sacrifices, Rites, and Ceremonies, were alterable in themſelves, and to end at Chriſts Coming; as ſhadows vaniſhing, when the body came.

CHAP. XLVI.

Verſ.1. THus, &c.] In this Chapter are ſet down Ordinances in Gods worſhip, for the Prince, and people. In particular, The Prince his place, and ſtanding; his Offerings punctually on the Sabbaths, and in the New Moons; his Coming in, and Going out. The peoples alſo, and their Offerings. The Princes Voluntary Offering. The Daily Offering. The Princes Inheritance, and his Gifts to Sons and ſervants, the places of Boyling and Baking for the Prieſts. The Boyling places of the Levites for the Sacrifices of the people.

the gate of the Inner Court] Next the Temple, Chap.40.44, &c.

ſhall be ſhut] Chap.44.1,2,3.

but on the Sabbath day] and other Feaſtivals.

V. 2. ſhall ſtand by the poſt] but not come into the Court.

ſhall not be ſhut] The reaſon of it is in the next verſe.

V. 4. And the burnt-offering] Much more,then was enjoyned in the Law, Num.28.9.

V. 5. an Ephah ———] See verſ.11.

V. 6. And in the day of the new Moon] Leſſe then was enjoyned by the Law of Moſes, Num.28.11.

V. 8. and when the Prince ſhall enter] The Eaſt Gates of the Courts allowed to the Prince, for acceſſe, for ingreſſe, and egreſſe, even as for the Prieſts and Levites. They are joyned together and muſt joyn their ſtrengths and powers together: they both muſt go the ſame way; not contrary ways.

V. 9. But when the people] The North and South gates allowed to them; to come in at the one, and go out at the other. This may mind us of ſtraight ſteps; to go ſtill forward, Phil.3.13,14. not to look back, as Lots wife, Luk.9.62. And Repenting, not to return back the ſame way we came, 2 Pet.2.21,22. Came we carnal? let us return ſpiritual.

V. 10. And the Prince] Muſt obſerve the ſame time with the people, for coming to, and ſtaying at Gods publick worſhip and ſervice; muſt be an example to them; which will much prevail with them; magnates are magnetes.

V. 11. The meat-offerings ſhall be] The particularities, and the quantities preſcribed in Gods Offerings and worſhip.

Ephah] See Chap.45.11.

Hin] As much as the ſhells of 72 Hens-egs do hold. Theſe quantities and proportions differ from thoſe in the Leviticall Law, Num.15. & 28. Exod.29.40. There the tenth part of an Ephah; and the fouth part of an Hin: here, the ſixth part of an Ephah; and the third part of an Hin: Likely, to imply, that as Gods Graces and bleſſings do abound under the Goſpel, more then under the Law; ſo likewiſe ſhould our ſervice, thankfulneſſe, and ſpiritual obedience abound.

V. 12. One ſhall ſhut the gate] Not ſo on the Sabbaths, and new Moons, verſ.2.

V. 14. the ſixth part of an Ephah] Differing from that, Exod. 29.40.

V. 16. If the Prince give] It ſhall be his childrens, and their ſeed for ever.

V. 17. to the year of liberty] The Jubelee, Lev.25.10,13, &c. and verſ.28. yea, the ſervant ſhall be then free, Exod.21.2; Lev.25. 40,41.54.

V. 18. Prince ſhall not] Chap.45.8,9.

be not ſcattered] Which cauſed Naboth to refuſe Ahab,1 King. 21.3. Num.36.7.

V. 19. at the ſide of the gate ————] Of that third and Inmoſt court, wherein the Prince and people were in no wiſe to enter, Chap.40.44,&c.

on the two ſides weſtward] Two little courts for the prieſts, on the two ſides next the Temple, and looking Weſtward. Theſe courts, for boyling,ſeem to be placed without that compaſſe of 100 cubits wherewith the courts were bounded.

V. 20. This is the place] for the Prieſts only, to boyl and bake in. The Kitchins of the Prieſts, in that Inmoſt court, behind their chambers, Weſtward.

into the utter court] That belongs to the people, Chap.42.14. & 44.19.

to ſanctifie the people] See Chap.44.19.

V. 21. Utter Court] Or, Middle Court, for the Levites; called the Utter Court, in relation to the Inmoſt Court, of the Prieſts.

In every corner of the court, there was a court] Four little Courts for the Levites, in that middle Court.

V. 22. Courts joyned] Or, with Ch.mneys. Their ſpacioufneſſe.

V. 23. in them round about ———] Buildings within the Kitchins, fitted for boylings.

CHAP. XLVII.

Verſ.1 AFterwards] We have here, The Viſion of the Riſe, Progreſſe, and Healing virtue of the Holy Waters, and of the Trees on the Banks. The Borders of the Land of Canaan: which is to be divided by Lot, to the 12 Tribes, and to the Sojourners among them.

he brought me] The hand of the Lord, Chap.1.3. & 3.22. The Spirit, Chap.4.12,14,24.

door of the houſe] The Temple.

waters iſſued] This alſo ſhews this whole Viſion, Chap.40. to the end of the Book, to be Allegorical and Typical. Theſe waters ſhadow out and ſhew the Spirit of God, and the Gifts of the Spirit beſtowed on the Chriſtian Church, to be ſmall in their beginings, but to grow very great after. And particularly, that the Doctrine of the Goſpel ſhould have the like weak beginning, and wondrous progreſſe and propagation afterwards, Apoc.22.1. is a river of water of life, cleer as Chryſtal.

right ſide] The right hand and ſide, is taken in Scripture to be toward the South, or for the South: Man, as hath been ſaid, being placed in poſture with his face toward the Eaſt; as the Front and Porch of the Temple was. Theſe Waters iſſue from the Temple. Thoſe, Apoc.22.1. proceed out of the Throne of God, and of the Lamb.

came down] For the Temple was on a Hill.

V. 2. the gate Northward] for the Eaſt gate of the Inmoſt Court was ſhut, Chap.44.1,2,3. & 46.1.

utter gate] Of the utmoſt great compaſſe and wall.

run out] As out of a Vial.

V. 5. a river that, &c.] Repreſenting the abundance of ſpirituall graces in the Church of Chriſt, Ephe.1.3. Joel 3.18. Zech.14.8. Apoc. 22.1. Joh.4.13,14.& 7.38,39.

V. 8. Go into the Sea] Called the ſalt Sea, or Sea of Sodome, the lake Aſphaltites, or dead Sea; becauſe all living things die in it. Such are we, as the dead Sea, Eph.2.3.

the waters ſhall be healed] See Joh.5.4. The meaning here is, that they ſhould be made wholeſome for fiſh, and living creatures, as in the two next Verſes. And ſo the virtue and efficacy of ſpirituall bleſſings in the Goſpel, the Merits of Chriſt, and Graces of the Holy Spirit, do heal, revive, regenerate and make fruitful men, formerly dead in treſpaſſes and ſins.

V. 9. the rivers] Of thoſe abundant Waters. So in the end of this verſe.

a very great multitude of fiſh] The fœcundity and fruitfulneſſe of theſe ſpirituall Waters; the exceeding great number of Believers, Eſay 66.7,8,12. & 60.3,4,5,8. & 49.18,20,21,22,23) Apoc.7. 4,9. Though yet they be few in compariſon of them that enter in at the wide gate, and go the broad way, that leads to deſtruction.

V. 10. The fiſhers] That before had nothing to do for fiſhing in that dead Sea; though they fiſhed much in the Lake of Genezaret, and upward of Jordan.

Engedi,] Or, Ennoſhpat, or, Kadeſh, Gen.14.7. Or rather, a town upon the dead Sea, otherwiſe called Hazazon Tamar, 2 Chr.20.2.

Eneglaim] A place at the entrance of the dead Sea, where Jordan runs into it; as ſome Writers report.

according to their kinds] No kind of fiſh not there; as in the great Sea. No kind of ſinner excepted from this fiſhing, Gal. 3.28.

as the fiſh] Where none were, or could be before; now ſo exceeding many.

V. 11. the myrie places] Some tranſlate and expound it, that even thoſe places of it, that were not healed, but given to ſalt, and in a manner impoſſible to be healed, ſhould yet be healed, and abound in fiſh. Others, in an Allegorical ſenſe, to another meaning: That ſuch as will rather chooſe to wallow, as ſwine, in the myre of their ſins, without repentance, and not come to theſe healing waters, ſhall not be healed, but hardned, 2 Cor.2.15,16.

V. 12. all trees] See Rev.22.2. There is the Tree of life, (as Gen.2.9.) which bare 12 manner of fruits; and that every moneth. This here ſtill ſhews all to be Allegorical and Typical. Let theſe trees mind us of our qualifications, and Duties, wherein we are reſembled to Trees in Scripture, Pſal.1.3. & 92.13. Eſay.61. 3. Jer.17.8. We muſt not be barren trees, Luk.13.7. nor bring forth wild grapes, Eſay.5.2. but fruit for meat, and leaves for medicine; and that without fading, or decaying: but ſtill green and flouriſhing, 2 Pet.1.5, &c.

becauſe their waters, &c.] The cauſe of their fruitfulneſſe is not their own planting, or watering, 1 Cor.3.6,7. but Gods bleſſing, iſſuing out of the Sanctuary of heaven, Joh.15.5. 1 Cor.15.10, Gal 5.22. Jam.1.17.

V. 13. This ſhall be the border] Of the whole land, North, Eaſt, South, Weſt.

Joſeph

Joſeph ſhall have two portions] That is, for Ephraim and Manaſſeh. So Deut.33.13. ——— 18. See his right and title, Gen.48. 5,6, and 49.22, &c. 1 Chron 5.1,2.

V. 14. one as well as another] See verſ.22,23. This may intimate an equal right of all ſorts of perſons in the Kingdom of Chriſt, Gal.3.26,28 Col.3.11. Act.10.34. 1 Pet.1.2,9,10.

V. 15. from the great Sea] The mediterranean Sea. So verſ.19, 20. See Num.34.7. from that Sea by mount Hor, (otherwiſe called Hermon, Shirion, Shenir, and Sion, Joſh.13.5. Deut.3.9. and 4.48) to Hamath, &c.

the way of Hethlon] Chap.48.1. The Weſt border of the Kingdom of Damaſcus.

as men go to Zedad] Num.34.8. the Eaſt border of the Kingdom of Damaſcus. So that the Kingdom of Damaſcus ſeemeth to be taken in.

V.16. Hamath] Eaſt border, at the foot of Lebanon, Num.13. 22. and 34.8. 1 King.8.65. Toi King of it, 2 Sam.8.9.

Berothah] a City of Hadad-Ezer, 2 Sam.8.8. bordering upon Arabia deſerta, as Ptolomy ſaith.

Sibraim] Belonging likewiſe to Arabia deſerta.

which is between] All that ſcope of land pertaining to theſe two Kingdomes.

Hauran] a Town like Arabia deſerta, as Geographers write, 2 Mac.4.40.

V. 17. Hazar-Enan] Chap.48.1. Num.34.9,10. a town upon the Northern borders of Judea, Damaſcus, and Hamath.

V. 18. From Hauran] Verſ.16.

by Jordan] Beyond Jordan; as Pſal.42.6.

unto the Eaſt Sea] The dead Sea, verſ.8. See Joel 2.20. Zach. 14.8.

V. 19. Tamar] The laſt town of Judea, by Hengedi, at the dead Sea.

waters of ſtrife in Kadeſh] Num.20.13. and 27.14. not in Rephidim, Exod.17.7.

V. 20. over againſt Hemath] to that place of the great Sea, from which lyeth a ſtraight way towards Hamath Eaſtward.

V. 21. according to the Tribes] Little, or no land would remain for them, if the Holy portion, Cities, and Princes portion, Chap. 45. were to be meaſured by Reeds, and not by Cubits; unleſſe we take all in an Allegorical, and typical ſenſe.

V. 22. and to the ſtrangers] It was otherwiſe in the diviſion of the land by Moſes, and Joſhuah. But this might ſhadow out the right of the Gentiles, and their title and claim to the Church, and Goſpel of Chriſt, and heavenly Canaan. See Annotations onver.14.

CHAP. XLVIII.

Verſ.1, NOw &c.] Here are the ſeveral Bounds, and portions of the Land of Canaan, for the 12 ſeveral Tribes: for the Sanctuary, and Prieſts; for the Levites; for the City, and Suburbs; for the Princes. The dimenſions, Gates, and Name of the City.

from the North] Begins there; and ſo goes on toward the South.

The way of Hethlon] Chap.47.15,16,17.

Eaſt and Weſt] Each tribe here runs his portion from Eaſt to Weſt, the whole breadth of the land of Canaan: For to run the breadth of that particular Country; and the length of it from South to North: though all Geographers in deſcribing the whole earth, conſtantly reckon the longitudes, from Eaſt to Weſt, and the latitudes from South to North. Chriſts Kingdom runs to the ends of the earth, Pſal.2.8.

for Dan] The Order of the tribes in their portion is this; viz. Dan, Aſher, Naphtali, Mannaſſeth, Ephraim, Reuben, Judah, the portions for the Prieſts, the Levites, the City, the Prince, Benjamin, Simeon, Iſſachar, Zebulun, Gad.

V. 8. the offering which they ſhall offer] For the Prieſts, Levites, City, Prince. Seven tribes lay Northward; Five Southward: and theſe portions in the middle.

of five and twenty thouſand in breadth] Reckoning ſo from North to South; as the Breadth of the portions of all the tribes were reckoned: and reckoning in this ſum, the Prieſts Levites, Cities, and Princes portions.

and in length as one of the other parts] In length from Eaſt to Weſt, as one of the other parts of each ſeveral Tribe; ſo taking up in length the whole breadth of the land.

V. 9. unto the Lord] As diſtinguiſhing it from the other oblations, for the City and prince; and Levites ſome way too, as having the Sanctuary in it.

ſhall be five and twenty thouſand in length] Called breadth in the former verſe; and there ſee the reckoning, and reaſon of it: here called length, in relation to the ten thouſand; which are, as the far leſſer Number, juſtly here called the Breadth of the prieſts portion.

V. 10. Toward the North five and twenty thouſand in length] the meaning is, the North border, limit, or line running Eaſt and Weſt, was in length five and twenty thouſand; and ſo the South border: and the Eaſt border, limit, or line, running North and South, being the breadth, was ten thouſand; and ſo the Weſt border: All which was the prieſts Holy portion; and the Sanctuary in the midſt thereof.

V. 11. which went not aſtray] Chap.44.15,16.

V. 12. And his oblation] this part of the oblation.

V 13. The Levites ſhall have] Joyning to the South of the prieſts portion; and in length and breadth; as the Prieſts portion.

V. 14. not ſell of it] Lev.25.23,24. Num.36.6. &c. See 1 King 21.3.

V. 15. And the five thouſand that are left in the breadth] From North to South,to make up the ten thouſand breadth of the prieſts, and the ten thouſand breadth of the Levites, a perfect ſquare, viz. five and twenty thouſand; and ſo equal to the length aforeſaid.

a profane place] In oppoſition to that of the Sanctuary, Prieſts and Levites.

for the City] Jeruſalem, the ſubburbs, and the uſe of the inhabitants, and them that ſerve the City, as it is, verſ.16,17,18,19.

in the midſt thereof] Of that laſt five and twenty thouſand in length, and five thouſand breadth. And ſo the City was to be diſtant from the Temple, about ten miles at leaſt, if not twenty, or thirty, or ſixty; according to the ſeveral meaſures, mentioned, verſ.1.

V. 16, The meaſures] Thus out of the midſt of the 25000 length, take 4500 ſquare for the City; and 250 for the Eaſt ſuburbs of it, and 250 for the Weſt ſuburbs of it; and this will take up 5000 of the length; and ſo will remain ten thouſand of the length, on the Eaſt ſide, and ten thouſand on the Weſt ſide, for the uſe of the Citizens, and them that ſerve the City. Thus the City is ſquare. And ſo that new Jeruſalem, and holy City, prepared as a Bride, deſcending out of heaven from God, Apoc.21.16. And the meaſure of that is, 12000. furlongs in length, breadth and height, which laſt is moſt wonderfull. By theſe meaſures of Ezekiels City, the compaſſe of the walls is implyed, viz. 4500. meaſures on each ſquare; 18000. round about, verſ.35. The wall of the new Jeruſalem, had twelve foundations, made of 12 ſeveral pretious ſtones, and in them the names of the twelve Apoſtles: And above the foundations, the walls were made of Jaſper: the thickneſſe of the walls, 144 cubits. And the City being 12000 furlongs, long, broad, and high, the walls of it muſt needs be, of the length and height, Apoc.21.12,14,16,17,18,19,20. Theſe are Typical, and Hieroglyphical deſcriptions.

And the South ſide four thouſand five hundred] Heb. חמש מאות חמש מאות five five hundred. And here the Maſſorites note upon the ſecond חמש מאות, Cetib velo Keri; that is, It is written, but not to be read; as being redundant. And therefore they put no pricks or vowels, to that word in the text: As in the Keri, which they would have read, they put the pricks onely, or vowels in the text, and the conſonants in the margent.

V. 17. And the ſuburbs] Theſe ſuburbs, on the North and South ſide, fill up the breadth of five thouſand; which is the whole breadth of the Cities portion. and on the Eaſt and Weſt ſides of the ſquare, they fill up the length of five thouſand; and ſo leave ten thouſand Eaſt, and ten thouſand Weſt, for the uſe of the Citizens, and them that ſerve the City.

V. 18. And the reſidue] As is clearly ſhewed, upon the two former verſes. The breadth of each, the ten thouſand long, is five thouſand, being all the breadth of the cities portion.

over againſt the oblation of the holy portion] Joyning to, and running in length, at the South ſide of the Levites portion.

V. 19. Out of all the tribes of Iſrael]: And therefore the twelve gates are named, after the names of the twelve tribes, verſe 31, 32,33,34.

V. 20. Four ſquare, with] That is, five and twenty thouſand from Eaſt to Weſt; and ten thouſand of the Prieſts, and ten thouſand of the Levites, and five thouſand of the City; in all, five and twenty thouſand, running from North, to South, a perfect ſquare.

V. 21. And the reſidue ſhall be for the Prince] The reſidue Eaſtward, from the Eaſt line, of five and twenty thouſand, running from North to South, and comprehending the breadth of the portions, of the Prieſts, Levites, and City; that reſidue from the Eaſt line Eaſtward, to the Eaſt bounds of the land, ſhall be the Princes one portion. And the other equall and alike, from the Weſt line of five and twenty thouſand, running as aforeſaid, and comprehending as aforeſaid; that reſidue, from that Weſt line weſtward, to the midland ſea, ſhall be the Princes other portion.

ANNOTATIONS on the Book of the Prophet DANIEL.

THE ARGUMENT.

THe Book of Daniel is Hiſtorical, to the ſeventh Chapter; and Prophetical in the reſt. In the Hiſtory of things done, we have ſingular Monumens of the rare piety of Daniel, and his three Companions of the ſame Nation, about the ſame age, and in the ſame condition; who all in their Youth were carried Captives to Babylon, in the firſt Captivity by Nebuchadnezzar, (not counting upon the Captivity of Manaſſeh,) which was in the fourth yeare of Jehoiakim King of Judah, in the beginning of it: where at the firſt Daniel and his fellowes, being inſtructed and trained up in learning for three years together, without intermiſſion, were afterwards for their skill and dexterity advanced to honourable employments in that Empire. God ſo took them into his particular Care and Charge, that their Humane inſtructions and learning became uſefull to them; being made ſubordinate, and ſubſerving to Divine gifts and graces, which he further beſtowed on them. For they had the Spirit of Sanctification, Zeal for Gods glory, firm Faith, and invincible, though tryed by fiery afflictions, and cruel decrees, inflicted on Daniels three Companions in their Youth, and upon Daniel himſelf in his Old age. Moreover, Daniel had the gift of Prophecie. The Dreams which the King had forgotten, and which none of his Wiſemen could tell him, Daniel recalls to his memory, and giveth the true Interpretation thereof: where upon being promoted to high dignity, he preſers his faithful Companions; Providence ſo ordering affairs, that the Church in her ſufferings and Captivity in Babylon, ſhould not want Noble Patrons for her comfort, countenance, and maintenance. He was famous for Prayer and Sanctity; as appears, Ezek. 14.14, 20. And, in the eleventh year of Jehoiachins Captivity, ſo ſingular for wiſdome, that by a common Proverb he was ſet a pattern thereof in Babylon; where Ezekiel alſo then Propheſied: who taunts the King of Tyrus, (who thought himſelf ſo wiſe above others) with this mock, ſaying, Ezek.28.3. Behold, thou are wiſer then Daniel.

In the Prophetical part of this Book, Daniels wiſedome doth clearly ſhine forth, in ſhewing when the myſtery of Mans Redemption ſhould be wrought; and Ceremonies, and legal Sacrifices ſhould ceaſe, and be aboliſhed, to give way to the ſervice of God in Spirit and Truth; namely, when the Meſſiah was ſlain. Now to work ſure confidence in the expectation of this ſingular good, Daniel hath incomparable Viſions concerning the four great Monarchies of the World, untill the coming of Chriſts Kingdome; which was to be erected upon the ruine of the former, and to rule after-wards to the worlds end: By which Viſions the Prophet ſheweth, that the Jewiſh Church muſt be in a ſuffering condition; eſpecially under the foot of the Image, the dividid Kingdome of the Greeks, into North and South, Syria and Egypt, under the Seleucide and Lagidæ, Succeſſors to Alexander the Great; who exerciſed many outrages againſt the Jewes: but above all, Antiochus Epiphanes was the moſt cruel, ſubtil, and peſtilent perſecutor, that even the Jewiſh Church had. He hated piety, and was void of humanity, being malicious by ſet againſt Judah's Religion; chiefly aymeing to root out the worſhip of the true God, and to blot every impreſſion and motion of piety out of mens hearts, Againſt thoſe former enemies, and this laſt, but worſt of all. Daniel comforts, and quickneth the languiſhing Saints, by foretelling the ſingular Hiſtory of things to be done in the Church, even till the coming of Chriſt the Meſſiah: and not onely by Predictions, and Premonitions, would he make thoſe heavy afflictions, which were to come, more tolerable; but alſo he tells the time preciſely when the Meſſiah, by his death, ſhould purchaſe for his Church ſpiritual deliverance, & and ſo up his Spiritual, and everlaſting Kingdom, by cauſing and inviting Salvation and Eternal felicity to all both Jewes & Gentiles which were of the Election of Grace. Fore-telling likewiſe the final & fatal judgment of God to be executed by the Romans upon the Jewiſh Nation, for denying the Holy One of Iſrael, and betraying the Lord of life to be killed by the Romane power. In the reading whereof, our Saviour requires ſpecial care of underſtanding, Mat. 24.15. wherefore Daniels Book ſeems to ſome, to contain the Hiſtory of ſix hundred years, beginning with Babels firſt year under Nebuchadnezzar; and reaching thence to Jeruſalems fall: the Romans thus: ſeventy years Babels Captivity laſted: thence ſeven ſeventies to the death of the Meſſiah: thence fourty to the deſtruction of Jeruſalem by the abomination of deſolation, or abominable Army of Romian Infidels, working (by the juſt judgement of God) the deſolation of the Jewes, City, and Countrey. Theſe three ſums; firſt, ſeventy in Babylon; ſecondly, ſeven ſeventies, that is, four hundred and ninety till Chriſt his death: Laſtly, fourty thence, to Jeruſalems deſtruction, make up ſix hundred years, the whole time and limits of Daniels Book. Yet others making Daniels ſeventies, Chap. 9. to begin, not at Cyrus his Proclamation for the Jewes return, when Jeremies ſeventy ended, 2 Chron. 36. 21, 22. Ezra, Chap. 1. but at Artaxerxes his Commiſſion to Nehemiah, for to reſtore, and to build Jeruſalem, (the walls and City) Dan. 9.25. and counting ing eighty five years to intercur between theſe two dates, viz. the ſeven laſt of Cyrus; ſeven, of Cambyſes; ſeven moneths of Artaxerxes, or Smerdis Magus, thirty of Darius Hyſtaſpis; one and twenty of Xerxes; and twenty of Artaxerxes, (for in his twentieth year Nehemiah had his Commiſſion) they do ſo encreaſe the number to be ſix hundred eighty five years. This uncertainty, and others hereunto belonging, by reaſon of their opinions about the beginning of Daniels ſeventies, do ariſe from the uncertainty of Humane Hiſtories, upon which the reckonings of theſe times do depend. Wherof ſee more on Dan. 9.24,25,26,27. Daniel lived at the end of the Babyloniſh Captivity; yet returned not with the reſt; but ſtayed behind: not ſo much by reaſon of his old age, as for his imployments in the Kings affairs, and uſeful there to procure the good of his Nation, and to promote their Cauſes.

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 1. IN the beginning and end of the ſeventy years Captivity, is from Nebuchadnezzars firſt, unto the firſt of Darius 1 and Daniel was in Babylon the whole time, as is plain in this Chapter, ver.1.& 21. Jeremy in the firſt of Nebuchadnezzar tolleth, that Nations ſhall ſerve the King of Babylon ſeventy years, Jer. 25.11. So the account muſt be from Babels firſt. See 2 Chron. 36.21.

third] Heb. three. But the Cardinal number when it is governed of a Noun, here, hath the ſignification of the Ordinal number.

year of the reign of Jehoiakim King of Judah] In the end of this third year of Jehoiakim, Nebuchadnezzar began to reign: and in the fourth yeare of Jehoiakim, he overthrew Pharaohs Army at Carchemiſh by the river Euphrates, Jer. 46. 2. And preſently began his expedition in Babylon, and came up to Jeruſalem in the ſame fourth year of Jehoiakim, which was ſtill in the firſt of Nebuchadnezzar. See Jer. 25, 1. 2 King. 24. 1. Now leſt the deſolation of Jeruſalem, ſpoken of, Jer. 25. 11. ſhould make the unacquainted dagger, we muſt know, that the land paid, or kept and enjoyed her Sabbaths; Lev. 26. 34. and reſted 70 years, 2 Chron. 36. 21. from the firſt Captivity, to the end of Babels reign. For in moſt exact truth, the deſolation and reſt was in part from the firſt battering of Jeruſalem, and carriage of any from the Countrey. This third year of Jehoiakim was about 3400 from the Creation. Of this Jehoiakims death, we read, That he was bound in chains to be carried to Babylon, 2 Chron. 36. 6. But dying on the way, he was buryed, as Jeremy prophecied, Jer. 22. 19. & 36. 30. though the common phraſe of ſleeping with his Fathers be afforded him, 2 King. 24. 6.

Nebuchadnezzar] 2 King. 24. 1. 2 Chr. 36. 6. the ſon of Nabopolaſſer. See Annotations on Ezek. 26. 7.

King of Babylon] See Annotations on Gen. 10 10. The Aſſyrians, in Chaldeans, Perſians, reigning as Monarchs ſucceſſively, had in poſſeſſion, and were ſtyled Kings of this famous city. See Neh. 13. 6.

and beſieged it] In the beginning of the fourth year of Jehojakim; as was ſaid.

V. 2. And the Lord gave, &c.] So Deut. 1. 27. Jer. 37. 17. God, the Author of Nebuchadnezzars victory, ſold them into the hand, &c. Judg. 3. 8. & 4. 2. Of Jehojakims reſtitution, and ſubjection a while, and his rebellion after, and final overthrow laſt of all, ſee 2 King. 24. 1. 2. Jer. 25. 1. 2 Chron. 36. 5, 6.

with part] For part remained till the time of Jechoniah; and the laſt part, till the time of the laſt ſubverſion of all, in the eleventh year of Zedekiah; which Nebuchadnezzar had moſt juſt cauſe of wrath againſt the Kingdome of Judah, for their double or treble rebellion againſt him. The Veſſels of the Temple were of ſundry ſorts, and very many in number, Ezra 1. 9, 10, 11. & 8. 25, 26, 27. and yet part of them had been cut in pieces, at Jehojachins captivity, 2 King. 24. 13.

Shinar] Read Gen. 10. 10. & 11 2. which was a plain by Babylon; and is here taken for Babylon, where was the temple of their great god.

The houſe of his god] As monuments of his triumphant victory; and of his thankſgiving to his god therefore. See 1 Sam. 31. 9, 10. This his god was the idol Bel; the chiefeſt Idol in account with the Aſſyrians, Perſians, and Babylonians. Moſt think they account it ſtood by it the Sun. And hence was that Idolatry to the Sun, in Manaſſehs time, who had been in Babylon; and mentioned in the reign of Joſiah, 2 King. 23. 11. And hence alſo it is, that to the Flirt, as a ſpark of this Sun, they gave Divine worſhip. Bel likely ſignified to them, what Baal did to the Jews, a Lord; from Bel and Nebo, their Idols mentioned, Eſay 46. 1. ſome of the Babylonian Kings would aſſume part of their names; as Belſhazar; Nebuchadnezzar: and the like name the Prince of the Eunuchs, by the commandement of the King, gave to Daniel, verſ. 7. Chap. 5. 12.

treaſure-houſe of his god] Idolaters coſts upon their gods. See Diodorus Siculus book 3. chap. 4. Belſhazar, in the ſacrilegious prophaning of them, had that hand-writing, &c. Chap. 5. 2, &c.

V. 3. Spake unto Aſhpenaz.] In that third year of Jehojakim, ver. 1. or beginning of the fourth. For Nebuchadnezzars firſt year comprehended part of the third year, and part of the fourth of Jehojakim, Jer. 25. 1. And in that year, and not in the eighth year of Jehojakim; or in the ſeventh or eighth year of Nebuchadnezzar, as ſome would, (compare 2 King. 24. 12. with Jer. 52. 28.) was Daniel carried Captive, and this commandement given to Aſhpenaz.

Eunuchs] Or, Courtiers; whereof many were Eunuchs: ſome not, Jer. 52. 25. See Gen. 39. 1. Eſth. 4. 4. & 6. 2. & 7. 9. Acts 8. 27.

and of the King's ſeed] Heb. of the ſeed of the Kingdome. Eſay foretold this, Chap 39. 7. not yet that Daniel and his Companions were Eunuchs in its ſtricteſt ſenſe; as the mind of ſome is; not yet certainly, though perhaps probably, of the ſeed Royal. The Kings purpoſe was, to keep them as hoſtages; and that he might they himſelf victorious, and alſo by their good intreaty, and learning his religion, they might favour rather him, then the Jewes; and ſo alſo be able to ſerve him as paſſages of honours and ſo from time to time to be advanced to offices in the Court, or Governours in their land. Moreover, by this means the Jewes might be better kept in ſubjection, fearing otherwiſe to procure hurt to theſe Nobelmen.

V. 4. But wel-favoured] Not ſuch as thoſe, Lev. 21. 17. Such rather as Abſolom was, 2 Sam. 14. 25. The King required three things; that they ſhould be of noble birth, witty and capable of learning; and alſo of a ſtrong and comely Nature and beauty; For gratior eſt pulchro veniens è corpore virtus; when there is ſome decor corporis. And all this; that they might do him the better ſervice; and this he doing for his own commodities, makes it the leſſe to ſerve for the praiſes of his liberality: yet in this he is worthy of praiſe, that he eſteemed learning; and much towardneſſe by many ſignes may appeare in young and tender years; as in Athanaſius, and others.

to ſtand, &c.] As 2 Chron. 10. 6. 1 King. 10. 9.

in the Kings palace] Ver. 19. before the king.

teach the learning, and the tongue of the Chaldeans] That they might forget their own religion and countrey fashions, to ſerve him the better to his purpoſe; yet it is not to be thought that Daniel did learn any knowledge that was not godly; unleſſe it were ſo far forth as whereby to be able to convince and condemn it. As Solomon would know madneſſe and folly, Eccl. 1. 17. as the Fathers would know the errours of Philoſophers, and tenents of Heretickes, to be more able to confute them. In all points, Daniel refuſed the abuſe of things, and ſuperſtition; inſomuch that he would not eat the meat which the King appointed him; But was content to learn the knowledg of Natural, Moral, and Rational things, and Sciences, and the Chaldean tongue, which differed from the Hebrew, and was ſpeeſt to be ſpoken in the Chaldean Court, and in the Kings preſence. Thus, Moſes was learned in all the wiſdome of the Egyptians, Act. 7. 22.

V. 5. daily proviſion of the Kings meat] Haply that they might be drawn to eat meats forbidden in the law.

the wine which he drank] Heb. the wine of his drink. Such as he had at his own Table: Such was the Kings Humanity, and royal regard of his conquered Captives.

three years] To the intent that in this time, though but ſhort, they might learn both the manner of the Chaldeans, and alſo their learning and language.

before the King] As well to ſerve at the Table, as in other offices of greater employment. Leſſe care have we to fit our ſelves to ſtand before the King of Heaven, to ſerve him in our ſeveral callings and offices.

V. 6. Now among theſe] There were more beſides, verſ. 10.

of Judah] Moſt likely of that Tribe.

Daniel] So ſpeaking of himſelf in the third perſon; and ſo often do the Prophets; as Eſay 1. 1. Jer. 1. 1. Ezek. 1. 3. yet otherwhiles, in his own perſon; as Chap. 8. 1. and 9. 2. for that no doubt can be made, but that he, and no other, is the penman of this book. See Chap. 10. 12.

V. 7. Prince of the Eunuchs] So ver. 8, 9, 10, 11, 18. This man is not named: And hath Melzar under him, ver. 11. and ſeems not to to be Aſhpenaz, who is called the maſter of the Eunuchs, verſ. 3. nor Arioch, who is called the Captain of the Kings guard, Chap. 2, 14, 24, 25.

Gave names] By the commandement of the King, Dan. 5. 12, 28 Pharaoh did, Gen. 41. 45. and Pharaoh Necho, 2 King. 23. 34. and this Nebuchadnezzar, 2 King. 24. 17. This was haply to ſhew his abſolute power, and right of dominion over them; as Adam gave names, Gen. 2. 19, 20 and to honour haply his idols of Chaldea, or the children by the idols names, Chap. 4. 8. the principal whereof were Bel and Nebo, Eſay 46. 1. and to cancel likely in them the memory of their birth, countrey, and religion, and the knowledge of the true God, whoſe name they bore, El, and Jah: for the Jewes uſually gave their children names which might put them in mind of ſome part or point of Religion; or upon ſome extraordinary occaſion changed the name; as Eſau was called Edom, and Gideon Jerubbaal. God himſelfe in favour changed the names of Abram, Sarai, and Jacob; and our Saviour did ſo to Simon, and to the ſons of Zebedee, Mar. 3. 16, 17.

Beltesbazzar] After the name of his God, Chap. 4. 8. ſignifying, Bel keepeth treaſure, or keeping Bels treaſures: but Chap. 10. 1. the name is altered by diſplacing onely a letter, and ſo making the name to ſignifie, He braſt out a fire upon the enemy; even the Chaldean. It differeth ſomewhat from the name of King Belſhazzar, Chap 5. 1.

V. 8. Daniel] Being followed herein by his three companions, as appears.

Purpoſed] Such was his conſtancy, in piety, and reſolution against ſin, Heb. 12. 4. Act. 11. 23.

defile himſelfe with the portion of the Kings meat] The Babylonians did eat many things forbidden to the Jews, Lev. 11. Deut. 14. and meats allowed, as wine here, yet became impure to the Jewes in certain caſes. And that caſe ſpoken of, 1 Cor. 8. 1, 4. (whereof ſee more, Act. 15. 20. Rom. 14. 1, &c. 1 Cor. 10. 25, 27, 28, 29.) ſeems to be in practice amongſt the Babylonians, Dan. 5. 4. Daniel bringeth this in, not ſo much to ſhew his ſobriety, temperance, and abſtinence, from meats; as to ſhew how God, from the beginning, aſſiſted him with his Spirit, and at length called him to be a Prophet.

he requeſted] In his own and his companions names, verſ. 10. He did it, preſently without delay, and humbly, and modeſtly, for providing for the ſafety of his conſcience, and theirs.

V. 9. Favour] Heb. gave Daniel into favour. The effect of Solomon's prayer, 1 King. 8. 50. God made the Prince of the Eunuches to ſhew him favour and mercy, by granting him what he required, in that manner as is after ſet down: Otherwiſe he might have taken occaſion hereby of diſpleaſure, and anger at Daniel, as deſpiſing this the Kings bounty, and condemning his meats as unclean. See Gen. 39. 4, 21. Pſal. 106. 46. Prov. 16. 7.

V. 10. I fear my Lord the King] He ſuppoſed that they did this for their Religion, which was contrary to the Babylonians; yet herein he would bear with them, if they could free him of this fear.

worſe] Heb. ſadder, Gen. 40. 9. Prov. 17. 22.

your ſort] Or, term, or, continuance, verſ. 5, 6. or of your age and condition.

endanger my head] My life, through his juſt wrath, upon my diſobedience, and unfaithfulneſſe.

V. 11. Melzar] Or, the ſteward. It ſeemeth, it may be ſome name of office, as governour of the pages. Daniel differring a willingneſſe of connivance in the Prince of the Eunuches, ſo he might be ſaved harmleſſe in his fear; now he add reſſeth himſelf to this under-officer. Thus wiſely and diligently he uſeth all lawful means, and conſtantly wades through all difficulties, for the keeping of his conſcience cleer, and undefiled.

ten dayes] Meaning that within this ſpace he might have the trial: and this he ſpake, being moved by the Spirit of God, in confidence of his bleſſing upon them.

pulſe] Heb. of puſſe; Not that it was a thing abominable to eat dainty meats, and to drink wine, as before, and after, they did, Dan. 3. So it were according to the rules of their Levitical Law. But if they ſhould have been thereby won to the King, and have refuſed their own Religion, breaking the Levitical laws for meats, Lev. 11. Deut. 14. that meat & drink then had been accurſed. Pulſe and water, here mentioned; that the officer might ſee their confidence the more, and have the clearer tryal, and better proof and experience of their ſaying, and the thing it ſelf.

to eat] Heb. that we may eat, &c.

V. 13. and as thou ſeeſt] The motion fair, and not without the officers profit, and grounded upon a comfortable aſſurance of Gods bleſſing.

V. 15. Their countenances appeared faiver] Not lean; but the more freſh and fair. Their bare feeding, and that alſo of Moſes, when he fled from the Court of Egypt, declareth that we muſt live in ſuch ſobriety, as God doth call us unto; ſeeing he will make it more profitableunto us, then all dainties for his bleſſing onely ſuſtaineth, Deut. 23. 25. Deut. 8. 3. Mat. 4. 4.

V. 16. thus Melzar] It ſuiteth with his profit: He took the Kings daily proviſion to himſelf, and his own family.

V. 17. in all learning and wiſdome] Meaning in liberal Sciences, and natural knowledge; and not in the magical arts, which are forbidden, Deut. 18. 10, 11.

Daniel had underſtanding] Or, He made Daniel underſtand; God did it. He the Author of learning and wiſdome, Jam. 1. 5, 17. John 3. 27.

Nor in common and ordinary idle dreams; wherein, Eccl. 5. 3, 7. or lying dreams, Jer. 23. 25, 27. But in ſuch viſions and dreams, as were extraordinarily ſent of God, fore-telling things to come; as thoſe to Pharaoh, Gen. 41. and to Nebuchadnezzar, Dan. 2. Or ſuch, whereby he revealed his will to his Prophets, Numb. 12. 6. And this gift of underſtanding was not in him, by way of habit, conſtantly abiding, as appears, Chap. 2. nor was the like in Elizæus, as appears, 2 King. 3. 15. & 4. 27. But by way of infuſion; upon ſome ſpecial occaſions, and for ſome ſpecial uſes, as God pleaſed. However, by this it appears, that Daniel was a Prophet, and none of the other three; for by dreams and viſions, God appeared to his Prophets, as we ſaid, 2 Chron. 26. 5, Dan. 10. 1. And herein his Book excelleth; declaring the coming up of idolatry, chaſtiſement, and fall of the Babylonians, Medes and Perſians, Greeks, whole, and parted; and how Chriſt defendeth the holy Jews, until the redemption. Dreams alſo ſeem here to have reference to thoſe, Chap. 2. 1. and Chap. 4. verſ. 5.

That is, he was eſteemed in Babylon, as a Prophet, in dignity and honour, as long as the Empire of Babylon flood, and afterward alſo: and yet Belſhazzar, in his laſt year, ſeems ignorant of him, Chap. 5. 13. with this firſt of Cyrus, the ſeventy years of captivity ended: Thus, Nebuchadnezzar, fourty five, almoſt, reigning with his Father, and alone; compare Jerem. 25. 1. with 2 King. 25. 27. Evilmerodach, two years, Nerigliſſorus, four years, Laborſoarchodus, nine moneths; Belſhazzar, 17 years; Darius Medus, one year. See Jer. 27. 7.

CHAP. II.

Verſ. 1. And in the ſecond yeare of the reign of Nebuchadnezzar] Heb. and in the ſecond yeare in the reign of Nebuchadnezzar. And this ſeems to ſuit better with the truth of the ſacred Hiſtory. For this Dream and Expoſition, was not in the ſecond year of Nebuchadnezzars reign, and Daniels captivity. The things ſet down towards the end of the former Chapter, make againſt that; neither doth any thing force us to underſtand them by way of anticipation. And much leſſe was it in the ſecond year of his Monarchy; which for this cauſe, ſome would have to begin many years after, upon his conqueſt over the Ammonites, Moabites, and Egyptians. And leaſt of all was it, in the ſecond year of his Succeſſor, and ſon of the ſame name; as divers forged heathen Hiſtorians frame the catalogue of the Babyloniſh kings. But rather, this fell out in the ſecond year, after the three years were expired, wherein Daniel and his companions, had been trained up, as is expreſſed, Chap. 1. verſ. 5. 18. And this was the fifth year of Nebuchadnezzars reign, and Daniels captivity, and in the ninth of Jehojakim. In the ſecond year then after Daniels Coronation, as it were, with wiſdome, Chap. 1. 19, 20. was this dream, by Daniel, recalled to the kings memory, and expounded. And this was ſome ſix or ſeven years, before Ezekiel began to propheſie, Ezek. 2. ver. 2, 3. As Joſeph in the ſecond year, after his skill in dreams, expounded Pharaoh's, compare Gen. 40. 23. with 41. 1, God ſo diſpoſing the times alike; the Magicians alike; and ſo guiding, and advancing Joſeph and Daniel alike. See Annotations on Chap. 2. 13. Nebuchad-

Nebuchadnezzar dreamed] And thus God hath vouchſafed dreams, ſometimes to Heathen and Idolaters, for the good benefit of his own ſervants; as to Pharaoh, Abimilech, and Laban, Gen. 11. and 20. and 31. This Dream was about the yeare of the world, 3404.

dreams] Not that he had many dreams, but that many matters were contained in this one dream; becauſe in that one image and which he ſaw, there were divers metals, which were types, and repreſentations of divers Monarchies, one ſucceeding another.

was troubled] Verſ. 3. See Pſal. 77. 3. Becauſe it was ſo rare and ſtrange a dream; even while his ſleep was yet on him, was he troubled. See Gen. 40. 6.

brake from him] Or, fled from him, that he could ſleep no more, by reaſon of the diſquietneſſe of his ſpirit.

V. 2. Magicians] Chap. 5. 7. Gen. 41. 8. Ezek. 21. 21. More names of ſeveral ſorts follow, of men of curious arts, in themſelves unlawful and diveliſh; and not eaſily, with certainty now diſtinguiſhable. See the many books of like Artſmens, Act. 19. 19. Such were thoſe in Egypt, Exod. 7. 11. whereof James and Jambres were chief, 2 Tim. 3. 8, Such as Simon, Act. 8. 9, 10, 11. Bar-jeſus or Elymas, Act. 13. 6, 8. See 2 Chron. 33. 6. ſuch are forbidden, Deut. 18. 10, 11, 12.

Chaldeans] Or, divineers. This Nation of all others was given to ſuch like arts and ſtudies: and all theſe aſtrologers, and ſorcerers called themſelves, by this name of honour, and from the name of this Countrey; as though all wiſdome and knowledge of the Countrey depended upon them; and that all other Countreys were void of the ſame, verſ. 4, 5, 10.

V. 4. In Syriack] Or the Babylonian tongue. So Eſay 36. 11. yet now the Syriack and Chaldee tongue do much differ, and did in the days of our Saviour, who uſed the Syriack tongue, as the Jewes did in his time. This appears by many Syriack words in the New Teſtament, which yet are called Hebrew, becauſe that was the ancient and mother language, and the Syriack but a corruption of it. See Joh. 5. 2. & 19. 13, 17, 20. Apoc. 9. 11. & 16. 16. Act. 21. 40. & 22. 2. Syria ſometimes comprehended Babylon in it, Mela. 6. 1. c. 11. Pliny 6. 5. c. 12. Hitherto Daniel writ in the Hebrew tongue. Now he begins in the Syriack or Chaldee tongue; and ſo continues while the viſions are congenial, and cauſe the Jews no danger: and this is to the eighth Chapter, uſing the Chaldee, which then was beſt known, and general over the Eaſt; But when the Oppreſſours are named, and the Jewes are plainly deſcribed the people whom God defendeth; then the eighth Chapter and all after, he writeth again in Hebrew, and hath a commandement to keep cloſe the plain expoſition, in Chap. 12. 4. The Additions to Daniel, which the Trent Council hath made Canonical, brings in a third language, as written originally in the Greek tongue.

O King] Chap. 3. 9. & 5. 10. and 6. 6. a ſpeech of affection, and of honour Natural, and Civil, uſed alſo by the people of God, chap. 6. 21. 1 King. 1. 31. Neh. 2. 3.

live for ever] For ever, both in Hebrew and Chaldee, ſignifies often a long time onely; as Exod. 21. 6. Gen. 13. 15. Pſal. 89. 1. See Annotations on Exod. 12. 24. Here they expreſſe our wiſh at full; and deſire his longeſt life; yet cannot mean his everlaſting life in this world. Neither may we exclude them from thoughes of wiſhing him an everlaſting happy life after this. So many Heathens, ſpecially of greateſt fame for learning and wiſdome, having ſome ſmeath of the immortality of the ſoul, and of an everlaſting life in joy, or pains, after this life ended:

and we wiſh ſhrew] It was more then they could do, Chap. 4. 7. and 2. 27. Gen. 41. 8. But they promiſe this, to gain the time, &c. as the King talek, verſ. 8.

V. 5. the thing is gone from me] The Chaldee ſignifies both word and thing; as likewiſe the Hebrew doth. From me, not without Gods ſpecial providence; minding thereby the honour and advancement of Daniel, for the good of his Church and people in their captivity.

ye ſhall be] This, though cruel and unjuſt in it ſelf, as they truly plead, verſ. 10, 11. yet is a juſt reward of their arrogancy which vaunted of themſelves, that they had the knowledge of all things, that they ſhould be proved fools, and that to their perpetual ſhame and confuſion.

cut in pieces] Chap. 3. 29. Chaldee made pieces.

and your houſes ſhall be made a dunghil] Ezra 6. 11.

V. 6. Rewards] Or, fee, Chap. 5. 17. The word properly ſignifieth a very great reward; ſuch as prodigals, who make no account of their wealth, uſe to give.

therefore ſhew me the dreame] So again, ver. 9. ſtill preſſing them to this point, and that tyrannically.

V. 7. Againe] Ver. 4.

V. 8. would gain the time] Chaldee, buy. See, Epheſ. 5. 16. men in danger will give any thing to gain time, for their own advantage; to delay, and prolong it, in hope to find out ſome occaſion to eſcape, in the mean time. So here, in hope that the King might yet rub up his memory, and better remember his dreame, or turning his thoughts ſome other way; might as well forget his decree, as his dreame; or at leaſt, that in time his anger might aſſwage, and he mitigate, if not revoke, that raſh judgement, and bloudy Decree.

V. 9. one decree for you] That is, my ſentence ſhall ſtand firm, and be brought to effect, Eſth. 4. 11. One Law, once paſt, as Pſalm 89. 35. and never to be revoked; nor ſecond to be made, 1 Sam. 16. 8. had been the more tyrannical cruelty in the King; had not they brag'd as much of their magical profeſſion: though their profeſſion in general deſerved death by the Law of God, Lev. 20. 27. Deut. 18. 10, 11.

for ye have prepared lying and corrupt words to ſpeak before me] I know that you, becauſe you cannot tell me my dream, have prepared your ſelves to give me a falſe interpretation, accomodated to the preſent time, and pleaſing in the event.

and I ſhall know] By your telling the Dream that is paſt, I ſhall know your skill and ability to tell the Interpretation thereof, though it be in fore-telling things to come. And ſurely, if you can know the future, much more ſhould you know that which is paſt.

V. 11. a rare thing] Chald. precious. For precious things are rare.

whoſe dwelling is not with fleſh] That are pure ſpirits, free from all mixture and infirmity of the fleſh, have no converſation, nor ordinary communication with men, whoſe ſouls lodge in bodies, and are tied to ſenſes: hence it comes to paſſe, that that Divine light they receive, is very ſmall, and alſo depends wholly on the good pleaſure of God. Thus they acknowledge a Deity, and Gods Omniſcience; and that proper to him: as what man doth not all this? Though they erre in the point of more gods then one. And thus they make way to Daniels honour, and favour and intereſt in the true God.

V. 12. for this cauſe] The more alſo for their laſt anſwer, ver. 10, 11. whereby they charged the King with tyranny, requiring of them things never heard of, and ſurpaſſing the reach of all Humane Nature.

very furious] Prov. 27. 4, and 21, 24. and 19. 12. and 16. 14. and 20. 2. This, as it is dangerous in the perſon of a King, ſo it much unbeſeemeth him, Eccl. 7. 9. Prov. 14. 17. and 16. 32. See Mat. 21. 5. Prov. 20. 28. Eſay 16. 5.

V. 13. And the decree went forth] The King pronounced it, and he cauſed it to be proclaimed, a decree written in blood, Eſay 10. 1.

that the wiſe men ſhould be ſlain] Thoſe that were there preſent: or elſe, all the wiſe men were to be ſlain. The King deeming and dooming them as impoſtors; and continuing in his rage, through his deſpair of knowing his dream, and the interpretation of it.

And they ſought Daniel] Abſent belike at that time, or fleighted as being novices; and the others old and experienced Magicians; or kept off, by reaſon of their envy toward them, Prov. 27. 4. This envy threw Daniel afterwards into the den of Lions. However, this ſhewes that theſe things fell out after the three years of their training up, Chap. 1. 5. and that Daniel and his fellows were not with the reſt before the king, verſ. 2. as not affecting to be of that number, nor meddling with ſuch arts, nor coveting ſuch rewards, and honours, verſ. 16.

V. 14. anſwered with counſel] Chald. returned: or, reſtored counſel and wiſdome; to wit, why the decree for killing all the Sages ſhould be ſtayed.

to Arioch] Gen. 37. 36. and 40. 3. 2 King. 25. 8. Haply being a ſtranger, he had not attained to a free acceſſe to the King. But neceſſity drives him to it, ver. 16.

captain of the Kings guard] Or, chief Maiſhal. Chald. chief of the executioners, or ſlaughter-men; as Gen. 37. 36.

V. 15. Why haſty?] Why may it not be deferred, if hope may be given of ſatisfying the Kings mind about his Dream?

Then Arioch made] Daniel ſo not hearing of it before. See Annotations on verſ. 13. Arioch alſo haply made the motion of Daniels going to the King about it: which Daniel puts in execution in the next verſe.

V. 16. give him time] Not to ſtudy or mediate by diſcourſe of reaſon, or by help of books, or rules of art, nor to deliberate; but to call upon God with fervour and perſeverance: for in God he placed all his hope and help. Neither doth the King deny this ſpace of time to Daniel, upon the hope he had in his promiſe; though he would not uſe delay with the Magicians, who put him in deſpair, ver. 8.

V. 17. his houſe] In Babylon, where it ſeems he remained during the times of the Babylonian Monarchs, Chap. 1. 21. And his houſe likely not far from the Kings palace, if this may ſtand with his ignorance of the Kings Decree, ver. 15. However, his houſe was the fitteſt place for his purpoſe of Prayer.

known to Hananiah] For their help in prayer; and ſo he acknowledgeth, and owns them in the buſineſſe, verſ. 23. & 36.

V. 18. Deſire mercies] Prayer to God is the means of deliverance in greateſt dangers.

of the God] Chald. from before God, or, the face of God; as ver. 15. from before the face of the King.

that Daniel] Or, that they should not destroy Daniel, &c. This was the immediate end which they aymed at.

V. 19. in a night vision] Whether to him sleeping, or waking, it is uncertain. As also the particular manner how it was revealed: and whether the next night after, or some other short time; for the Kings hasty wrath would admit no long delay.

blessed the God of Heaven] Did give thanks, and praise to him. God in another sense doth blesse us. And we in another sense do blesse others, Gen.24.60. Josh.22.6.

V. 20. blessed be the name of God for ever and ever] Psal.113.2. and 115.18.

for wisdome and might are his] Job.12.13,16. Prov.2.6. Jam.1.5. 1 King.3.9. See vers.23. of this Chapter. Daniel did see this, in that God in Wisdome did foresee, and in his might was able to effect this wondrous change of Empires, as this Vision did foreshew.

V. 21. and he changeth the times] This seemeth to have special regard to the revolutions of States and Empires, and to the mutations of the affaires of the world; which was the subject of the Kings Dream.

he removeth Kings] Job 12.18. Gen.14.

he giveth wisdome] This hath reference to the gift given to Daniel.

V. 22. he revealeth deep and secret things] As now to Daniel; and so to Joseph, Gen.37. & Chap.41. Job.12.22.

and the light dwelleth with him] He sheweth that man hath neither wisdome nor knowledge, but very dark blindnesse and ignorance of himself: for it cometh only of God, that man understandeth any thing: He is Light, and dwelleth in Light, 1 Joh.1.5. 1 Tim.6.16. Psal.139.12.

V. 23. I thank thee] So Mat.11.25.

O thou God of my Fathers] To whom thou madest thy promise, and who lived in thy fear; whereby he excludeth all other gods: and fastens his Faith upon Gods free and gracious Covenant, as the Ground of this mercy, and his thanksgivings, not pretending to any worth of his own.

wisdome and might] Valour and great nesse of minde in actions; and Wisdome in Counsel, and in understanding of affaires, and skill to interpret the Dream.

we desired of thee] That is, he and his companions, vers.17,18. See the benefit of conjoynt prayers; and the Modesty of Gods servants, who attribute the good things they receive from God, to other mens prayers, as well as to their own.

made known to us] Amos 3 7. Gen.18.17. and 6.13. Psal.25.14. Joh.15.15.

V. 24. unto Arioch] Not straight to the King; so full was he of modesty and humility; and so free from pride and arrogancy: and haply to stop him from present execution.

to destroy] So 1 King.2.25,29. 1 Sam.22.17,18. Souldiers, and chief Commanders used in such cases.

Destroy not the wise-men] See the mercy of Gods servants; Daniel sues to save the life of the Wise men: not that he favoured their wicked profession; but in that he had a respect to equity and mercy: because the King proceeded according to his wicked affection and fury; and not considering at all, if their Science were lawful or no.

V. 25. Then Arioch &c.] Doubts nothing of Daniels truth, honesty and wisdome; but hasts to bring Daniel, and this welcome message to the King, the more to ingratiate himself into his favour: And herein ascribes to him more then truth was, as Courtiers use to do. For he fought not Daniel, unlesse it were to slay him, vers.13. nor found him; for Daniel offered himself unto him, vers.24.

I have found] Chald. that I have found. It seems then that Daniel was but yet a Novice; as yet of no such Name and Fame, as afterwards. This was his first rising; this being but the second year after his three yeares of Education ended.

Captives of Judah] Chald. Children of the Captivity of Judah.

V. 26. The King answered] That is, spake. For in the Chaldee, and Hebrew, and Greek also the word translated, answered, is very often used, when no question before is asked. So Job 3.2. Mat. 22.1. and 11.25. and 17.4. Luk.14.3.

art thou able ?] Though he found him ten times better then the Astrologers, Chap.1.20. yet, either that hath reference to future times; or, in the throng of his mighty affaires, and sudden trouble of his spirit at this Dream, he did not recolle& himself to think upon Daniel: as neither Belshazzar did, Chap.5.10,11.

V. 27. the secret] Is a divine Revelation; no Natural Dream. And therefore not within the power of man, to reveal, or interpret.

cannot the wise-men] No more then they could read the Writing, Chap.5.7,8. nor those Magicians in Egypt could do those miracles, Exod.8.18,19. and Chap.9. and 10. Daniel first sheweth the insufficiency of the Wise-men, before he sheweth Gods power.

V. 28. but there is a God in Heaven that revealeth] He sheweth, that Man by reason and art is not able to attain to Gods Secrets; nor Sorcerers by the help of their false gods: but the understanding only thereof must come of the true God. Whereby he smiteth the King with a certain fear and reverence of the only true God, of his Wisdome, and Power; to draw him from his false gods, that could not help his Sorcerers in this their danger. And that he might be the more apt to receive the high mysteries that should be revealed to him. See Gen.40.8. and 41.16.

maketh known] Chald. hath made known.

in the latter dayes] Or, in the end of dayes; as Gen.49.1. Esay. 2.2. Micah.4.1. & &c.2.17. that is, in time to come, after thee, even to the Messiah; as is declared, vers.29,45. See Jer.23.20. Ezek.38.8.

are these] Of that same argument as thy thoughts were before thy Dream, vers.29,30.

V. 29. Thy thoughts] Daniel from God tels him, not only his Dream; But more also, even his waking thoughts before his Dream.

came into] Chald. came up. God sometime satisfieth the curious desires of great men for the good of his Church.

V. 30. for any wisdome that I have] He arrogates nothing to himselfe; But honours the King, in that for his sake God vouchsafes both the Dream, and Interpretation: to insinuate the more into the Kings heart, a mind and affection to the true God. So before, vers.19.

but for their sakes] Meaning for the Jews sake also, and all the Church (which Nebuchadnezzar had then in his Dominions, and power) was granted to Daniel, the revelation both of the Dream, and the Interpretation: or simply, for the sake that it might be made known to the King; for the word their is not in the Original.

The thoughts of thy heart vers.29

V. 31. sawest] Chald. wast seeing; in a Dream, vers.1.2.

a great Image] Hieroglyphically representing the various changes of Kingly governments in the World, till the coming of Christ; which was from this time above six hundred years.

whose brightnesse] See Chap.4.36.

terrible] Not so much to affright, as to astonish with admiration; as Luk.7.16. & 1.65. Mat.9.8. or as in the first verse of this Chapter.

V. 33. part of Iron, and part of clay] Some parts of them of the one, and some parts of them of the other; and not the whole feet, composed of a matter arising from a commixtion of Iron and clay. See vers.42.

V. 34. was cut out without hands] See vers.45. without art or industry; without Engines and humane helps. See Esay.45.9.

V. 35. like the chaffe] Such is the glory of all humane kingdomes, of worldly men, and of all earthly felicity, Eccl.1.2. Psal. 37.35,36. Job.20.6.——8. Psal.39.5. Such use Nebuchadnezzar should have made of this Vision.

no place was found] As Psal.37.10,36. & 103.16.

became a great mountain] Grew by degrees to a great mountain after it smote the Image.

and filled the whole earth] Exceeded all the other Empires.

V. 36. This is the dream] He appeals, as it were, to the Kings conscience for the truth hereof in all particulars. And therefore that he cannot doubt of the truth of the future interpretation.

we will tell] Joynes his Companions with him in his modesty, and humility; and because of the help of their prayers: though the revelation was vouchsafed to him alone, vers.19.

V. 37. Thou O King] And his successors in the Empire, Jer.27. 6,7. Ezek.26.7. the Babylonian alone: not the Assyrian: much lesse must it be fetched so high, as from Nimrod, Gen.10 9,10.

a King of Kings] Ezra.7.12. as Deut.10.17. and as Gen.9.25. as Cant.1.1. and as the Oracle was called fanfan fanfanorum, the most holy place. Nebuchadnezzar had many Kings feodary and tributary unto him, and under him: and Captives with him in Babylon, 2 King.25.28.

hath given thee] And would do more: as this Dream shews: for this was but in the fifth year of his reign. See Annotations on vers.1. Chap.4.25. & 5.21. Ezra 1.2. This Donation of God should have prevented that pride of his spirit, Chap.4.30. & Esay.14.12, 13. which was like that of the Assyrian, Esay.10.8—— 16.

V. 38. And wheresoever] In all thy large Empire, Chap.4. 12.21,22.

thou art this head of Gold] He understandeth not only the person of Nebuchadnezzar, but the Chaldean Empire: called a head, because it was the first of these 4 Monarchies. For the Assyrian Empire was past and extinct. And Nebuchadnezzar desired only to know what should be after him, vers.29,30. And of gold, it is said to be in regard of its glory, riches, splendour, and magnificence in all greatnesse, Esay.13.19. & 14.11,12,13. Babylon is called the golden City, Esay 14,4. and monstrous was that Colossus of gold, made by the King, Chap.3.1. It is likened to a Lion, Chap.7.4

V. 39. arise another kingdome] That of the Persians, and the Medes, begun by Cyrus the Persian, and Darius the Mede, Chap. 4.30, 6.28. & 9.1,2. This is figured by the breast and arms of silver, vers.32. and by the bear, chap.7.5. and by the ram with two horns, Chap.8.3. and that in regard of the conjunction of both these Nations in one Empire. See, Esay 21.2. This though rich and splendid, yet not like that of the Babylonians, Dan.7.5. and 8.3. & 11.2. and they worse touching ambition, cruelty, and all kind of vice; shewing that the world should grow worse and worse, till it was restored by Christ.

Inferiour to thee] In peace, prosperity, and glory; not in length of duration, or extent of dominion, Paulus Orosius book 3. Chap.8,&c.

third Kingdome of brasse] That which Alexander got by overcoming Darius Codomanus; represented by the Belly and Thighes of brasse, vers.32. And by the third Beast, the Leopard, Chap.7.6. And also by the he-Goat, Chap.8.5. But with this difference, That in that representation of the he-Goat, Chap.8.21 The whole Empire of Alexander the Great, and all his Successors also in the Grecian Empire are understood, as the Text in that Chapter cleares it. But here onely, and Chap. 7.6. the Empire in Alexanders own person, and the power of Greeks with him, is understood: and all his Successors in that Grecian Empire, are made the fourth Kingdome here, represented by the Legs of Iron, and feet part of Iron, and part of clay, vers.33,40,41,42,43. and are also made the fourth Beast, Chap. 7.7,8. See Chap 11.3, &c. Alexanders Kingdome here is said to be of brasse; Because he did nothing else but devoure by force of armes, which were anciently made of brasse tempered: alluding also herein to the state of this Kingdome, that it was worse then the former; as brasse is worse then silver. And it continued but for a very small time; only six years in Alexanders person after the conquest of Darius.

rule over all the earth] Over a great part thereof, so that he shall obtain the greatest Empire of the world; called universal, by popular speech, Dan.8.5. Luk.2.1. So did Alexander the Great with the whole power of Greek States, which made him their King for the Persian War. Of the largeneſſe of his Empire, we may read Plin.lib.4.cap.10 Justin.lib.12. Q Curtius,l.10.

V. 40. The fourth Kingdome shall be strong as Iron] Signified by the fourth beast, Chap.7.7,8. So understood of the Greeians joyntly. By the two legs, and feet, part of Iron, and part of clay, vers.33. is understood by some, the Roman Empire; and that before Christ second coming, divided into the West and East Empire; the Latine and Greek Empire, the German and Constantinopolitane; whose armes are the spread Eagle with two heads. Some apply it to the State of the Roman Empire before Christs birth. Both meet with such difficulties and impossibilities herein, as make them various, inconsistent, and unfound in their assertions: and the truth is, That the taking in the Romanes here, is an errour hurtful to Daniels book, and to all Christianity, and other Stories, being inconsistent with them; and hath no colour of truth from Daniel. But the contrary; as appears, vers.34,35. and vers.44,45. See the Annotations; and Chap.11. Some here will go so far as to have Antichrist included. But all that can be true therein is, that what things are spoken here, and Chap.7.7,8. and 11.21,38,30,31,32,36——38. may be by way of analogy or Type referred to Antichrist. An possibly in regard of a like revolution of things happening, St. Paul to the Thessalonians, and St. John in the Revelation, may allude hereunto. As that of Gog and Magog, Revel.20.8. doth to that in Ezek.38. & 39. Chapters. We conceive, that in the first and proper sense, The Successors of Alexander the Great are here understood the Seleucidæ, and Lagidæ, reigning in Syria, and Egypt; who more sharply oppressed the Church then all others; insomuch, that they have gone about to do violence to the conscience, Ch. 7.7,8, & 8,9,10,24. & 11.4,5,31. And this Kingdom is called of Iron, a base metal, but very hard; a metal for war. And indeed this Kingdom was cruel, and tyrannical, and bloody, specially to Gods people, the Jews. See Chap.11. and the books of Maccabees. The condition of it is further described to be very variable; somewhile powerful, and other-while very weak; a quality very agreeable to these two Kingdomes of the Seleucidæ, and Lagidæ, Alexanders Successors, in regard of their originals, Acts, and events.

And bruise] Whom? even the Jews Nation: but the wise Daniel hideth that, which would cause them to be more hated of the heathen. Confer with these words, Chap.7.7,8,23. and 8.24. and 11,22, &c.

V. 41. the feet and toes] Insists more largely in this, and the two verses following, upon that in the 33 verse; as the thing most concerning the Jews, and their calamities by these oppressours; that so they might be foretold of them, and strengthened against them.

the Kingdome shall be divided] Into the Seleucidæ that held Syria, and the Lagidæ that reigned in Egypt; called the Kings of the North, and of the South, Chap.11.5,6. and they had continual Wars and discords among themselves.

V. 42. the toes] The provinces and principalities annexed to these two Kingdoms.

part of Iron] He hath regard to the variety of the state of the two Kingdoms, and their annexed provinces and principalities, often raised up, and powerful; and often abased, and depressed one by the other; and afterwards by the Maccabeans. See Ezek.38. 21, &c. and in the end by the Romans.

partly strong] In relation to Judah, in dealing against them. So unto Antiochus Epiphanes; or somewhat farther, ver.40.

broken] Or, brittle.

V. 43. with the seed of men] Those Kings of Syria and Egypt shall contract affinity, by giving one another their daughters in marriage: for Ptolomy Philadelphus gave his Daughter Bernice to Antiochus Theos. Antiochus the Great, gave his Daughter Cleopatra to Ptolomy, Epiphanes; &c. Chap.11.6,17. 1 Mac.10.51. and 11.9. whereby notwithstanding they cannot be joyned in heart, and make a firme and constant union.

not cleer one to another] Chald. this with this. Marriages made for bad, or by-ends, seldome or never thrive.

V. 44. and in the dayes of these Kings] Chald. their dayes; or, after the dayes of those Kings and kingdomes. So Job.27.15. those that remain of him shall be buried in death; that is, after death: In the dayes of those last Kings; when the Kingdomes of the Seleucidæ, and the Ptolomies are fallen: or about the end of those Kingdomes of Syria and Egypt. He interprets that, vers.34,35.

a Kingdome] Spiritual and heavenly, of the Messiah manifested in the flesh, Chap.7.13,14,27. John the Baptist looked to this; and our Lord also, saying, The Kingdome of heaven is come: and so did St. Paul, 1 Tim.1.17.

which shall never be destroyed] Chap.4.3,34. & 6.26. & 7.14,27. Mic.4.7. Luk.1.33. Esay 9.7. Psal.145.13. His purpose is to shew, that all the Kingdomes of the world are transitory; and that the Kingdome of Christ shall only remain for ever.

kingdome] Chald. kingdome thereof.

shall not be left] As the former kingdomes, and Monarchies were the Chaldean to the Persian; and the Persian to the Grecian: But shall ever remain and abide in Christ: so Militant here; as the gates of hell shall not prevail against it; and after for ever triumphant in heaven.

break in pieces] For that the Son of God, Soveraign King of the world, is he that at all times hath destroyed all Empires, and powers contrary to his, Psal.2.9. Isa.60.12, &c. Zach.11.8. 2 Cor.10. 5,6. who having made an end of subverting these four Monarchies, in their several times, with the ruine of these last Kingdomes of Syria and Egypt, in the beginning and rising of the Roman Monarchy, hath establisht his Universall Kingdome, though amongst his greatest enemies. The Empire of the Romans then cannot be understood and comprehended in these Kingdomes. It being not broken to pieces, so that no place was found for it, by this stone, when it came, but rather begun then, or most flourishing, and still remaining, in some degree, to this day.

V. 45. Stone] Psal.118.22,23. Mat.21.42. 1 Pet.2.4, &c. Esay 28.16. Act.4.11. Zach.3.9.

was cut out of the mountain] Meaning Christ, who was born indeed of the Virgin Mary, but sent of God from the Mount of heaven. See Esay 51.1,2.

and it shall stand for ever] This Kingdome of Christ, at the beginning should be small, and without beauty to mans judgment, base: then all those former Meetals; and should be set up and carried on by poor and base means, in mans eyes, by the foolishnesse of preaching; but yet should at length grow (by the only power of God, without force and humane art) to a great Mountain, ver.35. and fill the whole earth, Esay 49.23. & 60.12. And this Kingdome which is not onely referred to the Person of Christ, but also in its degree, to the whole body of his Church, and to every member thereof, shall be eternal: for the Spirit that is in them is life eternal, Rom.8.10. See 2 Cor.13.12. Ephes.1.23.

without hands] Or, which was not in hand. Things wrought without means do effect wonders: so doth Christ, brought into the world, by the work and power of God, set up his kingdom. For the stone is the power of Christ, or Christ that chief corner stone, weak and base in mens eyes; but a stone of stumbling, and rock of offence, able to break in pieces all oppoſites, vers.34,35. Isai. 8.14,15. And Christ did not, by any humane arc and authority, enter upon his Kingdom, and the administration thereof, but by the sole will of the Father, and operation of the Spirit.

the iron] That image, vers.31,32,33. Wise Daniel again toldeth, first how the last shall be destroyed, and not how Nebuchadnezzars house first should fall. So vers.34,35. So he dealeth in Chap.7.11,12. Mat.1.11. to distinguish him from Nebuchadnezzars false gods

interpretation thereof sure] Not feigned, to flatter the King; as this King discovered the Magicians would have done, ver.9.

V. 46. worshipped Daniel] The power that the opinion of a Deity, hath in, and over the greatest Monarch. He being ignorant of the true God, and his worship; and deeply struck with an admiration at Daniel, and apprehension of some divinity in him, Chap.4. 8,9. & 5,11,14. he was ready, as Idolaters use to be,

Act. 14. 11. & 28. 6. to yield himself, and to command others to offer a divine worship unto Daniel; a worship due indeed, and proper onely to God, though he did not take Daniel to be that true God. But no doubt, Daniel withstood it, and turned the worship unto God; as may be gathered by Daniels piety, Chap. 1. verf. 8. and the Kings answer to Daniel, in the next words. So the Angel refused to be adored of John, bade him worship God, Rev. 22. 9. See Act. 10. 25, 26. & 14. 13, 14, 15. Yet fome Papists here, are willing enough to justifie both Nebuchadnezzars act, in giving this worship to Daniel, and Daniels act in receiving it (for, say they, here is not a word of his refusing it.) And all, thereby to make the better way for the justification of themselves, in the idolatrous worship they give to Saints and Images.

commanded] Chald. said. If a Kings word be a command, then much more is Gods.

offer] As Act. 14. 11. More then Alexander the great did to Jaddua the High Priest: Josephus of the Jewish Antiq. 6. 11.

V. 47. The King answered unto Daniel] Admonishing the King, most likely, of his errour, and telling him of the true God, as formerly, verf. 27, 28, 30, 45.

God is a God of gods] A God, above the gods of his Magicians; the onely true God. This confession was but a sudden motion. And so it was also in Pharaoh, Exod. 9. 27, 28. But his heart was not throughly touched; as appeared soon after-ward.

a revealer of secrets] Esay 41. 22, 23. Psal. 139.

V. 48. made Daniel a great man] So Joseph advanced, Gen. 41. This was about two years before the captivity of Jeconiah: an encouragement for the faithful, to submit to Nebuchadnezzar, and to go willingly to Babylon; their own Nobles being so advanced there. Thus was Mordecai advanced, after in the time of the Persian Monarchy, for the safety and deliverance of the Jewes, Esth. 8. 2.

great gifts] Not that the Prophet was desirous of gifts, or honour, Chap. 5. 17. but because, by this means, he might relieve his poor brethren, which were grievously oppressed, in this their captivity; and also he received them, lest he should offend this cruel King, which willingly gave them; and would be as good as his promise, verf. 6.

chief of the governours] Chap. 4. 9.

V. 49. Daniel requested of the King] He did not this for their private profit, but that the whole Church, which was then there in affliction, might have some release and ease, by this benefit. And hence we see, that men which have the favour of Kings, should prefer good men, whom they know to be such, as Daniel knew these to be, to such places, as they cannot attend to execute themselves.

over the affairs of the Province] His Chambers, and his comings in, and dispatches: and also his affairs abroad in the Provinces.

Daniel sate in the gate of the King] Meaning, that he was a Judge; Judges did use to sit in the Gates for judgement, Deut. 21. 19. Amos 5. 15. that he had the whole authority; so that none could be admitted to the Kings presence, but by him, or him chiefly. For the Chaldean and Persian Kings were stately and curious, in admitting of accesse, Esth. 4. 11. He stirred not from the King, being, as it were, the master of his Palace, and the chief Minister, and Officer of his Empire; of greatest power and familiarity with the King.

CHAP. III.

Verf. 1. Made an Image] This was done, after that, in the former Chapter; as appears, Chap. 2. 49. and the twelfth verse of this Chapter: and likely, about two years after that Dream, in the former Chapter, about the seventh year of Nebuchadnezzars reign, and a little before Jechoniah's captivity; seeing onely the captived with Daniel, are accused here, verf. 8. 12. Any thing in Apocrypha prayer of Azariah, is not of credit to discountenance this. Though it puts the Papists upon a time, long after. The occasion of making this Image, is not like to be with any relation, any manner of way, to that Image which he saw in his dream, in the former Chapter, thorgh some are of this opinion. But rather, it may be, upon the like occasion, to that in the sixth Chap. verf. 1, &c. upon the envy the Chaldeans had against the Jews, for their preferment in the chief offices and honours of the kingdom, to seek an advantage thereby to ruine them; though likewise Nebuchadnezzar might the rather be moved, to yield to such a motion made, as seeking and feeding, therein, his own ambition, and vain glory, under pretence of religion and holinesse, in making, that is, in causing to be made such an Image to his Idol Bel. Pagan stories have many examples of the like Colosses, dedicated to idols. This Image, likely, was the Image of a man: yet we can hardly conceive, with some, that he made this to be dedicated to himself, to be worshipped thereby, as a God; though the pride of his heart, and the vanity of his mind, was very great, and he much fallen from that, Chap. 2. 47. and not much come short of the King of Tyre, Ezek. 28. 2. And if we consider what kinds of gods the Heathen had, & worshipped as such, even such as had been infamously vicious men; as for instance, their Jupiter, or chiefest god; and what numbers they had of them; Hesiod sayes, 30000. Tertullian in Apologetico, speaks of 30. whom they called all Jupiters. We may the lesse marvel, if some famous Monarchs, among the Heathen, such as this Nebuchadnezzar, and Alexander the great, might affect such a deity, if not in their life time, yet an ἀποθεωσιν, after their death; and to have such like honour done to them, as were to those conceived Deities. See Esay 14. 12, 13.

of gold] It is likely it was gold without, and hollow within. A great expence upon this Idol, which might have been bestowed upon better uses. But this hath still been the custome of Idolaters, to spare no gold, to think nothing too costly and dear for their Idols, Hos. 2. 8. & 8. 4. Exod. 32. 2, 3, 4, 31. 1 King. 12. 28. Deut. 7. 25. & 29. 17. Judg. 8. 26, 27. Psalm 115. 4. Esay 46. 6. Jer. 10. 9.

six cubits] Diameter, that is, through the traverse of it, or overcrosse the body, as it is likely. Also besides, there being no proportion of six cubits of breadth, and sixty of height, it is fit to be supposed, that in, and under the number of sixty, is comprehended some great pedestal, upon which the statue stood. Of cubits, see Annotations on Ezek. 40. 5.

Dura] Deeva; Ptolomy in his sixth book of Geography. Set it up in an open champian place, that it might be the better seen and worshipped of all.

V. 2. gather together the Princes] He calleth all sorts, verf. 4. But the great men, and officers, onely, are here named, as best serving, to set forth the honour of this Dedication; and by their example, to draw on others to the same idolatrous worship. Magnates, are magnetes: as in water face answereth to face, Prov. 27. 19. So, for the most part, the mean correspond with the manners of the mighty. The several kinds of Officers, here named, are not now, by us, very certainly distinguishable; as neither the several kinds of instruments, verf. 5, 7, 10, 15. nor the several sorts of attire, Esay, 3. 18.——24. His earnestnesse in superstition, should teach godly Princes, to be forward in setting up true Religion, and promoting it.

to the dedication] Shewing, that the Idol is not known for an Idol, so long as it is with the workman: but when the ceremonies and rites are recited and used, and the consent of the people had, and invocation made, then of a block, or Image, they think they have made a god; or an excellent means, or manner for the worship of their God. And in this point of their dedication, they might likely take some hint, and general notion, from the people of God; among whom, by Gods command, in other cases, dedications were practised, with sacrifices and musick, and sundry ceremonies to that end used, divers dayes; as Numb. 7. 1 King. 8. Ezra 3. & 6. Neh. 12. See Deut. 20. 5. Psal. 30. in the inscription.

the King had set up] This was sufficient with the wicked, to approve their religion, if the Kings authority were alledged for the establishment thereof; not considering in the mean season, what Gods words did permit.

V. 3. Then the Princes] Some of these words following, are rendred as well as our English words, and offices will bear: and the like is done in the instruments of musick, in the 5, 7, 10, 15 verse.

stood] Wondring at such an Image; and with their minds intent to hear, and obey the Kings will, upon the sound of the musick, to worship the Image.

V. 4. aloud] Chald. with might. Many Heraulds, likely, for so great a multitude; and several Heraulds, for several languages.

it is commanded] Chald. they command.

V. 5. ye fall down and worship] The musick sounding, and the the people adoring and praying. Here the falling down, would soon discover who stood up, and see who refused, if any such should be. All this the Devil likes to be done to Images and Idols, which God forbids, Exod. 20. 5. either absolutely, or relatively; mediately, or ultimately, to be done to them. And yet the Devil tempted our Saviour to have done it himself, Mat. 4. 9. But this worship, when it is not civil, but religious, the Saints and Angels of God, do only yield it unto God; as Gen. 22. 5. & 24. 26, 52. Exod. 34. 8. 2 Chron. 20. 18. & 29. 29. Apoc. 4. 10. Psal. 95. 6. And they refused to to have it yielded to themselves, Apoc. 19. 10. & 22. 9. Act. 10. 25, 26. Mat. 4. 10.

V. 6. the same hour] The hot and cruel zeal of Idolaters, in and for their Idolatrous worship, verf. 13. Here is no time of respite, no delay, ver. 15.

V. 7. Therefore at that time] There can be nothing so wickedly commanded, but multitudes will be ready to obey it. Such is the power of a Kings command; and the dread of punishment: and so little are multitudes to be followed in matters of Religion. All the people, nations and languages, that were here gathered, (for all individuals could not be) did fall down, and worship this golden image.

V. 8. wherefore at that time] They greedily took this occasion, which was the thing they sought for, to accuse the Jews: Or, as the Chaldee hath it, They did eate accusations. They did it instantly; having their eyes upon their posture, more then upon the Image, Image, knowing before, that these men detested their Chaldean gods. Therefore as soon as ever the heat of the adoration, and dedication was over, they delay no time, but presently accuse them.

V. 9. O King, live for ever] Chap. 2. 4.

V. 10. Thou, O King] Verf. 4, 5, 6.

V. 12. certain Jews] See Annotations on verf. 1.

Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego] It seemed that they named not Daniel, because he was great in the Kings favour; or upon some just occasion, of sickneslle, or publique affairs, was absent; or from some just occasion, of sickneslle, or publique affairs, was absent; if he did not purposely absent himself; thinking, that if these three had been destroyed, they might have had the better occasion to accuse Daniel after. And this, declareth, that the policy, in erecting this Image, was invented by the malicious flatterers; which fought nothing, but the destruction of the Jews, whom they accused of rebellion and ingratitude.

have not regarded thee] Chald. have set no regard upon thee.

whom thou hast set over] The greater (as they imply) is their rebellion, and ingratitude.

thy gods] Multitude of gods, with the Heathen, through the ignorance of the one true God. Yet the wiseft of the Heathen, constantly avowed, one only true God.

nor worship the golden image] They not so mad, as to think the images to be gods. The King himself, distinguisheth between his gods, and the images of them, verf. 14.

V. 13. in his rage] Much more should we be zealous, for the true worship of the true God.

commanded to bring] It seems they were there, in obedience to the first part of that command, ver. 2. which cleerly included them; though they would not worship; ready there, to shew, and avow their detestation of that idolatry; and to answer any thing in that case, might be laid against them. Or else, surely they were not far off: for this Dedication, likely, lasted certain dayes.

V. 14. true] Or, of purpose; as Exod. 21. 13. He wonders, and scorns they should take upon them, to be wiser in the true Religion, then he: Yet for all his rage, he condemns them not upon hear-say; but brings them to answer for themselves, Act. 25. 16.

V. 15. Now if ye be ready] Signifying, that he would willingly have them to be a good example of obedience to others; and that he would receive them to grace, if they would now, this day, or the next day of the Dedication, at the sound of the musick; (though rather his heat, and the rigour of the decree, verf. 6. promise no such favour, to put it off to another day) obey his decree. The imperfect speech, argueth his heat. Some of the names of the musicall instruments, seem to be derived from the Greek tongue; as if they had first received them from the Grecians; as Cythera, Sambuca, Psalterium, Symphonia.

but if ye worship not] Though they were dear to him, for their own wrath and wisdome, and services they did him, in the affairs of the Province of Babylon; as also for Daniels sake: yet all that should not asswage his wrath, nor cool his zeal, for his idolatrous service.

ye shall be cast] This is the weapon-Persecutors use, against Gods Church and Children.

who is that God that shall deliver you?] A proud speech against God, as Exod. 5. 2. Esay 36. 20. 2 King. 18. 30. He forgets himself, and that confession of his, Chap. 2. 47. See verf. 28.

V. 16. not careful] The matter is such, as needs no time of deliberation, nor answer at all; at least in words, but rather in deeds of constancy and courage on our part, 2 Macc. 7. 2. And God, for his part, will answer for himself, he is able enough to clear his power, against thy proud boast and threat. They should have done injury to God, if they should have doubted in his holy cause; and therefore they say, they fear not the danger, or death threatned; they are resolved to die for Gods cause; and when men have God on their side, they are not troubled to answer before great men. See Matth. 10. 19. Mar. 13. 11. Luk. 12. 11. Acts 4. 19. Rom. 8. 37.

V. 17. is able] They ground on two points; first, on the power and providence of God over them, against his proud brag, verf. 15. And secondly, on their cause, which was Gods glory, and the testifying of his true worship, with their bloud; and so make open confession, that they will not so much as outwardly consent to idolatry.

and he will] Psal. 27. 1. & 118. 6. Micah 7. 7. This was their trust, either upon special instinct, or upon the many examples of Gods like dealing with many of his servants, in like cases, whereof the Scripture is full.

V. 18. But if not] That is, will not. They do not say, He cannot, Matth. 8. 2. God might see it best for them to suffer. And however, though Gods judgements may be sometimes secret, they are always just. And therefore they are resolved, without all care, or cunctation, notwithstanding any danger, not to obey his idolatrous will.

we will not serve thy Gods] Thus the servants of God, will run through any danger, rather then sin against God; Heb. 12. 4. Singular faith, and fortitude, piety and constancy.

V. 19. full] Chald. filled.

form of his visage changed] Passions of the mind, soon appeare in the face, Gen. 4. 5. & 31. 5. Dan. 5. 9. Joel 2. 6 Ezek. 27. 35. Esay 13. 8. Neh. 2. 2. Neither the majesty of his place and person, nor the presence of all his Peers, nor the celebrity of that solemnity, could any way moderate his furious passion.

seven times] Chald. once seven times. It may be exactly so much: Or, a certain number put for an uncertain, to signifie very much more then afore; as Esay 4. 1. Prov. 24. 16. Psal. 12. 6. The apocryphal addition, at the end of Azariah's prayer, relates, that the flame streamed forth, above the Furnace, 49 cubits. Indeed, this would the sooner have dispatched them, and shortned their pain; but the mad King (ira furor brevis est) heeded not that: And the wise God, made it serve, to make the miracle the more marvellous. Idolaters are cruel, when they are crossed; and the more the tyrants rage, and the more witty they shew themselves, in inventing strange and cruel punishments, the more is God glorified by his servants, to whom he giveth patience and constancy, to abide the cruelty of their punishment, and to fleight them and it; knowing, that either he delivereth them from death, or else, for this life giveth them a better.

wont] It seems, this was a usual kind of capital punishment, among the Chaldeans, Jer. 29. 22.

V. 20. most mighty] Chald. mighty of strength.

in his army] Or, guard, then attending him. See Annotations on Chap. 2. 14.

V. 21. In their coats] Chald. mantles. Some translate them Breeches; but these were not much in use with the Jews. Those they had on them, of what kind, and how good or precious soever, for hast, verf. 22. Whereas, others, likely, in case of like punishment, were cast in naked. And Gods providence made use of this, to the increase of the miracle, verf. 27.

hats] Chald. tirbant. The word is neereſt the Greek word, σισάρων.

V. 22. the flame] Chald. spark. Catched hold of them, and burnt them.

slew those men] The fire wanted not its power of burning, but obeyed its Creator, in slaying these, and not hurting the other. It is not good to be instruments of great mens cruelties; for such sometimes fear worse, then either principal authors, or sufferers. We cannot say, that these men were the perswaders of Nebuchadnezzar, to this burning rage and cruelty.

V. 23. fell down bound] But straight were loosed, and walked in the midst of the fire, verf. 25. The bonds burnt; and no smell of fire on them, or their cloths, verf. 27.

V. 24. astonished] As he had cause: and it touched him most, who had cast them in.

rose up] From his Chair of majesty, and throne of installation or inauguration; to go to the furnace.

in haste] As soon as the miracle was discerned; which was presently. And therefore not the next day after. Thus God can make a sudden change in the greatest Monarch. So Chap. 5. verf. 6.

Counsellors] Or, Governours: Not unlikely their Accusers.

three men] And no more: and those bound too.

V. 25. Lo, I see] He was hard by the furnace to see the execution: or now come to it, to see the miracle. And saw now four, and them loose, and walking, and not touched with the fire.

walking] The furnace was great. That long prayer of Azariah; and long song of them all three in the midst of the fire and furnace, are Apocryphal Additions, made Canonical by the Trent Synod of the Roman Church.

they have no hurt] Chald. there is no hurt in them, Psal. 49. 7. and 66. 12. Esay 43. 2. Here the fire said, It is enough, Prov. 30. 15. To ascribe this to their Virginity, or fasting, is without warrant. The Holy Ghost ascribes it to their Faith, Heb 11. 34.

and the form of the fourth is like the Son of God] Or, like a son of the gods; or like some young God; most bright, beautiful, and Divine. Such were the Heathenish Opinions. But the doubtful words in the Heathen Kings speech, have been well taken of the ancient, as they best might mean: And so some understand him hereby to mean an Angel; and so he calls him expressly an Angel of God, ver. 28. And the Angels do bear a form and likenesse of God, and are called in Scripture the Sons of God, Job 1. 6. & 2. 1. & 30. 7. and are Gods Ministers and Messengers, as the word doth signifie, sent by him to do his Will, and deliver his servants; as Act. 12. 7.—— 12. And all this might Nebuchadnezzar hear or learn of Daniel. But whatever Nebuchadnezzar did, we yet may understand this fourth to be, as the words do literally bear, the very true Son of God, our Saviour Christ; who is with his servants in their extremities.

V. 26. mouth] Chald. door. So neer as he might with safety; the fire being now not so raging.

the servants of the most high God] Thus, God convicts the conscience, and doth sometimes miraculously force great men to honour him, and his servants.

come forth] He speaks now, no doubt, submissively; who before spake so proudly, ver. 15. This change was made by the right hand of the most high. And here is their obedience unto God; they would not for any fear depart out of this furnace, till the time appointed; as Noah remained in the ark, till the Lord called him forth.

V. 27. Nor was an hair——nor the smell of fire] The least hurt cannot come to those whom God will preserve, Isa.43.2. Mat.10.30. Act.27.34. 1 Sam. 14. 45.

V. 28 Blessed be the God of Shadrach] He was moved by the greatnesse of the miracle to praise God; but his heart was not yet throughly touched. We see that miracles are not sufficient to convert men to God, Deut.29.3,4. but that doctrine, and the saving grace and power of God, must be adjoyned, without the which there can be no faith, and true conversion. Yet thus for a while again his heart was brought to repent and relent.

who hath sent his Angel] Nebuchadnezzar, no Sadducee, Act. 23. 8. And likely told thus much now by the three Confessors or Martyrs, upon questions and demands by him made unto them.

that trusted in him] Faith quencheth the violence of fire, Heb. 11.34.

and have changed the Kings word] That word, vers. 15. doing contrary to it, and thereby have now changed the Kings mind, in all this businesse.

and yielded their bodies] Mat. 10. 39. Joh.12.25. Luk.14.26.

except their own God] Mat. 4.10. Exod. 20.3. Likely, hereupon other Jewes were not questioned for non-adoration, after this miracle shewn, if the Dedication did hold more dayes after this. Though most of them were too prone to Idolatry, Jer. 16. 13.

V. 29. I make a Decree] Chald. a Decree is made by me. Spoken now; registred after. A better Decree then his other Decrees, chap. 2.9,13. & 3.10. And much more is it lawful, and the duty of Christian Kings, to make Decrees for God and his worship, and against sin and Idolatry.

speak any thing amisse] If this Heathen King, moved by Gods Spirit, would not suffer reproachful speeches against God unpunished, but made a Law, and set a penalty for such transgressors; much more ought all they in authority, that professe Religion, to take order that such impiety reign not; lest according as their knowledge and Charge is greater, so they suffer double punishment.

any thing amisse] Chald. errour. And yet for all this, wicked Jehoiakim at this time would not cease to deale amisse in Judah; untill he was buried as an asse, and had his carkasse made as dung, being cast away unburied, Jer.22.26. & 36. 30.

cut in pieces] Chald. made piecer, Chap.2.5. See Annotations upon it.

No other god that can] Not Bel himself, nor Jupiter Belus.

V. 30. promoted] Chald. made to prosper. He had done so before, Chap.2.49. Now he promoted them more, made them to prosper; or at least restored them to their honours: and forbad all any more to wrong them.

CHAP. IV.

Vers. 1. Nebuchadnezzar the King] This Chapter contains Nebuchadnezzars Proclamation, or Letter, and the Historical Narration of the Occasion of it. And all in such a style, as may seem to be penned by Nebuchadnezzar himself, or at least in his Name; and inserted by Daniel in his book, as is the mournful song or Writing of Hezekiah, by Esay, Chap.38. and the Edict of Cyrus, and the Letters to Artaxerxes, and from Artaxerxes; and likewise to Darius, and from Darius are by Ezra, in his book, 1,4,5,6. Chapters; as also the copy of the Letter of that other Artaxerxes to Ezra, Chap.7. But such as would have this to be a Parable rather then a true History, are no wayes to be endured.

In all the earth] Meaning as far as his Dominion extended.

peace be multiplied] Heathens sending out Proclamations to their people, begin with wishing happinesse to them. So Dan. 6.25. Therefore they have need to see, that nothing be commanded but for their happinesse. The like form of salutation is used by the Apostle, 1 Pet.1.2. & 2 Pet.1.2. and by Jude, vers. 2.

V. 2. To shew the signes] That God which can make the mouths of Children to speak to his praise, Psal. 8. 2. can make Heathens trumpeters of his glory.

V. 3. an everlasting Kingdome] Chald. a Kingdome of eternity. Lasting beyond all time, Chap.2.44. See the Annotations there.

from generation to generation] Chald. with generation and generation: or, with one generation as well as with another: or, to all generations.

V. 4. I Nebuchadnezzar] He had not conquered Egypt, until after the 27 of Jechonias, or his own 34. Ezek. 30. 1. wherefore this Vision should be about his 36 yeare: (and so about 28 or 29 years after that history in the former Chapter; and 30 or 31 years after the dream of the Image, Chap. 2, and falls out to be in the year of the world 3433. or thereabouts) And this proclamation was about a year or two before his death, his reign continuing 45 years. For his madnesse begun 12 moneths after this Vision, ver. 29. And that continued 7 years. At the end whereof he was restored to his Wits, and unto his Kingdome; and then made this proclamation, and so reigned one or two years after.

was at rest in mine house] From all enemies, and fear of such as he had subdued; so that there was no trouble that might cause me to dream. And therefore it came onely of God, who can trouble men in the height of their prosperity, Psal.30.6.

in my palace] In Babylon, ver.29,30. Chap 1.4.

V. 5. a dream] This was another Dream besides that which he saw of the four Empires; for Daniel both declared what that Dream was; and what it meant: And here he onely expoundeth the Dream.

Visions] More then one were in this one Dream.

of my heads] In the head is the faculty of imagination: There are the animal and natural spirits, which carry in the forms and similitudes of things to the common sense and phantasie; and raise up thoughts and cogitations.

troubled me] Chap 2.1. Joh 7.13,14. Both the Dream, and his after thoughts upon it disquieted him.

V. 6. all the wise-men] The greatest Princes have sometimes need of others to declare unto them, what themselves know not.

V. 7. Magicians] Chap. 2.2,27.

they did not make known] It was beyond their power, 1 Cor. 2. 11. Gen.40.8. & 41.16,39. 1 Cor.1.19. In that he first came abroad to others, whose ignorance in times past he had experimented, and left Daniel which was ever ready at hand; either he did it to try them, and their skill of Interpretation, whereof they vaunted, though falsly, when the dream should be told them, Chap.2.4,7. or else it declareth the nature of the ungodly, which never seek to the servants of God, but for very Necessity; and then they spare no flatterings.

V. 8. at the last] This word Achoren, in the Trent Bible is translated Colleague; so signifying, that Daniel was as a fellow Companion to Nebuchadnezzar. But differing so, through a mistake of the word, from all other Translations.

Belteshazzar] See the Note of Chap.1.7.

of my God] This no doubt was a grief to Daniel, not onely to have his name changed, but to be called by the Name of a vile Idol; which thing Nebuchadnezzar did, to make him to forget the Religion of God. And this place argueth, that the King forsook not his Idolatry.

and in whom is the Spirit of the holy Gods] He an heathen still, and so speaks, holding a multitude of gods; and some of them holy and good, others evil and bad, which they worshipped, that they might not hurt them; and that Daniel was inspired, taught, and guided by the Spirit of the holy Gods, and had it in him, and thereby divined: not much unlike that damosel, Acts 16.16, 19. And this further appears, by the title he gives him, ver. 9.

V. 9. Master of the Magicians] Chap. 2. 48. & 5. 11. which shews that Heathenish conceipt which Nebuchadnezzar still had of Daniel, which also was a grief to the Prophet, to be numbred among the Sorcerers, and men whose practises were wicked, and contrary to Gods Word.

Spirit of the holy Gods] He speaks as an Heathen still; in an Heathenish sense. The Scriptures use also the name of Gods; but understand thereby, either false gods, Psal. 96. 5, 6. or else the Angels in heaven, Psal. 97.7. Heb. 1.6. or Magistrates on earth, Psal. 82.1,6. See 1 Cor.8.5,6. Psal.86.8.

tell me the visions] That is, what the visions mean, as it followeth in the Text, the latter word expounding the former; for in the verse next before, Nebuchadnezzar telleth the dream to Daniel.

V. 10. a tree] Man often in Scripture is likened to a tree, and several kinds of men to several kinds of trees, Mat. 3. 10. & 12. 33. Jude 12. Psal. 1.3. & 49.20. 2 King.14.9. Ezek.17.24. & 31.3. Here by the tree is signified further the dignity of a King, whom God ordains to be a defence for all kind of men, and whose state is profitable for mankind.

in the midst of the earth] Indeed Babylon was much about the midst of the earth.

V. 12. the beasts of the field] Ezek.31.6. applyed to the Assyrian. The right and true use of Monarchy and Magistracy is hereby hieroglyphically and excellently decyphered.

V. 13. a watcher] Meaning the Angel of God, which neither eateth nor sleepeth; but as one full of eyes, as in that vision, Ezek. Chap. 1. 18. & 10. 12. is ever watchful and ready to see, and do Gods will; as the Eccho still readily answers the voice: and is not infected with mans corruption, but is ever holy: And in that, that he commandeth to cut down the tree, he knew that it should be cut down, though not by man, yet by God, ver,31.

an holy one] Chap. 8.13. How Heathenish Nebuchadnezzar should come to this apprehension and knowledge of this person we know not; unlesse he might gather it out of those words in the vision, vers. 17.

cryed alone] Chap. 3. 4.

V. 14. Hew down the tree] See the change of humane felicity. And when God calleth great men to account for their sins, he maketh through work with them, leaving neither fruit, nor leaf, nor branch, branch, Ezek. 17. 9. Job 18. 16. Esay 9. 14. Thus God drowned Pharaoh, who had caused the male-children of Israel to be drowned. Gods thunderbolt breaketh and burneth the strongest Oaks and highest Buildings.

from under it] That is, from abiding there.

V. 15. the stump of his roots] When God dealeth heavily with his people.

Let it be wet with the dew of heaven] That is, him that is signified by this stump. Lying without, abroad, night and day, Cant. 5. 2. Babylon is an hot country, and the Winter there, but little cold.

V. 16. Let his heart be changed] His heart; not his manly shape and figure. Hereby he meaneth, that Nebuchadnezzar should not onely, for a time, lose his kingdome, but be like a Beast; should think himself to be, not a Man, but a Beast; and so live, and lie, and feed as a Beast, vers.25,32,38. God can make a mans heart, as stupid as a beasts: So wise a man, a mad man, vers. 34, 36. He, who in his heart, would have been a God, now, in his own heart, to be a beast.

Let seven times passe over him] In that miserable estate and condition. See vers.23,25,32. These times were years: as in another case, the interpretation is made in the Text it self, Chap. 11.13. And these years, such as our years: for such are the years, in Scripture accompt; as may distinctly be gathered out of the history of the Flood, Gen. 7. 8,9. Chapters. We may not then conceit, here, other kinds of years, as some do; nor conceive a number certain, to be put here for an uncertain. He then that destroyed Solomons Temple, that seven years work of so many thousands, should be, exactly, so many years beside himself. The remarkable, memorable judgement of God, upon so mighty an enemy, and destroyer of his People, City, and Sanctuary.

V. 17. this matter] God hath decreed this judgement, and the whole Army of Heaven, have, as it were, subscribed unto it; like as also, they desire the execution of his decree, against all them that lift up themselves against God.

the watchers] That is, of God, vers. 24. God the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost; enviroued with his Angels; described in Scripture, as those that sit in counsel with God, 1 King. 22. 19, 20. Job 1. 6.

and the demand by the word of the Holy ones] Or, according to the word of the Holy ones, is this Petition. Intimating, that in the consultation, as it were, about the punishing of the pride of Nebuchadnezzar, the holy Angels petitioned for this very thing; as well as the Holy ones, and Saints on earth, petitioned against him.

the living may know] Even by Nebuchadnezzars own publishing and proclaiming of it, vers. 2,3,5,37. God bringeth down the kingdoms of men, to make his own known, Luk.1.52. 1 Sam. 2. 6,7,8. Psal. 75. vers.6,7.

V. 18. declare] And that speedily: His guilty conscience, and this kind of dream, made him suspect the worst; and he would fain be out of pain.

the Spirit of the holy Gods] He speaks still as an Heathen man. See vers. 9. And hee spake now upon former experience had.

V. 19. was astonied] Both in regard of the sad interpretation; and also, because it lay on his part, to expound it to the King, who had so much honoured him: and whose peace was profitable, both to Daniel, and the people of the Jews; for which they were commanded to pray, Jer. 29. 7. So the Prophets used, on the one part, to denounce Gods judgements, for the zeal they bare to his glory; and on the other part, to have compassion upon man; and also to consider, that they should be subject to Gods judgements, if they did not regard them with pitty.

for one hour] A long time; it being in the Kings presence. In which time, no doubt, as he first prayed to God, for the right interpretation of the dream; so understanding it, he was after troubled at the sad meaning of it, both for the Kings sake, and also how he might best come off fairly, in telling and expounding of it.

The King spake] The King, likely, perceived Daniel was not troubled for want of knowledg of the interpretation; but because of some-what that was to befall the King; as, in all likelihood, he could expect no good from such a dream and vision: as neither Belshazzar from that, Chap.5.5,6.

my Lord] When Gods messengers are to deal with great men, they must do it wisely; as Daniel did here with the King; and so did Nathan with David, by a parable, bringing his fault to his mind, 2 Sam.12. And surely greater wisdome and skill, could not be used, then Daniel here sheweth, to decline the kings offence, and to qualifie the bitternesse of the interpretation.

to them that hate thee] That is, would to God, the sense of this dream might be directed against thine enemies, rather then against thee: a kind of protestation, to thew, that in the interpretation thereof, he was not prepossessed with any hatred, or passion against the King; but continued, full of dutiful love and affection thwarde him.

V. 20. The tree, &c.] Vers. 10, 11, 12.

V. 22. It is thou] That is, This great Empire which thou possessest, is meant, which was signified by the tree, as above, Chap. 2. 38.

V. 23. Hew the tree down] Vers. 14. The whole tree; not some branches. He lost his whole Empire, for the time. The speech seems to be directed to the Chaldeans.

with a band of yron] It may be, that Nebuchadnezzar himself, at the beginning of his madnesse, was tyed in bonds, and after suffered to run loose abroad; and the rather, by reason of this Dream and interpretation, famously known amongst the Chaldeans. However, that speech against the Assyrian, Esay 37. 29. is, doubtlesse, metaphorical.

till seven times passe over him] See above, vers. 16.

V. 25. Drive thee from men] Chap. 5. 19, 20, 21. Because, for his madnesse, he was odious to them, or in his madnesse, might many wayes hurt them. Or rather, taking it impersonally, For thou shalt be driven, as in the Chaldee and Hebrew phrase, Is usual, we may so understand it of his own madnesse, that that should drive him from the company of men, to the company of beasts: As having the heart of a beast, thinking himself to be a beast; and so covering, as beasts do, rather to be in company of beasts then of men.

Oxen] Not that his shape or form was changed into a beast, but that he was stricken mad; and so avoided mans company, and so wandered among the beasts, and did eat herbs and grasse; as thinking that food, though not so pleasing or nourishing, did yet properly belong unto him. See Job 6. vers. 7.

the most high] Daniel sheweth the end, why God thus punished him; which proved true in him, vers.34,35,36,37.

to whomsoever] Jer. 27. 5. & 18.4.

V. 26. after that thou] After that thou shalt be tamed, or humbled by this horrible accident, thou shalt then recover thy understanding, having quitted thy ambition which possessed thee; and being revested with humility towards God, by whose onely favour thou dost reign; thou shalt then also surely reign again; as he did at the making of this Proclamation, and a year or two after.

the heavens do rule] That is, God, which dwelleth, and reigneth in glory in the Heavens; as Mat. 11. 25. Luk. 15. 21.

V. 27. Let my counsel, &c.] Great men have need of counsels, Prov. 11. 14. & 12. 15. & 15. 22. & Chap. 19. ver. 20 & 24. & 27. 9. 1 King. 12. Thus Exod. 18. vers. 19. And hence, likely, the Romans chief Magistrates were called Consuls.

break off thy sins] Oftyranny, pride, &c. Chap. 5. 19, 20. of oppressing Gods people; cease from provoking God any longer to anger, by thy sins, that he may mitigate his punishment, if thou shew, by thine upright life, that thou hast true Faith and Repentance; for Gods greatest judgements have an end, when they bring forth such good fruits, Esay 26. 9. 16.

by shewing mercy to the poor] Luk. 11. 41. Esay 58. 7—— 12. Ezek. 18. 7. Act. 10. 2, 4, 31. This would have been a good fruit, and sign of his Repentance, if he had shewed mercy to the poor, specially to the poor afflicted Jewes, now in captivity under him: He had done otherwise, Chap. 5. 19. But now he should thus seek to redeem, as Ephes. 5. 16. and take off this punishment of his iniquities, get mercy from God, by shewing mercy to the poor.

if it may be] The like phrase, Exod. 32. 30. & Josh. 14. 12. & 1 Sam. 14. 6. Intimating some hope; yet leaving it doubtful what might be Gods will, 2 Sam. 12. 14. and what would be the Kings repentance.

a lengthening of thy tranquility] Or, an healing of thine error. Others read, It shall be a lengthening of thy peace and prosperity: and indeed there was some lengthening, to wit, for a year, at least, as may appear by the 29 verse. The like example of lengthening, is of Ahab, 1 King. 21. 29. And not much unlike is that of Ezekiah, Esay 38. 5. and of the Ninevites, Jonah 3. 10. See Jer. 18. 8. But the small repentance of this King appears, vers. 30.

V. 29. twelve moneths] After that Daniel had declared this vision; so patient is God, Rom. 2. 4. And haply by that time, the King, continuing still in his glorious felicity, grew to that opinion, that the Interpretation of the Dream and vision was false. However, his pride so continuing, declareth, that it is not in mans to convert to God, except his Spirit move him; seeing that these terrible threatnings could not move him truly to repent, Chap. 5. 20.

in the palace] Or, upon the roof being flat; as usually: whence he had the view of the City; which haply put up his spirit, and recall'd his former thoughts.

V. 30. Is not this great Babylon] Of the greatnesse of it, see Herodotus, book 1. Pliny, book 6. yet Nineveh once surpassed it, Jonah 3. 2. & 3. 3. And yet Fez, Grand Cairo, and Constantinople seem not to come far short of them at this day. Of his Luciferian pride, see Esay his Prophecy, Chap. 14. 12, 13.

that I have built for the house] That is, adorned, and beautified with many marvellous edifices, and pensile, or hanging gardens, and orchards, and enlarged and compassed with a new wall; so that it may seem a City altogether new: though first builded by Nimrod, Gen. 10. 10. and after that much enlarged, beautified, and

CHAP. V.

Verſ. 1. BElſhazzar the King] Daniel reciteth this hiſtory of Belſhazzar, Evil-Merodachs ſon, (the time of whoſe reign is here paſſed over; as alſo the ſhort reigns of Neriglisſorus, and his young ſon Laboroſarchodus, being Intruders, to ſhew Gods Judgements againſt the wicked, for the deliverance of his Church: and how the Prophecy of Jeremy was true, that they ſhould ſerve Nebuchadnezzar and his ſon, Evil-merodach, and his ſons ſon, this Belſhazzar, Jer.27.7. And that they ſhould be delivered after ſeventy years, Jer.25.11,12. This Belſhazzar ſeemeth to be called Merodac, Jer.50.2. which was a name common, as to their Idol Bel, ſo to many of their Kings. See Eſay 39.1. and ſignifies in Chaldee, a Scepter-bearer This Hiſtory we ſee fell out in the very end of his reign and of the Babyloniſh Empire. How many years this King reigned, Hiſtorians do very much vary amongſt themſelves. Some ſay three; ſome, five; ſome, ſeventeen.

a great feaſt] The Chaldee word is very like that which ſignifieth bread. This Feaſt ſeems to be in the evening; or at leaſt continued till far in the night, verſ.5.30. And ſuppers uſually were the moſt common times for Feaſts, Luk.14.16. Mar.6.21. Joh. 12.2. Alluding to this, Jeremy calls him the King Sheſchak, Jer. 25.26. that is, the King keeping a feaſt; pointing it ſeemes hereby, at this feaſt, and at the very day of his fall, and Babels fall in it. See Jer.57.39,41,57. Eſay 21.5. This unſeaſonable Feaſt he made, when Cyrus ſtraitly beſieged the City, either to ſhew his own confidence and ſecurity, and his ſlighting of the enemy; or becauſe of the good ſervice theſe thouſand Lords had done him in the ſiege: or rather, for that it was ſome Anniverſary Feaſt, either for his own birth, as Gen.40.20. Mar.6.21. or for ſome ancient and publick cauſe, Religious or Civil, of Cuſtome ſolemnly celebrated by the Babylonians. For Heathen Hiſtories record, that Cyrus knew of this Feaſt, and took the opportunity of it, to enter and conquer the City. And this being the laſt day of his reign, it appears, that the ſeventh and eighth Chapters following, go in time before this.

before the thouſand] The Kings of the Eaſt parts, then uſed to ſit alone commonly, and diſdained that any ſhould ſit in their Company. Here the more to ſhew his condeſcenſion of love and familiarity, he ſate likely at a Table by himſelf, but in the ſame Hall, with and before the thouſand Princes and Lords, and his Wives and Concubines. So Joſeph did, Gen.43.32. Here the Latine Trent Bible inſtead of theſe words, and drank wine before the thouſand, have theſe, and every one did drink according to his age; expounding it by that, Eſth.1.8. But this is otherwiſe in the Chaldee, and in all Tranſlations Old and New.

V. 2. he taſted the wine] Liked the taſte, took pleaſure in it, and diſpoſing himſelf to drink largely: or, when he had well drunk was heated with wine, and began to be merry, Eſth.1.10. Great men in their jollity do often that which offends God, and grieveth good men. And ſpecially in their drink: for when the wine is in, the wit is out, Hoſ.4.11. & 7.5. See Gen.19.32. Eſay 28.7. V. 4. and praiſed the gods of gold] This was uſual in the feaſts of the Heathens: attributing to them their victories over Gods people, and the ſpoils of Gods houſe: feaſting in honour of them, in contempt of the true God, praiſing their idols, and that above the God of the Jews. 2 Chron.32.13,14. third Ruler in the Kingdome] Next to me, and the Queen my Mother, likely, or his ſon, if he had any, verſ.29.

V. 8. they could not read the writing] It may be probable that the Letters were written without diſtinction, or ſpace between the words, ſo that they knew not how to put them together, or frame them to make any ſenſe of them. Others ſay, the Chaldeans knew not God to be one, and to rule mens affaires; neither knew they their own impiety; but ſaid in their heart, There is no God: wherefore though they could have read it, yet they knew not who ſhould be weighed, ſpecially in the ballance; and touching the Medes and Perſians: now their beſiegers, they little thought that they ſhould ſurprize the ſtrong Babel; and bragged, how they were victualled, for 20 yeares ſiege, as Xenophon recordeth But the text ſaith more, they could not ſo much as read it: the writing then, either being in the Initial letter only; as מכבי, i. e. Michemocha baelohim Jehovah, the Maccabees Enſign, and the words of Exod.15.11. As alſo S.P.Q.R. for Senatus Populuſq; Romanus: and as we uſe to write J.N.R.J. for Jeſus Nazarenus Rex Judæorum: or being in an unknown hand; neither Chaldee, nor Hebrew letter; for little doubt but theſe Wiſe men knew both languages and letters, 2 King.18.28. or elſe rather, God in his Judgment blinding them all as to that point of Reading it ſelf; as Gen.19.11. 2 King.6.10. that their eyes were holden, as the two Diſciples were, going to Emmaus, Luk.24.16. And this for the greater honour of Daniel, and Gods in him. For as for the ſhort way of writing by Characters now, or obſcure way by Hieroglyphicks of old, or ſundry ſecret ways by compact betwixt man and man, they are not imaginable to be conſiſtent with the words of the Text.

V. 9. troubled] The ſecond time; being fruſtrated of his hope he had in his wiſe men, and of any comfort by them. His conſternation increaſeth; he goes on, as formerly in ſin, from evil to worſe, ſo now in fright more and more; and his Lords the more at his terrors.

and his Lords were aſtonied] Thoſe, verſ.1. So with Herod, all Jeruſalem was troubled, Mat.2.3. And they had juſt cauſe, both for the wonder of the thing, and the ſlaughter among them that followed that night. But none of theſe Lords gain-ſaid the King in any of his wicked courſes during this feaſt, but rather applauded and flattered him therein.

V. 10. Queen] Not his wife, for his wives there were before, ver.2,3. but his mother Evilmerodacs wife, and Queen, that famous Nitocris in Herodotus, or elſe his grandmothar, as Maachaz was to Aſa, 1 King.15.2,10,13. the wife of Nebuchadnezzar: which for age likely, was not before at the feaſt, but might well be then alive, that hiſtory in the forth of Daniel being but one year or two before Nebuchadnezzar's death, and came thither when ſhe heard of theſe ſtrange news.

The acceptation is uſual: and ſo the word Mother, 1 King.15,2,10,13. is taken for Grandmother; and ſon for Grand-child, verſ.22. of this Chapter: yea, Father ſignifies any Anceſtor; and Son any poſterity whatſoever. So Abraham is called the Father of all the Jews in Eſayes time, Eſay 51.2. In our Saviours time, Joh.8.56. Luk. 1.73. And David is called the Father of Joſiah, 2 Chron.34.2. and our Saviour is called the Son of David, and of Abraham, Mat.1.1.

V. 18. O thou King] Before he read the Writing, he declareth to the king his great ingratitude toward God, who could not be moved to give him the glory, conſidering his wonderful work toward his Grandfather, and ſo ſheweth, that he doth not ſin of ignorance, ſo much, as of malice.

V. 22. Haſt not humbled] Applyes the caſe to Belſhazzar. Hiſtories and examples in Scripture ſhould be thus applyed, Luk.17. 32. They ſhould ſerve as looking-glaſſes; as hands in the margin of a book; as way-marks? they are ſeconds to Laws and rules: yet ſome mens hearts are not moved with Gods hand upon their neereſt firiends; as Belſhazzar here.

though thou knewest all this] This aggravated his ſins more then Nebuchadnezzars; he having ſuch an example before him, which which the other wanted. Sins against conscience are most dangerous.

V. 23. But hast lifted up thy self] As well as thy Grandfather, Esay 14. 12,13,14, is applyable as much, if not more, to Belshazzar, then to Nebuchadnezzar; as he in whom the Empire of Babylon ended: Daniel freely and boldly tels the King his sins: As Elias, John Baptist, and other Prophets did.

was written] It is no illusion of the mind, or delusion of the sense, or sight, but a real writing.

V. 25. Mene, mene] This word is twice written for the certainty of the thing; as the dream was doubled, Gen.41.32. shewing that God had most surely numbred; implying also that God had appointed a term for all Kingdoms, and that a miserable end shall come on all that raise themselves against him. The Trent Bible reads onely, Mane, Thekel, Phares. The words are Chaldee. How the wise men should not be able to read them, see Annotations on verf.8.

V. 26. God hath numbred] Indeed he numbred and set the time, Jer.25.12. And more particularly for Belshazzars case, thus; God hath suffered thee long, and is now come to reckon with thee about thy Administration; and having now cast up thy accounts, he requireth now payment of thee: words borrowed from Creditors, or Merchants.

and finished it] Both the number, and the Kingdom. He it is, that sets the fatal periods of Kingdoms and States and of the lives of men. The stars do it not; nor can Star-gazers fore-tell it.

V. 27. weighed] As Goldsmiths do, and Merchants. The sense is, God hath examined thee: and thus one day shall all men be weighed and examined. Wisdom 11.20.

and are found wanting] Wanting weight, too light; as light money wanting many grains of those regal virtues and qualifications requisite in a Monarch, and so unworthy of the degree and place thou holdest. And such indeed are all men in themselves out of Christ, that is light and vain, Psal. 62. ver.9.

V. 28. Peres] Ver. 25. Upharsin, they divided. Here, Peres in the singular number. God did it by the Medes and Persians.

divided] Like false money cut in pieces: or, there is, or may be, an allusion between Peresh and Persia.

Medes and Persians] To Darius the Mede, ver. 31. and to Cyrus the Persian, Chap.6. 28. Cyrus being the son of Mandane, who was the daughter of Astyages or Ahasuerus, and halfe sister to this Darius, otherwise called Cyaxares.

V. 29. Then commanded Belshazzar] Terrified with his own daughter, and astonished at such divine skill in Daniel; both to be as good as his word, (as Herod, Mat. 14. 9.) and to have such a man his hope and help in greatest need; he commands as followeth. And Daniel as he did not desire them, ver. 17. so he would not reject them; but suffered them to be done unto him. Belshazzar knew not; nor could gather by Daniels interpretation, that so soon and suddenly as that night, this judgment and execution should follow. It might have been true, and irrevocable, and yet delayed for a longer time.

V. 30. In that night] Confer with this place these Scriptures, Isa. 13.17. &21.2,4,5. &47. 11. Jer.25.12,16. &51.11,39. Hab.2.5.

slain] By Gobrias, and Gadatas, or Cadratas, Cheiftains of Cyrus: as Zenophon in his seventh book witnesseth.

V. 31. Darius the Median] To distinguish him from Darius the Persian, who was the third King after Cyrus, of whom mention is made, Ezra 4.5,24. This Darius the Mede, was also called Ahasuerus or Cyaxares the second, the son of Ahasuerus, Dan.9.1. or Cyaxares the first, King of the Medes, the brother of Astyages. And Astyages his daughter Mandane, being neer to this Darius, was wife to Cambyses, a mean Persian, and Mother to Cyrus as was formerly said. He by the Consent and Delivery up of Cyrus the conqueror, tooke the Kingdome of Babylon: Or, as their Joynt Forces won it; so they joyntly reigned both together, as fellowes in Empire, 2 Chro. 36. 20. But Darius is onely here mentioned, because matter followes touching him onely, not Cyrus, in the next Chapter. And yet they seem both joyned in the last verse of that Chapter, and Ezra 6.14. And as Darius here receives the kingdome of Babylon of Cyrus; so Cyrus received after the daughter of Darius for wife, and the kingdome of Media for dowry with her, Xenophon in his 8 book of the Institution of Cyrus. Yet some make this Darius to be the son of Astyages, and brother of Mandane, and so Uncle to Cyrus.

threescore and two years old] Darius being 62. at the fall of Babel; which Empire lasted 70 yeares, falleth to be born at the eight of Nebuchadnezzar, when he carried away Captives the King Jeconiah, and all the Nobles, and ten thousand valiant men, and all Jerusalem, and all saving the base of the land; and carried away all the treasure of the House of the Lord, and brake all the vessels of gold, which King Solomon had made in the Temple of the Lord. See 2 King.24.13,15. even then Madai, who with Elam must revenge the cause of Judah, had a Prince borne: and to this purpose, Daniel seems to tell the Kings age, to shew how God provided a remedy when he stuck.

CHAP. VI.

Vers 1. It pleased] Upon deliberation and consultation had about the settling, ordering, and well governing of this new gain'd Monarchy. The Chaldee, wherein this Chapter is written, is mixt with Arabick: which tongue the the Persians here seem to have much used.

Darius] See on Chap. 5 31. And this in the first yeare of his reign. ver. 28. He reigned but two yeares, and two moneths. And this fell in with the year of the world 3470. or little lesse. And this was a wonderful yeare; for Babels fall; Lions humblenes, ver.22. The Angels oration, Chap. 9. two Heathen Emperours Christian proclamations, ver. 26, 27. Ezr.1.1. and a general subsidie, as it were, over an hundred and twenty Nations, for Judahs return, Ezr. 1.4,6.

to set over] Kings and Monarchs must have under officers, and Princes to help in government, 1 King.12.6. Esth. 11.13. Exod. 18 21, &c. Deut.1.9——18. And yet themselves not be idle; but have enough to do besides, Rom.12.8.

an hundred and twenty] Likely there were 120 Nations or Provinces, Esth.1.1.127.

the whole Kingdome] Each one in his several share; for matters both of peace, and war: civil, and military.

V. 2. and over these] Darius his wisdome, over a number of great Governours, to appoint some few Superiours and Overseers.

Daniel was first] and chiefest of the Triumvirs, verf. 3. Thus still is unity fought after, as best for peace; and parity avoided, as tending to division and confusion. Likely Belshazzars advancing of Daniel, and the cause of that, gave occasion to this advancement. For how could Darius otherwise do; Considering the great fame of Daniels Wisdome, worth, and integrity, both in Babylon, above all Wise men there, and in forreign Nations, Ezek. 28.3. and his preferments thereupon by Nebuchadnezzar; and newly by Belthazzar himself, though he received that heavy doom from Daniels mouth; and withall foretelling from God this great Monarchy to the Medes and Persians; but in all reason be moved thereupon thus to prefer him; to do as much at least, as Belshazzar himself had done. See Gen. 41.38.38,49.40. The eminency of Gods graces in his servants thus prefers themselves. And happy is that Kingdome, where preferments are bestowed according to mens worth and merits.

give accounts] Luk.16.2. as we all must to God one day, Rom. 14.12, 1 Pet.4.5.

and the King] And so the Kingdome in him. He the Isse care; and the Kingdome the lesse hurt by Mal-administration.

V. 3. Then] The Original here to some seems to be our language.

was preferred] This is Gods mercy to his Church in providing a man for their Countenance, and comfort. And so was Joseph in Egypt. And this was the Cause or occasion of the envy and malice of the presidents and Princes against him. For thus envy workes, Eccl. 4.4. for the chief priests delivered Jesus to Pilate, Mar.15. 10. Thus self-love, and pride, envying at the worth of others, and at their honour and happinesse above their own, sets it self on work to do mischief. Even Rachel envied her own sister; and Josephs brethren envied him. See Prov. 14.30. Gal. 5.21,26.

an excellent spirit] Of knowledge, wisdome, government, integrity.

the King thought] Likely further to make him Vice-Roy; as Joseph was, Gen.41.40——45.

whole Realm] Many, if not most Interpreters, understand this, of Media; as if Darius carried him thither. But we rather take it to be meant of Babylon, where Darius and Daniel now were: which being newly conquered needed most such a Governour, and wherein Daniel had still been so well versed and experienced. Neither doth any thing in the Text make the least shew against it. This further intended advancement of Daniel, if known to the Presidents Presidents and Princes, did likely set them further on, to envy him, and seek occasions against him.

V. 4. Then the presidents and Princes] Here is a unity in Conspiracy. Unity among wicked men, is often dangerous to good men, Joh.9 22.

sought to find occasion] Thus Courtiers out of their own ambition, are envious at the preferments of others; specially of strangers. And generally the wicked cannot abide the graces of God in others; but seek and search by all occasions to deface them, and deface it from them. See Annotations on Chap.2.13. Therefore against such assaults there is no better remedy then to walk uprightly in the fear of God, faithfully and diligently in our callings, and to keep a good conscience, Tit.2.9,10. Act.24.16.

concerning the Kingdome] ex latere Regis, saith the Trent Bibles contrary to the Chaldee, and all translators, and all good sense. The meaning is, concerning the affaires of the Kingdom, and his administration of them in his high Office.

none occasion] Subject matter of accusation; no colour or suspition of negligence, or unfaithfullnesse in him, or his doings.

faithful] To the King, in the affaires of the Kingdome: as he was also to his God.

neither was there any error] A singular example of prudence, Industry, and faithfullnesse in our callings, and offices of highest trust; that so many, and mighty, envious and subtile enemies, in all their deep devices, yet despaired to find him faulty, or colourably faulty, in his management of so great affaires in so high an office.

V. 5. we shall not] Innocency wins testimony of its adversaries, and forceth it from them.

except we find] In his Life and Manners they could not. In his Religion they made account they should; knowing that Daniel would lose honours, and offices, and life also, rather then offend the Law of his God: which makes much also to Daniels commendation. And shews withal, that wicked mens consciences tell them, that good men are constant in their Religion, and will not transgresse the Lawes of it.

V. 6. Then these Presidents] Not only the other Triumvirs, but the 120 Princes or Presidents, if we may believe their own words, verf.7. Thus the wicked are restlesse, and their hatred implacable against the godly. If they cannot for their faults, they will for their virtues attach them; and persecute them for their piety.

assembled together] Or, came tumultuously. The Chaldee term of Daniel is also Hebrew, and from Psal.2.1. wherefore did the Heathen rage tumultuously, or keepra stirre? The Popish translation, of surrepuerunt, is not so proper; some of themselves do seek to help it, by substituting surrepserunt instead of it. And stick not to charge their Trent Bible, or at least the Edition of it, with many the like errours. See Pintus on this place. These Presidents here leave and neglect their places and charges, to assemble and plot, and all against Daniel. Innocency cannot be free.

V. 7. all the Presidents] They pretend to an universal, and unanimous consent of all; thereby the rather to win the Kings consent, and as it were thereupon by subtilty, and by joynt importunity to enforce him upon it. But they speak more then truth was. For Daniel the chief was none of their Counsel. Nor were all here spoken of by them, cast with their families into the Lyons Den, verf. 24. For it may be many of them knew not the mischievous plot of the Contrivers, and inventers of it; but were drawn on among the rest; as those, 2 Sam.15,11.

to establish] To prefent it, and to obtein from the King the confirmation; that so it might receive the force of a Law. For he had the Negative voyce. and sole power of making it a Law and Statute. So appears, verf.8.

a royal Statute] In Chaldee, a Statute for the King. The pretence of prosperity, and evil Counsellors, is the honour, or benefit of the King: but they aym at their own ends; though it be in the ruine of the Subjects. They flatter the King; but such flattery and adulation of Kings, is the plague-fore of Kings, and Kingdomes.

Decree Or, interdict.

that whosoever shall ask] The most probable pretence of this decree, is, that by this meanes, Darius might have occasion to shew his royal grace and bounty, and his divine munificence, to all his subjects that petitioned him; and so gain to himself, in his new kingdom, the more love, strength and assurance. But their drift is against Daniel, for their own ends, and to the Kings hurt: Knowing Daniels conscience and custom, and constancy in prayer to his God; which for any danger, upon any pretence, he would not for-go: This it was, that made them fix upon this particular decree.

of any God] They will rather do dishonour to their own gods, then not sanctifie their own ambitious, envious, bloody mind, in taking him out of the way, that stood in their light, as they conceived, and stope the way of their greater advancements.

or man] Many of his subjects, in his large Empire, might stand, in that time, im extream present need of mans help, where the King could not be present; nor they possibly have accesse to him, which yet, by this decree, should be unjustly, inhumanely, and foolishly barred from asking help of God or man.

for thirty dayes] This was time enough for their purpose. They knew Daniel would not so long abstain, from making petition to his God.

cast into the Den of Lyons] Bloody minded men, no lesse will serve them. They must suffer the Lyons cruel paws, and hungry jaws, and be devoured of them. Thus adulation and flattery, is a nurse of tyranny. This kind of capital punishment, was not unusual among the Babylonians, the Medes and Persians; and among the Romans also, with whom it was a common saying, in Tertullians time, Let the Christians be cast to the Lyons.

V. 8. Now, O King] Thus good Kings, may be bought and sold by evil Counsellors. Thus Haman dealt with Ahasuerus, Esth: 3.9. Kings had therefore need to be the more wary and circumspect.

that it be not changed, according] Esth.1.19. and 8.8 Therefore Ahasuerus would, or could not recal the decree against Vashti, Chap.1. nor against the Jews, Chap.3, But provides for himself, and for them another way, Chap.2.1.2. and Chap.8.11. These Presidents and Princes, here, someway flatter Darius, (partner with Cyrus in the Conquest of Babylon, and now King of it) in asking him, being King of Media, to make a Law, here in Babylon, after the manner of the Law of the Medes.

according to the Law] Esth.1.19. and 8.8.

altereth not] Chald. passeth not.

V. 9. Darius signed] Too rashly and suddenly; ascribing too much trust to his Princes and Presidents, who indeed, ought throughly to have weighed the nature of the Decree; and did best know, the natures and conditions of the several Provinces, and people, how they would brook it. And thereupon he signed it; with due examination, by himself, of the right and nature, and end of the Decree. It seemed indeed, to set him up, in some sort as a kind of god, or demy-god: For, as an Heathen could say,

Qui fingit sacros auro vel marmore vultus,
Non facit ille Deos, qui rogat, ille facit.
Mart. lib.8. Epigr.24.

And therefore, also the rather, he readily, out of self-love, signs; not searching into their wicked end in proposing it.

V. 10. Now when Daniel knew] After it was signed; not before else he would have laboured to have prevented it.

He went into his house] Withdrew himself from the sight of publike impieties, to the exercise of domestick worship, and service of God.

and his windows being open] Not in hipocrisie, for vain-glory, the thing forbidden, Mat.5.6. but to shew his resolution and constancy, against the fear of the Kings decree, though he knew it to be irrevocable; and that he would not, by his silence seem to give consent unto it, or comply with it; or forgo his daily duty to his God; for which he had so many obligations lying upon him.

in his Chamber] Or, upper room; as Act.1.13. & 20.9. See 2 King 23.12. Not in a low and obscure place. He did not fear to be seen at this time, upon this occasion.

toward Jerusalem] In confcience of his duty, and with faith in the promise, 1 King.8.33,34,44,48. Psalm.5.7. Though now, City and Temple, lay in ruines. Now the case is altered; as Dan.6.21,22.

he kneeled] 1 King.8.54. Act.7.60. & 20.36. The usual, humble, seemly gesture of prayer. Indeed standing also, is used in Scripture, and allowed, Mar.11.25. And so that gesture seems to be used, 1 Sam.1.26. 1 King.8.22.55. Neh 9.5. Mat.6.5. And according thereunto, are those words of Naaman, 2 King.5.11. And in the Primitive Church, by ancient tradition, standing at prayer was used, if not enjoyned, on every Lords day, and in all the time, between Easter-day and Ascension-day, and Whitsonday also. And with more reason then, when Christs Resurrection and Ascension, were so much questioned, then can be now, Justin.q.115. ad Orthodoxos: Yet kneeling, or prostration upon the ground, are most usual and seemly in prayer. And unseemly it seems to be, to do it, either sitting, or with the head covered in our Assemblies; as these gestures and rites, are now in esteem with us; unlesse some extraordinary, and just cause do warrant the contrary.

three times a day] Morning, Noon, and Evening; before he went forth, or set upon his publike imployment, and State affairs; at his return to dinner; as Gen.43.16. and after the end of the day, and dispatch of his businesses: To which times, David seemes to have reference, Psal 55.17. and may seem to be the three times of the daily prayers of the Jews. The morning and evening seen to be so ascertained, by their appointed daily sacrifices, and the daily burning of Incense, on the golden Table of Incense, at those times, Exod.29 39,42. and 30.7, 8. And punctually, the morning time, is deemed the third hour, which is our ninth. When the Holy Ghost also came down upon the Apostles in cloven-tongues of fire, Act.2.15. and the evening time is the ninth hour, which is our third in the after-noon; called the the hour of prayer, Act.3.1. When Peter and John went into the Temple: and Cornelius prayed, and saw the vision, Act.10.3, 30. When also our Saviour was crucified and dyed, Mat.27.46, 50. Mar.15.34, 37. The middle is the middle hour, their sixth, our twelfth, or mid-day, Joh.4.6. When Peter prayed, Act.10.9. When also our Saviour was condemned, and delivered to be crucified, Joh.19.14. When also the general darknesse began, and continued till the ninth hour, till our Saviour dyed, Mat.27.45. Mar.15.33. Luk.23.44. And in the Primitive Church, the Christians had those three hours of the day, in so much use and regard for prayer, as they came to be called, Canonical hours. But yet from this duty, no time is exempted, Psal.119.verf.62. & verf.164. Luk.18.1. Ephes.6.18. 1 Thess.5.17.

prayed and gave thanks] Phil.4.6. 1 Thess.5.17,18. For prayed, the Trent Bible hath, worshiped; erroneously.

as he had afore-time] No danger can keep good men, from the accustomed works of piety, Act.4.19. & 5.29. He was not now, either more slow, or secret in it.

V. 11. Then these men] The practice of wicked men; as Psal. 10.8,9. curiously prying into other mens doings, and not seeing beams in their own eyes. They thought now they had won the day, and gain'd their desires.

V. 12. Then they came neer] They speedily pursue their mischievous, and bloody purpose.

concerning the King's Decree] Of that first, to renew the strength of it; out of the Kings own mouth; to circumvent, and intangle him in his own words. Thus cunningly they deal; pretending only the defence and maintenance of the law, and the Kings authority. Flattering him to his own hurt, and for their own sanguinary design, in Daniels ruine.

V. 13. that Daniel] Not till now, they open their mean drift, and directly accuse. And now they think they may be bold to do it; and they do it with all aggravations; that Daniel; so desiring to speake contemptuously of him.

of the captivity] To render him despicable, from his slavish, and fordid state of captivity, and from his Nation of the Jews. They had many captives of other Nations also among them; at that time; as may be gathered out of Jer.25. and 27. Chapters.

regardeth not thee] So Chap.3.12. Under a colour, they falsly and maliciously slander Daniel of ingratitude, for his honours, of contempt and rebellion. They accuse him, as the Jews did Christ, as being an enemy to Cæsar.

his petition three times a day] They say not to his God, least that might found any thing to him. But indeed they charge that upon him, as his heinous capital offence. Thus piety, prayer and devotion, are wrested to a wrong meaning, by the wicked, and counted for crimes. Now the ungrateful, and unpleasing conclusion of all these premises they conceal, the death of Daniel; or leave that to the King, to be gathered, and made by him, as necessarily following thereupon.

V. 14. then the King] Seeing their fraud and malice; and his own errour and circumvention. These evils, Kings, otherwise good, are subject unto, by evil Courtiers.

sore displeased with himself] For making so rashly such a Decree, so injurious to God and man, so full against the life of Daniel, and against himself, in the losse of such a subject. And no doubt, displeased also with these accusers of Daniel, for their so fraudulent, mischievous, and pernicious dealing against him and Daniel. These sore grievances, by such means, Kings, many times, are put unto.

and set his heart] This was well; to think how to amend, what he had done amisse. And better were it to repeal such Decrees, then to pretend to the maintenance of his authority, by the maintaining of them. But best it had been, to have been more advised, circumspect and cautelous, ere he had made them.

till the going down] He was sad and serious in it, to save the life of innocent and precious Daniel. A long time was this, (for they were at the King, no doubt, betimes) wherein with all his heart and might he laboured to out-master their malice, to wind himself out of their mischievous wilinesse, to interpret, qualifie, or nullifie the Decree, and his signing of it. A good Example for Christian Kings in like cases.

V. 15. Then these men assembled] Here they set upon the King, with multitude, and unanimous consent to over-bear him.

Know, O King] They presse on him with all instance; they wax bold, if not impudent, notwithstanding the Kings sore displeasure, Prov.16.14. Thus far Envy carries them: and mischief begun, must be carried on, whatsoever comes on it; though it be to their future undoing. They pretend, now, the right of Law, and the Kings honour and authority in it. Thus are Kings many times over-ruled and abused.

may be changed] Thus the wicked maintain evil Laws, by colour of constancy and authority; which is oft times either lightnesse or stubbornesse; when as the Innocents thereby perish: and therefore Governours neither ought to fear, nor be ashamed to break such; though good Laws with all constancy are to be maintained. Thus Charidemus lost his life, Diod.Sic.l.14.

V. 16. Then the King commanded] He perseveres not in his good purpose; but against his conscience he yeilds, and becomes a servant and minister of their Cruelty. Such slaves sometimes are Kings forced by bad servants to do things they like not, 2 Sam.3. 39. And so unsafe is it for Favourites to trust in them.

and they brought Daniel] Not to answer for himself, and plead his cause, and make his apology; for absent and unheard was he condemned already. But they brought him to execution; and that speedily, lest any way by delays, he might happen to escape. So swift are their feet to shed innocent blood.

the den of lions] See Annotations on verf.7.

The King said] To comfort Daniel; and cheer his innocency.

continually] Notwithstanding my Decree and Edict to the contrary.

he will deliver thee] It is his wish and prayer; not prophecie. He can; I cannot. It is hope; hearing belike how God did deliver his three Companions out of the fiery furnace, Chap.3. Thus God bowes the minds of Heathen in compassion towards his; makes them acknowledge the Omnipotency of the true God; the Impotency of themselves, and their false gods, verf.26,27.

V. 17. and a stone] Comparing this and the 25 verse together, they may seem to discern that the Lions did not straight seize upon Daniel: and therefore would have a stone sealed, &c. See Mat.27.66. and Lam.3.53.

the King sealed it] Having once begun to yeild to his Lords, they drew him on, and he proceeds to yeild further, Esth.3.12. and 8.8. 1 King.21.8.

signet of his Lords] Least the King or of his Love to Daniel, his sorrow for him, and care of him, should have driven him to out of sight, or left the Kings friends should do it, or Daniels conspiracy-men the Jewes; or his other followers and friends, as he had many, by his eminency in gifts and graces, by his esteem with the King, by his fidelity, justice, piety, &c. Thus they shew their distrust in the King; (a just reward for him) and their trust in their own carnal wisdome, which yet deceives them.

that the purpose] The Trent Bible here wrongly translates the Hebrew Text, and varies the sense.

V. 18. Then the King went] Late, verf.14. and sad; through his love to Daniel, and the guiltinesse of his own conscience, That accuseth him, Rom.2.14,15. and stings him; though he had no judge on earth above him. This is well in the King, and is a good work of his conscience, thus to afflict him. Whereas Daniels accusers had their Consciences seared, and hardned in sin, to their final ruine.

fasting; neither——] Fasting and watching agree well together. And sorrow, and fasting justly exclude musick, and all mirth.

V. 19. Then the King arose] The workings of love, and of a guilty conscience, suffer him not to sleep, or rest.

V. 20. with a lamentable voice] Thereby speaking his lamentation and sorrow; his love and care, and fear of Daniel. The tenderest father could have done no more towards his dearest son. And this is so much the more in so great a Monarch: Which commends both him, and Daniels worth. Against hard-hearted men at the miseries of the Godly, Rom.12.15. Heb.13.3.

V. 21. then said Daniel] with a voice not distressed, as that of the Kings.

Daniel is understood to do it; as likewise the like is said of his three Companions, verf.34. They did it; as Elias brought the famine, Jam.5.17,18.

forasmuch] Thus God sometimes by miracle shews and proves the Innocency of his servants, Psal.37.5,6.

He minds the Innocency of his present case and Cause: Not yet that this Innocency merited this miraculous deliverance; no proper true merite can be in man towards God, But that God saved him of his meer mercy, and gracious good pleasure. Nor is it for Favourites to trust in them, who ought to command nothing, whereby God should be dishonoured.

V. 23. King exceeding glad] Rid of that heavy plight wherein he was, verf.18. and cheered up his Spirit and conscience wondrously in such a manner of deliverance, of so precious a subject. More spiritual was the joy of the Church, at the deliverance of Peter and John out of the Prison, Act.4.24, &c.

take Daniel up] Not staying, it seems, for those Lords whose Seales were upon the stones; nor for the coming of the accusers. For no doubt he had witnesses enough, of the thing with him: and the preservation it self was an ocular demonstration of the miracle: and the view of it raised up Darius his spirit to the height of Courage and resolution; without them to amend what he had done amisse; being also that the sentence of the Decree against Daniel was already satisfied.

believed in his God] Because he committed himself wholly unto his God, whose cause he did defend, he hoped, trusted, was allured by his promises, that nothing but good could come unto him, whether by life or death; wherein we see the power of Faith, and the Nature of it. Heb.11.33. and throughout that whole Chapter, in which grace of Faith in Christ, the Covenant of the Gospel on mans part doth wholly consist. And therefore so many, and so great things are spoken of Belief & Faithin Scripture.

V. 24. and the King commanded] The absolute power of this King. The like frequent in Scripture. His just wrath was so incensed; the miracle so wonderful, and the guiltinesse of the malefactors so evident, that without any processe or further condemnation, he commands their execution.

accused Daniel] See note, Chap.3.8.

cast them into the den of lions] This is a terrible example against all the wicked, which do against their conscience make cruel laws to destroy the children of God; and also admonisheth Princes how to punish such when their wickednesse is come to light; though not in every point, or with like circumstances; yet to execute true Justice upon them. This just on Gods part by the law of Retaliation. Psal.7.15,16. and 9.15,16.

their children, and their wives,] The like or more, we may read of Achan and his family, Josh.7.24,25. Haman was hanged up, and his sons, Esth.9.14. By the law of Nature, and Nations, Rebels are punished, also in their wives, children, and posterity, though not with death; yet confidering that law, Deut.24.16. with that 2 Chr.25.4. either Darius feems here to be unjustly cruel, or these wives and children were accessaries to the crime of their husbands, and parents.

brake all their bones] Persecutors oft-times have bloody ends. Here was no stopping of the Lions mouches, no taming of their rage and cruelty, no over-mastering them.

or ever they came at the bottome] This adds lustre to Daniels miraculous deliverance, that it was not for want of hunger, and Natural ferocity that the Lions spared Daniel; but that it was Gods hand over-ruling them: as we see Gods hand in ruling that Lion, 1 King.13.24,28,29. all Gods creatures are his hoast, to do his will; for reward or punishment. That fancy, that the Accusers alleadged the Lions to have been full of food, and therefore for that space of time to have spared Daniel; and that the King thereupon should have them fed, and thereafter have the Accusers cast in to them, is a foolish fiction without any ground.

V. 25. Then Darius] This marvailous work of God had a marvailous good effect in the heart of Darius. Gods workes should not be slightly passed over; but accordingly made use of, Psal.92. 4,5. and 8.3,4. Of this Darius, see Annotations on Chap.5.31. Many Kings of the Medes and Persians were after him called by this name; as the Heathen Histories of times do declare. There was after this first Monarch Darius the son of Hystaspes, Darius Artaxerxes Longimanus, Darius Nothus, Darius Artaxerxes Ochus, Darius Codomannus, whom Alexander the great conquered. And the sacred Histories of the books of Ezra, Nehemiah, and Esther, fall within these times; Begin with the beginning of the Persian Monarchy, Ezra 1.1. and reach to the final period of it by Alexander the Great Greek, in the H.P. Faddua's time, Neh.12.11.

peace] Chap.4. See the Annotations there. This word in the Hebrew, and Chaldee, and all languages, comprehends all outward prosperity; and worldly felicity. and therefore is so usual in all salutations and greetings.

V. 26. I make a decree] Chap.3.29. a good example to Christian Kings.

tremble and fear] God maketh heathen Princes sometime to acknowledge his power. See Chap.3.29. The true fear of God is the fountain of wisdome, Prov.1.7. & 9.10. The want of it, the sluce for all sin. It compreheds the whole worship and service of God, all acts of Religion.

the God of Daniel] His God, in a peculiar way, whom only, and no other, Daniel owned, worships, serves, obeyes, and who thus owned, honours, and defends Daniel.

the living God] Which hath not only life in himself, but is the only fountain of life, and quickneth all things; so that without him there is no life, 1 Sam.2.6. Act.17.25.

which shall not be destroyed] Chap.2.44. & 4.3,34. & 7.14,27. Luk.1.33. Mic.4.7.

V. 27. He delivereth] God to be acknowledged, and praised in his works. The Psalms are full of it.

V. 28. prospered] Flourished in his state and honours; in offices and employments; in spight of the envy and malice of all wicked men. He prospered, as Joseph, Hezekiah, Mordecai, and others, Psal.1.3. when as the wicked prosper not; as Coniah, Jer.22.30. but are holden with the cords of their own sin, Prov. 5.22. Psal.7.16. and 9.16. Prov.22.8. Of their prospering for a while, see Job 21.7 —— 14. Jer.12.1. Psal.73.4——12.

of Cyrus the Persian] Chap.1.21. Thus God provides men its honour, for the comfort of his Church in her calamity.

CHAP. VII.

Verf.1. IN Now Daniel proceeds in his Narration from Historics, in the former part, to prophecies in the latter half of this book; Therein fore-telling the succession of times, and of the Kingdomes of the world; and what things therein should befall the Church of God, the people of the Jewes, until the time of the coming of Christ (numbred up in him) and the time of the promulgation of the Gospel.

the first year of Belshazzar] Chald. one year. So Chap.1.1. and 2.1. That Daniel might joyn together Babels stories, and facts as did depend upon them without interruption, therefore he displaced the two visions which now follow; the one, in the first of Belshazzar of Babels fall, Chap.7. the other, in the third of Belshazzar, of the Persians fall, Chap.8. Both which in order of time go before the fifth Chapter. Of this Belshazzar, see Chap.5.1.

Daniel had a dream] Chald. saw a dream. Different in visions but of the same matter and argument, with that of Nebuchadnezzar, Chap.2. interpreted by Daniel there: only what is there more generally shadowed out, is set forth in succeeding times, more particularly, with many circumstances, in this Chapter, and in those which follow. This dream was 70 yeares after that dream of Nebuchadnezzar, Chap.2. If we reckon 30 yeares to the reign of Evilmerodach, and Daniel now was neer one hundred years old, and visions of his head] Visions in his dream. Not that these were distinct from his dream. Visions and Oracles were the two wayes, by which God revealed his Will to his Prophets, Num.12. 6,7,8. Visions were vouchsafed to them, sometimes waking, as Zach.1.8, &c. and Chap.3.1. Jer.1.11,13. sometimes sleeping in dreams, Job 33.15. So Gen.28.12. Act.2.17. So here to Daniel: presenting not to the external sense, but internally to the imagination and phantasie, visible things, as representements of Gods Will and pleasure signified thereby, Dan.4.5.

head] The shop and seat of dreams and visions.

upon his bed] Where he slept and dreamed in the night, ver.2. a place and time fit for such kind of Revelations.

then he wrote the dream] He the Writer of this book; and no other: and he wrote this Dream; left it not to be told only by tradition; but in a surer way wrote it, by Gods inspiration and instinct, 2 Pet.1.19,20,21. And that because it did not concern him alone, but the whole Church in after ages; to confirm and comfort them against the great calamities that were to come. For whereas the people of Israel looked for continual quietnesse after these seventy years, as Jeremiah foreseen to them to have declared; he sheweth that this rest shall not be a deliverance from all troubles, but a beginning; and therefore encourageth them to look for a continual affliction till the Messiah be revealed, by whom they should have a spiritual deliverance, and all the promises fulfilled; whereof they should have a certain token in the destruction of the Babylonian Kingdom. See 1 Cor.10. ver.11.

and told the sum of the matters] Chald. the head of the words Verf.16. He wrote and told them, to wit, to his people; because for their instruction and consolation, against persecutors to come. God shewed that dream to Daniel. The chief heads therefore and material points, for the use of the Church, he relates and records in these facred Commentaries.

V. 2. Daniel spake and said] The Scripture then is not a dumbe and dead letter: but speaks; and therein we heare the Prophets and Apostles speaking; and so fitteth to teach all truth, and convince all Errour, and to be the judg in controversies of Religion, 2 Tim.3.16,17.

by night] In time of silence and sequestration, from worldly affairs: so, usually. And yet sometimes by day; as Acts 10. 9, 10. & 22. 17. See, Psal. 16. 7.

the four winds] Here some, with more curiosity and boldnesse, then modesty and soundnesse, by the winds, will understand Angels, and some of them good Angels, the guardians of these Empires, whereto they apply that, Chap. 10. 13, 20, 21. & Chap. 11. 1. & Chap. 12. 1. Others, understand bad Angels: But we rest in the letter of the Dream, and understand onely the mighty concussions, stirs, tumults and troubles, that were the rise and original of these several Empires. And therefore of these winds, the Angel in his interpretation to Daniel, makes not any mention, but onely of the Empires themselves. By the winds then blowing, we onely conceive those horrible troubles, afflictions and mutations, whereby one Empire is exalted, and another abased: as the waves of the sea are, by the boysterous winds: especially, if all the four winds at once, blow together upon it. Yet all sent, and ruled by Gods providence.

strove] One against another, to trouble the sea: imo miscentes æquora fundo, Eurus, Notusque ruunt creberque procellis Africus, volvuntque ad littora fluctus.

great sea] Mid-land sea. So called, in relation to the Dead sea, and the Sea of Tiberius: which were but Lakes in comparison of it. Yet in sacred Idiome, the great vessel it self, for water, in the Court of Solomons Temple, is called a Sea, 2 Chron. 4. 2, 10. By the Sea, here, is signified the world, vers. 17.

V. 3. beasts] Empires decyphered in this manner; because the acquiring of them is not gotten, nor the possession of them maintained, nor the government of them exercised, but by brutish violence and tyranny.

came up] Not altogether, but in processe of time, successively, as the verses following do declare.

the Sea] Not calm, but troubled, and tossed thus with tempests.

divers one from another] So figured before in the divers mettals of Nebuchadnezzars Image, Chap. 2. and so described diverslie, in the verses following.

V. 4. the first] The golden head, Dan. 2. 38. and the great tree, Dan 4. 20, 21, 22. is the power of Babel, the first Empire, in Daniels book. This in its best and flourishing estate.

a lion] The Trent Bible hath a Lioness: contrary to the Chaldee and Hebrew; and in a manner all Translators. The Lion here represents the Empire of the Chaldeans, in regard of his power, cruelty, and capacity, Isa. 5. 29. Jer. 4. 7.

Eagles wings] As the Lion is the King of Beasts, so the Eagle is the King of Birds. Both make to magnifie this Monarchy, both for courage, power, and speed. Wings here point out the great celerity of Nebuchadnezzar coming to his power and possession of kingdoms; as if the Babylonians had wings to fly, Isa. 5. 26. Jer. 4. 13. & 48. 40. & 49. 19, 22. Lam. 4. 19. Ezek. 17. 3. Hab. 1. 6, 8. So Athur hath wings, Esay 8. 8.

plucked] These Eagles wings were great, long, full of feathers, of divers colours, Ezek. 17. 3. But now Daniel, in this vision foresees them plucked. Armies and Provinces, fell from them; the Lydians, the Medes and Persians, that had formerly obeyed and served them, were risen up against them, and so plucked their wings, that they went on their feet, and were made like other men. This was their declining estate; and at last fulfilled, under Belshazzar. See, Jer. 51. 30.——64.

and it was lifted] Or, Wherewith it was lifted above the common fort of other men. Though some translate and understand, as if it were taken away from the face of the earth, and perished.

made stand] Compelled to stand: and made to understand its own fragility and imbecility, and the worlds inconstancy.

a mans heart] This hath not reference to Nebuchadnezzar, Chap. 4. 16. This respects not any singular person, but the State of the whole Empire; that of Nebuchadnezzar was past this to come, in the fall of the Empire. When they came to have a mans heart, after their wings were plucked, that is, a soft, fearful, broken, and dejected heart. So Cyrus dealt with them, & abased them; as Xenophon shews, in his seventh Book of the Institution of Cyrus. Then their Lion-like heart, that insolent proud heart, Chap. 5. 15. Esay 14. 13. was gone. Now they well-knew themselves to be but men, Psal. 9. 20.

V. 5. a second] This is omitted in the Trent Bible.

a Bear] Meaning the Empire of the Persians, Dan. 2. 39. & 8. 3. This follows the Lion. And so the Lion and Bear, are often joyned together in Scripture; as Prov. 28. 15. Hos. 13. 8. Amos 5. 19. Lam. 3. 10. Some here say, the Persian Empire is represented by the Bear, because Persia, a mountainous countrey, much abounds in Bears; and those of a crueller kind. Others, because of their ferocity and voracity; of their barbarous cruelty, and uncivil demeanour, Esay 13. 17, 18. of their austerity and craft. Others, proceed further, to liken them to Bears, in the natural weaknesse of their heads; and in their rice and original, their rising being but for did and base; as rude and unlikely, as a Bears Whelp is without form and shape. But we may not be so curious in these assimulations. They were lesse generous, more uncivil then the Chaldeans; though they were of great strength and durance, hardship and labour, and great Warriours, and much inclined to set upon Empires and States. Compared they are to silver, Chap. 2. 32, 39. as inferiour to the former: to a Ram, Chap. 8. 3, 4.

it raised up it self on one side] Or, it raised up one dominion Chald. one Government, Madai and Paras, two arms in one breast, now set up a joint government. The Trent Bible thus, it stood in part. With their Expositions raised thereupon: improper in themselves, and inconsistent with the true Text.

three ribs] Meaning People, and their Relicts, and Remains, devoured by the Persians, and their bear-like voracity. Which very thing the following words do intimate: for by three ribs are signified, people of three coasts of the world; from the East (which afore it held) it brake into the West, North, and South; as it is fore-told, Chap. 8. 4. Xenophon first Book of the Institution of Cyrus. Others translate Rowes, for Ribs, making three rowes of teeth; and understanding thereby those three Presidents, Chap 6. 2. Or rather the three Kingdomes of Media, Persia, and Babylon, which devoured the other Kingdoms & Provinces, as was faid and made them their prey and meat, feeding upon their Weal, Customes, Revenews, and States.

they said] Or, it was said impersonally: an Idiome in the sacred tongues not unusual. This is not the saying of Haman to Ahasuerus against the Jewes, Esth. 3. But of the Princes to their Emperours generally; stirring up their spirits to further conquests to enlarge their Empires; as Darius the Mede, the Hyrcanians, Gobryas, and others had set on Cyrus to those first atchievements; as Xenophon shews in his said book. Or else it is the speech of the Angels, ver. 10. Or chiefly of the ancient dayes, ver. 9. By whose means and secret instinct of his providence, the Persian Emperours were driven on to those great designs, and the enterprises and atchievements thereof were made easie unto them, Esay 21. 2.

Arise] Stir up and prepare thy self; as Josh. 1. 2. Gen. 13. 17. Act. 12. 7.

devour much flesh] Cruelly destroy many Nations and People. A likely and suitable consequent, to the teeth of this devouring Beast.

V. 6. another like a leopard] The Empire of Alexander the Great, and Greece for the first partition. This role after the former. A Leopard is a spotted beast, Jer. 13. 23. yet fair, and sweet, and comely. He is swift, Hab. 1. 8. watchful, cunning, and suddain, Jer. 5. 6. Hos. 13. 7. He is active, fierce, and strong; seeming outward ly harmlesse, yet crafty, cruel, and greedy of mans blood. And all alike was Alexander the Great; spotted with vices, yet graced also with singular vertues; his body, as Historians record, of a rare odoriferous smell: both body and mind answerable to these other qualifications. This is called a third Kingdom; the belly and thighs of brasse; a Kingdom of brasse, Dan. 2. 32, 39. The he-goat, Dan. 8. 5. A mighty King, Dan. 11. 3. They that would understand this Beast to be the Greek and Roman Empire joyned together, to make way for the Turkish Empire to be meant by the 4. Beast, are in all very much mistaken, and need no refutation.

four wings of a fowl] To shew its wonderful swiftnesse. This, to the Leopard, is as much as to add much swiftnesse to swiftnesse, which indeed was admirable in Alexander the Great, in subduing Greece, destroying Thebes, overthrowing the Persians in the Arbrastian fields, at the river Granicum, at Issus, a City of Cilicia: And lastly, and finally, at Arbela: So gaining the Empire of Persia, and Asia, and all in 6 years, flying as a Thunderbolt: besides his siege, and winning of Tyre; of Judea, and Syria, of Egypt, and many other Kingdoms, Nations, and People. He reigned in all but 12 years, fix in his Monarchy. See, Chap. 8. vers. 5. touched not the ground.

four heads] Either the four Tetrarchies in Alexander the great, his hereditary Kingdom of Macedon; which afterwards grew to be four Kingdoms; or, the four Kingdoms into which the Empire of Alexander was divided after his death; which his four chief Captains had, Dan. 8. 8. & 11. 4. 1 Mac. 1. 9, 10. Seleucus Nicanor had Asia the great; Perdiccas, and after him Antigonus had Asia the lesse; Cassander, and after Philip and Lysimachus, Antipater was King of Macedonia, and Ptolomeus had Egypt. For the other eight starsing up upon Alexanders death, they rather coveted and fought kingdoms, then got and possessed them, and soon vanished and perished. The Beast, Apoc. 13. 1. hath 7 heads.

and dominion was given to it] It was not of himself, nor of his own power; or, that Alexander did all those stupendious things, gat all these Countries; for his army contained but 30000 men; and he overcame in one battel Darius, which had ten hundred thousand he overcame in one battel Darius, which had ten hundred thousand men; when instantly before the battel he was so heavy with sleep, that his eyes could scarce open, as the stories report; Therefore this power was given him of God, and so much himself confessed, when he met Judeus the High Priest of the Jews, in his Pontificial attire, Joseph. Antiq. 6. 11. Chap. 8. See Chap. 2. 21, 37, 38. & 4. 25. Prov. 8. 15, 16. Rom. 13. 1, 2. Joh. 19. 11.

V. 7. a fourth beast] Not named, because it was the same Nation with the former; but in distinguished from the former by ten horns, horns, whereof one most strange, having eyes, and mouth, and speaking very great words. Nor yet is it likened to any one certain kind of beast; by reason of the great varieties, and many diversities that were in it. And therefore this beast hath somewhat the more obscurity and difficulty in it. And this, together with the many great things spoken of it, makes Daniel so particularly inquisitive after this fourth beast, ver. 19, 20. yet by Dan. 8. 9. we may find that the first meaning of this Prophecie hath relation to the Kingdoms of Syria and Egypt, possessed by the Seleucidæ, and Lagidæ, the images two legs, Dan. 2. 33. The Roman Empire (though not here meant) and much lesse the Turkish Empire) did imitate this afterwards, in the persecution of the Church, the subversion and interdiction of Gods service; and violence done to consciences: And the Revelation doth hit many of these passages of Daniel to Antichrist. See Dan. 2. 40. Yet the Seleucidæ that had the Kingdoms of Syria and Asia, seem to be most properly and punctually meant; by whom Gods people the Jewes suffered infinite evils and mischiefs. In the fore-telling, and description whereof, the greatest part of the Chapters following, is taken up and imployed.

dreadful and terrible] More then the former Beasts; especially to Gods people the Jewes; to whom Daniel properly hath respect; as Chap. 1. 40. who never were more cruelly used, then by the Seleucidæ, Dan. 8. 11, 12. & 11. 31, 36.

great Iron teeth] Teeth, that is, Leaders and Armies; and these great ones, not little teeth, but big and long grinders: and these of Iron, that is strong; as the word Iron is likewise used and applyed to a furnace, a neck, a yoke, a rod, a wall. These teeth were instruments meet to grinde and diminish the Jews.

and stamped the residue with the feet of it] Vers. 23. That is, whom it did not consume, those it did most shamefully trample upon; troubling their minds, and bodies, with all kinds of cruelties; as, Psal. 8. 13.

and it was divers] As otherwise; so in regard his tyranny over the people of God tended to force them to idolatry; and to annihilate Gods service, which none of the precedent Empires had attempted.

and it had tenhorns] Not ten kinds of Government in the Roman Empire before Christs coming, but personally ten Kings. And these not reigning altogether, a little before the end of the world, out of the ruines of the Roman Empire, as some weakly conceive; but succeeding one another in that kingdome of the Greeks, or Seleucidæ, until Antiochus comprehending him among the rest, ver. 24. For although he had successors, yet the people of God (in regard of whom these things are spoken) began after Antiochus to re-assume their liberty, under the Asmoneans, or Maccabees, untill Christ.

V. 8. among them] as 1 Sam. 17. 34. not that his horn was the middlemost of the ten.

another little horn] Or, the last a little horn, Vers. 21, 24. Chap. 8. 9. This is not meant of Antichrist, as Papists would bear us in hand; to be the letter thereby inabled to thrist & shuffle off the true Antichrist from the Popes Chair. But this is that Antiochus, called Epiphanes, or Epimanes rather; who is one and the last of the number of the ten Kings, which are signified here by ten horns. See, Chap. 11. 21.

before whom] Chald. before the face whereof; as elsewhere before the face of the sword, of the bear, of the famine.

Three of the first horns plucked up by the roots] That is, Kings plucked up by him by force and fraud. See ver. 20, 24.

In this horn were eyes] To signifie his Natural sagacity, sharpnesse of wit, and craft, Dan. 8. 23, 25. & 11. 23, 32.

of man] Here is noted the feigned humanity of Antiochus Epiphanes: who was not right heir, but as a private man, a younger brother, and allyed in consanguinity to the Kings, whom by much policy he defeated.

speaking great things] He shall be exceeding haughty in words, 1 Mac. 1. 25. and cruel in bloody Decrees; and a great blasphemer of God himself, persecuting the Saints, and commanding the abolishing of the Law, ver. 25. Dan. 8. 23, 25. & 36. 1 Mac. 1. 46, 47. See the like to this in Pagan Rome, Rev. 13. 5.

V. 9. I beheld] And continued so.

till] Not that he left off beholding after. And in like sense is the word used, 2 Sam. 6. 23. Psal. 110. 1. Mat. 28. 20. & 22. 44.

the Thrones were cast down] Chald. Thrones were set up, or speedily set, or they cast them: Speaking impersonally. See ver. 10, 11, 26. These are not the Thrones of the Beasts, wherein they ruled before. But of the Ancient of dayes. Thrones for Judgement, on which Judges should sit; one Throne for God, the other for the Son of David. Yet this is not meant of the last judgement, at the second coming of Christ, Rev. 20. 4. Mat. 25. 31, 32. But of Gods coming in judgement against Antiochus Epiphanes; in his time, and the remainder of the former Empires. That this is the meaning, appears, by the words following; also by conference of verses, 8, 11, 20, 22, 25, 26. that is, till God did enter into judgement against Antiochus Epiphanes, as we said; for the deliverance, and for the revenge of his people the Jewes. A figurative description it is; as Psal. 76. 7. & 47. And when God comes to judgement, his enemies scatter, and their Thrones indeed are cast down, Esay 2. 10, &c. Joel 2. 11. Mal. 3. 2. Psal 9. 4.

Ancient of dayes did sit] A figurative representation of God, which was before all times; and of his glorious Majestie; set out unto us; as mans nature is able to apprehend some portion of his glory. And God, or rather the person of God the Father is here personally meant; as appears, vers. 13. For there Christ the Son of Man comes to him, is brought before him. As the like is, Apoc. 5. 6, 7. These and other visions of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, vouchsafed in Scripture, to Prophets, and Holy men of God, for special ends, by the special pleasure and dispensation of Gods Will, are not warrants for us to make pictures and Images, of the persons of the Trinity by them, against the rule of the second Commandement.

did sit] Psal. 9. 4, 7. as Judges do on the Tribunal. So shewing his Judicial authority. Their not sitting in giving judgement, doth in Countries invalidate their sentence.

garment white] To shadow out the glory of his Majesty, and the Innocency and pure Integrity of his Justice, Psal. 104. 1, 2. & 51. 4. Rom. 3. 4. Thus Christ is set forth in garments white as snow, at his Transfiguration, Mat 17. 2. And again, Apoc. 1. 14. The Angels, Mat. 28. 3. Act. 1. 10. The Saints in heaven, Apoc. 7. 13. & Chap. 4. 4. Josephs vestures in Egypt were of fine white linnen, Gen 41. 42.

the fiery flame] Our God is a consuming fire, Heb. 12. 29. Apoc. 1. 14. See, Deut. 4. 12.

and his wheels as burning fire] Gods Throne is here described with wheels, 1 Chron. 28. 18. Ezek. 1. 15. & 10. 9. to shew that Gods providence moveth every where, to govern all things; and provide for all things: and it points out Gods celerity, and facility, in executing his judgements; as the lightning, &c. Mat. 24. 27. See Apoc. 1. 14, 15.

V. 10. a fiery stream issued] Hereby is signified the inevitable and consuming force of Gods judgements. See Psal. 50. 3. & 97. 2. ——— 7. Isa. 30. 33. for the comfort of the godly, and the terrour of the wicked thousand thousands] Psalm. 68. 17. Revel. 5. 11. 2 King. 22. 19.

ministred unto him] Psal. 103. 20. & 34. 7. Matth. 18. 10. Heb. 1. 14.

and ten thousand times ten thousand] An infinite number of holy Angels, which were ready to execute his Commandement, Mat. 26. 53. 2 King. 6. 17. which number more largely expliceates the same thing which was intended in the former number: as Mat. 18. 21. Psal. 91. 7. Not that from hence can be gathered a greater number of Angels that stand before God, then of those that minister unto him; or that any such different and distinction of Angels can be made out of this verse; as some Popish Schoolmen labour to do.

the Judgement was set] The Judge, with his ministers and assistance, approving and praising his justice and judgements; as Psal. 119. 137.

books were opened] Terms taken from Judgements among men; In which the Inquest, proofs, confessions, and other evidences, and writings are produced to frame the Judgement by: and the Lawes also are considered, whereupon the Judgement is made. See Rev. 20. 12. where the like processe is used in that last and general great Judgement day. Where the main Books are the Consciences of men, Rom. 2. 14. and the Scriptures of God, Joh. 5. 45. Both then opened by God in a special manner, Psal. 50. 21. Here the impious actions of this horn, Antiochus Epiphanes, and evidences against him, are recited, as out of Books and Records, that for them, Judgement may passe upon him. It is not Antichrist, as we have often soin said, that is here judged and condemned, mentioned or meant.

V. 11. because of the voyce of the great words] Chal. from the voyce; that is, from the time it was heard. For from that time of Antiochus Epiphanes, and because of his great words against God, and the Church of God, then God began to shake and destroy the Kingdome of the Seleucidæ, with inward and with outward stirs.

even till the beast was slain] As in the Images ruine he began with the Legs first, and not with the Head, which first perished: so here, first he speaketh of the ruine of the last; for the safety of his own Nation: that the Chaldeans should pick no quarrel for this Vision. The beast then here is the fourth and last beast. The kingdome of the Seleucidæ, a while after Antiochus Epiphanes his death, 1 Mac. 6. 8, 13. was overthrown by the Parthians, and by Tygranes King of Armenia; as Appianus Alexandrinus shewes.

and his body destroyed] By Pompey the Great; taking Tygranes; abolishing the very shew and seeming face of a Kingdome; and reducing Syria into a Province, as Appian and Josephus testifie.

V. 12. As concerning the rest of the beasts] Chald. the residue of the beasts, or their relicts and remains. They now perished with this; and were utterly taken away by the Romanes. Or thus, speaking speaking in the time past; as the three former Monarchies have had an end, at the time that God appointed, although they flourithed for a time; so shall this fourth have: and they that patiently abide Gods appointment, shall enjoy the Promises.

they had their dominion taken away] Not at that very time; they had it before. The meaning is, that every great Empire, and Enemy, and persecutor of the Church, was destroyed before Christs coming upon the earth, from time to time, each one in his time: though the people of them still continued and subsisted, in some weak and low form of state. See Dan. 2. 35. until all the remainders were brought under, by the Romanes.

yet their lives were prolonged] Chald. a prolonging in life was given them: had been given them; for a certain set time, by Gods providence; which time they could no wayes over-passe. Thus whole Kingdoms, though suffered long in sin, yet at last are totally ruined for sin.

V. 13. night-visions] Vers. 1.

behold] Daniels attentive heed; to the erection of the new and eternal kingdome of Christ.

one like the son of man] Or, as a son of man: Which is meant of Christ, who had not yet taken upon him mans nature; neither was the son of David, according to the flesh, as he was afterward; but in vision onely, and appatition here, Daniel seeth him coming from the Father, and returning to his Father again. The Jews grant Christ to be here so termed. And in the four Evangelists, our Saviour terming himself Son of Man, most graciously calleth us to weigh this Text. This phrase, like the Son of Man, is used also of him, in vision, after his Ascension, Rev. 1. 13. & 14. 14. and may intimate somewhat more in him, then meer man. See Joh. 1. 14. Those places, Rom. 8. 3. Phil. 2. 7. shew the state and condition of his Humane Nature.

came] To work the mystery of our redemption upon earth.

with the clouds of heaven] Rose not out of the Sea; as those former Beasts and Empires did. But came in the clouds of heaven, from heaven, Psal. 104. 3. Act. 1. 9, 11. Mat. 24. 30. & 26. 64.. Rev. 1. 7. & 14. 14, 15, 16.

to the ancient of dayes] Christ, after his Resurrection, is ascended into heaven; and is set at the right hand of his Father; and from him hath obtained all power in heaven, and in earth. See Ezek. 1. 26. Joh. 16. 16, 28. Act. 1. 9, & 2. 34, 36. Heb. 1. 3, 4. Rev. 1. 13. & 14. 14.

and they brought him neer before him] Or, was brought; impersonally: Or, the holy Angels did it. For though Christ ascended by vertue of his Divinity; yet Angels are his ministring Spirits, to attend on him, Heb. 1. 6, 14. This is not meant of his second coming to judgement; nor can be so properly applyed thereunto.

V. 14. dominion and glory] This is meant of the beginning of Christs Kingdom, Mat. 28. 18. Joh. 3. 35. When God the Father, at his ascension, specially, gave unto him all dominion as to the Mediatour; to the intent that he should govern, here, his Church on earth continually, till the time that he brought them to eternal life. This is the sitting at the right hand of his Father, Psal. 2. 4—10. And this power he exerciseth in the midst of his foes; maintaining his Church, and overthrowing his enemies; as it is, Psal. 110. 1, 2.

and a kingdome] The conclusion of our Lords prayer, Mat. 6. 13. calleth into our minds this speech; and teacheth of the King of Eternity, 1 Tim. 1. 17. who joyneth Jewes and Gentiles, in one kingdome.

that all people] Psal. 2. 8. Ephes. 1. 20, 21, 22, 23. Phil. 2. 9, 10, 11. Rev. 19. 16. Jewes and Gentiles. Not so was it with any earthly Monarch whatsoever.

his dominion] Chald. sultan: Whence possibly the word sultane, or soldan, might arise.

an everlasting Dominion] Chap. 2. 44. Psal. 145. 13. Mic. 4. 7. Luk. 1. 33. To endure after his ascension for ever. This is the dominion, and power of his office, given to the Person of the Mediatour, in regard of both his Natures; and distinct from the essential power of the divine Nature. And this argues not the constant visibility, and outward flourishing estate of any one particular Christian Church on earth: but the duration of Christs dominion in his Church, in this world, even in the midst of his enemies, Mat. 16. 18. & 28. 18, 20. 2. Psa. 110. 2. and the complement thereof in the Church triumphant for ever.

V. 15. I Daniel] The interpretation of the whole vision, by an Angel, at the request of Daniel.

was grieved in my spirit] Much perplexed and wounded, as if a weapon had pierced through him.

body] Chald. sheath; as if his spirit had lesse it; and his body were become as a dead sheath.

troubled me] According to the manner of Prophets, Daniel specially, who, after their extasies, through the greatnesse, and brightnesse of the sight of Gods Majesty, which did dazle their senses, tire their spirits, and over-do their natural faculties, were astonished and fainted. See Chap. 7. 28. & 8. 27. and 10. 8, 16. and troubled also at the wonder of the vision, and in that he knew not what should be meant by it. And thus was Pharaoh troubled at his divine dream, Gen. 41. 8. and Nebuchadnezzar, Dan. 2. 1. which stirred them up so much to know the interpretation of them.

V. 16. unto one of them that stood by] Namely, one of the Angels that appeared in this vision; as vers. 10.

the truth of all this] The proper meaning.

V. 17. these great beasts] Likely so called, in consideration of their beastly and savage dealing, against the families of our Lords ancestors, the house of Zorobabel, and the Nation that should have their Kings from it.

four kings] Kingdomes, vers. 23, 24. whereof, Chap. 2. 39, 40. He may seem to use the term Kings, rather then kingdoms, that the next verse, short in the Chaldee, should not be mistaken; and that none should think of four Kings, to hold a kingdome for ever and ever; as the translation of that verse will bear. The Prophet seems not unwilling to hide his minde from savage Heathen.

shall arise] The Chaldean kingdom was risen already, and in present being. He speaks, as respecting the greater part.

arise] Arising here, may, perhaps have a kind of relation to their rising over the kingdom of the Saints, and with-holding it.

out of the earth] Sea, vers. 3. They are distinct, Revel. 13. 1, 11. Here one is an explication of the other; meaning the world, and the tempestuous troubles, and rowling changes of it.

V. 18. But] Or the verse may be rendred thus; And they shall take the kingdom of the Saints of the most high; but they that are Saints, shall possesse the kingdome for ever, even for ever & ever. Meaning, though those four Kingdoms, which Daniel speaketh of, should, for a time, rule over the Jews; (who are called the Saints of the highest here, and after, vers. 21, 22.) yet Christ coming should set up a Kingdom, to rule for ever. But our own translation, best agrees with the Chaldee distinction, here used; and with the Context following, in this verse, and vers. 22, & 27.

the Saints] The house of Zorobabel, by Abihud, and Rhesa, Mat. 1. 13. Luk. 3. 27. (though they be not mentioned among Zorobabels sons, 1 Chron. 3. 19.) and the godly of their Nation; to wit, the Church of God, in Christ her head, first, and afterward the whole Body, which shall be perfectly united with him, shall receive from God, a spiritual and everlasting kingdom. See vers. 22. Isa. 60. 12. Rev. 1. 6. & 5. 10. wherein of the Maccabees Principality was but a shadow; and was between the reign of Antiochus, and the coming of Christ.

of the most high] Chald. high ones; that is, things, or, places: that is, of the most high things, because God hath chosen them out of this world, that they should look up to the heavens, whereon all their hope dependeth: or highest, in the plural number, to teach us of the divine persons, as Abraham speaketh plurally, Gen. 20. 13. and David, 2 Sam. 7. 22. Here; it was fit in a distinct vision of the son, and of the father; as thrones also are plural, ver. 9. See Eccles. 5. 8.

that take the kingdom] That Kingdome, ver. 14. not that the Beasts should take the kingdom of the Saints of the most High, or of the most high God, and possesse it for ever, as the Trent Bible renders it, and forceth its followers commonly to expound it. But the Saints should take and possesse it; as hath been said.

V. 19. Then I would] Not satisfied with that short answer, he desires to know more.

of the fourth beast] Of this specially: for of this, most and last was mentioned in the vision, ver. 7, 8, &c. many strange, and prodigious things spoken of it: and therefore Daniel repeats them here again, with some enlargements.

was diverse] Vers. 7. It was partly unlike, because two Kings, Syria and Egypt, both claimed right over Judah, since the dayes of Seleucus Nicanor, and Ptolomy Lagi, and made continual wars for it: but divers also in cruel spoiling the Jews, and in hatred of their Religion: which Babel, Madai, and Alexander, more favoured. See ver. 23.

from all the others] Chald. from all those.

and his nails of brasse] Or, Steel. This not mentioned in the vision, ver. 7. This signifies, that this Kingdome of the Seleucidæ, should tear in pieces the Jews, as a wilde beast teareth his prey with his clawes. This we see in the history of Josephus, and the Maccabees.

V. 20. ten horns] Of the Kings Seleucidæ and Lagidæ, which greatly troubled the Kingdome, when the house of Zorobabel should have reigned to the glory and comfort of all the world, vers. 8.

and of the other] Particularly of that, because the things spoken of it, did seem strange and prodigious, and to prognostick and portend some great and fearful, direful, and ominous matters; and therefore he doth here again recount them, as vers. 8. 11.

before whom three fell] See Annotations on vers. 8. and vers. 24.

whose look] This not mentioned in the vision, vers. 7, 8. there called a little horn; for such was Antiochus Epiphanes at the beginning. Here his looks more stout then his fellows; for so in the end he exceeded them all in power, and great enterprises, Chap. 8. 10, & 11. 37.

V. 21. made war] See the like, Apoc. 11. 7. & 13. 7. Thus the wicked, even the Babylonians in their time, Zach. 1. 19, 21. Antiochus in his time; and Antichrist in his time likewise, prevail over the Saints, vers. 19. of this Chapter. This made Daniel so inquisitive after this beast, and the particularities of it: Though this War with the Saints, and prevailing over them, was not specified in the vision before.

with the Saints] With the Jewes, as the Books of the Maccabees do shew. Papists, understanding this little Horn of their conceited Antichrist, that should reign but three years and an half before the end of the world, and Christs second coming to judgement, do make the Saints here, to be the Elect and godly, living in that short time. And this War to be that of Antichrist against them: and hereunto they apply, Math. 24. 21, 24. and Revel. 13. 7.

V. 22. Ancient of dayes came] See vers. 9. Till God shewed his power in the person of Christ; and by the preaching of the Gospel, gave unto his Son rest.

and judgement was given] Neither was this mentioned before. The meaning is, till the Ancient of dayes came, vers. 9. and gave the power of judgement to them, in Christ the Head; in whom, the Saints are the Judges of the world, 1 Cor. 6. 2, 3. Mat. 19. 28. and they obtained, by the preaching of the Gospel, a famous name in the world, and became, in name and truth, the Kingdome of God.

to the saints] To the people of God, vet. 18. 21, 25. Chap. 8. 24. & 11. 30. To them, and on their behalfe; to possesse the kingdome.

possessed the kingdome] Vers. 14. It was given to Christ: the Saints here possesse it, in him their head; they possesse it as partners with him, and partakers in their degree and capacity. This must arme Gods people with patience, under the direst persecutions, and fill them with comfort and expectation in the meane time.

V. 23. Thus he said] To wit, the Angel, of whom he asked information concerning this matter, ver. 16. answering in order to the four points of Daniels question.

the fourth beast] The Kingdome of Asia; or Syria, or of the Seleucidæ; so called, because the farre greater part of those Kings, were Seleucidæ, two onely of the Lagidæ excepted: we may not with the Romish Church, understand this of the Roman Empire, as hath been said.

which shall be diverse] In cruelty; and is shewed in the next words, Not greater then all kingdoms; as the Trent Bible hath it, to make it thereby to be understood of the Roman Empire.

devour the whole earth] Not all the world; but the Holy Land, Namely Judea; as appears by vers. 25, 25. breaking and trampling it more then the three former Beasts did. See Luk. 23. 44.

V. 24. And the ten horns] Vers. 7, 8.

are ten Kings] viz. Seleucus Nicanor, Antiochus Soter, Antiochus Theos, Seleucus Callinicus, Ptolomeus Evergetes Lagida, Seleucid Ceraunus, Antiochus Magnus, Ptolomeus Philopater Lagida, Seleucus Philopater Antiochus Epiphanes. More Kings reigned after these ten: but they possessed not Judea; and so could not afflict the Jewes, Gods people: and therefore in this vision, which is vouchsafed for the Jews sake, no notice is taken of them. Of these things we read in Appianus, Alexandrinus, Memnon, Josephus and others. The Papists here, constant and consonant to their former errour, do make these ten Horns, answerable to the ten toes of the Feet of Nebuchadnezzars Image, Chap. 2. 33, 41, 42. and understand both of the Roman Empire, to be divided into ten Kings or kingdomes a little before the end of the World: and to the same purpose they apply the ten Horns of that seven-headed beast, Rev. 13. 1. & 17. 3, 7, 12. And yet they miserably vary among themselves about these Kings, and their number. But, as we have cleerly said, Daniels prophecie and visions meddle not at all with the Roman Empire, but as it may in some respect relate to the first coming of Christ.

and another shall arise after them] Antiochus Epiphanes, the last of those ten; and the last of the Seleucidæ, that reigned over Judea: for in his time the Maccabees delivered the Jewes from his tyranny and persecution. Most Papists apply this to Antichrist; some, to Mahomet.

divers from the first] More cruel to the Jewes, and perfidious, then the former nine Kings, 1 Mac. 1. 11.

three Kings] Ptolomæus Philopater, whom he, joyning forces with his father, and brother, drove out of Syria, Antiochus the Great, (his father) and Seleucus Philopater, his elder brother, whom he poysoned by Heliodorus. Others, more rightly, instead of his Father Antiochus Magnus, do put for the third, Demetrius the son of his brother Seleucus, the right heir. In applying this to Antichrist, Papists rather say nothing, or confesse they can onely divine.

V. 25. and he shall speak] Chap. 8. 24, 25. & 11. 28, 30. 1 Mac. 1. 46. See the like, Rev. 13. 5. 2 Thes. 2. 4.

against the most high] That is, speak blasphemies against God; and make wicked Decrees and proclamations against Gods Word, and send through all his Dominion, tyrannically and cruelly to destroy all the Jewes and godly people that did professe and practise it. This is largely set down, in Chap. 11.

Saints] Vers. 21. Chap. 8. 24, 25.

to change times] Sabbaths, Passover, Pentecost, expiation-day, the Feast of Tabernacles, New Moons, the seven yeares rest, and such like; Dan. 8. 11. and 11. 31. 1 Mac. 1. 47, 48. miserable shifts are made by Papists, to apply this to their conceited Antichrist.

and lawes] All Moses Ceremonies, and Laws, 1 Mac. 1. taking upon him a Divine power, usurping Gods own authority over his people; changing and abolishing Gods Laws, making new Lawes of his own clean contrary to Gods; and forcing most cruelly the peoples obedience unto them.

shall be given] He shall give such Lawes; and the Saints shall be given into his hand, to be oppressed, worn out, and over-powred by him.

time and times] A time here is a year: times, two years; and a dividing, or particle of time, seems to be ten dayes; as the history of the Maccabees sets it down, from the year 145 moneth 9 day 15 of the reign of the Greeks or Seleucidæ, until the yeare 148 moneth 9 day 25. 1 Macc. 1. 54. and Chap. 4. 52. See Chap. 12. 7. and the like, Chap. 14. 16. and Revel. 12. 14. and Chap. 13. 5.

and the dividing of time] Trent Bible thus; half a time. And so they expound it, half a year; contrary to the warrant of the Text, and the truth of the story.

V. 26. But the judgement shall sit] Ver. 9. God, the ancient of dayes, the just Judge shall sit in Judgement; and thenceforth not cease to execute his Judgements, to take away, consume, and utterly destroy that little horn, and the whole kingdome of the Seleucidæ; the fourth beast, vers. 9. 11. And this was done by the Maccabees, the Parthians, Tygranes; and lastly, and utterly by the Romane Pompey the Great; as Appianus in his book of the Wars of Syria, and other Authors do record. And these destructions are handled in Ezek. Chap. 38. & 39. And about 150 years afore our Lords Birth, are spent in this wasting of Syria and Egypt, the Seleucidæ and Lagidæ, by wars among themselves, and with the Maccabees and others, as hath been said.

V. 27. And the Kingdome] Vers. 14. Luk. 1. 33. He sheweth wherefore the Beast should be destroyed; to wit, that his Church might have rest and quietnesse, & a kingdom. Which rest, although they do not wholly enjoy here, yet they have it in hope; and by the preaching of the Gospel, enjoy the beginning thereof; which is meant by these words, under the heavens; and therefore he here speaketh of the Beginning of Christs Kingdome in this world; the Kingdome of the Messias; when Christ begins to reign in the hearts of the faithful amongst all the Nations of the whole world, Mar. 16. 15.

Shall be given to the people] Ver. 14. It was given to the Son; Here to the people of the most High. The Faithful have it by the participation that they have with Christ their head, 1 Cor. 1. 9. The head communicating its glory to its body. For Christ with all he hath as Redeemer, is considered as ours; His righteousnesse, sufferings, Kingdome, ours, Rom. 8. 32. Hence are those speeches, 1 Pet. 2. 9. Rev. 1. 6. & 5. 10. Mat. 11. 12.

whose Kingdome] Upon this all the New Testament goeth, and Paul to Timothy speaketh, 1 Tim. 1. 17. He advanceth the Gospel, and the praise of the King eternal, uncorrupt, invisible, God onely wise. Also the Revelation after the destruction of Jerusalem, is meerly heavenly Commentary upon this part.

is an everlasting Kingdome] Vers. 14. Heb. 12. 26, 27. though after a thousand years Satan was loosed for a little season, Rev. 20. 3. Mat. 28. 18.

and all Dominions] Or, Rulers; that is, some of every sort that beare rule; some of them, in all parts of the world. So 1 Tim. 2. 4.

V. 28. Hitherto is the end of the matter] Here end the visions of Daniel; which the Prophet penned in the tongue known over the East, and South; wherein the Jewes are not described plainly to be the people, for whom God plagueth the Kingdomes: and that the Heathen might be drawn to think somewhat better of the God of heaven. And more properly here ends the Angels interpretation, and what he revealed touching the future state of the Church.

As for me Daniel] Chal. I Daniel.

my cogitations] Vers. 15. Chap. 8. 27. & 10. 8. Though he had many Motions in his heart which moved him to and fro to seek out this matter cunningly: yet he was content with that which God revealed, and kept it in memory, and wrote it for the use of the Church, 1 Cor. 4. 6.

my Countenance changed] Chald. my brightnesses changed; that is, the brightnesse of my Countenance. I became all pale and wan; both in regard of the raptures of the Spirit; as also through horrour of the predictions against Gods people, ver. 23, 25.

but I kept the matter in my heart] Faithfully to deliver it to the Church of God. Thus was Daniel affected in his heart with Gods Word, and the revelation of his Will, and so should we be.

CHAP.

CHAP. VIII.

Verſ. 1. [N] This Chapter expounds the ſecond, and the ſeventh Chapters. For here is a third deſcription of thoſe Kingdomes or Monarchies; and that more largely, and clearly, then formerly. Onely the Chaldean Monarchy is omitted here; and ſo in the Viſions and Chapters following, as being now at the point of expiration; and in the time of the Viſions and Propheſies following clean extinct. And therefore alſo this Chapter, and the reſt that follow, are not written by Daniel in the Chaldee tongue; as all the former were, which concerned the Chaldeans, and behoved them to know. But in the Hebrew tongue, for the peculiar uſe of the Church of the Jewes; to inform them of their eſtate in future times, to arme them with patience, againſt perſecutions coming; and comfort them in expectation of joyful deliverance at the laſt. And theſe Viſions are commanded to be ſhut up and ſealed, Chap. 8. 26. & Chap. 12. 4. as being for future ages; and leſt the Naming of thoſe Heathen perſecutors (as is done in theſe viſions) being known to them, might create further danger to Gods people.

the third yeare] and therefore before that in the fifth Chapter.

unto me, even unto me] Verſ. 15. to diſtinguiſh theſe Viſions, from thoſe of Nebuchadnezzar, Chap. 2. 4. Daniels perſon adds to the authority of theſe viſions, 2 Tim. 3. 14.

at the firſt] In the firſt year of Belſhazzar, Chap. 7. 1.

V. 2. In a viſion] Not in a Dream, but in Viſion: ſo twice in this verſe, and once in the former. See Annotations on Chap. 2. 19. & on Chap. 7. 1. And yet this might be in the night on his bed, in his ſleep.

at Shuſhan] In viſion and extaſie there; ſo much the former words import; and no more. And therefore then he was moſt likely at Babylon in body; This being but the third year of Belſhazzars reign: and ſo verſ. 27. So Ezekiel being bodily preſent in Meſopotamia, in the viſions of God was brought into the land of Iſrael, Ezek. 8. 3. & 40. 2. men in Viſions, as in Dreams, many times think themſelves to be corporally in places, where indeed they are not. The arms and breaſt, and the Bear, are here ſhow again in the third Viſion, and more clearly deſcribed then formerly; for the moſt certainty of the thing; as Gen. 41. 25, 32. and that Judah ſhould be the more skilful in this matter. Shuſhan, or Suſis, whence the Countrey about it is called Suſiane. Of this Shuſhan, we read, Neh. 1. 1. Eſth. 1. 2, 5. & 2. 3, & 3. 15. & 8. 14. & 9. 6. The word Shuſhan, ſignifies a Lilly, in the Greek; a Fountain, or Well, in that Country language.

Palace] The place of royal reſidence, the Metropolitane City of Perſia; where was a moſt ſtrong Tower or Caſtle, moſt ſtrongly fortified for the keeping of the Perſian Treaſure. Brought to this perfection afterwards by Darius the ſon of Hyſtaſpes, as Pliny relates. Here the Kings of Perſia afterwards kept their Court, and made their ſtay one part of the year, Eſth. 1. 2, 5. Otherwhiles they did, at Perſepolis, and Ecbatana, Q. Curtius, lib. 5. The word alſo ſignifies a Caſtle, Court, and Temple.

Province] Some Tranſlations read Region; ſome, City.

of Elam] Gen. 10. 22. the Weſt part of Perſia; next to the Confines of Babylon. See Act. 2. 9.

river of Ulai] Trent Bible, Port or gate of Ulai: without any warrant, and againſt the Hebrew Text.

Ulai] Or, Eulæus; that compaſſed the City Shuſhan round about. This River was held by them in ſome ſacred eſteem. And therefore their Kings drunk of this River onely, and had the water of it carried along to remote places with them. See Plin. l. 6. c. 27. It ſeems alſo to be called Choaſpes; as uſually the ſame River, ſpecially at divers places, is commonly called by divers names; as like the ſix famous Rivers, Danubius, Tygris, and Euphrates are, Here Daniel at the River Ulai; And again, Hiddekel, Chap. 10. 4. as Ezekiel at the River Cheber, Chap. 1. 1. and John at Jordan, Mat. 3. 16, 17.

V. 3. My eyes] The eyes of his mind, in this intellectual, ſpiritual Viſions, illuminated with Divine light; and the eyes of his body, having thoſe ſimilitudes of corporal things formed in the inward ſenſe of his imagination.

before the river] Ulai, at Suſis, where was the ordinary reſidence and Court of the Kings of Perſia, as was ſaid: and therefore very fit that this Viſion was ſeen there.

a Ram] A figure of the Perſian and Median Empire, ſignified by the two horns; as verſ. 20. by the Images breaſt, and armes of ſilver, Dan. 2. 32. and by the bear, Dan. 7. 5. We may be here too curious in ſearching out reaſons of this Aſſimilation, between the Ram and this Monarchy. But ſure we are, that this Monarchy was more uſeful, favourable, and beneficial to the Jewes, then any of the other.

two horns] The word is of the dual Number. Theſe are Medes and Perſians.

high] Not crooked, as Rams horns uſeto be. In the Horns, and Head, the force of Rams doth conſiſt.

one was higher] The kingdome of Perſia, which though founded after that of Media, grew far greater then it, by the victories of Cyrus the Perſian, who gained Media, Babylon, and many Countries more.

then the other] Heb. the ſecond.

laſt] The Kingdome of Perſia, was later then that of Media. Cyrus the Perſian ſucceeded Darius the Mede; and Perſians ſtill ſucceeded Cyrus in that Empire.

V. 4. Weſtward] Heb. the Sea, that is, the mid-land Sea, which is Weſtward from Shuſhan, and Perſia, which were in the Eaſt part of the world. (ſee Annotations on Ezek. 1. 3.) He underſtands hereby Babylon, Syria, Cappadocia, leſſer Aſia and Græcia.

and Northward] Lydia, Armenia, Scythia, Pontus, the Caſpians, and Northern Nations.

and Southward] Arabia, Ethiopia, Egypt, Lybia, &c. See Chap. 7. 5. Eſth. 1. 1.

no beaſts might ſtand before him] That is, no Kings or Nations, could hinder his enterpriſes and actions, Jer. 51. 30. though the Aſſyrians, Cræſus, and many other Kingdoms and Nations aſſiſted the Babylonians. Thus God by the Perſian, revenged the cauſe of his Church and people againſt the Babylonians, Jer. 51. 36, 50, 15, 18, 24, 35, 18, 19, 34.

out of his hand] This improperly aſcribed to a Ram. The meaning is plain and uſual; out of his power.

V. 5. An he-goat] By this is figured the Kingdome of Greece and Macedonia, under Alexander, verſ. 21. All the braſſe and iron, Chap. 2. 33, 39. alſo the Leopard, and the fourth beaſt, Dan. 7. 6, 7. are in that he goat, or buck. And this is a ſweet Commentary upon them. This propheſie was ſhewed by Jaddua the high Prieſt, to Alexander, when he entred into Jeruſalem, ſome two years before he conquered Darius Codomannus, the laſt perſian Emperour, Joſephus, l. 11. c. 8. Antiquit. Jud.

from the weſt] From Greece and Macedon, weſtward from Aſia; where the Prophet was, and where the Perſians reigned.

whole earth] So Dan. 2. 39. all Aſia; all that land wherein Daniel was; that which moſt eſteemed, and beſt knowa in all the world. Alexander complained, that he had not another world to overcome. unus pelleo juveni non ſufficit Orbis; Juvenal, Satyr. 10.

and touched not the ground] Or, none touched him in the earth; ſo ſwiftly great Alexander conquered the Eaſt in 6 yeares; as flying above the earth, rather then going on the earth; an hyperbole, as that alſo is, John 21. 25. See Chap. 7. 6. four wings of a fowl, added to a ſwift Leopard. Thus Yugil ſpeaks of Camilla: and Ovid of Atalanta.

a notable horn] Heb. a horn of ſight. Alexander was the notableſt for his ſtrange ſucceſſe in wars, of any that ever warred, verſ. 8. 21. It is called the great horn.

between his eyes] As an Unicorn, whoſe ſtrength is mentioned, Numb. 23. 26. Job 39. 12. —— 15. And by the eyes, may be figured as Alexanders own ſharpneſſe of wit, quick in ſight and foreſight, and clearneſſe of wiſdome; ſo alſo his wife Captains, that were as eyes to him. Such were Parmenio, and others. This horne not ſeen in a Goat; as neither the four Hornes, ver. 8.

V. 6. Came to the Ram] A deſcription of Alexanders acts againſt Perſia, whereby he overthrew that kingdom, and made himſelf Lord of Aſia.

In the fury of his power] This place is a ſweet abridgement of all Great Alexanders conqueſts.

V. 7. moved with Choler] At Granicon water in his firſt fought field he did well.

and ſmote the ram] At Iſſicon, a Town in Cilicia, the ſecond battel, he did better: and took priſoners Darius his Mother, wife, and Children, among others.

and brake his two hornes] Thirdly, at Gangamela, he killed of men about 600000. as ſome write, and got the Empire.

V. 8. he-goat] The word ſignifies a young he-goat: as Alexander was young, at that time about 26. years old; and about 20 when he began to ſet upon his great wars. See Zach. 14. 5.

the great horn] Alexander dyed ſuddenly in the flower of his age, and in the middle of his victories, verſ. 22. when he was 33 years old, and had held the Monarchy ſixe or ſeven yeares; as Arianus, Plutarchus, and Diodorus Siculus do report. Such is the Inſtability of earthly Monarchs, and all worldly glory; even when it is at the height, Pſal. 82. 6, 7.

and for it came up] Or, ſtood up for it: after divers horrible ſlaughters and murders in Alexanders family; and conflicts and blood-ſhed among his Chieftains and Commanders, a while foregoing, Chap. 7. 8, 11, 21.

four notable ones] Out of the Nation; but not in his power, ver. 22. Seleucus Nicator had the Kingdome of the Eaſt, Syria, and Babylon, and Perſia. Perdiccas, Caſſander, and Philippus Aridæus had Macedonia, in the Weſt. Antigonus had Aſia the leſſe, and more, Northward: and Ptolemy Lagides, had Egypt Southward: and at laſt theſe were reduced to two, the Seleucidæ, and Lagidæ.

V. 9. and out of one of them] That is, out of Seleucidæ that reigned in Babylon and Syria.

came forth] Chap. 7. 8. and 11. 21.

a little horn] Chap. 7. 8. Antiochus Epiphanes, who was of a ſervile and flattering nature; and alſo there were other reaſons of him and the Kingdom: and therefore is here called the little horn, becauſe neither Princely conditions, nor yet any other thing was in him, why he ſhould obtaine the Kingdome, Chap. 11. 21.

toward the South] That is, toward Egypt, which Antiochus ſeized upon, Chap. 11. 25, 40, 43. Himſelf had, and held the North; that is, Syria, and Babylon.

the Eaſt] That is Perſia, which was alſo conquered by Antiochus.

pleaſant land] So is Judea, or the land of Iſrael called in Scripture; In regard of its great prerogative, temporal and ſpirtual; it being the Throby of all lands; the ornament, pleaſure, and Nobleneſſe: or as it were the pleaſant Roe, Prov. 5. 19. Thus again, Dan. 11. 16, 41, 45. Zech. 7. 14. Of this Land, ſee Ezek. 20. 6, 15. yet it moſt was for Jeruſalems ſake, Pſal. 48. 2. and Gods Temple, and Service there. See theſe enterpriſes of Antiochus upon Judea, chap. 11. 30. and following Verſes.

V. 10 to the hoſt] Or, againſt the hoſt, ver. 24. Chap. 7. 18. & 11. 32. Antiochus raged againſt the Church of God, which is a heaven where God dwelleth in Grace; and where the faithful do hold the place of Angels. See Eſay 14. 13. He made way againſt Religion, and the Temple, and the holy Jewes.

caſt down] That is, flew ſome of the Choyſe, in Church and Common wealth; in offices and graces: ſome of the Elect, which are called the hoſt of heaven, and ſtars; becauſe they are ſeparated from the world, and whoſe names are written in heaven, Chap. 12. 3. Luk. 10. 20. Thus he brought heaven under his feet, to trample on it. Thus he dealt with old Elcazarus, and with the mother, and her ſeven ſons, 2 Macc. 6, 7. Chapters.

V. 11. Even to the prince of the hoſt] Ver. 25. or againſt; daring to puſh, not onely at the high Prieſt, or Judas Maccabeus; But at God himſelfe; The Son of God, who as a Prince in a ſingular manner reignes in and over his people. And this Antiochus did, by bearing an hoſtile ſpirit againſt the God of the Jewes; by blaſpheming him, and violating his Temple, ſervice, and glory; as is ſhewed in the words following. See Chap. 7. 25. & 11. 21, 36. 2 Macc. 5. 11. —— 17. and verſ. 21, 24, 26.

by him] Or, from him: by him, that is, by Antiochus, rather then from him; that is, from the Prince of the hoſt.

daily ſacrifice] Ver. 13. Namely, the Morning and Evening ſacrifice; the law whereof is in Exod. 29. 38, &c. Numb. 28. 3. and alſo all other ſacrifices, and Feaſts, and the whole worſhip of God; which Antiochus to his utmoſt power by all meanes did labour to put down, as the books of Maccabees do ſhew, 2 Macc. 1. 49. —— 64.

place of his Sanctuary] The Temple of Jeruſalem, called by many ſeveral names in Scripture. As the Church is called by many names and titles in the Old and New Teſtament.

V. 12. an hoſt was given him againſt the daily ſacrifice] Or, the hoſt was given over, for the tranſgreſſion againſt the daily ſacrifice. The hoſt of the Jewes was given over to him and his power, becauſe of their tranſgreſſion againſt the daily ſacrifice. Or, the faithful ſhall be in great danger of apoſtatizing from the true Religion: and Antiochus ſhall give them many occaſions to do it, and ſhall ſeek to induce them to it by force, craft, and all means: and the Lord ſhall put them to this tryal, Chap. 11. 32, 35. 1 Mac. 1.

by reaſon of tranſgreſſion] Tranſgreſſion the reaſon and cauſe of all calamities.

caſt downe the truth] All uſe, preaching, and profeſſion of Gods Truth, and Doctrine of ſalvation, ſhall be forbidden and ſuppreſſed by Antiochus; who did ſeeke to deſtroy the very books of the Law, 1 Mac. 1. 59. See Annotations on verſ. 26. See Eſay 59. 14.

and it practiſed and proſpered] That is, that Horn: and Horn being of the feminine gender, hath there words likewiſe of the feminine gender to agree with it: and verſ. 24. theſe words are put in the maſculine gender, to agree with the word King, of the maſculine gender in ver. 23. Thus the moſt wicked men do proſper, even in their vileſt practices againſt Gods people, by reaſon of their tranſgreſſions. So did Nebuchadnezzar in his time.

V. 13. one Saint ſpeaking] That is, a certain Saint: meaning, that he heard by an inward hearing, one of the Angels asking this queſtion of Chriſt; though ſome ſay, of another, and higher Angel. Angels deſire to ſee into the myſteries of God, 1 Pet. 1. 12. Eph. 3. 10. and to know a ſpeedy end of ſo great a devaſtation of Gods Saints and ſervice, as was here foreſhewed.

and another Saint] Heb. and a certain Saint; that is, either the former, or another holy Angel. See Zach. 2. 3.

unto that certain Saint] Heb. unto a certain one, or a ſecret one, or a marvellous one, or the Numberer of ſecrets; or, the wonderful Numberer. The Hebrew word is Palmoni; which may ſeem to be compounded of two words, peloni, and almoni: and theſe are uſed by the Hebrews, when they will note out a certain man, and yet not name him; as Ruth 4. 1. 1 Sam. 21. 2. & 2 King. 6. 8 Mat. 26. 18. The Greeks expreſſe this by ὁ δεῖνα. See Ezra 4. 10. This Saint unnamed, or this wonderful Numbeter; compoſing the word of pala, and manah, is moſt commonly and probably conceived to be Chriſt, the Wiſdome, and the Word of the Father; who knows all the ſecrets of his wiſdom moſt perfectly; and ſpeaks them to men and Angels in the Church, according to the times and ſeaſons of his divine adminiſtration & diſpenſation. Thereupon he is asked here; and gives charge and direction, ver. 16. See Rev. 1. 1. and Zech. 1. 9, 11, 12.

viſion concerning the daily ſacrifice] That is to ſay, the things ſignified by it, and ſaid of it, how long ſhall they cont nue?

tranſgreſſion] The idolatry of Jupiter Olympius, which Antiochus had ſet up in the Temple, in ſtead of Gods pure worſhip, 2 Mac. 6. 1, 2. which cauſed the extream deſolation of the people; in ſome, ſpiritually, by apoſtaſie; in otherſome, bodily; by perſecutions and torments, Dan. 11. 31. and 12. 11. 1 Mac. 1. 57. and Chap. 6. verſ. 7.

of deſolation] Or, making deſolate.

V. 14. he ſaid unto me] Chriſt the Palmoni, or wonderful numberer, verſ. 13. anſwered, not the Angel, that asked the queſtion, as the Trent Bible hath it; but unto Me; for the comfort of his Church, whom it moſt concerned; and for whoſe ſake, moſt likely, the Angel asked the queſtion.

unto two thouſand three hundred dayes] Thus punctual is Daniels prophecy. That is, until ſo many natural days be paſt, which make 6 yeares, 3 moneths and an half, or neer upon 3 weeks; for ſo long, under Antiochus, was this deſolation; from that deſection of the people, procured by Menelaus, the High Prieſt, in his time, in the 142 year, 6 moneth, 6 day of the Kingdom of the Greeks, or Seleucidæ; as Joſephus records in the 12 book, and Chap. 6. of his Antiquities. See 2 Macc. 4. 23, 25. when the hoſt of Gods people (concerning whom alſo the Angel inquired) began to be trodden under feet; and continuing, till the cleaning of the Sanctuary, building the altar, and ſacrificing upon it, which was in the 148 year, 9 moneths, 25 day, 1 Mac. 4. 52. This then is another reckoning, from another beginning differing from that, Chap. 7. 25. and Chap. 12. 7, 11. That was of three years and ten days; beginning from the building ot that idolatrous altar, 1 Mac. 1. 54, 59. and ending at the re-building of Gods altar, and reſtoring his worſhip. 1 Mac 4. 52. This, of 6 years, 3 moneths, and 18 dayes, beginning and ending, as aforeſaid. Or, if we ſhould reckon theſe ſix yeares, 3 moneths, and about 19 days, from the beginning of Antiochus his firſt bloody perſecution, in the beginning of the year of the Greeks, 143. to the year of his death, which was in the year, 149. the time will not much differ. See 1 Mac. 1. 20. and 6. 16.

dayes] Heb. evening-morning. So verſ. 26. called, νυχθήμερον; 2 Cor. 11. 25. The evening, being the beginning of the day of 24 hours; as the darkneſſe was before light, Gen. 1. ver. 2, 3. And ſo is the day reckoned, Gen. 1. ver. 8, 13, 19 —— 23. 31. and ſo Exod. 12. 18. Lev. 23. 32. The conſideration whereof, and of the change of the beginning of the day, in our Saviour Chriſts time, may help to reconcile that difficulty, and difference of the day, wherein our Saviour before his Paſſion, and wherein the Jews did eat the Paſſover, after his Paſſion.

cleanſed] It ſhall be purified from its uncleanneſſe. Heb. juſtified. That is, ſet free by Gods juſt judgement, from Antiochus his tyranny, who had made it a receptacle of Idols: to be again acording to its firſt inſtitution, the holy Temple of the true God. This was done by Judas Maccabeus, 1 Mac. 4. 52.

V. 15. I, even I Daniel] Verſ. 1. Chap. 7. 15, 16. Here is his attention to the viſion, and deſire of knowing and underſtanding it more fully and diſtinctly.

ſtood before me] According to the apprehenſion of his inward ſenſes and ſight.

as the appearance of a man] Not Gabriel the Angel; he is commanded by this man, verſ. 16. But Michael, that is, Chriſt; who, in this manner, declared himſelf to the old Fathers, as a præludium to his Incarnation; how he would be God manifeſted in the fleſh.

V. 16. And I heard] As in a viſion; to my ſeeming and imagination, I heard ſuch a ſound, voyce and words.

between the banks] The gate and banks, or, of the river it ſelf, Chap. 12. 7.

and ſaid] With a mans voice and words. How Angels communicate their notions one to another, is not a thing incident, or proper to this place, or inquirable.

Gabriel] The name of an Angel; which ſignifieth, ſtrong man of God. See Chap. 9. 21. Luk. 1. 26. The onely Angel in Scripture, which hath a proper name: For Michael, Chap. 12. 1. Jude 9. Rev. 12. 7. is the name of Chriſt.

make this man] This power to command the Angel, declareth, that the Commander was Chriſt; who is true God, and the Lord, and head of Angels.

V. 17. afraid and fell] See Ezek. 1. 28. and the Annotations upon it. Not to worſhip the Angel, but in a lowly fear and reyerence; being conſcious of his own unworthineſſe, frailty and vilenesſe. The preſence and ſpeech of an Angel, wrought thus upon holy Daniel, when the Angel drew neer unto him.

ſon of man] Ezekiel & Daniel only, being in viſions of angels, are ſo ſpoken unto, Son of man: as Aben Ezra notes, Ezek. 2. 1. See Annotations there.

Viſion]

Vision] The words here are diverſly rendred: and ſome underſtand them of a ſhort time: but verſ. 26. and the words themſelves, here, ſpeak of a long time, that the things foretold by that viſion, ſhall come to paſſe at the appointed time, about the time of the coming of the Meſſiah, who ſhall fulfil the prophecies; and the old age; for to bring in a new one, by renewing the ſtate of the Church. See Ezek. 38.8. Dan. 9. 24.

V. 18. Now as he] Chap. 10. 9.

deep ſleep on my face] That is to ſay, in my prophetical extaſie, I loſt all action and motion, as a man overcome with ſleep, verſ. 17. Rev. 1. 17.

ſet me upright] Heb. made me ſtand upon my ſtanding. Did rear, refreſh and ſtrengthen me; as Ezek. 2. 2. recover, and re-comfort me.

V. 19. and he ſaid] Continuing his ſpeech, that was interrupted in the former verſe.

what ſhall be in the laſt end] The word, Acharith is a ſubſtantive. The meaning is this, what ſhall befall the Jewes in the laſt end of this indignation, and wrath of God in this laſt affliction, which God ſhall ſend them for a puniſhment of their ſins; meaning that great rage of Antiochus; and what he ſhall do then. After which ſhall be revealed the great and eternal reconciliation in Chriſt, Dan. 9. 24. & 11. 36. This laſt part of the viſion he mentions, as the moſt regardable, and moſt deſired by Daniel, to be underſtood, verſ. 13.

the end ſhall be] There ſhall be a certain prefixed time, for the laſting of this calamity. This verſe ſtrongly overthroweth their error, which feign the Roman Monarchs to be meant by the legs of the Image, Chap. 2. or by the fourth beaſt, Chap. 7. ſeeing that the Greeks are the dealers, in the end of wrath, ſpoken of Daniels people. And it had been a ſtrange thing, that this laſt viſion, repeating the former, ſhould leave out the Romanes, if they had been ſpoken of before: ſeeing it were good to have that told by God never omitted the good of his Church.

V. 20. The Ram] Verſ. 3, 4. Gabriel, orderly, proceeds from point to point, as the method and paſſage of the viſion, directed him.

two horns] Not meant perſonally, and punctually of Darius the Mede, and Cyrus the Perſian, Chap. 6. 28. For theſe two were not alive, when Alexander the great brake theſe two horns, here mentioned.

are the kings] are types of them, do ſignifie them, the Kings of that Kingdom, or Empire. A typical, or ſacramental phraſe; and moſt plain to be underſtood; ſo verſ. 21.

V. 21. and the rough Goat] So called for its roughneſſe and horribleneſſe. Of this, verſ. 5, 6, 7, 8. Here the whole Grecian Empire is underſtood; Alexander, and his ſucceſſors in the Empire, divided.

Grecia] This place proveth, that of Javan, the Greeks come. Macedonia is herein comprehended.

the firſt king] Namely, Alexander the great; the firſt of them that overthrew the Ram; that conquered the Medes and Perſians. Of him perſonally is underſtood, verſ. 5, 6, 7, 8.

V. 22. four kingdoms] Ver. 8. Of many kingdoms ariſing from Alexander, four in the end bear the ſway: and in time two whereof, Chap. 11. will ſpeak.

of the nation] Namely, of the Greek, or Macedonian nation; though not of Alexanders poſterity, Chap. 11. 4. All the four were Grecians; and ſo continued the name of the Grecian Empire, 1 Macc. 1. 6.

in his power] They ſhall not have like power, as had Alexander. So the particle, in, is uſed, John 3. 21.

V. 23. and in the latter time] viz. In the 137 year of the Kingdome of the Greeks, or Seleucidæ, 1 Macc. 1. 10. Or, for then Antiochus Epiphanes, here ſpoken of, began to reign: though he entred not into Judea, till the year, 143. 1 Mac. 1. 30. And after him, many of that race of the Seleucidæ were Kings of Syria and Judea, for the ſpace of 120 years, or thereabouts. But none of them are here ſpoken of; as not having a full power over the Jews: The yoak of their tyranny, being ſhaken off by the Maccabees, in this Kings dayes, Chap. 7. 22.

when the tranſgreſſours] Among the people of the Jewes. See 1 Macc. 1. verſ. 11, &c. and verſ. 43, &c. and Chap. 2. 15. and 2 Mac. 4. This the cauſe of that fearful judgement and plague by Antiochus.

are come to the full] Heb. are accompliſhed. Chap. 11. 36. Gen. 15. 16. Jer. 51. 13. Mat. 23. 32. 1 Theſſ. 2. 16.

the full] Of open impiety, and formal apoſtacy, Dan. 11. 30. 1 Macc. 1. 11, 12. Gen. 15. 16.

a King of fierce countenance] Heb. hard of face: that is, braſen-faced, of whom, ver. 9, &c. Namely, Antiochus Epiphanes, chap. 7. 20. and 11. 21. who was impudent, as Deut. 28. 50. and he is ſpoken of in the Maccabees, and heathen writers very much; for ſhameleſſe impudency, againſt all divinity and humanity in his life and actions: of Polibyus he was called Epimanes, that is, mad. Many Papiſts, would fain underſtand this King, and all that is here ſaid of him, of their imagined Antichriſt, or at leaſt of Antiochus, as a type of him: But the more learned ſort of them, deſert that opinion and fancy.

dark ſentences] Heb. Chiddoth: and is properly hid things, and enigmatical; as Pſal. 78. 2. Hid miſchiefs he minded, not hid parables: he was full of miſchievous craft, and ſubtilty, his crafts maſter therein, verſ. 25. by cunning and deep policy, to cover, and colour, and bring about his owne vile and cruel deſignes; and to diſcover the ſecret plots and underminings of others.

V. 24. Shall be mighty] Verſ. 9, 10, 11, 12. and Chap. 11.

but not by his own power] By his fraud and treachery rather, which he firſt uſed againſt his own father, brother, and nephew; by the perfidiouſneſſe and apoſtaſie of the Jewes, and their high Prieſts, and by the aide of forreign Kings. See Chap. 11. 23. yet Gods hand, and ſecret power, and providence, was not wanting in all this; as in the caſe of the Aſſyrian, Eſay 10. 15. and Babylonians, Jerem. 34. 22. and 50. 21.

wonderfully] Proſper and prevail, againſt all lets and obſtacles that would hinder him, from atchieving his ambitious, tyrannical, miſchievous practices, Chap. 11. All things ſhould go on, and flow in, according to his own wiſh and will.

the mighty] Great Kings and Princes, and eſpecially them of Egypt, Chap. 11. 25. againſt which he made two great expeditions.

the holy people] Heb. the people of the holy ones. Namely, the Church of God; the Jewiſh people, both in his returns out of Egypt, and at other times.

V. 25. Craft to proſper] Chap. 11. verſ. 21, 23, 24, 32. His ſubtilties, and deep miſchievous plots, ſhall not want his wiſhed ſucceſſe.

magnifie himſelfe in his heart] His proſperous ſucceſſe ſhall ſo elevate his ſpirits, and puffe up his heart, 2 Mac. 9. 7, 8, 10, 11. and 5. 21.

by peace] Or, by proſperity; that is, under pretence of peace, and his ſpecious promiſes of it; when men ſhall live ſecure in peace, and expectation of it, ſuſpecting no other; then, and thereby ſhall he exerciſe cruel tyranny upon them. See 2 Macc. 1. 30, 31, 32. 2 Mac. 5, &c.

prince of Princes] Verſ. 11. Apoc. 19. 16. Againſt God himſelfe, the Son, King of Kings, Chap. 11. 36. invading his temple, making a prey and ſpoile of the ſacred veſſels and ornaments, and deſiling that holy place with abominable idols, and Pagan worſhip; and lifting up himſelf, and ſpeaking againſt God himſelf; as if himſelf were God, 2 Macc. 9, 8.

broken without hand] Thus, Chap. 2. 34, 45. See Chap. 11. 45. By ſickneſſe, ſtricken by the hand of God, and not by men; 1 Mac. 6. 8, 16. 2 Mac. 9. 5, 9, 28. See Acts 12. 22, 23.

V. 26. And the viſion] Concerning that determined number of days told, verſ. 14. for the taking away of the daily ſacrifice, and the treading under foot of the ſanctuary, and hoſt; which moſt troubled holy Daniel, and made him moſt inquiſitive, after the time and durance of it: That is, here again avouched, and cleered.

is true] In proper ſenſe, needing no further explication: for the clearneſſe and evidence of theſe prophecies, and the anſwerableneſſe of the event: as if all this were not a prophecie, but an hiſtory; and ſo it is in Chap. 11. which plainly argues the Spirit of God, in theſe holy Scriptures.

ſhut thou up the viſion] As Eſay 8. 16. Dan. 12. 49. keep it from the knowledge of the Chaldees and Heathens; keep it to thy ſelfe in ſacred ſilence, & reſerve it in writing for poſterity, without much publiſhing it for the preſent; becauſe it is not ſo much for the uſe of this age, as for that which ſhall follow. See Eſay 29. 11. Rev. 5. 1, 2.

for many dayes] Or, after many days. About three hundred years; are from the death of Belſhazzar, unto the death of Antiochus Epiphanes. In whoſe dayes was greateſt uſe to be made of this prophecie, and the event of things then would beſt cleer, and expound it. See Rev. 22. 10.

V. 27. I Daniel fainted] Chap. 7. 28. and 10. 8, 16. Through fear and aſtoniſhment, at the greatneſſe and ſublimity of this divine viſion; and at the evils that ſhould befall Gods houſe, and worſhip, and people.

roſe up] Out of that bed whereon he lay, feeling this viſion, and ſickning thereupon.

and did the Kings buſineſſe] Therefore he was in perſon at Babylon, and in viſion onely at Shuſhan. And continued ſtill in that honourable office, and imployment, Chap. 2. 48. wherein thus appears his care and diligence.

I was aſtoniſhed] Still after the recovery of his ſickneſſe, and in the midſt of his great State affairs.

none underſtood it] As I had a command, to ſhut up the matter in the verſe before; ſo I refrained my countenance, from open expreſſing of my griefe; or, giving any intimation of the viſion, or occaſion of ſuſpecting ſuch a thing. The Trent Bible reads thus; Et non erat qui interpretaretur, as if Daniel had wanted an Interpreter of the viſion, and were thereupon troubled and aſtoniſhed.

CHAP.

CHAP. IX.

Verſ. 1.] IN the firſt year] Heb. in one year: the cardinal number, uſually put for the ordinal. The ſame year Daniel was taken out of the Lions den, and cauſed Gods truth to be advanced generally. Now whether this was before his being in the den, or after, it is not ſo certain. This was in the year of the world, 3470. or thereabout; or, as others reckon, about 3430. In this Chapter, Daniel mindful of Jeremies prophecie, as is expreſſed; verſ. 2. doth now upon the expiration of that time, pray moſt zealouſly for the accompliſhment of the deliverance then promiſed; whereupon he receives a ſpeedy gracious anſwer, and meſſage from God by Gabriel, of much more then he could think of, or hope for; even of the certain time, not onely of the return of the people, and building of the city, but alſo of the coming of Meſſiah the Prince; and of his cutting off, and of the deſolation of City, and Sanctuary, thus ſhould follow thereupon.

of Darius] Heb. Deriavesh: Chap. 11. 1. ſee Chap. 5. 31. and 6. 1. Darius ſeems to be a common name to many Kings of Perſia. For ſo we read of Darius Hyſtaſpis, Darius Nothus, Darius Ochus, Darius Codomannus, in Heathen ſtories: as likewiſe Ahaſuerus; or, as it is written in Hebrew, Achaſhuerosh, which ſignifies the Great Head of the people, and ſeems to be the ſame with Artaxerxes. And ſo we read of Artaxerxes Longimanus, Artaxerxes Mnemon or Memon. And haply, Xerxes is but a contraction of Artaxerxes; as Choniah is of Jechoniah: Thus uſually one name, was common to many Kings of the ſame nation; thus was Merodac, among the Kings of Babylon: Pharaoh to the Kings of Egypt, in the moſt ancient times. And Ptolomy among the Lagidæ. Thus Seleucus, Antiochus, and Demetrius among the Seleucidæ. Arſaces among the Parthians. Tygranes among the Armenians. Aretas among the Arabians. Sylvius among the Latines; and Cæſar among the Romanes. Neither is it a thing unuſual among Kings at this day. This Darius is here in the Text ſufficiently differenced from all others.

the ſon of Ahaſuerus] Or, Cyaxares, Chap. 6. 1. See Annotations on Chap. 5. 31.

of the ſeed of the Medes] To diſtinguiſh him from Darius the Perſian, Ezr. 4. 24.

which was] Or, in which he was made, &c.

The Realm of the Chaldeans] For Cyrus, led with ambition, went about wars in other Countries. See Annotations on Chap. 5. 31.

V. 2. In the firſt year] This time is ſo diligently twice noted down; becauſe it was the end of Jeremies ſeventy: and ſo the juſt occaſion of this prayer of Daniel. And ſo we, when the time is come for the accompliſhment of Gods Prophetical promiſes, ſhould take hold of that occaſion to ſerve Gods providence, and to pray in Faith for the fulfilling of them. Prayer muſt be in faith, Jam. 1. 6, 7. muſt reſt upon Gods promiſes; and be certain, Ezek. 36. 37. underſtood] attentively, accurately, conſidered, weighed, pondered in my mind, and knew.

by books] For though he were an excellent Prophet, yet he daily increaſed in knowledge, by reading of the Scriptures, 1 Tim. 4. 13. 2 Tim. 3. 15, 16, 17. The Scriptures then were not loſt and periſhed in the time of the Temples overthrow, and the Babyloniſh captivity, as that Apocryphal fable hath it, 2 Eſdr. 14. 21——44.

to Jeremiah] Jer. 25. 11, 12. & 27. 5, 6, 7. & 29. 10, &c. See 2 Chr. 36. 21, 22. Ezra 1. 1.

ſeventy years] Whereof fifty two in utter ruine. Counting the beginning of the ſeventy not from the 11. of Zedekiah; but from the fourth of Jehojakim, and the firſt of Nebuchadnezzar. No doubt but the Jewes carefully numbered theſe yeares, Zach. 1. 12. another ſeventy yeares are mentioned: and thoſe ending the ſecond yeare of Darius, do derive their Beginning from the 11. of Zedekiah.

the deſolations of Jeruſalem] Daniel hath the very Hebrew term of Jeremy, Chooboth; and by Jeremy he muſt be expounded, Jer. 25. 11. and this land ſhall become Chooboth, (that is, a wilderneſſe) and an aſtoniſhment, and theſe Nations ſhall ſerve the king of Babel ſeventy yeares.

V. 3. I ſet my face] Of his body towards Jeruſalem; as Chap. 6. 10. of his ſoul to God; Eccleſ. 5. 2. Pſal. 25. 1. & 62. 8. This ſhews his earneſtneſſe, as Jer. 42. 15. ſetting all other things aſide.

To ſeek by prayer] Ezek. 36. 37. He uſeth here confeſſion, deprecation, and petition. He ſpeaketh not of that ordinary prayer which he uſed in his houſe thrice a day, but of a rare and vehement prayer, upon the preſent extraordinary occaſion; leſt the ſinnes of the people ſhould cauſe God to delay the time of their deliverance, prophecied by Jeremiah.

with faſting] Extraordinary helps, at extraordinary times, upon extraordinary occaſions. Hereby ſinners ſhew their guilt and unworthineſſe; the forwardneſſe of their minds to ſelfe-revenge, 2 Cor. 7. 11. and 9. 27. This makes Prayer armed and winged. If Daniel needed theſe Helpes in prayer, much more we.

V. 4. unto the Lord my God] Not to falſe gods; not to Angels, Saints departed, Images, Relicks, &c. but to the true God; and his God by Covenant; with faith and truſt in him, to hear and grant his prayer. Thus muſt we pray to God, our God and Father, Mat. 6. 9. Thus the wicked cannot pray.

my confeſſion] Of mine, and my peoples ſins; and of Gods juſtice and truth in puniſhing us. He begins with this confeſſion, and perſiſts in it, to the 16 verſe.

O] Or, Oh. Heb. ana. an interjection of exclamation, through the great grief of his heart for ſin; and withal, of an humble begging and beſeeching; to win grace and mercy.

Lord] Exod. 32. 11. Deut. 7. 9, 10, 21. Neh. 1. 5.

the great and dreadful God] That is, Haſt all power in thy ſelf, to execute thy terrible Judgements againſt obſtinate ſinners; as thou art rich in mercy, to comfort them which obey thy word, and love thee. Thus affected, we ſhould appear before him in prayer, with ſubmiſſion and fear.

keeping the covenant] Faithful and true, Exod. 20. 6. And therefore they might thank themſelves and their ſins, for their puniſhment in that Babyloniſh captivity. And yet now might hope and truſt, in the keeping of his promiſe, by Jeremy, for their deliverance. Thus prayer muſt be carried on with faith.

to them that love him, and, &c.] The love of God, and the keeping of his commandements Evangelically, are never ſeparated, Joh. 14. 21.

V. 5. we have ſinned] In his own name and the peoples, as ſuſtaining their perſon, he confeſſeth their ſins; and that without any extenuation; yea, with full mouth, and many aggravations. Here are four words, each gradually exceeding other. That they ſinned, traded in it, and that obſtinately, yea, maliciouſly and rebelliouſly, as if therein they would wage War againſt God. And all this, to profeſſe and procure the deeper humiliation, the greater contrition and compunction. See 1 King. 8. 47. Daniel ſeems to relate to that place, Pſal. 106. 6. A perſon or people, come not ſuddenly to be extreamly evil, but by degrees.

V. 6. Prophets which] The duty of Prophets; and the height of ſin, in not hearkning to them. The greater means of grace afforded, the greater is the ſin, thereupon committed, Matth. 11. 20. ——25. Heb. 2. 2, 3. & 10. 28, 29. Kings & Forefathers, are no rule of Religion or life, Ezek. 20. 18. Jer. 44. 9, 21. But all, from the higheſt to the loweſt, are to be ruled by, and ſubjected to the word of God, Luk. 16. 29, 31.

V. 7. righteouſneſſe] He confeſſeth Gods juſtice in himſelfe; and in his judgements tor ſin, Jer. 7. 19. Pſal. 119. 137. He ſheweth, that whenſoever God puniſheth, he doth it for juſt cauſe. And thus the godly, never grudge, repine, accuſe him of rigour, as the wicked do; but acknowledge, that in themſelves there is juſt cauſe, why he ſhould ſo intreat them, Pſalm. 51. 4. Rom. 3. 4. Pſalm 119. 75.

belongeth] Or, thou haſt, &c.

to the men of Judah] Their prerogatives above other people, were no priviledges for their ſins, nor exemptions of them from puniſhment, but aggravations rather.

neer and that are afar off] In the neighbouring nations, neer to Judea, whether they fled, in Egypt, in Aſſyria, in the Empire of Babylon.

V. 8. To us] Baruch. 1. 15. Gen. 2. 25. & 3. 8. Pſalm 119. 80. Jer. 3. 20.

to our Kings] God is no accepter of perſons; but wherefoever, and in whomſoever ſin goes before, confuſion followes after. And Daniel here, doth not excuſe the Kings, becauſe of their authority; but rather chargeth them, as the chief occaſions of theſe great plagues.

V. 9. to the Lord] Thou haſt a large ſubject, whereon to exerciſe thy infinite mercy, which into us, as it were, the Queen of thy perfections; whereunto we now betake our ſelves, and not to thy juſtice, in this our height of iniquity: for, having ſinned ſo exceſſively, as we confeſſe we have, to us it belongs to uſe mercy and forgiveneſſe; for thou alone haſt power to do it, verſ. 18. Thus he ſo mentions Gods juſtice, for humiliation, as that he flies to Gods mercies, to keep from deſperation.

mercies and forgiveneſſes] In the plural number, Lam. 3. 22. mercies above all their ſins; as Rom. 5. 20. Jer. 31. 29.

though] No cauſe of Gods mercy in us; but all ſolely and wholly in him, verſ. 18.

V. 10. The voice of the Lord] He ſheweth, that they rebel againſt him, which obey not his voice, in the mouths of his Prophets, but ſlight and contemn, ſo gracious a word of ſo good a God, ſo plainly ſet before them.

V. 11. yea, all Iſrael] Not ſome part onely: an epedemical evil. The example of the multitude of outward profeſſors, is no rule of life, Exod. 23. 2.

therefore the curſe is poured upon us] 2 Deut. 27. 15, &c. or, the curſe confirmed by an oath, by an adjuration and execration. Yet they, out of a deſperate impiety, wittingly and willfully contemned all.

Law of Moſes] Lev. 26. 14, &c. Deut. 28. 15, &c. and 29. 20, &c. and 30. 17, 18. and 31. 17, &c. and 32. 19, &c. Jer. 42. 18.

because we have sinned] This plucked up the flood-gate; brake the bank; opened the armories of Gods wrath and vengeance.

V. 12. confirmed his words] made good upon us, every one of them, by his judgements and punishments: so verifying his menaces, and shewing his truth and power.

hath not been done] This may be the abridgement of Jeremiah's Lamentations, Lam.1.12. Amos 3.2. Luk.12.47. Ezek.5.9.

V. 13. as it is written in the Law] Lev.26.14, &c. Deut.28.15. Lam.2.17.

yet made we not our prayer before the Lord] Heb. intreated we not the face of the Lord. Prayed not in truth. For prayer, without turning away from iniquity, is no true prayer. The last and highest aggravation of their sin, is this; That the disease of it, mastered the medicine; grew the worse by the cure, and so became desperate: neither any threatnings, nor judgements, could humble them, or turn them to God, or make them truly pray unto him, Jer. 6.28, 29. Esay 1.5.

understand thy truth] Really perceive, and verily know the truth of the Threats and Promises; endeavouring thereby for true repentance according to thy Word; by meanes whereof we might have been partakers of the fruit of thy Holy promises.

V. 14. watched upon the evil] Of our Sin, and his Punishment. Providence hath been watchful, and attentive to due vengeance; and to bring it in the prefixed time, and instant. See Jer.1.12.& 31. 28.& 44.27. 2Pet.2.3. Though for a time he might to some seem to wink and sleep; yet it is otherwise, as Psal.78.65.

for the Lord] He thinks he can never sufficiently justifie God, and his judgements; nor enough confesse and condemn their own sins.

V. 15. And now] After Confession, now follows Petition.

O Lord our God] These Titles shew his power and willingnesse; whereby Daniel confirms his Faith in prayer, Exod.32.13. Psal.33. 12. & 144.15. & 135.4. & 74.20.

thou hast brought] Lev.26.45. & 22.33. Psal.81.10. Esay 63.11, &c. Exod.32.11. Neh.1.10. & 9,9,10. Psal.79.10,11,12.

gotten thee renown] Exod.14.16. & 32.12. Psal.106.8 & 115.1. Neh.9.10.

we have sinned] One argument that God will hear our prayers, when we acknowledg our sins, and that there is no cause in us why he should hear our prayers, or do any good unto us; but that the whole causo is out of us, in him onely, Psal.25.11. & 51.3.

V. 16. all thy Righteousnesse] That is, according to all thy merciful promises, and righteousnesse and truth in performing them; and according to thy fatherly equity to thy poor Children, cruelly dealt with by the enemies, for causes unjust. See Psal. 31. 1. & 22.5. & 51. 14.71.2. Neh. 1. 8, 9. & 9. 8. The performance of free and merciful promises, is righteousnesse, and justice, in God.

Thy fury] No passion in God. But this and the like expressions are used in Scripture in a condescention to the weaknes of our Capacities, Micah 7.9. Rev.15.7.

Thy City Jerusalem] The place of worship, and Type of the Christian Church, and that new Jerusalem which is above, Psalm 41.3,5. & 137.5,6. Esay 52. 1.

for our sins] He never conceals or extenuates their sins, but his finger is ever upon this sore; as the source of all their evils.

of our fathers] Exod. 20. 5. Not as those, Lam.5.7. Ezek. 18. 2. Jer. 31.29.

to all] Psal. 69. 20.

V. 17. Now therefore] Now it is time, Psal. 69. 13. Esay 49.8. 2 Cor.6.2. Now the seventy years of Captivity are ended.

Cause thy face to shine] Psalm 44.4. and 4.6. and 85.5,6,7. Thus after deprecation, followes supplication. Shew by the effect thy grace and favour, which like a vivifying and Cheering Sun, may disperse all these mysts of extream desolations. The blessing of the high Sacrifice is in the same speech, Numb. 6. 25. Psalm 80. 7, 19.

upon thy sanctuary] Exod.15.17. Psal.51.18.

That is desolate] A place of bryars and thorns; an habitation of Wolves and Owles. This the godly do most bemoan, Lam. 1. 4, 10. and 2. 1, 6, 7. and 4. 1. and 5.18. Esay 63.15, 18. and 64. 10, 11.

for the Lords sake] For thine own sake: or, as some others, for the promised Messias and Mediatours sake; whom God hath made both Lord and Christ, Acts 2.36. Luk. 1. 43. & 2. 11. for his merit and mediation sake. And so some expound that, Psal. 80. 15, 17. & 84.9. & 2 Sam.7.21. with 1 Chron. 17. 19. and that, 2 Sam. 12. 25. The phrases for Davids sake, 1 King. 11. 12, 13. & 15.4. 2 King.19.34. Psal.132.10. and for Jerusalems sake, 1 King. 11.13. Import onely thus much, for Gods free promise sake, made to David, and concerning Jerusalem. Daniel pleads here no merits of their own. Their Merits were Demerits.

V. 18. Incline thine eare] Daniels Hebrew hath the very letters of Hezekiah's prayer, Esay 37. 17. His earnestnesse in prayer; that God will mercifully both see and hear.

which is called by thy name] Heb. whereupon thy name is called. So Esay 4.1. and 63.19. and so Gen. 48. 16. the same expression in the same sense is used.

present our supplications] Heb. cause to fall. So Jer. 38. 26. and 42. 2, 9. 2 Sam.2.22. Ezra 9 6. Luk. 18.13. Noting out their humility, and abasing themselves with fear and care in prayer.

our righteousnesses] Declaring that the godly fly only unto Gods mercies, and renounce their own works, when they seek for remission of their sins. So Psal.25.6. and 51.1. and 69.16. and 143. 1, 2. Esay 63.7. and 64. 10, &c. Jer. 14.7. David, Ezekiah, and Nehemiah sometimes plead their righteousnesses, innocency, and integrity, the better to prevail in their prayers; but not for the merit of them: but thereby to strengthen their faith in prayer, that they are such persons, and so qualified by Gods free grace, as to whom God promiseth freely to hear their prayers. Against popish merits alledged in their popish prayers.

V. 19. O Lord, hear] His fervency in prayer; and growing greater towards the latter end, Jam.5.16.

for thy owne sake] Psal. 57.5,11 and 79.9,10,13. and 83.18. and 115.1. Gods free grace, and Glory, the chief argument of our faith in prayer.

for thy city and thy people are called by thy Name] In Hebrew, for thy name is called upon thy city, and upon thy people; that is, they are, and professe themselves to be thine, and do bear the badges and marks of it. The Jewes at this day repeat on their expiation feast, this prayer often, in Cether Malcuth, a book of their Common prayers; but stop their ears against the Angels word from God, touching Christ, the true worker of this expiation.

V. 20. and whiles] Gods answer to Daniels prayer.

whiles] Vers.21. Chap 10.12. as soon, if not before he had ended his prayer. So ready is God to hear prayer according to his promises, Deut.30.1,2,3. and 4.29. 1 King. 8, 46, &c. to which prayer Daniel seems to have reference, using the same words and arguments. See Esay 30.19. and 65.24. Psal. 32. 5. and 65.2. and 145. 18, 19.

speaking] Voyce and all outward helps to be used, specially in solemn prayer, to further us therein.

my sin] Even Daniels, so beloved a Saint. Yet he without hypocrisie in true humility, and sorrow, makes this Confession. He no Pelagian, Donatist, Anabaptist, or Papist.

my people] See vers. 24. after he had first begun with his own sinne.

for the holy mountain of my God] This his chief care. So it should be ours, Psal.87.7. and 122. 6, &c. The Churches miseries should much more affect and afflict us then our own, Psal.137.6.

V. 21. yea whiles] No doubt Daniel had prayed oft before; yea, every day during the Captivity, Chap.6. 10. for their return and restauration; but referring it to Gods time. And God in his time readily hears, and helps, when there is most need. See here the effect and fruit of prayer; it brings downe an Angel from heaven.

the man] Angel in shape of a man; as Chap.8.15.

Gabriel] Chap. 8. 16. when this Angel Gabriel telleth Zachary of his name Gabriel, Luk.1.11,19. and is sent unto the blessed Virgin Mary, ver.26. he calleth them to think upon this Text; that by conference of Moses, Numb.24. and Daniel here, they might better consider the time of the Promise.

whom I had seen] Chap.8.16. so well he remembred what, and by whom he had formerly learned, and been instructed, 2 Tim.3 14.

being caused] Gods power and authority to command, and send; (he went not unsent) and the Angels swift obedience.

swiftly] Heb. with wearinesse, or flight: tired as it were, with his speed-making.

touched me] Chap. 8. 18. In token of encouragement to heare these mysteries, and of infusion of new Divine vertue to understand them, and to keep them in memory, and of comfort in these promises.

about the time of the evening oblation] The Jewes had both the morning and evening daily sacrifice, Exod. 12.6. and 29.39. Num. 28. 4. At the time of the morning sacrifice, Elizæus wrought that miracle, 2 King. 3.16,20. At the time of the evening sacrifice, Elias wrought that miracle, 1 King. 18. 19, 36. And these times were the set times of their daily prayers, Acts 3.1. And at the time of the evening oblation, our Saviour made himselfe that oblation which here the Angel fore-telleth, even most exactly when it should be performed.

V. 22. Skill and understanding] Heb. skill of understanding. This oration containeth un abridgement of the New Eestament, and a light of the old; and Daniel knew the substance of all before, but the Time, which bringeth a greater cleernesse unto all. Therefore the Time considered with the matter, is that which he calleth here, the skill of understanding; And it must be counted a great errour, to hold that a small matter; and specially the disannulling of Gods truth, by Heathen forged, most vain, and jarring antiquities, to make from Babels fall to Tyberius eighteen, wherein our Lord dyed, 590 against the expresse 490, which the Angel counteth to be wisdome, which he speaketh of; yet old Heathen Greeks did so. Thus fairly and resolutely do some learned men expresse their judgment in this case: whereof yet see more on ver.25.

V. 23. Commandment. Heb. word. God hath revealed to us angels, and to me especially the secret of his Counsel, concerning the restauration of Jerusalem, and the duration thereof, even to the Messiah, and hath sent me to declare it unto thee. See Dan.10.12.

greatly beloved] Heb. a man of desires. As Solomon was called Jedidiah, 2 Sam 12.25. So here Daniel is called a man of desires: not because of his earnest desires after the knowledge of these sacred mysteries; but because of Gods desires of Love towards him, as one singularly beloved of God, and favoured with his grace, Dan 10.11,19. Chamudoth is the most amiable term of any which can be given. As the attribute is, so is the matter here, full of grace. And when the Angel spake to the blessed virgin in Hebrew, he could not speak better then Bath Chamudoth, daughter of desires, tendred as Daniel. God therein prevented our self-will worship; in giving Mary no terms, but such as others had; that we should not intreat or entertain novelty in Religion; so we read desirable rayment, Gen.27.15. and bread of desire, Dan.10.3. and Chap.11.8. & 2 Chron.20.25. Vessels of desires.

understand the matter] By this command, doubled for vehementer charge, he exciteth Daniel to all care, attention, and desire to understand this abstruse mystery, this sacred and wonderful secret that was to be revealed, and he condemneth the world, that regardeth not to be instructed in this doctrine, sent from heaven by an Angel unto Daniel, and penned for all Nations use: wherefore we must give better heed unto the speech. for if the word spoken by Angels fall out sure, and every trespasse received just recompence, how shall we escape, neglecting so great a charge of looking to this, that so neerly concerns our salvation? See Hebr.2.1,2,3.

V. 24. Seventy weeks] The Reader is to know, that in the Hebrew we have word for word, sevens seventy is paired out for the people. שבוע signifieth also a week; or, as we term it, a sevennight or sennight. As likewise in Greek, and Latine, it is so called, of the number of seven: and it signifieth sometimes the space of seven dayes; as Dan.10.2. Deut.16.9. and sometimes it conteineth seven year, Lev.25.8. so here. The seventh day was the sabbath day; and the seventh year, the sabbath year; and seven sabbath years, made up the account for the Jubilee. And ten Jubilees, counting nine and forty years to each, make up 490 years, which are these 70 weeks of Solar years here mentioned. About the beginning, and about the ending of these 70 weeks, there is much difficulty, and much variety of opinions among the Learned; as will after appear.

are determined] Heb. is pared out, or, cut out or, determined, not shortned. A verb singular being joyned to a substantive plural; as Job 12. 7. Prov.3.18. teacheth an exact account, That every one of those weeks of years, particularly from the first to the last, shall be precisely compleat, and just so many, not one more, or lesse. Now seventy sevens make four hundred and ninety in ordinary speech; we may not then as some would, understand by them 493 ½. Now that Daniel might conceive how at the beginning of his prayer, upon considering of Jeremy for that seventy years of captivity ended, God took notice of his meditation, the Angel toucheth as it were upon that seventy; shewing how exactly seven times that space is declared aforehand, for the Jews prerogative, continuance of Ceremonies, and meditation how reconcilation of sin is truly made; that every sabbath, or seventh day, in the mean while, they might learn to enter into the meditation of that rest of Christ.

upon thy people] As Daniel prayed for Gods people, Gods city, Gods holy mountain, Gods sanctuary, vers.15,16,17,18,19. so he hath this Kingly honour here vouchsafed him, that they are termed his people, he being so great a man among them, and so tender in affection towards them, and care over them, and therefore out of Gods love to him, they could not be void of Gods favour under such a protectour. So Chap. 10.14. & Chap. 11.14. & Chap. 12.1. God called them Moses people, Deut.9.12. as seeming there to own them the lesse himself, because of his hot displeasure against them for their sin.

Thy holy City] Thy; So again to honour Daniel, and to shew the thing that was the dearest jewel and joy of his heart.

holy City] Saint Matthew naming Jerusalem the holy city, onely at the beginning and end of our Lords confirming the covenant, Mat.4.5. & 27.5,3. seemeth to call upon us to consider this text. But when this time of 490 years was expired, it had that title no longer, then the many brought to the kingdom of heaven, Dan.9. 27. Mat.8.11. are the high Jerusalem, Gal.4.26. and new Jerusalem, Apoc.3.12. and the holy city, Apoc.11.2. and holy Jerusalem, Apoc.21.10. as also in Isa.52.1. where Jerusalem the holy city, bidden to put on her garments, requireth us to frame our policy so, that all be taught of God, what white linnen maketh the garment, which is the Justification of Saints. See Apoc.19.8 and this further shews, in the opinion of many, and the best, that the end and period of the city, is the end and period of this prophecie of the seventy weeks, vers.26,27. Of this see more on ver.25.

to finish the transgression] Or, to restrain. This is the rich benefit and precious part of this prophecie All the following blessings come by the Messiah as is cleerly in the words following expressed: however the Jews will not here indure to hear any thing here of Christ. He shall satisfie for the sins of the world by his death, and shall establish the true righteousnesse of the Gospel, which shall remain for ever; through which all Believers shall be absolved and justified; and by his Spirit be regenerate to a new and godly life: he shall fulfill all that was fore-told of him; and he shall be consecrated, and made an everlasting King at the right hand of God his Father, having obteined the fulnesse of Gods Spirit, as head of his Church. And after all this, the city and nation shall be destroyed by the Romans. this finishing transgression here, is not to make up the full measure of it, as Gen.15.16. Mat.23.32. 1 Thess 2. 16. But to make a full end of it.; as the words following do further explain. Here the first degree is by taking away the dominion of the reigning power of it, Rom.6.11,12.

and to make an end of sins] Or, to seal up; that they never after be seen or discovered, Col.2.14 and so can never appear to accuse us. As we seal up things we have done, with things we would be sure should not after appear; as the Lions den, and our Saviours Sepulchre were sealed. This is a second degree removing the evil of the Accusation of sin.

and to make reconciliation for iniquity] By his propitiatory sacrifice, taking away the guilt and punishment of it, which is a third degree, Esay 53.5. Rom.8.1.34. See Esay 44.22. and 40.2. In which place of Esay, to note this by the way, the Trent Bible hath the errour of malitia for militia: as also, Psal.42.2 Deum fontem vivum, for, Deum fortem vivum; with many such others, even by the confession of the learned Papists themselves.

and to bring in everlasting righteousnesse] 2 Cor.5.21. Most perfectly fulfilling the law for us, by doing, and suffering; and imputing the same unto us that believe. After the renewing the evil, this is, the good Christ brings us, 1 Cor.1.30. See Psal.85.11,12. Esay 53.11. Jer.23.5,6. & 33.15,16.

and to seal up the vision] All the visions and prophetical predictions, concerning Christ, were fulfilled in, and by him; and so the truth of them sealed up and confirmed, and compleated in the accomplishment of them. Hence is that saying, so often in the Gospel, That it might be fulfilled, &c. Mat.27.9,35. Luk.4.21. and 22.37. & 24.44. and in John very often. Our Saviour expoundeth this place, saying, that the Law and Prophets reach unto John, Mat.11.13. Also Maimony, from the Jews common consent, saith, that all the Prophets prophecied but unto the dayes of Messiah. That speech of theirs must be taken hence. And themselves see and confesse, that they have had no Vision, Prophet, nor Prophecies, never since our Saviour Christ Jesus came. See 2 Cor. 1.20. Heb.10.1. 1 Pet.1.10. &c. Christ by his prophetical office, shut up, and sealed up all former Visions, Prophets, and prophecies.

and to anoint the most holy] Heb. the holinesse of holinesses. The abstracts have somewhat more vigor and strength in them, then the concretes. The meaning is, to anoint Him; that is, Holinesse it self, and in whom consists all the Churches Holinesse. Who is, in spirit and truth, that which the ark, the propitiatory, the altar of incense, and of burnt-offerings; the table and candlestick, the sanctuary, and Sanctum Sanctorum, which were called most Holy things, and consecrated by unction, Exod.30.26. Lev.8.10. &c. were all but in shadow and figure. He anointed to be the only King, Priest and Prophet of his Church. Hence he is called the Messiah; and Christ; both which do signifie anointed, Esay 61. 1. &c. Luk.4.17. &c. Psal.2.6. and 45.7. Act.4.27. and Chap.10. 38. By this priesthood, he shut up and sealed up the Levitical priesthood, Heb.8.9,10. Chapters. He the authour and meritor of all the former blessings aud benefits. He, the substance also of all that was formerly shadowed out, and prefigured.

V. 25. Know therefore and understand] Thus the angel sharpens Daniels attention again, and again, Mat.24.15. We have more need to quicken ours, Dan.12.10. and the rather also, because besides the waightinesse of the matter, the difficulty and obscurity is so great, through the little light we have in Scripture, of the passages of these times; and the Heathen historians, being so various and uncertain, and disagreeing among themselves, in the periods of times, and in the names, number and persons of the Kings, reigning within the compasse of these years.

that from the going forth of the commandement, &c.] There are diversities of opinions among the learned, concerning, both the Beginning and the End of these seventy weeks: Yet not so great but that they make a joynt evidence, and convincing demonstration against the Jews, that the Messiah is already come; and that many ages, long since past. For the beginning of them; there are four Commandements, Edicts, or Proclamations, mentioned in Ezra, and Nehemy: to one of which, these words, and the beginning of the seventy weeks, or 490 years, must of necessity be referred. The first, is that of Cytus, 2 Chron.36.22,23. Ezra 1.1. and

5.13. and 6.3. The second, is of Darius, Ezra 4.24 and 6.1. The third, is of Artaxerxes to Ezra, in the seventh year of his reign, Ezra 7.1,7,11,12,13,21. And the fourth, is of Artaxerxes again, to Nehemiah, in the twenty year of his reign, Neh. 1.1. and 2.1. Much variety, as we said, is in the opinions of the learned, to which of these the angel hath reference in these words; and so from which of these the 70. weeks must take their commencement and beginning. Some, and among many others, the ancient Hebrews, do understand them to relate to that first Edict of Cyrus; which was indeed the primary Proclamation, and most famous; and that alone which was foretold, and prophesied of by name, so many ages before, Esay 44.28. and 45.13. and may seem strange, if it should be passed over, by the angel, in silence, and not meant by him in these words. And the words here, both for the restoring and returning of the people, and for the building of the Temple and City, will well agree with the words of the Edict. For that he gave order for the building of the City also, is not to be doubted, out of those faid places, Esay 44.28. and 45.13. and also out of Ezra 4.13,13,15,16,19,21,23. And thereupon they reckon, that from, the expiration of the 70. years captivity in Babylon, and from the time of this prayer of Daniel and the words of the Angel, 70 weeks of years; that is, 490 years, should immediately follow, to the coming and death of the Messiah: and the destruction of Jerusalem should be soon after. And so they make Daniels Book, to contein six hundred years, viz. seventy in Babylon, 490. thence to Christs death; And fourty thence, to Jerusalems destruction. And to this they labour, to make the Chronology of the times to agree: disclaiming, hereupon, the computation of years, which is found in the Heathen-greek Histories of these times. And were it not for that difficulty, surely, this were an opinion to be much imbraced. Others not finding the Chronology of times, to agree with the former opinion, do fasten up the second Edict, in the second year of Darius: and here some do understand Darius, the son of Hystaspis; and reckon sixteen years from the first of Cyrus, to the six of this Darius, when the temple was finished. Ezra 6. 15. And these stoutly maintain this opinion, to agree best with the true Chronology of the times: that from the second of Darius Hystaspis, to the death of the Messiah, are 490 years. Others, understand Darius Nothus, the base son of Artaxerxes Longimanus; and leaving out an 100, or an 150 years, from the first of Cyrus, to the second of this Darius; thence they make up the reckoning of the 490 years or seventy weeks, from the second of Darius Nothus, to the second of Vespasian, when the City and Temple were destroyed; that, viz. from the second of Darius Nothus, to the end of the Persian monarchy, 91 Alexander the great in his monarchy, six years: who dyed in the first year of the 114 Olympiad; and in the 430 year since the building of Rome: Thence to our Saviours Passion, in the 18 of Tiberius, in the first year of the 203 Olympiad, 356 years or 89 Olympiads. Thence to the destruction of Jerusalem by Titus, in the second of Vespasion, and in the 822 years since the building of Rome, 36 years. In all, 490 years, or seventy sevens, or weeks of years: ending them thus, not in the death of Christ, but in the destruction of Jerusalem, as we said. But in this second Edict, of the second year of Darius, either Hystaspis, or Nothus, there is no mention made, Either of the restoring and returning of the People, or of the building of Jerusalem, which are the words of the angels Epoche here; but onely of the building of the temple; and that only by removing the stop and hindrance; and so promoting onely, and furthering the building of it. Others, understand these words of, and begin these weeks in the seventh year of Artaxerxes Longimanus, the father of Darius Nothus, and end them in the death of the Messiah. Others, of Mnemon, or Memon the son of Darius Nothus, and end them in the Destruction of Jerusalem: But either of these is the least probable; because, then onely Ezra was sent with his company; and the temple was builded before: and the wall of Jerusalem after. And yet men not unlearned, embrace this opinion. The last opinion, conceives the angels words to be meant of the last Edict, in the twentieth year of Artaxerxes, either Longimanus, or else Mnemon, or Memon; when, indeed, Nehemiah was sent to restore and to build Jerusalem; the walls and City, Nehem.1.3. and 2.3, 5,8,17. and Chap.3. and Chap.7.4. And to this also, as well as to the first Edict of Cyrus, the next words of the angel do seem well to relate and agree. And they, who are of this opinion, do labour also to make the Chronology of times, to correspond hereunto. The cause of all this diversity, is in the silence of the Scripture; For that ends in Ezra his time: and in the uncertainty of humane histories, the Greeks especially, which do very much vary, as we have said, among themselves, in setting down the parcels, and particularities of these times, here summed up, in so few words, by the angel. and in these uncertainties, we cannot be very certain; but leave it to the judgment of the judicious Reader: intimating only the inclination of our opinion, towards the first of all: as the fairest and safest to rest upon; specially, if the period of it were extended beyond the death of the Messiah, to the destruction of Jerusalem and the Temple; however, humane histories will not clear up the Chronology of times to be answerable thereunto. And, in likelihood, it stood best with the wisdome of God, all things considered; That, as many other Prophecies, so this famous one, of the coming and death of the Messiah, and of the final destruction of the City and Temple, should have as much doubt and difficulty in it, for the precise point of time, as all this comes to.

to restore and to build Jerusalem] These words note down the Epoche, or period, from whence these seventy weeks must take their rise and beginning: For which see the last foregoing Annotations. This, and all that follows in this verse, are things which must be brought to passe and accomplished, within the compasse of that space of time.

restore] Some refer this to the Temple, and the restoring of it. Some to the City only, and the building of it again; as the same word is used again, in the latter end of this verse. But others, more rightly, to the people of the Jews, and their returning back; as the Conjugation of the verb, and the distinct repetition of the Particle or Preposition ל do declare.

build Jerusalem] The building of it was commanded, and begun in Cyrus his time; as was shewed in the last Annotations. We must not here make two distinct times, to be intended by the angel, one for the restoring and return of the people, and another time for the building of Jerusalem; as some do, unto the Messiah] Unto him, and to all that is here said of him, in his own person, and in his instruments, executing his most severe judgment upon the Jewish people, City and Temple; that shall be the period of the seventy weeks.

Messiah] Messiah, here only, twice a proper Name. Hence famous, Joh.1.41. and 4.25. The eternal Word is, by the angel, named Messiah; that is, in Greek, Christ, or Anointed, or written in abstracto. Anointed, in regard of both Natures, as to the Office of Reconciliation and Redemption. But anointed in the Humane Nature only, as to the gifts of the Holy Ghost, collated upon it, infused into it.

the Prince] Duke, Leader, Commander. So Esay 55.4. Mic.5.1. Mat.2.6. Act.3.15. & 5.31. Heb.2.10. & 12.2. We must follow his Rule and Conduct.

shall be] The angel now divides the 70 weeks into three parts; First, into seven weeks, Secondly, into sixty two weeks: and thirdly, into one week; according to the sequence of times, and affairs therein. And he joyneth proper stories to them, at least, to the first and last part.

seven weeks] Of years; which are fourty nine years. Which divers reckon, from divers beginnings; according to the various opinions thereof, formerly mentioned. Some begin them with Cyrus, his decree, and end them, when the walls of Jerusalem were finished by Nehemiah; and make this interval of time to be fourty nine years. And hereunto, they refer also those fourty six years, Joh.2.20. beginning that reckoning from the third of Cyrus, when Daniel mourned for the hindrance of the building, Chap.10.2,1. Others, begin them with the second of Darius Nothus, who reigned 19 years; and end them with the 32 of his Successour Artaxerxes, Mnemon, when, say they, Nehemy having finished the buildings, and his Deputyship, returns to Artaxerxes again, Neh.5.14. and Chap.13.6. The truth is, the Scripture pleasing not to expresse the full years of the reigns of those Persion Kings, Cyrus, Ahasuerus, Artaxerxes, Darius; nor yet the series of their succession: and most of those names, being so common to many of the Persian kings, in prophane stories, leaves us in uncertainties, for the assignation and application of these years, to the precise years of those Kings.

and threescore and two weeks] These 62 sevens, which make 434 years from the restauration of Jerusalem, are parcelled alone, only, that the last seven or week of years may be handled alone, for our Lords story. And these do begin when the former seven weeks are ended: and are to be joyned with the former seven weeks, because they both joyntly go before the time of the last week. Yet some render the former words, and these, thus, shall be seven of weeks, even 62 weeks: And so make the latter words expository of the former. And understand these 62 weeks to be included only in the 70 weeks; But to have neither the same beginning, nor Ending, with the 70 weeks; but to begin after them, and end before them: to begin in the seventh of Artaxerxes Mnemon, and to end in the death of the Messiah.

the street] Some with some seeming strain to the words, do refer this to the first seven weeks of years only; and make them the troublous times. Others, to the following 62 weeks only; and make them the troublous times. But considering the placing of the words, with least strain, and in true sense, they may best in their Latitude relate to them both; so including the seven weeks, as not excluding altogether the 62. And indeed both were troublous times.

wall] Or, breach, or, ditch. Streets and walls comprehend the whole City.

even in troublous times] Heb. in strait of times. Not for shortnesse of times; but for strait and sore troubles in them. See Ezra, and Nehemiah, and Ezek. Chap.38. & 39. and Dan.11. and the books of Maccabees, for the troubles of all these times. Such very often are the times, and state of the Church.

V. 26. and after threescore and two weeks] That is, in the seventh and last week, after the year 483. from the going forth of the Commandement, Vers.25.

shall Messiah be cut off] Some understand these words, that in the last seven, and in the last half of that seven, Christ shall come and preach, and suffer death; for in three yeares and a half he finished his publick office: The testament was ratified by the death of Christ, Heb. 9. 17. Therefore they will have this last week to end in Christs death; and in the 28 Jubilee from the eighth year of Joshuah. Others, observing the Hebrew distinction Zateph Caton set down before these words, and after the 62 weeks; do rather and better render and understand them thus, After the 62 weeks; and after the Messiah being cut off; And so they make the Messiah to be cut off before this last week, of seven years; and refer the last week to the destruction of Jerusalem. The next verse will better cleer these things.

Messiah] The same in the former verse. The Jewes do seek but foolishly to wrest it to Hircanus the high Priest cut off by Herod, or to any other rich person of the Priestly line. For, besides other reasons, the things here spoken of Messiah, are so great as can agree to none other but to Christ our Saviour.

cut off] By violent death from the land of the living; as Esay 53.8. and in Ezekiahs case, Esay 38.10, 11. See this Act.2.23. & 3.13. & 4.15. & 13.28,29. and in the history of the Gospels, Luk. 24.26. This is set down here, as the Cause of the destruction following.

but not for himself] Or, and shall have nothing. Being brought to nothing by his death, without life, strength, or any dignity in appearance, Psal.22.6,7. Act.3.13,14. Esay 53.2,3. Phil.2.2. as he had in his life-time no esteem or regard, Act.4.11. Joh. 19.21. Others thus; there being nothing in him; Namely, no cause or fault, Esay 53.4,9. as Joh 15.17. See 1 Pet.2.22. 1 Joh.3.5. Or, there being nothing therein for him; that is to say, All being done for the good and redemption of mankind, 2 Cor.5.21. Or, they being none of his; that is, There being nothing then in Jerusalem, which he will have and own, but cast off and reject. The Trent Bible doth greatly corrupt the text, and swerve from it.

and the people, &c.] For that heynous sin of cutting off Christ, this horrible judgment shall follow, and fall upon them.

the people of the Prince that shall come, shall destroy] That is, The Roman Legions under Titus shall destroy City, and Sanctuary. Or, the Gentiles, now strangers, Eph.2.12. but, by the preaching of the Gospel, should become the people of the Prince to come, the Messiah, when Israel was rejected, they shall destroy, &c. Some translate thus, the City and Sanctuary shall he destroy, the Covetnours people to come; that is, Christ the King, to whom the Father hath given all judgment, shall destroy this Princes reputed people the Jews, that should come, and reject him, and also their Sanctuary: and this in the next generation after their Cutting of him off. Of this Christ foretold them, Mat.24.2,15——22. and ver.34. & Chap.23.36,37,38. and of the proper token of it, Luk.21.20 ——25.

and the end thereof shall be with a flood] A deluge of destruction, as Esay 8.7,8. an irresistable torrent shall finally sweep away City and Sanctuary, people and State, Matt.24.21. Luk.21.22.

desolations are determined] They are inevitable by Gods decree. See Esay 10.22,23. Rom.9.27,28,29.

V. 27. And he shall confirm, &c.] The Messiah shall corroborate, ratifie and establish. And this by his Preaching and Passion; as Prophet, Priest, and King of his Church.

the Covenant] Of God, and his Gospel; th: New Covenant, Jer.31.31 ——35. Heb.8.10 ——13. Rom.5.15.

with many] Rom.5.15,19. Mat.26.28. with the Elect, not Jews only, but Gentiles also.

many for one week] Or, many one week; that is, that one week remaining, which is the 70 week; where the first half of it only is to be understood; as appears, by comparing this with the other half of it, in the words immediately following.

and in the midst of the week] The former half part of that week being past; in the latter half of it, allotted, say some, for the publike function of the Messiah, in the end of it.

he shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease] The Messiah, the Prince by the sacrifice of himself, say some, once offered, shall put an end to the daily sacrifice, and all other Levitical Sacrifices, which were but shadows and types of him, and of his sacrifice which was to come. The shadows therefore were to vanish and cease, when the body it self was come, Heb.10.1,9,14. Others, and not amisse, make this whole verse to be a continuation of that in the latter part of the former verse: and refer it all to the seventieth, or the last week of years, beginning 483; and being 29 years after the Messiah was cut off: and understand it thus, That the Messiah, by his Apostles and Ministers, Preaching the Gospel, should that one week confirm the covenant with many; in manner aforesaid confirm them in it. As also in token thereof he further did confirm his love to those of his that were in Jerusalem, by bringing them out of it to Pella before the siege, by a divine Revelation and Oracle; as Eusebius relates in his Ecclesiastical history, book 3.Chap.5. So saving them, as Lot out of Sodom, as the Woman, Apoc.12.14. and as Apoc.18.4. from that deluge and inundation of wrath that fell upon the City; and so shewing his faithfulnesse, and confirming the truth of his covenant of love with them. And that in the midst of that week; that is, much thereabout, in the year 487 or 488. He shall cause the sacrifice, and the oblation to cease; that is, he should so do, by Vespasian and the Roman Legions and armies besieging Jerusalem, Nero being yet alive; and by Titus after continuing the siege; by the straightnesse whereof they should cause the means and requisites necessary for sacrifice and oblation to cease and fail, and soon after burn the Temple; so taking away the place it self, wherein onely it was lawful for them to sacrifice.

And for the overspreading of abominations] Or, with the abominable armies, or, wing of abominations: wing being taken for armies; as Esay 8.8. meaning the armies of the Heathen Romans, abominable to the Jews, in themselves, and in their doings against them; as it after follows.

He shall make it desolate] The Messiah, for their most haynous sin of murdring and cutting them off, by the Roman Legions that make all desolate, lay all waste, City and Temple, State and Nation, by their army, which is therefore called, Chap.12.11. the abomination that makes desolate. Compare Luk.21.20. with Matth.24.15. and Mark 13.14. See also, Matthew 22.7. The accomplishment of all this we read in Josephus, Egesippus, and others.

even untill the consummation] Utter consumption, and final destruction of that place, and people of the Jews, Mat.24.2. Luk.21. 6. See the like, Ezek 7.2,3, &c.

and that determined] Ordained before, and decreed by God; for their sin, chiefly in rejecting and cutting off the Messiah, the Prince, as was said, Mat.27.25. See the like phrase, Esay 10.23, and 28.22.

shall be poured upon the desolate] Shall flow in upon them as a flood; shall rush in, and break in upon them as a breach of the Sea, as a deluge and inundation, that overflows all, sweeps all away, carries all before it. See the like, Esay 8.7,8. Jer.46.7,8. and 48.2. See Luk.21.24. Hence the Jews should have learned, not so much to rest upon, and to acquiesce in that temporal deliverance out of the Babylonish Captivity, and in the re-edification of the Temple and City; as by Faith to look after that spiritual deliverance, by the Messiah, that heavenly Canaan, that spirituall Temple, that holy City, the new Hierusalem which is above, the Mother of us all.

CHAP. X.

Vers. 1. IN, &c.] Daniel mourning for the sad estate of the Jews in Judea, hath a Vision vouchsafed to him, which is the last, and is conteined in this, and the two remaining Chapters. Wherein he is first relieved and strengthened, once, and again, against the great fright and fainting, wherein he was cast by the greatnesse of the Vision. and after he is informed of the affaires of the Empires of the Persians and Grecians, chiefly as they stood in relation to the state and condition of the people of the Jews, the Church of God, under them; and more fully he is told of the passages and transactions of state between the Seleucidæ and Lagidæ, the two main Kingdomes of the Grecian Empire divided. And most of all of the Actions of Antiochus Epiphanes, one of the Seleucidæ; of his subtilty, impiety, tyranny, and bloody persecuting the Religion and people of the Jews. And that Christ in the end will not be wanting to the deliverance of his people, but save and free them, at the precise time there set down. In this Chapter are chiefly set down things precedent to the Prophecie, in the next, the Body of the Prophecie it self. And in the last, some things annexed thereunto.

the third] Heb. three. See Annotations on Chap.1.1.

year] And in the beginning of this year; as appears, vers.4. And this was the third year of his monarchy, after the winning of Babylon: For he had reigned over the Persians many years before this: and in this year he was slain by Tomyris the Queen of the Scythians.

of Cyrus] Heb. Coresh; signifying in the Persian tongue a Lord; given to him after, for honours sake. But his first name was Ptace, that is, a dog or bitch, in the language of the Medes; so called, because a bitch gave him suck when he was an infant exposed to death; as Herodotus and Justine do relate.

King of Persia] Now monarch, as was said before.

a thing] Heb. a word; usually put for thing.

was revealed] From God by a Vision.

unto Daniel] So famous, even in forreign Nations, for wisdom, worth, and piety for visions and for skill in dreams, revealing secrets, and fore-telling things to come; whereof many were alcreet, and fore-telling things to come; whereof many were already come to passe: so miraculously saved in the Lions den; so esteemed, advanced, and imployed by the Monarches of Babylon, and Persia.

Belteshazzar] See Chap.1.7. the Annotations there.

and the thing was true] See Apoc.19.9. Luk.1.20. Jer.44.28. No false Vision of a lying prophet.

but the time appointed was long] Heb. great in length; Namely, In many ages after it should receive its final accomplishment, ver. 14 so long, say some, as till the end of the world: out of that, Chap.12.2. But rather, till the time of Antiochus Epiphanes, which was yet for many generations to come hereafter. Which shews, Daniels God to be the true God, foretelling things to come, Esay 41. 22,23. and the duty of Gods people, patiently to wait, and expect Gods appointed time.

as he understood] Namely, by the Angels shewing, ver.11,14, 20,21. & 11.2. and 12.8,9.

the thing, &c.] Contained in Chap.11. and 12.

V. 2. In those days] In the very beginning of that third year; as appears, ver.4. most likely beginning the third day of the first moneth.

was mourning] Because the people were so backward to return out of their Captivity, when they were licensed and authorised thereunto; yet so very many of them remained still behind, mindlesse and careslesse of Gods Religion, Worship, and Promises: but chiefly because the building of the Temple, begun by the Jews that were returned at the command of Cyrus, Ezra 1. and 3. Chapters, was now inhibited, and ceased, by the means of the Samaritans, and others, who hired Counsellours against them, and so prevailed with Cambyses the son, in the absence of Cyrus the father, in the Scythian War. As they did also after this time, in the days of Ahasuerus and Artaxerxes, until the second year of Darius, Ezr. 8.4. This hindrance, in this year of Darius, much affected and afflicted holy Daniel; as for the Temples sake, so for the God of the Temple, whose Truth and Power, in performing his promise, might by this interruption seem to be questioned and impeached. The use of mourning and tears, in like cases, is very frequent in Scripture, Esay 38.5. and 22.14. Psal.6.6.126.5,6. Jerem.9.1. & 13.17 and 14.17. Mat 5.4.

three full weeks] Heb, weeks of days; which distinguisheth them from the weeks of years, Chap 9.24, &c. with this time fell in their feast of Passeover. Which Daniel could not observe, as being out of the land of Judea, and Jerusalem, Deut.16.2,5,6,7. But the Jews there might, having built the altar, Ezr.3.3——7.

V.3. I eat no pleasant bread] Heb. bread of desires, as portion of desires, Jer.12.10. and land of desire, Jerem.3.19. Mal.3.12. Zech.7.14. Here are some expositions of the manner of his mourning; besides prayers and tears, which no doubt were not wanting: here he thewes his abstinence in meats and drink, and other comforts and refreshments of the body: thereby to help forward the afflicting of his soul in this his godly sorrow for the calamity of the Church, and the people of God: and by mortifying of his flesh, to quicken his Spirit the more in making his addresse to God. These, & like signes of sorrow, are used in Scripture in like cases. So 2 Sam.12,16,17,20. Of his choosing of pulse, rather then to eat of the daily provision of the Kings meat, and to drink of the wine which Nebuchadnezzar drank, see Chap.1.8. and the Annotations there. But when he was at his own finding, observing the Levitical Ordinances, he abstained not from the lawful use of pleasant bread, and flesh, and wine; as appears here, except in cases of fasting and mourning.

flesh, nor wine] His kind of Fasting here consisted not in a choice of certain kind of meats; but of the condition and quality of them. He chose the courssest sorts of meats and drinks; such as might serve to sustain Nature only, though in much hardship and penance, and chastning himself, vers.12. He abstained from wine as well as flesh. His Diet was course, and scant, during so long a time.

anoint my self] Anointing was much in use among the Jews, and others, to chear up the countenance, and rejoyce the heart, Psal.104.15. Prov.27.9. So used by Ruth, Chap.3.3. by David, 2 Sam.12.20. by those, Amos 6.6. Whence is that, Psal.23.5. Eccl.9.8. And the practice of those two women that anointed our Saviours feet; the one, Luk.7.38,46. the other, Joh.11.2. and 12.3. And therefore in time of mourning and sorrow, the use of it is forbidden, and laid aside; as 2 Sam.14.2. And so Daniel here forbears it: as no doubt all things else which might any way delight and cheer up the body in this time of his mourning. Those words of our Saviour, Mat.8.17. are spoken only in opposition to hypocrisie in Fasting, against such as in private Fastings did disfigure their faces, that they might appear unto men to Fast.

till three whole, &c.] This was not then a sudden Passion, and soon over: but thus struck him to the heart, and stuck by him; to see the Church and people of God in this distresse; the Temple and Worship of God thus stopt and hindred. See Neh.1.3,4. and Chap.2.3. Rom. 12.15. Psal.137.4,5,6. and this time of Fasting is like that, 1 Sam.31.13.

V.4. And in the four and twentieth day] presently upon the ending of the three weeks mourning.

of the first moneth] Called Nisan, in the Chaldee tongue, Esth.3.7. and Abib in the Hebrew, Exod.12.2,3. with Chap.13.4. Deut.16.1. which signifieth the stalk with the ear; because in that moneth which answereth to part of our March & April, barly was in the ear in tho'e countries, 1 Xod.9.31. Lev.23.10,11. Deut.16.9.

I was] In vision; or, it may be, in person, in this time of the Persian Monarchy: and this the rather, considering a number of men were with him, vers.7.

river] By Rivers sides many times God shewed Visions to his Prophets. See Annotations on Chap.8.2.

Hiddekel] Gen.2.14. the third River, or great Channel or head of the great Euphrates, which goeth toward the East of Assyria; or Eastward from the garden of Eden, to Assyria: bounding Eden most Northerly; and above Seleucia running into Tigris, whence it hath its name. And Tigris so called from the name of an arrow, the language of the Medes, by reason of the exceeding sharp swiftnesse of the ft.eam: and Hiddekel in Hebrew, of a like notation. In English, Sharp-swift. The Persians chief glory was in those quarters. And likewise afterwards the Seleucidæ there seated themselves: and Seleucus Nicator built upon Tigris, the famous City Seleucia.

V. 5. Then I lift up mine eyes] Walking forth likely by the River side, with some company, vers.7. to refresh himself after his long mourning and chastning of himself before his God: and not without the use of meditation and contemplation there; He then lift up his eyes, and looked.

a certain man] Heb. one man. One in shape of a man: an Angel, say some: but more likely, Christ; by comparing Chap.12. 6,7. & Rev.1.13,14,15. & 10.5. that Palmoni, Chap.8.13——16. See Ezek.1.26. & 40.3.

cloathed in linnen] The word בד bad, signifies precious linnen; such as Kings, Priests, and Princes used to wear; white and shining. See Exod.28.39. Lev.16.4. 1 Sam.22.18. 2 Sam.6.14. Gen. 41.42. Esth.8.15. Thus also Angels appeared, Ezek.9.2. & Mat. 16.5. Luk.24.4. in long, white, shining garments, Act.1.10. Rev. 15.6. Sometimes in Scripture our Saviour appears cloathed in red; as Esay 63.1,2,3. and Rev.19.13. signifying thereby, that he treadeth the wine-presse of the fierceneſse and wrath of God for our sins; and hath his garments victoriously sprinkled and stained with the blood of our spiritual enemies. He thus cloathed in red, that we might be cloathed in white robes, Rev.7.9,12. and Chap.19.13,14. This Linnen was so thin, that his Body appeared through it, vers.6.

whose loines, &c.] Rev.1.13. See Rev.15.6.

gold of Uphaz] Where was the most precious gold, Jer.10.9. more famous then that of Havilah, or Parvaim, Gen.2.11,12. 2 Chron.3.6. This Uphaz seems to be the same with Ophir, or aurea Chersonesus, as most think; whither Solomons Navy went; and Jehoshaphats ships were bound for gold, 2 Chr.8.18. 1 King. 9.28. & 22.48. and whereof we read, Job.28.16. Psal.45.9. Esay.13. 9. 1 Chr.29.4. This precious golden girdle may represent, the precious, the perfect, the willing and ready obedience of Christ to do his Fathers Will and Service, in the redeeming of mankind, Esay 11.5. & 42.1. and 49.3,4. and Chap.53. Phil.2.7. Joh.4.34. See 1 King.18.46. 2 King.4.29.

V. 6. the beril] a precious stone of a Skie-colour, or Sea-colour. See Ezek.1.16. and 10.9. and the Annotations there. The Trent Bible translates here, a chrysolite.

of lightning] glittering, and dazling the eyes of a speedy presence, Mat.24.27. and such was the angels countenance, Mat.28 3. See Mat.17.2.

and his eyes, &c.] Rev.1.14. and 19.12.

his armes, &c.] Rev.1.15. See Ezek.1.7.

and the voyce, &c.] See Ezek.1.24. and 43.2. Apoc.1.10,15. Act.2.2. By all the former Resemblances, may be shadowed out several Divine perfections, in Christ our Saviour.

V.7. alone saw] Act.9.7. Not that his companions eyes were struck with such blindnesse, as the Sodomites, Gen.19.11. or the Syrian army, 2 King.6.18. But that this Vision was not vouchsafed to them, nor their eyes enlightned to see it: no more then the eyes of Elisha's servant were, till upon the Prophets prayer, the Lord opened his eyes, to see the mountain full of horses and chariots of fire round about Elisha, 2 King.6.17.

fled to hide themselves] The wicked flee sometimes when none pursueth, Prov.28.1. But here likely, hearing suddenly that huge voyce and noise, ver.6. as Sauls company heard a voyce, though not the words of him that spake to Saul; but saw no man, but the light only, Act.9.7. and 22.9. This struck them here into a panick fear; as 2 King.7.7. through their inward guilt and frailty, misdoubting danger; that they left it to hide themselves, as Adam in paradise, in Caves or Weeds, or any such place, as might be by the Rivers side. This fright and flight in them served in part, for the confirmation of the truth of this Vision; that this was not a thing feigned by Daniel, or formed only in his imagination; but in part Witnessed by these men also.

V. 8. this great] This exceeding great; so much the Original imports.

no strength] ver. 16. his spirits were dispersed and spent, his nerves and sinews enfeebled, the joynts of his loines loosed, the blood running to the heart, to maintain and strengthen it, left all the other parts cold and lifeleſse, somewhat like that, Chap.5.6.

my comeliness] vigour, was changed, corrupted, gone. He was so pale and lifeleſse in colour, and countenance, that he looked liker a dead carkasse, then a living man. Such was his consternation and astonishment at the exceeding greatneſse of the vision, that he was fainting and swounding, and scarce life remained in him. See the like, Chap.7.15,28. & 8.17,27. Ezek.1.28. Hab.3.16. Act.9.3,4. Rev.1.17. Esay 6.5.

V. 9. then was I in a deep sleep] Then I fell into a deep sleep: Chap.8.18. like that of Adam, Gen.2.21. or of Jonas, Chap.1.5. or that, 1 Sam.26.12. All this was to fit him the more, by this deep humiliation, to a religious attention and docility, for the receiving of these wonderful mysteries and prophesies in this vision to be revealed to him.

V. 10. an hand touched me] ver.16,18. Chap. 8.18. and 9 21. Apoc. 1. 17. See Esay 6.6,7. This seems to be the hand of the Angel Gabriel, Chap.8.16. and 9.21. like the appearance of a man, ver.16,18. touched him, with the hand of a man; not the hand of him, ver.6. Hereby may be signified and symbolized the power of the Holy Ghost. See Ezek.1.3.

set me upon my knees] Heb. caused me to move my self upon my knees; and so set me up in part: being fallen before all along upon the ground upon his face. Thus striving it seems to rise, yet through faintneſs could not at the first get upright.

V. 11. a man greatly beloved] Ver.19. Chap.9.23.

that I speak] 1 Gabriel.

stand upright] Heb. Rand upon thy standing: or, in thy standing. So Neh.8.7. a second degree of his raising, and corroboration. He must stand up to hear Gods Word by the Angel. See Jud.3.20.

for unto thee am I now sent] This then was an angel, sent to tell and teach him things to come.

I stood trembling] Not fully recovered; but as a faint man newly rising out of his sick bed, weak in his knees. Thus God when he pleaseth, doth by degrees dispense his favours, and supports.

V. 12. Fear not] A third degree. He now comes from his Body to his Mind. Bids him put away that terrour and trouble of mind wherein he was, that he might quietly and comfortably hear and understand what he had to deliver unto him. So again, ver.19 So Mat.28.5,10. Luk.1.30. and 24.35. and in many other places.

the first day] Ver.2. the first of the three weeks. Here is Gods readineſse to hear prayer, Esay.65.24. and 58.9. Psal.32.5. See Chap.9.20.

set thine heart] Heb. give thy heart: apply, and imploy it, not formally, or perfunctorily.

to understand] Consider, and weigh the present calamity of thy people; with a desire to know what their future state shall be.

and to chasten] ver.2,3. See Lev.16.29.

before thy God] In his sight; without all hypocrisie: in deep humiliation, with true faith, and serious repentance. To all which the angel here gives testimony.

thy words were heard] The words of thy prayers. And those were not so much to know what should befall his people in the latter dayes: of that he had understood, Chap. 7. and 8. neither would he for that have been so boldly inquisitive, or so much have afflicted himself, ver.2,3. But to ease and relieve them of their present pressure and calamity, which now in this third year of Cyrus was befallen them. And here we see the gracious effect and fruit of prayer, Psal.65.2.

and I am come for thy words] Sent on this ambassage to thee, upon the gracious hearing of thy prayers.

V. 13. But the Prince, &c.] By Prince, here; Romish Interpreters do generally understand an Angel. And do teach, That to Kingdomes and Provinces, as also to every man when he is born, there are appointed by God, particular good Angels for their continual Guardians: and that Satan on the other side, doth appoint to them particular evil angels to watch and work for their hurt; and that these are in opposition, and fight one against another. Bold assertions upon weak grounds. And here the chief of these Expositors understand by the Prince of the Kingdome of Persia, a Good Angel, which they call the Tutelar Angel, and Guardian of that Kingdome. But then how he and Gabriel should withstand and fight against one another, they puzzle themselves, and are at a losse. Others of them understand an Evill angel, that did here withstand Gabriel, and after fight against him, vers.20. But leaving these groundleſse fancies, and unsafe suppofals, The Text fairly and directly leads us to the Prince of the Kingdome of Persia, who was Cambyses, the son of Cyrus, as Heathen Histories do record; who in his fathers absence, as was said, stopt the execution of his fathers Decree, and forbade the building of the Temple; being drawn thereto by those mentioned, Ezra 4.1——6. and likely not without the Devils hand and help in it.

withstood me] Or, stood before me; as it were, juridically. I being appointed to observe him, and his doings against thy people, and to provide for, and withstand the impediments which he cast in the way, and the oppositions made by him.

one and twenty dayes] Those three weeks of thy mourning and chastening thy self, ver.2,3. and this hindred me from coming to thee till now, though the words of thy prayers were heard and granted from the first of those dayes.

but lo Michael, one of the chief Princes] Or, the first of the chief Princes; their Lord, called your Prince, vers.21. and the great Prince, which standeth for the children of thy people, Chap. 12.1. Michael the Archangel, Jude ver.9. Michael and his Angels: Rev. 12.7. This Michael here, some take to be a chief created angel. But most, for the Angel of the Covenant, Christ our Saviour; that Archangel, by whose voice and Proclamation the dead shall be raised, 1 Thess. 4.16. And Angels here are called Princes, See Rom.8.38. Eph.1.21. and 3.20. col.1.16.

came to help me] Cambyses so strongly withstood, that I stood in need of this help, which is above the help of angels, against him, to represse his further cruel counsels, and mischievous purpose, against the Jews; and to inform and inable me in this service. This doth minister found comfort to the Church in all afflictions.

with the Kings of Persia] Cambyses, and his Peeres, and Counsellers that set him on against the Jewes, V. 14. Now I am come] at the end of the 21 dayes.

in the later dayes] Heb. in the sequel, or posterity of dayes. So Chap.2.28. Gen.49.1. Act.2.17. Not at the end of the world, or with the days of the Gospel; But in the declination, and towards the end of their temporal state; a while before the coming of the Messias; under whom began another age; and a spiritual state of the Church. And this is more then Daniel seems to have prayed for. God herein deals with him as he did with Ahaz, Esay 7.14.

for yet] Besides those things which were shewed thee in vision, Chap.7. and 8.

the Vision] and prophecie; as Chap.8.17. Esay 1.1.

for many days] See Chap.12.4,6——to. The days of Antiochus Epiphanes are most insisted upon, Chap.11. which were many ages after this.

V.15. I set my face, &c.] Ver.8,9. as not able to endure the brightneſse of his glory; as our eye is not able to endure the brightneſse of the Sun. After the former sweet consolations and corroborations, we may marvel at this continued dejection: But rather guesse at, and conjecture, then certainly define any freth causes or occasions of it. New ones we can hardly imagine, did interour. But we must rest still in the former; as his own words do import, ver. 16,17.

and I became dumb] either of set purpose, silent; or else not able to speak: and indeed we read not that he spake any thing since the beginning of this Vision. And the words he first useth, seem to tend this way, ver. 17. And sometimes astonishment, fear, shame, sorrow, yea, admiration and joy, when they are on a sudden in an excessive degree, do for a while take away the use and faculty of speech, till a man is able to recollect himself.

V. 16. one like, &c.] ver.10,18. This seems to be the same Angel Gabriel; the same that spake to him, and was sent to him, Chap.8.16. and 9.21. Though some understand this of the Son of God, in the appearance of man: as in that shape he often shewed himself to the Patriarchs, and Prophets, before his Incarnation.

O my Lord] Thus he styles the Angel; in all humility, out of the sense of his own frailty, and the angels glory.

by the Vision] Thus he excuseth himself and his weaknesse; from the gloriousneſse of the Vision and appatition.

my sorrowes are turned upon me] Rush and break in upon me, as the pangs of a woman in travel.

V. 19. And said] See ver.5,11,12.

Peace be unto thee] The loving and usual form of salutation and compectation, Luk.10.5. & 24.36. Joh.3.ver.14. Peace comprehending all blessings, all felicity. He should not then need to fear death, or any danger.

be strong] Redoubled, for greater assurance, and efficacy. So Josh 1.6,7,9,18. and 10.25. Thus the Angel, as it were, strives and wrastles to overcome Daniels infirmity.

I was strengthened] The power and effect of Gods Word by the Angel. God by degrees lifts up his; and ministers grace and strength.

Let my Lord speak] When God doth fit and furnish; then man is willing and ready. So Esay 6.8.

V.20. Knowest thou &c.?] By this interrogation, he would quicken Daniels desire after it. See ver.12,14.

and now] He summarily propounds here, what he particularly declares at large in the Chapters following.

will I return] to the King of Persia, from whom I came, ver.13. this ambassage being performed.

to fight] To resist Cambyses, and his plots and proceedings against the Jews; to ruine him, and that whole Empire, by degrees.

and when I am gone forth] Thence, from Persia; to call and confirme the Prince of Græcia.

Lo,] A Note of attention, & admiration, to that which follows.

the Prince of Grecia shall come] a wonder indeed, that Alexander the Great with so small an army, should come against that last mighty Persian Monarch Darius Codomannus, and gain his Empire. The Papists that understand here by this Prince of Grecia, an Angel, either good, or bad, may please themselves in their own dreams; and fight among themselves about their own fancies.

Grecia] Heb. Javan, The style of Grecia; because they were of the posterity of Javan, the fourth son of Japhet, Gen. 10. 2. Whence also they were called Jones. See Dan.8.21. Joel 3.6.

V. 21. But I will shew thee] Before I return, ver.20. This may have principal reference to the Seleucidæ, and Lagidæ, which followed after Alexander the Great, and upon whom the main body of the Vision and Prophecie following is spent, Chap. 11. & 12.

CHAP. XI.

Vers.1. Also I] These are the words, not of Daniel, but of the Angel Gabriel; who here continues his speech, and performs his promise, Chap.10.14,21. and gives a more particular exposition of the matters of the Visions, Chap.1. and 7. and 8. So that in those Visions the same Nations are figured thrice over (only Babel, or the Chaldean Empire left out in the last, as then at an end) and are expounded thrice; the later exposition still the clearer: and here last of all, with the greatest clearnesse of all, are foretold by the Angel, the particular Kings of Persia, and of Grecia more specially, the sundry several passages of their divided kings, and their affairs one against another; as they stood in a relation to the Jews, Gods people.

in the first yeare of Darius the Mede] Chap.5.31. and 6.28. and 9.1. the first year of the Persian Empire.

even I stood to confirm, &c.] In two things chiefly, viz. first to break down the Chaldean Empire, so that by the Angels assistance, the golden head was broken to pieces, Chap.2. by the Petition of the Watcher, the axe was laid to the root of the tree, Chap.4. and the Lion plucke, Chap.7. and Belshazzar slain, Chap.5.

Secondly, to confirm, and strengthen Darius and Cyrus (for they reigned together) to issue forth that Edict and Proclamation, for the return of the Jews out of the Babylonish Captivity, into their own land. For, no doubt, but so great a matter, at that time, did admit of great debate. Whether, or no, to dimisse so many captives, to lose the benefit they reaped by them, to incur the danger might follow thereupon; We see how loath the King of Egypt was to let them go out of his land, Exod.Chap 5, &c. But the Angel here confirms and strengthens Darius in this good resolution to let them go in the midst of all his hæsitations and fluctuations of mind, and against all politick suggestions, and expositions, made by any to the contrary. And thus the Angel shews the great care he had of Daniels people in their great affairs with these monarchs, Mat.18.10. Psal.34.7. and 9.11. Heb.1.14.

V. 2. And now] Being not only imployed under God, in the management and administration of the Persian monarchy, so as may make for the use and good of the Church, but also being sent to thee, as aforesaid, Chap.10.ver.11.14.

will I shew thee the truth] Chap.10.21. the propriety of the Visions of the Image, Chap.2. and of the Beasts Chap.7. and 8. which then we may not expound, but according to the Angels commentary: which standeth in matters so famous, that men, out of the Church, will bring us stories most exactly agreeing with the Angels words, That our enemies being Judges, this might seem rather a history of things past, then a prophecie of such things to come so many ages after. The Histories, now extant that help so much to the clear understanding of this Chapter, are Herodotus, Polybius: Zonaras, Pausanias, Xenophon, Josephus, Livius, Florus, Appian, Plutarch, Justin, Ptolomeus, Physcon, and others. See Esay 41. vers.22,23.

yet three Kings in Persia] Yet besides this Darius, that was; and this Cyrus, that now is, Chap.10.1. So is the particle yet used, Gen.40.12. Jonas 3.4. Some reckon them thus, Cambyses, Smerdis, Magus, and Darius Hystaspis. Others take, in Cyrus, and leave out Smerdis Magus, being but a counterfeit, and therefore slain within one year.

and the fourth shall be far richer, &c.] This is Xerxes, famously so known, for his Riches in Heathen Stories, Justin.lib.2. which riches Cyrus had got, Esay 45.3. and his Father Darius by levying of tributes and taxes, Esth.10.1. whence he was called the Huisser, or Hoarder of the kingdom: like that exactor of tributes, in the 10. verse of this Chapter. Besides his own impositions laid upon so many Provinces.

and by his strength, through his riches, he shall stir up, &c.] This Expedition of Xerxes, against Græcia, is very famous in heathen Histories, in Herodotus, Justin, Diodorus Siculus, Paulus Orosius, Plutarch, and others; his armies huge, by land and sea; his pride monstrous; his flight shameful: whence he was called, first, the terrour of Greece; and after, the scorn of Greece. Some imagine, as if this were the best monarch of Persia, and so but four in all: But it is nothing so. There were these after him, Artaxerxes Longimanus, Darius Nothus, Artaxerxes Mnemon, Darius Ochus, Darius Codomannus. But these are passed over by the Angel, as not making so much to his present purpose, nor medling much with the affairs of the Jews, after the Temple and City of Jerusalem were once builded.

V. 3. And a mighty King] This was above 100 years after that expedition of Xerxes; and this man was that belly of brasse, Chap. 2.32. the body of the Leopard, Chap.7.6. the notable horn of the he-goat, Chap.8.5. Alexander the Great; here is an abridgment of his story.

that shall rule with great dominion] Conquered the world in 6 years; was sorry there was not another world to conquer, Chap. 2.39.

and do according to his will] Whatsoever he wisht, and attempted; even beyond all humane hope and expectation: and upon such successes, would needs be held and reputed a god. See Amos on Chap.3.1.

V. 4. And when he shall stand up] Monarch 6 or 7 years after he hath withstood and subdued the Persians, and their monarchy.

his kingdom shall be broken] Chap.2.44. & 8.8,21,22. See the Annotations there. Of great Alexanders death at Babylon, in the 33 year of his age, 12 of his kingdom, and 6 or 7 of his monarchy; and of the manner of his death; with some small variety therein, Heathen Histories do plentifully record.

and shall be divided] first his 12 Chiefrains divided his Empire among themselves, as administrators, and governours of it, each of his share.

toward the four winds] Chap.7.6. four notable ones, towards the four winds of heaven, Chap 8.8. the rest were soon after reduced to these four kingdoms; of Antigonus, in the East; Cassander in the West; Selecus in the North; and Ptolomy in the South. Some place Antigonus in the North, and Selecus in the East.

and not to his posterity] Great Alexanders posterity had them not; Philippus Aridæus, Alexanders brother, was soon killed; Alexanders two sons, viz. Alexander by Roxane, and Hercules by Barsine, the eldest daughter of Darius Codomannus, were both poysoned by Cassander, leaving no issue; and Olympias Alexanders mother, killed by him. So his posterity was rooted out.

nor according to his dominion] None of these four shall be any wise able to be compared in greatnesse and strength to Alexanders power and dominion. They were far inferiour, Chap.8.22.

plucked up] Rooted up, root and branch.

besides those] Of great Alexanders posterity: None of them should remain to have any part of it.

V. 5. And the King of the south] Of the four kingdomes, that of the East, and that of the West, are hereafter no more mentioned, being the two lesser kingdoms though not reduced to the other two, and no way concerning or medling with the peoploof the Jews, Gods, and Daniels people. But the other two, the kings of the North and of the South, are much mentioned, and their armies, victories, and and exploits, one against another. Because the Jews and their land lay betwixt them two, and suffered very much of the one, and of the other, being challenged, conquered, and possessed, sometimes by the one, and sometimes by the other; and so torn and rent by this fourth Beast which had teeth of iron, and nailes of brasse, devouring and breaking in pieces, and stamping the residue with his feet, Chap.7.19. And indeed these of the North were, of all, the most cruel enemies, that very Gog and Magog, spoken of, Ezek. Chap.38. and 39. The races of these Kings, were called, the Seleucidæ in the North, from Seleucus Nicanor, or Nicanus the Seleucidæ in the North, from Seleucus Nicanor, or Nicanus the Conquerer, the first of them; and the Lagidæ, in the South, from Ptolemie the son of Lagus, the first of that race: both of them being Great Alexanders Captains. The particulars concerning both races, which follow in this prophetical Chapter, though dark to the vulgar sort, not verst in the Humane, or Heathen Histories of these times, in which only the accomplishment of those prophecies is to be found, the sacred Scripture of the Old Testament ending before these times began; yet they are so generally agreed upon by all learned Interpreters, old and new, of the Roman, and of the Reformed Church, as may yield thereby somewhat the better satisfaction to the common Reader in this behalf. For his clearer light, we shall set down here in the beginning, the Catalogue and succession of these Kings, thus; The Kings of the South, first Ptolomeus the son of Lagus, 2 Ptolomeus Philadelphus, 3 Ptolomeus Evergetes, 4 Ptolomeus Philopator, 5 Ptolomeus Epiphanes, 6 Ptolomeus Philometor. The Kings of the North, 1 Seleucus Nicanor, 2 Antiochus Soter, 3 Antiochus Theos, 4 Seleucus Callinicus, 5 Seleucus Ceraunus, 6 Antiochus Magnus, 7 Seleucus Philopator, or Soter, 8 Antiochus Epiphanes. Thus far this prophecie of the Angel to Daniel doth go. And Hieronie, that learned Father, is much to be regarded and followed, in his Expositio of this prophecie, who had the help of divers Historians, who write of these times: the names only of which Authors, are left to us at this day. See the Preface of his Commentaries upon Daniel.

King of the South] Ptolomeus the son of Lagus.

South] Ægypt, lying South from Jury, named ver.8,42,43.

shall be strong] The Angel regards his strength, principally, how it toucheth the Jews: And so it fell out; For Ptolomie soon after he held Egypt, came into Judea, and took Jerusalem on a Sabbath day, pretending friendship, and not hostility, and carryed very many captives into Egypt; as Josephus records in his Antiquities. b.12.c.1. He was the first horn, c.7.7,20,24.

and one of his Princes] Not of Ptolomies Princes, though some learned men would have it so; but of great Alexanders: not Ptolomie Philadelphus, or Philopator; but Seleucus Nicanor, the first of the Seleucidæ; and not his grandchild Antiochus Theos, as some would. The whole tenour and sequence of the speech will have it meant of a several kingdome. And the Angel speaking to Daniel, knew that he would help himself by the matter, in all doubtful terms. And he was to speak somewhat darkly for the Jews safety. And this Seleucus Nicanor is the second Horn.

strong above him] This Selecus was, at last, much stronger then the King of the South, even touching Judea. For though Ptolomy wan it from Laomedon; and after recovered it from Antigonus; yet in the last Conquest over Antigonus, it was agreed upon, that Seleucus should hold Syria and Judea; as his house pleadeth in Polyb. book 5.

a great dominion] Seleucus Nicanor; was the greatest, at last of all Alexanders Successours, Some reckon that he had seventy two Kingdoms under him.

V. 6. And the end of years] about 70 after Alexandeis death.

they] The Seleucidæ and Lagidæ; Antiochus Theos, the son of Antiochus Soter, and grandchild of Seleucus Nicanor; and Ptoleueus Philadelphus, the son of Ptolomeus Lagides. This Ptolomeus Philadelphus was the third Horne; potent king; a great lover of learning; the Founder of that wonderful Library, wherein were 200000 Books: and among them the seventy Translation, which he procured to be made.

shall joyn themselves together] by marriage: Antiochus Theos, taking to wife Bernice, or Berenice, the daughter of Ptolomeus Philadelphus; so prophesied, Chap.2.43.

to make an agreement] Heb. rights. To keep the peace, and to end all differences, by which they were ready to go to war. This peace between the two kingdoms, was the main end of the marriage.

but shee shall not retain the power of the arm] Berenice, shall not be able to make the kingdoms cleave one to another, Chap.2 43. But that shortly they shall come to open War.

neither shall he stand, nor his arm] The King of the North, Antiochus Theos, who is the fourth Horn, shall not stand true to himself, and his wife Berenice; but shall fall off, and loose his life soon after.

but shee shall be given up] Berenice shall loose her life, and they that brought her] Her friends and followers, and companions, that accompanied her out of Egypt, to her husband, and were her comfort, and attendants there in a strange land; they shall pertake of her lot, and be wrapt in the same condition.

and he that begat her] Or, he whom shee brought forth. Indeed both her father Ptolomeus Philadelphus dyed shortly; and also her son, by Antiochus Theos loft his life likewise.

and he that strengthened her in those times] Every one that was her stay and support; some States about her. The hiftories do declare, that all these thing came to passe, thus; Antiochus Theos, to embrace this marriage with Berenice, for the peace of the kingdoms, puts away his lawful wife Laodice, by whome he had two sons, Seleucus Callinicus, and another Antiochus. After some time, Antiochus Theos takes again to his first wife, Laodice; she seeing war preparing against him for it; and fearing the inconstancy of her husband, in time to come, useth the the means to poyson her husband Antiochus Theos; to set up her son Callinicus to be King; and to slay Berenice and her son, and her followers and aydes

V. 7. But out of a branch of of her roots] Out of the stock and roots, that Berenice sprang, that is, out of the same Parents.

shall one stand up in his estate] Even her own brother, Ptolomy Evergetes, King after the decease of his Father Ptolomeus Philadelphus, being the fifth Horn; He shall stand up in his estate, to revenge his Sisters death, against Seleucus Callinicus.

of the King of the North] Seleucus Callinicus.

and shall prevail] Evergetes against Callinicus. The trent text hath here, abuteatur eis; very abusively.

V. 8. captives into Egypt] Evergetes shall spoyl Syria, Cilicia, almost all Asia, and the whole kingdom of Seleucus Callinicus; and shall carry the whole spoil of it into Egypt, Egypt] The name of Egypt, in a story of Alexanders successors, must needs cut off all controversie, touching the king of the North, and Magog; that none but the Seleucidæ can be the men. And in a word, all the several passages of this Chapter, which do follow, are so clear in themselves, touching Antiochus Epiphanes, the Seleucidæ and Lagidæ; that a wonder it is, that any should dream of bringing in the Romans, and the division of it, into the Greek and Latine Empire; or the Turk, or Antichrist to be meant, or minded here in these stories, which are the last and cleareft Expositions of the Image, his Legges and Feet; and of the Beasts, as was said on ver.1,2.

their gods] As many times Heathen Conquerers used to do. See 1 Sam.5.1. 2 Chro.28.23. Esay 46.1. among which were those which Cambyses, and others, had formerly carried away out of Egypt. Hieron faith, out of authours then extant, in number, all were 2500. And that hence the Egyptians, being a nation given to idolatry, gave him the name of Evergetes, that is, Gracious Lord; because of this bringing after, a long time, their gods back again.

with their Princes] For hostages, and pledges of their loyalty and obedience. The Hebrew word, unvoweled, is either, Idols, or else high States. That maketh Tranflatours differ. And the allusion may serve to shew. that Idolatrous Princes, and their Idols, are of much like esteem in Gods account.

precious vessels] Hebr. vessels of desire. See Chap.9.23.

of silver and gold Hieron faith, 40000 Talents of silver. See Dan.1.ver.2.

continue more years] Either being secured against Callinicus; or more powerful then Callinicus. Some say, that Seleucus Callinicus was soon killed, then Evergetes dyed.

V. 9. So the King of the South Ptolomeus Evergetes.

shall come into his kingdom] Shall return into his own kingdom of Egypt; as is expounded in the next words. Or, as others, shall come into the kingdom of Seleucus Ceraunus, into Syria, and shall cause himself to be crowned there, which, as King, he shall hold for many years.

and shall return into his own land] Quietly and securely, without any let or fear of Seleucus Callinicus. A like phrase is used, Deut.31.2. 1 Sam.18.16. Justin. Book 27. Records, that Evergetes returned into Egypt, upon occasion of sedition raised there; and that otherwise he had fully outed Callinicus out of all Syria, if not his whole kingdom.

V. 10. But his sons] The sons of Seleucus Callinicus, namely, Seleucus Ceraunus, and Antiochus, surnamed afterwards the great.

shall be stirred up] Or, shall move war: against Evergetes, to recover Syria, and what was taken by him from their Father. In which expedition, as hiftories do record, they prevailed not, but had the worse, and Seleucus Ceraunus was slain or poisoned, in the second or third year of his reign. About which time Ptolomeus Evergetes dyed also; as Polybius writes, in his second and fourth Books; and Apian Alexandrinus.

and one shall certainly come and overflow] Ceraunus being dead, Antiochus Magnus succeeds; which makes the Angel, so soon change from the plural number, to the singular. This Antiochus, the sixth Horn, with a sudden force, like unto an over-flowing stream, shall over-run Syria and Judea, with great power, and frequent incursion, shall regain a great part of his kingdom. See Esay 8.8. the like in Senacharib.

and passe through] Even unto Raphiah, on the bounds of Egypt.

then shall he return] Into his regained possessions. Or, the year following; say some, with his flesh and recruited army.

and be stirred up] To war against Ptolomeus Philopater, the son of Evergetes, the seventh Horn ; called, by some, Pupater; but most generally Philopater, that is, a lover of his father ; as some say, by the contrary, because he killed his parents. Though others say, that his Father Evergetes, dyed of a disease, a natural death.

even to his fortresse] The forefaid Raphia, on the confines and borders of Egypt ; and shall take it. Of which Town, Strabo writeth thus ; beyond Gaza, standeth Raphia, where the Field was fought, between Ptolomy the fourth, and Antiochus the great. So famous God would have the Angels term here, of fortresse, to be.

V. 11. And the King of the South] Ptolomeus Philopater.

shall come forth] In the fourth year of Antiochus the great.

with the King of the North] Antiochus the great.

and he] That is, Antiochus the great. Some read the words, as to understand this he, to be Ptolomeus Philopater ; and yet vary not the sense.

but the multitude] The great army of Antiochus the Great. Polybius reckoneth the number of fouldiers, on both sides ; and also the manner of fight. It fo fell out, at last, beyond all hope ; that Philopater, with his sister Arsino, got so great a victory, and had such an hand over Antiochus Magnus, that if he had pursued with courage, he had not onely recovered Syria, but might have spoiled him of his kingdom. Antiochus then escaped by flight, 3 Macc. 1.

his hand] Into the hand of Ptolomeus Philopater.

V. 12. And when he] When Ptolomeus Philopater, hath destroyed that numerous army of Antiochus the Great.

his heart shall be lifted up] As is, very usual, upon victories obtained.

and he shall cast down ten thousands] These words may well be applyed to the greatnesse of his victory ; and his licentiousnesse growing thereupon ; which Justin. Book 30. doth note, to have been the beginning of the decay of his Court. And as well applyed to his pride against God, and his casting down ten thousands of the Jewes, occasioned thereupon, which the third Book of Maccabees, not among our Apocryphal Books ; and Josephus in the 12 book, and 3. Chap. of his Antiquities, do set forth.

but he shall not be strengthened by it] For Antiochus escaped his hands by flight : and after came again, and prevailed ; as is declared in the verses following.

V. 13. For the King of the North] Antiochus Magnus.

shall return] Having, for some time, by a League and Peace between them, renewed his strength ; and beginning to make lesse esteem of Philopater, by reason of his riotous and loose kind of living.

a multitude] Of an army, greater then before.

and shall certainly come] Heb in coming he shall come : as certainly, so speedily and mightily.

after certain years] Heb. at the end of times of years. That is, of the years of Philopater ; he being now dead, by the means of Cleomenes, Polyb. 5. and his son Ptolomeus Epiphanes, being but a child of about four years old : Antiochus the Great, should lay hold of that opportunity to invade, and assault him.

V. 14. And in those times there shall many stand up, &c.] Much sedition in Egypt ; many of the young Kings subjects rebelled, not enduring Agathocles, and such base Governours, as his Father Philopater, in his last and loose dayes, had set over them : many Provinces, formerly subject to Egypt, then revolted : Many Princes conspired and combined ; Diodorus betrayed him ; Antiochus Magnus joyned to his ayd, Philip, then King of Macedon ; agreeing to divide betwixt them, the Cities and Provinces belonging to Egypt.

also the robbers] Heb. the children of robbers, factious persons, open contemners of God, and robbing him of his religion ; turning Egyptians, and Gypsies (as we use the word) in religion, drawn thereto by Philopater in his later dayes, 3 Macc.

at thy people] The Jewes. See Annotations on Chap. 9. ver. 24.

shall exalt themselves] Shall not content themselves to be neutrals and spectators onely ; as formerly (Josephus, in his Antiquities, book 12. chap. 3.) But shall now be stirring and siding, and partaking ; and proudly, for the most part, joyn themselves to the Egyptians, against Antiochus the Great. See the third book of Maccabees.

to establish the vision] Most expound thus ; under shew and pretext of Religion, bragging to establish and fulfil that Prophecie, Esay 19 18 —— 25. which intends the spiritual union of Egypt with the Church in the dayes of the Gospel ; upon this pretext many of them with Onias the Priest had fled into Egypt, had granted them, by Ptolomy, the country of Heliopolis ; but themselves, a city, by the name of Onias : and a temple like to that in Hierusalem ; wherein they sacrificed, and which remained till the time of Vespasian the Romane Emperour. These refractory Apostates [illegible] called themselves in pride for Ptolemy against Antiochus. Hereof, out of Josephus in his Antiquities, book 12. cap. 6. [illegible] his War of the Jewes, book 7. c. 30. Others thus ; that this Vision and Prophecie, being fulfilled in him, and upon these, should serve to this use, to the Church, and people of God, to establish and confirm them the more, in believing the truth of the rest of the vision and prophecie.

but they shall fall] By the revenging hand of Antiochus, in his recovering of Syria, and Judea ; and in this his expedition against Egypt, prevailing against Ptolomy Epiphanes, and punishing them as rebels against him ; as in the next verse.

V. 15. So the King of the North] Antiochus Magnus, Antiochus the Great.

shall come] Against Ptolomy Epiphanes ; the 8 Horn.

and cast up a mount] Raise up trenches and mounts, for the besieging and taking of castles, forts, and cities, in Judea, and in Egypt.

the most fenced cities] Heb. cities of munitions.

and the armes of the south] The Armies, Captains. such as Scopas, Europus, Menocles, and Damaxenus ; not the whole strength and strong holds of Ptolomy in Judea, Syria, and Egypt.

shall not withstand] Shall not be able to stand it out, and resist Antiochus Magnus. See Ezek. 31. 18. The history of the accomplisht ment of all this, is set down by Josephus in his Antiquities, book 12. c. 3. and by Hieron likewise.

neither his chosen people] Heb. the people of his choises ; his most choise and selected commanders and souldiers : as the phrase is used, of the choiseſt sepulchres, Gen. 23. 6.

V. 16. But he that cometh against him] Antiochus the Great, and he shall stand in the glorious land] Heb. Trebi, the land of ornament, the goodly land, that is in Judea. See cap. 8. 9. and the Annotations there.

which by his hand shall be consumed] Ruined, say some. Others thus ; which by his hand shall be conſumed ; that is, his victories there perfected, according to his own desire ; and that by the ready help of the Jewes, deserting Ptolomy, and assisting him. And this better agrees with the histories of those times ; as appears in Josephus his Antiquities, book 12. cap. 3 and by Antiochus Magnus his owne Epistle there recorded ; and by Polybius in his 11 book.

V. 17. He shall also set his face, &c.] Antiochus Magnus shall thus enterprise against Ptolomy Epiphanes, and Egypt again, with all his force and fraud.

and upright ones with him] Heb. or much uprightnesse, or, equal conditions with him ; that is, say some, He shall be followed in his enterprise by many Jewes, called upright ones, according to the sense of Deut. 32. 15. Or, as others, with the greatest shew of uprightnesse and integrity, with the fairest and most equal terms and conditions ; yet minding hereby to circumvent Ptolomy Epiphanes. That colour and specious pretext was the matrimony presently mentioned.

thus shall he do] Attempt some hostility. But that not altogether succeeding according to his wish, he shall proceed to the mention of peace, by the motion of marriage.

and he shall give him the daughter of women] The faire Cleopatra, his beautiful daughter ; and so make Ptolomy Epiphanes his son in law. A like practice was that ver. 6. but with a more upright intent there.

corrupting her] Commanding and instructing, and inveigling her by some great guile to kill her husband ; that so he, under colour of her sight, and for her, might come to have the government of the Kingdom of Egypt.

but she shall not, &c.] Not stand to the wicked purpose and promise made by her to her father, to make away her husband, not be for him ; but shall stand on her husbands side, and be for him. See Chap. 2. 43. Livie book 37.

V. 18. after this he shall turn his face to the Isles] Missing his purpose in Egypt ; yet eager still to inlarge his Dominion and renown, he shall make great preparations by sea and land, and set upon divers Countries and Provinces far off, and beyond the seas, both Islands, and Continents ; as Cyprus, Phocæa, Samos, Rhodes, Colophon, Eubœa, &c. and some Cities of Greece, subject to, or Colophon, with the Romanes. So in Gen. 10. the Countries of Grecia, all about Hellespont, are termed. And this appears to be so in Appian, Livy, and Plutarch, Scipio.

and shall take many] As appears so be truly verified in the Heathen histories before cited.

But a Prince] Not any particular King ; but a Legate, Officer, or Consul of the Romane Common-wealth, Marcus Acilius Consul, Lucius Prætor, and Lucius Scipio, the two famous brethren.

for his own behalf] Heb. for him ; that is, for himself, or to himself, in the behalf, and to the behoof of the Romane Common-wealth.

shall cause the reproach offered by him to cease] Heb. his reproach ; that is, take off, and wipe away that reproach offered by Antiochus Magnus, to the Romane Common-wealth in that his naval expedition, and gaining of so many places and Cities in the mid-land-sea, in lesser Asia and Grecia. The Romanes shall recover them from him.

without his own reproach] With honour, revenging the wrong done by Antiochus Magnus. he

he shall cause it to turn upon him] He shall not onely force Antiochus Magnus to retire himselfe from all those places which he had taken from the Romanes, and their confederates, and friends to the disgrace of the common-wealth of Rome ; but shall also overcome him in a pitch'd battel, though Hannibal was with him, and spoil him of part of his dominions, and force him to accept of a disgraceful and reprochful peace.

V. 19. Then he shall turn his face toward the fort of his own land] He shall be forced to return into Syria, and shamefully to fly and shelter himselfe beyond Mount Taurus, and to keep himselfe in strong holds, without daring to wage War any more.

but he shall stumble, and fall, and not be found] He shall fly to Apamea, Susa, and the outmost bounding Cities of his Kingdome ; and at last was killed in a tumult by the Elymeans, seeking to defend the Temple of Bel, which he went about sacrilegiously to rob and spoil. This was the Catastrophe of that great Antiochus, the father of Antiochus Epiphanes. All these things are recorded to be thus verified, according to the Angels predictions here, by the many humane histories of those times.

V. 20. Then shall stand up in his estate] Shall succeed him in his Kingdom. So ver. 7. & 21.

a raiser of taxes] Heb. one that causeth an exactor to passe over : an exactor of tributes and taxations ; relating likely to Heliodorus, 2 Macc. 3. sent by this man. And this is Seleucus Philopater, sometimes called Soter, the elder son of Antiochus Magnus, called here a raiser of taxes, by reason of his infamous covetousnesse, and cruel taxations laid upon his Kingdom. And he is the ninth Horn.

but within few dayes] Heb. unities of dayes.

he shall be destroyed] That is very soon after that he sent Heliodorus against the Jewes, at the instigation of Simon ; as appears, 2 Macc. 4.

neither in anger] Heb. angers : not killed in battel, nor by open violence of War ; but poysoned by the treachery of Heliodorus, in favour to Antiochus Epiphanes. See Annotations on Chap. 7. 8, 20, 24.

V. 21. a vile person] Antiochus the younger brother of Seleucus Philopater, and son of Antiochus Magnus. This man is stiled Epiphanes, the illustrious, per antiphrasin ; opposite to that title the Angel here gives him, which is according to the truth of his conditions, and well suiting also with that other title, which others of the Heathen Writers gave him, Epimanes, that is, mad, or furious. So Polybius in Atheneus, by whom his manners, qualities, and deeds, are noted to be strange and execrable. This is the 10 Horn, in whom the iron of the Syrian leg doth end ; that little Horn, and plucker away of three Horns. See Chap. 7. 8. 24. & Chap. 8. 9. On this man, his Expeditions against Egypt ; and his rage against the Jewes, the reſt of Daniel goeth. For the better learning whereof, we shall premiſe theſe general notions ; & greeing beſt in our judgements with Daniels Text, and with the truth of history answerable thereunto. We conceive that Antiochus Epiphanes beginning his reign in the 137 year of the kingdom of the Greeks, 1 Macc. 1. 10. and after his gaining of the kingdom of Syria, verſ. 12, 23, 24. of this Chapter, made four Expeditions into, and against Egypt : and three ſeveral times executed his furious rage, in ſpoiling and bloody perſecuting the Jewes. His firſt expedition into Egypt, ſeems to be that intimated, 3 Mac. 4. 21. compared with Chap. 5. 1, 11. and that in the beginning of his reign, after he had ſetled himſelfe in the Kingdome of Syria. His ſecond expedition is ſet down, verſ. 25, 26, 27. of this Chapter. And in his return, he executed his firſt furious rage againſt the Jewes, ver. 28. and this was in the 143 year of the Kingdome of the Greeks, and 6 of his reign. See 1 Mac. 1. 16 —— 29. and 2 Mac. 5. 1. —— 12. His third expedition is ſet down, verſ. 29, 30. of this Chapter, and in his return he executes his ſecond and moſt outragious fury againſt the Jewes, in his owne perſon, taking away the daily ſacrifice, and ſetting up the abomination of deſolation, verſ. 31 —— 39. and this was in the year, 145. and 8 of his reign ; and then Mattathias, and his ſons the Maccabees, began to riſe and maintain Wars, and obtained wondrous victories againſt his Armies, Captains, and Commanders. See 1 Mac. 1. 54. & Chap. 2. 1, 70. & Chap. 3. 1 —— 37. His fourth expedition into Egypt is ſet down, verſ. 40, 41, 42, 43. of this Chapter ; and after his return he executes his third fit of fury againſt the Jewes, verſ. 45. himſelf going into Perſia, and commanding his Deputy Lyſias to root out the Jewes ; and this was in the year 147. and 10. of his reign. See 1 Mac. 3. 27 —— 60. and alſo, Chap. 4. & 5. 1. 5. In the year, 148. & 11 of his reign, Judas Maccabeus rebuilds Gods altar, & reſtores his true religion, 1 Mac. 4. 52. and in the beginning of the year, 149. and 12 of his reign, Antiochus Epiphanes dyeth miſerably, 1 Macc. 6. 16. though the Author of the ſecond book of Maccabees put his death in the year 148. 2 Mac. 11. 21, 38.

to whom they shall not give the honour of the Kingdom] The States of Syria ſhall not give it him, after the death of his brother. His father Antiochus Magnus had left as a pledg in Rome, for aſſurance for his faith, and performance of conditions, 1 Mac. 1. 10. After his fathers death, his brother Seleucus being King, had ſent his ſon Demetrius to Rome to be an hoſtage and pledg there, in the ſtead of this Antiochus Epiphanes. Upon his return by the way, he procures his brother Seleucus to be poyſoned, as was ſaid, by Heliodorus, one of Seleucus his friends and favourites : and now coming to Syria, he deals, as followeth.

but he shall come in peaceably] He ſhall neither be created, nor crowned King ; neither get the Kingdom by force of armes, but come in by fraud, ver. 24. & Chap. 8. 24, 25.

and obtain the Kingdome by flatteries] pretending to govern the kingdome for Demetrius the true heir, his brothers ſon, now an hoſtage at Rome ; and he onely, as Tutor to his Nephew : and after, he ſhall win mens hearts with preſents, flatteries, and ſecret practices, and ſo abuſing his Nephew, and deceiving the Peers and people, he ſhall inſtall himſelf in the kingdom ; principally by the means of Eumenes, and Attalus, neighbouring Princes ; as Appian relates in his Syrian hiſtory.

V. 22. And with the armes of a flood] and with ſtrong and ſudden armies, as of a great flood of waters.

shall they be overflown from before him, & shall be broken] Thoſe that would not give him the honour of the kingdome. Others underſtand this, but not ſo well, of Antiochus Epiphanes his firſt expedition againſt Egypt, that the Egyptians ſhould thus be overflown and broken by him : Thoſe armes and armies of Egypt, that formerly like an inundation had overflown Syria, ſhould now be overflown and broken, over-runne and overcome by him.

yea also the Prince of the covenant] Shall be broken by him. Who this was, is diverſly interpreted. We underſtand Seleucus Philopater, the brother of Antiochus, who was the author and head of a Covenant between them two, for the invading of Egypt. And to that end had ſent for him from Rome : and him Antiochus Epiphanes procured to be poiſoned, whiles himſelf was on the way in his journey from Rome, before he entred Syria, and got the power of it into his hands. Yet others, applying it to his firſt Expedition into Egypt, do underſtand it thus ; That Antiochus Epiphanes having in this his firſt Expedition over-run Egypt, and in battel by Peluſium overcome Eulæus, and Lenæus, two principal Peers of Egypt, who managed the affairs of Egypt in the young years of the King Ptolomæus Philometor, the ſon of Ptolomæus Epiphanes, was thereafter drawn to a Covenant with Ptol. Philomator, to become Guardian as it were to Philomator, being his ſiſter Cleopatra's ſon. And of this Covenant making, one Tryphon a prime Peer in Egypt was Principal and Prince : and that afterwards Antiochus ſoon cauſed this Tryphon the Prince of that Covenant to be made away, that he might with more freedom rule as he liſt, and do what he would. And yet there are ſome others, who by Prince of the Covenant, underſtand it of God, chap. 8. 11. 25. who is the Prince of his people, and joyned to them by his holy Covenant : and ſo in this verſe they will have ſummarily comprehended Antiochus his two greateſt enterpriſes ; namely upon Egypt, and upon Judea : both which are afterwards more particularly ſpecified.

V. 23. And after the league made with him] The forementioned League with his brother Seleucus Philopater, as we have ſaid. The other underſtand it of the league made with his Nephew, his ſiſter Cleopatra's ſon, Ptolomee Philometor, King of Egypt.

he shall worke deceitfully] as his manner was, ver. 14. and chap. 8. 24, 25. and as after is declared, 23, 24.

for he shall come up] Into Syria, as meant here. Others, into Egypt, to Memphis the royal City, in the heart of Egypt ; not as an enemy, but as a friend, and confederate, and a tutor or guardian to the young King.

and shall become strong with a small people] Bringing with him few followers, a ſmall train, becauſe he will not give the Egyptians cauſe of ſuſpicion, but ſtout men, though few ; and devoted to his ſervice ; whom he placed in divers Forts, and thereby made himſelf maſter of the principal holds of Egypt. But we rather apply this to his manner of gaining upon Syria ; not by ſtrength of armes ; but by flatteries, and fair pretences.

V. 24. He shall enter peaceably, even upon the fattest places of the Province] Or, into the peaceable or fat, &c. He ſhall enter into Egypt, which at that time did enjoy peace and plenty of all things ; or, rather upon Syria.

and he shall do that which his fathers have not done] He ſhall place Garriſons in the ſtrong holds ; taking poſſeſſion of the greateſt part of Egypt, which his forefathers could never do. We ſtill do rather underſtand this of his manner of gaining the Kingdome of Syria from the right owner Demetrius, the ſon of his elder brother Seleucus.

he shall scatter among them, &c.] His infinite bountifulneſſe and prodigality to his garriſons, and fouldiers, 2 Mac. 3. 30. thereby to keep them the more firm unto him.

yea and he shall forecast his devices] Heb. think his thoughts : cunningly to get and gain the reſt of all the ſtrengths of Egypt, or Syria rather.

even for a time] All this was but for a time ; even till Ptolomæus Philometor Philometor grew up in years; who then raised his strength, and freed himself and the Egyptians of all his garrison; Thus they, who still understand all this of Antiochus his first Expedition into Egypt. But we, with other learned Interpreters, still applying this, as all the rest in this and the two former verses, to his gaining of Syria from his Nephew Demetrius, conceive, that for a time he spent himself in this employment. The compassing of this business took up the first year of his reign.

V. 25. And he shall stir up his power] This is the second Expedition of Antiochus Epiphanes against Egypt, as was said on the 21 verse, which was about the fifth year of his reign, and 142 of the kingdome of the Greeks, 1 Mac 1.20. and undertaken upon pretence to aid and right Physcon against his brother Prol. Philometor King of Egypt.

but he shall not stand] Ptolome Philometor shall not stand in battel, but be overcome by Antiochus Epiphanes. Some, as we said understand this of that former battel by Peleusium, whereof we spake upon the last words of the 22 verse.

for they shall forecast devises against him] Many of the States and Potentates of Egypt shall betray their King, and being corrupted and bribed by Antiochus Epiphanes shall treacherously forecast, and plot and devise secretly with Antiochus against him; as is further shewed in the next words,

V. 26. yea they that feed, &c.] His intimate familiars, favourites, and Counsellors shall be his overthrow. Haply mistrusting the age and experience of their young King; and fearing the craft and cruelty of Antiochus, and the danger of their own estates if Antiochus prevail, they under-hand comply with him, to the destruction of their own King.

and his army] The army of Antiochus Epiphanes.

shall overflow] Over-runne and overcome the very great and mighty army of Ptolome Philometor.

and many shall fall ——] Of the Egyptian army.

V. 27. And both these Kings] Of the North and South; Antiochus Epiphanes, and Prol. Philometor.

hearts] Heb, their hearts.

shall be to do mischief] When they are treating of a peace, they shall intend mischief one to another.

at one table] When they shall feast one another, & interchange mutual courtesies; yet all these shewes shall be but feigned, both of them retaining their former enmities.

but it shall not prosper] This false dissimulation and counterfeit peace will not hold.

for yet the end shall be at the time appointed] Vers. 29. The end of that peace shall be at the time appointed by God, who hath all times, and all occasions and opportunities in his hand, at his dispose. See ver. 40.

V. 28. Then shall he return] Antiochus Epiphanes, into Syria, after that pretended peace in the 143 of the Kingdome of the Greeks, 1 Mac. 1.1 and fifth or sixth year of his reign.

with great riches] The spoils of Egypt.

and his heart shall be against the holy Covenant] Some understand this of that Covenant and peace which he made with Prol. Philometor. But that was a false and fraudulent Covenant, as hath been said. This holy Covenant seems rather to relate to that which God was pleased to make with his people the Jews; as ver. 30. See Exod. 24.7,8. Deut. 5.2. & Chap. 29.1. The heart of Antiochus was against them, and their holy Religion; with his dealings against Egypt; his doings against Judea still fall out. Ithe takes still in his way, 2 Macc. 5. 1,11. 1 Macc. 1.16 —— 24. This was his first Outrage against the Jews, as was said in the Annotations on verf. 21.

and he shall do exploits] Outragious and bloody actions against the Jewes; destroying them, sacrilegiously prophaning and robbing the Temple, changing their Laws and Religion, and every way most furiously tyrannizing over them, 1 Mac. 1. 17, &c. The spoyls of the Temple and City, added to his former spoyls of Egypt, so encreased his riches, that in his return to Antioch, his mind was pust up exceedingly, 2 Macc. 5. 11 —— 22. 1 Macc. 1. 20 —— 24.

V. 29. at the time appointed] By God, ver. 27. about two years after; the 8 of his reign, and 145 of the Kingdome of the Greeks; when Prol. Philometor, was now reconciled with his brother Physcon; and had invented the ayd and auxiliary Forces of the Romanes. This was his third Expedition.

but it shall not be as the former, or as the latter] This expedition shall not prove such, fo successfeul to him; He shall not obtain the victory, nor subdue Egypt; as in the former expedition he did, vers. 25. or in the latter he should, ver. 40. Others better understand both of the two Expeditions before this.

V. 30. For the ships of Chittim, &c.] The Fleet of the Romans, which lay in the harbours and havens of Italy, Cilicia, and Græcia, that they might the more commodiously command all the parts of the mid-land-sea. See Gen. 10.4. where Kittim is the third son of Javan, from whom the Græcians came: whence is that, Num. 24.24.

shall come against him] At the suit and request of the King of Egypt, being now besieged with his mother Cleopatra, in the City of Alexandria by Antiochus Epiphanes. Many historians do record how the Senate of Rome sent Legates or Ambassadors to Antiochus Epiphanes to command him to raise his siege, and abstain from war against their Confederate King. He answered, he would demur and deliberate thereupon. Whereupon Popilius Laenas, one of the Legates, drew a circle about Antiochus Epiphanes, and required his peremptory answer before he should go out of that Circle. And Antiochus Epiphanes withdrew his siege and the war. Thus Florus, Paterculus, and others.

therefore he shall be grieved, and return] Grievously vexed to be thus impiously dealt withal, thus over-mastered, and over-born; and forced to leave his conquest of Egypt.

and have indignation against the holy Covenant] Vers. 28. He leaving Egypt, and taking Judea in his way, as his use was, he shall turn his wrath, and pour it out, and spend it against the holy Covenant. This was his second outrage against the Jews. See Annotations on ver. 21.

so shall he do] Do it to purpose; in a most furious and outragious manner, as is set down in the nine verses following.

and have intelligence with them, &c.] Formerly with Jason, whom he had made High Priest in the first yeare of his reign, 2 Macc. 4.7 ——21. 1 Macc. 1.11 —— 16. Now with Menelaus, whom he had made High Priest, removing Jason, 2 Macc. 4.23. & 5.5,6. and with other apostates; by their advice to intest the Jewes.

V. 31. and armies shall stand on his part] That great army and power which he brought now with him out of Egypt; and a great faction of wicked Jewes now Joyning with him. See 1 Mac. 1.43.

and they shall pollute the sanctuary] Entring into it; touching, and taking away the holy things, instruments, and vessels of it, sacrilegiously robbing and spoiling it, 1 Mac. 1.21 —— 25. 2 Mac. 5.15. See 2 Mac. 3. and Chap. 6.4.

of strength] Or, the strength. Jerusalem; a place strong by situation. Or the Temple, which was the rock of the great King, Zech. 9.12. & 12.2. they shall pollute it by slaughters of men in it, 2 Mac. 5.12,13,14.

and shall take away the daily sacrifice] Chap. 8.11. See the annotations there, and Chap. 12.11. See the like, Chap. 9.27.

and they] The Commanders and Souldiers of Antiochus Epiphanes.

shall place the abomination that maketh desolate] Or, astonisheth; Chap. 12.11. This is either the Garrisons of idolatrous and abominable souldiers, that brought desolation upon the Temple and City. See 2 Mac. 5.22,25. & Chap. 6.4. & 1 Macc. 1.33. —41. See the like in the times of the Romanes, after our Saviours Passion, Dan. 9.27. Mat. 24.15. Or else, the Image of Jupiter Olympus, 1 Mac. 1.54. 2 Mac. 6.2. Or, an idols altar, set upon the altar of God, 1 Mac. 1.59,60. & Chap. 6. verf. 7. Because of which things, the godly Jewes refusing to consent to idolatry, the Temple, and Gods service were made desolate. See Annotations on vers. 21.

V. 32. And such as do wickedly] Apostate Jewes, that did prostrate themselves to the idolatry of the Heathens.

corrupt by flatteries] Or, cause to dissemble. By gifts, promises, and allurements, he shall foster and confirm them in their apostacy and idolatry; by their examples to draw on others.

but the people that do know their God] That professe and worship him, according to his will and word.

shall be strong] The wicked shall apprehend them as evildoers. Such is the sense in some Translations. But rather thus, shall be strong; that is, they shall shew themseves constant, and perseverе in his pure service.

and do exploits] Manfully resisting, and overcoming all temptations, enduring all torments, and cruel kinds of death. Read the histories of old Eleazar, 2 Mac. 6. and of the mother, and her seven sons, 2 Mac. 7. And then rose Mattathias, and his sons the Maccabees, who did those strange exploits.

V. 33. and they that understand, &c.] They whom God shall lively illuminate by his Word and Spirit, shall instruct and strengthen their brethren, by their doctrine and example. Some others, understand this of a certain religious society, newly set up in those dayes, called Assideans, that is to say, pious, holy, understanding, and very zealous in the law of God. See 2 Mac. 2.42. & 7.12. 2 Mac. 14.6.

yet they shall fall by, &c.] Antiochus Epiphanes, by his bloody agents, shall persecute, oppresse, and slay them, both the instructers, and instructed, 1 Macc. 1.40. &c. & 2.2,3,4. Chap. & 2 Macc. 5.6,7,8. Chapters.

many dayes] Many is not in the Original: neither see we much warrant for it. Dayes, may imply a short time: and the history seems best to agree with that.

V. 34. They shall be holpen with a little help] Few helpers shall they have: Mattathias, and other Asmoneans, called Maccabees, shall help them, 1 Mac. 2.1,39. and 3,4,5. Chapters, 2 Mac. 8.1. but but many shall cleave to them with flatteries] Among the Jewes many, who have run themselves before into idolatry, when they shall see some enlargement by the means of the Maccabees, that shall see some enlargement by the means of the Maccabees, that shall joyn themselves to their brethren; but dissemblingly, without ajoyn themselves to their brethren; but dissemblingly, without a-joyn hypocrisie and piety; and to small advantage of their brethren.

V. 35. And some of them of understanding] That did instruct others, verf. 33.

shall fall] By the sword, &c. as verf. 33. in his bloody persecution and execution, by Antiochus Epiphanes; and his instruments.

to try them] Or, by them. This is the end, why God suffers them thus to fall by their wicked enemies; as Chap. 12. 10. namely, to try their faith and obedience, as gold is tryed in the fire.

and to purge] away their corruptions; as drosse is from the silver in the furnace; and chaffe from the wheat, by the fan.

and to make them white] as the cloath with fullers sope. See Mal. 3.2,3. Thus God suffers it for their good, as well as for his own glory.

even to the time of the end; because, &c] The time determined, by the Counsel of God, to put an end to these perfecutions, verf. 27. which shall not last still, but shall end in a short time; as is after more explained. See Mat. 24.6.

V. 36. And the King shall do according to his own will] Antiochus Epiphanes; as the article, here prefixed, doth manifestly denote, that King spoken of before. He shall prosper in his profenote, that King spoken of before. He shall prosper in his profecutions and purposes; things shall succeed a while, according to his wish and will. Which succeſſe, shall so puffe him up with pride and arrogancy, as after follows. In this, and the three verses following, Antiochus, and his doings, may well serve our turn, as a type of that grand Antichriſt and his doings, set forth by the Apoſtle Paul, 2 Theſſ. 2. and by Saint John in the Apocalyps. For that Antichriſt directly imitates this proud, idolatrous, and bloudy Tyrant. But all that hereafter follows in the reſt of the Angels prophecie, as well as that which is paſt, doth literally, and exactly agree to Antiochus Epiphanes, and to him onely, as ſhall after appear; and was fulfilled in him; and is limited to the time of this Antiochus, Chap. 12.7,11,12,13. And therefore to imagine, that the Angel here, ſhould abruptly break off from Antiochus Epiphanes, and take off his prophetical ſpeech from him and the Jews, that were Daniels people and care; and fall into a prophecie of Antichriſt, and the Church under the Goſpel, towards the end of the world, is a thing ſo inconſiſtent with the whole Context, as to forceth the chief Interpreters, among the Papiſts themſelves, to forego this fancy of Anichriſt, which otherwiſe they would willingly embrace for their own advantage, and to agree with us, in continuing the understanding and application of the Text, to Antiochus Epiphanes. And ſo all Bellarmines arguments, fetcht out of this Context of Daniel, to prove the Pope not to be Antichriſt, are vain and frivolous. And much leſſe are they to be heard, that would apply this, and that which follows, to Pompey the Great, or to Veſpaſian and Titus; or to Conſtantine the Great; or to the Turk and Ottoman family.

above every God] And ſo in the latter part of the 37 verſ. Not onely aſſuming Divine honours, but aſcribing to himſelf, even more then to any God, 2 Mac. 9.8,10,12. ſpoiling their Temples; in Eſ. Iemais, or Perepolis; and in Egypt, changing their Rites and Religion; and preſcribing what ſervice and worſhip, and to whom he pleaſed, 1 Mac. 1.41,42. & 3.29. Joſephus, in his Antiquities, Book 2. Chap. 6,7.

marvellous things against the God of gods] The true God of Iſrael, Eſay 45.14,18,21. Exod. 18.11. Speak great words againſt the moſt High, Chap. 7.25. and ſtand up againſt the Prince of Princes, Chap. 8.25. forbidding his Religion; Circumciſion; Sabbaths; Sacrifices; defiling his Temple; burning the Books of the Law; changing times and lawes; polluting all Gods worſhip; inſtituting a new Religion; ſetting up Chappels of Idols, Idol-altars; and abomination of deſolation upon the altar. See all this accompliſhed, 1 Macc. 1.43 ——52. Joſephus in his Antiq. Book 10. Chap. 14. of Wars, Book 1. Chap. 1. againſt Appion, Book 2.

till the indignation be accompliſhed] Till Gods wrath and juſt indignation be ſatisfied, in the accompliſhing of thoſe things, which he, by his Decree, hath determined to be done, in the viſitation of his people; to deſtroy thoſe open Apoſtates, and groſſe Hypocrites; and to try, purge, and whiten his own. Neither ſhall the indignation remain unaccompliſhed, upon Antiochus himſelf, when he hath filled up his meaſure, to the full heightning of Gods wrath againſt him.

for that is determined shall be done] Heb. is done, or hath been done. The time paſt is uſed for the future; to note out the certainty of the event.

How fuitable to all, ſet down in this verſe, Antichriſts doings ſhould be, is ſet down, 2 Theſ. 2. 4. and how anſwerable thereunto, the doings of the Popes of Rome have been, is more then manifeſt.

V. 37. the gods of his fathers] He ſhall be impious, and without any fear of God at all. The gods of his fathers and anceſtors, which men naturally are addicted to follow, even thoſe he ſhall diſ-regard and deſpiſe, diſdain to worſhip them; and by Letters and Edicts, diſannul his own ancient Religion; and bring in the idols of the Grecians, which were among the Syrians. See 1 Mac. 1.41, &c. 2 Mac. 2,3. & Chap. 9. 2. And though his Predeceſſors, his Brother and Father, honoured much the God of Iſrael, and Temple of Jeruſalem, 2 Mac. 3. 2. 3. Joſephus in his Antiq. book 12. chap. 3. Yet he, in the higheſt nature, diſhonoured both; as was ſhewed before.

nor the desire of women] Women are ſtrong motives; and the deſires and loves of women, very ſtrong, 2 Sam. 1.26. And Antiochus had many women and wives; and among them, one a Jeweſſe, and of much eſteem with him; yet none of them, nor of their deſires could prevail with him, either to deſiſt from his impious and idolatrous deſigns in religion; or to ſuffer them to enjoy the uſe of their own. Some ſuſpect his inclination to the ſin againſt nature, to be here meant. Others, that he was a man without all natural affection, regarding neither men nor women, Kith, nor Kin, any ways croſſing his own vile ends.

nor regarding any God; for, &c.] See Annotations on verſ. 36.

V. 38. But in his estate] Heb. As for the Almighty God, in his seat he shall honour; yea, he shall honour a God whom, &c. Thus rather, and the meaning is inſtead of the true God, he ſhall honour the God of munitions, whom he ſhall ſet up in his ſtrong holds, a God whom his fathers knew not.

the god of forces] Or, Munitions. Heb. Mauzzim. This ſignifieth, Strong Holds. So ver. 19. and 31. Judg. 6.26. Is not here a proper word, either for the true God, or for an idol; but a common word; as in the next verſe. Jeruſalem and the Temple, both of them were great ſtrengths; and the God of them, the moſt ſtrong God of all, the Almighty God; though he be not here meant by Mauzzim, which ſignifies, and ſome others, fancy of the god Maozim, is frivolous.

in his seat] In his place and ſtead; rather then in his eſtate. Yea, in Gods own City and Temple. See 2 Mac. 6. 2. This Idol he guarded with munitions, 1 Mac. 1.35,38.

shall he honour, I ſay honour] This doubling the word, ſeems to ſhew the Angels holy paſſion, at the indignity of this fact of Antiochus.

a God whom his fathers knew not] See verſ. 37. and therefore called a ſtrange god, verſ. 39. This was Jupiter Olympius; of whom, ſee 2 Macc. 9. 2. And this was an Idol of Athens, which his fathers knew not. The Syrians, and his fathers, worſhipped Apollo, Diana, Atargatis, as Strabo writes in his ſixteenth book of Geography. Of the ancient gods of Syria, a general mention is made, Judg. 10.6. 2 Chron. 28. 23. See Lucian of the Syrian goddeſſes.

with gold, &c.] With gifts and offerings of ſuch things, according to the manner of Idolaters.

V. 39. Thus shall he do, &c.] He ſhall ſeize upon Jeruſalem; and eſpecially upon the ſtrong City and fort of David, whereby it being well fortified, and for a garriſon, and furniſhed with men and munition, he ſhall put down Gods true ſervice, and eſtabliſh his own abominable idolatry in the Temple, 1 Mac. 1. 35,38. as if this Idol were his protector, againſt the ſervice of God. He ſhall make ſtrong places of defence, where he ſhall ſet up his ſtrange god. Others, tranſlate, and expound thus, And he ſhall commit the munitions of ſtrengths, or, of the moſt ſtrong God, to a ſtrange God, That is, Antiochus ſhall commit the City Jeruſalem, that ſtrong and fortified place, and the ſtrong Temple in it, to Jupiter Olympius, as its Tutelar God. But the words bear not this ſo well.

whom he shall acknowledg and increase with glory] Thoſe whom he ſhall diſcern to acknowledg this Idol, to favour his ſide, to comply with him in his wicked counſels and enterpriſes, though baſe wicked fellows, thoſe apoſtate Prieſts, and Gentilizing Jews, and obſcure ſtrangers; thoſe he will advance to honours and place and obſcure ſtrangers; thoſe he will advance to honours and place, to dignities and preferments; as Jaſon before, 2 Mac. 4.7,8. and Menelaus after, 2 Macc. 4.23,24,50. whom, for money, he made high Prieſts, and Governours of the people, 1 Maccab. 3. 35,36.

and he shall cause them to rule] Antiochus ſhall make thoſe baſe and unworthy fellows, Rulers over the people of the Jewes, Offices, and places of government he ſhall prefer them into.

over many] The article, it, prefixed, ſeems to denote the many, thoſe pious and religious worthy ones among the Jewes; as chap. 9.27.

and shall divide the land for gain] Both honours and lands, for price he ſhall ſet to ſale, and diſtribute among his factious followers, Jews, or Forreiners, 1 Mac. 3.36.

V. 40. And at the time of the end] Determined by God. See ver. 37. about two years after his ſetting up of that idolatry, verſ. 31,38. and two years more before his death.

that the King of the South] Ptolomeus Philometor.

push at him] Fight with him; as chap. 8.6,7.

and the King of the North] Antiochus Epiphanes.

shall come against him like a whirlwind, &c.] With great force and celerity, celerity: with armies by land and sea. See the like, Esay 17.3. This was his fourth and last expedition against Egypt. See Annotations on ver.21.

and shall overflow] Expel him out of his Kingdom, under the colour of aiding and righting Physcon the younger brother of Ptolomeus Phylometor; to whose side, Antiochus Epiphanes, for his own ends, was still addicted. Florus, book 46. Zonoras tom. Annal. 2. Justin.

V. 41. the glorious land] Judea, ver.45. See Chap.8.9. and 11.16. And this is the third and last fury executed upon the Jews; as is further shewed and dilated, ver.45.

overthrown] By the incursions of Antiochus Epiphanes, and the spoyls that he shall make in this war, at his return out of Egypt.

shall escape, &c.] He spared these, because they took his part, held on his side, and fought against the Jews and Maccabees, 1 Macc.5. Josephus in his Antiquities, book 12. Chap.11.

V. 42. upon the countries] All about; the Neighbouring Nations, none shall escape, save those, ver.41.

Egypt] against which he made so many expeditions.

V. 43. over the treasures, &c. As he was profuse in giving, ver. 24. So as greedy in getting, ver.39. See 1 Macc.3.28.——32.

Lybians, and the Ethiopians] A people of Africa, borderous to the Egyptians, subjects, or auxiliaries, to Ptolomy Philometor, they shall now upon the victories of Antiochus, follow his steps and service, and receive his pay. Lybia sometimes taken for the larger country of Africa, sometimes for that part next Egypt, called Cyrennica, Act.2.10. So here the remoter parts of Lybia are called Phut, Nah.3.9. of Phut Gen.10.6. Ethiopia or Cush is sometimes taken for Arabia in Asia, whereof Moses wife was, Num.12.1. & Zerah the King, 2 Chr.14.9. But most commonly for that beyond Egypt; and so here.

V. 44. But tydings out of the East] Phraates the King of the Parthians, invading the East borders of the kingdom of Antiochus; as Zonaras makes mention. Some add Artaxas King of Armenia.

and out of the North] The Navies of the Romans, lying in the havens of Cilicia and Cyprus: as also the stirs and troubles against him in Judea, lying North from him, being now in Egypt.

shall trouble him] 1 Macc 3.27,31.

therefore he shall go forth] Out of Egypt, with great fury] 1 Macc.3.27,35. Full of indignation. See his like fury another time, 2 Macc.9.4,7.

to destroy, &c.] The Parthians and Persians, and the Jews especially, 1 Macc.3.27,35 5,36,37.

V. 45. And he shall plant] Antiochus himself, after his return out of Persia, say some, Josephus in his first book of the War of the Jews, Chap.1, Or, Lysias, and other Commanders under him, by authority from Antiochus, 1 Macc.5.32, &c. See Annotations on ver.21,& 41.

palace] Appoint to settle his own Court and residence there, the better to subdue and keep under the Jews. Antiochus his army did intrench it self, having the royal Tent set up, for a sign of full power given to his captains, in Emmaus, neer to Jerusalem, 1 Macc.3.40. and 4.3.

between the seas] The dead sea, and the midland sea, in the heart of Judea.

In the glorious holy mountain] Heb. mountain of delight of holiness. Meaning Hierusalem. See ver.41. Psal.48.1,2. 1 Macc.3.40. Lysias pitched in Emmaus hard by Jerusalem.

come to his end] The end and utmost bound of his dominions, say some; that is, to Elymais, or Persepolis, a famous City of the Persians; where going about to rob the Temple, and spoyl the City, he was by the inhabitants forced to flee with disthonour and shame, there being none to help him, 1 Macc 6.1——5.2 Macc.9.1,2. But though this story be true; yet his end here rather denotes the end of his life, which seems to be in Babylon, 1 Macc. 6.4,8,9,13,16. in the 148 or 149 year of the kingdom of the Greeks: compare 1 Macc.6.16. with 2 Macc.11,21,23. and his end was miserable enough, without any help, as the next words shew; and the story relates, 2 Macc.9.10,12. Thus was the horn broken without hand, Chap.8.25.

CHAP. XII.

A*Nd at that time*] Namely, in the year 147 year of the Kingdom of the Greeks, when Antiochus begun his expedition into Persia; and in his absence committed to Lysias the government of his young son Antiochus Eupator, and of all his affairs, from the river Euphrates, unto the borders of Egypt, with charge to destroy the Jews, to root out the remnant of Jerusalem, and take away the memorial of them from that place, 1 Macc.3. 32——38.

shall Michael] At that needful time shall Christ, who is Michael, in the form of God, &c. Phil.2.6. See Chap.10.13. and the Annotations there.

the great Prince, &c.] See Ezek.34.24. Apoc.1.5. and 12.17. and 15.3. the King of the Saints, and Chap.17.14.16. and Chap. 19.16. Eph.1.21.

which standeth, &c.] Who is their Captain, Josh.5.14,15. their protector against all their enemies, Gen.48.16. Psal. 54.7. stands up in their defence.

thy people] The Angels continued speech to Daniel. See Chap. 9.24. and the Annotations there. The Jews then, Daniels people must neccessarily be meant here, and their trouble; and so what follows is all meant of them, and not of the Church of Christ among the Gentiles under the Gospel, towards the end of the world.

a time of trouble, such, &c.] Never the like cruel and general persecution for Religion and Conscience, since there was a Nation, through the whole state and story of the Nation of the Jews, to and till that same time of Antiochus Epiphanes. And this one speech also might have kept up the right understanding of Daniel, and kept us close to those times, and people of the Jews, and with-held us from drawing men beyond Christ, for these troublous times and stories.

thy people shall be delivered] By Judas Maccabeus, and others. The pronouncing of the Jews deliverance out of these troubles, still maketh the foresaid Cause the plainer; That these words, and so all the rest of the Angels speech, as plainly appears, ver.7, 10,11,12. are bounded within the limits of the time and story of Antiochus Epiphanes. And withal we see, that his peoples extremity in troubles, Christ takes as his best opportunity and season, for his working their deliverance. And this temporal deliverance of Gods people mentioned here, through his much mercy is carried on in after ages, and promoted by several degrees, till it receive its full and final accomplishment in and by Christs second coming.

every one that shall be found written in the book] Of Gods decree for this deliverance aforesaid. This Metaphor of writing in a book, we find meet in vocal Moses, Exod.32.32. where it is called Gods Book, and of his Writing. Afterwards in David, Psa. 69.28. In the New Testament, Paul calls it the Book of life, Phil. 4.3. And so our Saviour, Apoc.3.5. and Chap.22.19. and the angel, Apoc.17.8. and St. John, Apoc.20.12.15. who also calls it the Book of Life of the Lamb, Apoc.13.7. the Lambs book of life, Apoc.21.27 See Ezek.13.9. These said places and passages have relation to Gods eternal Decree of Election, and to those persons that are so elected. And these here mentioned in this Text may seem to be some of that number. Deliverance they shall have, either temporal, or spiritual.

V. 2. And many of them that sleep, &c.] The meaning of the whole verse seems to be this, That notwithstanding that deliverance formerly promised, yet it shall come to passe, that many of the Elect shall then be slain in that persecution of Antiochus, and sleep in the dust of the earth; their enemies mean while living and triumphing: and that therefore that deliverance is not to be taken as commensurate, and bounded only within the narrow limits of this transitory life, but to be extended to the consideration of Eternity: And so though many of the Elect should be slain in that persecution; and so in mercy taken out of the miseries of this life: yet the time shall come, even that time of the general Resurrection of all men, when these shall awake out of the sleep of death, to everlasting life; and these persecuting enemies, notwithstanding their flourishing and triumphing estate in the short time of this life, shall then awake to shame and everlasting contempt. See Heb.11.35. 2 Macc.14.46.

many] All the dead shall arise again, many, sometimes signifieth all; as Rom.5.19. Here many doth distribute them all into two sorts, two multitudes, two ranks, as our Saviour doth, Mat.25. 33, &c. The Hebrew accent set upon the word רבים many, so singles it out, as shews it is equally to be referred to both members of the distribution following, Joh.5.28,29.

that sleep, &c.] A description of death, usual in Scripture. The soul liveth in the sleep of death; as it doth in the sleep of the body in this life.

shall awake] Out of that sleep; shall rise, and live again, Job 14.12. Esay 26.19.

some to shame] See Esay 66.24. Rom.9.21.

V. 3. And they shall be wise] Or, teachers, pointing specially at those, Chap.11.33.35. such as were in Matthias, Judas Maccabees, Eleazar the old man, and valiant martyr, and others: and generally the true Believers who in this life are lightned by the holy spirit, shall enjoy the light of glory in the kingdome of Heaven.
